BAND WILL GIVE FREE CONCERT IN GYMNASIUM TODAY

Will Play Classical Numbers in First of Series of Spring Appearances

Presenting selections from the highest type of musical literature, the university concert band will appear at its annual spring concert in the gymnasium at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Today's program is open to the public and will be the first of several concerts this spring, provided that student response is satisfactory.

Band music has undergone considerable change in the last several years according to Dr. Charles H. Mills, director of the School of Music.

Band of Highest Type

"There is no comparison," Professor Mills said when contrasting the present concert organization with the band of former times. From a track-walking, whoop-it-up affair, the band has gradually become a musical organization of the highest type. Under Major Morphy's direction, it was among the first to adopt an entirely different kind of program, which is similar to that presented by the symphony orchestra, and which is now being presented by the better concert bands of the country."

Major E. W. Morphy will conduct the band this afternoon. Prof. Leonard A. Coon, of the School of Music, will be at the piano.

Play Classical Numbers

An arrangement of "Lohengrin," from the opera by Wagner, which includes all the important motifs of the opera, is the special number of the program. "Andante Cantabile," by the Russian composer, Tschaiakowsky, is another of the more heavy selections. Two compositions by Delibes, "Pas des Fleurs," intermezzo from the ballet, "Naila," and "March and Procession of Bacchus," from "Sylvia," are brighter and more delicate numbers.

The complete program in addition includes "Father of Victory," Ganne, "Canzonetta," Herbert, "Pillims' Chorus," from "Tannhauser," Wagner, and serenade from ballet, "Les Millions d'Arlequin," Drigo.

CHEMIST WILL GIVE ILLUSTRATED LECTURE

D. J. Price, engineer in charge of development work and rural chemist of the United States department of agriculture will lecture on "Dust Explosion Hazards" illustrated by moving pictures at 7:30 Tuesday evening in the engineering building auditorium.

SENIOR "STAG" HAS WISCONSIN SPIRIT

Fourth Year Men Will Give Basketball Squad Dinner

"The spirit behind the senior championship stag party for the basketball team is mighty fine," said Capt. Douglas N. Gibson '24, of the 1924 basketball team, which is in a triple tie for the championship of the Western Conference.

"Every man on the team will appreciate this affair. They played an uphill game all season and upheld the tradition that the Conference basketball championship should remain at Wisconsin, and this will top off the season as it has never been finished before," Gibson commented.

Their championship stag for senior men will be held at 6 o'clock Tuesday evening at the Luther Memorial cathedral. Tickets are on sale at the Union building, and at the University, Badger and Cardinal pharmacies for 85 cents. After the dinner there will be a program made up from men in the senior class.

Oscar Christianson '24, Harvey Gesell '24, Robert Hill '24 and Edward Otis '24 of the senior quartet will be on the program.

Varsity Quartet Will Give Home Concert March 27

The home concert of the Varsity quartet will take place on Thursday, March 27, at the First Baptist church, it was announced yesterday.

The quartet consists of Noel Stearns, grad. tenor, Christopher Hendra, grad., second tenor, Edward Otis '24, baritone, and Whitford Huff, grad., bass. Paul Sanders is the accompanist. The quartet was with the Glee club last year, when the organization won first place in the mid-west competition.

Tickets for the coming concert will be fifty cents.

REPORT $200 FOR FRIENDSHIP FUND

Parkway to Give 20 Per Cent of Proceeds From Ticket Sale

Reports from the first canvass of fraternities show that more than $200 in cash and pledges has been collected for the student friendship fund, Eugene Tuhtar '25, executive secretary stated. No official figures from the women's canvass are available yet, but it is probable that the amount is much higher, because committees under Helen Kingsford '24 have been at work for more than a week.

The ticket sale for the Parkway's performances tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday will begin on the hill tomorrow morning. Tickets will be available at tables in Bascom hall, Biology building, Engineering building, Union building, Morgan Bros., and the University pharmacy. Provision for making direct donations to the fund will be made at these places also. Twenty percent of the proceeds of this sale go to the fund.

Miss Margaret Quale, who is representing the national organization of the fund, will speak at the Y. W. C. A. vespers this afternoon, and at the Luther Memorial and the St. Francis club house tonight.

Requests for special collections at university churches tonight will be made by the committee. No direct attempt is being made to reach townspeople and Madison churches as the drive is strictly a student affair.

Fraternities, sororities and rooming houses will be visited every day this week by the teams and Miss Quale in a direct appeal for aid. All groups and organizations not reached directly have been asked to mail checks or bring contributions to the office of the Union board in the Union building.

MINIATURE SABRE FAVOR SELECTED FOR MILITARY HOP

Is First of Kind to Be Used at Annual Event on April 4

A miniature sabre, eight inches long, to be used as a paper knife, has been selected as the favor for the twelfth annual Military ball to be held in the state capitol on Friday night April 4, Louis B. Rutte '24, advisory chairman of the ball, announced last night.

Orders have been placed with Brochen, Chicago, for 1,400 sabres which will be given with every program issued. Work on producing the favors has already been started, according to Rutte.

Programs Attached

Paper programs will be attached to the handles of the sabres by black and yellow cards. Dances will be listed on the programs according to 10 minute periods which will be designated by two huge clocks placed over the two Thompson orchestras in the rotunda. "This is the first time that a favor of this kind has been used at a military ball here," Rutte stated. "In former years the conventional favors of leather purses, cigarette cases, etc., were always used."

Orders Extra Amount

The favors will be given to both men and women who attend the ball and will be attached to each program.

On the blade of the sabre the words, "twelfth annual Military ball 1924" will be etched. An extra order of more than 200 programs has been placed to make sure that all persons attending the ball over the number expected will be accommodated.

If there are not sufficient favors to accommodate all dancers, orders will be sent for more and these favors will be mailed to those who do not receive any.

Noted Professor Will Lecture on German Conditions

"Present Day Conditions" is the subject of the lecture of Dr. Paul Rohrbach, Berlin, Germany, which he will give at 4:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in 165 Bascom hall.

The doctor was born in Livonia in 1869. He holds degrees in theology and philosophy and is a prominent economist and publicist, having issued approximately 30 publications between 1894 and 1924. He has traveled in Asia and Africa, and at present he is interested in the Student Friendship drive which is being conducted in this country.

STUDENT TAKEN TO GENERAL HOSPITAL

Randolph Connors, L2, Chippewa Falls, suffering from an attack of acute appendicitis, was taken from the university infirmary by the police ambulance to the General hospital at 11 o'clock last night and Dr. E. Sullivan was called to attend the case. Up to a late hour no results as to the condition of Connors could be stated by hospital authorities.

Wisconsin Negative Team Wins From Illinois in Debate

While Michigan was ministering a defeat to the Wisconsin affirmative debating team Friday night in Music hall, the negative team was winning from the Illinois affirmative team at Urbana in a debate on the same question.

The Wisconsin team is composed of Glen Bell '25, Herbert Cheever '25 and Carleton Meyer '24.

No word has been received of the result of the third debate Friday between Michigan and Illinois at Ann Arbor. The winning of the triangle depends upon the result of that debate. Wisconsin was eliminated by the loss here Friday night.

POSTPONE ELECTION ON REFERENDUM

Voting on Badger Board Changed to Friday, April 3

The date for the vote on the referendum by the student senate concerning the method of election of the Badger editor and business manager has been postponed until Friday, April 3, according to Wilbur Wittenberg '24, chairman of the committee on elections. The date is one week later than was originally announced.

"Such an important matter should not be gone into too hastily and we feel that everyone should have an opportunity to investigate the proposition thoroughly," Wittenberg said. "One week is hardly time enough to have copies of the referendum made for balloting."

The referendum, presented to the senate, provides for the election to the Badger board of four sophomors who will sit on the board merely as associate members for one year. They will have no voice in the policy of the year book being edited by the junior class of that year but will appoint the staff members for the Badger for their own class.

The authors of the referendum believe that such a system will give the board an opportunity to watch the work of various staff members during one year and will put them in a much better position to choose the officers in the spring than the entire class would have in an open political election. In an appointment the votes of two faculty members of the board chosen by the president, must agree with the choice of the other board members.

The adoption of such a system would put the appointment of the staff on the same basis as that on which The Cardinal is operating. The same merit promotion plan is in use at Annapolis, Missouri, Northwestern, Chicago and Illinois in the selection of year book staffs.

THREE RECORDS ARE BROKEN AT RELAY CARNIVAL

Alpha Phi Wins Inter-Sorority Race; Culver Takes Academy Run

Three records were broken and one record was tied in the eighteenth annual relay carnival held at the gymnasium annex last night when the Alpha Phi team won the inter sorority relay race by covering the distance in 8 minutes 19 3-5 seconds. Madison Central high school defeated Madison East Side and Monticello in the high school relay race, and Culver lowered the record in the academy half-mile relay run by finishing the event in 7 minutes 6 3-5 seconds, while Captain William Hammann cleared the bar in the pole vault at 12 feet 3 inches, tying the record made by Donald Jones early in January.

In the inter sorority relay run, the Alpha Phi team, led by Capt. Hilberts, with Lewis, Krohn and G. Smith as the other members, easily defeated the teams representing 19 other sororities and lowered the record established by the Alpha Chi Omega team in 1922.

Kappa Alpha Theta, under the leadership of Capt. Bergstresser finished second in the inter sorority race, Delta Zeta took third and Alpha Delta Pi finished fourth.

Interfraternity Relay a Tie
Schneider, running for Kappa Delta and Read, representing Phi Mu, ran good races and both overcame large leads and brought their teams in to consideration for final trophy awards.

Alpha Gamma Rho won the interfraternity relay race by tying with Beta Theta Pi for first place, while Delta Upsilon took second, and Kappa Sigma, Phi Kappa Psi, and Chi were tied for fourth position. The time was 1 minute and 40 4-5 seconds. The members of the team which were given the winning trophy were the Alpha Gamma Rho runners, composed of Wackman, Perry, Collenbach, Holmes, Smith and Hill.

By flipping a coin to decide the winner in the interfraternity relay race, Alpha Gamma Rho won the toss and the trophy, while in the drawings for fourth and fifth places, Kappa Sigma and Phi Kappa Psi received the rewards.

RIPLEY CO-AUTHOR WITH STEINMETZ

Lecture on Electricity Has Wide Experience in In- dustrial Field

C. M. Ripley, who is to deliver a series of lectures in 165 Bascom hall starting Tuesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock besides holding the position of publicity manager of the General Electric company of Schenectady, is a lecturer and author. He is the author of "Life in a Large Manufacturing Plant," "Romance of a Great Factory" and is co-author with the late Dr. Steinmetz, the electric wizard.

In lecturing before Rotary clubs, Labor unions, Socialist bodies and manufacturing company employees, Ripley has gained a wide fund of experience in the industrial field. His lectures which are to be given March 25, 26 and 27, are to be presented from a popular point of view.

"What Electricity Has Done for Civilization" is the subject of Ripley's first lecture. "A Birdseye View of a Big Corporation" and "What Becomes of the Income of a Corporation" will follow on Wednesday and Thursday of this week. It is Ripley's belief that electricity has done more for civilization than any other recent discovery.

"When one reflects of the marvelous progress since Edison invented the lamp 43 years ago, who can doubt but what the advances in the next generation will far eclipse those in the past," says Ripley in speaking of America's progress electrically. He will talk of how materials are gathered from all corners of the globe and are transformed into electrical machinery and then into money.

Slides will be shown at the lectures to be given by Ripley this week and they promise to be interesting as well as educational, not alone to engineers, but to students of economics and the general public.

Second Issue of Proletarian to Be Extremely Radical

Even as the roll of drums announced the approach of kings in olden times so will the warning of the appearance of the Proletarian be made by four little drummer boys sitting on the necks and tails of two donkeys as they boom up and down the streets of Varsity village.

"We are going to let loose in this issue," said Stratford Corbett. "It's to hell with good nature. Last time we were afraid of making it a one-man issue so we had various writers, and they were a bit shy about making the stories too strong."

The Proletarian is to change its color and is to be printed on strawberry colored paper in blue ink ala the "police gazette." There will be twelve pages instead of eight with two pages of personal.

"Sororities and fraternities have been a great help in giving out personals," said the editor. "Persons talked about in the Proletarian always have a chance to make a 'rebuttal'," he continued. "The next issue may be called the 'monkey gland, but we are not sure. Anyway probably enough people will be offended."

CAMP COUNSELLORS COURSE IS VERSATILE

Red Cross life saving, speed swimming, carnival work for girl's camps, and canoeing are some of the things taken up in the camp counsellors course under the supervision of the Physical Education department.

The course consists of lectures, tank work, practice teaching and conferences to talk over the problems met in teaching.

A special study is made of the girl scout camp work and camp work in general.

Early in the fall, each girl is required to take a test for form. At the same time the stroke in which she is most proficient is noted and she is later required to teach this stroke to the beginning classes in swimming.

Octy Discusses Pet Peeve Issue, Dinner and Keys

That the next number of the Octopus will be the "Pet Peeve" issue was decided at the regular meeting of the staff Friday afternoon. It will appear on April 16, the day on which school begins after spring vacation.

A staff dinner was discussed, and the arrival in the near future of the Octopus keys was promised. At a board of directors meeting Sunday night, the final award of keys will be made and the staff-dinner settled as to time and date.

"It is not too late for new workers to start in on the Octopus," Richard F. Bellack '24, editor, said. "Although it may not mean election to the staff this spring it will get the new staff acquainted with new people's work and that means election when the next vacancy arises."

HESS WILL TALK ABOUT THE RUHR

Former Wisconsin Professor Speaks Tuesday Evening on Military Occupation

"Allied Occupation of Germany and Military Activity in the Rhineland and Ruhr," will be the subject of a talk to be given at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening in Music hall by Col. Ralph H. Hess who has just returned after spending three years in Paris and elsewhere on work connected with the reparations commission.

The meeting will be under the auspices of Madison chapter of the Reserve Officers' association of the United States and will be open to the public.

Until the entry of the United States into the World war, Colonel Hess was professor of economics at the university here. Commissioned in the Quartermaster corps, he saw two years' service in France.

Later Colonel Hess was sent into Germany, where he spent a year with the American army of occupation. He is now a member of the Officers' Reserve corps assigned to active duty with the general staff at Washington.

Preceding the talk, members of the Reserve Officers' association will entertain Colonel Hess at dinner at the University club.

Some 71 students in 37 Badger high schools competed in the Firestone good roads prize essay contest conducted in this state by the University Extension division this year.

More than 780 women were graduated in the class of 1923.

HALL DEPLORES LAW VIOLATIONS

Professor Says Ancient Nations Fell When Rules Were Disregarded By People

That national existence now depends just as much on law observation as personal life among the savages did on observing safety regulations is the opinion of Arnold B. Hall, professor of political science as he expressed it to his class in elementary law Wednesday.

"Rome rose to her greatness partly because she had the finest system of laws among the ancient nations, and fell when her law makers stopped basing laws on justice," Professor Hall said. "When citizens lost all respect for laws and morals, all ancient nations were conquered and no modern nation can survive, not even our America, after respect for law has been lost."

"Law evasion is now fashionable in certain quarters of America," Professor Hall said. "It is a cheap, low, objectionable fashion participated in by people of every rank and class. Lawmakers break the laws they have formed even as they gather to make new ones, and the people everywhere ridicule law and law enforcement. That attitude is the darkest blot on our social life."

Professor Hall explained how laws originated among savages through force of necessity and habit. Those unwritten laws were followed voluntarily because the existence of life among them and the forces of nature made their observation imperative, even when they violated natural instincts.

LIT SUFFERS DECREASE IN MARCH CIRCULATION

Strawberries Most Important Small Fruit in State

The strawberry is the most important small fruit grown in Wisconsin, both commercially and for home use, according to a bulletin on strawberry culture just published by the College of Agriculture.

Reasons for its great popularity are ease of culture, earliness, short period between planting and fruiting, comparative freedom from pests, adaptability to varying conditions, and the great popularity of the fruit itself, the bulletin states.

It is grown for home use in all parts of the state. Commercially it is largely confined to areas reasonably near large markets. Besides giving many important points on the culture, the bulletin outlines rules for picking and handling strawberries for market.

3,000 FARM ACCOUNT BOOKS DISTRIBUTED

That Badger farmers are keeping track of their business is evidenced in the fact that more than 3,000 new farm account books have been distributed since last October by John Doald of the department of agricultural economics. This work is being carried out in co-operation with schools, banks, extension workers, and various other agencies throughout the state.

During Vacation—What? Conant made $15.00 a day

Neil R. Conant was a student at Bates College. He decided that he would take up some selling proposition during his summer vacation. One of the Fuller Brush Company's college representatives, Mr. Ray Smith, happened to call at Bates College, and Mr. Conant got in touch with him. Mr. Smith told him of the opportunities for a college man to sell Fuller Brushes during summer vacation; that he would be given the same thorough training in salesmanship that all Fuller Men receive; that he would have a chance to earn all the while he was learning; and, that the future was limitless, determined only by the man himself.

Mr. Conant saw that this was a real opportunity and accepted the proposition. He sums up his experience with the Fuller Organization as follows:—"The Fuller Brush Company stands for the new spirit which will soon pervade most other organizations in the future. Mr. Fuller has had the foresight to lead in this spirit. It is upon such a foundation that every man is anxious to help his brother salesman and to see him succeed. A man succeeds by his own efforts, rather than by unearned effort. Every man who joins the Fuller Organization is absolutely assured of a square deal, and a chance to become a success in life."

"I had various offers from as many organizations. None of them offered me more than $30.00 a week. But, during my two months of vacation I earned, selling Fuller Brushes, an average of $15.00 a day." Conant's case is typical, as the average earnings of college men, last summer, were $1.35 an hour.

If you are looking for remunerative occupation during this coming July and August, you can get a complete outline of what the Fuller Brush Company offers to college men from

Financial Success

Season tickets for the games of the state championship high school basketball tournament to be held at the university gymnasium March 26-29 will be on sale at the general office of the gymnasium beginning Monday morning. The price of the season tickets has been reduced to $1.50.

The season tickets include all of the games and the final championship tilts which will be played Saturday night. Twenty-seven games comprise the nine periods of the championship tournament, beginning at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon and concluding Saturday night.

Tourney Needs Support

Unless at least 1000 season tickets are sold, the success of the tournament is doubtful. Previous state high school tournaments held at Madison have not resulted favorably along financial lines, and if university students and Madison citizens do not take a greater interest in the affair, it is probable that the tournament will be taken out of Madison in future years and played at Marquette or some other state college.

"It is imperative that a large crowd is in attendance at every game," Norman Clark, general chairman, declared. "It is practically impossible to retain the high school tournament in Madison if proper support is not given to it. The price of the season tickets has been reduced to $1.50 and I hope that there will be a complete sell-out."

To Canvass Fraternities

All three of Madison high schools are cooperating with Chairman Clark, in order to interest students of Madison Central, East Side and Wisconsin high schools in the event.

Assemblies will be held in Madison high schools on Monday afternoon, and varsity basketball stars will address the groups, urging them to attend the games and to act as host to the visiting high school athletes.

Fraternities will be canvassed by committeemen, so that campus societies will stimulate enthusiasm in the championship tournament.

The representatives of Madison high schools who are working in conjunction with the committees of the basketball meet in order to make it a success are Volney G. Barnes, superintendent of Madison Central high; Foster S. Randle, principal of East Side high school; H. L. Miller, principal of Wisconsin high school, and Ivo C. Davis, director of athletics at Wisconsin high school.

Hill Case May Lead to Test of Inheritance Tax Law

Supreme court test of the constitutionality of the entire inheritance tax law passed by the 1914 legislature was in prospect Saturday, following a ruling by Judge A. G. Zimmerman in Dane county court Friday holding the law invalid. The decision was rendered in the contest of the inheritance taxes against the estate of the late Mary T. Hill, widow of James J. Hill, builder of the Great Northern railroad. Over $11,000 in taxes are involved in the suit.

The record shows that $11,337 in inheritance taxes were assessed against the estate on 3,103 shares of stock in the Northern Pacific, valued at $242,034.

The question has been raised as to whether the ruling of the supreme court declaring a part of the inheritance tax law unconstitutional, makes the remainder of the law inoperative. A question of whether the state has a right to tax bonds of any corporation where both bonds and owner are outside of the state also is involved.

Hitting the High
Spots with Ken

Guy Lowman, member of the Wisconsin coaching staff in various capacities, and who has been officiating in some of the Big Ten basketball games this season has picked an all-conference team. With one exception his team is identical with that of the Cardinals. He nominated Eklund of Minnesota for one of the forward positions while the Cardinal gave Spradling the honor.

Remember way back in 1912 when Wisconsin won the baseball championship of the conference. Among the many victories of that season was one over the College of Hawaii.

Our snow drift was weak and groggy when the sun went down yesterday afternoon. Spring will be here when the knockout comes.

We hope the Senior Championship Stag party becomes an annual affair. Too bad that only seniors can go.

Saw some fellows batting tennis balls around on the handball courts in the gym yesterday. Also saw three studes on the street in white duck trousers.

Three hundred team and individual trophies valued at 3,000 dollars will be awarded at the Ohio Relays scheduled for April 19 in the Ohio stadium.

Dear Ken: The new verse to Varsity is all right but it ought to be sung first making the song end with the old verse.

Kendall Elsom, one of the mainstays of this year's championship basketball team, may enter the University of Pennsylvania next fall, which would keep him off the next year's squad.

Elsom has told friends that he intends to enter Penn to go on with his study of medicine. His loss to next year's team would be a serious one and Badger court followers are hoping that he may be persuaded to remain for another year.

THE DEATH OF THE TOURNAMENT

The Wisconsin state athletic board of control has announced unofficially through its chairman, V. G. Barnes, principal of Madison Central high school, that the board is thinking seriously of transferring the state high school basketball tournament from the sponsorship of the athletic department here into the hands of some other state college.

With this announcement comes the statement that since the annual cage event was placed with the university in 1920 the board has been dissatisfied with the results of the tournament and has been displeased with the way in which university officials have handled the affair. The criticism of the board is based upon the fact that not since the first championship series played on the armory floor has the support furnished by student, high school and university, and cage fans of Madison been sufficient to cover the expenses of bringing the district teams down here.

It is possible that the board is wrong, however, in holding high officials of the athletic department responsible for the financial success of this annual high school affair, for they have done all in their power each year to attract local attention to the tournament with apparently no avail. Nevertheless, the fact stands that Madison has not supported the tournament as well as some other city in the state could, in the judgment of the members of the board of control.

Dr. Walter E. Meanwell has said that in his opinion the event is the greatest feeder of good men into the university from the small towns of the state that there is. And we know that many of Wisconsin's greatest men have been small-town bred. Now this source of valuable material is about to be taken away from us and given, probably, to Marquette at Milwaukee, for the board is confident that Milwaukee would welcome the chance to see some high school basketball, and would give adequate financial support.

Only one thing can prevent such a catastrophe, and that is the success of the ninth annual championship series which will be played off in the armory beginning Wednesday. Officials in charge say that if 1000 or more tickets can be sold the success of the tourney is secured. Twenty fraternities have offered to entertain the state men while they are here. This hospitality can easily be shared by all, and the guests can be given such a hearty welcome that there will be no further rumor of removing the tournament from the state university where it logically belongs.

MELODIOUS THANKS

This afternoon the band gives a free concert of good music. In these days of high prices when little can be had for no charge it is strange to be offered an opportunity to hear music. In these days of jazz, when the large amount of local talent is spent on dance music it is stranger to be offered an opportunity to hear real music. The combination is an unusual and splendid one.

Good music in its truest sense does not appeal to the majority of students. It is apt to be considered too heavy and stupid for pleasure. Yet what is good music if it is not a composition made up of many elements, of many tunes instead of one. It is not altogether foreign to jazz. A popular piece contains one theme; a classical piece contains many. A popular piece, indeed, may be "stolen" from a classical composition as is very often the case. So perhaps those who say they dislike classical music but like jazz are contradicting themselves to a certain extent.

The band is unique in giving its concert free this afternoon.

Mid-semester examinations are coming down upon the unsuspecting student rapidly now and the front-line firing will be steady and strenuous.

Daugherty has apparently successfully refuted the Stinson and Means charges and shown the people that perhaps the government is not so corrupt as it was thought for a time to be.

Too often it's hard to tell which is the pusher and which the pushed.

AROUND THE WORLD

A Digest of the Week News

By WILLETT KEMPTON

The spectacle of France vesting in one man dictatorial powers over her people was probably the most startling event of the week. The French Chamber des Deputies voted to give M. Poincare absolute control of the reins of government last Monday. With Mussolini in charge of Italy, General de Rivera in command of Spain, a new man trying to control the German Republic every week, and M. Poincare dictating the policy of France we have the peaceful little country of Switzerland the only democracy in working order on the continent of Europe.

President Coolidge yesterday presented us with a new plan to take care of ex-soldiers. He calls it an "Insurance Bonus" and it purposes to give financial aid to veterans who were actually disabled in the late contest with Germany. Approximately $100,000 will be set aside each year for twenty years, to be given either through unemployment or accident during that time. His plan prevents the distribution of a large sum of money to men the majority of whom do not now need financial aid and who would probably squander the bonus in an indiscreet manner.

Of interest to Wisconsin people are the returns from the North Dakota primary election. In spite of the fact that the name of Robert M. La Follette was not on the ballot he received more votes than Hiram Johnson, the California senator, who is making such a bid for the Republican nomination in some parts of the country. President Coolidge, however, polled more votes than both his rivals, and if the South Dakota primaries which come next Tuesday favor the President he is practically certain of the G. O. P. nomination.

J. P. Morgan and company, international Wall street bankers, have indicated that they will loan France $100,000,000 in gold. The effects of this statement drove the franc from nearly thirty to approximately twenty to the dollar during the week.

The oil scandal has been shoved off the front page of metropolitan dailies by "Tex" Rickard, New York fight promoter, who is the chief witness in the "film scandal." It seems that he and others exhibited films of the Carpentier-Dempsey fight in 1922 in violation of a ruling of the inter-state commerce commission, but, he says, with the permission of high officials of the Harding regime.

In the search for political scandal the senate probers are even taking the testimony of bandits. Al Jennings, once famous as a train robber, said Friday that he can tell all about a cash payment of $1,000,000 which "bought" the nomination of the late President Harding. It ought to be good.

We had a little sensation within our own city limits this week when an Italian, Tony Navarra, was killed in cold blood while standing behind the counter of his grocery store. Elections being near the mayor decided to "clean up" the city.

Madison citizens in an effort to protect the beauty of their city passed a resolution Thursday requesting the county highway commission to remove all billboard advertising along the county highways. The resolution was followed by official action and the billboards will be removed or destroyed by May 1. It is hoped that other communities whose natural beauty is marred only by hideous billboards will follow this lead.

More than 400 normal school students from the men all over the state were here for the contest.

LOCAL REALTORS LOOK OVER MODEL COTTAGE

The Madison Board of Realtors made an inspection tour of the "House That Rent Built" after their regular meeting Friday noon. The house is of old English style, built by Stanley C. Hanks on the same design as the one being built in New York as a feature attraction of the "Own Your Own Home" week. It is situated at Hollister ave. and Vista road.

The public is invited to visit this house Saturday and Sunday. The cottage is completely furnished and decorated to suit the most critical taste.

At the realtors meeting, George Spohn, of the Dane county assessors office discussed the bill which is now before the senate finance committee, in regard to eliminating taxes on capital assets. Mr. Spohn said he was not in favor of the bill unless capital stock was eliminated from consideration as a capital asset. The realtors had been asked by the National Realtors association to wire the Wisconsin senators asking support of the measure but they were unable to agree as to the advisability of supporting it. No action was taken.

Dr. M. K. Green

Reestablishment of the nurses training school at the Wisconsin State Hospital for the insane at Mendota, an action which will insure a higher type of attendants for the institution, will be made this coming summer, it was learned Saturday.

Dr. M. K. Green, newly appointed superintendent of the hospital, will conduct an advertising campaign within the next few weeks through which he hopes to interest in the course, girls graduating from high school.

Through Dr. Green's plan, girls and women of the highest caliber will be given a two year course at the hospital under the same system as used in the larger hospitals of the country. After completing the course at Mendota they can go to larger hospitals where they can become registered nurses.

"It is hard to get the best type of help at the hospital under the present plan, and the reestablishment of the training school will bring us the quality of employees that we want," Dr. Green said.

The school was formerly operated at the state hospital, but was discontinued several years ago.

gage 6 per cent bonds, dated March 15, 1924, and due March 15, 1929.

The bonds are secured by first mortgage upon various pieces of real estate in Madison and Nakoma having a sales value of $172,700. The Madison Realty company has been unusually successful in developing plats and has developed such sections as Westlawn, Westlawn Heights, Garden Ridge, Hillington Green, and Nakoma.

Because of the company's policy of permanent development values in their subdivisions have been unusually stable. The officers and directors of the company are Judge E. Ray Stevens, Dean H. L. Russell, Alfred T. Rogers, Prof. R. A. Moore, Dr. C. A. Harper, Prof. Leonard Smith, Clarence Karn, and Paul E. Stark.

LATE JACKSON CLINIC DOCTORS OPEN OFFICE

Dr. R. T. Cooksey and Dr. I. R. Sisk have announced the opening of their new offices in this city at 616 First Central building. Both Drs. Cooksey and Sisk have recently resigned from the Jackson clinic.

Dr. Cooksey, who is a graduate of Vanderbilt university, has lived in Madison since 1915 except for two years of army service in this country and abroad with the 32nd division.

Dr. Sisk is also a graduate of Vanderbilt university. After his army service, most of which was spent in France with the 109th machine gun bataillon, he was on the staff of the Mayo clinic at Rochester, Min., where he specialized in diseases of the kidney and bladder.

GERMAN LABORERS HAVE INFLUENCE

—DR. SOLOMON

Socialist Party Working For Economic Changes, Says Berlin Professor

"The Labor people have the greatest influence of any people in Germany today," Dr. Alice Salomon, Doctor of Philosophy in the University of Berlin said yesterday in a lecture in 165 Bascom hall on the industrial conditions in Germany.

"The Socialist party is supreme in all of the large cities. But, contrary to general opinion the Socialists are not working for political change, but for economic change. Their ideal is the nationalization of industries."

Dr. Salomon also said that the German people of today are too highly educated not to profit by the Russian Revolution and they realize that Bolshevism would be fatal to their actions and would inevitably result in civil war.

Dr. Salomon gave two movements which she considered to be the most beneficial to the working people. The first the eight hour day, has, according to her opinion, revolutionized the position of the working people. This ruling applies to all classes of work and has proved of mutual benefit to employer and employee.

The second movement is the Work Council's Act which provides for the health and welfare of the workers and gives them a share in the production. All matters pertaining to strikes, individual decisions and court arbitrations are referred of this board.

All the people of Germany are working for democracy but their greatest efforts are being directed toward regulating the health of the people and the state. Industry and laws are but a means, life and health are the end. We have learned during the past five years that this ideal of democracy will not work out unless the door of education is opened to all the children. Germany centers all on hopes on education which is the only way to bridge the gap between the classes," Dr. Salomon said.

WANTS BILLS SENT

Persons having bills against the Winter Sports committee of the Association of Commerce are asked to get them in immediately as the committee wishes to close up the account.

Bank clearings in Madison during the past week were $826,582.61 greater than for the same week in 1923, according to the Association of Commerce bulletin. Clearings last year for the week Mar. 12-17 were $2,889,418.74. During the past week they were $3,716,001.35.

That Something New

During the past week Mr. O'Connell has been in the East purchasing new materials for the Dress Goods Department. Some of these materials are beginning to arrive.

There will be new flannels, novelty goods for skirts and blouses, soft silks for afternoon frocks, and all the lovely wash goods, especially vivid linens and dainty voiles. Be sure to come in next week to see and approve of this fine selection.

You may be ever so smart in a suit or frock but you won't feel quite right on the street without the finishing touch of a fur choker. They are long things of wolf, fox, squirrel, japa mink and fluffy fat ones in subdued shades of taupe, gray and canary. Be sure and select yours early so you will enjoy it longer. Prices begin at $12.

I have seen many and various styles of bracelets, but I must admit that the new ivory ones are the prettiest. They are set with such clear and brilliant stones. The creamy background of the ivory makes them so lovely for spring and summer dresses.

There are narrow ones with one row of brilliants at $100. Then there are two, three, or four rows in all colors and many combinations of colors, not omitting the black and white ones.

$1.50 to $5.00.

Breath of the Avenue says that one of the most important facts about spring dresses is the revival of lace for trimming. Here I found Chantilly lace which is so lovely on soft black satin or crepe. It comes in either white or ecru and 4 to 12 inches wide. 75c to $1.50.

For collar and cuffs, vests and frills, the tucked nets in cocoa or white are very pretty. $2.75 to $4.50.

New Modes in Dresses

Small points but significant

News of New York Openings of Paris Fashions
(From The Breath of the Avenue—Our Fashion Survey)

Satin is featured before all other materials for afternoon dresses. Satin crepe is also very important and this material, used with its reverse side for trimming, is also shown. The importance of satin materials is an interesting point to notice. To judge from the recent Paris showings, the popularity of satin will last.

Flat Crepe is third in importance and Moire is occasionally shown.

Black is by far the most important color for afternoon wear. Navy blue is shown in the flat crepe dress. Black and white continues to be an important combination. Jabot frills are emphasized, and the pleated paron which may also be worn as a cape is shown a number of times. Lace, especially ecru lace, is the first trimming for afternoon dresses. Other notes are pin tucks, the use of the reverse side of materials, buttons of crystal or china, and ribbon.

Four Points for SPRING COATS

In Spring Coats, there are four most important points—

Most of the coats are fairly short—three quarter length—so that the coat of winter-wearing looks long beside the new coat silhouette.

Many have interesting shoulders—an effect achieved by shirring at the collar, or by yokes, cape-backs or throw-back scarfs.

The light-weight, lustreless woollens of which camels hair is typical are exceedingly important.

Color contrast comes either from light fur, bright braid or—and this is a feature of coats that will be especially good for summer wear—bands of lighter material for cuffs, collars, scarfs or borders. $35 and up.

ELECTION RETURNS CAUSE INJUNCTION

Lowry Wins By Toss-up in Ninth Ward; Gay
to Sue

H. J. Lowry won the nomination as alderman of the ninth ward by lot Friday night when a recount of the second precinct showed him tied with S. L. Gay, in votes cast at the primary election held here Mar. 18. This places Mr. Lowry on the official ballot at the regular election Apr. 1 with Richard P. Doran who polled the highest number of votes in the ward.

A check of the ballots cast in the second precinct showed that the 337 votes cast for each of the tied contestants remained the same as after the recount of the first precinct held Thursday night. The names were then drawn by lot, the first name determining the winner of the contest.

To Seek Injunction

An injunction against H. C. Busser, city clerk, was to be sought Saturday by Mr. Gay restraining the clerk from placing Mr. Lowry on the official ballot as second choice. The matter will also be taken up with the circuit court to determine the legality of the votes cast and later discarded by the board of canvassers.

"I received the most number of votes as shown in every count," Mr. Gay said Saturday. "The ballot clerks at the booths passed them to the voters thinking they were legal as they were signed by one clerk. The canvassing board threw them out for this reason."

"Attorneys tell me that there has never been a decision on the number of clerks which must sign or initial the ballots," Mr. Gay said. "The law does not specify how many clerks should sign."

Will Set Precedent

The case is a new one in local politics. It likely will set a precedent for the future. The history of the case is this:

The ninth ward has two precincts. In the first precinct the votes were counted after the polls closed Tuesday night. The count was completed about 11:30 p. m. The count showed Lowry had sufficient votes so that together with his votes in the second precinct, he was nominated with R. P. Doran as a candidate for alderman.

As the election officials were leaving the booth, however, some uncounted ballots were found, and a recount was made taking them until 3:30 a. m. This count showed Gay ahead of Lowry with enough votes to eliminate Lowry.

Declare Lowry Winner

Wednesday morning Lowry asked the council as a canvassing board to recount, with special attention, the ballots from the first precinct of the ninth. This was done with the result that Lowry and Gay were tied.

Gay then demanded a recount of the second precinct to break the tie. This recount Friday night resulted in another tie in the second precinct. The council then drew lots to see which would receive the nomination.

The Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra Will Play in University Gymnasium at 3:30 and 8:15 O'Clock, April 1

The Minneapolis Symphony orchestra, conducted by Henri Verbrugghen, will give two concerts in the men's gymnasium Tuesday, April 1, under the auspices of the Madison Orchestral association. An afternoon concert will be given at 3:30 o'clock and an evening concert at 8:15.

The orchestra appeared in Madison last to give the first of the series of symphony orchestra concerts sponsored by the Madison Orchestral association.

The orchestra at present has a membership of eighty-five highly trained musicians, presenting about 200 concerts annually, a number in Minneapolis and a larger number on its spring and winter tours.

Since its first tour four years ago, the organization has appeared in the larger cities of the various sections of this country and in the large cities of western Canada.

The present season is the twenty-first consecutive season of the symphony orchestra. It started first in conjunction with the choral concerts of the Minneapolis Philharmonic club. The orchestral concerts were so successful, however, that the orchestra was organized as a separate body.

Henri Verbrugghen, the conductor, has been successful in the conducting of orchestras for many years. Before going to Minneapolis he conducted symphony orchestras and choral societies in Brussels, Berlin, Munich and Petrograd. He conducted the Beethoven Festival in London in 1914 and the Bach-Beethoven Festival the following year. He came to Minneapolis as a guest conductor of the orchestra. Later he was unanimously selected to become the permanent conductor.

Past Reputation Will Not Redeem Book By Booth Tarkington

"The Midlander" by Booth Tarkington, Doubleday Page and Co., New York, 1924.

By H. D. S.

Booth Tarkington no doubt was a popular and good writer some days ago. He still seems to be popular, or rather sliding on his reputation so to say. But we fear that past reputation won't help greatly the book which he offers us now, "The Midlander." There are so many young and ambitious authors who are toiling to get new plots, new ideas, new characters, even a new style, that we fear Mr. Tarkington will have to do some hard work again to come up to the standard set by the younger generation.

"The Midlander" shows that it has been written rather hastily, without deep concern. The characters are vague, and as for the delivery, one can read just that mood into it in which the particular reader happens to be. It may be pathetic, almost tragic, but it may be ironical and satirical just as well. There are no hints as to how Mr. Tarkington wants us to take the book, and we really didn't know what to make of it while we were reading it.

A satire on modern life in the Midwest it surely is not, or else it is far too subtle satire; and is too much ironical material in the theme to make it a striking piece of tragedy. The book leaves us absolutely unconvinced, we don't know just what to make of it.

We liked Tarkington very well in "Peurod" and in "Seventeen." Those are books that have something interesting and new and original. They are open satire, and when we read them we were highly pleased. But "The Midlander," well, we were glad when we finished book.

We fear that Tarkington wanted to write a book for the broad masses whom he credits with absolutely no or just very little intelligence.

The only pleasing thing about "The Midlander" is Tarkington's rather shrewd observation of commonplaces. Scenes like the reception for the Eastern bride in the little Indiana city, the thunderstorm in the shack of Ornaby Addition, even some of the scenes between the hero, Dan Oliphant and his Eastern wife were sharply and well drawn, but do scenes constitute a whole book?

Bodenheim Thinks Only in Similes and Metaphors

"Blackguard" by Maxwell Bodenheim, Covici-McGee, 1923.

By D. P. P.

The thing one notices first about Maxwell Bodenheim is his use of words, the extraordinary joy he takes in handling them, in playing with them. And this also is the first thing one notices in reading "Blackguard." He piles metaphor on metaphor until his thought becomes so striking that it seems artificial, almost wrenched out. You feel that he always tries to wring something sufficiently original from an impression to make it thoroughly startling.

For instance, he describes a city street at night: "On the streets martyred by crowds, electric lights penciled the night with their trivial appeals, and an ineffectual approach to daylight spread its desperately dotted jest over the scene." Or again, "Her eyes seemed to be two drops of quivering sweat left behind by an emotional crucifixion;" and, "A body on which plumpness and angles met in a transfigured prize-fight of lines."

And when you have read these and many more you believe true of Bodenheim that he writes of his hero, Carl Felman, "It was his habit to think only in metaphors and similes."

"Blackguard" is the tale of a young Jewish poet, Carl Felman. It is the story of his struggle to live and express himself in verse, but against the world of material reality; the fight against the things that want to dull our thoughts, our feelings, and to make us reform.

We felt that the book had rather an autobiographical ring to it; that perhaps at times Carl Felman was Maxwell Bodenheim, struggling for expression, and embittered, dulled, pressed in upon by the conforming monotony of a sordid environment. And in spite of Mr. Bodenheim's ornateness of thought, and of its artificial effect, we did feel the sincerity of this young poet in his battle against the hypocrisies and materiality of the world.

The Southern Methodist University at Dallas, Texas, is offering two prizes for the best original poems written by undergraduate students of all universities and colleges. There is a first prize of $100 and a second prize of $50. The judges of the contest are to be Carl Sandburg, John Hall Wheelock and Vachel Lindsay. Each entrant in the contest may submit only one poem, or a group of related poems.

Autograph Maniac Confesses Passion For Hunting Authors

By K.

"Confessions of an Autograph Maniac" might be the title of this discussion. Hunting famous and near-famous persons in order to have their autographs may become with some readers a delightful passion.

With me the hunt has developed into a cross between a happy pleasure and a beastly nuisance. To the authors who must be seen to secure the precious signature, it is nothing less than an atrocity unless they have an overabundance of personal vanity or generosity for their readers.

On my book shelf are signed books of Booth Tarkington, Edward Bok, Hugh Walpole, Johan Bojer, Alexander Meiklejohn, Sherwood Eddy, Heywood Brown and other persons who have visited Madison.

Dollar System

The easiest way to secure an autographed book is to buy a special edition of the works with the author's name already in the book. This is the golden path to autograph land—the way of most dollars and least effort.

By the use of the dollar system, I managed to obtain the signature of Bok, Tarkington, and John Masefield, the English poet and playwright. Special editions are good investments if you have the cash in the beginning. One of the books bought last year is now catalogued 50 cents higher in an English book list.

The other, more interesting way to be the possessor of autographs is to see the personages concerned and obtain the signature directly from them. This gives you and the signed book a personal touch that it is impossible to have in any other way. By the book you will remember the writer.

Galli-Curci Hardest

Probably the hardest to obtain of any of my autographs was from Madame Amelita Galli-Curci. The fault was not her own—she was very gracious and readily consented to sign my program when I finally was able to ask her.

The trouble was that her self-appointed guardians from the School of Music were determined that I should go away autograph-less.

I was able to enter the same room with the singer only to be put out by her protectors. Back to the end of the throng of persons who wished to meet the celebrated soprano, I went. When I reached the door leading to her receiving room again, the University Glee club was being presented. The introducer was not

Vivid Nature Keynote of Gallagher Art Exhibit

Nature clothed in its vivid coloring is the keynote of the water colors of Sears Gallagher, member of the Boston Art club and the Society of Etchers, whose water colors, etchings and print points are being exhibited by the Madison Art association in the art room of the State Historical museum.

Rocks—yellow sandstone, gray crags—not beautiful in themselves, are made so by the variety and combinations of coloring which Mr. Gallagher gives them. Water scenes, brooks, rivers, and seas, are other objects to which the painter lends beauty by his remarkable coloring.

The homeliest scenes gain an aesthetic flavor under the brush of Mr. Gallagher. The back of an old boat around which lie boxes, old bottles and cans, stranded row boats, are made delightful as seen through his eyes.

European houses and streets, the White House, and character studies are the subjects of Mr. Gallagher's etchings. The entrance to a quaint antique furniture store is shown with the entrance door open. On the frame building kettles, pots and many other varieties of household furniture are nailed. Human interest is lent to the etchings by a little boy peering curiously inside.

The seashore, country and mountains are the themes of Mr. Gallagher's point pri ts.

Finally Obtained

With an autograph at stake, I did not hesitate long. In reply to my request, the singer said with her delightful assent, "If I start this, I will be here all night." But I obtained her signature on the program of the evening.

Dante Manuscript in Museum is Treasure of Mind and Hand

Wrapped securely and locked in a case on the fourth floor of the library lies an exact facsimile of the oldest available transcription of Dante's "Divine Comedy," one which it will not be possible to reproduce in the future.

Different in every respect from the rich volumes of today is this huge book. The cover of finely designed leather hides a vast treasure within—of both mind and hand. The parchment of handsome thick texture with its perfect blend of varying colors is well preserved. The lettering, done with a master's hand, is lovely in its regularity. The work is the result of heliochromy or color photography and is an excellent example of the art of book-making for which the Italians are famous.

This transcription was done by Scr Francesco de Ser Nardo de Barberio of Florence in 1337, 16 years after the death of Dante. No handwriting, not even an autograph, of the genius is in existence. The story goes that Ser Nardo put his best efforts into this work so that he might be able to furnish his daughters with dowries.

The manuscript is called "Codice Trivulziano." The English for the Italian word "codice" is ancient manuscript and it is called "Trivulziano" because it has been the possession of the Princes of Trivulzio of Milan for the last century.

This manuscript was presented to the University of Wisconsin September 14, 1921, by the Italians of the United States upon the invitation of Luigi Carnovale of Chicago in commemoration of the six hundredth anniversary of the death of Dante. Seventy copies were made by the publisher Uli-o Hoepli, Milan, under the supervision of the Dante Society in Italy for the chief American universities, for the White House library, and for the Library of Congress.

The volume is not only a treasure to the university library but it is useful in the study of Dante, the culmination of the Italian courses.

Music of Future to Come From Russia

EMIL COLEMAN

Easy melody, it haunts me, always on my mind, Any harmony that's sweeter would be hard to find.

Emil Coleman, Famous Director, Finds Charming Simplicity in
New Styles

"From out of Russia will come the new music that will supplant syncopation just as syncopation has supplanted jazz." This is the prediction of Emil Coleman, a native of Russia, who is now a leading New York orchestra leader, directing at the famous Club Tropicana.

"The music which friends have brought me from Russia has a freedom that is more advanced than the music which I am playing today," he says.

"Simplicity is the keynote of all this music, just as it is of all the latest American successes, like 'Easy Melody,' the very name of which tells of its simplicity. The harmony is of the easiest, with no frills or effects, but sheer beauty. It is one of the most danceable tunes I have ever played, and a forerunner, I think, of the new Russian idea which will give more and more people, in every walk of life, an opportunity to appreciate music and interpret it on their favorite instruments.

It is sure to be a two-toned plaid material, but the size of the plaid is variable. A full length lining indicates the superior grade of the coat and insures its wearing qualities. Those that are not button trimmed have an edging of leather or of brocaded velvet velour.

The sleeves are loose and flowing and are set in with that tailored accuracy that makes for the trim, stylish shoulder fit. The $65 model, however, takes an individual turn and substitutes for sleeves a cape effect whose line of attachment on both front and back gives that much-sought-for narrow and smart appearance.

Treo Slip-ons The New Step-in Corset $5

It has come! This adjustable, elastic girdle-like corset which the dancing girl and the athletic Co-ed have been demanding. It has no stays and yet effects a shapely figure with its firm quality of material.

"And it has four garters," the young college woman explained to us enthusiastically, "and of course that means much by way of keeping it where it belongs. Then it is satin finished too."

But she forgot to mention one point whose practicality struck us immediately. The designer cleverly foresaw the difficulty of putting on so snug a garment, and provided for it by a three-inch slit at the top front, which closes neatly by a three-hole lace.

Treo Elastic Girdles $2

These are old friends, of course, and need no introduction. What woman upon the campus does not know the convenient little open-down-the-front-with-three-clasps girdle which offers support in the front with one stay and in the back with two?

Spring Hosiery Defies Restraint

You may have a passion for perfect color blendings, for marked contrasts, or for riotous combinations—Spring hosiery will discipline you not.

The washable fibre silk prints which are guaranteed stainless come in grey, log cabin, champaign, and sunburn backgrounds with contrasting diamonds of blues and browns, at $1.50.

The imported, fashioned hose comes in soft, plain shades, offering a very elastic top and high spliced, re-enforced heel, at $4.

But the brilliant colors which may be worn in harmony or in contrast appear in the full fashioned, heavy weight, lisle-top, Service hose under such vivid descriptive names as Mah Jong blue, East Wind red, and Green Dragon green, at $2.25.

Some Tailored Vests

usurp the dress blouse and others are merely tucked inside the tailored suit to give it a fresh and seasonal appearance. They are white, white and black, tan, and linen with contrasting bindings. Pearl buttons are the usual finish. $1.50 to $3.

COSTUME SLIPS $5

Whether you choose a radium silk or a tricolet, your afternoon dress of soft material will have the correct foundation and at the same time an elegance of grace. To harmonize with the predominating Spring colors, these slips come in biege trimmed in gree, and brown trimmed in tan.

THE INDISPENSABLE SCARF

That final touch that characterizes the Spring costume and adds the tone of finish to the smart suit or one piece dress, offers itself in the form of gauzy lace of all colors at $2.75, and fibre silks in diagonal stripes, cross stripes, and checker board effects in harmonious Spring colors at $1.95, $2.50, and $3.50.

CONDUCT OF PROGENY DEPENDS ON PARENTS

Good parents will rear good children, according to Judge Ole A. Stolen, who spoke at the Pumpkin Hollow community meeting Friday night at the community schools.

"Many parents can blame themselves for the wrongdoing of their sons and daughters," said the judge. "They pay little or no attention to them in their formative years and then expect them to grow up and be good citizens."

Farm machinery costs were discussed by R. T. Nuss, of the Nuss Implement Co.

"High labor costs are the chief factor in the present production costs," he said. "Material used in manufacturing do not vary a great deal throughout the year, but skilled labor is demanding better wages every year."

Keep Well By Not Doing Your Outside Reading, is Advice

From the studious atmosphere of Cambridge, Mass., with its Harvard, comes the paradoxical advice of an English instructor that students should not try to do the great quantity of outside reading assigned them.

"Any one who attempts to do all his outside reading is pretty sure to ruin his health," says the instructor, who for obvious reasons desires to keep his name secret. "A sophomore friend of mine has been given a week's vacation to get over a case of nervous prostration contracted in an attempt to do all the outside reading for a course in English and one in History.

"The authorities," he continued, "don't really expect students to give more than passing attention to the thousands of pages assigned. Any one who sets out conscientiously to read everything he is told will soon find himself in the infirmary. Don't try to do all your outside reading."
