Big Time Promised For All Students At Mixer Friday

All books and topics aside. Let's go to the Mid-Summer Hop in Lathrop gym, Friday. It's the big mixer of the season. Come and be friendly, and we promise you a good time.

A seven piece orchestra, Thompson's best, has been procured to furnish the music. Plenty of room is assured to dance because the ticket sale has been limited.

Tickets may be obtained at the Y. W. C. A. office, the W. A. A. office, or at the Y. M. C. A. Fee cards must be presented. Women's tickets cannot be purchased at the door.

At the mixer, refreshments will be served by members of W. A. A. Lathrop parlors will be open for those who do not desire to dance all the time. There will be tables for bridge.

Dean and Mrs. S. H. Goodnight, Dean and Mrs. J. W. Roe, and Dean F. Louise Nardin have been invited to chaperon.

Samuel Lancaster Receives Gash In Head While Diving

Samuel Lancaster, student, received a severe gash in his head when he struck a rock after diving off the Y. M. C. A. high dive late yesterday afternoon. He was able to swim to the pier and was rushed to St. Mary's hospital where he is now resting well under the care of Dr. J. P. Dean.

The cut necessitated the taking of nine stitches. At no time was the patient unconscious and he is expected to be out in a few days.

"All the stones will have to be extricated from in front of the high dive or it will have to be taken down", Thomas "Cap" Isabelle said this afternoon.

MRS. SEYBOLT PLAYS "PIPER" SECOND TIME

Mrs. Otilie Seyboldt who will play the part of "The Piper" in the open air theatre production of the play of that name Friday and Saturday August first and second will play the part for the second time this year.

Mrs. Seyboldt played the Piper in the Vassar college production of the play this spring. She is a member of the faculty at Vassar and has taken an active part in Vassar dramatic activities, her most recent appearance being that of Queen Elizabeth in an Elizabethan pageant.

The choice of "The Piper" for the summer session play was largely due to the fact that Mrs. Seyboldt is here and can play the part.

College of Agriculture Saves Wisconsin Farmers $775,000

Awarded Gold Medal

Howard B. Lyman

At least $775,000 has been saved for Badger farmers by their College of Agriculture during the last year.

If the explosive power of the more than 5,000,000 pounds of sodatol ordered the past year were purchased as commercial dynamite it would have cost the farmers at least that much, declares John Swenehart, in charge of land clearing operations.

All but three of the 71 counties shared in the saving, he announces.

The reason that the farmers could save money buying explosives was because the college encouraged the purchasing of sodatol through this institution.

The engineers also save the farmers money. Hundreds of thousands of dollars might be saved every year if the results of engineering research just finished here were applied to all Badger silo filling operations, according to F. W. Duffee of the agricultural engineering department.

"Agricultural engineering is coming to be more widely recognized as one of the most important factors in economy and profitable farming whether it be crop or livestock production. This is particularly obvious when we realize that labor represents the greatest single item in agricultural production and that one of the most serious difficulties now confronting the farmer is the competition of other industries in the payment of wages.

"Practically every operation all along the line from clearing new land, to marketing fresh eggs through the aid of refrigeration not only involves but frequently depends entirely upon successfully using proper engineering practices," Mr. Duffee said.

To save the farmer time and money the College of Agriculture has experimented on crops to determine for the farmer which one is the most paying. "Standard seed is the basis of the foundation of Wisconsin's potato belts," declared J. G. Milward, of the College of Agriculture.

"The season of 1924 will conclude 20 years of inspection, certification, and standardization of Wisconsin's potato crop," he added.

WEATHER: FAIR

Fair weather is predicted for Thursday and probably Friday for Madison and the vicinity with moderate temperature prevailing.

HILGERS PLAN VARIED PROGRAM

Sisters To Give Classical And Examples Of Modern Russian Composition

By N. M. J.

A program composed of popular classical compositions and examples of the modern Russian school will be given by the Hilger sisters trio, cellist, violinist, and pianist, at 8:15 o'clock tomorrow night in Music hall.

Two of the numbers on the program are considered the greatest trios written by their respective composers, the Beethoven trio, sometimes called "The Ghost," and the Schaiakowsky trio, opus number 50, according to Prof. Leon L. Ittis, of the School of Music.

The Tschaiakowsky trio is a distinct contrast to the classic style as exemplified in the Beethoven number. Tschaiakowsky's composition, written by the greatest of the Russians, considered the master of the theme and variations form, is a particularly beautiful example of the ultra-modern school in the typical Russian freedom with which the theme is treated.

Several solos will also be played in addition to the trio numbers, Joseph Haydn's "Concert in D Major," Chopin's "Nocturne in E flat," with sweeping melody, and "Spinning Song," by Popper, played by Elsa Hilger, cellist. The Faust "Fantasie" by Sarasate, the great virtuoso composer for the violin will be played by Maria Hilger, violinist.

Tickets at 50 cents, 75 cents, and $1.00 are on sale at Hook Brothers and Forbes Meagher music stores, and at the University pharmacy.

CARE OF HANDICAPPED IS LECTURE SUBJECT

A solution for the problem of caring for the handicapped persons will be explained by Mrs. Melba Roach Tippet at 3:30 o'clock Friday in 112 Bascom hall. The subject of the lecture "Vocational Rehabilitation of the Handicapped" is said to be of interest, inasmuch as many crippled or otherwise handicapped persons supported by the state take vocational courses and learn to make their own living yearly.

Another Serenade Is Promised For Tomorrow Night

Another big serenade! That's what is promised for tomorrow night, according to the inquiring reporter who has been snooping around the Sigma Nu house of late sniffing for a tip.

Once again feminine hearts will tingle. Another serenade.

The troubadours will be the same as those who made the rounds in the last serenade, Tuesday night, July 14. Remember? Nathan Grabu will be playing the banjo, Alderich Hubert the violin, Herbert Allan and Carl Emmanuel the saxophones, Carsten Roberts the cornet and Oris Wernecke the traps. It is rumored that three or four more musicians will be added to this troupe, and that Porter Butts will be along as the singer.

If you hear silver strains waking you from slumber tomorrow night, you'll know what's going on. Perhaps, though, you won't even want to go to sleep. The minstrels plan to leave the Sigma Nu house a little after 10:30 o'clock.

CHARLES RAY IN MOVIE TONIGHT

"The Girl I Love" Features Screen Star; Given in Music Hall

"The Girl I Loved," based upon James Whitcomb Riley's poem, and featuring Charles Ray, will be shown tonight at seven o'clock and at nine o'clock in the auditorium of Music hall. This picture is the fifth in the series of motion picture demonstrations under the direction of the Bureau of Visual Instruction.

According to Dr. W. H. Dudley, head of this bureau, the purpose is the twofold one of getting people acquainted with the best type of picture. A reel on general hygiene will also be shown. The film next week will be "Hamlet."

"The first purpose of these motion pictures," said Dr. Dudley, is to provide for summer school students a wholesome film program to serve as an example of what schools, communities and parent-teachers' associations can provide for people at home.

"A second purpose is to bring before the summer school students actual educational material which can be used to good advantage in schools and classrooms. We are stressing a new series, "The Science of Life" series, this summer. They series can be used advantageously in any general science course," he said.

For any people who are interested—Continued on Page 8.

PLAYGROUND WORK IS PROPER FIELD FOR P. T. A.--HOYT

Health Of Children Of First Importance, Extension Worker Says

"If the Parent-Teachers' association is reluctant to enter the school-room in the interests of the children's health, it may find a field in playground work, community recreation, and the control of contagion," according to Mrs. Edith Hoyt who lectured this afternoon on "P. T. A. Related to Health of School Children," and around which she built plans and illustrated means of insuring against the ill health of school children, the leaving of school and a blighted adult life.

Care of Teeth Stressed

The warm lunch, the school nurse and the care of the teeth are things that can be brought about by the efforts of an alert P. T. A. All the parochial schools of Madison, as well as of Milwaukee, are doing extraordinary work in all these lines. It has been shown that there is a very decided correlation between scholarship and health, teeth being the paramount consideration.

"Proper teeth has been found to be a matter of nutrition. Bad teeth reformed, so that a child can breathe, brings a sure and certain higher development. The control of contagion makes us believe that the dread diseases of childhood will eventually disappear," Mrs. Hoyt stated.

Gives More Lectures

"All communities are right-minded, if you can only get them together and make them see these things. A Parent-Teacher's association should be a co-operative organization and can easily be made such," she said.

"When you protect the health of children, you protect the health of everybody," was Mrs. Hoyt's conclusion as a member of the university extension department, Mrs. Hoyt will lecture tomorrow on "What Wisconsin P. T. A.'s Have Accomplished the Past Year," and will conclude her series on Friday with a discussion of "The Teacher and the P. T. A."

Frank Reed Killed In Auto Accident In Northern Wis.

Frank Reed, who was a student in the university last year, was killed in an automobile accident Saturday night in the northern part of the state, it was learned here yesterday.

Reed, a Watertown man, was in his Stutz with a group of other young people and racing a train when the accident occurred. The details are not known, but it is believed that the car turned turtle.

A number of the boy's companions were seriously injured. Reed was a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity.

MORGAN TO GIVE TALK ON GLIMPSES OF RHINE

"Picturesque Glimpses Along the Rhine," an illustrated lecture, will be given by Prof. B. O. Morgan of the German department at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow in the auditorium of the Engineering building. Scenes from Cologne to Mainz, including the Waterfall at Schaufelsheuss will be shown. Many of the scenes were those visited on the tour through Europe conducted by Professor Morgan in 1922.

Burnett county was represented at the University of Wisconsin during the past year by a total of four students, all men.

A. L. Strout's Class Writes Novel About College Life

"The Higher Education of Pendleton Clark," bound in blue and lettered in gold, may find itself on the shelf of the book market labeled a best seller if wishes come true.

The wish is the result of an interesting experiment which A. L. Strout of the English department is trying out in his advanced composition class. The class is writing a novel of that name.

Each member submitted one plan for a novel and out of the collection one, a story of college life, was chosen. Mr. Strout assigns a chapter each week to two students who work it out together. Each pair of students who get the assignment also get the preceding chapters for background.

"It will be a modern novel of college life when it is finished, and if the extreme differences in personality and sex of the authors do not creep in too markedly, it may sell."

CHILD POETRY SUBJECT OF TALKS BY LEONARD

Modern poems for children will be read by Prof. S. A. Leonard at 2:30 o'clock Friday in the lecture room of the Law building. The selections will be taken from Louis Untermeyer's book "The Singing World," the best collection of modern poems for children.

"The purpose for reading these poems is to show grade and high school teachers what poetry to select to interest the children," Professor Leonard said.

In order to point-out the difference between appropriate child poetry and selections which slacken interest, Professor Leonard will use several of the wrong kind of readings for illustration.

Normal Body Hits Heads In Politics

Opposes Office-Seeking By Educators; Policy Is Wrong, Claim

A resolution declaring against presidents and faculty members of state normal schools running for state legislative positions was adopted late yesterday by the state normal regents and made public on Wednesday. The resolution stated that the candidacy of normal employees for state offices "violates sound public policy."

It was announced also that the board at a future time will take action prohibiting normal faculty members from running for political offices.

A member of the Milwaukee normal school recently announced his candidacy for the assembly but later withdrew. A member of the River Falls faculty yesterday filed nomination papers for the state senate.

The normal board declared it would not request faculty members now candidates to withdraw.

The board opposes the idea of having normal school teachers in a position to fix their own salaries and to constitute a lobby on the floor of the assembly or senate to work for normal school appropriation bills.

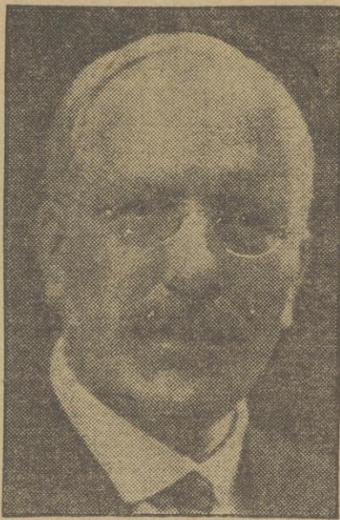

The resignation of President F. A. Cotton of the La Crosse normal school was accepted by the board and is effective Sept. 1. The board appointed a committee to consider applications and candidates for a successor to President Cotton. Members on this committee are Regents A. W. Zeratsky, La Crosse, Supt. John Callahan, Edward Dempsey, Oshkosh, Clough Gates, Superior, and Miss Clara T. Runge, Baraboo.

Profs. A. H. Sanford and C. A. Whitney of the La Crosse Normal school were named as an executive committee to manage affairs of the La Crosse school pending selection of a successor to President F. A. Cotton.

Clown Campbell is going to "make up" scores of youngsters on the circus grounds that morning and let them act in the circus with the regular clowns.

Breiztke Leaves Race; Will Support Sachtjen

C. D. Breiztke, Madison, has withdrawn as a candidate for member of assembly from the first district of Dane county in favor of the candidacy of Herman W. Sachtjen.

"When I announced my candidacy some time ago, I was under the impression that Herman Sachtjen would not be a candidate," Mr. Breiztke says in a statement made public Wednesday. "I have been active in labor circles for a number of years and was anxious to further the cause of labor in the next legislature."

"However, since Mr. Sachtjen has become a candidate I feel that the cause of labor will be well protected."

NEW BROADCASTING

Dramatics. Yes, people are greatly interested in them, hence influenced by their themes or lack of them.

The Shakespeare players who presented plays in the Open Aid Theater last week are to be commended—not for their acting, especially, which will pass, but for the type of plays in their repertoire.

The question has been "cussed and discussed" in women's clubs, literary societies, and dramatic organizations, of the success of the play with a theme, a moral. Is it advisable to attempt to produce it? The general sentiment has been that plays of this type are passe. Popular verdict applauds the bedroom farces, the musical comedies, and extravaganzas—with which the theatrical market is flooded.

Society appreciates the better things. This has been the motivating force for Little Theaters, Open Air Theaters, and the Repertory Theater.

Chicago box offices announced this year's run of Shakespeare plays in the Windy City had been successful. Many of these plays, by old masters, have a "kick" to them that modern ones have not. There is food for thought. The final resolution is highly appreciated by the audience, who like to sense their own denouement was correct.

Have you an idea you wish to "get across" to the world? broadcast it by means of the stage. Where did we obtain some of our conceptions of women? Bernard Shaw's "Man and Superman."

To keep alive the sentiment of worth-while drama, we should congratulate and cooperate with those who are trying to produce it. Futile or miserable first attempts. Practice, and later success, will be the development of this type of theatricals.

SUMMER SCHOOLING— DOES IT PAY?

There may be a few students attending the summer session who are here merely to review or to make up failures accumulated during the regular session. But the vast majority of those present are advancing far beyond any limits either set or reached for themselves previously.

In view of the fact that many still believe that school work cannot be pursued profitably during the summer, it is interesting to note the high registration during this and former summer sessions. Investigators in the field of education tell us that summer study is not only harmless physically, but that it is highly desirable for those who can avail themselves of the opportunity, finances permitting.

The student using summer schools may complete his course in less than the usual time and simultaneously avoid the disastrous distinctions occasioned by prolonged inactivity in studious pursuits. Teachers in public schools long have complained of the time lost in starting the school year in September. Pupils are restless and unwilling to apply themselves for many days.

Now, however, thinking people have sought and found no reason for discontinuing education throughout a long period of weeks any more than the suspension of industry for that period would be advisable. Even at present there are universities which have no summer session but rather maintain a continuous session throughout the year.

Summer school work offers tremendous education possibilities. We rejoice that we may take such work in as advanced and excellent a school as the University of Wisconsin.

Dog Adopted Rabbits, But They Grew Too Fast

BELOIT, Wis.—Trix, a German police dog, had no family of her own so she adopted a nest of rabbits which was uncovered after the hay had been cut from a field on the Clarence Marlette farm near here.

Trix guarded her charges jealously during the day and did not leave them until dusk. This morning Trix evidently learned that bunnies grow fast for her adopted charges had vanished during the night and after several hours search decided she would have to renew her duties with the cattle.

Trix is reputed to be a granddaughter of Strongheart, dear to the hearts of movie fans.

Prize Newspaper Collection Displayed at State Museum

A collection of some of the oldest newspapers, newsbooks, pamphlets, and corantos now in existence are on display in the State Historical museum, the British museum being the only other place where these papers exist.

In this display there are original copies of some of the papers now in active existence, the quality of the paper that was then used being accounting for its state of preservation.

In this display there are original copies of "Public Occurrences" which was the first newspaper published in America. It appeared in 1690. "The Pennsylvania Packet and General Advertiser," which was the first daily newspaper, published in the United States in 1784, is also in this collection. There is also a copy of the "Daily Courant," a single sheet printed on both sides, which was the first English daily paper. It was begun in 1702.

College Beauty

BERTHA EFFRON of Chattanooga was recently voted the most beautiful girl at the University of Chattanooga last year. The announcement was made in "The Moccasin," the college year book. Miss Efron is a freshman.

Dean Louise Nardin Praises Influence Of Greek Societies

"Historically, corruptions and fraternities have grown up and thrived because of their home like attitude," Miss F. Louise Nardin, dean of women, said in a talk before the informal conference for deans and advisers yesterday afternoon.

That is not wholly the social life of a fraternity or sorority which gives it precedence as a group, was also brought out.

The fraternity life is very often the first idea people get of a college or university. This is a false impression, and, according to the opinion expressed, we must give the man and woman who enter the university, a true notion of the Greek societies.

A sorority stands as a group of girls interested in the development of a homelike spirit. A sorority girl feels that if she is one of a group who cares about her, who is interested enough in her to criticize and give her helpful suggestions. She feels that her house is one in which her personal tastes have some effect. She belongs to a group with whom she can do the normal social things. Women outside of sororities often take sororities too seriously, and as a result become passive socially or very individualistic, the dean said.

"There are two ways of being a snob; first, to think that others are inferior to yourself; second, to be always suspecting that other people are superior," Miss Nardin averred. "A snob fails to judge according to the spiritual elements of personality. Greek life, in general, seems to discourage rather than promote snobbery."

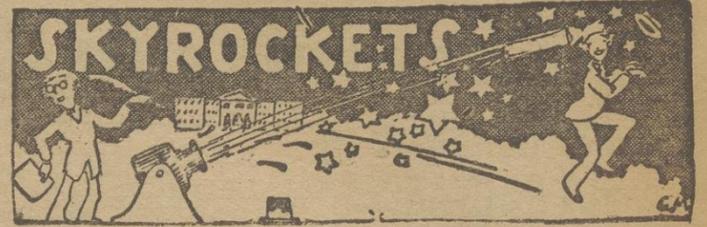

So complete was the railroad strike in New Zealand recently that for several days practically no trains were run in the entire country.

Carnegie Institute Is Given Eight Millions

NEW YORK—The Carnegie corporation of New York, custodian of the fortune left by the late Andrew Carnegie, today paid to Samuel Herden Church, president of the Carnegie Institute of Pittsburgh, $8,000,000 additional to the endowment for the educational work of the institute.

Two weeks late in ripening, the Door county crop of cherries are in good demand, according to the state department of markets. It is estimated that the crop will amount to about 1,000 car loads. Approximately 100 to 150 car loads are shipped fresh.

Factory production of ice cream in this country last year was 300,000,000 gallons.

SOLVED?

Now that the summer session is about to end we can pass on to the bewildered co-eds the explanation of man's attitude toward women, so that they may be fully prepared for next year's session.

If you flatter a man, he leaves you to strut for others;

And if you don't flatter him, he doesn't like your attitude.

If you let him love you, he doesn't appreciate it;

And if you don't let him find some other that will.

If you're jealous of him, he thinks you're running after him;

But if you're not, he thinks you don't care.

If you smoke, he thinks you're not a lady;

And if you don't, he thinks you're slow.

If you're affectionate, he thinks anyone can love you;

And if you're not, he promptly gives you the gate.

If you're a good girl, he thinks he has a fiat tire;

If you roll your own, he thinks you're a wild woman.

If you go out with other men, he thinks you like them best;

And if you don't, he thinks you can't get other dates.

So tell me, what oh, what is a woman supposed to do?

GOOD ADVICE

Students in journalism taking special feature writing, should purchase Felix Koch's handbook on How to Syndicate Manuscripts. It is the most valuable book ever written, it tells you what kind of paper to buy the kind of room necessary for writing special feature articles, how easy it is to write them, but most of all how to sell them. For the benefit of those who do not possess this valuable book we will give first hand information. It states on page 72, chapter VIII, that you should write the article and then try to get someone to buy it—yea, try to get someone to buy it.

HIGENE

New Students Are Staggered With Campus Slang World

Didn't you feel when you first came to Madison that you needed a whole new vocabulary with which to make yourself intelligible when you spoke of clothes?

Everywhere you rubbed up against exotic expressions like "slacks," "trous," "dizzy dogs," "pull overs," and "kid boots." It is true that college people have their own styles and kinds of clothes. And these styles often vary among different colleges.

But even if you don't know what slacks are, you've seen them. They're those big, sloppy sort of knickers that you see so many men wearing on the campus.

Slacks were first worn by college students in England. Only theirs were far sloppier than the ones you see here. They tried to have them as sloppy looking as they could so they never pressed them. They just put them on and wore them for knock about until they were worn out.

That wouldn't do for the American college man. So observe his neatly pressed! For two years slacks have had quite a vogue in the United States.

A "pull over" is the kind of sleeveless sweater that you see men wearing. These have no buttons but go over the head, hence the name.

And never say shoes anymore. There're a hundred new synonyms for that article. Witness—"dogs" and "kicks" especially. If the shoes happen to be gold brocaded ones and their wearer is going to dance they may be "dizzy dogs."

The "kid boot" is the newest kind of a sweater for women. It is called after a very popular show by the same name which is playing in New York just now in which the women wear slip over sweaters with very short sleeves. Hence a sweater of that type is known as a "kid boot."

Women may also wear "crickets" which is a slip over sweater with long sleeves. And if she wears a "wrap around" that means a skirt which the sky rockets editor once referred to with "button, button, who's got the button."

How War Discoveries Are Made Useful In Other Ways To Be Seen

How war discoveries are made useful in times of peace will be shown in the film "Peace Time Activities of the Chemical Warfare Service" at 4:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the auditorium of the Chemistry building.

The first part of the film deals with the discoveries of the chemical warfare service of the department of war which are used in fighting. These include poisonous gases, protections against them, and improved explosives.

The efforts to give these discoveries constructive utility are brought forth in the second part of the picture. The possibility of fumigation is an example.

The first film will be supplemented by "Beyond the Microscope", a special film prepared by the University Extension division. This picture aims to show the important part the microscope has played in developing the fundamentals of chemical science.

The movies are not technical, and are said to hold the interest of everyone who sees them.

Will Go To Meet

Dr. Smith, Madison, Is Wisconsin Delegate To Chiropractors National Meet

Dr. Warren J. Smith, chiropractor at 21 S. Pinckney st., leaves Friday night for St. Paul to attend the thirteenth annual convention of the National Association of Chiropractors, as delegate from Wisconsin.

Amendments to be presented this year include permission to include admission of groups of chiropractors outside the boundaries of the United States.

Inauguration of foot examinations in public and parochial schools is one of the most important activities undertaken by the association this year. This work is recommended to be carried out under the supervision of the local boards of health and education. Statistics reveal that 60 to 80 percent of children have defective feet. It is hoped that this campaign which is also educational will be the means of preventing much foot suffering before adult life is reached.

Dr. Smith is president of the Wisconsin Chiropractor society. The annual state convention will be held in Madison Oct. 5 and 6. There are 85 chiropractors in this state.

Mere Wire Is a Ballroom For This Star In Circus.

Two Poses of Berta Beeson, with Ringling Bros.

It's the narrowest "runway" in the world and the most dangerous and slippery of all ballroom floors. It is less than two-eighths of an inch wide. And yet, on this mere thread of steel, Berta Beeson, the world's greatest danseuse of the tight wire performs more intricate feats and executes more difficult steps than do those professionals who dance upon the ground.

Berta Beeson is that graceful, chiffon-clad person wearing a costume blazing with several thousand rhinestones, who will for four brief minutes command the attention of spectators when the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey shows exhibits here Wednesday, Aug. 13.

With the mammoth circus this season are almost 800 men and women performers. Of this number there are eleven for whom the entire program is stopped for a moment that they may be introduced. Berta Beeson is one of the eleven stars.

What Is La Follette Doing at Washington? Here Is Picture of His Routine For a Day

Senator Will Make Set Speeches; Will Not Make General Stumping Tour

Washington Bureau
The Capital Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Contrary to many reports going out of Washington recently, Senator La Follette is not planning a general stumping tour of the country. He will center on a few set speech engagements.

The Senator's political enemies, confronted with this fact, declare La Follette at 69 is in such poor physical condition that he cannot stand the strain of gruelling platform campaigning. They are preparing to use it as an argument against his candidacy that for the same reason he cannot undertake a general speaking tour he cannot bear the burdens and perform the duties of the Presidency.

Senator La Follette's friends take quite a different view of the matter. Some of them who have been in the closest contact with him for years declare the Progressive leader is, in fact, in better physical condition today than at any time during the last five or six years.

The Senator's office in the Capitol, just off the Senate gallery, receives these days a steady stream of callers from all parts of the country. Robert M. La Follette, Jr., and Basil M. Manly, director of the People's Legislative Service, probably see more of him than any other individuals. They participate in most of the conferences to which the Senator is a party. Herman L. Ekern who heads the Finance Committee of the national organization, and Rep. John M. Nelson, national campaign manager, have the run of the office when they are in Washington. They have just now left the capital for Chicago after spending three or four days going over the details of the campaign.

All of these men, who have been in daily contact with La Follette, declare the Senator's physical condition will not keep him off the stump. Rep. Nelson summed up the attitude of La Follette's confidantes before he returned to Chicago headquarters.

"It is ridiculous to assume that Senator La Follette will dodge a strenuous speaking tour because of his age or his physical condition," Nelson said. "I have known 'Bob' for a good many years and I have never known him to spare himself when he felt his services were needed.

"He is in better shape today than he was in 1922 when he was a candidate for re-election to the Senate. He had recently undergone a major operation and had not been on the stump for several years. But in that campaign he toured every county of Wisconsin, made 50 or 60 speeches and finished the campaign in the pink of condition.

"I am personally opposed to the Senator's making an extensive speaking campaign this year simply because I believe he will be more effective and get a larger vote by different tactics. La Follette himself will stay off the stump, so far as a general tour is concerned, only if he is convinced of the truth of my statement.

"In 1912, Roosevelt and Taft spoke all over the country while Wilson stayed at Shadow Lawn, making half a dozen set speeches late in the campaign. Wilson won. In 1916 Wilson again stayed at home while Hughes made numerous speeches, among them a speech in California which cost him the loss of the state. In 1920, Harding made a front porch campaign at Marion while Cox made the most remarkable speaking campaign on record. Everybody knows what happened in November.

"I hope to see Senator La Follette make just such a winning campaign as Wilson and Harding made. Along in September and October he will probably make a number of carefully prepared set speeches. He is the greatest platform speaker living in America and his appearance will dispose of those critics who will spend the next few months declaring he is broken down in health."

Senator La Follette's physical appearance today bears out the claims of his friends that he is vigorous and active. He usually reports to his office at 9 o'clock and remains almost continuously in conference until 6 o'clock. At noon he is driven to the restaurant of the Union station where he eats sparingly. He adheres strictly to a vegetarian diet and usually orders a bowl of milk with graham bread and a vegetable salad. The Senator for years has had the knack of snatching an hour's sleep, curled up in a Pullman chair or stretched out in an easy chair. Almost any afternoon these days, around 2 or 3 o'clock, the Progressive candidate for President will be found fast asleep in a lounge in his private office in the Capitol.

Senator La Follette has never made it a practice to hold regular conferences with newspaper correspondents and since he became a candidate for President he has not varied from his old rule. The newspapermen assigned to "cover" him are received by "Bob, Jr." or by officials of the Executive Committee which is preparing now to open a publicity headquarters with a man in charge selected from the Washington corps of correspondents. The Senator is frequently hailed by newspaper men as he enters or departs from his office and he invariably stops to chat with them. But all the arts of the interviewing craft cannot induce him to give out remarks "hot off the bat" on interesting angles of the campaign. For years he has followed the policy of preparing in writing every statement given to the press. Probably this practice was confirmed during and just after the war when he felt the press was hostile to him and believed his St. Paul speech, which was made the basis for ouster proceedings against him in the Senate, has been misrepresented through the newspapers.

Three years ago, La Follette's office in the Capitol was shunned by visitors in Washington. La Follette came and went without much notice. Today the same office is humming with activity. Beyond the small reception room, La Follette is laying his plans for the Progressive campaign, marshalling his forces, outlining his position on the issues he regards as foremost. La Follette's office is the real headquarters in the Progressive campaign.

Guardsman Has Foot Cut Off After Camp Accident

A Wisconsin national guardsman suffered the loss of a foot and another was slightly injured in two accidents at Camp Douglas last week.

Private Harry Rasmussen, 21, Company I, 127th infantry, Neenah, was shot through both feet while he was lying on his cot Friday. The shot was fired by Private John Nelson who had cleaned his rifle in an adjoining tent and, thinking the gun was empty, pulled the trigger, discharging a cartridge. The injured man was taken to St. Francis hospital La Crosse, where his right foot, which had been shattered, was amputated.

Private Clifford McCullough, Company D, 127th infantry, was slightly injured when a machine gun bullet pierced his foot. The accident occurred Thursday.

MORGAN PRAISES POETRY OF SHAW

Sheffield University Professor
Ends Lecture Series
Here Today

"The Religion of Shaw" was the subject of A. E. Morgan, professor of English literature at Sheffield, England, in his lecture this afternoon. "The general opinion has been that Mr. Shaw is a destructive critic, but a good deal of evidence, if looked for, shows that he is a very real constructor. He may have appeared to jibe at religion as it is practiced but it is remarkable to see how all through his career he has been interested in describing all types of religion," Professor Morgan said.

Examples cited to illustrate the above statement were made with particular stress laid on "Blanco Posnet." The philosophical exposition of Mr. Shaw's views in "Back to Methuselah" was revealed, and the new play "Saint Joan" was commented upon.

"Far from being a drab realist, with the imagination of a poet and a poet's ear and love for rhythm and diction, John Masefield is symbolic of an extremely interesting line in English drama," Professor Morgan said yesterday.

"The Tragedy of Nan," Masefield's first play of importance was produced in 1908 and has never been equalled by his later productions is the opinion of Professor Morgan. "Critics are either rapturous in their approbation or virulent in their attack upon the 'Tragedy of Nan,'" he said. The play illustrated Masefield's interest in peasant life and also his artistic use of the forces of nature interacting with the psychological development of character. Masefield does not see only the sordid bitterness of life but the beauty and development of character that may come from it. "From a dunhill in the Prager's house comes the pure flower of the soul of Nan," he said.

The treatment of historical subjects in a modern light is illustrated in "Pompey the Great." The influence of classical French tragedy is displayed in "King Philip"; and the revolt from drab realism to a world of romance is illustrated in "Maloney Holspur."

This lecture ended a series of three which Professor Morgan has given. In the first lecture on Monday, "The Influence of Ibsen," Professor Morgan emphasized three cardinal characteristics of Ibsen's work. First, his realism as reality; second, his symbolism and poetry; and third, the crystallization of the idea of self expression which has tended to become one of the most dominant factors in modern civilization.

ed in finding out what films and slides may be secured through the visual instruction department for use in their own communities, Dr. Dudley has set informal conference hours at which educational films and slides will be demonstrated. These conferences will be held at the branch office at the university post office building on University avenue at 4 o'clock July 31, Aug. 5, and Aug. 7.

In one series of slides the university has an unusual possession. These are the art slides, made from the William H. Sherman collection of negatives, numbering about five thousand subjects, and for the most part actual photographs from the original paintings or sculptures.

Last summer four people from the visual instruction department went to the European galleries and, from a study of the original paintings, colored these slides. "We believe that we are the first to have done this. At least, we know of no other place where one can get such slides," said Miss Myra York, of the visual instruction bureau.

Besides lantern slides upon many types of subjects, such as agriculture, home economics, literature, Latin, or history, there is a wide range of choice in the selection of films upon these and other subjects. These slides and films may be obtained free within the state upon the payment of a registration fee and postage. In addition the bureau can be of service to churches, schools and communities who wish to secure films which have been passed upon as suitable for their purpose. Some of these films belong to the university and can be obtained free; the others, such as those that are being shown on Wednesday nights, are rental films.
