WISCONSIN SUMMER SCHOOL

IT OFFERS MANY VALUABLE COURSES.

BY SOME OF THE COUNTRY'S BEST EDUCATORS.

Teachers Gain Valuable Instruction—
Students Make Up Work.

The seventh annual session of the Wisconsin summer school was held at the university from July 9 to August 3 of the present year. About 160 students, mainly from Wisconsin, were in attendance and the work done was highly satisfactory. The great majority of the students were teachers of high schools and high grade city schools, who desired to gain further information along certain lines of study. Many graduates and students of the university were also in attendance. The former were, as a rule, fitting themselves for teaching certain high school branches preparatory to entering the profession of teaching, while the latter were either supplementing their university work by taking studies which they could not bring into their courses during the college year or were making up required university work. Quite a number of candidates for entrance into U. W. were also present and were taking up such branches as they had not been able to obtain in the high school. The relation between the university and the summer school is becoming more marked every year and it is urged that students carefully consider its advantages for doing preparatory and supplementary U. W. work. The different courses are conducted by professors and instructors of the state university, so that the work is along the same lines as at that institution. Much more ground is covered at the summer school because the students, as a class, are older and the faculty is able to work harder on account of the limited amount of work in charge. Then there is more concentration throughout as there are few things to detract from the work. University students who desire to extend their work in subjects which do not come in their course and for which they have no time during the year will find the school a valuable help. Students taking the classical courses can then do work in the sciences, and scientific students are able to receive a thorough knowledge of literature and kindred studies. Special attention is called to the scientific courses of the summer school. Short courses in science have almost been abandoned at the university, but thorough courses can be obtained at the summer school easily and well.

The summer is also an excellent time for working on theses for graduation and arrangements for such work can be made with the instructors. The excellent library facilities and the absence of all other work recommends the summer school term as the best time for the year for the preparation of a thesis or work of a similar nature.

By consultation with the instructors arrangements may be made in most of the branches by which credit will be given for work done in the summer school. This is applicable both to those already in the university and those desiring to enter. All courses are entirely elective, thus giving the utmost liberty in devoting the attention to those branches which they desire.

It is confidently expected that a still larger number of university students will avail themselves of the privilege of attending the Wisconsin summer school during its next session. Following is a list of the departments of instruction with the names of those in charge:

REGENTS.

Oliver E. Wells, State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Charles K. Adams, President of the University of Wisconsin.

INSTRUCTORS.

Dr. Austin—Physics.

Mr. Schmidt, Assistant in Chemistry.

John W. Stearns, LL.D. Professor of Philosophy and Pedagogy, University of Wisconsin, President of School—Psychology and Pedagogy.

W. W. Daniells, M. S., Professor of Chemistry, University of Wisconsin.

Edward E. Hale, Jr., Ph. D., Professor of English Literature, State University of Iowa—English Literature.

William S. Miller, M. D., Instructor in Vertebrate Anatomy, University of Wisconsin—Histology.

W. H. Rosenstengel, A. M., Professor of German Language and Literature, University of Wisconsin—German.

William A. Scott, Ph. D., Associate Professor of Political Economy, University of Wisconsin—Political Economy.

Charles S. Slichter, M. S., Professor of Applied Mathematics, University of Wisconsin—Mathematics.

Benjamin F. Snow, Ph. D., Professor of Physics, University of Wisconsin—Physics.

Hiram A. Sober, A. B., Instructor in Latin, University of Wisconsin—Latin.

Frederick J. Turner, Ph. D., Professor of American History, University of Wisconsin—History.

LIBRARY LECTURE.

Librarian Smith gave the second of his series of library talks, yesterday evening, to the English and Civic-Historic students. The talk covered the same ground as was gone over Monday night with the classical and scientific students. This talk will be repeated Friday evening for the benefit of the engineering students, but as it will deal with the new card catalogue it will be of interest to the old as well as the new students. Next week Mr. Smith will give another series of talks in which he will deal with general reference works, their value and uses. The talk will be given on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings, to the same courses as this week.

—It is rumored that Harvard is trying to arrange a game with Princeton for Nov. 10.

Winners of class E win the championship.

Each team will be required to furnish a ball for the games in which they play.

The first two games of this series have been played, the sophomores winning the first and the junior laws the second. These games are to be played at Randall Field.

WEDDED AT ELKHORN.

A. E. Matheson of Janesville and Miss Georgia L. Hubbard.

The following appeared in the Milwaukee Sentinel this morning, and will be read with interest by the many friends of Mr. Matheson, who graduated with the law class of '94:

Elkhorn, Wis., Sept. 26.—Alexander E. Matheson of Janesville and Miss Georgia L. Hubbard were married here, today, at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Hubbard. The Rev. George C. Lochridge of the Congregational church performed the ceremony. Mr. Matheson is a member of the law firm of Fethers, Jeffris, Fifield & Matheson of Janesville, and is well-known in Walworth county. The bride is one of the best known young ladies of Elkhorn, and a great favorite in society circles. After an extended wedding trip east Mr. and Mrs. Matheson will reside in Janesville.

THE NEW AEGIS.

A Prize for a Short Story—Other Interesting Features.

The current number of The Aegis offers as a prize for the best short story written for that magazine a handsomely bound set of Bulwer-Lytton's works. The judges of the merits of the productions will be chosen from among the members of the faculty, who will pass upon them without knowing the names of the authors, thus insuring absolute fairness and impartiality towards all competitors. The following rules govern the contest:

1. The story must not exceed three thousand words.
2. Contributions must be signed with an assumed name, and accompanied by the real name of the writer placed in a sealed envelope bearing such assumed name on the outside.
3. Contributions should be addressed to the editor of The Aegis and marked "Prize Contest."
4. The contest closes December 10, 1894, and all contributions must be in or before that date.

This number of The Aegis contains Miss Vernon's oration, "The Muses and the Market Place," which won second honors at the junior exhibition last June; also an article by A. H. Sanford, '90, entitled "Notes from Harvard." Sketches and poems by local writers under such titles as "Inconstancy," "Peace," "Fable for an Absent Friend," "Life Work," and a continuation of "The Story of Senioratha" brighten the pages and some make very interesting reading. The notes by the athletic editor are timely and well-written. The usual brief review of the events of the fortnight is given under the head of "Progress of the University." The Aegis takes a decided stand in this issue against the extra gymnasium fees for the privileges of the natatorium and bowling alleys.

If the financial support warrants it, The Aegis will soon make a radical change for the better in its typographical appearance. All depends, however, upon the matter of subscriptions, as all advertising space is utilized.

GYMNASIUM NOTES.

The classes in physical culture are increasing rapidly. There were between one hundred and fifty and two hundred freshmen in the practice yesterday.

Mondays and Thursdays will be made special days for visitors at the gymnasium, Monday being the freshmen practice day and Thursday the sophomore day. Although the galleries are open at all times to visitors on these days visitors from the city are invited to come and inspect the work. Both ladies and gentlemen are invited.

MOOT COURT CASE.

The junior law class faculty Moot court held its first session this morning. The case presented was hotly contested, by Everett and Kull for the plaintiff, and Karel and Woodward for the defendant. The case was tried before the dean and Messrs. Worden and Buckley. A decision is rendered next week.

—Twenty-one Yale graduates will coach football teams this fall.

All ball players should turn out and make the class ball league a success. It is in these class games that the players are brought out who will in the future uphold the university in our intercollegiate games. It seems however that the schedule as marked out is a little uneven allowing as it really does, the losers in the first two contests an equal chance with the winners. A percentage system though more complex would be much better and fairer.

THE TENNIS DEPARTMENT.

The courts of the Tennis association, which border University avenue about a block west of Ladies' hall, are in danger of being closed.

This fall, although an unprecedented number of students has been enrolled, and though, with the great increase in the popularity of the game, tennis rackets have become a common decoration in the student's room, but six persons have paid the regular fee of a dollar and fifty cents per term for the use of the courts and for the support of the association.

Last spring more interest was felt. There were about fifty members, and the debt incurred by regular expenses, and the covering of two of the six courts with dirt, was paid off and a good balance left. This fall, the management is already in debt for the work done in scraping and rolling the courts and tending the nets, and estimates that it will cost twenty-five dollars to keep the grounds in condition the rest of the term.

It will be humiliating indeed, to think that this university, numbering 1,400 students, having one of the finest gymnasiums in the country, with a campus in its midst as level as a floor, and with an athletic field of many acres, cannot support the Tennis association with the magnificent sum of twenty-five dollars.

Beloit, a college, only a fraction of our institution in size, and Lake Forest have strong, robust organizations which have proven their mettle in many trials of skill.

We have been congratulating ourselves on the growth of our university in numbers. Three hundred and fifty freshmen have come here to get physical as well as mental cultivation, yet not one has so far joined the Tennis association. The reason for this is perhaps found in their unfamiliarity with the university, and also, in the common interest felt by all undergraduates in the new gymnasium. But this important branch of athletics must not be forgotten and the association cannot be permitted to die an unnatural death.

If the organization is well supported, it is probable that sometime during the next month the semi-annual tournament with Beloit will be held, but the players must begin to practice at once if we are to be a factor in the contest.

It is to be most earnestly hoped that during the next six weeks of delightful Indian summer, a large number of students will pay twenty-five cents a week for the benefit of this mild and invigorating exercise.

LITERARY NOTE.

Edwin L. Godkin, Esq., the editor of the Nation and New York Evening Post is the author of a recent monograph on the "Problems of Municipal Government," published by the American Academy of Political and Social Science. Mr. Godkin's essay takes up the municipal history of New York, discussing the problems which have arisen in its history, and pointing out thereby the problems which are confronting or will confront every large American city. He also indicates the remedies for the evils which New York is facing. No lover of good city government and no city official should fail to read Mr. Godkin's interesting paper.

THE HARVARD DAILY NEWS.

We have received the first issue of the Harvard Daily News. This will not take the place of the Harvard Crimson but Harvard will be the only college in the country publishing two daily papers. The Daily News contains an innovation in college journalism consisting of correspondence from the other institutions. C. M. Flandran, '95, is the editor of the new paper with L. W. Mott '96, managing editor.

J. J. Cunningham, law '94, now practicing at Monroe, has been nominated by the democrats of Green county for district attorney.

A. E. Buckmaster '89, law '94, was nominated for district attorney for Kenosha county on the republican ticket, Wednesday, on the first ballot. This is an honor for one who has only a three months' acquaintance in the county.

Mrs. Heyn, of Milwaukee, has been visiting her son, B. Heyn, of the class of '97, this week.

J. W. Schempf, pharmacy '96, of Watertown, who was compelled to go home early last week on account of sickness, has returned.

Parke H. Davis will act as coach of the Amherst football eleven this fall.

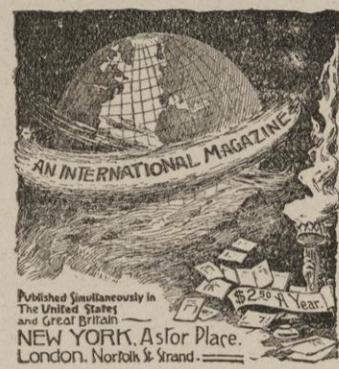

Miss Remington's class in German which recites at 11 o'clock will hereafter meet at that hour on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays.

FOOTBALL AT HARVARD.

The first week of football practice has shown that there are possibilities at Harvard of a very strong eleven. About thirty of the candidates were at Newcastle in July and Captain Emmons had the backs with him at Falmouth the first of this month. A week ago the regular training on Soldiers Field began. Of last year's eleven, Emmons, Stevenson, Manahan, Beale, Wrightington, Dunlap and C. Brewer are all at work; several of the substitutes including Winslow, A. Brewer, Fairchild, Gray, Foster, Hallowell and Jackson are also out. Wrenn is in Cambridge and probably will be out trying for quarter in a day or two. Waters has not yet returned to Cambridge, but it is hoped that he and possibly Mackie will play. The freshman material for the center positions is above the average. Holt, Meeler, Hennan and Shaw are all big men who should give good accounts of themselves before the end of the season. Dr. Brooks is acting this year as chief coach, and Mr. Lathrop will look out for the physical condition of the men. Monday for the first time the men lined up and played a regular game.

COLLEGE NEWS.

The University band at Leland Stanford gives open air concerts daily. —Herbert Alward has been chosen captain of the Chicago A. A. eleven.

—Marshall Newell '94, the ex-Harvard tackle, is coaching the Cornell team this fall.

—Attendance at Sunday afternoon vespers at Amherst are no longer compulsory.

—Although Cornell has not yet opened, about sixty candidates for the football team are said to have reported for practice.

—Vail, the old Pennsylvania quarterback, will coach the University of Illinois eleven this fall.

—Leland Stanford, Jr., University has an enrollment of 916 students this year.

—Princeton college opened the 148th year of her collegiate existence with an attendance about the same as last year.

—The new football field at Yale has just been completed. It is situated on the extreme northwestern part of the Yale field and is pronounced the finest in the state.

UNLESS SHE MARRIES.

Romance was eclipsed by reality in the case heard this morning by the judges of the second civil chambers.

A Mlle. Maquet put in a claim for £6,000, the amount of a legacy bequeathed her by a M. Poncault, who recently died in America. Poncault's career was a strange one. Thirty years ago he was a simple shoeblock on the quays of Havre. Disgusted with his humble and ill-paid calling, he went on board a ship bound for South America, and hid himself as a stowaway.

When well on the Atlantic he was discovered and pulled out of his hole by order of the captain. Luckily for himself, he was able to make himself useful as a roustabout, and no proceedings were taken against him when the ship arrived in port.

Once on transatlantic soil, Poncault, who had embarked at Havre without a penny in his pocket, set to work with a will. He was everything by turns and nothing long. He roughed it for some time, and was lost to his friends in France until a few years since, when he returned home a wealthy man. He died leaving a solid fortune of 5,000,000f., or £200,000.

Of this sum he bequeathed £6,000 to Mlle. Maquet, but she was only to receive it on the day of her marriage. Mlle. Maquet, however, does not appear to be in a hurry to take a husband, for she asked the court to allow her to receive the money as a single woman. The judges were inexorable, and pointed grimly to the clause of M. Poncault's will, in which the marriage proviso was inserted. The applicant will accordingly have to look out for a husband, if she wants to benefit by the bequest of the ex-shoeblock.—London Telegraph.
