Alinsky Knocks Consensus Idol

By LYNNE ELLESTAD
Night Editor

"The most invidious thing in our culture is the Madison Avenue, middle-class thought that conflict is bad, and consensus is a sacred cow," Saul Alinsky told a capacity crowd in the Union Theater Thursday.

Alinsky is an executive director of the Industrial Areas Foundation (IAF) which organizes urban ghetto groups for civil rights and economic objectives.

The white power structure, Alinsky said, must push integration "not for the sake of the Negroes but for the sake of its own self-interest and for carrying on the spirit of the American revolution—a spirit of equality."

White Americans do not now feel guilty, Alinsky said. The Supreme Court's decision to force public school integration, he said, was to get the backing of the non-white majority of the world's people.

"Token integration stinks. At the current rate it will take literally 1,000 years for full integration in the Southern schools," said Alinsky.

The struggle for civil rights will continue, he predicted, and the fight "must be rough. People move or change on the basis of issues. There is no such thing as a non-controversial issue."

The white American only granted Negro rights as a by-product of some other goal until the civil rights movement brought up the issue itself, Alinsky said.

Negro rights, he added, can only be gotten by the Negroes being strong enough to take them, "not through charity."

Alinsky suggested that the term "black power" has caused so much dissension because of the negative connotations on the two words. "Black" is always used to mean

"evil" and "power" implies "violence," he explained.

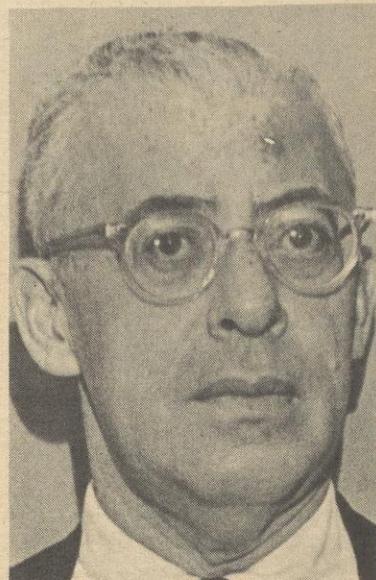

The IAF, Alinsky said, will only enter a city when it has been invited by a large segment of the ghetto people, as, for instance, by petition.

All of their expenses for these projects come from local organizations, he said. He has led projects in Rochester, N.Y.; Kansas City, Mo.; and Oakland, Calif.

There is hate for whites within the ghetto, particularly anti-Semitism because often the only whites who own ghetto property or work in the ghetto are the Jews, he said.

One of the biggest mistakes of the civil rights movement is treating Negroes as something special—discrimination in reverse, according to Alinsky.

Speaking as an organizer, Alinsky said he would oppose aligning the civil rights movement with the anti-war movement. "Viet Nam is not an issue in the ghetto," he said, but admitted that it is assuming greater importance.

Alinsky, sociologist and author, has been called the "best hope to the apathetic, poverty-stricken urban Negro," but also a "Marxist," according to a program.

Alinsky's visit was sponsored by the Union Forum Committee.

Tenant Union Describes Goals To Saxony Coeds

By CINDY VANDENPLAS
Cardinal Staff Writer

The Student Tenants' Union met Thursday to organize Saxony girls into a subcommittee dealing with that dormitory.

Steve Hendrickson, union co-ordinator studying Campus Rentals, outlined for the girls the union's long range goals.

*To create a lobby throughout Madison as well as at the University;

*To develop contacts with similar groups at other universities in and out of Wisconsin;

*To contact teachers' groups, unions, and non-student organizations;

*To solicit financial support; and,

*To maintain lists of the union's approved and unapproved landlords.

To accomplish these goals, he said, the union is presently recruiting and training organizers to talk to and mobilize people with grievances against the major landlords.

"You can help by joining the union's publicity, community relations, research, or direct organization committee," Hendrickson said.

"But more than that, you can buy a membership card and encourage others to do the same. The funds that we receive will be used to take illegal contracts to court."

"Many of the complaints that the union received involve cases

HOOFERS

Hoofers Sailing Club cannot leave the Union under their present constitution, according to Barb Schulz, president of the Union. In order to pass a new constitution, Hoofers must hold two meetings, during which a majority of a quorum of their membership may vote on the new constitution. It must then go through Hoofer Council and Union Council. To form a new sailing group, they must go through the Office of Student Organizations, SLIC, and Student Senate like any other group.

where little can yet be done because the student has already signed a binding lease. Student Tenants' Union plans to take these contracts to court and see that one giving the student equal rights with the landlord be used," he continued.

Hendrickson said that Campus Rentals holds the leases for 1400 students.

"Members of the union have been talking to these people. So far 1350 of them have had some complaint about the conditions in which they live or the legality of their contracts," he added.

Tenant councils are also study-

'U' Budget Cut By CCHE Group

By GREGORY GRAZE
Night Editor

The University's initial effort to boost its quality controls and to eliminate what the Regents termed a "quality deficit" was set back Thursday.

Three-eights per cent of the total budget was cut by the finance sub-committee of the Coordinating Committee on Higher Education (CCHE). The total request by the University, $206.7 million, was cut to $189.1 million.

The $35.2 million in operational improvement funds requested by the University (Madison, Milwaukee, and center campuses), was cut to $20 million by the sub-committee.

Despite statements by Robert Clodius, University vice-president, deplored the rising student-to-faculty ratio and pointing to the need of hiring more faculty members, the sub-committee recommended the cuts. Clodius pointed out that the present student-to-faculty ratio, 23.4 to one, and the percentage of teaching assistants on the staff, 35.4 per cent, are both significantly greater than five or ten years ago.

The sub-committee also recommended cuts in the requested yearly salary increases for the faculty. The University had requested increases of seven per cent yearly, but the sub-committee trimmed that to 6.5 per cent. These increases are designed to keep the University salaries competitive with those of other large midwest universities.

An additional two per cent yearly increase was recommended for the next biennium to enable faculty members to improve their bargaining position.

Harry Spindler, CCHE assistant director, also recommended that the increases be based on the salary of the immediately preceding year rather than on an original base year as had been done in the past.

Spindler said that faculty salaries was one of the most important issues because it indicates the level of general support of the committee for the University system.

Pres. Fred Harvey Harrington asked that future salary increases be made in comparison to universities other than the midwest group alone, since the University's competition is on a national level.

In making the budget cuts, the sub-committee recommended that the individual systems establish priorities in allocating the funds. For the University, quality control and the workload deficit were the suggested priorities. The libraries were also recommended for special attention.

The sub-committee also approved a trimmed budget of

Required Attendance: A Crutch For the Uninteresting Professor

Student activities have quickened the movement for change in countless aspects of University life. The housing regulations, women's hours, even certain areas of course curriculum have felt the pressure of interested and concerned campus groups.

The move has been to a more independent individual—one who must take on the burden of responsibility for his actions and for the furtherance of his education. One particular part of the students' life is his academic pursuits. Yet it is precisely in this part that the student has the least degree of independence.

Many of the professors at the University adopt the attitude that students must be forced to attend classes. Role is taken daily to insure that not a period goes by without letting the student know that his presence or absence is noticed.

It is a tragedy in education that a teacher must coerce his pupils into coming to class. If the lecture is interesting and if the information expounded is vital to the students' knowledge of the subject, then attendance will be high. But it is the responsibility of the professor to make his lectures worthwhile and necessary for his listeners.

If the information missed because of absence cripples the listener's ability to understand the subject matter, this fact will be learned quickly enough. But when lectures are boring or mere rehashes of assigned material, students are justified in questioning the merits of coming to class.

Attendance is a crutch on which weak professors rely in order to demand student appearance. The fact that such a crutch is indeed attests to the poor quality of the course and the doubt of the teacher that students are interested.

It is time for the University to realize that how an individual wants to meet his educational requirements is wholly up to him. An extension of independence to encompass freedom of class attendance would be a major step in furthering the University's policy of treating students as mature, thinking, and responsible adults.

Can You Covet?

The Bible says that you cannot covet another man's wife; to my knowledge, it doesn't say one darn thing about his daughter.

H. L. Mencken once defined "Puritan" as someone who has a constant, haunting fear that "someone, somewhere... is happy." Personally if one statement ever had the equal force of all Ten Commandments, it would be: "To each his own." College students are able to define their own morals without being limited to dorm hours, housing regulations, or to fibbing on sign out sheets. For boys, I suppose, there is no holiday from hustling. Picture this:

SCENE: Female Hall

YEAR: 1990

JILL: Bob, would you close the door to the Sauna room, my legs are freezing!

BOB: Sure; pass the twigs.

JILL: Rub my back, Bob, honey. Can't; I've got to get going. I haven't been to this quiz section in weeks.

JILL: But you just got in here. I know, but I don't want your house mother snooping around here. You know the rule: Boys cannot stay in the Sauna's past 1 a.m.

JILL: I forgot. Oh, how I hate these restrictions!

BOB: Quit moaning. The restrictions will always be there. Now give me your room keys, and I'll go upstairs and get dressed.

JILL: No need to. Just ask the maid—she'll let you in.

SCENE: A Union Mixer.

YEAR: 2000

CARL: Say, don't I know you from somewhere?

TINA: Look, freshman, I'm old enough to be your T.A. Why don't you find a girl your age and dance?

CARL: I've been watching you all night.

TINA: So what? So have a lot of people.

CARL: But with me, it's different.

TINA: How come?

CARL: You see, I've never seen a topless dancer before.

TINA: Where are you from?

CARL: New York City.

TINA: Figures.

CARL: Intuition...

TINA: Intuition...

CARL: No really; how?

TINA: Because you're the only broad I've ever seen do a fan dance with her fee card.

TINA: You're a smart fella.

CARL: You're pretty sharp, yourself. How about getting a drink with me after you work.

TINA: I'm sorry. That's impossible.

CARL: But why?

TINA: There's a house meeting tonight.

CARL: Can't you make up an excuse?

TINA: What?

CARL: Tell 'em I'm a sick friend.

TINA: Don't be foolish; I'm president of the dorm.

CARL: Oh...

TINA: (To herself) The nerve!

YEAR: Spring, 2010

JOAN: Could I see your notebook for a second?

BILL: Sure. I'm glad we're holding class outside today. Air conditionways gives me a cold.

JOAN: Me too. But you know the real reason that the prof is holding class outside, don't you?

BILL: Oh sure. But just because Van Hise isn't finished...

JOAN: I hope they rip it down.

BILL: Bite your tongue: By the time it's finished it will be the oldest building in America.

JOAN: Would you like a weed?

BILL: Pot? Heck no, ever read the package? That stuff can be habit forming.

JOAN: Same with Crest toothpaste, fool. Here.

BILL: No... really... I can't...

JOAN: Why?

BILL: If you really must know:

War and Peace

Neil Eisenberg

Two recent articles in Madison's famous newspaper, The Capital Times, tell us much about the current state of American politics.

"Hungry Hedy Had Only Sex to Sell, Says Bartell," screams one headline, telling the story of Hedy Lamarr's law suit to halt the sale of her own autobiography. Another, in more subdued tones, quietly announces: "War is Discounted as Election Issue."

Miss Lamarr's attempt to make an honest woman out of herself is amusing if not profound. Last month, it seems, she tried to block the publication of her autobiography on the grounds that it was "fictional, false, vulgar, scandalous, libelous and obscene."

Now, that is quite a charge for an authoress to make against her own autobiography. The presence of a ghostwriter, however, explains the whole situation, and we are asked to believe that the forthcoming edition of "Ecstasy and Me" was written without Miss Lamarr's consent.

This, of course, is denied by Miss Lamarr's publisher, Gerald Bartell, who has stated publicly, "I think it's unfortunate that she sold a manuscript to us and then, after having pocketed the money, decided she would not have had to reveal some of her intimate secrets to make this sort of money."

In all of this the publisher has been incredibly sly and has blasted back at Miss Lamarr in a somewhat questionable manner. She has, after all, charged that he is publishing a nasty book, and that is somewhat of a black mark on his professional record. We may doubt his sincerity when he vehemently declares, "To some it's filthy and to others it's interesting!"

Well, the gist of all this is simply that the book is a wonderfully dirty book, and we should all run out and read it. Unluckily for Miss Lamarr, no one has yet been able to ban the book although the Hon. Judge Ralph H. Nutter said on Sept. 26 that the book was "filthy, nauseating and revolting." This certainly will increase the sale of the book, and if the Legion of Virtue should succeed in banning "Ecstasy and Me", Miss Lamarr's fortune will be guaranteed.

As for the other Cap. Times article: well, that is simply a factual news bit which tells us, courtesy of the Associated Press, that the war in Vietnam will not be an issue in the forthcoming elections.

"Strategists of both parties," writes Washington reporter Jack Bell, "are admitting privately that they haven't found the Vietnam war to be a congressional election issue."

In a somewhat contradictory manner, Bell goes on to admit that "most candidates... report the voters are disturbed about the ever-enlarging conflict and frustrated by the apparent failure of peace efforts." He brushes this off, however, by quickly asserting that the forthcoming reaction of the average citizen at the polls on Nov. 8 "remains largely a mystery."

Thus, we are told in rapid succession by the Associated Press that "the war will not be an issue," "voters are concerned and frustrated by the war," and "how the voter will react remains largely a mystery."

What does not remain a mystery, however, is the effect that news reporting like this has on the public. A large boldface front page headline asserting blatantly that the war is not an issue in this election has the quality of truth. A large headline inviting the public to delve into Hedy Lamarr's sex life has the quality of interest. Newspapers which print such garble, however, have the quality of 1984.

In a wartime situation in which 24 billion dollars are spent annually, it is indefensible to assert on the basis of heresy information from unnamed "strategists" that the war is not an issue. If the war in Vietnam is not a grave question for the public to voice its opinion on, when will such a question ever arise? Democratic theory simply cannot uphold any other view.

The Associated Press, and the Cap. Times have however, decided that the war is not an issue and we must be satisfied with that. The national news media tells us that Hedy Lamarr's sex life is much more interesting so let us all be quiet and read our dirty books.

It is somewhat ironic that President Johnson in his famous Johns Hopkins speech said of the war in Vietnam that it was, "dirty and brutal and difficult."

Had he said that it was "fictional, false, vulgar, scandalous, libelous and obscene," the press, no doubt, would have allowed it to remain as an issue in the forthcoming election.

Pa. Colleges Hire African Instructors

(CPS)—Facing a growing demand for courses on Africa and the Middle East, two small Pennsylvania liberal arts colleges have cooperatively hired an instructor in African studies.

Officials said that sharing the teacher, who will spend one-fourth of his time at Muhlenberg College and three-fourths at Moravian College, effectively combats the high costs of hiring in that field.

Victor Johnson, head of Muhlenberg's history department, said that he and his counterpart at Moravian plan to expand the program next year to include an instructor in Oriental History.

Johnson said that the idea of the joint appointment was conceived several years ago at a meeting of the history departments of colleges in the area.

Advisory Council To Improve University Chemistry Courses

(CPS) -- A $1 million effort to improve U.S. college chemistry courses -- particularly for the non-chemistry major -- went into full operation this fall.

Most universities are already doing a good job with the students who will make their careers in the field, according to L. Carroll King, Chairman of the newly organized Advisory Council on College Chemistry.

"The biggest problem in the area," he explains, "is how to devise a good chemistry course for the students going into the arts, the humanities, journalism, education or the social sciences."

The Council, with headquarters at Stanford University, will finance the development of new educational aids and curricula on college campuses across the country under a two-year grant from the National Science Foundation.

The usual offering to the non-chemistry major has been the "survey course." But, King says, "The survey course has never really worked. Its general shortcoming is that it teaches theory as fact. The whole character of scientific knowledge and the means scientists use to solve problems have been neglected."

As an alternative, King suggests that a specially designed "general science" chemistry class might be offered to non-majors. Such a course would be designed to explain to the students what science is and has accomplished, how it operates and why it is doing what it does.

The course would explain something of the nature of science as well as its content to the non-science students who will be future legislators, historians, artists and teachers.

As future taxpayers, King asserts, students should be better prepared to evaluate objectively and to criticize the many scientific projects their money will be paying for.

The Advisory Council on College Chemistry, according to King, does not intend to write one special course or program to be applied throughout the country, but to try to improve on existing instruction.

Hougen Receives Surprise Dinner

A surprise dinner in honor of Prof. Hougen was held on Oct. 8 at the University Club.

Friends of the long-distinguished, internationally-known chemical engineer -- one of the foremost pioneers in his field -- gathered at the dinner to honor the famed scientist-engineer.

Prof. W. Robert Marshall, chemical engineering, associate dean of the College of Engineering and associate director of the Engineering Experiment Station, presided at the dinner and program.

A feature of the event was the presentation to Dr. Hougen of a bound leather volume containing about 175 letters of tribute received for the occasion from former students.

Prof. Hougen retired from the engineering faculty in 1961 when he accepted a position as science attaché for the Scandinavian nations with the U.S. embassy in Stockholm, Sweden. Upon his retirement he was named Emeritus Professor of Chemical Engineering at the University.

Parent's Week-end brings the usual number of parties despite six-week exams. Many units are sponsoring coffee hours and open houses for their parents. Other organizations are using Parent's Week-end as their theme.

Friday evening Alpha Epsilon Phi has the only theme party: "Parent's Week-end." Also going informal but without themes are Acacia, Turner House, Zeta Beta Tau, Phi Sigma Delta, Phi Gamma Delta, Sigma Phi Epsilon, and Gillin House.

Saturday morning Alpha Epsilon Phi has a "Morning Brunch" for their parents.

Saturday afternoon Alpha Chi Rho has a buffet for their parents while Chi Phi has a "Parents Party." Leith House has a "Parent's Day" while Steve House, Lowell Hall, Barnard, Carriage House, and Slichter Hall host coffee hours.

Delta Upsilon goes informal as do Botkin House, Zeta Beta Tau, Phi Sigma Delta, Frisby House, Phi Gamma Delta, and Babcock House.

Open are the following houses: Gay, Richardson, Bullis, Whithey, Barr, Whitbeck, Juaire, Roe, Jones, Swenson, Ely, Vilas, Cairns, Mayhew, Bunn, High, Paxson, Turner, Follows, Martin, McCaffrey, Frankenburger, Beale, Wales, Pitman, and Washburn. Also open are the Southeast Student Organization, Gilman Hall, Kent Hall, and Elm Drive "A."

Saturday evening Triangle Fraternity claims the award for originality as they tell the world that "Mom and Day Have Come to Take Me Home." Alpha Chi Rho says that "It's the Parent's Nite Out." Evens Scholars has a "Dad's Day" while Deltina house takes their parents to dinner at Poole's.

Sigma Phi plans a nice "quiet" evening at their "Laurel and Hardy Flicker." Sigma Alpha Mu and Kappa Sigma have "Coat and Tie" dances while both Acacia and Phi Sigma Kappa have "Band Party's."

Also going informal are Chi Phi, Theta Delta Chi, Lambda Chi Alpha, Theta Chi, Zeta Beta Tau, Phi Gamma Delta, Babcock House, Chi Psi, Kappa Psi, and Delta Tau Delta.

Acacia Tells of House

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a series of five articles on new Greek houses and additions to Greek houses.)

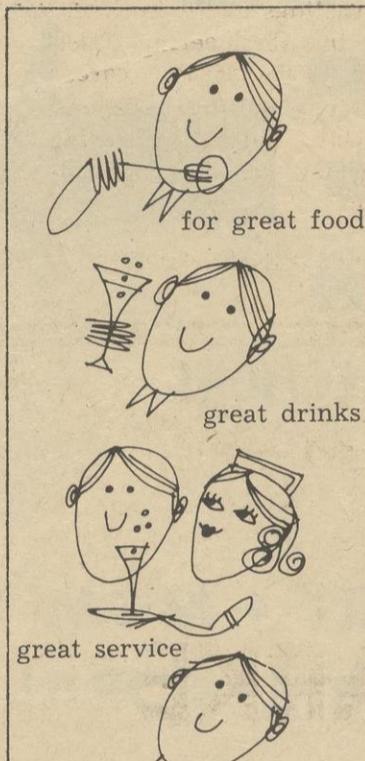

By RUTH ANN WENSLAFF
Cardinal Staff Writer

The old house of the Acacians (AKAKIA, ironically enough for the building, means everlasting life) has seen its last days. The fraternity has moved to a larger, sturdier, better furnished house at 222 Langdon Street.

As Acacia President John Porter explained, the old house "was due to be torn down; it was just a matter of when." "When" was last spring.

The Acacians bought the old Phi Delta house last November and six Acacians and some roomers and boarders moved into the house in January.

The house, built in 1928 by the Phi Mu sorority, is in "pretty good condition," according to Porter. They are remodeling the upstairs—painting, plastering, rewiring, etc.—but that is about the extent of any changes.

WSA Directorate Considers Student Housing Problems

Plans to bring attention to the housing problems were discussed at a meeting of the Wisconsin Student Association (WSA) directorate Wednesday.

Marty Kupferman, chairman of WSA campus housing and planning committee, said that WSA is working on long range solutions to the housing problem.

"Grievance sheets" containing the condensed university regulated housing code will be circulated by WSA, Kupferman stated. Student complaints filed on the sheets will be investigated by trained committee members, returned to the city inspector, and a close watch will be kept on the progress of repairs, according to Kupferman.

Kupferman said information on housing problems would be accumulated for presentation to the state building commission as soon as possible. WSA also plans to publish a booklet outlining procedures that students should go through in signing a lease.

Art Competition

Boarding School Helps Female Status In Africa

The University of Massachusetts is transplanting an old New England educational concept, a woman's boarding school, half-way round the world to Tororo, Uganda, East Africa.

The boarding school, originally a finishing school for wealthy New England ladies, is being transplanted to attack a problem general to all Africa—low intellectual and social status of women.

The role of women is particularly inferior in Uganda where tribal culture assigns women to the roles of field worker, burden carrier and child bearer. Fewer than 200 Ugandans girls graduate from secondary school in this former British protectorate of 6.5 million people.

The University, the Agency for International Development, and the Uganda Education Ministry began plans for the interdenominational, interracial school in 1961, a year before Uganda became independent from Great Britain.

The planners hope to educate a breed of women able to join men in leading Uganda, according to a story in the student newspaper, the "Collegian."

To do this, the boarding school supplements classroom teaching with what amounts to a continuing orientation program in Western social customs, manners and games—from how to cook in a modern kitchen to how to greet an important guest.

The curriculum is based on the assumption that a large majority of the girls will marry the more important Uganda leaders and maintain Western-type homes, according to Dean Albert Purvis of the University of Massachusetts School of Education, one of the school's planners.

Living conditions are also aimed at teaching Western mores. All dormitories have a common room with furniture and Western-style kitchenette. Girls serve afternoon tea each day to familiarize themselves with "this socially useful procedure," the "Collegian" reports.

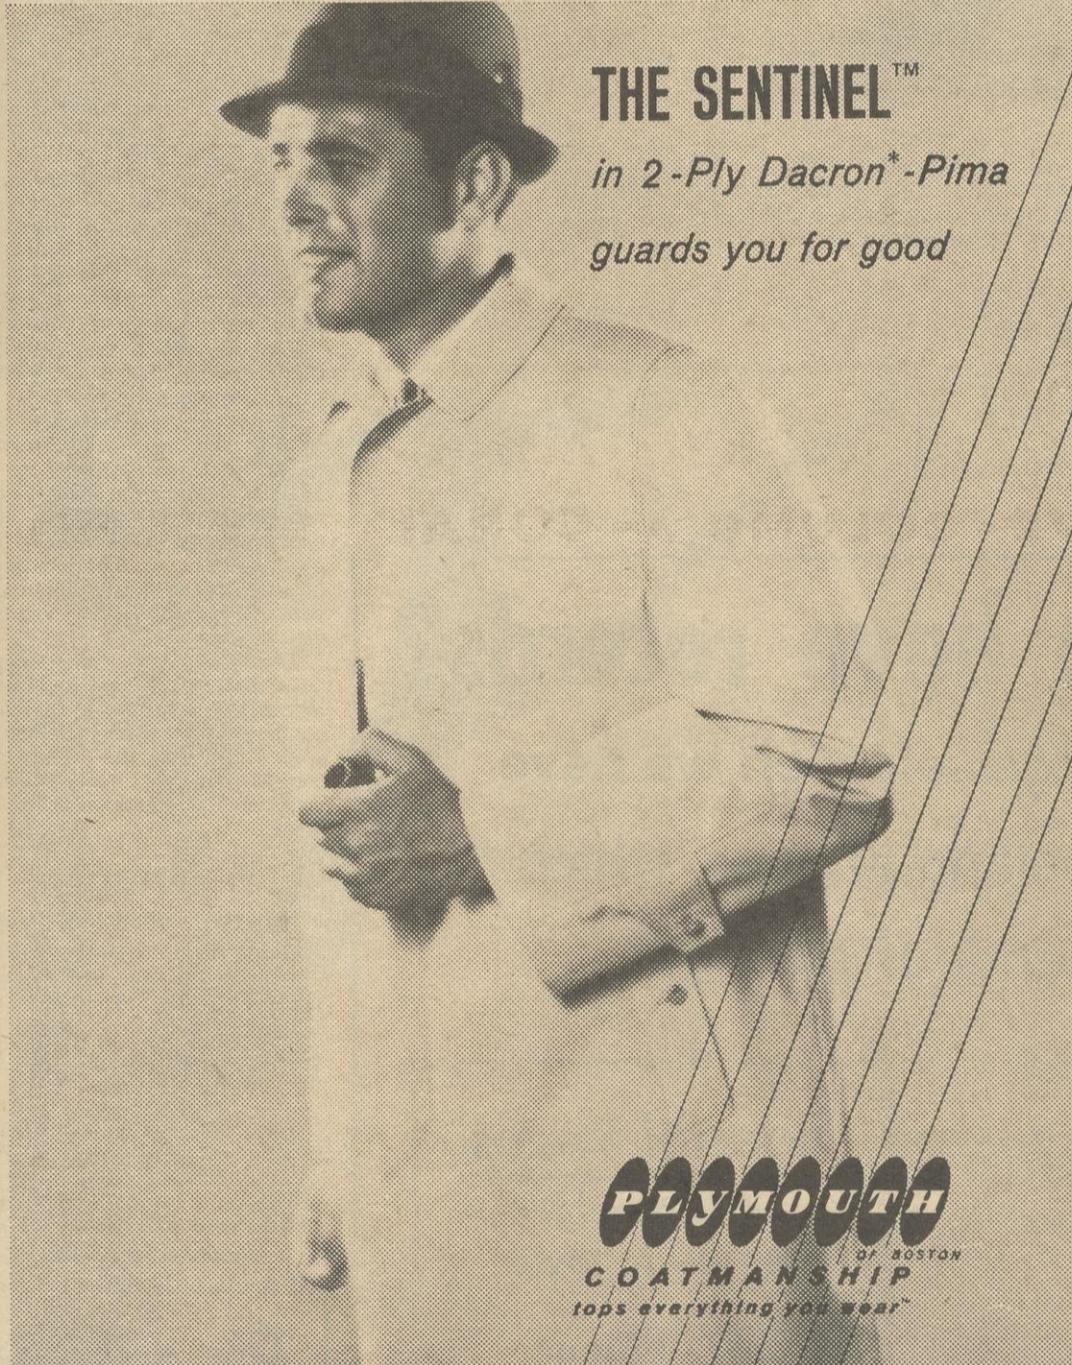

The school's 21 buildings show Western influence: classrooms, laboratories, dormitories, faculty quarters, a gymnasium and an auditorium were built with native stone, concrete and asbestos panels in contemporary American style. Quadrangles and a bell tower (used to house a water tank) show New England influence.

The "Collegian" reports that enrollment should reach 400 by 1967 and full capacity of 540 by 1968. Competition is keen; when classes began in 1965, 825 girls applied for 107 places.

There are six grades at Tororo, starting at the equivalent of the American ninth grade and running to grade fourteen.

Implementation of curriculum and staff is expected to continue until 1971 when the facility will be turned over to the Ugandan government. The present teaching and administrative staff of twenty includes 11 Americans and nine Ugandans. Some Ugandan teachers are being trained at Tororo and others at Amherst, so that the school will be fully staffed by Ugandans when the country takes possession of it.

Master of True Visual Comedy: Keaton's 'General' at Society

By ROBERT COOPERMAN

Scenario Staff

An uninhibited movie audience is a rare thing these days. We do not usually leave our inhibitions at home when we go to the movies, but we bring them along and do not expect to have them too seriously challenged.

Our comedy motion picture industry has evolved itself into a neat pseudo-science, or "formula," for the sure extraction of titters and guffaws from complacent film consumers. Lost, consequently, are the belly-laugh and the scream of genuine sympathy.

The belly-laugh, however, has been captured and enshrined by Buster Keaton in his "The General." His character combines several very effective comedy elements. He uses no incongruous or exaggerated clothing to get laughs, but instead relies on his muscular coordination and agility.

In contrast with his consummately mobile and graceful body, is a face of stone on which expression registers only through the eyes. His eyes, in turn, function in perfect coordination with his body and in direct opposition to his face; mobility and immobility are united in one body and interact in a flawless comic combination.

Watching "The General," the audience begins to lose its inhibitions early in the film when Buster is wronged in a misunderstanding. From the first we are on his side, for we know that he is misunderstood by his girl and his country, and that he has to prove himself to them before all is righted.

We are quickly involved in the engineer's chase after his beloved engine, "The General," across enemy lines for only we and Buster know that he has been wronged. He does not have to prove himself to us, for we know the situation and we find ourselves wanting to help him.

Keaton not only captures our himself in mortal danger. Pursued by a Union engine during his flight back to the South, his life is threatened.

As danger barrels toward him, our first reaction is to scream, "Oh no!" (which several in the audience inadvertently did) but to our amazement, he pirouettes out of trouble only a hair's breadth away from certain death. Our fear is thus converted into laughter, the intensity of which is increased by our combined and contradictory emotions.

Like Chaplin, Keaton both acts and directs. For this reason, there is a perfect harmony of cinematic and comedy-acting techniques. His humour is suited to the film medium because it is visual: it moves within the frame and often requires the camera to move with it.

At the same time, film is perfectly suited to Keaton's comedy because the timing of the editing functions as do blackouts on stage, allowing us to see only just enough for the gag to work.

A perfect example of this acting-plus-cinema harmony is a scene where the disillusioned Buster sits down on one of the giant drive-rods of his locomotive. With the camera in close, his seat seems harmless, but as the camera pulls back we see the engine begin to move with Buster, still dreaming, bobbing up and around on the great rod.

The slow engine begins to enter the roundhouse, with dreaming Buster still aboard and we are amazed and laugh because he does not know what is happening. However, the split second before he is swallowed up by the roundhouse, he awakens, sees his dilemma, his eyes dash madly about, and he is gone... fade out.

Keaton has used the particular possibilities inherent in cinematography to enhance his fine visual comedy. "The General" thus becomes the synthesis of the actor and his medium, each dependent upon and complimentary to the other.

Scenario: Machiavelli Comedy

beautiful woman he has ever seen. The film has many humorous moments, and is aided by an above-average cast including Phillippe Leroy as Callinaco, Jean Claude Brialy as an intelligent comon, Toto as a corrupt friar, and a superb example of womanhood named Rosanna Schiaffino, as Lucrezia.

But alas, "Mandragola" never rises above the commonplace, because for all its bawdiness and humor, director Alberto Lattuada has failed to inject any real creativity or style into the proceedings. As I viewed the film, I kept thinking to myself that, allowing for censorship, it could have very well been made thirty years ago by any director at Warner Brothers. The film is at times very static and Lattuada simply has not used his camera to the most creative extent possible.

A specific example of an artist being creative in the transposing of a literary work to the screen, while remaining faithful to the author's style is Tony Richardson's "Tom Jones." For all of that film's shortcomings, Richardson never allowed his art to be engulfed by the author, as Lattuada does.

In short, "Mandragola" is not a bad film, but neither is it a very good film. It will provide an enjoyable evening at the movies for many, but not as stimulating an experience as it might have. The dialogue is in Italian with English sub-titles added.

A word about the accompanying short feature, "Reflection on Love." An imaginative look at two young lovers, caught in the midst of Mod-oriented London, it exhibited more cinematic creativity in fifteen minutes, than "Mandragola" did in an hour and a half. Definitely worth a viewing.

Shirley Clarke will appear with her film, "The Cool World" in place of Jean-Luc Godard on Oct. 19 at 7:30 p.m. in the Union Theater. Series tickets are valid for this program; individual tickets at $2 are now available at the Union box office.

Circle K to Sponsor Smash

A hush falls over the crowd as all eyes gaze at a brawny figure inside the roped-off area. He wipes the perspiration from his hands, takes a firm grip on the handle, and raises the nine pound hammer high above his head. The hammer remains poised above him for an instant, and then, as the crowd cheers encouragingly, comes crashing down into the cold steel in front of him...

An account of John Henry's famous race maybe? Not even close. It's a Car Smash, and the above scene will hopefully be repeated many times early Saturday afternoon as Wisconsin's own "steel drivin' men" systematically convert two perfectly good automobiles into junk.

The Car Smash is being sponsored by the Circle-K service club and will be held from noon until

ARFEP To Show Documentary Film

"China," Felix Green's documentary film, will be shown by the Americans for Reappraisal of Far Eastern Policy (ARFEP), Chairman James Wesley said Monday.

Rich Pollack, executive committee member, said he is trying to get a local radio station, such as WHA, to hook up with the "teach-in" on China to be held in Toronto, Oct. 15 to 17.

Other projects planned by the committee include a book sale in co-operation with the University Bookstore, selling books on Asia; a speaker program with nationally known writers and reporters; and a debate on some aspect of Far Eastern Policy.

kick-off time on the practice field just north of the stadium. There will be a charge of twenty-five cents for two swings. Circle-K is planning to turn half the proceeds of the Smash over to the Campus Chest, and to use the other half to help cover the club's operating expenses for the year. The Campus Chest, which provides scholarship funds for U students, will be winding up its annual drive Saturday, and will also ask the fans attending the Wis.-Northwestern game for contributions at half time.

The Car Smash will be the first event of its kind held on campus, and the Circle-K members are looking forward to a spirited student response. A club spokesman mentioned that everyone who has heard about the idea likes it. He went on, "It does offer something for everyone. If you've been disappointed by Milt's Marauders the last couple of games, you'll be able to work off some of your anger; if you're a loyal fan, you'll be able to show your fire and enthusiasm; and if you're just a normal student, you'll be able to release some of that exam anxiety which starts to build up about this time of year."

An English friend of ours perhaps had the right attitude toward this novel event when he remarked, "Good show! I think it's a perfectly smashing idea!"

Sub-Committee Cuts 'U' Budget

$115.2 million for the state universities for the 1967-69 biennium. This represents a cut of $6.5 million from the original request.

The technical and vocational schools was the only system not to receive a cut. It was recommended that they receive the requested $14.4 million. A trimmed budget for the county colleges was also approved.

The budget passed Thursday was the operating budget. This, together with the building budget, will be discussed at the full meeting of the CCHE on Oct. 26. The final budget will then be presented to the Governor and the Legislature.

It further urges the city of Madison to take steps to see that residential buildings meet city codes.

The union also plans to lobby for University-built apartment buildings that could be constructed and operated at less cost than those of private owners.

If negotiating meetings between landlords and local tenant councils fail, the union plans to use pickets, public demonstrations, court action, and, if necessary, rent strikes to get landlords to improve their buildings and leases.

SAIGON—U.S. infantrymen killed 11 communist guerrillas in a battle about seven miles from an area where Defense Secretary McNamara was inspecting U.S. troops. As McNamara's helicopter landed at the headquarters of the U.S. Army 25th Infantry Division, last leg of his inspection tour, gunfire could be heard. U.S. losses in the 45-minute skirmish were described as "light." McNamara later took off for the United States.

WASHINGTON—The United States now has more military men in South Viet Nam than it had in South Korea at the peak of the Korean War. Unofficially, there are now 328 thousand men in South Viet Nam. The Korean War figure was 327 thousand.

WASHINGTON—A high Congressional source told UPI audio Thursday that President Johnson will call up reservists in the near future. The source said one reason the Pentagon eased the November and December draft calls yesterday was that the call-up was being considered. No specific date was mentioned.

THE WHITE HOUSE — President Johnson has proposed an exchange of visits with Soviet leaders. At his news conference Thursday, Mr. Johnson said he told Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko that Premier Kosygin and Communist Party Chairman Brezhnev would be welcomed in the United States. In mentioning a high-level exchange of visits, the President implied he is ready to return the visit.

MONTREAL—A series of explosions in a chemical plant in the industrial area of Montreal has set fire to more than a score of buildings. First reports say two men were injured and seven are missing. The explosions continued for 15 minutes after the initial blast in an area occupied by the Monsanto Chemical Co.

NEW YORK CITY—A jury in New York City has acquitted a 17-year-old Negro, Ernest Gallashaw, in the slaying last summer of 11-year-old Eric Dean, also a Negro. Authorities had charged that Gallashaw killed Dean while firing at a white policeman during a racial disturbance in Brooklyn.

WASHINGTON—The House Ways and Means Committee has ordered its staff to draft two measures to raise Social Security measures January 1st. President Johnson Wednesday requested an increase next year. He said Thursday he has no objections to earlier action. The Committee may select one of the measures today.

The Senate Appropriations Committee approved a $2.3 billion appropriations bill for the State, Justice and Commerce Departments.

School Expels Student, Question of Due Process

(CPS)--Recent disciplinary action against a University of Maryland freshman charged with possession of marijuana has raised due process questions over the University's judicial procedure.

Robert F. Sauer, 18, of Baltimore, was released Oct. 9 on bond after being arrested in his dormitory room for illegal possession of marijuana and barbituates two days earlier.

A University spokesman reported that the Office of the Executive Dean for Student Life has suspended Sauer from housing for "believed possession of marijuana."

There is no specific regulation at Maryland prohibiting the possession of the drug, but University regulations state that residents who fail to observe "accepted standards of conduct" may be asked to leave their dormitories.

In "extreme cases where the conduct of a student may not be in conformity with the best interests of the University," the rule continues, a student may be dismissed from school.

Sauer's status as a student will be decided soon by University officials, the spokesman added. The case will probably go to Darrell F. Rishel, director of judiciary affairs, he said. Rishel's office usually handles student disciplinary cases.

Several students questioned whether the University's disciplinary action, which by-passed a system of student courts, constituted a denial of the rights to due process of law within the University.

University action was likewise questioned because it paralleled legal proceedings by the state, thus possibly subjecting Sauer to double jeopardy for his alleged offense.

In a similar marijuana case at the University of Pennsylvania two weeks earlier, a sophomore student was put on disciplinary probation until he graduates. Prosecution was subsequently initiated by the State.

In that instance, students protested that the University took action before the legal guilt of the accused student was determined.

A preliminary Maryland hearing for Sauer has been set for November 15. Officials emphasized that he was arrested for possession of marijuana and barbituates and not for the use of drugs.

Possession of barbituates is a misdemeanor in Maryland. However, possession of narcotics is a felony. Marijuana is considered a narcotic.

Police reportedly acted on a tip in making the arrest.

THE DAILY CARDINAL—15

clarify the SRP stand on this issue.

A resolution admonishing the Campus Action Party for failing to take similar action against its Vagabond senators was defeated.

Mike Kirby, SRP past president, introduced a resolution to provide for direct student participation in student government.

Kirby's resolution would permit the student body by means of petition to introduce or repeal legislation, or recall senators from the Student Senate.

He pointed out that an amendment to the Wisconsin Student Association constitution would be required to make the resolution law.

SRP Censures Roving Senators

The Student Rights Party (SRP) voted Wednesday to censure SRP senators that have moved out of their districts, and passed a resolution to provide for popular participation in student government.

Both resolutions were passed unanimously.

SRP decided to officially censure those SRP senators that have moved from the districts in which they were elected in order to

Bill Smith, a Remarkable Congressional Candidate, (And a Republican, too!)

Dear Friend,

I want to raise the level of discussion in this campaign, and so I am offering some helpful ideas for use by Kastenmeier supporters. With all modesty, I think that these suggestions are a good deal more devastating than the current series of newspaper editorials.

Yours for better campaigns,

BILL SMITH

FOR USE IN NEWSPAPERS (E.G. LETTERS TO THE EDITOR, ETC.)

- "WHO IS BILL SMITH? I MEAN, WHO IS HE REALLY?" Obviously nobody's real name is Bill Smith. Is he an undercover agent, cleverly using that name as an alias? Is it some kind of a code message? What is its real significance?
- "AND WHO'S BEHIND THE SMITH POWER MOVEMENT?" Why have Smith Power signs appeared all over Madison? Has anyone in authority been notified? (HUAC? LBJ? The City Council?)

FOR USE AT COCKTAIL PARTIES (OR ANYWHERE ELSE YOU CAN START A RUMOR)

- "I'D VOTE FOR HIM, BUT HIS NAME IS TOO HARD TO REMEMBER." (This is a serious problem. My namesake, the senior senator from Maine, suggests this device:

Smith Means I Try Harder

The Chairman of Democrats for Smith assures me that as long as I stay away from the initials LBJ, it really doesn't matter.

- "BILL SMITH ISN'T LIKELY TO SERVE A FULL TERM IN CONGRESS." (This is getting rather monotonous, but here goes again: I unequivocally pledge that, if elected, I shall serve my full term. This is my final word.)

A WISCONSIN PLAYERS PRODUCTION

Injury-riddled Wildcats Develop Passing Attack Behind Melzer

Any Wisconsin football fan can tell you about the jinx that Woody Hayes and the Buckeyes have over the Badgers. It's a well known fact. But surprisingly not too many fans talk about the schools over which the Badgers hold a jinx.

One is Iowa. No matter how fine a team the Hawks have, and this is true in any sport, and how poor Wisconsin is, the Badgers pull out a victory.

Another is Northwestern. In the past 17 games Wisconsin has been the victor in 14, giving the Badgers a 32-17 lead in the series which has also seen 4 ties. Last year an underdog Wisconsin team upset the Cats at Evanston, 21-7.

The Cats are off to a bad start this season as they won their initial game last week, by defeating Oregon State, 14-6, after losing the first three contests.

A Wisconsin native, Bill Melzer, will be at the controls of Northwestern's revived offense. Melzer, in his first starting assignment last Saturday, completed 14 of 25 passes for 198 yards. He netted an additional 35 yards on option runs.

Combining with Melzer to give the Wildcats one of the most potent new passing threats in football is split end Roger Murphy, a senior who came out for football last year after not having played in high school.

Murphy's 4-game totals of 24 receptions for 395 yards constitute record-setting paces in both categories.

Two passing marks already have been revised this season. Tight end Cas Banaszek caught 2 passes against Oregon State to raise his career total to 71. Murphy previously set a single game yardage mark of 178 against Indiana.

While Melzer and Murphy were further establishing a dangerous Wildcat air game, the ground attack rounded into shape against the Beavers. Halfback Woody Campbell carried the ball 22 times, a career high for him, for a net of 83 yards. Fullback Bob McKelvey gained 52 yards to boost his team-leading total to 178.

WOODY CAMPBELL
Cat back

The Wildcats picked up their first scores on the ground since the opener against Florida as they tallied twice against Oregon State. Further evidence of the ground game coming into its own was the rushing margin of 219 to 134 that the Cats rolled up over State. That exceeded Northwestern's cumulative total of 202 for the first three games.

The injury situation, a critical factor in the Cats' slow start, could show some improvement for the Wisconsin game. Halfback Chico Kurzawski is the only one of last Saturday's starters who is unlikely to play. He suffered a hip-pointer on his touchdown run.

If Kurzawski doesn't play, Coach Alex Agase can call on either the veteran Larry Gates, a part-time starter last year, or sophomore Bob Olson, who has seen considerable action in the first four games.

The defensive line, which came through in fine fashion at Oregon State despite the absence of three injured starters, should be strengthened by the return of first string middle guard Walt Geister, who did not play because of a sprained ankle.

There is also an outside chance that starting linebacker Bob Ottobacher, out with a knee injury the past three weeks, may be able to return Saturday.

Definitely sidelined again this week are two early season starters, defensive tackle Sandy Smith and safety Tom Garretson. Smith has an injured foot and Garretson has a pinched nerve in his neck.

This is your chance,
Student #7026941.
Drink Sprite and be somebody.

MR. BIG

Take heart. Take a dime. Then take a bottle of Sprite from the nearest pop machine.

Suddenly it's in your hand. Cold. Biting. Tart and tingling. You cackle fiendishly and rub your hands together. (You should; they're probably chilled to the bone by now.)

You tear off to a corner, alone, but within earshot of your fellows.

And then? And then? And then you unleash it. SPRITE! It fizzles! It roars! It bubbles with good cheer!

Heads turn. Whisperings. "Who's that strangely fascinating student with the arch smile. And what's in that curious green bottle that's making such a racket?"

And you've arrived! The distinctive taste and ebullient character of Sprite has set you apart. You're somebody, uh...uh, whoever-you-are.

SPRITE. SO TART AND TINGLING, WE JUST COULDN'T
KEEP IT QUIET.
