Some Decide, Others Parley for Union Posts

Eight Recommended Sophomores Announce Candidacy; Klein Circulates Petition

By J. J.

Eight recommended sophomores have announced their candidacy for Union board, and six more are still making up their minds. The sophomores are:

D. U.'s Going Strong

Over at the D. U. house, Bob Bassett, Ed DenDooven, and Don Mershon are holding a parley to decide who shall be the sophomore to run, while Marshall North '31, will fight for the junior class candidacy.

Bob Burgess and Wally Graebner are deciding which one of them will run from Alpha Delta Phi in the coming political fray. Both are recommended men, as are the Delta Upsilon's.

All Not Reached

Alex Nichols, Sumner Summerfield, Douglas Wood, and Dick Hippenmeyer could not be reached for their verdicts, but it is very probable that Dick Hippenmeyer will throw his hat into the ring.

Hugh Bloodgood, Alpha Delta Phi, has filed his petition for member-at-large, and Milton Klein, the dormitory-independent candidate, after giving all inquirers a smile and an "I dunno" for the past two weeks, has finally announced that his name will appear in the voters' guide.

The Cardinal Board of Control will announce its recommendations Thursday. So far Orrin Evans, Phi Kappa Sigma, and Margaret Murphy are candidates. John Zeratsky, Alpha Chi Rho, still smiles when quizzed. He said everything but "yes" and "no."

Military Ball Lasts 'Til 1 a.m.

Guns, Cannon Lend Atmosphere; Use Entire Union Building

By action of the Student Life and Interests committee, the Military ball, to be held in the Memorial Union April 4 with Coon-Sanders Night-hawks supplying the music, will be the only one o'clock party of the year.

Cadet Lieut.-Col. Ralph J. Kraut has announced that the entire Memorial Union will be given over to the patrons of the ball.

Boxes will be decorated with colored lighting effects, in addition to being completely furnished with davenports and easy chairs.

While Coon-Sanders will play in the Great hall, there will also be dancing in the Council room to music carried by amplifiers from the floor above. Besides service in Tripp Commons and the Georgian Grill where the music will also be carried, beer and sandwiches will be served gratis in the Rathskeller to the ball-goers.

Both of the ballrooms will be decorated with flags, rifles, machine guns, and one-pounders in keeping with the military atmosphere.

Short Course Students to Hold Annual Banquet

The 45th class of the Short Course division of the College of Agriculture will have its annual banquet tonight at 6:30 p. m. in the Old Madison room of the Memorial Union. Prof. T. M. Bewick, toastmaster of the occasion, will open the dinner with a short talk, followed by musical selections presented by the Short Course orchestra and glee club. Other speakers will be Alvin Ahrens, Leon H. Thoma, Edward Senty, Dale S. Young, Harvey Peckham, Willard Waterworth, Obert Rassmussen, Dean J. E. James, and Ralph Arnold.

Till They Meet Again

Or an Exposition on Outstanding Campus Institutions With a Past and Future (To Their Own Members)

About the best subject at hand for an innocuous editorial is the White Spades outfit, or perhaps Iron Cross, or possibly the Interfraternity council. There seems to be something so utterly guileless about these organizations that any vigorous attack upon them is wasted effort. To parry with them is to joust with windmills. To consider them seriously is to jest with intelligence.

Take White Spades, now. Take them anywhere. A group of athletes and politicians who, as Broun has it, try to make straw without bricks. Every spring these Great Minds go into a huddle and select 13 additional Towering Personalities from the junior class. This little putt-putt action is their reason for existence. The tremendous importance of this comedy (to members of White Spades) is perfectly apparent.

Or take the Interfraternity council. If it can be found, it has a high-sounding title. It even meets regularly. It has gone so far toward solving the pressing problems of fraternity row—finances, pledging, hell-week, etc.—as to consider giving a dance. It is very important (to its members) on the campus, which should be apparent.

Then there is Iron Cross. At least it used to be. It hasn't done much since its last meeting (several months ago). But membership is cheap, and marks a campus figure as being important (in the eyes of the rest of the Iron Cross members).

Well, well. Such is honor, such is life, on the university campus. This is a constructive editorial.

Brady Urges New Dramatic Circuit; Promises Good Plays

Women Mass Tonight to See Future Heads

Candidates for election to all offices of W. S. G. A., W. A. A., and Y. W. C. A., will be introduced at an open meeting of the W. S. G. A. board in the Great hall of the Memorial Union Thursday night at 7:15 p. m.

Helen McLellan '30, election chairman of W. S. G. A., will preside at the meeting and present the nominees. A voters' guide, listing the qualifications and activities of all candidates, will be given out at that time.

Every undergraduate woman student on the campus is urged by the election committee to attend this meeting, which will be the only opportunity to meet the nominees and personally determine their relative abilities. Election of officers in these groups will be held Tuesday, March 18, in the Memorial Union. All women students should make it a point to vote for the candidates in whom they are interested.

Thoughtless Joan Nearly Lectures Here for Nothing

Joan Lowell's carefree, sea-going air almost resulted in the disappearance of her $350 fee check. Paid before she entered the Great hall to recount her adventures, she absently-mindedly did away with the money voucher with a single gesture, throwing the whole chapter of Theta Sigma Phi into a panic.

Mrs. Hanson, guardian of the woman's dressing room on the second floor of the Memorial Union, proved the heroine when she dug deep into the recesses of the wastebasket and found the crumpled piece of paper bearing a bank imprint and the signature of the banquet executives authorizing the payment of the three and one-half centuries.

Explanation: Miss Lowell had received the check before she entered the room, but was so much more interested in the reception that she had received that she crumpled the check in her hand together with another piece of paper and gently let both sheets waft toward the receptacle for waste particles.

Wickhem Tells Newman Club of Irish; White Will Reply

"Why the World Loves the Irish" will be the subject of a talk to be given by Prof. J. D. Wickhem of the law school, at a St. Patrick's day banquet, to be held in the Newman club rooms of the chapel, Sunday at 5:30 p. m. Prof. Wickhem's talk will be answered by one given by Prof. Helen White, of the English department. Prof. White will tell the guests "Why the World Doesn't Love the Irish."

Suggested 'Sentimental Alliance' Includes Madison With Other Cities

While pledging himself to bring some of the outstanding New York productions to Madison should a new theater circuit be established, William A. Brady, famous producer and actor, reaffirmed his belief in the existence of a strong interest in the legitimate theater before Prof. Wm. C. Troutman's drama class at 2:30 p. m. Wednesday in Bascom theater.

He urged a "sentimental alliance" between Minneapolis, St. Paul, Duluth, Milwaukee, and Madison in the establishment of a new dramatic circuit. "I give my word that I'd represent that group and I'd call representative theater producers together and give you the plays that you want."

"American dramatists are too prosperous, too lazy, too staid," said Mr. Brady, while discussing the present hard times in the theater.

Mr. Brady's daughter Alice is famous on the stage and screen. He started Douglas Fairbanks on his career at $40 a week. Maude Adams danced in one of his shows at six dollars a week.

Alpha Zeta Makes Plans for Next Initiation Banquet

To make arrangements for the initiation banquet to be held March 27 is the purpose of the meeting of the Alpha Zeta, honorary agriculture fraternity, tonight at 7:15 p. m., in the Graduate room of the Memorial Union. Wilber Renk '31 is chairman of the arrangements committee with Theodore Ahlgren '32 and Martin Burkhardt '30, assisting him.

Romantic Love--Ahhh! That's America's Need, Says Joan

By JOSEPH EDELSTEIN

"American men are too hesitant in their love-making; they are too practical, too disregardful of the glamor that surrounds a woman's love of the romantic," Joan Lowell insisted Wednesday night. She tossed her head when she said that. It really is an attractive head—not pretty, just attractive.

No-o-o, she continued hesitantly, she wouldn't indict them on that count, but they lacked that finesse, that fierceness of the European. That is the way she loved! she added softly.

Fascinates Interviewer

Surely if ever this artless young creature met another of the opposite sex, and had 10 minutes conversation as of Wednesday night, with him, in a walk, in the intervals of a crowded dance hall, or, even, for that matter, behind a banquet table—she confided in him, so to speak. Made play with her beautiful eyes, spoke in a tone of tender interest, of simple and touching appeal, and then she might leave him to perform the same pretty little drama in behalf of his successor.

That takes genius! Joan Lowell, she

Owen Wins Nomination in Aldermanic Battle

Prof. Ray S. Owen of the college of engineering won the race for the tenth ward aldermanic nomination in the Madison primary elections Tuesday. Prof. Owen and Alderman H. J. Steffen were the successful candidates, while W. S. Hobbins, a third candidate, was eliminated. The vote was: Owen, 457; Steffen, 398; Hobbins, 233.

Joan Lowell Insists Book Is 80% True

"The Cradle of the Deep" is 80 per cent true," stated Joan Lowell, the authoress of the famous sea tale, in her address given at the fifth annual Matrix table banquet, sponsored by Theta Sigma Phi, honorary journalistic sorority, Wednesday night, in Great hall at the Memorial Union.

"I really lived on a four-masted sailing vessel. My father was engaged in the copra trade. We sailed between San Francisco and Australia," Miss Lowell continued. "I learned to look at life from the rugged point of view of the sailor."

Is Charming Person

Joan Lowell is a charming personality. A low deep voice, a singular rugged and simple charm captivated her audience of 400 women.

A "gypsy wandering writer with a degree from the University of the Sea," Miss Lowell terms herself. Leaving her father's ship, she attempted to get into a Berkeley high school. She was refused admittance. Entering a vocational school, she took sewing "to be feminine," commercial law "so nobody could cheat" her, typing and short hand to "get a job," and dramatics.

Leaves School

She left school and tried to get a job. In Hollywood, she took a job as extra waitress. Rupert Hughes, thinking she would make a good comic actress, because of her "sailor walk," gave her an opportunity to try a screen test. She was hired—and fired two weeks later.

From Los Angeles Miss Lowell went to Broadway, where she starred in "Port O' London." Attracted by her (Continued on page 2)

There have been no new developments on the proposed $300,000 women's dormitory, preliminary developments for which were announced Tuesday, Harold Togstad, Madison real estate man interested in the deal revealed Wednesday.

Presidents Say Deferred Plan a Pleasant But Impractical Ideal

Twenty presidents of fraternities and presidents of fraternity pledge classes Wednesday hailed, condemned, and half-heartedly accepted the new rushing rules adopted Tuesday by the Interfraternity council.

According to the modified regulations no man may be pledged until he matriculates in the university. Rushing is not to begin until the day following the last day of orientation week. The rules also define the term freshman as used by fraternities and fix hours during which rushing may take place.

Some of the opinions are:

Deferred Plan Ideal

"The ideal condition would be deferred rushing," said Tom Stine, grad. president of Acacia fraternity. "However, if a system of deferred rushing is found impracticable as it has been on this campus, I would be in favor of rules which would be obeyed and respected by fraternities, regardless of the nature of the rules."

"I am in favor of rushing before classes start," stated John O'Connor '33, president of the Alpha Chi Rho pledge class. "Rushing after classes have started takes too much attention away from studies and class work."

Get It Over With

"It is much better for the freshmen to get rushing over with as soon as possible," stated Erwin Ford '30, president of Kappa Sigma. "I am in favor of no deferment of rushing after orientation week."

"Freshmen know when they enter the university what fraternity they want to pledge and might as well choose at once," said Jack Hogan '33, president of the Phi Kappa Sigma pledge class. "I am not in favor of deferred rushing."

Cites Alternatives

"Rushing should either be deferred for a semester or it should return to cut throat methods," stated George Burridge '31, president of Delta Upsilon. "Either one way or the other must be used, and either would be (Continued on page 2)"

Sanger to Talk on Birth Control

Famed Sociologist to Speak March 17; Liberal Club Sponsors Talk

Mrs. Margaret Sanger, internationally famed birth control worker and sociologist, will speak on "The Need of Birth Control in America" at Music hall Monday evening, March 17, at 8 o'clock. The decision was made at a meeting of the Liberal club, which is sponsoring the lecture.

Mrs. Sanger, who is at present campaigning in the west for more liberal birth control laws, is the editor of The Birth Control Review and of the Woman Rebel. She is active in the birth control league, and is the author of two books, "What Every Girl Should Know," and "What Every Mother Should Know."

Although she is the acknowledged leader of the birth control movement in the United States, Mrs. Sanger is the mother of four children. He foundation for dissemination of birth control information to poverty stricken mothers in New York was recently raided by the police of that city, but the case was subsequently dismissed.

The election of officers of the Liberal club was indefinitely postponed. Plans were discussed for bringing to Wisconsin Robert Morse Lovett, associate editor of the New Republic.

Alpha Kappa Psi Installs New Officers Tonight

better than the plan followed last fall."

"A week's deferment should be long enough for fraternities if the university thinks it is long enough for a freshman to accustom himself to the university," said Ernie Lusby '31, president of Tau Kappa Epsilon. "I don't think rushing need be put off more than a week."

Semester Deferment a Failure

"Semester deferred rushing here has been more or less of a failure," asserted Robert Buell L2, Phi Kappa Psi president. "I see no reason why rushing should be deferred more than a week, but I am not in favor of removing all restrictions."

"Fraternities will observe the new rushing rules better than they have the old," stated Warren Clark '31, president of Beta Theta Pi, "because since deferment lasts only a week they will not be tempted to break the regulations. The new rules will better meet rushing problems than the old ones did."

"Although I am in favor of deferred rushing I do not think it is necessary to defer it for a whole semester," stated George Redick '33, president of the Delta Kappa Epsilon pledge group.

charming personality, critics asked her why she didn't write a story of the sea. After much consideration, she started "Cradle of the Deep." A few months later it was announced as the "Book of the Month."

Writes Book for Retort

In response to the bitter irony of Corey Ford's "Salt Water Taffy," which Miss Lowell terms "coarse and vulgar," she is writing "Kicked Out of the Cradle of the Deep."

Glee Durand '30, president of Theta Sigma Phi, was chairman of the banquet. Mrs. J. A. Jackson acted as toastmistress of the evening. Mrs. W. S. Marshall, prominent in Madison circles, thanked Theta Sigma Phi in behalf of the Madison women present at the affair. Dr. Bleyer, of the journalism school, offered thanks from the faculty.

College Not Important

"College does not play a particularly large part in the moulding of a man's external make-up," she commented, dexterously flicking the ashes from her cigarette. "That is, one cannot say; 'He's a college man,' 'He's not.'"

"It's influence on women, however, is much greater. This is most easily recognizable in their fickleness in marriage. You see, they have greater opportunities. Their adventures and contacts do not permit a narrow haven."

Dr. E. A. Ross to Speak to Presbyterian Men's Group

Dr. E. A. Ross of the university will speak to the Young Men's group of college men of the Christ Presbyterian church Sunday morning at 9:30. His theme will be "Some Religions I Have Met Around the World." The meeting is open to all college men or men of college age.

Seniors Take Women's Cage Title; Win From Juniors in 31-18 Scrap

Frosh and Junior Bees Also Win in Tuesday Night's Games

By BERNICE HORTON
A stuffed "goat" proved to be a luckier mascot than a live one when the senior basketball team, possessors of the traditional emblem of victory, conquered their bitterest enemies, the juniors, in the championship basketball tilt, the culmination of the women's class cage tournament, Tuesday night in Lathrop gym by a score of 31-18.

Earlier in the evening the freshmen had overcome the sophomores after a close battle, 18-14, and the Junior B sextette had squeezed out a 19-16 victory over the Frosh B's.

Finish Strongly
A strong start and a brilliant finish in the "piece de resistance" of the evening, the junior-senior clash, brought the laurels of the championship to the class of '30. Although their opponents threatened seriously during the second and third quarters, in the first and final periods the superb teamwork, close guarding and keen marksmanship of the veteran senior six gave them a supremacy in every department of the game that was unchallengeable.

As soon as the echoes of the opening whistle had died away the star senior forwards began to reap their harvest of points, and the first quarter ended with the seniors leading, 12-4. The juniors began their attack in the second period, catching up to the leaders until the score at the half stood 14-11. They reached their climax in the third quarter when, by a brilliant burst of teamwork, they tied the score at 18-all, as the period ended.

Juniors Shoot Wildly
The senior sharpshooters, Ted Wiesner and Lucile Verhulst, playing together for the last time after four years of teamwork, soon spiked the junior hopes by making a basket every time they got the ball in their territory. The junior forwards were meanwhile forced to shoot wildly past the very efficient opposing guards, Mercedes Weiss and Ora Zuelhke.

The play of both teams was of such high quality that it was difficult to pick out any particular stars. The work of the senior forwards and of Helen McLellan, veteran center, ought to be mentioned however. For the juniors, Marjory Hamer, Jo Renshaw, and Helen Schneider played especially well.

The lineups for the match were: seniors: L. Verhulst, T. Wiesner, H. McLellan, M. Cauldwell, H. Gilman, E. Barton, M. Weiss and O. Zuelhke. Juniors: H. Elliott, D. Hansmann, M. Hamer, J. Renshaw, R. Phenicie and H. Schneider.

Second Tilt Close
In the match between the sophomore and freshmen first teams, the latter took the victory by coming from behind in the last quarter to outscore the sophs by the narrow margin of two baskets. The play was close throughout with the sophs maintaining the third period, the only point in a slight advantage until the last period. They led 10-8 at the half and neither team made a field goal during being scored by the frosh on a free throw.

Ruby Tepler, star frosh forward, hit her stride in the last half of the game and put her team ahead by making shots count when they were most needed.

Katherine Pevear, Mary Moses and Ruby Tepler played nice games for the victors while Gwen Holt and Henriette De Jughe performed well for the losers.

Lineups Follow
The teams were: frosh: R. Tepler, B. Woods, K. Pevear, M. Moses, S. Hoopes, D. Hillemeier. Sophs: A. Greenlee, H. DeJughe, L. Kraus, B. Eversmeyer, G. Holt, E. Popp, J. King. The junior B's beat the frosh B aggregation in the third encounter of the evening. The victors got an early lead and clung to it throughout the game, although the count at the half was 10-6. The final score was close also, standing 19-16 when the whistle blew. Although this match did not equal the others in excellence, it was a fairly good brand of play.

The lineups for this game were: Junior B: H. Runkel, L. Berry, J. Schroeder, E. Grimm, M. Parkin, M. Lee, C. Loscher. Frosh B: D. Thomas.

Forfeit, Draw in Tussling Matches of Greek Tourney

The interfraternity wrestling tournament took another step forward Tuesday evening when four Greek tussling squads clashed at the old gym. Alpha Epsilon Pi and Phi Kappa were unable to decide the victor of their match as each team won two falls and the fifth match ended a draw. Phi Epsilon Pi forfeited to Sigma Phi Epsilon.

Ginsburg, 125 pound Alpha Epsilon Pi tussler, pinned Mueller, of Phi Kappa, in three minutes and fifteen seconds. In the 135 pound class, Cavaliere quickly and with little difficulty pinned Nashban, Alpha Epsilon Pi, in one minute to avenge his team-mate's defeat in the match before.

Towner, in the 145-pound division, for Alpha Epsilon Pi, took the next match from Vellwork to put the A. E. Pi squad in the lead by five points. Novotny after six and a half minutes of rough and tumble tussling put Goldberg to the mat for a fall and enough points for Phi Kappa to tie the score. The 175 pound class men were unable to settle their match and finished in a tie which at the same time gave each team 11½ points for a tie match.

Hillel, Calvary Battle Tonight

Church Title at Stake When Two Division Leaders Meet in Gym

The championship of the Church league basketball race will be at stake this evening at 7:30 in the university gymnasium when the Calvary Lutheran and Hillel Foundation quintets, winners in their respective divisions, will clash for the title.

Fighting to retain the crown that they annexed last season, will be Calvary Lutheran, the five that led by Tury Oman, have made a runaway of Division 2 and are once again favored to repeat with a fairly easy victory over their opponents who, although they have not lost a game this season, found the going somewhat tougher in the first division.

Calvary Strong
Calvary possesses a group that uses teamwork as well as individual brilliance to defeat their opponents. Earlier in the season they were coached by Joe Murphy, and while he is no longer in school, they have continued to develop along the lines they were instructed on.

On the other hand, the Hillel aggregation has had neither coaching nor an opportunity to develop much team play, but it does possess a group of men who are individual stars of more or less brilliance and playing upon the large floor of the armory, should be able to furnish a neat battle to their opponents.

Some fine individual playing will be seen when Tury Oman, who was recently given a forward position on the first all-fraternity team by the Daily Cardinal, clashes against Max Novick. Novick is one of the best independent players in school and was recently honored by being placed upon the all-city team at a guard position.

Hillel Strong Defensively
Against the neat floorwork and accurate shooting of Calvary, Hillel will advance a team that has succeeded at least in developing a good defense plus an offense that can function in critical moments, and it is on this basis that they hope to be able to upset their opponents.

Calvary Lutheran will take the floor this evening with the same five men that have comprised their team in a majority of their games, namely Oman and Anderson at forwards, Kinsky at center, and Goebe and Nelson at guards. Hillel will have a starting lineup of Novick and Saul at the forward posts, Goodman at center, and Gottlieb and Field at guards.

The winner of this game will then meet the winner of the dormitory title, and the subsequent victor of this

Greek Bowlers Meet in Title Round Tonight

Sigma Pi, Pi Kappa Alpha, Acacia, Phi Kappa Begin Round-Robin

Sigma Pi and Pi Kappa Alpha came through in the last games of the interfraternity bowling finals at the Plaza alleys Tuesday night to take first place in their respective divisions. These teams will compete with Phi Kappa and Acacia, second place winners, in the round-robin tournament to decide the winner of the interfraternity bowling trophy. This tourney begins at the Plaza tonight.

The Sigma Pi bowlers gathered 2,644 pins in their match with Delta Kappa Epsilon for the high total of the evening. Moseley of Sigma Pi set a record when he knocked down 622 pins, this being his second 600 game in the final round. He began the evening with 191, and followed with 221, and 210. Moseley's score is all the more remarkable because he was nursing a blistered thumb when he began to bowl.

Pi Kappas Blank Opponents
Pi Kappa Alpha blanked Delta Theta Sigma to win their match three to one and undisputed first place in division one. The victors finished the finals without losing a single match and lost only three games.

Phi Kappa and Alpha Chi Rho bowled their match to decide which of the two should take second place and the right to bowl in the round-robin final. The Phi Kappa Keglers got an early lead hitting the maples to collect the first two games. The Alpha Chi Rho squad, however, showed their pluck in the last game to win by over 100 sticks.

Sig Pi's Take Three Straight
Sigma Pi took its match with the Dekes in straight games. The three games gave the Sigma Pi team a one game advantage over the Acacia pin men who had up till then been leading the division. The Sig Pi keggers have won every match in the finals and have dropped only two games. Acacia, the second place team, lost one match and three games.

The SAE's and the Delta Kappa Epsilon team tied for third in the second division. Delta Sigma Tau took a two to one match from Delta Sigma Pi, but it had no effect on the first three places in division one.

Alpha Chi Omega, Chads, All-Americans Win Matches

Alpha Chi Omega, Chadbourne and the All-Americans were the champions of the first matches in the finals of the women's intramural bowling tournament held Tuesday evening at Lathrop hall.

The first match of the evening between Alpha Chi Omega and Beta Sigma Omicron was not up to par for the final entries. The Alpha Chi Omega's took both games from Beta Sigma Omicron through average scoring, totaling 341-337 and 403-359. Teams: Alpha Chi Omega: Lohman, Dyrad, Johnson, and Broughton. Beta Sigma Omicron: Fosse, Krug, Scott, and Van Roo.

Foster, 'Chimmy' Given Posts on Mythical Teams

All-Big Ten basketball selections let out yesterday by the Associated Press and the United Press place three Wisconsin men in the lineups. Captain Bud Foster, graduating center of Wisconsin's second place cage team was given the forward post on both teams.

Chmielewski, outstanding guard who has still one year more to play was given the back floor position on the Up five but was relegated to the same position on the AP second team. Maury Farber, forward, was included in the honorable mention list of the United Press selections.

William Weeks, leading sports writer for the AP chain made his choices with the help of conference coaches while Bert Demby, the UP chief staff sports correspondent, picked his three fives after witnessing every Big Ten team in action. Murphy and Wooden, Purdue, as well as McCracken of Indiana were the unanimous choices with Foster for both first teams.

The last match was featured by the steady shooting of Dr. Haushammer who was high man for the evening with 276 points. Cadet Roy Smith turned in the highest score for the Corps team with a 265 count, Cadet Coplitts trailing him by two points.

Tarrant's Win Over Gregory Retains Lead

Ochsner Shares First Place With Tarrant; Both Have Easy Schedule Left

The outcome of the dormitory cage league was thrown into doubt Tuesday night when Tarrant outplayed Gregory and won easily, 22-14. The result leaves the winners in a tie for first place with Ochsner, and with both teams having comparatively weak teams on the remainder of their schedules, all signs point to a final tie between the two Adams hall quintets. The playing of the evening was far below par, all four games being slow and poorly played.

Siebeck was upset 16-7 by High after starting their second team. Spooner launched a second half drive which netted them a 17-8 victory over Faville. Fallows won their third game of the year by trouncing Noyes 39-10.

Tarrant 22, Gregory 14

The Tarrant-Gregory affair held the spotlight, for while both teams were considerably off, the standings of the leaders were materially affected by the result. Tarrant continued in their tie with Ochsner, while Gregory dropped out of their tie for third place with Botkin and took possession of fourth place. Bashford is right behind in fifth place, where a win will hoist them into a tie.

Cohen was the main scorer for the "Terrible" Tarrants. With a shifted lineup, the losers were completely at sea most of the time, and their previous strong defense cracked under the repeated thrusts of the Tarrant forward wall.

High 16, Siebeck 7

High forged ahead of Siebeck in the standings by trouncing the overconfident five from Adams hall who started their subs. High has been an in and out team all year, and this disdainful gesture served as an incentive. The outcome was never in doubt. Ross led the scoring with seven points, although the High total was well divided among all the players. Engelke led the Siebeck team with five markers.

Spooner was unprepared for the extraordinary playing of the Faville outfit, and was held to a 5-2 count at half time. However, the second half saw the Tripp hall entry awaken, and they ran up a score of 17-8 before hostilities were finished. The game was slow and uninteresting, both

Health, War and Sport In the Curriculum

WHILE the academic atmosphere is full of curriculum suggestions and several committees are busy shoving new puzzle pieces into a new curriculum puzzle pattern, it seems that everyone (because only the college of letters and science is concerned) has overlooked the three appendages of the freshman and sophomore years: the trio of health, war, and sport.

No consideration of the betterment of the student body can be far reaching that does not delve into the department of student health for inspiration and guidance in re-evaluating those twin time-consumers of the undergraduate years: military science and physical education. Every undergraduate takes one, or the other, unless he is a physical weakling and needs both, in which case he gets a doctor's excuse and takes neither.

Several suggestions, created solely from the point of view of bettering the student health, have been worked out by The Daily Cardinal. They will be outlined as suggestions, which must be carefully weighed in any courageous and thorough-going curriculum change, beginning in tomorrow's editorial column.

Will the Red Menace Be Punctured?

REVERBERATIONS of the events preceding and following the communist and unemployment demonstrations of March 6 will not soon be stilled. A national press, paralyzed by fear of slumping advertising revenues, is doing its utmost to conjure up for the American public a monstrous Red Menace. Because the communists, in seizing upon the strained unemployment situation to campaign for their own brand of cure-all, have sounded sour notes in the business-is-good song, they are being beaten, clubbed, and driven like beasts from public places, all with the vituperative approval of 100-per cent newspaper editors. America's little drama of whistling while passing an economic graveyard has been rudely interrupted, and the vicious perpetrators of the deed must be crushed out of the squares, out of the news.

The situation grows alarming by its very dimensions. To judge from our various sources of information one might venture to say that we are witnessing a national hysteria in the course of formation. Besides the police clubbings and the violent anti-Red editorializing, we have seen the United States department of justice direct its agents to cooperate with Chicago police in giving the stigma of communism to all unemployment demonstrations; we have learned that the Los Angeles school board has acted to prevent any student of communist beliefs from getting a high school diploma; from New York comes word that the city police force is card-indexing all known communists in the city, and will attempt to drive them from their jobs in all lines of business and industry; we have been informed of the inflammatory broadside of Matthew Woll, vice-president of the American Federation of Labor, sent to commercial organizations in 500 cities and to all members of congress, including hatred for Soviet Russia. So far has the Fear spread.

Except for the small voices of isolated critics, American leadership has everywhere countenanced this stirring up of blind hatred for a stereotype, a cartooned fanatic with shaggy whiskers. What justifies the means that have been used to stamp out communistic propaganda? Are the foundations of this government set so loosely in shifting sands that a mere handful of doctrinaires can wreck it? Has hairy-chested and spike-heeled suppression ever succeeded when there was just cause for institutional changes? Is this government as weak and rotten as was Imperial Russia, so that it must use czaristic measures against its critics? Our answer to these queries, and they are not straw men set up to be knocked down, must be emphatic. There has never been nor is there now any justification for the passionate cruelty which is being poured upon the heads of the communists.

Suppression by brute force breeds madness, and out of such madness grow riot, rebellion, and revolution. It is time and high time to face our economic unrest with intelligence instead of brutality. The hounds of hysteria must be called off by those among us who can see beyond a manner of dress, who can evaluate a theory. Unless our leadership is ready to witness a repetition of the Haymarket bombing, the Homestead riot, or the Colorado war, it must take vigorous steps toward dispelling the Red Fear. And those steps must be taken soon. The history of mankind is freighted with the futility of law by iron. Has no progress been made?

Chicago Prays—But Seldom Pays

A LETTER from Chicago brings news that the teachers in the public schools there are once more without pay. At Christmas time the teachers were not paid until the day before Christmas, when, after the city council had frantically implored every banking association in the city, the teachers were able to get their salaries by traveling across the snow-bound city to their schools. The February checks were not paid. And now, a month late, the salaries for that month have been issued and nobody knows when the money due the first of March will be delivered.

Money is very tight in the city. The Loop is deserted, and goods are selling far below usual prices everywhere.

Meanwhile, perhaps for the first time in history, a city of 3,000,000 people is begging to be allowed to pay its taxes. No taxes have been collected in Chicago in two years, and if all present and past taxes become due at once no one will be able to pay them.

The tax situation is a result of excessive graft in the tax assessments. Many owners of small homes, men and women of no political importance, were taxed on the full resale value of their property. Other property owners, political henchmen and wealthy bribers of politicians, were assessed for as little as 10 per cent of the value of their property.

The situation became, finally, too blatant. The newspapers began insisting upon a reassessment. Politicians and large property-holders opposed the change. The average citizen, who should have gained the most by the revaluation, had no power. The city has been quarreling ever since. And the citizens have not paid taxes for two years; the teachers keep their homes running on borrowed money.

Now the good people of Chicago, in their churches, are praying for the end of the crime wave. Without money in the city treasury, city employees will not be paid; without their salaries, the city's trade is slowed down; without the trade, unemployment increases, and with it crime. The good people might try praying for a federal reassessment commission, and then try to do something about the political situation.

Again, That Office Of the Dean of Men

THERE is a sardonic warning in the reference to the Dean's offices which the Board of Visitors included in their report which has just been released for widespread circulation. The passage, dealing with a reform in the activities of the Dean of Men, quoted from the Visitors' previous report of 1925:

"In connection with this whole problem, there has come to our attention a communication dated March 20, 1925, from Dean Goodnight to President Birge relative to the responsibilities of the Dean of Men and the advisability of transferring the disciplinary function which is now the responsibility of the Dean of Men to the Faculty Committee on Discipline.

"We believe with Dean Goodnight that the disciplinary function tends to destroy the confidential relationships which are essential to the type of work which the Dean of Men ought to do. We believe the plan of organization is such as to destroy any desire on the part of the individual student to confide in the Dean of Men. We believe that an invitation to visit the office of the Dean of Men is sometimes looked upon as a discredit by students.

"We believe that under the conditions, an individual is not encouraged to seek advice from the Dean of Men. And more than that, we do not see how any individual in the University with the numerous responsibilities which are now attached to the office of the Dean of Men can possibly do a satisfactory job in any one of them. We believe that the changes suggested by Dean Goodnight or something similar, leaving the Dean free to do constructive work, would be a great factor in building up the morale, especially of the new students and hence a factor in the solution of the freshman problem of the University."

The Visitors' credo on the functions of the Dean's office offers nothing which has not been suggested before. Its importance lies in the fact that the same problem of confused disciplinary and advisory duties was recognized and analyzed at a time when fur was not flying and minds were free from the heat of prejudice to coolly appraise the situation and seek a sane solution.

The fact that a solution was known five years ago is discouraging. It means, virtually, that unless the principles concerned in the present readjustment of the dean system are willing to take positive and constructive steps that nothing will be accomplished from the present consideration. It means, specifically, that President Glenn Frank will have to include a reorganization of both deans' offices in his "certain recommendations" which he promised the regents, and it further means that he must bring his promise to a working proposition before his "later" becomes too far removed from the discussion now existing.

And Dean Goodnight now holds the keystone position to add further impetus to the movement which he sponsored in 1925. A statement written with unequivocal directness reaffirming his hope for a change in the system would do much to quell the false charges of immorality which some persons have attached to any idea of a change. And constructive plans would openly go forward without the prodding of carping criticism.

Readers' Say-So

Alien Registration Bills

Editor, The Daily Cardinal:

THE proposal to register all aliens in the country is again before congress. With the strong sentiment in favor of it in the house there is danger that some form of registration may be enacted at the present session.

Secretary of Labor Davis and Chairman Johnson of the house committee on immigration have long sponsored such a measure. To this has been added recently the endorsement of "voluntary registration" by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor. The federation has long been strongly opposed to registration fearing that it might become a weapon for employers during strikes. Reversal of their long-standing policy is probably responsible for the present activity in congress.

In order to defeat these measures it is necessary to voice opposition now. Write or wire at once to the chairmen of these committees and to your own senators and representatives expressing your opposition to both the voluntary and compulsory registration projects. Write also to your local newspapers asking them to print in their columns the evils of the proposal.

Director, American Civil Liberties Union.

A Correction

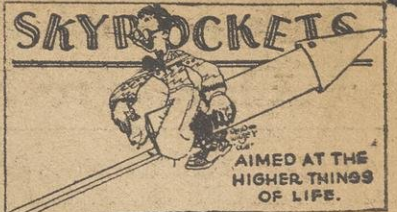

Editor, The Daily Cardinal:

IN SOME manner an error was introduced into my letter which was printed in Tuesday's Cardinal. A phrase which should have been "pursuing the will-o-the-wisp of immortality" was rendered "pursuing the will-o-the-wisp of morality." It is quite possible that the error was mine, having been introduced in copying. Be that as it may, I desire the correction to be announced publicly, as I do not wish to go on record against morality (i. e., against true morality, which is that which is in the best possible interests of the greatest possible number of the human race concerned therein, including future generations which might be affected thereby, as far as can be determined by the knowledge of the present. However I do oppose dogmatic moral codes and those which are set up as absolutes, for I believe morality to be relative, varying greatly from time to time, place to place, generation to generation, circumstance to circumstance, individual to individual, etc.). The point I wished to make in my reference to immortality was that those people whose attention and efforts were directed toward the attainment of this probably non-existent goal are not well fitted for adjusting themselves most aptly to this present life, helping humanity to make the best of it, and improving it for future generations. —A Graduate Student.

Do you fear the force of the wind,
The slash of the rain?
Go face them and fight them,
Be savage again.

The skin of your cheek will tan;
You'll grow ragged and weary and swarthy,
But you'll walk like a man!

Bankers Not Unapproachable Claims Prof. Kenneth E. Olson

Like Dam, Little Bits of Money
Produce Great
Force

"Getting a loan from a banker isn't nearly as hard as one might think," is the belief of Prof. Kenneth E. Olson of the journalism department, according to his talk over WHA Monday night in connection with the Commercial National bank's program on financial independence.

"It is essential to know the rules of the game," said Prof. Olson. "A short time ago I drove past the great dam up at Kilbourn, and I couldn't help thinking how that dam was bringing together the waters from little streams—streams which in themselves could create little power, but whose combined power is sufficient to turn out electrical energy to light whole cities.

Bank Like Dam

"A bank is like that dam," continued Prof. Olson. "You and I have a few dollars savings we can spare each month. Those few dollars alone can do little. But bring a lot of those small deposits together and you have something."

Prof. Olson explained that loaning money is a big part of the business of every bank, that this money that is loaned is the deposits of the bank's customers, and it must be ready to be paid back at any time.

Government Protects Customer

The government lays down definite rules to protect the customer. "Usually there are four things which must be considered in every loan," Prof. Olson continued. "The first is character. And the banker can only judge your character if he knows you. He cannot loan his depositors' money to strangers. Therefore it's a good plan to establish an acquaintance at your bank. Open a checking account or a savings account. Get as well acquainted as you can with the bank's tellers and officers. Talk over your financial problems with your banker frequently."

A man's earning power and his ability to repay the loan is the second thing that a banker must consider. A checking account is also a good indicator of this quality. "If a man checks out his money about as fast as he puts it in there's not much evidence of financial stability, but if he manages to keep a good balance in his account, that's evidence that he can manage his affairs successfully."

Financial Worth Factor

The third factor is financial worth, which can be checked by submitting a statement of assets and liabilities—showing how much more one owns than he owes—so that the bank will have evidence that he's good for the loan.

The last thing that the banker must look for is the purpose of the loan. "A bank can not loan money for speculative purposes. But one of the most approved purposes for borrowing money is that of making more money—by turning it over in profitable trades. And once you've established yourself in the confidence of your banker and built up your credit with him you'll find many opportunities to make use of that credit in helping yourself to get ahead faster."

Make Banker Confidant

"The whole matter of building up credit, of building up a bank's confidence in you, is just a question of taking your banker into your confidence.

"Establish as many connections within the bank as you can to show your banker that you're in earnest about getting ahead and you'll have no trouble building up his confidence in you and in establishing your own banking credit," concluded Prof. Olson.

Circuit Court Defers Action on Publishing Company Tax Suit

The action on the suit filed by the Daily Cardinal Publishing company against the city of Madison, declaring that as a part of an educational institution it is exempt from taxes, will not be taken in the circuit court until an answer to the complaint has been received from the city, Atty. P. C. Sanborn announced Tuesday.

"The case has been filed on the theory that the Cardinal Publishing company is exempt by statute from taxation," said Mr. Sanborn. "The company is devoted primarily to the publishing of the Daily Cardinal and all profits derived from the publication of the paper are used for the improvement of the plant."

The company demands a refund of its personal property taxes paid under protest March 15, 1929, which claim was filed as required by law with the common council. Upon the recommendation of the judiciary committee, the claim was rejected.

Business Worries Are Disadvantage, Declares Teacher

That the bricklayer can utilize the time a business man spends worrying over his bookkeeping was considered one of the advantages of trades over business by Henry C. Ahrens, teacher of history, social science, and debating, Beaver Dam, Wis., in a talk before the student group of the Memorial Reformed church recently.

The subject of Mr. Ahrens' address was "Occupational and Vocational Guidance with Religion as a Background."

Clean living for pastors, teachers, and lawyers, was advocated by the speaker, in lieu of the fact that all three of these occupations are of an exemplary type.

All-'U' Wrestling Tourney to Open Monday in Gym

Coach George Hitchcock, Badger wrestling mentor has devised plans for an all-university wrestling tournament to start Monday with the preliminaries and to carry through the week with the finals to be played off on Saturday, March 22.

Rules covering the tournament allow any male student in the university who has not won a letter or competed in a conference bout eligible for competition. This meet will give those men who have been unable to enter the regular wrestling competition a chance to earn numerals. The meet as run last year proved to be a huge success and should attract a large crowd of grappling fans for the final bouts.

Candidates must sign up and weigh in ready to wrestle before 4:30 Monday, March 17. The first of the preliminaries will start at that time and a straight elimination tournament in each weight class will be conducted in order to ascertain the winners.

The RAMBLER

"Complete Campus Coverage"

The ambition of a lifetime is being satisfied in this item. For years we have longed to see a chain letter and yet we have never succeeded. But Tuesday came such a missive addressed to the "Editor of the Daily Cardinal." The letter was put in our hands and as we print it, we wonder how soon it will be until we meet some unholy adventure or something. Here is the letter:

"THE GOOD LUCK FLOWER"

"THE GOOD LUCK FLOWER" was sent to me and I am sending it to you, that the chain may not be broken.

"copy this and send within 24 hours to people you wish good luck. The chain was established in Flanders and has been around the world four times. The one that breaks the chain will have bad luck. Copy this and see what happens within the next four days after you mail it. Mail this one and four others, making five in all.

"GOOD LUCK! 'DON'T KEEP THIS."

May we query
Who knows how many times it has gone around the world?
How does the sender know it will bring bad luck?
—And now to watch our steps.

"Lew" reveals one way of getting stuck in the Memunion cafeteria. If they list a hot beef sandwich with mashed potatoes at a certain price and at the same time list mashed potatoes at eight cents and browned spuds at a dime, take the mashed ones, if you don't want to pay the piper. If you take the browned potatoes, they soak you 10 cents more instead of the two cent difference. ("It's a rule," says the cashier.) But you can have the mashed potatoes for dessert, if you like that kind of a dessert.

The elements played havoc with our throat Wednesday, which is the best reason for our non-appearance at WHA.

Campus scenes... "Jazz" Watrous '31 cavening the new executive of Keystone council... The only ice on land in this peninsula seems to be on the lower campus... Jerry Bernstein '31 honking his horn at strange men.

And if that ducat for Military ball does not show its color soon, we'll hand out some of the old gore, not that we wish to say that the "three comps only" story is inaccurate.

Staying on the dance situation, we hear that the decorations for the Veiled Prophets ball will be a modernistic conception of Hell; at least that is what Frank Unger '32 thinks he has been drawing during the last fortnight or so.

When Crew Coach "Mike" Murphy posted a notice suggesting that the water sport might get into swing in the ¼ mile of open water in the University bay, he asked for suggestions on how to transport the barge to the bay. Some of the gymnastum jokesters added remarks like these:

"Grow wings and let it fly over."

"Row it over on the ice."

"Take it apart."

The first lady-bug of the year was discovered by Ralph Parkin, L2, in the Oety office—no place for a lady.

While the girls at Barnard discuss smoking rooms and practice long-distance kisses, the Chadbourne residents make a noon hour practice of climbing onto the roof and surveying the vicinity.

That was a nasty dig that Joan Lowell took at the deet... and we heard her speech, even though Prof. Willard Grosvenor Bleyer was supposedly the only male at hand.

Stew Higley '30 was seen looking over a windowful of new spring pajamas recently... Mayhap, he intends to repeat some of his personal parades of 1929.

Gordy Swarthout '31 points with pride to another black hat on this here campus—E. Forrest Allen, chief editor of the Cardinal, is also addicted to the same habit. From afar come reports that Gene Duffield '29, former editor, who would teach co-eds for love, has also been seen in one.

And in a low voice:
Pink: Don't say everything's over.
Lew: Never swipe someone else's stationery.

Kellogg's Rice Krispies are light, golden-brown bubbles that taste like toasted nutmeats. Try them tomorrow. They'll add new enjoyment to your breakfast. Particularly good with fruit or honey added. And Rice Krispies are delicious right out of the package.
