Dr. Meiklejohn Cites Dewey's Way of Living

Uses Philosopher as Modern Example of Significant Living

By HERMAN M. SOMERS
By using Jesus of Nazareth and Benedict Spinoza as the historic and John Dewey as the modern exemplars of the significant life and then contrasting significant living with insignificant living Dr. Alexander Meiklejohn concluded the "Significant Living" lecture series at Music hall Sunday evening.

Long before the lecture started every seat in the auditorium was occupied and throughout the address people were seated on the staircases, standing in the aisles, and crowding in the doorways. Many were turned away.

Significant Life Gay

"Never timid, never suspicious, never hateful, and never selfish" were the characteristics that Jesus, Spinoza and Dewey all had and that is what made their lives significant, claimed the educator. "The significant life is the life of the spirit. It is gay, reckless, generous, free and unafraid."

To illustrate the point further Dr. Meiklejohn read from the poetry of James Stevens and defended the statement that "the significant life makes grief beautiful."

Selfishness, Lying Hit

Vigorously the speaker described the idea that creativeness could be served by insignificant living, that worthy ends ever justified unworthy means. "You cannot serve truth by lying, you cannot win freedom by compulsion, selfishness never brings on generosity, war will never bring peace, ugliness cannot foster beauty."

In speaking of insignificant living Dr. Meiklejohn claimed that there were three great forces in modern life which were doing more than any other single factors to endanger the significant life. He pointed accusingly at the success standard, conventionalized religion, and science.

Religion Killed Jesus

"Conventionalized religion killed Jesus, it killed Spinoza, and there are many today who would do that for Dewey. In fact, I have been hearing rumors that we have some prophets right here in Wisconsin who are being subjected to the same abuse." Conventionalized religions refuse to think, they do not want to be questioned, they seek merely for comfort and security and thus set up selfish dogmas. They encourage prudency.

Violinist Shows Technical Ease

Szpinalski Evidences Vast Improvement in Sunday Concert

By HARRY WOOD
A more finished Szpinalski than Madison has ever heard, a Szpinalski whose technical facility was for the first time as bounteous as the zestful spirit of his music, presented a violin recital in the Great hall Sunday before a large and responsive crowd.

His artistry has become more exacting without the sacrifice of any spark of his effusive verve. Whereas formerly his ear for pitch was easily pleased, it has now become a martinet. He plays with ease yet not at the expense of drive. His interpretations are perfervid yet not to the point of vulgarity. In short his is a highly artistic temperament set loose through a highly trained medium. In most of his numbers he contributed as much to the result as did the composer.

Excels In Andante

The audience was justified in liking best his andante and adagio passages, for in them the meaty quality of his tone was most directly gripping. There a profusion of notes stood in the way of concentrated tone-study. He was nevertheless successful in creating a high musical temperature. The Vivaldi-Kreisler "Concerto in Major" which began the recital is colorful work with vivid contrasts.

Brahms' "Sonata in D Minor" was given a spirited handling by the violinist. The "Presto agitato" movement

Alumni Pick Five To Finish Plans For Fish Memorial

A committee of five members, headed by Myron T. Harshaw '12, of Chicago, was named Monday by the Wisconsin Alumni association to complete plans for a memorial to the late Carl Russell Fish, chairman of the history department.

Assisting Harshaw are L. F. Graber '10, of Madison, B. B. Burling '06, of Milwaukee, George W. Mead '94, of Wisconsin Rapids, and Richard Lloyd Jones '98, of Tulsa, Okla. The appointments were made by Earl O. Vits '14, president of the association, and were announced by Herman Ekstad '17, secretary.

Approval of a memorial honoring Prof. Fish, who for many years was one of the most popular men on the "hill," was given at the annual meeting of the alumni organization in November. Considerable sentiment for a Fish scholarship fund was expressed at that time.

Sophie Braslau Offers Union Concert Today

(Program on Page 7)
Sophie Braslau, well known American contralto, will present the first important vocal concert this season when she appears in Great hall of the Memorial Union at 8:15 p. m. in the second of Union Board's series of four Great hall concerts.

American born and American trained, Miss Braslau is one of the best known members of the Metropolitan Opera company of New York. She made her debut under Toscanini shortly after her 20th birthday and since that time has appeared in almost every sizeable city of America and Europe.

Miss Braslau has been accorded many honors for her genius in the field of music, among which is her recent nomination to Vanity Fair's "Hall of Fame." "Vanity Fair nominates Sophie Braslau to its 'Hall of Fame' because: She is probably the foremost American contralto; because she speaks five languages like a native and sings in eight languages; because she began her career with the Metropolitan Opera house; because she is a leader of the American intelligentsia; and finally, because Toscanini chose her for one of his infrequent soloists."

Miss Braslau has chosen a program for tonight's concert which is well calculated to display her talent. Her program will include selections from the German, French, Spanish, Polish, and American composers.

Ewbank, McCarty to Speak To Women Varsity Debaters

Prof. H. L. Ewbank, of the speech department, chairman of the radio committee, and H. B. McCarty, program director of WHA, the university radio station, will address members of the women's varsity debate squad, at a meeting in 260 Bascom hall at 4:30 p. m. today. Problems intimately connected with radio broadcasting and government control will be discussed.

Faculty Eulogy Lauds Henry's Work, Influence

Memorial Adopted Honoring First Dean of College of Agriculture

Hailed as father of the "new agriculture," the late William A. Henry, first dean of the college of agriculture, was eulogized Monday in a memorial adopted by the university faculty in a meeting in the law school auditorium.

"Following 1880 agriculture was made new both in theory and practice. In this revolutionary movement, the work and influence of Dean Henry were central," the eulogy states.

Other Action Postponed

Prof. L. R. Jones, of the college of agriculture, was chairman of the committee drafting the memorial. Other committee members were Profs. Andrew W. Hopkins, and Ransom A. Moore, of the college of agriculture, Edward A. Birge, emeritus president of the university, and Harry L. Russell, former dean of the college of agriculture and present director of the Wisconsin Alumni Research foundation.

No other action was taken by the faculty in the Monday meeting.

Sought Potential Leaders

The Henry eulogy, in part, is as follows:

"Significant of the breadth of his ideals for agriculture was his early and eager care for the library of his department. From the beginning, he sought out, for department and college, men who would become leaders in the discovery and establishment of the basic principles of agriculture. Dean Henry united in happy proportion the qualities of leadership and cooperation.

Work Is Memorial

"His work, in its larger aspects, was the development of the university. His relations with the university and state were so numerous, so active, that for more than a decade his was the most important single influence that connected them.

"A life of unselfish devotion, of unwearied toil, a life inspired by vis-

Gophers Urge Property Tax

Minnesota Debaters Attack Substitution of Gasoline Income Levies

Attacking the substitution of gasoline and income taxes for the present local tax on general property, members of the University of Minnesota negative debate team meeting the Wisconsin affirmative in a non-decision encounter in Bascom hall Monday night, urged the maintenance of the general property tax as the only adequate means of revenue collection in local communities.

"To place the responsibility of revenue collection on state governments increases the danger of the political pork barrel and threatens local autonomy," declared Lee Loevinger, captain of the Gopher trio.

August, Stahl, Cole Speak

Representing Wisconsin were David August '34, O. Glenn Stahl grad, and Harry Cole grad, while the Minnesota team was composed of Jean Hagstrum, James Gislason, and Loevinger.

Stahl, urging that at least half of state and local revenues be secured from sources other than tangible property, pointed out that this method is working out today in at least three states. Cole averred that "tax delinquency is simply a polite name for robbing a person of his property because the tax system is not adjusted to the ability to pay."

Michigan Comes Thursday

The Wisconsin negative will meet the University of Michigan here at 7:30 p. m., Thursday in Music hall.

Dean Asks Complete Abolition of Hell Week; Hits Present System

Budget May Get Cut 25 Per Cent, Hearings Reveal

Intimation that a budget cut of 25 per cent will be necessary to meet a deficit of $24,000,000 in state receipts was given by Gov.-elect Albert G. Schmedeman at the opening of the budget hearings in the state capitol Monday.

Consideration of the university budget request for the coming biennium, along with requests made by state normal schools, has been set for Tuesday, Dec. 13.

"Drastic reductions will be necessary," Mr. Schmedeman said. "It is absolutely necessary to discontinue some activities."

Budget requests of the department of agriculture and markets and the conservation commission were considered Monday.

Players Open Strauss Light Opera Today

The first allied arts presentation of the university, Strauss' "The Chocolate Soldier," comedy opera, will have its premiere at 7:30 p. m. today in Bascom theater.

Based on George Bernard Shaw's "Arms and the Man," the production will be brought to the Wisconsin Players' stage by 106 students trained by six campus directors of music, drama, dancing, and stagecraft.

Brothers Has Lead

Donald Brotherson '33, tenor, veteran Bascom actor, will appear in the title role, Bumerli, Monona Nicholas grad and Mrs. Arthur Hasler grad, sopranos will alternate during the week as Nadina. The principal comedy role, Popoff, will be played by Arnold Dammen '33, baritone.

Helen Clarke '34, and Katherine Mitchell '35, sopranos, will alternate during the week as Mascha, and Elizabeth Withey '35, and Margaret Grether '33, altos will interchange as Aureli, third feminine role. Alexius is being played by Louis Berg grad. Lester Hale '34 and Harold Hohe '35, basses, take the role of Massakroff. Stephen and Souka, non-singing roles, are being played by Charles Adair '35 and Dorothy Gray '35.

Three Departments Join

Three university departments, speech, music and physical education are represented in the production while six university organizations are cooperating. The men's and women's glee clubs, the Haresfoot club, the Wisconsin Players, the school of music, light opera orchestra and Orchestras are the groups combining.

Boethius Reveals Greek Influence On Roman Works

Explaining and illustrating the effects of Greek architecture on the architecture of Rome, Prof. Axel Boethius, director of the Swedish School of Archeology at Rome, spoke on the subject of "Late Republican Rome" in Bascom hall, Monday afternoon. The talk was one of a series to be sponsored by the Wisconsin Society of the Archeological Institute of America.

Prof. Boethius stressed the fact that it was necessary to realize the difference between the architecture of ancient Rome and hellenic Rome, for excavations have shown that what is usually considered Roman architecture was developed during the periods of the Greek influence upon Rome.

He concluded by stating that it was the struggle between the native and foreign traditions that brought about the victory of neither tradition, but rather the birth of the Greek-Roman architecture.

Goodnight Characterizes Practice as 'Small Town Hazing'

By JOSEPH F. STURM
Lashing fraternity "hell" week as "a small town practice belonging in the same category with hazing," Scott H. Goodnight, dean of men, asked its abolition by thinking university men, in an interview with The Daily Cardinal Monday.

"Hell week injures a fraternity's connections with the faculty, parents, and townspeople at a time when fraternities need that support very badly," declared Dean Goodnight.

Fight Is Worthwhile

"A fight for the abolition of this small-town practice is worthwhile on any campus."

He pointed out that although fraternities urge their pledges to make their grades the first semester, they cause second semester grades to be lowered by prep-school initiation tactics. Most fraternity men will admit that 'hell' week is just as hard on them as it is on the initiates, Dean Goodnight said.

Suhr Against Practice

Frederick C. Suhr '33, president of the fraternity executive board, was emphatic in his opposition to 'hell' week in any form.

"It is contrary to the ideals of fraternity life, and I do not believe that it is in any way beneficial to either the fraternities or the pledges," Suhr said.

Mehl Advocates Some

With the increased adoption of strenuous initiatory periods by sororities, Lorraine Mehl '33, president of the Panhellenic board, was only slightly perturbed.

"A day or two of 'hell' week doesn't do much harm, but the practice should not be carried to extremes," she said.

Wants Individual Action

John Doolittle '34, member of the fraternity board, opposed any faculty ruling prohibiting 'hell' week practice.

Charity Dance Aids Students

Goodwill Fund Contributes $1,375 in Direct Relief Monies

Over $1,375 in direct relief monies has been distributed on the campus during the past three years by the university's Goodwill fund committee, Kendall Clark '33, head of the all-student Charity ball, revealed Monday.

In addition to the amount which has been given students in need of medical and surgical care, $750 of the committee's trust has been turned over to the Olson loan fund committee to be allotted for loans to deserving students.

To Swell Coffers

"This year's Charity ball will mark the university's only concerted effort to swell the coffers of the Goodwill fund," Clark pointed out, in expressing his belief that the Dec. 16, pre-Christmas ball would elicit widespread support. "It will be the only time the campus will be called on this season to in any wise contribute to the needs of the sick and diseased among the student body."

Students who are unable to finance medical and surgical needs, and who cannot find parental aid, are the beneficiaries of this extra-remedial fund which was created in 1929.

Aids Sick Students

Scores of sick and ailing during the time the fund has been available have found in this charity an avenue which has returned them to health and fitted them to establish themselves as self-supporting citizens.

The Charity ball is the premier pre-holiday social event on the university's social calendar. It is being arranged solely to further the work of the Goodwill committee, and is in charge of Chairman Clark, assisted by Kenneth Wheeler '33, Sterling Sorensen '34, Maurice Rosenblatt '36, Doris Johnson '33, Joseph Werner '33, Charlotte Bissel '33 and Robert Bruins '33.

ADVICE TO A COED

When you are young, my precious girl,

Enjoy yourself to full extent. Memory lasts e'en as a pearl, Stint not then, when on pleasure bent.

There's plenty time when you grow old To fume and fret 'bout this and that.

"Get the man at any cost!!" seems to be the motto of Sophie "Sue" Staliga '33. Even though Clair Strain '33 couldn't recognize her in the grandstand, she knew him when she met him on the hill. To Lead Relief Discussion

Profs. Don D. Lescohier and Paul D. Raushenbusch, of the economics department, will be among those to lead an open meeting in the Labor temple, at 2:30 p. m. today for the explanation and discussion of plans proposed by Madison papers for relief of the county unemployed.

Besides the two professors, Charles J. Birt, executive secretary of the Community union and Sol Reist, representing the Madison Federation of Labor, will be present to answer questions and explain any aspects of the project.

During an exhibition held recently on the Oklahoma A. & M. campus, among the objects on view were two quilts, one found hidden in a hollow tree during the Civil war, and another 150 years old.

13 Meets Face Varsity Track Squad; Marquette Opens Year

Minnesota Harriers Scheduled On Home and Home Basis

Thirteen may be an unlucky number, but the members of the Wisconsin track team, with 13 meets scheduled for the 1932-33 indoor and outdoor seasons, are hoping that the jinx will not hit them.

An indoor meet with Marquette here will open the year's activities Feb. 18. Six days later the first meet

TRACK SCHEDULE
Indoor Season
Feb. 18—Marquette at Madison.
Feb. 24—Quadrangular at Evans-ton with Northwestern, Purdue and Chicago.
Mar. 4—Minnesota at Madison.
Mar. 11—Indoor Conference meet at Chicago.
Mar. 18—Armour Tech relays.
OUTDOOR SEASON
Apr. 29—Drake relays.
May 6—Marquette at Milwaukee.
May 13—Open (triangular or quadrangular at Madison.)
May 20—Outdoor Conference meet.
May 27—Minnesota at Minneapolis.
June 3—Central Collegiate at Milwaukee.
June 10—National Collegiate at Chicago.

with conference opponents will be run off, when the squad journeys to Evanston for the annual quadrangular meet.

A dual meet with Minnesota here, the conference meet at Chicago, and the Armour Tech relays in Chicago will conclude the indoor season.

The Drake relays will open the outdoor season with meets scheduled with Marquette at Milwaukee, Minnesota at Minneapolis in addition to the outdoor conference meet, the Central Collegiate relays at Milwaukee and the National Collegiate at Chicago.

Big Ten Teams Ready for Tilts

'Watch Purdue' Is Slogan of Other Conference Cage Squads

Big Ten basketball teams, which open their conference season in exactly one month, will especially note the performances of Purdue, last year's champions, in their practice frays.

The Boiler-makers, who compiled a great record last year with the famous quintet of Wooden, Kellar, Stewart, Farmer and Eddy, will be handicapped by the loss of Wooden, who was the outstanding guard of the Big Ten, breaking the all time scoring mark with a total of 154 points.

N. U. May Drop

Northwestern, runnerups to Purdue, probably will drop in the standings, greatly weakened by the graduation of McCarnes, Smith and Johnson, leaving only Reiff, one of the leading scorers of the conference for the past two seasons, and Farber to form the nucleus of the team.

One of the favorites to end "in the money" will be Illinois, strengthened by a promising group of sophomores to play along with Owen, Hellmich and Bennett, all regulars of the 1931-32 aggregation. Both Bennett and Hellmich were among the first 10 scorers of the Big Ten last season.

Iowa Has Improved

Iowa will also be out to improve its record, planing to center its attack around a pair of veteran forwards, Moffitt and Kotlow. Coach Williams will pick his other starters from a large group of second year men who range well over six feet.

Minnesota is expected to have a fairly well balanced squad, with Capt. Robinson at forward and Licht at guard counted on to do the "heavy work." The other quintets, including Wisconsin, Ohio State, Indiana, Michigan and Chicago, will have better than average teams, whose strength cannot be determined until they meet formidable opponents.

Washing 150,000 windows was one of the jobs a University of Colorado student did to work his way through school.

Yesteryear

Handicapped by a lack of practice, a fighting Badger hockey six gave a spirited exhibition against the Wausau city team at Wausau finally losing 1-0. Captain Gordon Meiklejohn starred.

Warnings against recruiting and the favoring of athletes over students scholastically formed a major part of the discussion at the annual athletic directors' meeting before the Big Ten faculty committee at Chicago. Baseball and wrestling schedules were released.

Playing its first game of the year yesterday, the varsity basketball five defeated the freshman squad, 37 to 28. The scrimmage lasted over an hour and was frequently interrupted by Doc Meanwell's corrections.

With more than 50 ballots reported in the Cardinal poll, a majority of six votes favor Thistlethwaite's dismissal, but votes against Thistlethwaite show many signs of duplication.

Fraternity and dormitory basketball schedules get under way Tuesday night when Delta Tau Delta meets Alpha Tau Omega at 7:30 p. m. in the armory and dormitory teams play in the Wisconsin High school.

Iowa's Talent May Aid Team

Rollie Williams Promises First Division Contender in Basketball

(Special to The Daily Cardinal)

Iowa City — The long poverty of hopes for a Hawkeye year in Western conference basketball may finally have been banished by the wealth of good material from which Coach Rollie F. Williams is fashioning his 1932-33 University of Iowa team.

Not that even the optimistic Williams predicts a championship, but unless unforeseen catastrophes intervene, the Iowans are likely to cut some figure in the winter's race as a first division contender.

A satisfying mixture of experienced veterans, including eight major letter men, three of whom were regulars last season, and at least five above-average sophomores, form the standouts of the squad for the university's 32nd basketball season.

Now in his fourth year as head coach, Williams, the 35-year-old Wisconsin alumnus and Badger nine-letter man, will send his team through a 17-game schedule, beginning Dec. 3 with Bradley Tech and including a dozen Big Ten championship games.

Frankenburger Defeats Gregory; Wins All Three Bowling Games

Spooner, bowling an impressive total of 2427 pins, opened its defense of the dormitory title in the dormitory league by trimming Bashford in three straight games. Frankenburger found Gregory a little worse than its own five and also won all the games.

Frey led his team with a score of 564 for the series, but was closely followed by Ailts who managed to connect consistently for a 554 total. Other high scores found Filseta rolling 461 after a poor start, Egan 455, Lamberton 464, and Schiebler 452.

Botkin was the only team in the league unscheduled for the first round, but is expected to present an imposing squad when they get under way next week with Parker, last year's star at the helm. Parker's 253 was good for high single that season.

SONNENBERG WINS

After hurting his neck in the first fall of his match with Hans Bauer, Gus Sonnenberg, former world's wrestling champion, came back to take both of the remaining falls at the Parkway theater Monday night and win the match. Jimmy Demetral and Karl Zybysko wrestled to a 30-minute draw in the semi-windup.

WOMEN KEGLERS

The open bowling hours for women have been announced by Miss Driver as Monday from 7:30 p. m. to 9 p. m. and Wednesdays from 4:30 p. m. to 5:30 p. m. Bowling will be at these hours in the Lathrop alleys.

Stanford Loses Glenn Warner After 11 Years

(Special to The Daily Cardinal)

Palo Alto, Calif.—After 11 years at the Stanford university, Glenn Scooby "Pop" Warner resigned yesterday as head football coach.

He immediately accepted a similar position at Temple university which is located at Philadelphia. The contract was for five years but no sum was stated.

Warner gave no reason for his resigning which he announced in a telephone call to Dr. Thomas A. Storey, athletic director of Stanford.

Warner first sprang into prominence when he coached the Carlisle Indians and placed the University of Pittsburgh on the football map of the country. His system of play, named after him, is the most widely used system in use today in American football.

Men Dolphins Present Swim

Exhibition Will Be the Second; Clinic Invited to Attend

Five hundred special invitations to attend the Men's Dolphin club second swimming exhibition Dec. 9, as guests of the club, have been mailed to high school, normal school, and minor college athletic coaches who attend the annual coaches' clinic sponsored by the university's athletic department this Friday and Saturday.

Special seats will be erected on the east side of the armory swimming pool by the physical education department to accommodate the visiting athletic directors. Coach Guy S. Lowman estimates that over 150 men will take advantage of the guest cards offered them.

Expecting a capacity crowd which will fill the available space, the varsity swimmers that are the Men's Dolphin club began Monday to whip into final shape the events scheduled on their program.

Not one event presented Friday evening from 7:45 p. m. to 9 p. m. duplicate any of the events given at the Dolphin's first exhibition Oct. 28, Thomas Bardeen '33, captain of the team, announced Monday.

The entire program of the exhibition will be released Thursday, after the swimmers have gone through their final rehearsal for the meet.

Garrison Praises Holmes' Conciseness In Address Sunday

Praise for the conciseness and the brilliancy of the legal papers of Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes was expressed by Lloyd K. Garrison, law school dean, in his Bradford club address Sunday night.

"Though Holmes himself was conservative, he never allowed his personal viewpoints to influence his decisions, but viewed each case objectively and based his decision solely on its merits," declared Dean Garrison.

About 200 students filled the chapel of the Congregational church to hear the address. The Rev. Robbins W. Barstow, president of Hartford Seminary college, was the guest of honor at a banquet preceding Dean Garrison's talk.

Zabelle Gulesserian To Explain History Of Oriental Rugs

A history of the designs of oriental rugs, with illustrations from the imported collection of S. A. Gulesserian, will be the presentation of Zabelle Gulesserian ex'35, at the TNT meeting at the Congregational Student house at 4:30 p. m. today.

Each rug will tell its own story to the person able to interpret it, and Miss Gulesserian will explain to the group how those interpretations are made. What part of the country the rugs are from and whether they are modern or genuine old ones will be part of the explanation to be given.

The secret of making the rugs is passed on from one generation to the next among the men of the family, as the women marry into different families.

Regulars Defeat Grads 18-7; Win Last Game 18-14

Freddy Miller Leads in Scoring; 'Chub' Poser Trails

Slowly improving as the Big Ten season nears its beginning, the Badger varsity downed both an alumni team and a raft of inspired frosh, 18 to 7 and 18 to 14, respectively, before a crowd of approximately 1,700 at the field house Monday night.

Freddy Miller led the scorers of the varsity five which faced the Alumni with seven points and was closely followed by "Chub" Poser, who annexed six tillies. Douglas Nelson led the Alumni with four scores.

Chimney Is Absent

Chmielewski and Foster did not appear in the exhibition and their loss was noticeable. Although Griswold managed to get his share of the tip-offs, his teammates, hindered by lack of constant physical exertion, were unable to keep up with their younger opponents.

Members of the varsity began a long shot contest in the first game with the result that Miller, Hamman, and young Poser dropped in shots from near the center of the floor that neglected to touch the rim as they swished through the hoop. Miller especially stood out in this procedure.

Nelson Uses Many

George Nelson, frosh coach, fully utilized his opportunity to use men in the second game, when he trotted out more than four full teams.

The freshmen, piloted by the accurate Church who dropped in four field goals, worried the varsity throughout their stay in the game.

The team opposing the frosh seemed to master the short pass and pivot system, while the squad facing the Alumni proved a bulwark on defense. It remained up to the freshmen to supply the interest of the evening, when they attempted to use the wedge system made popular by former alumni squads.

The University Creed

"Whatever may be the limitations which trammel inquiry elsewhere, we believe that the great state University of Wisconsin should ever encourage that continual and fearless sifting and winnowing by which alone the truth can be found." (Taken from a report of the board of regents in 1894).

Should We Have Post-Season Games?

THE CONFERENCE of Big Ten faculty athletic chairmen has shown itself strongly in favor of post-season football games, and it is probable that they will be an important part of next year's schedule, if we can anticipate in the light of reported tendencies.

The matter of adding to the present football schedules raises many pertinent questions. In the opinion of some, the only sensible move would be to cut the number of football games, perhaps to one-half of that we now have, rather than to increase them. There is more and more of the sentiment being expressed that football must go back to the students, from whom it has seriously wandered, and away from the realm of capitalistic enterprise. The emphasis placed on winning is doing more harm than an indifference to victory ever could. To quote a former Daily Cardinal sports editor, now a professional writer, "It (football) used to be fun for students, players, coaches and fans to witness, coach and play football. Now it's all business. A coach must pound and drive a team week after week, force young men to fever pitch so that they can win ball games. . . . It's all win now. You can't lose. . . . Too many losses means the coach's job." The effect on the players is more than a mental loss—the distraction from studies lasts for the entire length of a season. The physical and nervous strain, even disregarding accidents and injuries, are obviously deleterious.

Others, however, will feel that they must take the stand that football is essential, at present, at least, to the standing of the greater proportion of our major sports, and, these being definitely worthwhile, ergo, football should be maintained and pushed even further. So, at any rate, one coach at the conference is reported to have supported post-season games on the ground that they would attract sufficient crowds to make up for slim crowds at unattractive cards, and so balance decreased budgets. This, clearly enough, is making football pay for other things; and football never was destined for such an end. If we are to have minor sports, valuable as they are, then we should receive sufficient appropriations from the state toward that result; or, conversely, if we are to expect our football teams to make great sums of money for our universities, why not pay them and make it an outright business? That would be better all around, and there would be no trouble about eligibility.

There is, however, still another point to be considered: whether post-season games for charity are justified. First, there is always the danger that the idea of post-season games once in mind, it might be extended to more general uses. On the other hand, there is the feeling that, having the organization of the football team, as we already have, there can be little harm in extending its functions for just one week more, perhaps, if it be for the purpose of charity. The players can lose little by the slight extension, and many of the needy can gain much thereby. Spectators would certainly consider themselves fortunate if they could have the opportunity to witness a last "good" game, and that, of course, would make for the desired attendance.

It will be some time before the entire matter of football is straightened out; and it will never be to everybody's satisfaction. In the meantime, it seems well to oppose general post-season games, and to favor post-season games which are for the sake of charity. Here, at least, whatever we may feel about the value of the means, the end is worthwhile.

Fraternity Insurance At Ohio State

THE INTERFRATERNITY board has an opportunity to prove of concrete worth to the fraternities of Wisconsin if it follows the example of fraternities at Ohio State university in securing payment of house bonds to the fraternities of the Wisconsin campus.

At Ohio State an insurance system has been inaugurated whereby the student on initiation takes out a policy for $1,000 to $2,000, payable in semi-annual installments of $10 each. All dividend payments are made to the fraternity until $100 has been paid, and after that, dividends revert to the owner of the policy. Thus the fraternity is always assured of collecting $100, the usual amount of the house bond.

At Ohio State only a small percentage of the house bonds was ever paid. We are inclined to the belief that that is also the case at Wisconsin. Few house bonds are paid, consequently the mortgages are not reduced as they should be, according to schedule. The fraternity is left holding the bag, and there is no way to collect the money without permanently alienating a large proportion of the alumni body. The fraternities here obviously need protection. The insurance plan provides it for them. The interfraternity board, too, might look into the matter.

.. READERS' SAY-SO ..

To You, Mr. Somers

Editor, The Daily Cardinal: Dec. 4
D ESPITE your reviewer's unfavorable resume of "The Conquerors," showing at the Orpheum, I took a chance on seeing a good show, and came away, satisfied that I had seen one of the best pictures that has hit Madison in a long time. It was characterized by excellent acting, both by Richard Dix and Ann Harding, and this together with the direction and photography, made of it a thoroughly enjoyable picture.

Perhaps your reviewer doesn't realize what such of the public as reads his column as a guide for worthwhile pictures, wants to know. We certainly do want an appraisal of its entertainment value, but we do not want a pseudo-intellectual essay on the reviewer's personal criticism with regard to "How true to life is it?"

People judge pictures by the ease with which they themselves can project themselves into the positions of the characters, and by the emotional and moral stimulation which the picture then gives them. Mr. and Mrs. Man try to drop their earthly cares and troubles for an hour or two, and relive the action on the screen. If the picture gives them this opportunity, and stimulates them emotionally, so that they enjoy reliving what takes place on the screen, the picture is a good one, and should be given a favorable review.

Your reporter also took the same cue in his review of the Clara Bow picture, "Call Her Savage." True, try to find a counterpart in everyday life; perhaps there is none, but nevertheless I enjoyed the picture immensely, without thinking of such implications as can be inferred from the undressing scenes. And if young men enjoy the picture only in that respect, nevertheless the picture should be commended as having entertainment value.

I do not look for professorial and moral guides in seeking my entertainment. All I want is an opinion, an unbiased appraisal of the relative entertainment value of the picture. Tell your reporter to write a little more with his emotions and a little less with his brain.

May I suggest that if you want your readers to turn to other papers like the Chicago Tribune and the Milwaukee Journal for a decent review of the pictorial offerings, that your reviewer keep up his excellent (?) work.

The President Says:

Here Is the Triple Challenge That Will Be Flung At Mr. Roosevelt

MR. ROOSEVELT will, I think, early in his administration encounter the fact that the major American perplexities that will harass and haunt his desk are all rooted in three major difficulties that mark the current world situation.

These three world difficulties are, viz:

(1) The but thinly veiled breakdown of the world's financial system.

This breakdown is due to the fact that the world's credit and currency system has not been kept wisely adjusted to the changing needs of the world's economic enterprise.

(2) The revolutionary changes that science and technology have effected in the world's industrial system.

The net and perilous result of these changes is that fewer and fewer workers in less and less time can produce more than the world's population can buy, with its present purchasing power, or use, with its present margin of leisure.

(3) The strange revival, since the war, of a stubborn and swashbuckling nationalism the world around.

This reborn nationalism stands in active opposition to that increasing internationalism of economic interest which is inevitable in a world bound together, as the world of today is, by swift transportation, instantaneous communication, credit, contract, capital, and corporate organization. The policies of the world's governments grow increasingly national while the processes of the world's life grow increasingly international. The result is that the world's political system today makes it virtually impossible to operate an effective economic system either within the nations or between the nations.

The events of the next four years will, I predict, convince even the most reluctant traditionalist that, unless and until statesmanship restudies and readjusts the financial system the economic system, and the political system in terms of the changed circumstances of this new age of science and machine, politics will continue to be little more than an irrelevant shadow-boxing in the suburbs of reality.

Here is the triple challenge that the American scene and the world situation flings to Mr. Roosevelt.

President of the University.

Another example of the long arm of the law?

Recently, Dean Chester D. Snell, declared what a wonderful institution the extension division was and how it had spread education throughout the state. The dean asserted that the extension division is 52 per cent self supporting. "In other words," he said, "for every dollar the state invests in adult education through university extension, the extension division earns $1.04."

We don't want to be too critical, and after all maybe Dean Snell's educational methods are good, but when we went to school, we were taught that if one dollar is 48 per cent, 52 per cent must necessarily be $1.08 plus. But what's a few pennies against educational methods?

Colonel A. M. Brayton, publisher of the State Journal, every now and then writes a Sunday column entitled the Rambler in which he becomes soft. We have never been able to read it through, but we wish someone would explain to us what it's all about. Certainly, any reporter turning in such junk to a city editor would be fired summarily.

Divorce Department!
Because her husband drank excessively and chased her with knives, a Madison woman was granted a divorce in Judge Hoppmann's court recently.

Will someone please explain what the function of a wife is? If the poor husband had chased after other women with knives, we could see where a divorce would be proper, but after all, he chased his own wife, didn't he?

LIGHT WINES

By ALDRIC REVELL

OOM THE OMNIPOTENT!

SCENE: A class in the "History of Philosophy With Parenthetical Remarks of My Own," at Bascom hall. The bell has just rung and the students are awaiting the entrance of Prof. Vivacious. Some are looking at the windows, through which the professor sometimes makes his entrance, while one or two are watching the door where he seldom enters. In the back row are three students reclining on pillows. There is a noise in the desk on the rostrum and exactly two and a half minutes after the bell (Rocky mountain time) Prof. Vivacious jumps out of the top drawer with a smile of triumph. He shuts the drawer with a bang and five students wake up.

PROF. VIVA (jumping up and down): There is a greater affinity between Plato and Aristotle than there is contrast. (Snores from the back.) They are agreed on three important points. First, knowledge of ideas; and second, knowledge for its own sake.

VOICE: What about the third point?
PROF. VIVA (running around the rostrum three times): What's the matter with you? I forgot the third point, so what of it? In the University of Timbuctu you can't be a good teacher unless you forget a point now and then. (Reaches into the drawer and pulls out a handful of chalk, a gas bill and a used lemon). Any more questions?

VOICE: What is progress?

PROF. VIVA: I didn't hear the question. (He pulls out a pogo stick from the drawer and hops down the aisle on it, leaning his head in the direction of the voice. The question is repeated by another voice at the other side of the room. The professor gallops around the classroom, breaking the record recently established at the Conference of American Pogo Stick Jumpers. He leans his head in the direction of the voice. Another voice repeats the question in the front row. The professor, his tongue hanging out, pogoes over to the voice. He hears the question and falls on his desk exhausted. In a minute, however, he jumps up and stands on the desk, one foot in a drawer).

PROF. VIVA: So! you want to get me started on progress, do you? I'm a bug on progress.

VOICE: Then why don't you get off? (The professor sets up a row of chalk and knocks it down. He sets up a second row of chalk and knocks it down. The third row, however, knocks him down. Score: Professor Vivacious 2, Chalk 1).

PROF. VIVA: All right, you asked for it and I'll give it to you. You think there's progress, do you? (He tears his hair). You think that the accumulation of knowledge from the ages constitute progress, don't you? (He gnashes his teeth). You think that because the knights had to hack at each other three hours before killing each other and now a hand grenade can do the job sooner, it's progress, don't you? (He stands on his head). You want to get me started, do you? (he does the tango).

1st VOICE (to another): What's he talking about?

2nd VOICE: I don't know. Ask him after class; I always do.

PROF. VIVA (Tears streaming down his face): Progress means a direction, doesn't it?

CLASS: No!

PROF. VIVA (Taking off his watch and chain. Unbuttons his vest and loosens his suspenders): Now I'll give it to you.

1st VOICE: Is this philosophy 31 or is this Troutman's course in dramatics?

2nd VOICE: I don't know; go back to sleep, will you?

PROF. VIVA (Screaming): How can there be progress without a direction?

VOICE: Will you speak a little softer, please, Mr. Vivacious? You're disturbing my rest.

PROF. VIVA: What are you talking about? How can I speak a little softer when I'm talking about progress? You asked me to talk about progress, didn't you?

CLASS: No! (Prof. Vivacious becomes really excited. He breaks his pogo stick across his knees. He jumps on the desk and from there to the chandelier. He swings back and forth screaming maledictions. He takes off his vest and throws it into the drawer. He cuts a caper and eats half of it).

PROF. VIVA: You children must learn to separate your emotions from your logic. You can't achieve any worthwhile thinking unless you can subject your emotions to your mind.

CLASS: Ha, ho ho, huh!

PROF. VIVA: Now I'm all mixed up. Where was I?

CLASS: Hanging onto the chandelier.

PROF. VIVA (Foaming at the mouth and breaking chalk): I insist that if all A is B, and all B is C, then the conclusion is inevitable.

CLASS: What conclusion is inevitable?

PROF. VIVA (Beats himself against the blackboard and swings his watch chain around his head): I give up. Why doesn't the class pay attention? I try to give you philosophy logically and you don't follow me.

CLASS: How can we? You move too fast.

PROF. VIVA: That's the last straw that the needle was found in. (He reaches into the drawer and pulls out a hemlock cup. With a flourish he gulps it down, while the class rises to its feet, cheering wildly. Prof. Vivacious gives a last convulsive wriggle and falls prostrate. The students gather up his body reverently and place it in the drawer. As they leave, Prof. Vivacious sticks his head out of the desk and yells, "Don't forget to come to class Wednesday").

'Racket!' Faculty Members Protest After Book Deal

Several university professors have been victims of the latest depression racket, according to reports current on the campus Monday.
 When asked to endorse a new encyclopedia, each faculty member approached unknowingly signed a note for $59.50. Some of the notes were collected by the Iowa firm sponsoring the racket, when the professors sought to keep their gullibility secret. Several professors threatened the concern with federal action and attempts at collection ceased.

Nora Kahn Asks Help for Miners At L.I.D. Meeting

"Miners are fighting it out on the industrial front, and the least we can do is contribute clothes and money to help the situation," Nora Kahn, president of the League for Industrial Democracy declared to the 35 persons at a mass meeting in Tripp Commons last night.

Maurice Neufeld '34, in giving a resume of his visit to the coal fields in West Virginia last year, told how the miners who had been on a strike for over a year were living in huts with no plumbing in the towns, and with no water fit to drink.

Various organizations on the campus cooperating with the League for Industrial Democracy in sending aid to the stricken districts are: Y. W. C. A., Green International, Congregational church, National Student League, Baptist church, and Hillel foundation.

Tax Requisitions Of Public Schools Decreasing Yearly

Contrary to a widespread impression, tax demands of Wisconsin public schools have diminished every year since 1929, it is revealed in a report of the Wisconsin Teachers association.

Local units have raised, since 1929, an average of one million dollars less per year in property taxes for schools, the research committee discovered. In every school budget, a large part of the items represent instructional charges. Among these are salaries of teachers, superintendents, purchase of library books, textbooks, and instructional supplies.

Taxes in certain Wisconsin cities, the report pointed out, would show larger reductions had not several large building projects been undertaken.

NEGRO ORATOR SPEAKS

William Pickens, Negro orator and former dean of Morgan college, Md., and Wiley college, Tex., will speak on racial relations at the First Baptist church at 8 p. m. today. For a number of years, Mr. Pickens has been field secretary for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

foreign films not far off

cullings about the theater, the cinema, its critics, and those who hang around

By HERMAN SOMERS

DEAR FRIENDS, SWEET FRIENDS, it seems that we have come through successfully. If the reports I have gotten from those who should know are not just talk then your many letters pleading for foreign films have had their effect and Madison will begin to see European films in the near future.

Frank Heineman, who is in charge of those affairs for the National Student League, informs me that the Amkino corporation which controls the American rights to Russian motion pictures has agreed to send us their products. The league promises that you will be able to see a Russian movie Friday night, Dec. 16 at Bascom theater.

Whether or not the league will inaugurate a regular program of films from the U. S. S. R. will depend upon the success of the initial venture.

I am further informed by Mr. Knudson, who takes care of publicity for all our local movie places, that it is almost a certainty that one of his theaters will begin showing a foreign film one evening every week. The European feature will be an added feature to the regular program and there will be no additional charge.

At the present writing that is all the information I have but it seems to me rightly encouraging. May I assure you that the foreign films would never have stood a chance at the RKO office if a stream of letters from the student body had not given evidence that an affirmative move would prove popular.

Theatrics

There and How ...

LILLIAN GISH does not care for the talking pictures. They seem to her incongruous. "The silent film at its best was a beautiful thing," says she. "To make the pictures speak seems to me a mistake. Oh I'm sorry I made the 'Romantic Night'." ... Would you be interested in knowing that Aline MacMahon loathes outdoor exercise and spinach...

STARK YOUNG believes that the talking pictures have given a setback to the moving-picture problem... Ernst Lubitsch insists that every successful actor must possess what women call "the masterful manner" ... The Daily Cardinal's Mr. Revell is under the impression that a female critic deploring the low cut of a female actress' dress and the contours of her body is "trenchant dramatic criticism."

JOEL MACREA has noticed that the motion-picture players that escape stardom last the longest... A play with a pointed title is opening on Broadway—"A Good Woman, poor thing." ... Do you recall Ford's famous play of the Victorian period, "Tis a Pity She's a Whore"...

WILL ROGERS wants to know why fellows like Heywood Brown are always picking on him... Well, Will, there's that latest picture you made and then again there's that silly article on war debts which you had no right to write... Among other things, says Richard Watts, the critic, the cinema is known for its puzzled timorousness... Sidney Howard that is certain that Hollywood knows no more of taste and courage than it knows of economy...

Meiklejohn Ends Lecture Series

fear, timid acceptance, and place a reward on insignificant living.

Striving for external success was described as absolutely incompatible with significant living by Dr. Meiklejohn. "Ambition to be a success, to earn a pile leads to prudency, selfishness, and suspicion. It never rises above self. It will support a course only as far as it is expedient but no further, it will stop as soon as there is danger to self."

Thinking Brings Freedom

"Freedom will never be attained by blind faith, acceptance with eyes closed. Freedom, mastery, the significant life can only come as a product of pure, hard, sustained, and fearless intellectual thinking."

Dr. Meiklejohn cleared up a possible misconception as he ended by making clear that he did not think that one had to be a Spinoza or Dewey to live significantly. Significant living is not reserved for great events and great men. The magnitude of the events are dictated by circumstance but he who lives significantly is never subject to circumstances; they will never alter his essential behavior.

The audience paid a great tribute to the educator after the lecture. Although a good many of them had been obliged to stand and crowd during the address, they remained to applaud for three minutes after its conclusion without a single person moving from his place.

tor of Wisconsin Players, William Purnell, director of Haresfoot, F. A. Buerki, scene technician, Profs. Orion E. Dalley and E. Earle Swinney of the school of music and Prof. Margaret H'Doubler, Orchesis head have combined in preparing "The Chocolate Soldier."

A 23 piece orchestra, and a chorus of 30 will feature each presentation of the light opera. Sixty persons have been trained for chorus work in two distinct groups.

Sharp Addresses New International Relations Group

Prof. Walter Sharp of the department of political science will address the first meeting of the International Relations club on "The United States and the League of Nations" Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. in the Memorial Union.

Originally the meeting was scheduled for Monday, but was changed so that a petition on the war debts issue might be drawn up for national circulation among students.

New members will be invited to join this organization, which is connected with the Carnegie Foundation for International Peace and which studies international affairs and holds symposiums on world problems.

Violinist Shows Technical Ease

spun along at a terrific clip, in the accomplishment of which Prof. Julian Harris, the accompanist, did an excellent piece of work.

"Aus der Heimat" by Smetana became an intensely interesting study of fresh themes which, after the classicism of Brahms, seemed to be tinged with a relieving worldliness. "Habanera" by Chabrier, and the concluding encore, a Kreisler arrangement of "Spanish Dance" by Granados, were well suited to Szpinalski's impulsive style, though parts of the latter number sounded more like a gluttonous love song than a dance.

SURGEON TO LECTURE

Dr. Everts A. Graham, professor of surgery at Washington university, St. Louis, will deliver a lecture in the Service Memorial Institute building at 8 p. m., Dec. 15. Dr. Graham, who is widely known for his pioneer work on lung abscess and gall bladder visualization, will speak on "The Hepatic Eactor in the Mortality After Operations on the Biliary Tract."

COMMENTS (Secured with effort and published with pride)

Bill Harley—I think your column is the nertz.

Art Benkert—(Giggled and passed the buck.)

Chuck Hanson—Well . . . I don't know what to say . . . I think it's darn good. . . .

Johnnie Doolittle (jubilantly)—A hexcellent publication for the hum drum life of the college boy and girl.

Chollie Shreck—Darn good for someone who doesn't have anything else to do. . .

Gary Callahan—To tell you the truth, I've never even seen it.

Frank Currier—Just a bit inclusive.

Homer Bendinger—On the whole, quite trivial.

John O'Connor (after 5 minutes of concentration)—Very entertaining.

Buster Conway—Everybody's afraid of it.

Hip Carisch—I'd like to get the guy that writes that column.

Warren Hyde (running true to journalistic form)—A wide source of news interest.

Bert Densmore—I'm too busy to read it.

Bob Dudley—Walter Winchell with a skirt on but never a slip.

Greg Kabat—I never read it enough to know anything about it, but I suppose it's all right.

Sam Alschuler—I think it's too wonderful for words!

Bill Knowles—I prefer to exercise my constitutional privilege against self-incrimination.

Les Hale—I don't care what the public thinks I think of it.

Phil Coon—I read the Rambler.

Well, I guess we can take it . . . and thank you, boys, one and all.

Anyway, Helen Davies didn't go to the Gridiron banquet. She realized that there would be enough women there to admire Mickey McGuire.

We hear the betting is even on Brine and Parker for Prom Queen. . .

And we hear also that Hanson has promised a free prom ticket to anyone who will divulge our identity. Oh, pals, stick with us!

John Schifflin dates his local women via Western Union. Miss McKenna in this instance.

Bob Morris wants to meet the little girl (independent . . . lives in Madison) who looks like Myrna Loy.

What campus male called Caroline Colles and spoke rather too frankly for a gentleman?

And—at his own request—we institute a "Boost Chuck Holmes" department:

For one thing, he and Lee O'Brien are running a contest to see which of them can speak to more people in one day. Is it that they have such a wide acquaintance, or merely for business reasons?

Then he's been observed more or less plastered in some jernit on State . . . which is scarcely worth mentioning, we suppose . . .

Thirdly, in the company of one of our widely known senior play boys, this same Chuck Holmes made his way to the Pi Phi domicile one afternoon not so long ago in search of Vic Eilenberger. "Tell Vic her lover is down here," he called to one of the sisters who was perched in a front window. Vic dashed to the window and called brightly, "I'll be right down, Frank!" Whereupon Holmes departed in confusion.

And finally, Chuck is still trying to decide what corner is the best vantage point to watch Langdon street charm on its way to classes.

And we'd just like to raise the question: Who says we are a man and why?

The poor Thetas claim that they never get any sleep when the Phi Kappa Sigs throw a party.

So Tully Brady's new name is Beans. Maybe we do have some influence for good in our own small way.

We are asked to report that the Sig Chis have soup six nights a week and the seventh they fill up on the free lunch at the Big Ten's Depression night. Anyway, campus notables from all up and down the street were there in a big way.

Sterling Sorenson who had a date for the city council meeting Friday night (C. J. 112), showed up without the woman. Upon being questioned, Sterling exclaimed in dismay, "Drat it! I forgot her!"

Bob Adair has had to ask Kay Kinsey to write to him only six times a week, since they don't deliver specials on Sunday in his present hangout.

Mary Montgomery strained her big toe in a hand-standing competition with some of the other Delta Gam sisters. We hear the Kappa's are reducing also.

HOW TO AVOID BONERS

THE UNITED STATES IS LOCATED IN THE TEMPERANCE ZONE

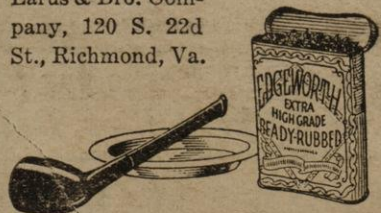

POOR BILL BONER—he just can't think straight. He thinks a person is safe from contagious disease if he is intoxicated!

But no college man ever pulls boners with a good pipe between his teeth. There's something about a pipe and tobacco that soothes a man, helps him think straight. That is, of course, if he uses the right tobacco. A recent investigation showed Edgeworth to be the favorite tobacco at 42 out of 54 leading colleges.

If you're not already an Edgeworth smoker, there's new smoking satisfaction waiting for you. Edgeworth's blend of fine old burleys is distinctive, different. You'll know—after the first puff.

You can buy Edgeworth tobacco anywhere in two forms—Edgeworth Ready-Rubbed and Edgeworth Plug Slice. All sizes—15¢ pocket package to pound humidior tin. Or, if you would like to try before you buy, write for a free sample packet. Address Larus & Bro. Company, 120 S. 22d St., Richmond, Va.
