An Historical Play in Four Acts with Prologue and Interludes given by the University of Wisconsin Club of Chicago

Wednesday, May 10, 1922

ARYAN GROTTO THEATRE

"A simple hall, the first that domiciled
The students and the profs,
But in four years a twin across the hillside campus
Took its place to keep it company.
'Twas five years more ere the main hall
At top of noble upper campus hill Ope'd wide its doors to welcome students in."
—From prologue of "On, Wisconsin."

Bascom Hall (Formerly Main Hall)

Third building of original group. Completed in 1859. Remodeled and south wing added in 1899. North wing added in 1905-6.

The dome was removed after a fire in 1916.

“HONOR ABROAD ENHANCES THE ESTIMATE IN WHICH A UNIVERSITY IS HELD AT HOME.”

John Bascom, Pres., 1874-1887.

The cry of “Westward Ho” brought
Many a stalwart settler
Out to the unclaimed wilds
Where redskin chased the furry badger to his lair.
Cities sprang up and soon the fertile valleys
Resounded to the stir of industry;
And out of these communities, new formed,
A mighty state was welded.
Between the great sea at the east
And giant river toward the sunset sky
There rose Wisconsin.

As soon as statehood stature had been reached
The builders turned to thoughts of higher aims
And straightway laid the stones on which to found
A temple for “more light”.

From the Prologue of “On Wisconsin!”

HISTORIC DATES

Bill establishing Wisconsin University was passed 1838. Apparently nothing came of it.

An enabling act for the establishment of the university was part of the statehood bill passed in 1848.

First meeting of Regents held Oct. 7, 1848.

First class enrolled on Feb. 5, 1849, by Prof. John Sterling.

North Hall, the first "Hill" building, was opened to students Sept. 17, 1851.

ON, WISCONSIN

An historical play of the University of Wisconsin in four acts with Prologue and Interludes

by R. F. Schuchardt, '97.

Material for this play was obtained by interviewing "Old grads," from the author's own experience, from class Badgers, from the 1904 Jubilee volume, and from Prof. J. F. A. Pyre's interesting book "Wisconsin." For Act IV help had to be obtained from more recent graduates since the imagination of the author, though vivid, does not canter in syncopated measure and was therefore unable to accurately picture the sprightly jazziness of present day youth. This act is largely the work of Harold Tufty, '18, and Mrs. Tufty (Esther Van Wagoner, '21).

Net $3.50

Professor Pyre's attractive account of Wisconsin fills a well defined need. It is accurate and carefully written, yet running through the facts, are threads of college life as it was, stories of celebrated exploits anecdotes of Wisconsin men. Wisconsin's place in sports and the doings in the past of the college societies, which make up Wisconsin's seventy odd years of strenuous activity.

YOUNG WISCONSIN'S PLEDGE IN ACT I.

Then hear now what I swear to you.
Should e'er again the nation call
To arms, and in the battle fall
Wisconsin's sons—so liberty may live,
We, then, commemorative of their deeds,
Shall build a hall for student needs,
Which high the flaming torch shall hold,
For those who come, both young and old,
A constant inspiration.
