STUDENT COURT WILL INVESTIGATE RECENT ELECTION

Prosecutor Peck Gathers Evidence; Board Gives Additional Information

Investigation of certain alleged violations of the regulations in the recent general student election will be made by the student court at the request of the prosecutor, Egon Peck L3. Peck has gathered evidence in a number of cases, and additional evidence was turned over to him by the elections board.

The court elected officers last week and chose Peck as prosecutor. He will gather all evidence and call a meeting of the court to submit his case, after which the secretary will subpoena witnesses to testify.

Absolute Jurisdiction

Charges will be made as soon as defendants are summoned, and the court will proceed to try the cases. Penalties will be levied at the discretion of the court in cases in which defendants are proven guilty. Jurisdiction of the court in such cases is absolute.

Several weeks last year were spent in investigating the illegal voting in the junior class without being able to fix the guilt on any persons, but did make recommendations for changes in the elections regulations which were put into effect by the student senate. The investigations last year were conducted as John Doe proceedings, a circumstance which proved to be a decided hindrance to the court, but the present cases will be brought against known offenders.

Dry Homecoming

The court announced last week that it would investigate any cases of violations of the liquor laws in which students were concerned, but Peck stated that no complaints had been made to him about the situation during Homecoming.

Four Disciplined For Dishonesty in School Work

Two geology field trip reports were so much alike that the giver, a junior woman, and the givee, a freshman woman, must both earn four extra credits before they can be graduated. This action was taken by the disciplinary committee Wednesday night in South hall. Both women will be on probation for a semester.

Suspension from the university was the result of a graduate student's dishonesty in working out a problem. He had had four years' work in another university but was taking graduate chemistry studies here. In this particular problem he arrived at the right answer but because it was not the one which most of the students got, he falsified his processes in order to come to their conclusion. He left Madison Thursday.

A freshman who plagiarized was let off with a warning by Prof. Ray S. Owen, chairman of the committee.

Wisconsin Spirit Songs Broadcast Wednesday Night

Three songs of Wisconsin spirit comprise one group of the radio program by the Men's Glee club, to be broadcast from station WHA at 7:45 o'clock, Wednesday evening.

Besides this group, which will consist of "Varsity Toast," "Songs to Thee, Wisconsin," and "On Wisconsin," the men will sing "March of the Men of Harlech," Welsh, "Star of Descending Night," Emerson, and "Gypsy Life," Scott, and "Goin' Home," Dvorak-Fischer, "Tell Me Not of a Lovely Lass," Forsyth, and Gounod's "Soldier's Chorus," from "Faust."

Robert Nethercut '25, accompanist for the club, will play Rachmanoff's "Prelude in G minor."

Flonzaley Quartet Presents Program of Varied Numbers

The Flonzaley quartet will appear in Music hall tonight.

"Every semester the School of Music tries to bring some talent of worth to Madison at reasonable prices so that everyone may hear them," said Prof. Lawrence Powell, of the School of Music.

"Tonight's program will be exceedingly good, as it combines all types of music. The classic Haydn quartet, and two modern numbers, one of which is a composition of Albert Spalding, who will appear here in the near future, and the other "The Pixy Suite," a composition by Waldo Warner, the violinist of the London string quartet, which appeared here last year," he concluded.

DEBATE TRYOUTS ARE HELD TODAY

Preliminary Intercollegiate Trials Are in Bascom Hall; Finals December 2

Preliminary intercollegiate debate trials will be held at 4:30 and 7:30 o'clock this afternoon and evening in 165 Bascom hall. The contestants who display the most forensic ability will be chosen to participate in the semi-final trials to be held December 2.

The proposition to be debated upon is "Resolved, that capital punishment should be abolished throughout the United States." Contestants may present either side of the question. All speeches are limited to four minutes. There will be no rebuttal speeches.

"Those who have signed up for the trials, and have not signified whether they will tryout in the afternoon or evening, should inform the speech department as to the time that they will participate," declared Prof. J. M. O'Neill, chairman of the speech department.

The selections will be made by Professors J. M. O'Neill, A. T. Weaver, John Barnes and R. W. West.

HERSCHELD ADDRESSES SOPHOMORES ON CHINA

ENGINEERS' MAG. ON SALE TODAY, TELLS OF DORMS

Seventy per cent of the applications for rooms in the dormitories at the University of Pennsylvania are for single rooms, says Arthur Peabody, state architect, in discussing the proposed men's dormitories at Wisconsin, in an article in the Wisconsin Engineer, which is on sale today.

Data regarding the experience of other universities with their dormitories are being collected by the regents of the university for the guidance of those who are preparing the plans. Mr. Peabody's article is illustrated by tentative plans of the proposed dormitories.

In an article on blast furnace slags, Prof. R. S. McCaffery gives the results of experiments which have been going on in the mining department for several years, and which are expected to have an influence upon blast furnace practice throughout the world.

PLAYERS ELECT.

Musicians Appear Tonight

"This will be the only opportunity of the season to hear a string quartet," Prof. Lawrence Powell, of the School of Music, stated when asked about the performance of the Flonzaley String quartet in Music hall tonight. "Dr. Mills is giving an analysis of the numbers on tonight's program at his lecture on the appreciation of music this morning."

BOARD OF CONTROL ANNOUNCES DINNER

Arrangements for the fourth annual banquet given by the board to the members of the editorial and business staffs were made at the regular meeting yesterday of the Daily Cardinal Board of Control.

The banquet will be held at 6:30 o'clock, November 25, at the Monona hotel. Its object is to provide an opportunity for the members of the editorial and business staffs to become better acquainted with each other and with the members of the board.

The board also made one appointment to a staff position at its meeting. Norbert W. Eshmeyer '27, formerly assistant promotion manager on the business staff, was appointed promotion manager to fill the place of Leonard Barry '25, who recently withdrew from the position.

TUTORING CLASSES WILL START SOON

Student-Faculty Committee to Discuss Needs at Wednesday Night Meeting

Tutoring classes, which may begin in time for the midsemester examinations, will be discussed at a meeting of a faculty-student committee at 6 o'clock Wednesday night at the Y. M. C. A.

"Now that the mid-term examinations are at hand, some freshmen find themselves in need of special tutoring," said C. V. Hibbard, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. "Until the need is known, no definite plan can be announced. So freshmen who find themselves in need of help are invited to tell the association of the subject in which help is desired."

"We expect to find either in the faculty or among the upperclassmen those who will be willing to coach students as a service of friendship without remuneration."

On your toes, boys, or you'll be on your ear—or worse!

Rubber heels and gummy soles have come back into their own with the first fall of snow, and woe to the ed or co-ed who is not sure of foot.

It's "Hi, Mac," then "Ugh, ow," and a fifteen foot skid—on back, or side, or fifteenth vertebra, down a slippery snow-covered walk.

The crowds line up for ten minutes at a time between classes to watch a dignified oriental who has lost his balance and goes dizzily down the speedy way from Bascom down the side hill to Sterling hall.

BENEDICT SPEAKS ON METABALISM

Nutrition Expert Discusses Production of Heat in Human Body

Dr. Francis D. Benedict, international authority on nutrition and head of the Carnegie Laboratory of Nutrition at Boston, discussed the production of heat in the human body, in his lecture on "Metabolic Processes," last night at Sterling hall.

Dr. Benedict defined metabolism as "the constructive and destructive processes in the body, visible in the form of fat, and invisible in the form of energy and heat."

"The principal factors influencing metabolism in the body," he claimed, "are muscular action, the digestion of food, age, weight, size, height, and surface area. To make tests determining the amount of heat production these factors must be carefully considered."

In his laboratories, Dr. Benedict has made extensive experiments on subjects, determining by use of delicate instruments the amount of heat produced, or the basal metabolism of the subject in a condition of muscular repose, and in a state of fasting.

FROSH Y. M. BANQUET TICKETS SOLD TODAY

Tickets for the freshman Y. M. C. A. banquet on Friday evening go on sale at 8 o'clock this morning in the lobby of the Y. M. C. A. building. They may be obtained from the freshman committee of fifty and other members of the class. Since the banquet is to be held in the Badger room of the Woman's building which will accommodate no more than 350 persons, and all men of the class are invited, the committee expects that tickets will be sold out shortly after the sale is opened. Dr. Walter E. Menwell is to be chief speaker of the evening. The banquet will begin at 6 o'clock.

C. I. P. A. SESSIONS WILL BE HELD IN STOCK PAVILION

1,000 Delegates Expected For Convention November 28 and 29

Because over a thousand delegates are expected to attend the Central Interscholastic Press association convention, which is to be held here on Friday and Saturday, November 28 and 29, the committee in charge of arrangements has found it necessary to depart from custom and hold the sessions in the stock pavilion instead of Music hall, where the smaller sessions of previous years met.

The stock pavilion will be used for the opening session on Friday morning, and the convention exposition, following it, and in the afternoon will be the scene of the general convocation at which Prof. M. V. O'Shea speaks. Later in the afternoon convention pictures will be taken, and movies will follow in the pavilion.

Festivities on Friday

Three places, the Luther Memorial cathedral, the Wesley foundation and the Woman's building, have been selected for the convention banquet at 6:30 o'clock Friday evening. At 7:30 o'clock a vodvil show, staged by university and high school students, is to be presented in Lathrop hall. The carnival ball, and mixer for those who do not dance, follows the vodvil at Lathrop.

Bleyer to Speak

Prof. Willard G. Bleyer's Saturday morning address on "Aims in Scholastic Publications" and Prof. H. E. Gardner's on "School Publications as Advertising Media" are to take place at the stock pavilion.

On Saturday afternoon there is to be a business session in Agricultural hall auditorium at 12:30 o'clock and at 1 o'clock comes the closing convocation in the stock pavilion.

BLUE DRAGON RINGS DISTRIBUTED TODAY

Senior women who have ordered the official Blue Dragon rings may call for them between 2:30 and 4:30 o'clock on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, at the S. G. A. office. The balance on the rings will be collected when they are distributed.

GERMAN CLUB HAS STUDENT PROGRAM

"Studentenabend" will be the meeting of the German club, which will be held at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday, in the German house, 508 N. Frances street, the program being entirely in the hands of students of the German department.

SOLOS WERE BROADCAST FROM WHA LAST NIGHT

Piano and vocal selections were broadcast from station WHA by the School of Music at 7:45 o'clock last night. A group of vocal songs were given by Eunice Neckerman '26, Madison, and two piano solos by Alice Johns '27, Dodgeville.

First Expression Center Was Mouth, Declares Jastrow

"The earliest expression of emotion centered about the mouth," said Prof. Joseph G. Jastrow, in his illustrated lecture on "The Expression of Emotions," yesterday afternoon in Bascom hall. "The mouth was important because food was taken in through it and because animals attacked with their mouths."

"The second center of expression was the eye, and the third the forehead. Children do not express their feelings by any muscular display in the forehead. That is a sign of age."

Professor Jastrow illustrated the points he made in his talk by means of slides which showed not only facial expressions, but charts indicating disturbances, circulation and respiration as a result of emotion.

FULL OF PRAISE
FOR RYAN'S TEAMRecognize Pat McAndrews as Great Man on Offense and Defense

The Sunday papers changed the tone of their discourse on the Wisconsin team and coach after the game with Iowa last week. All articles were full of praise for the fighting Badgers and for Ryan, and all recognized the improved playing of the team as a machine and the superb game of Harry McAndrews.

The Chicago Tribune reads, "The University of Iowa sprinted to a 21-7 victory over the best efforts the Badgers have displayed this season. It was a glorious victory for Iowa, but the Badgers were hardly less glorious in defeat. The 14 point margin does not depict the real struggle that took place. When the half ended Wisconsin had the ball on Iowa's five yard line. A pass over the goal robbed them of another chance to score. The fleet McAndrews played the game of his career."

"It was the same characteristic attack that in previous years has made Wisconsin teams feared and respected. It was a punch that Wisconsin had not displayed this season. In the Wisconsin stands there was a swelling roar that drowned the band on the Iowa side."

Examiner Out of Step

From the Herald Examiner write-up one might be led to believe that the author heard the game over the radio, or from some more remote source. He says, "Iowa clearly outplayed Wisconsin in both offensive and defensive, and after the first quarter the outcome of the game was never in doubt."

Here's hoping the person who wrote that has read other accounts, or has perhaps seen part of the game in the movies. If he has he can see that he is out of step, or, perhaps, like the proverbial private, he may think that everyone is out of step but himself.

Oliver E. Kuechle, in the Milwaukee Journal, finds plenty of reason to boost the Badger team and coach. "All the trip-hammers that swung in cadence on the head of Jack Ryan during the week are quiet now. Some fellows even are pounding a drum. The Wisconsin coach worked wonders with his bunch of cripples in the week after the Notre Dame nightmare, and put a team on the field against Iowa that fought to the last ditch with a powerful brand of football as its weapon.

"Both teams played good football and both were fairly evenly matched. Cripples on both teams adorned side lines. The score of 21-7, which apparently gives Iowa a good margin, does not show the true difference between the two teams. There really was none, at least none of any concern. McAndrews was the individual hero of the game for Wisconsin. The two Harmons surpassed anything they had ever done before, and Putty Nelson played the game of his life. Jack Harris was a fighting fool if ever there was one."

McAndrews Outstanding Man

"Red" Mich, in the Wisconsin State Journal, made no bones about giving the team its due. "They lost in spite of a great display of football in the first half, in spite of a wonderfully improved fighting spirit, in spite of a new and baffling attack, in spite of mighty efforts on the part of Pat McAndrews, who battled with legs of steel and tore his great heart out in a supreme effort to bring victory to the Cardinal. In spite of everything, they lost because they couldn't stop Parkin. It was a heart rending encounter for the Badgers to lose, and the score doesn't begin to indicate the tremendous struggle they put up with the odds all against them."

Even though in defeat, Wisconsin has re-established itself as far as football is concerned in the good graces of everyone.

Frosh Tankmen Equal Relay
Time of Last Year's Varsity

By setting a time record in relay swimming equal to that of last year's varsity team, four freshmen swimmers distinguished themselves in the competitive 160-yard relay swims held in the pool last week. The time made was 1:21, and the frosh who did it are Balding, Pederson, Briggs, and Bach.

Coach Joe Steinauer was astonished at the time made, and looked up past records for comparison. The conference record is 1:19 1-10, while last year's varsity composed of Frazier, Crane, Gerber, and Johnson did 1:21. The four low men of last year's frosh squad, Stevens, Radcliffe, Grigsby and Herschberger, covered the 160 yards in even less time, making 1:20 4-5.

The competitive event for both varsity and frosh swimmers this week is the 100-yard swim. The names of 27 freshmen and 17 varsity men are posted for the time records on this swim.

The time of training is being cut down on account of the coming examinations. Says Coach Steinauer, "We want all swimmers to hop on the exams, and we are cutting the training periods in half to give them the chance. Grades received now will be figured on the final mark, so they are very important. Hit the books."

A new aspirant for the cross country title to be decided at Ann Arbor next Saturday was brought to light in the hill and dale race between Northwestern and the Maroons last Saturday.

Martin, speedy Purple harrier, followed by Platt, captain of the Purple cow path team, breezed in ahead of Bourke, Maroon leader, who showed his heels to all Cardinal hill and dalers in the meet here two weeks ago.

Little was known of the strength of the Purple runners prior to this meet, but it is apparent that they will cause their opposition plenty of worry. The time made in Saturday's race was fast and the Badgers will have to give all they have in order to beat the Northwestern lads next week-end.

ATHLETICS IN THE
COLLEGIATE WORLDFURTHER CHANGES
BEING EFFECTED
IN BADGER TEAMPolaski Will Be in Playing Condition For Game With Maroons

Wisconsin has a chance of going into its last game of the season at Stagg field Saturday and springing another upset to be added to the already unbelievable upsets of the grid year. Wisconsin, at the bottom of the Big Ten list, will meet the Chicago Maroons, in first place by virtue of Minnesota's decisive defeat of Grange and his Illini teammates Saturday.

Wisconsin came out of the Iowa game with only minor injuries. Polaski, who was saved for the Chicago game, will be in good physical condition and will strengthen one of the end positions.

Evidently Coach Ryan saw more promising possibilities in Wisconsin's backfield by their performance in the Hawkeye game, for in practice last night, held in the gymnasium annex due to the fall of snow and cold weather, McAndrews was used consistently as ball carrier in signal formations.

The lineup in last night's workout in the annex indicates that Harris will be used more and more as a ball-carrier. Not only that but the expected return of Polaski has caused the shifting of Miller back to his line position, with Burrus filling the other end. The rangy Kentucky lad had difficulty in getting free from the Iowa backs to catch passes Saturday. But Burrus is a worker and a fighter and this week's practice may iron out some of the difficulties and improve his play as he will prove a worthy running mate of Polaski in the Chicago game Saturday.

Bonini was used quite a bit at center last night. Red Kreuz, wonder defense man who worked out the last few minutes against Iowa, was used a while at halfback last night.

The only real injury resulting from Saturday's fray was Bieberstein's. He has been in the infirmary since the game, but it is understood he will be out today and will report again for practice.

Meuge, diminutive fighting linesman, was used some at left guard in signal drill last night.

The spirit of hopefulness is evident in the Badger camp. All eyes are turned to Chicago. "Go get Chicago" is the cry on the campus. The season will be successful enough, in the eyes of most followers of the team, if the Badgers pull the unexpected, as Minnesota did last Saturday, and send Stagg's Maroons to the showers Saturday night a defeated team, humbled by those in the extreme cellar of the list.

PAT O'DEA

Badger Star of Nineties
Once Held World's record
For 62 Yard Drop Kick.

This is the second of a series of articles telling about famous Wisconsin athletes of the university's history, written by George Dennis, sports assistant, who has just completed the series on "Badger Coaches."

Immediately following the glorious days of Ikey Karel on Badger gridirons, a new football luminary flashed across the horizon of Wisconsin's football history in the form of Pat O'Dea.

The spirit of O'Dea has filled all Badger football men in the years since Pat was an undergraduate. At pep meetings, at alumni gatherings, and at talks which coaches give their men before going on the field of battle, Pat O'Dea and his indomitable spirit are always referred to in order to inspire the men to greater efforts.

He played in the backfield on the Badger teams of '97, '98 and '99, a period when football was in its comparatively early stages, and the open style of play was unheard of. It was in those days that a punter or dropkicker was invaluable to a team. A team that could gain over their opponents by punting had an advantage that was a great handicap to the opposing eleven. Pat O'Dea was such a man.

Perhaps the most outstanding feat of this great Badger was his famous dropkick in the Northwestern tilt of 1898. Northwestern had scored a touchdown on the Cardinal team and it seemed as if that lone two points was going to mean a defeat for the Cardinal as the game was nearly over and the Badgers showed no signs of being able to push a counter across the goal.

Then O'Dea stepped back and booted a perfect dropkick from the 62 yard line. This kick will always be remembered by followers of football. It won the game for Wisconsin by the narrow margin of one point and at the time it was incidentally the world's record for a drop kick. Now that boot of his ranks third in football records.

At the present time Pat O'Dea is in the real estate business in Los Angeles, California.

First Fall of Snow Enlivens
Winter Sport Enthusiasts

As the tinkle of Father Winter's sleigh-bells are heard through the snow-laden air, there comes to the winter sport enthusiast visions of a transformed toboggan slide, a brilliantly lighted skating rink, and a lake filled with the shimmering sails of ice boats.

The toboggan slide will have a new bridge erected across the road at the bottom. There will also be bells placed at the top of the slide to insure safety and to warn those down below at the road. When the sled leaves the top, a bell will be rung, thus sounding the warning of its approach.

Plans to change the skating rink to the lower football field at Camp Randall are under consideration. There the rink can be kept in better condition. The powerful lights used now for football practice will be utilized for the convenience of the skaters, and a building will be erected there as a warming place.

Winners of the interclass skating contest will receive numerals, and winners of the intercollegiate skating meet will receive their respective college insignia, if present plans materialize. A new event this winter will be a faculty relay race. This should prove interesting as many faculty members are interested in this branch of sport.

Following is the list of events planned for the winter:

- Jan. 10—Interclass races for men and women. Intercollegiate relay. Faculty relay.
- Jan. 17—Ski races for men and women.
- Jan. 24—International ski tournament.
- Feb. 14—Ice carnival.
- Feb. 21—Annual skate across lake, and ice boat race.

The ski tournament will be held earlier this year, permitting everyone to see it. Before, it was held during semester vacations while many students were away. The annual skate across the lake has not been held for the past two years because of the excessive amount of snow on the lake which prohibited easy skating.

So It Seems

Santy Claus sent his regards yesterday morning with the first snowfall; let's hope he sends the team a little more luck on forward passes in the Chicago game this Saturday, and after that we don't care if he sends his first downfall.

Glory in defeat was the verdict for last Saturday. Glory never did raise the ante in the standings column, but you know—straws that show the way the wind doth blow.

The game with Chicago this Saturday will be a contest between one of the oldest coaches in the conference and one of the youngest. Alonzo Stagg has put out many a powerful team at Chicago. Although Ryan's team failed to win victory in last year's battle with the Maroons, the game was close and only a tearing run by Pyott gave Chicago a victory.

Wisconsin is now in the cellar with no competition at all. One of the most dismal seasons in the Badgers' grid history can be softened if the team defeats Chicago Saturday. Chicago now stands at the top of the list of standings. If Wisconsin wins Saturday it will throw Michigan into first place.

Wisconsin's football team may be losing, but the Wisconsin spirit is invincible. The cheering of the homecoming crowd was the best heard on Randall field for many a game. In spite of the defeat Saturday, students are hopeful for a victory against Chicago.

Doyle Harmon made a good comeback Saturday. After showing up well in the preliminary games, he made few gains in the Minnesota, Michigan, and Notre Dame games. Saturday he was second only to McAndrews in yardage.

The tragedy of the grid will soon be forgotten for the glory of the basket court. While football has taken up the interest of Badger students, Doc Meanwell has been grooming his basketballers quietly and industriously, teaching them his system of play.

MARINETTE, Wis.—The town of Beaver, Marinette county, finds itself without a business section today, for the one business block of the place was destroyed by a $50,000 fire late Saturday. The Wunderlich Hotel, Mrs. Fires' general store, and a warehouse were destroyed.

BADGERS SINGLE
STUMBLING BLOCK
TO MAROON TITLEStagg is Driving His Team Hard After the Northwestern Nightmare

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 17.—To win the conference football championship is the objective of the Chicago football team. A fighting spirit prevails in the Maroon camp and Coach A. A. Stagg is driving his team hard to defeat the Wisconsin Badgers, the lone obstacle in the way of an undisputed claim to the title.

For the first time since 1913 have the Maroons been so close to a Big Ten pennant in football. For the first time since 1913 have the Badgers stood in the way of the winning of the flag. That year Chicago won a great game 19 to 0 and thus won the championship, and now in 1924 the Maroons hope to repeat and romp to their title.

Stagg's cohorts fear that in this game the Ryan men will show the one good game all conference teams seem able to produce each year. After the Northwestern scare last Saturday, the "old man" is driving the Chicago pigskin chasers hard, so as to be sure of a win.

With both Harry Thomas and McCarthy, the Illinois game hero, in great condition, Stagg figures to swamp the Badgers with an array of plays through the line and around end. The Maroon line is waxing stronger and in last Saturday's game the Purple were held, for the most part, helpless on line smashes.

Reports state that the Badgers showed their best form of the season against Iowa, and as a result Chicago will take no long chances, but only intense training, so as to march on to their first championship since 1913.

Our Policy in Regard to Athletics in the Future: GO GET CHICAGO

The wonder of wonders has happened and one man dropped into a dead faint as a result. The telephone at a fraternity house was answered on the first ring.

The fact that the Homecoming committee sponsored, boosted and even announced from the mass meeting platform the Homecoming matinee at one of the local theaters is extremely regrettable, since that matinee was nothing more than a commercial proposition and as such should not have been connected in any way with the Homecoming activities.

A VALIANT STRUGGLE

More than a week ago there was held the first meeting of the inter-fraternity council for the academic year 1924-25. Hitherto a dead and very much defunct organization, it started a movement to pull itself out of the grave before all the dirt had been heaped upon it. In the main, the attempt was successful. Every step towards reform can not be taken on the instant and it might be considered enough that the council at least held a meeting which was attended.

But how well it was attended, only those 20 or so student who were present know. There are some 60 fraternities represented on the council and of those only one-third were represented at the first meeting. A much better showing that may be than the two which were made last year. But at the same time, it is a pretty disgraceful one.

As for the matter which was discussed and the method in which it was discussed there is little to be said which is favorable. Ostensibly the meeting was called for the sake of selecting a member of the council to attend the convention in New York this year. Since it is a more or less firm tradition that the president of the council attends this convention, the proposed business amounted to very little indeed.

The next matter which was discussed was that of holding a fraternity dance in the Windy City the night of the Chicago game. Ahem!

After various other minor things had been brought up the system of initiation eligibility came to the attention of the meeting. At Iowa there exists a system which, to put it simply, forces the active members of a fraternity as well as the pledges to have a certain scholastic standing. According to Iowa authorities, it works admirably. When the system was discussed at the local meeting, however, it was wretchedly mangled. A few of those present seemed to have very definite ideas as to how the system operated. But strangely enough, not one of the ideas was correct and as a result the system was laughed out of countenance as far as its working on the Badger campus is concerned.

Let it be said, however, that it is splendid to know that the inter-fraternity council is at least holding meetings and that it has determined to get together regularly once a month.

ENFORCED CHEERING

The importance of effective cheering as an aid to winning football games and as an exhibition of Wisconsin spirit is generally recognized. But at mass meetings and wherever and whenever the undergraduates are exhorted to better cheering, the only appeal made is to a sense of duty. The undergraduate is told that he must cheer because it is his duty, and because Wisconsin students in the past have cheered. It is evidently assumed that all students come here from institutions where school spirit has been logically developed, and that they know not only that they should cheer but that they wish to cheer.

Of course, it is quite true that this assumption includes a large group of students. On the other hand, there are unquestionable many who cheer only because it is expected of them. Now real cheering can only come from the desire to cheer. And for this group, cheering is usually confined to Camp Randall. They do not extend the cheering spirit all through the week. And even their cheering at the games, being forced and mechanical, is largely useless. And it is but natural that it should be so, for if there exists any of the intellectual curiosity which ought to exist at a university, undergraduates will not cheer wholeheartedly because they are told that they must; they rightly demand the why and wherefore. They must understand why cheering is not only important to the football team, but why it is important to them and to Wisconsin; in fact, some students must have explained to them why the success of the football team is important to them and to Wisconsin. A few able expositions on cheering as related to Wisconsin spirit would not be entirely without place.

THE LAST OF THE SONS OF HEAVEN

A short time ago occurred an event of considerable significance to hundreds of millions of people which scarcely stirred the occidental world and the college world, full of football and homecomings, not at all. A Christian Chinese general, entering Peking in triumph, ejected the boy emperor, Pi Ya Lo, from his palaces, and confiscated his revenues to the republic. Thus ends an institution older than any under which we live.

Since 1912 China has been a republic in government, except for the short period when Yuan Shi Kai attempted to satisfy his imperial ambitions. But the young emperor grew to manhood in the Forbidden City, surrounded by all the riches and honored, worshiped by all the ceremonies that have been the due of the Sons of Heaven for centuries. On the circumstance of his marriage two years ago, all who were great in China came to the wedding feast. When Pi Ya Lo appeared in the Hall of the Dragons, the long lines of guests, including generals of the armies of the republic and ministers in the cabinet of the president, prostrated themselves on the ground nine times, as if the Manchus still ruled in fact. Hundreds of thousands in the interior of the empire did not know but that the grandson of Tze Shi was ruling them. It was quite generally believed that imperial absolutism was quiescent, but not dead.

But now the son of a hundred emperors, a spectated English-dressed youth and his girl-empress, shorn of the last vestiges of rank and power, are excluded from the city from which their ancestors have ruled China. Is it the real end of monarchy in the flowery kingdom? It has been shown in Europe that kingship does not pass away quickly and easily; there are even wise men who say that it is the expression of a fundamental human instinct which never dies.

Before the university workers sprinkled sand on the slides leading up the hill yesterday, students gathered in regular ring-side seats for the annual slid contest. Much merriment was in evidence! Students did not seem to realize that serious and possibly fatal accidents might come from injuries received in a fall.

SAY, CAN YOU PICTURE Shorty Wakstead out in front of the Alpha Chi Rho house on the past week-end leading that big sign in a roaring U-Rah-Rah Wisconsin with a tiger at the end. (This tiger stuff may be better than having a dog there as, we remember Shorty had once before this year).

SIR WALTER.

There will be no beauty in distress as long as I have it, said the homely girl, as she picked out a gown at one of the stores.

HURRAY!

There are many times the old Grad said, As he heaved a mighty sigh, And he slowly shook his old gray head And a tear trickled out of his eye. The years may go and they may come And time rolls swiftly by, But what I claim, or I'm a bum This place is too darn dry!!

Looking forward to the game at Chicago, we see before us a paradise for that tribe which is condemned by the man who has a date, condemned by the Deans, condemned by the people who so condescendingly run the dances in this here skewl, but who have the best time of them all, the finale hoppers. For, is it not the truth that this next game is A. STAGG'S GAME?

NOW TAKE THE CASE OF GERTIE—

One of the more confidential of our few girl friends told us the other day that one night she was suddenly taken very fiercely, she was almost in the grip of it, its deadly tenacles were almost about her, she felt that Hali was about to overcome her but by a supreme effort she got to the littering bottle just in time. She is the kind that wrestles with temptation, etc.

ELY COMES BACK FROM WASHINGTON

Gives Address on Land Values
Before Experiment Station Convention

Dr. Richard T. Ely, of the economics department, returned from Washington, D. C. Saturday, where he addressed the convention of land grant colleges and experiment stations on "Land Valuation and Its Agricultural Future." Dr. Ely left for Washington October 23.

"Low price agricultural products are essential if they are to be plentiful," said Dr. Ely in his address. "High prices mean scarcity and any politics which mean high prices for farm products cannot be permanently maintained in this country in which now the urban population is in the majority, and in which this majority will increase as time goes on. A farmer cannot be prosperous if the price of his product is low unless other prices are in proportion. The ideal must be all-around abundance and proportional prices."

Dr. Ely pointed out that the remedies for low land incomes can be found in lower marketing costs, better marketing methods, and lower freight rates. This is only partially realized.

A comprehensive program for the betterment in the future, suggested by Dr. Ely, is economic land survey, land utilization studies, business methods in the management of farms, fair and rational taxation, valuation in terms of yield and the proper attitude toward tenancy.

"In agriculture we have left behind primitive conditions," said Dr. Ely. "Trained capacity is increasingly a condition of success in our more elaborate society. As we go on from stage to stage in our economic development, a better man is required. That is the price of progress."

Gordon Says Music Should Be Part of School Curriculum

"We in Wisconsin will never have a truly musical state until music is made a part of the curriculum of every school, public and private, within its borders," stated Prof. Edgar B. Gordon in a recent talk on "Music as a Social Force" before the music section of Wisconsin State Teachers' association in Milwaukee.

"We are now interpreting education broadly as a means of fitting the individual to take his place as a part of the social structure. The curriculum has changed, we find such subjects as music, art, dramatics, and other self-expressive subjects given an important place in the school program."

"The tremendous stride which has been made in public school music during the past few years has been due to this fact that music has so well fitted into the educational trend," said Professor Gordon in explaining the great advance public school music has made.

Little Jokes Plus Work, His Recipe For Riches

BY ROY J. GIBBONS

CHICAGO—At 20 John J. Mitchell was hired to run errands for a bank.

At 26 he was elected president of the same bank.

Today, at 71, he still is president. His "baby" is the powerful Illinois Merchants' Trust Company. Mitchell has raised it from infancy to one of the most influential financial houses in the country.

"Luck," say some, reviewing his success.

"Work," say others. "A combination of both with plenty of jokes thrown in," says Mitchell.

They Keep Him Young

He has a reputation for being one of the "funniest" men in the realm of high finance.

There always is a laugh up his sleeve. Jokes have kept him fit and active.

Mitchell doesn't expect to retire until 90.

"Jokes have monkey glands skinned to death," he says.

"To keep young, laugh. Put business out of your life when you start for home."

"Take a look at the woods and growing things once in a while. Always have a grin ready."

"Naturally a man has to work. But all work and no jokes is a pretty dull way of going at things."

The jokes Mitchell likes best are the inoffensive ones. He has no use for those about mothers-in-law.

"That is because I have the finest wife in the world and her mother was every inch as fine as she is," he declares.

Children His Delight

Mitchell commutes back and forth from his suburban home daily by train.

Six o'clock finds him heading for business every morning. He's equally as early to bed.

People are his hobby. Babies are his delight.

Some think Mitchell just "kidded" Dame Fortune into placing the laurels upon his head. But he laughs that off.

"You can joke about most things. But success is no joke. It only comes so when you take it too seriously," he says.

PENNSYLVANIA CLUB MEETS THURSDAY NIGHT

VARSITY DEFEATS
ALUM PUCKSTERSMadison Walks Off With Winnetka Hockey Squad in Contest

Playing on a muddy and slippery field the game between the Madison Hockey club and Winnetka proved to be more of a thriller than the impromptu contest between the alumnae and varsity. In the former contest Madison walked off the victor with a score of 7-4, while in the second match the varsity defeated the "alums" 4-0.

With both of the contenders of the first match playing a fast snappy brand of hockey characterized by long, hard passes and clean cut shots. The first goal came after a period of indecisive struggle followed by a hard shot by Harvey, R. I. F., of Winnetka, which was blocked by Brownell, Madison goal, rebounding on the diagonal only to be picked up by Waidner, L. I. F., of Winnetka, and shot across the goal for a counter.

Madison then started her first rampage with Rice carrying the ball 50 yards to the Winnetka circle, where she was blocked by Brown in her shot for goal. A general scrimmage followed with Gall, R. W., scoring the first goal for Madison.

Three more goals were scored, two by Madison and one by Winnetka before the half ended.

Vodvil, Drama

New Bill at Orpheum
Provides Good Fun

By Leo John.

The Orpheum cook dishes out genuine variety for the first half of this week. There are a few nuts, a playlet, harmony singers, and the inevitable but enjoyable orchestra.

Walter Nilsson.

O-H 0000 0000; A nut cyclist in pseudo-feminine attire with a knack for saying the right thing.

Fiske & Fallon.

Theirs is originally entitled "Words & Music." The conventional sweet young thing and the active octogenarian who can't settle down.

Henry B. Toomer & Company.

A really good playlet by Frances Nordstrom about a tired business man who would like to read his newspaper in the peace and quiet of his own home, but who can't because his wife thinks he's an hypochondriac.

Pat & Kitty O'Connor.

Harmony singers. Pat will keep you guessing until the very end, and then it's likely that you'll be wrong.

Harry Hines.

He calls himself the 58th variety. Homely and platitudinous philosophy about not worrying, etc. He thinks he's better than he is.

Ben Meroff.

A pleasing chap and a good orchestra. Surprise at the end.

Forest Products Lab Experiments May Change Entire Paper Industry

proportion of the present stand of growing timber, show rapid growth and usually reproduce easily. Many of them have only limited uses as lumber, hence their utilization for pulp would be an important advance toward conserving the timber supply.

The print paper industry promises to be revolutionized through experiments now being carried on by the E. U. Forest Products Laboratory here, according to officials of the institution. The laboratory has worked out processes by which it is claimed print paper of good quality can be manufactured from black gum wood.

Under the new process, nine-tenths of a cord of gum wood produces one ton of paper, compared with 1.2 cords of spruce required to produce a ton by the usual processes. Similar results have been obtained with poplar and birch.

"This new product and the processes by which it is made, are still in the experimental stage," declared a statement by laboratory officials. "Nevertheless, the high yield and excellent natural color of the pulp give promise that such broadleaf woods as aspen, birch, beech, maple, black and tupelo gum and cottonwood may be used profitably in the manufacture of newsprint to supplement the rapidly diminishing supply of spruce, which is at present practically the only species considered suitable for newsprint."

"These broadleaf woods are widely distributed, constitute a large

By CHATTY

Yes, we're back on the job this Monday. 'S funny how things went last week, but somehow or other we forgot all about the column. Just as well, maybe.

Bill Tannewitz says that the Players Magazine, which we have advertised here day after day in the expectation that it would be out very soon, will be on sale on the campus next Monday for sure.

We're still looking forward to seeing it, but just how we will be able to buy one—or any one else on the campus—is more than we can see, with a trip to Chicago to see the game taking everything from bills (?) to chicken feed.

However, the magazine will probably be worth buying, from what we have heard of it—and also from what we have seen, of it in its building.

The Fischer Players at the Majestic are still going strong and seem to be supplying a greater demand every week. They're going strong.

Those who are going to the Chicago game and are interested in seeing some good shows in the Windy City have a big and first class list from which to pick. Glance over the advertisements in a Chicago paper if you don't think so.

"Madonna of the Streets,"
Featuring Milton Sills.

At the Strand.

Nazimova and Milton Sills do their best with a mediocre plot in which an American woman, charming but indiscreet, who "throws her diamonds away when they get dirty" gets a bad deal in a little matter of inheriting a few million dollars, and then departs for England determined on revenge. The way in which she doesn't get it, but something far better, and more enduring, makes an interesting story. Included is an unforgivable travesty of the crucifixion, and a fade-out of the event itself to make sure that even the most dumb will see the connection.

"The Fire Patrol,"

At the Madison.

A picture made over from a successful stage play of some time back. A sea story with a romance on land and a revenge whose achievement is rather gory. Thrills and excitement. Real good fun.

"Putting It Over"
Is Old Stuff But
Amusing, Says Ted

By Ted

"Putting It Over," which is being played this week at the Majestic, is old but amusing. As a piece of dramatic writing it is negative, and as to plot, it is quite as impossible as any plot must be when it assumes that two people, totally unrelated, can look, talk and act so exactly like one another that they can not be told apart even by the girl who loves one of them. Such things don't often happen nowadays even in the movies.

Most of the characters in the play are rather forced. They are not the people they should be. For instance, there was no particular reason why the heroine's father should be a southern "colonel" except that way back in the days when the play was written it was probably the custom to have all fathers southern colonels.

Maybe you are wondering why we said, then, that it was amusing.

Well, perhaps it was amusing to hear Mr. Hesselberg talk to himself for ten minutes in the first act—you don't often hear soliloquies and asides in the newer plays; there is no doubt about its being amusing to watch the antics of Mr. O'Shea as the valet; and it certainly was humorous, to say the least, to see Mr. Gunniss' puttee drop off when he was half way out the door (accidents do happen with professionals).

Perhaps it was amusing just to see how plays used to be written, or maybe we were merely in a mood to laugh. At any rate we did laugh, and we did enjoy it, and that's the main thing we go to a show for.

Picture at Parkway

"Wages of Virtue,"
Featuring Gloria Swanson,
Presented at the Parkway.

By J. F. W.

The payment of a debt of gratitude is the theme of Miss Swanson's latest picture, now being presented at the Parkway. She is being drowned as the picture opens, but is immediately rescued by one Luigi, a "strong man" of a troupe of Italian players. For saving her life in this way, she shows him a loyal devotion, becoming first a dancing girl, Carmelita, in his troupe, and later the mistress of a cafe near the canteen of the French Foreign Legation in Africa. Into the cosmopolitan legion comes a young American to steal away the heart but not the loyalty of Carmelita. The task is not accomplished for some time, however,—not until she sees with her own eyes the faithlessness of her Luigi. Then, when she is free, she finds love and happiness with the aforementioned young Yankee legionaire.

While there is nothing very remarkable about "Wages of Virtue," it really isn't bad entertainment, and altogether about the best movie in town.

Study Your Own and Others' Personality to Develop Self

—GARDNER

"Study personalities, both your own and others, if you wish to develop and maintain a strong personality" is the advice given by Prof. E. H. Gardner, of the economics department. Professor Gardner is an advocate of character building through observations and intercourse with others of large experience and knowledge.

"A large part of our knowledge and certainly most of our stimulation and inspiration in life come through our contact with other individuals," he continued. "Biography becomes increasingly important as men grow older because they realize that only by a keen understanding of the personalities and by the ways by which other men succeeded can they make the most out of life."

"Students seldom realize the wonderful opportunities which they have while they are here to acquire an insight into this thing which we call character or personality through their contact with the faculty as well as men from all parts of the world."

"If students listen to any great man as a human being, instead of an incomprehensible wizard or a lucky freak of nature, they would get much more out of what he says as well as picking up a few hints as to how they themselves can rise above the common throng."

Professor Gardner believes that the time to begin to learn about personalities is while one is in college. The college student should make friends with big men, learn their ways, "absorb" some of that which makes them great. He says that one of the important functions of outside activities in the university is bringing together successful students and those who want to be successful in an intimate way which is beneficial to both.

"One should not entirely neglect to examine his own personality, and he should always be ready to pick flaws in his actions and defects in his character. Too much self criticism makes a person self conscious often to such an extent that he loses all individual personality. Many persons' lives are lost in association with mediocre personalities."

Dawes Operation Was Successful, Says His Doctor

CHICAGO — An operation for hernia was performed successfully yesterday upon Charles G. Dawes, vice president-elect. Mr. Dawes was stricken while taking calisthenics before breakfast yesterday.

Detroit Man Is Killed In Battle With Bandit

Others held down the man who was grappling with Kazres but the other gunmen escaped.

Lowell Sherman, George Baxter Have Quarrel at Actors' Ball

NEW YORK—Lowell Sherman, one of New York's best known matinee idols, and George Baxter, also an actor, used their fists at the Actor's Equity Association ball which ended at the Hotel Astor yesterday. The quarrel between Sherman and Baxter was caused by Sherman's refusal to introduce Baxter to Miss Lillian Foster, appearing in a current Broadway show according to Baxter. The fight started in Sherman's box, which he occupied with his mother and Nora Bayes, Ethel Barrymore occupied an adjoining box. Both Sherman and Baxter bore marks of the conflict. There was no complaint to the police.

Several hundred actors, actresses and other guests leaving the ball here early today were thrown into a panic by fist fights and a stabbing affray.

Basil Gallagher of Metuchen, N. J., a newspaperman, was slashed on the face with a razor. Police arrested Charles Cambridge.

"Gentleman Jack" O'Brien pugilist, reported that $400 was picked from his pocket. John Saporensky, was arrested.

TRAM COMPANY MAY BUY BUSES

Make Efforts to Control All Passenger Service in City in Future

Efforts to control all passenger service in the city in future may be made by the Madison Railway Co. in the near future, according to John S. Allen, consulting engineer, employed by the company as a consulting engineer. The plan, it is understood, will mean the taking over of such bus lines as are now operating in the city in competition to the railway company and may be extended to the taxicab companies.

With the introduction of city busses the status of the railway companies in all cities has been materially changed within the past few years, according to Mr. Allen. The traction company in Milwaukee, for example, has started a bus service and now operates buses in conjunction with its street cars in such manner that the overflow passenger service is accommodated without the addition of extra street cars. A similar scheme may be adopted here, it was intimated by Mr. Allen.

A petition from the company and the city may be submitted to the railroad commission following a conference of the company officers and city council committee, asking the commission to prepare a program of contemplated improvements for 1925. Mr. Allen announced Monday. It is understood that this plan will be satisfactory to the city and company.

The company will ask for an increase in its passenger rates.

One of the most important improvements to the traffic system of the company which would aid greatly in bettering the schedule of the service is the proposed double tracking of Atwood ave., from Division st. to the car barns on the East Side, Mr. Allen declared. This improvement would give the company a double track system from the barns on the eastern extremity of the city to Regent st. on the west, he said. At present the eight cars used on this run are forced to lose considerable time through delays at switches along the line, Mr. Allen said.

Extension of the Monroe st. line is not contemplated for next year but will probably be started as the first improvement item in 1926, Mr. Allen said.

also to make the freshman realize that the junior advisory system does not end after the fall district teas are over but that it extends through the entire year," Miss Ellis said yesterday.

The junior advisory system is especially interested in the scholastic standards of the freshmen and urges that every junior make a special effort to call this week.

Faint Rumbblings of Storm Foretell Academic Distress

Already the faint rumbblings of the approaching storm may be heard.

These signs usually come in the form of announcements by instructors of the work which the midsemester examination will cover. The storm will come, pass over, and leave destruction in its wake. Red pencil marks will make havoc with blue books, and an over supply of red pencil marks means a visit to the dean.

The "lib" is becoming more and more popular. Eds and co-eds do not dally over bridge games with the reckless abandon of the first month of school, but hurry to the library laden down with ponderous and serious looking volumes. No more care-free talks in the halls, but business-like conversations which charge the atmosphere with a tension that signals an approaching event of potent significance.

Little noses go unpowdered the whole evening. Puckered brows and preoccupied looks denote the seriousness of mis-semester.

Whispers of the "sore-eye special" bring looks of terror on the faces of the freshmen.

Like the sword of Damascus, the examinations, which will not be over until November 26, hang over the heads of the students.

But after all, mid-semester examinations aren't so bad,—they are only the forerunners of that awful "battle of books," the finals!
