Dedication.

To the football team, and the Badger crew,
The Varsity eight, and the Freshmen too,
To some of your friends,—perhaps to you,
To the wonderful class of nineteen two,
To the Profs you love, and the Profs you don't,
To the Profs who will, and the Profs who won't,
To the Hare'sfoot Club, and to Mitschke's band,
To the Sophomore's pluck, and the Freshman's sand,
To the joint debate, and the girls' ice fete,
To the eight o'clock student who never comes late,
To all good things both grand and great,
This Badger of ours we dedicate.

New Members of the Faculty.

Carl Russell Fish, A. M., Ph. D.

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF AMERICAN HISTORY

CARL RUSSELL FISH was born in Central Falls, Rhode Island, Oct. 17, 1876. He prepared for college at the Providence High School, and graduated from Brown University in 1897. He studied at Harvard from 1897 to 1900, receiving in 1898 the degree of A. M. and in 1900 that of Ph. D. During his last year at Harvard he held an Austin teaching fellowship and did instructional work at Radcliffe. In 1900 he was elected to a Harvard travelling fellowship, but declined it to accept an instructorship in American history at the University of Wisconsin, where in 1902 he received the appointment of Assistant Professor of American History.

Professor Fish is a member of the fraternities  $\Theta\Pi$  and  $\Phi BK$ , of the American Historical Association and the Wisconsin Historical Society and has written various articles on the history of the civil service.

George Converse Fiske, A. M., Ph. D.

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF LATIN

GEORGE CONVERSE FISKE was born at Roxbury, Mass., February 28, 1872. He prepared for college at the Boston Latin School and was graduated from Harvard University with the class of '94. During the next two years he was instructor in Latin and English at the Belmont School, Belmont, Mass., after which he returned to Harvard to study in the department of Classical Philology in the Graduate School. Here he received the degree of A. M. in 1897 and the degree of Ph. D. in 1900. In the fall of 1900 he was made instructor in Greek in Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., a position which he resigned at the end of the first term to accept an appointment as instructor in Latin at the University of Wisconsin.

Eugene Allen Gilmore, A. B., LL. B.

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF LAW.

EUGENE ALLEN GILMORE is a graduate of DePauw University and of the Harvard Law School, receiving the degree of Bachelor of Arts from the former institution in 1893, and the degree of Bachelor of Laws from the latter institution in 1899. After graduation from the law school he was admitted to the bar in Massachusetts and practised law in Boston until receiving his present appointment here. He is a member of the Delta Kappa Epsilon and the Phi Beta Kappa fraternities.

Charles Kenneth Leith, Ph. D.

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF GEOLOGY AND ASSISTANT GEOLOGIST

CHARLES KENNETH LEITH was born in Trempealeau, Wisconsin, January 20, 1875. During Mr. Leith's entire educational career, he has had a close connection with the University of Wisconsin, having received the degree of Bachelor of Science from this institution in 1897. From 1897 to 1901 he was employed as assistant in the United States Geological Survey, at the expiration of which time he received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy at Wisconsin. At present he holds the position of Assistant Geologist under the United States Geological Survey, having been appointed to this position in 1901. Professor Leith was chosen Assistant Professor of Geology in the University of Wisconsin in 1902.

Dana Carleton Munro, A. M.

PROFESSOR OF EUROPEAN HISTORY

DANA CARLETON MUNRO was born at Bristol, R. I., June 7, 1866. He was graduated at Brown University in the class of '87 and taught at De Veaux College, Suspension Bridge, N. J., and Haverford College Grammar School, Haverford, Pa. From 1893 to 1902 he was instructor and assistant professor of Roman and Medieval History at the University of Pennsylvania, and in the fall of 1902 he was appointed to succeed Professor C. H. Haskins as professor of European History.

From 1894 to 1902, Professor Munro was editor of the series of "Translations and Reprints from the Sources of European History." He has published a "History of the Middle Ages," and various pamphlets.

James David Phillips, B. S.

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF MECHANICAL DRAWING

JAMES DAVID PHILLIPS is a native of Illinois, having been born in Chicago June 1, 1869. He was graduated from the University of Illinois in 1893 with the degree of Bachelor of Science. After graduation he was made assistant in pattern making at his Alma Mater, a position which he resigned in 1894 upon his being chosen Assistant in Mechanical Engineering in the Department of Machine Design. He later became an instructor in Engineering Drawing and was subsequently promoted from that position to an assistant professorship in that department. Professor Phillips was called last year to the University of Wisconsin to occupy the position of Assistant Professor in the Department of Mechanical Drawing.

Professor Phillips is a member of the honorary fraternity of Tau Beta Pi and of the Shield and Trident at the University of Illinois.

Emil Peter Sandsten, M. S.

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF HORTICULTURE

EMIL PETER SANDSTEN was born in Kalmar, Sweden, September 15, 1868. He received his early education in the schools of his native country. He was graduated from the University of Minnesota in 1895, and received the degree of Master of Science from that institution in 1898. In the period between 1894 and 1896, he held the position of assistant in horticulture at his Alma Mater, which position he resigned to continue his studies in his chosen science. During the years 1898 and 1899, Mr. Sandsten was employed as botanist for the Northwestern Grass Twine Company of St. Paul. In the two years that followed, he continued his studies toward a Doctor's degree, but postponed taking this degree to accept a position in the Maryland Agricultural College as Associate Professor of Horticulture. Professor Sandsten now holds the position of Associate Professor of Horticulture and Economic Entomology in the University of Wisconsin, to which position he was called in 1902.

Grant Showerman, Ph. D.

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF LATIN

GRANT SHOWERMAN was born January 9, 1870, at Brookfield, Wisconsin. He was graduated from the University of Wisconsin in 1896, was Fellow in Latin for the two succeeding years, and in 1898 received an appointment as Fellow in the American School of Classical Studies at Rome. After two years spent in this capacity he received, in 1900, the degree of Doctor of Philosophy from the University of Wisconsin and was appointed Instructor of Latin in the same institution. In 1902 he was promoted to the rank of Assistant Professor. He is a member of the American Philological Association and a contributor to the American Journal of Philology.

Samuel Edward Sparling, Ph. D.

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF POLITICAL SCIENCE

SAMUEL EDWARD SPARLING was born at Rensselear, Indiana, January 8, 1866. After graduation from the high school he entered the University of Indiana in 1887, graduating from that institution in 1892. In the fall of the same year he took up post-graduate work in the University of Wisconsin. Later he spent two years abroad, studying most of the time in Germany. On returning he received a Fellowship in Political Science in the University of Wisconsin, and the degree of Ph. D. was later conferred upon him by this institution in 1896. He was appointed Assistant in Political Science in 1896; Instructor in Political Science in 1898; and Assistant Professor of Political Science in 1902. Dr. Sparling has taken a leading part in the municipal work of Madison and has become identified with various municipal organizations. He has served two terms in the city council of Madison, being elected the first time in 1900 and re-elected in 1902. He has contributed various articles on municipal work and has been editor of the Municipality for some time. In 1898 was elected to the secretaryship of the League of the Wisconsin Municipalities and is at present a member of the National Municipal League.

E. Ray Stevens, B. L., LL. B.

LECTURER IN CRIMINAL LAW

E. RAY STEVENS was born in Lake County, Illinois, June 20, 1869. He was graduated from the University of Wisconsin in 1893 and received the degree of LL. B. here in 1895. After graduating he went into newspaper work for a short time and then formed a law partnership with Burr W. Jones in Madison, where he practised up to the time of his appointment, in the fall of 1902, as lecturer in the Law School on Criminal Law and Damages. Just before receiving his appointment, he served one term as a member of the Assembly in the Wisconsin Legislature.

Oliver Brunner Zimmerman

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF MACHINE DESIGN

O. B. ZIMMERMAN was born in Galena, Ill., September 2, 1873. His early training was obtained entirely in the schools of Milwaukee County, where he graduated in 1892 from the East Division High School. Upon graduation there he secured the John Johnson Scholarship to the University of Wisconsin, and entered the Mechanical Engineering course in the fall of 1892. While a student he was active in track athletics, representing his institution for four years in the inter-collegiate games. After graduation he became an instructor and director of mathematics and manual training in the West Division High School of Milwaukee, remaining there until 1900. Having completed the work required for the M. E. degree, he was granted it that year by his Alma Mater and in the fall was made an instructor in descriptive geometry and elementary machine design at Wisconsin. He was promoted to his present position in September, 1902.

CHARLES KENDALL ADAMS.

MARY MATTHEWS ADAMS.

Charles Kendall Adams

Charles Kendall Adams was born at Derby, Vermont, Jan. 24, 1835. He was the product of a long line of farmers, slow men in love with the soil and the stars, hardy, from breathing the mountain air and treading the frosty furrows. From these men he inherited a body capable of great endurance. For all this he gave thanks. Yet he depended, perhaps, too much on this richest legacy, for, in the later years, when the shadow of disease fell across his path and he was urged to take exercise, he smiled, as the vision rose before him of the deep-chested, strong-limbed men who had begotten him, and said, "My ancestors took exercise enough for me."

In 1855, at the age of 20, he led the way to Iowa, his family coming a year later. His long suppressed desire for an education finally had its way, and at the age of 21 he entered upon his preparation for college in a pioneer Iowa academy. After one year, with little Latin and less Greek, a raw countryman, he dropped down at the University of Michigan, with no money, only his hands and the blessing of his parents. Working one's way through college is common. He did whatever his hands found to do; taught the village school until discharged for persisting in opening the daily session with prayer, and finally, became assistant in the University library, and, surrounded by books, was happy. He was graduated in 1861, the oldest, but by no means the most promising man in his class.

His career as an educator was briefly this: In the University of Michigan, Professor of Latin and History, from 1863-67; Professor of History, 1867-85, and Dean of the School of Political Science; non-resident Professor of History, Cornell University, 1881-85; the president of Cornell, 1885-92; and, finally, president of the University of Wisconsin, 1892-1902. As a teacher and university executive he was alert, wisely conservative, but never afraid to move forward. He was the first in the United States to use the seminary method in teaching history, and responded quickly to the demand, first at Cornell and afterwards at Wisconsin, for a wider and more practical instruction in the industrial arts and sciences.

He left no historical work commensurate with his learning and ability. His "Democracy and Monarchy in France," "Manual of Historical Literature," "Representative British Orations," "Life of Columbus," "The Universal Cyclopaedia," of which he was editor-in-chief, and numerous magazine articles, mainly on educational topics, we must reluctantly accept in lieu of the great historical work that he dreamed of and planned, but never found time to execute.

To administer a great university leaves little time or strength for other tasks. Both of the great institutions over which he presided have repaid his wise care. The graduating class at Cornell increased during his seven years of service from 61 to 282. We are yet too near his work in Wisconsin to see it all in right relations. But as time passes we shall note more and more during his administration a remarkable growth and development along many lines—economics and history and engineering and agriculture—indeed, along all lines, for in his wisdom he never forgot that the basis of a liberal culture must include languages and literature and philosophy and the fundamental sciences. He never feared that Wisconsin would incline unduly to industrialism. The one sentence most often on his lips was this, "The University belongs to the people." It was to him a great instrument for the dissemination of learning and culture, as well as a means to better physical life for society.

His work as President of the University will mingle with that of his predecessors, with that of the faculty, and largely flow into the achievements of those who are to follow him. But his personality will abide distinct. From the raw country boy had come a polished gentleman, a great scholar, modest, simple, and democratic, whose learning and high services were never intruded upon your attention. He was so completely loyal to Wisconsin that it seemed no previous bond could have existed. He was optimistic, his life lay still before him, he felt himself cut off at the beginning of his labors. He was constructive, progressive, loved architecture as he loved music and painting; he was a sincere worshipper at the shrine of the beautiful. He was religious, a conservative, maintained family prayers, not given to theological discussion, clearly recognizing the tendencies in modern religious thinking, yet his religious nature was so simple that it spoke always through the symbols he learned at his mother's knee.

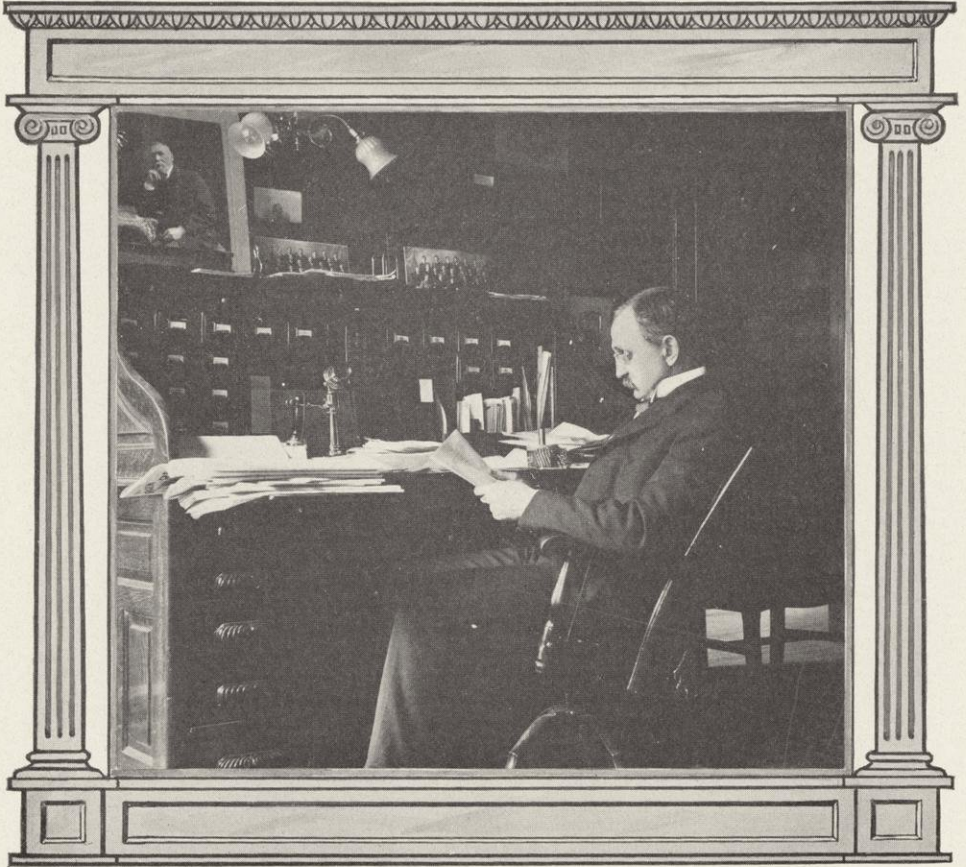

In 1902, after more than a year's absence from the University, discouraged, almost heart-broken, he resigned, moved to Redlands, California, to live and get well if God so willed. He built a new home in an orange grove commanding a view rarely equalled even in California. There President and Mrs. Adams lived their last few months. He died July 26, 1902; Mrs. Adams died four months later.

In the little cemetery at Redlands, under the bluest of blue skies, and with the white-hooded mountains smiling down upon them, the good president and his wife, who so loved the University and Madison and the people of Wisconsin, sleep the sweet sleep of those who are justified by high thoughts and noble deeds.

D. B. F.

JOHN BUTLER JOHNSON.

John Butler Johnson

By the accidental death of Dean J. B. Johnson, on June 23rd, 1902, the University of Wisconsin and the engineering and educational world suffered a very great loss; a loss not only of a highly efficient and active worker, but to an unusual extent that of a strong personality.

Dean Johnson was born of Quaker parentage on a farm near Marlboro, Stark Co., Ohio, June 11, 1850. In 1866 the family moved to Kokomo, Indiana, where he attended Howard College for a short time and later went to the Holbrook Normal School at Lebanon, Indiana. From 1868 to 1872 he taught school in Indiana and Arkansas, and in 1872 went to Indianapolis as Secretary of the School Board. He also taught one year in the Indianapolis High School, where he was required to teach Latin, although never having studied Latin himself. In 1874 he entered the University of Michigan and graduated in 1878 from the Civil Engineering course.

After graduating, Professor Johnson was engaged until 1881 on the survey of the Great Lakes, and from 1881 to 1883 he was assistant engineer on the Mississippi River Commission, in which position he accomplished considerable work of public importance. The recommendations he made regarding river control were considered radical at the time, but have since proved to have been wise and peculiarly foresighted.

In 1883 he became Professor of Civil Engineering at Washington University, St. Louis, where he remained for sixteen years. During the years spent in this position he gained a world-wide reputation by his valuable contributions to engineering literature and by his active work in connection with engineering and scientific societies. Probably his greatest contribution to the engineering profession has been his four published works on engineering subjects, all of which he prepared while at St. Louis.

Professor Johnson's greatest activities were in engineering education, and his reputation as an educator was at this time so well-established that when he was called to the Deanship of the College of Engineering of the University of Wisconsin, in 1899, it was confidently felt by all who knew him that the right man had been found for the place. And this feeling has been more than justified by the service he has done the College of Engineering and the University during his short administration. The large growth in attendance in the College, the increase in equipment, and the construction of the new Engineering Building are the more evident signs of progress which have been in great measure due to his labor. But it is not too much to say that Dean Johnson's greatest service to the University was in the influence he exerted in broadening the spirit of the Engineering College and in cultivating a healthy esprit de corps among the student body.

While, first of all, an inspiring teacher, Dean Johnson was also deeply interested in all that contributed to the welfare of society. He was a member of many engineering and other societies and in all these his activity and helpfulness were almost remarkable. In the church he was equally active, and in all worthy enterprises of the community was always ready to lend a hand. It seems most unfortunate that a man should be taken away in the prime of life with such great promise for future work; and yet it was in one sense as he would have wished—that as long as he lived he would be able to do with vigor his full part in society. His loss is felt by a very wide circle of friends and by many interests, but by none more keenly than by his own students and the younger generation of engineers to whom he was an inspiration and guide.

Emmett Stull Goff

Emmett Stull Goff was born at Elmira, N. Y., September 3, 1852; he died at Madison, June 6, 1902. Professor Goff was graduated from the Elmira Free Academy in 1869. He was a student all his life, and in order to pursue his favorite line he became a good French scholar and was a thorough, systematic botanist. The New York experiment station was the first of such institutions to be established in the United States, and Professor Goff became its first horticulturist. Here he did excellent work, gaining a reputation reaching far beyond the borders of his state. In 1889 he was called to the chair of horticulture in the University of Wisconsin. Whatever fair name the College of Agriculture of this university may have attained, is due in no small measure to the excellent work of Professor Goff. As an investigator he was original, ingenious and persistent. His best single work was his studies carried on at the university and at Chicago University on, "The Time and Manner of the Formation of Flower Buds." As a teacher, Professor Goff was methodical and orderly to the last degree. Careless, shallow-minded students found little comfort under his drill and direction. His mind was always on the basic principles of the subject taught. There was no flash and little brilliancy in what he attempted, but there was always clearness, earnestness and an effort toward a well-defined end. Professor Goff was the writer of several books, the most widely used of which was his "Principles of Plant Culture." At the time of his death he was at work on a text-book which will soon come from the press of one of the leading book companies.

As an associate Professor Goff was considerate to the last degree of the rights and welfare of others. During the latter years of his life his health was impaired, yet such was his self-control and patience that few saw evidences of this save those most closely associated with him. The loss of Professor Goff to the University of Wisconsin is a serious one. In his leaving us there is added one more name to the steadily growing list of those who, passing away, have done their full share in giving renown to our beloved university.

Athenae vs. Philomathia

Program

PROF. D. B. FRANKENBURGER . . . . . President of the evening

Question

Is the present concentration of vast aggregations of capital in the United States, in single, private manufacturing corporations, inimical to the public welfare?

Interpretation:

(a) Single, private manufacturing corporations shall not include those operating under franchises by municipal corporations. (b) Manufacturing means the process, or one of the processes, of converting the raw material into the finished product.

WEARERS OF THE W

The following list is the result of an attempt on the part of the Badger Board to collect the names of the men who have won "W"s in any department of athletics in the University of Wisconsin. At the indoor meet in 1897 the official "W"s were awarded for the first time; they were given to the men who had previously merited them as well as the athletes of that year. This list contains the names of men who have played on all the 'Varsity football teams, rowed on the 'Varsity crew, won points in the inter-collegiate track meet, and won "W"s on the tennis team. The baseball list begins with the official awards in 1897 and ends with last year's team. Names of men who played successive years are not repeated:

Oh,
We know—
You're mad.
You won't speak to us
Because you're angry.
Yes, and you're just making a fuss
Because we
Said something about you
That you don't like. Gee,
What we said about you
Wasn't nothing. You ought to see
What we
Said about some folks.
I tell you, you wasn't in it when it comes to the jokes
We've got on some people. Yes,
And I guess
If they were on you—
Oh well; course if you're sore
And won't speak to to us
Nor nothing,
Well,
We don't care.
We don't want to play in your yard anyway.
Our cwn's better. Go on and tell
The Teacher,
Old tattletale!
We're glad we said that about you
And we wish
We'd said a lot more like it,
And worse, too.
Go on and tell.
We don't care.

A TOAST TO HIS MAJESTY

With our care and our trouble dispersed
We have drunk to the knights and the ladies;
Now here's to the patron of Thirst—
The Monarch of Mirth and of Hades.
Preceptor of pleasure and sin
And ruler of riot and revel:—
Lent's over, old fellow, come in—
Here's to the Devil.

With the Pharaoh's still in their prime,
He filled them with drink and with laughter;
The Romans and Greeks in their time
Were his while they lived and long after.
The rollicking routers of France,
The Spaniards carousing at Seville,
Kept time to his maddening dance:—
Here's to the Devil.

The bubbles wink over the brim;
We've drunk to the lads and the lasses,
What's fairer than drinking to him
Who taught us the clink of the glasses?
So now all good toppers who can,
Drink deep while your heads remain level,
Drink deep to the master of man—
Here's to the Devil.

JOE'S LAST RUN

By '02

"..... thousands went
Eagerly forth, inflamed with
Strong desire to see them; and on rivalries intent;
Many good youths and tall rose up to try the event."

HE gong in the rotunda of the hotel has just rung out the half hour between twelve and one and there is a scurrying to and fro to get grips, shots, hammers, and vaulting poles. Upstairs in the big dining room a few hungry boys are lingering over their weak tea and toast, all the while casting eyes full of longing at the delicacies around them. At last the belongings are all found; one more lingering look taken at the dinner table, a look which can scarcely conceal a hidden gleam of expectancy of the good things that are to adorn its white cover at the "break-training-supper."

"Wisconsin men this way," shouts old Joe, who is acting as captain in the absence of his chief. The voice rings out clearly still with a slight tremor in it to betray the agitation and emotions in the breast of the speaker. Once more for perhaps the fiftieth time the men are told what is expected, but somehow the impression wrought by the words of the ex-captain on this day is deeper than usual and some of the men turn away after the "U! RAH! RAH!" has died away in the corridor with just a slight lumpy feeling in the throat.

Joe stands out from the group in striking contrast. Involuntarily the picture comes up of a most animated figure standing on the floor of the debating society haranguing the jury. That long forefinger rises and falls once and again, now faster, now more slowly, each time accompanied by a vigorous thump on his left wrist. There is an unnatural gleam in his eye, and his voice betrays the trouble that he has been fighting against for weeks. When he last appeared for practice he could scarcely do his regular "workout," and at times, even, could breathe only with difficulty.

Out along the busy thoroughfares the cable-car bears this load of pentup energy, which at times can no longer restrain itself and must break forth in a yell of such power as to startle even the hurried pedestrian. Now the old brick and stone walls fling back and forth the "SKI! U! MAH!" now the deep, terror-instilling bark of "U! RAH! RAH!" the haunting cry of the Wolverine or the long drawnout "CHI-CA-GO!"

After an age of riding, the field is reached. The grandstand with its waving cardinal, maroon, blue and a dozen other colors furnishes a joyous scene, rampant with much good-natured bantering and no little "guying." Section after section volleys forth, here a song, there a vigorous "tiger" until the excited competitor, as he walks down the path to his dressing room is ready to start right in and take every hurdle with a half mile added.

The usual track and field events go off with fierceness and spirit, each trial of skill and speed draws greater applause than the preceding and anxiously are the points counted as they are written on the big score-board. Bitter are the disappointments of some of the veterans, while the day sees several "dark horses" lifted in a twinkling into athletic fame by some unexpected supreme effort. Through it all, however, the crowd wears an air of expectancy, for it is known that the last event will be a new one in the West.

The finals in the 220-yard hurdles are called and the leapers dig their spikes into the cinders and await impatiently the sound of the pistol. But back in the dressing room twenty-odd men are pacing restlessly to and fro, waiting like Glaucus for their entry into the arena; one is lying flat on his back getting a last finishing touch put on his already much-kneaded muscles, another is trying to lace his shoe, but his fingers are almost useless in the operation, so nerveless is his grasp. Another takes a swallow of cold water to moisten the mouth that before many minutes will crave a drop of water as the greatest boon; still another disobeys all orders and stands alongside the track, his blanket idly flapping in the breeze, trying to forget the coming struggle in the excitement of watching the hurdlers.

"Last call for the two mile!" rings out the voice of the announcer, and there is a precipitate exit of the runners from their cages. The roll is called, positions taken, final instructions given and the starter poises in the air the small blue barrel of his pistol. "Now go after them!" "Do your work, old man!" "Keep the inside track!" and many like exhortations fall on deaf ears.

Whatever each one may be thinking of at the moment, there is the unmistakable look of homesickness in the eyes of most of them and even on the faces of the reputed best there comes and goes alternately flickerings of confidence, followed by a worried look. In some of the faces one can read that the struggle is already on: the arms are drawn up at the sides and the leg is involuntarily raised and then the spikes are dug vigorously into the ground. For the hundredth time, perhaps, they have, in their imagination, coursed the distance and crossed the tape.

Bang! The thin white smoke curls lazily upward and is borne away on the wind, the crowd settles down on the grandstand seats to watch the tiring-out process, to wait for the three or four weary, sobbing ones who will stick it out and furnish the hungry spectator that choice morsel which will set his sportsmanlike palate tickling for weeks to come.

Who will win? Ay, there's the rub! If you can figure that out you will do a great service to some man who greedily and fearfully clutches his wad of greenbacks. One there is picked to win by nearly the whole West—the champion mile walker, the man who has with that long, tireless, sweeping swing three consecutive times walked to victory, has in three intercollegiate added points to the credit of the cardinal, the ex-captain—Joe. You who have read the title will say, "Of course Joe won," but Joe did not win. Yet the man who did win will never forget that race.

One lap, two laps, three, four, five—the runners are no longer bunched but stretched out in a long thin line; the pace is beginning to tell; there is coming over the faces of some expressions which belong to those in trouble. From some the fight has already oozed and the light has gone out of their eyes.

Now ensues the "scrapping" for positions, the pace changes oftener, the "hoo-doo" are all long since eliminated and the real contest is drawing on. That peculiar thing called "spunk" or grit is coming slowly to a blaze in old Joe, and like a spark that creeps along from point to point finally leaps into a flame brilliant and inextinguishable. And still the laps are told off, "three more to go," "two more to go," issues cold and piercingly from the big end of the megaphone in the hands of the man at the tape!

Bang! Again the pistol spits out a wreath of smoke and the last lap is on. The spark is now in full blaze. Joe leaps out as if shot from a catapult and starts the long pull home. The pace which till now has been terrific becomes even faster and more furious. The arms of the runners are drawn up tense and bent at the elbow, the legs come up as if weights were pendant to them, the dry throat is consumed with burning thirst, the heart in response to the increased work put upon it is uttering loud protests and bombards the ribs, the shoulders rock from side to side, but still the laboring runners move mechanically on.

Just behind Joe is running stealthily and with just a mite more strength, a Michigan runner. They reach the home stretch; the hundreds of faces now melt into one; the cheering and shouting sound but feebly now; the tape seems so far, so far away. The will is there; the spirit is just as strong, but the flesh is weary; the long weeks of disability are telling. The last hundred yards which Joe is wont to cover in a glorious burst of speed is his Waterloo. As the Michigan runner creeps past him, something like a sob accompanies Joe's exhortation to his team mates as he utters in a gasp, "Catch him, boys!" Still he has not given up the fight. This last spurt is glorious to the spectator, but the spent runner longs for the end, for it seems to him as if he were crawling along with the "clogged pace of a dreamer."

THE LONG PULL HOME

Now the order is Michigan first—Wisconsin second. Can the Wolverine hold it? Chunk, chunk, chunk, the laboring fighters speed over the few remaining yards; the muscles are strained to breaking and the gap is opening just a trifle; the Wisconsin enthusiasts rise as one man to their feet to urge on their representative. "Can he close it?" "Hit it up, Joe!" "You've got to win, old man!" "Wisconsin!" "Come on, Wisconsin!" No, it is plain now that Joe's is a losing race—his last race and he is losing. But it is the race of his life, a race of desperation, a race that has in store nothing but defeat. It is Leonidas battling in the narrow mountain pass at old Thermopylae, it is the "Old Guard" facing the inevitable; fighting at sundown the battle that will make the sun rise on a greater fame than would have been theirs had they won.

The soft yielding tape presses lightly on the breast of the victor and the race is over with Joe stumbling across the line only a few feet in the rear. Then comes the long rest; how soft the ground feels to those tired bodies! Three weary runners prostrate on the sod slowly pant themselves back to a normal condition, but the fourth lies stretched out with eyes closed.

What he suffered in that race against odds only the men who ran beside him can ever know: only the man who has put his last ounce of strength into his oar, or the man who has thrown his exhausted body to protect his goal from the onrushing formation. Before all alike there looms up that old slogan which hangs ensconced in the foot-ball room, the watchword of all Wisconsin athletes, "IN WISCONSIN THERE ARE NO QUITTERS."

"I WONDER WHY HE DOESN'T LOOK UP."

First Coed—Why do they call out those numbers before each play?

Second Coed—Why, that's to tell the man how far to carry the ball. Didn't you know that?

Chicago Alumna (entertaining male quartette)—And oh, Mr. Washburn, how about the University Band? Do they still have that same funny little drum major?

WANDERLUST

I'm sick of this place with its study,
It's work and its worry and care;
My thoughts have grown sodden and muddy,
I'm starving for room and for air.
I hate all these quizzes and classes—
Too trivial business for men—
I want to go out on the old hobo route—
The Go-fever's got me again!

I'm tired of the drives and the dances,
The flirting and folly and fun.
I'm weary of foolish romances,
My loves are the air and the sun!
And always and ever they're calling,
"Come back, oh come back to our ken!"
And I'm eager to start, for I feel in my heart
The Go-fever's got me again.

Then it's ho! for the ways I shall follow—
The path or the trail I shall tread.
In the plain and the mountain and hollow,
With the great gracious sky overhead;
Where there's room for a fellow to breathe in—
Not cooped like a beast in a pen.
I want to go out on the old hobo route,
The Go-fever's got me again!

"out surged the gang. The next thing I remember was finding myself near the bottom of a heap of about fifty. When I regained my feet there was a horrible mix-up near the lake shore, so of course I joined in. I rescued two or three perhaps and then was captured by five sophs and after a fierce fight was picked up and carried to the lake. At the edge two let go, that left three hold of me, one stumbled on the stones, that left two for me; I got wet up to the waist, they got ducked all over and when they could get their breath I was gone. I helped put in three others and helped rescue a lot of freshies."—Special correspondence from Walter Sacket, '06.

THE GIRL FROM THE CULTURED EAST

BY WILLIS BRINDLEY

YOU probably have heard of or known one of those fellows who say things first and think afterwards. Jimmie Hartley was worse than that. He did not even take the trouble to think afterwards. In other words he was one of those "don't-give-a-whoop" boys who are forever getting into fresh difficulties.

It happened at a rushing party given by the Omega Delta sorority. The party was given in honor of a girl named Lee, from Cambridge, Mass. Now, Jimmie does not especially object to Eastern people, except when they boast of the "cultured East."

This girl was such a one.

Jimmie danced with her and between dances she told him all about "deah old Haavaad," its age and the air of refinement which surrounded it. She also tried to impress upon him the fact that everything Eastern is necessarily perfect and all west of the Alleghenies crude and uncultured. All this may be true, but it doesn't make a fellow feel any happier to be told about it.

Jimmie wanted to prove to her that she was wrong, but he didn't know anything about the East and couldn't think of anything in Madison that he could describe in such a way as to make that city outshine the cultured Cambridge, Mass. Therefore, though inwardly boiling, he was compelled to sit and listen.

"Do you know," said Miss Lee, after she had finished praising the East and had begun to defame the West, "everything here seems to an Easterner so dreadfully coarse and uncultured. Why, only yesterday I had occasion to make some small purchases in one of your shops, and I was surprised and shocked at the rudeness of your clerks. Two of the shop girls in one of the dry goods stores were especially impertinent. They kept making remarks to one another, evidently about me, and when I started to go out, one of them asked if I were a member of the 'Way Down East' Company. Imagine my feelings!"

The orchestra began to play and Jimmie left his friend from the cultured East. After a while he returned and sat out a dance with her. Miss Lee evidently did not remember him at all, for she gave him the same line of talk that he had heard earlier in the evening. As she seemed to enjoy it, Jimmie let her continue, and listened anew to r-less praises of "deah old Haavaad," and it was not until she began to tell again the story about the rude Madison shop girls that he saw a chance to get even.

"Only yesterday," Miss Lee started, as before, "I had occasion to make some small purchases in one of your shops and I was surprised and shocked at the rudeness of the shop girls. Two of the clerks in one dry goods store were especially impertinent, and one actually had the impudence to ask"—

"If you were a member of the 'Way Down East' Company," Jimmie broke in. "So you're the girl, are you?"

"Why, yes," she said, a puzzled expression on her face, "but—how do you come to know about it?"

"Oh, that's easy," answered Jimmie,

"The girls told me, of course. I know the girls in that store very well."

"What! You associate with shop girls, and are not ashamed to admit it. I refuse to believe it."

"Oh, yes," said he, smiling, "You know, out here in the West we regard women according to their real worth. If they are respectable girls it makes no difference whether they work for a living or not. Their social standing is equally good. Money has nothing whatever to do with the question. Now, that little Rose, the light-haired one, is an especial friend of mine. She wouldn't be intentionally rude for the world. I don't know the other clerk so well, but I understand she is a nice girl."

"But they are shop girls," Miss Lee interrupted, "and in the East we do not associate with such people."

Miss Lee threw back her head, half closed her eyes, and looked at him as he had seen girls look at an ugly snake in a museum.

Jimmie was beginning to enjoy the fun. His scheme was working even better than he had hoped, so he kept at it.

"And right there is where you are wrong. You people from the cultured East have a lot to learn from us poor savages in the West."

Then he went on, telling the poor girl a lot of fables about shop girls going to military hops, and even the Prom, with some of the finest fellows in college; and by the time he had finished, Miss Lee was probably impressed with the democratic simplicity of the West as she had never been before. He thought at first that he would come around later in the evening and confess that he had been lying.

Then he decided that he wouldn't.

On the hill next day, Jimmie met three Omega Deltas and they all cut him dead. He did not understand why, and so when the fourth started to turn aside as he came near, he went up to her and touched her on the arm.

"What do you want?" she asked.

"Merely an explanation," he said, politely.

"Why do you all cut me this morning?"

She drew back, half closed her eyes, and looked at him as Miss Lee had done the night before.

"The Omega Deltas do not associate with shop girls, Mr. Hartley," she said, speaking each word slowly and distinctly, "or with men who associate with shop girls, and have not pride enough to conceal the fact. Good morning."

And Jimmie has been trying, ever since, to explain to the Omega Deltas just how it happened.

Professor Scott Lectureth

This morning we will take up England's domestic trade. Now, of course, you understand by domestic trade I mean home trade, trade between merchants in England itself, not outside of England; for instance, if a merchant in London sold a pig to a merchant in York, that would be domestic trade because it is between two different English merchants, living in England and trading with each other in England, not outside. Domestic trade is entirely home trade, you understand, it is not like foreign trade. Foreign trade, for an English merchant, would be trade with some country outside of England, such as France. But, as I said before, I shall talk to-day of England's domestic trade. Now, I assure you it is very necessary and important for you to get the distinction between domestic and foreign trade thoroughly clear in your mind. It is the fault of freshmen—(I must have attention here. If you do not care to listen to the lecture you may leave. I want only earnest students here)—As I started to say, the difference between these two forms of trade, domestic and foreign, must be grasped. To make it more clear I will illustrate:

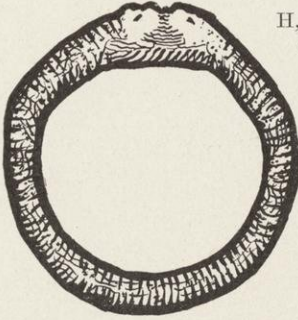

A merchant in London sells a handkerchief to a merchant in Paris. That is foreign trade, not because it is a handkerchief, but because it is with a foreign country. If the English merchant (although he may be a Jew, but I mean the merchant in England,) sells the handkerchief to a merchant in York, or if the merchant in Paris (Paris, France, not Paris, Wis.) sells the handkerchief, or any other thing, it does not have to be a handkerchief, you understand, to a merchant in Rouen, that would be English domestic trade in the first case, French domestic trade in the second. I, however, shall take up only English domestic trade. I used the other merely as an illustration.

Repeat ad libitum.

THE RING OF ANANIAS

By BERTON BRALEY

H, YES, it's rather a strange story, the whole thing, but it's true and you can think what you like about it. You know what a passion I have for antiques? Well, this is how it began.

I dropped into a little Chicago jewelry store one day last year to see about a pin I had left there. When I came to go, the jeweler, an old friend of mine, called to me and said: "Stearns, I've got a ring here that'll make your eyes glisten. It's a genuine antique."

Well, that awoke my collector's thirst and I followed him around to the back room. He brought out a dirty leather bag and took out of it a beautiful ring made of gold and mosaic. It represented two snakes writhing around a hoop and both reaching for an opal which was imbedded in thick gold and surrounded by cabalistic characters. The thing took my eye. I bought it and went home tickled to death.

The next day things began to happen. I went to class determined to knock every prof's eye out, and I ought to have the way I bucked. But every question they asked me there seemed to be something wrong. All the class would roar at everything I said, and the profs looked pained or got huffy while the instructors tried to look serious. I didn't see why they should act that way when I wasn't trying to be funny.

I got called down about twenty times for impudence, and I had instructions to report to the class officer next day.

After every class I went up and asked an explanation, but it only made things worse. Every time I opened my face they laughed or got up on their ear, or looked pityingly at me and told me to go home and rest.

At dinner it was even worse. The fellows asked me what the devil I meant by making an ass of myself in class that way. They said it was all over the University, and when I tried to tell how it happened they just grinned or laughed or told me I was bucking too hard. Finally I said:

"Look here, fellows, I'm tired of being told I'm tired or sick or something! Why don't you treat me decent?"

But all the lummuxes did was to grin or answer with some fool remark like "May be it is, automobiles come high." And then they told me again I needed a rest. Gee! but I felt like thumping the whole gang!

Well, the whole day went on that way, and I spent most of the night figuring whether the world had gone crazy or I had. By the time I went to sleep I was thoroughly convinced that the world was the guilty party.

The next day was just as bad. If I asked questions people bit their lips and gave a grin or some fool answer. At least twenty people I gave Hello to, said: "Perhaps, I prefer a horse." Nice, sensible answer, wasn't it? I got crazy mad fifty times during the morning and roasted every one, 'specially Frank. But all they did was to laugh and then look grave and tell me I needed a rest. I got so I just spluttered.

The class officer had me up there for a good hour and he quizzed me right. He was nice about it, but he made more fool remarks. Why, once I asked, "When are exams?" and he said, "Why, perhaps pink is all right, but the ears should be green, as you say." Then he laughed, and then he gave me the same old tale about taking a rest and I nearly poked him one.

Then in the evening I went to see Janet.

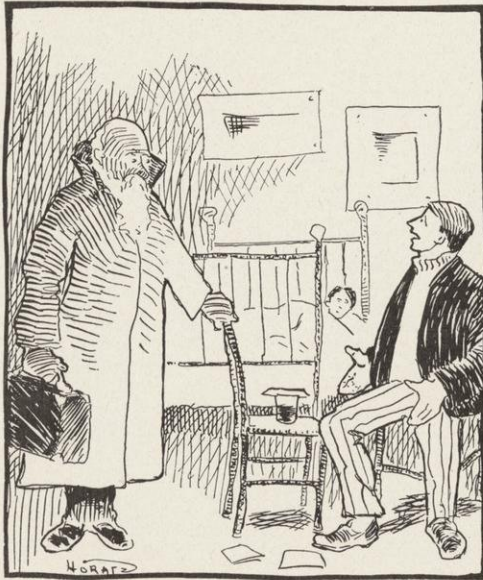

"Janet," I thought, "will treat me decently. She can't be mixed up in this crazy business." Janet looked mighty pretty when she came to the door and I told her so. What do you think she did? Why she jerked her hand out of mine, drew herself up and said: "Mr. Stearns, I can receive no one in your condition. Go home and sober up and don't come around here telling me about your pink-eyed lollypollozers!" Then she broke down. "Oh, Bob, why do you act so? What has happened? It's all over the College!" Well, I tried to explain, and Janet looked surprised, then angry, then sorrowful and a little tear trickled down her cheek. I thought she was sympathizing with me, and she was, but not the way I thought.

"Poor, dear Bob," she said, "you aren't well, you'd better take a little rest, you've been over working."

There it was again! And from Janet! "Go home and rest!" Then Janet was crazy, too!

I went to bed early that night and in spite of my troubles, I slept soundly until about eleven o'clock. When I awoke, there was Frank sitting by the study table, talking to a stranger. They didn't see that I wasn't asleep.

"How does he act?" asked the stranger, "any particular thing he's off on?"

"Pretty much everything, Doctor. Mostly he seems to think he's the only lineal descendant of Baron Münchhausen. Ask him questions, he'll gravely answer that he's recently purchased a machine for manufacturing snails; or ask him to tell about the city of Chicago and he'll say that he once watched a green horse and a purple cow feed on ultramarine grass in a crimson atmosphere. Asked me at dinner if I thought he paid too much for the new flying machine he was going to use to pound nails with."

"At all violent?" said the Doctor.

"Not a bit!"

"Well, let him rest awhile and run around. See his Professors so they won't call on him in class. He'll be all right soon!" and the learned M. D. dug out, with ten of those dollars we've had to pull the old man so hard for.

Well, you can believe I didn't sleep much the rest of the night, but I never let Frank know what I'd heard and the rest of the week I scarcely opened my mouth to speak, and even when I did people acted in that queer way again.

I knew I wasn't crazy, but I almost went crazy thinking about the way events had shaped themselves. Janet wouldn't let me call, and I saw her riding and driving and golfing with Yonkers till I almost busted with jealousy. I was afraid he'd cut me out, specially since folks thought I was lunny. If Janet thought I was crazy—but what the deuce right had she to think so anyway; but then—why—so I raged and fumed and worried and changed front till I believe I must have looked the part people thought I was starring.

Well, one day I resolved to go and see Janet. Yonkers was getting too frequent there, and crazy or not, I wasn't going to let any Rho Mu man, especially Yonkers, cut me out.

So I landed on the front steps and motioned the maid to call Janet, for I was afraid I'd queer myself if I opened my trap.

Janet came down and asked me in. We went into the cool sitting room. Once more I started to tell all my troubles to Janet, but I had scarcely commenced before her nose went up in the air and I saw that it was no use.

I felt pretty glum when I came to go and I began to believe that Frank and the Doctor and all the rest were right, I was off my trolley. Just as I turned in the hall to say good-night, I noticed that Janet's eyes were full of pity and wet with tears. Janet's eyes are like jewels always, but when that misty film of tears comes over them!—

"Oh Bob," she half sobbed, "I—I—sent him away to-night, be—because I thought perhaps you were—you see—maybe—you might have been—oh—not crazy! Say you're not, Bob." She drew back from me. I said nothing. Janet looked into my face with a trace of terror in her eyes, then the love light came back and she clung to me again.

"Bob," she whispered, "I don't care whether you're crazy or not. I love you better crazy than all the rest!"—here a slight impediment checked her speech.

"Oh Bob," she laughed happily, "why didn't you shave?"

I released Janet for a moment, and took off the antique ring the old jeweler had sold me. I held it out to Janet without a word. She slipped it on her middle finger. (I had worn it upon my little one.) Then she looked up lovingly at me and said softly.

"I just bought a really pretty live elephant with eight tails, four horns and a flowing mane. Do you think it would make a good tea tray?"

I stared stupefied at her for an instant, and then shouted joyously.

"Janet! It's the ring! That's caused all the trouble! That's what made me talk that way and that's what made you utter that fool remark! Hooray! Nobody's crazy and all's well.

Janet said I should have thought something of her flowers before I crushed them into her new waist.

Well, that's all, except a word or so about the ring. It seemed the jeweler got it of an old peddler. I locked up the itinerant patriarch and asked him about it. He knew little, but when I told him about my experience he exclaimed, "By Abraham! It is the ring of Ananias, greatest of liars. Truly, I have heard of it! They say an inscription is upon it, thus—

"He who weareth me, his tongue shall be untrue while I am upon his hand, and he shall utter no truth, but shall speak false witness, though he wotteth not what he doeth."

I'm going to give the ring to Johnson, the Press correspondent. It won't be any trouble to him. No, I'm not wearing it now.

So buck that when thy summons comes to join
The melancholy throng, which slowly moves
Unto those gloomy halls, where each shall take
His place before the stern, unyielding Profs,
Thou go not, like the wicked student of the Law,
With pockets full and running o'er with cribs,
But, sustained and fortified by knowledge well stored up.
During long hours when thou hast burned the midnight oil,
Approach thy quiz, even as one who knows
That from his leaky fountain-pen shall flow
Rich pearls of thought, resulting in an "Ex."

“THE QUITTERS”

By MIGNON WRIGHT

“WOULD LIKE,” said Nat, “to invite you to the Pal, but I’m broke.”

“I’ll invite you,” said Celeste. “I have ten cents.”

“Thanks awfully, but I don’t care for phosphate.”

“Who asked you to have phosphate? You can get cream puffs—lovely ones—two for five cents.”

“Say, look here, Celeste. It isn’t considerate of you to offer to treat me when I confide in you and expect to be comforted. I’d feel nice, wouldn’t I, waiting after we got through our two for a cent—”

“Two for five cents,” murmured Celeste.

“Well, two for five cents, then. I’d feel nice waiting while you paid for them.”

“Excuse me,” said Celeste meekly. Then suspiciously, “I know why you’re broke. You’ve been betting on football again.”

“Well, what if I have? It’s my money. But I’ll win back on the Chicago game what I lost on the other two. We’ll go to the Prom yet.”

“The man I’m going to the Prom with doesn’t bet,” retorted Celeste.

Nat was surprised. He had not invited Celeste to the Prom, but he had not supposed that anyone else would invite her. However, all he said was, “Well, I’ll win enough to take some other girl, then.”

“I’ll bet you won’t,” said Celeste unguardedly.

“I thought you didn’t approve of betting.”

“Well, I think you won’t.”

“What’ll you put up?”

“Nothing,” answered Celeste in a dignified tone.

“Quitter,” remarked Nat under his breath.

“I’m not a quitter. I’ve always said it was wrong to bet.”

“Well, we won’t bet money. I couldn’t, anyway. I’ve got every cent I could rake or scrape up on the game. You see I wanted to take you to the Prom.”

“You needn’t have worried.”

“Well, let’s bet,” he persisted.

“What?”

“Let’s see. The fellow that loses ought to do something that he doesn’t like to do.”

Celeste looked interested.

“Something that would show,” she said.

“I have an idea,” said Nat. “If I don’t win back on this game what I have lost on the others, I won’t shave until Christmas.”

Celeste regarded him dubiously.

“You won’t look very well,” she said.

“Never mind. I’ll have to stay home the rest of the winter if I lose, anyway.”

“But you would come to see me.”

“I suppose so.”

“Well, I don’t want anyone who isn’t shaved to come here. You might give up smoking.”

Nat smiled wickedly.

“All right,” he said. “Now what will you do if I win?”

Celeste meditated.

“If you win,” she said, “I won’t curl my hair until Christmas.”

Nat chuckled in a very ungentlemanly way.

“Say, but you’ll be a fright,” he said. “Do you remember the time we got caught in the rain coming home from Middleton?”

“That is such a hackneyed subject,” frowned Celeste.

“Well, I’m going now.”

Celeste followed him into the hall and as he put his coat on she said cheerfully, “You’ll have to pawn that to pay your board bill.”

"You forget the Chicago game," he answered.

"You seem very sure."

"Well, if I don't win I'll have to pawn everything I have or live on snowballs the rest of the winter."

* * * * *

"You're no sport," said Nat on Thanksgiving evening as he eyed Celeste's carefully arranged hair. "Why don't you pay your debts."

THAT TIME WE GOT CAUGHT IN THE RAIN

"My debts? Wisconsin was beaten."

"But I wasn't."

Celeste sat down and looked at him in open-mouthed astonishment.

"Do you mean to say," she asked at last, "that you bet against Wisconsin?"

"Exactly," answered Nat.

"Speaking of quitters," said Celeste.

"And whom were you betting against, may I ask? Wisconsin, wasn't it?"

Celeste looked confused.

"It wasn't very nice of either of us," she said.

"Who's going to take you to the Prom," asked Nat. "How many dances may I have?"

"It's too early to make out Prom programmes," protested Celeste.

"You might tell me whom you are going with."

"I can't," said Celeste, looking extremely foolish.

"Why not?"

"Because—ch—because."

"I don't believe anyone has asked you!" exclaimed Nat.

Celeste turned very red and began to finger her handkerchief.

"You acted so sure," she said, "that I was waiting to have you ask me. I—I couldn't help it."

"Then you are not going with anyone else?"

"No."

Nat jumped up and made a low bow before her.

"Then," he said, "May I have the very great pleasure of taking you?"

Celeste turned even redder than before. For a moment she did not look up. Then she raised her eyes.

"Why—why, yes," she stammered. "I suppose you may."

Nat sat down suddenly and for a time there was silence between them until Nat, for the want of something better to say, remarked, "It's too bad that the month you will have to wear your hair straight will be over then."

Celeste stopped blushing and smiled serenely.

"My hair is naturally curly," she said. "The day we were caught in the rain it was drenched, but you ought to have seen it when it dried."

"And I swore off smoking two weeks before we bet at all," replied Nat.

"I don't believe we are true sports," decided Celeste.

"No," answered Nat, "we're quitters."

The following table, compiled from careful personal observation of Mademoiselle de Florenson, the recognized authority on beauty spots, gives the correct placing of the spots for the different days of the month.

1. Nov. 1.	5. Nov. 9.	9. Nov. 17.	13. Nov. 25.
2. Nov. 3.	*6. { Nov. 11.	10. Nov. 17.	14. Nov. 26.

4. Nov. 7.	7. Nov. 13.	{ Nothing doing!	16. Nov. 30.
	8. Nov. 15.	12. Nov. 23.

*No beauty spots appeared on these two dates. It is to be supposed from this that it is in better form to omit the decoration on at least two days of every month, thus producing a more striking contrast.

DOING HIS WURST

THE KING OF TERRORS

By BERTON BRALEY

It is the Student's terror; High and Low
It felleth with the vigor of its might;
Seniors and Juniors grave its summons know;
Yea, oft it trippeth e'en the Normalite;
For the young Freshman in his infant State,
For the bold Sophomore doth it lie in wait.
Yea, the Post Grad. may taste the bitter rue
Mixed in the sweets of honors he doth woo;
Sad is the Fate of him it lights upon,
Blue are his spirits as the sea is blue,
There is no thing more dreadful than the Con.

Silent its message; Creepingly and slow
It winneth to the Victim it would smite;
Then of a sudden, striketh hard the blow,
Certain as death that cometh in the night.
It taketh the Masher by his well groomed pate;
Yea, oft it sticketh the Grind who bucketh late,
Aye—and the Lush who loveth "Johnny's" Brew.
E'en the Y. M. C. A. it seeketh through,
Finding a Victim ever and anon.
Dire is the slaughter that doth oft ensue—
There is no thing more dreadful than the Con.

It stabbeth the Stabber, giving him deep woe;
The Engineer it filleth with affright;
It taketh the Short Horn with his rake and hoe
And shriveleth the Pharmic with its blight.
It haileth the Barb who eateth at club rate.
It lammeth the Greek, howe'er he supplicate.
It smiteth him who tryeth for the crew;
The Football man hath known its Terrors too.
And weepingly he sayeth "Goodbye" to John,
Then of a sudden vanisheth from view:—
There is no thing more dreadful than the Con.

It hath no pity. From its fatal Bow
It shooteth arrows at the Coed bright.
It careth not for tears that overflow;
It turneth not for eyes that fill with light.
It scareth maidens gay and those sedate,
Nor ruth nor pity make it hesitate.

It frighteth the Lovers as they bill and coo;
It slayeth the Maker of the Rare-bit Stew
E'en as she tryeth what she stirreth on,
(A mixture which the Wise will well eschew).
There is no thing more dreadful than the Con.

It showeth no favor. He that hath the Dough
Shall fall as he without it, left and right.
It swatteth the Bummer and the Prig, I trow,
The Girler and the bashful Anchorite.
It hiketh the Law man from his wise Debate;
The Waiter, as he juggleth the plate,
Getteth the news and maketh his adieu.
It wotteth not if hearts be false or true;
It wotteth not what style of Clothes men don;
It slayeth all it knoweth "will not do."
There is no thing more dreadful than the Con.

ENVOY.

Students—take heed ye lose not your estate,
Legion be those who suffer such a Fate.
Have ye your pleasure while it still is new,
But know no less there cometh the grand review
That Giveth Sore Eyes and maketh the visage wan;
Then ye will say, (and know it to be true),
"There is no thing more dreadful than the Con."

IMPROPER RHYMES PROPERIFIED

An innocent agric named Sam,
While judging a turbulent ram,
Was butted ten feet
And out into the street,
Which made him ejaculate—"Beeswax."

A Law coming in from a revel,
With clothes rather torn and dishvele
Was accustomed to say
In his jocular way,
"Say, boys, don't I look like the deuce?"

The bibulous student said, "Judge,
That copper must bear me some grudge.
He's lying for fair
When he tells you I swear:
Why, your honor, I only say 'F—dge.'"

The freshman gasped wearily, "Well,
I know that we look mighty swell,
And it seems like its fun
To march round with a gun,
But, honest, its tiresome as anything."

PYRE-ITES

"Our language is curtailed, like the too much curtailed cur."

"Maniac from Mazomanie."

"In these times people did not have to make hay, so they made love."

"The way that young lady could get off slang was something fierce."

"When I went to school, I must confess, I wasn't above the average student."

"He was y-clep-ped-Liljequist—ah-what am I talking about, will someone tell me?"

"Miss Wilson, how do you distinguish between the two Jo-nsons?—Here's a scheme (illustrating on board)—Sam minus Ben equals "h." Now, who was the one without the "h?"

Miss Wilson—Sam.

"A little water, please!"

"Te-he-he—I'm a little crazy this morning, anyhow."

And so endeth the umpstieth lecture in Gen. Survey.

A CAMPUS QUIZ

1. If a sophomore sell two convocation tickets at $1.00 apiece and one Gym. ticket at $0.50 how many times will he circle the square and how many flunks will he have next morning?

2. If 2 students  $\times$  1 yell = 4 policemen + 1 patrol-wagon + station house—what will 40 students  $\times$  1 bonfire equal?

Answer—(The police force + the fire dept. + the Governor's Guard)  $\times$  the Milwaukee Sentinel.

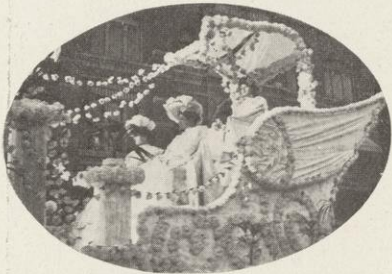

3. If student A drinks 3 highballs, 4 cocktails and 8 glasses of wine, and student B drinks 4 Creme-de-menthes and 3 absinthes, which will have the most change in the morning?

4. John has 100 pages of history to read before morning; if he goes calling from 7:30 to 11, and sleeps from 11 to 7:30, how many times will he stab at his eight o'clock and what relative will he have lost?

5. What is the rate of expansion in a Freshman's head when he has been elected 18th vice-president of the class?

"And, remember, gentlemen, it's only ten cents, and when you come out if you don't say it's the finest show you ever saw you get your money back!"

QUEEN O' THE CARNIVAL

The Freshies had a little Soph,
His face was white as snow;
And everywhere the Freshmen went
The Sophomore had to go.

How strange that women rarely till
The soil, because 'tis plain to see,
The greatest study of their lives
From girlhood up is husbandry.

"Heard about it? Faculty has under consideration a rule which compels all law students to pass an exam. in Sub-Freshman English."

"I see the finish of the Law School."

Horace, Book 1, Ode 5

What slender, perfumed youth mid roses fair
Courts thee, oh Pyrrha, in thy charming grot?
For whom dost neatly bind thy golden hair
In simple knot?

Alas! How oft changed gods and perjured truth
He'll wail. How often when the black wind blows
He'll marvel at the roughened seas, poor youth
He little knows!

Who, credulous, believes thou art all gold;
Who hopes that ever fancy-free and kind
Thou mayst remain, nor fears he, fondly hold,
The fickle wind.

Alas for those who untried see thee shine!
The temple's votive tablet doth relate:
To the sea-god my garments wet with brine
I consecrate.

A jolly Professor named Patzer,
When growing exceedingly fat, sir,
Just turned a new leaf,
Though it caused him much grief,
And now he's as thin as a slat, sir.

“Mr. Gardner—Gardner! Vell, if you arn't here vy don't you say so. Mr. Whaley. How iss it pronounced—Whaaaley? Yes? Vell, are you here, Mr. Whaley?”

“Goot, now ve will blay dis piece t'rough once more twice already. You haf notes mid rests behind 'em. Don't blay de rests.

“Who made dat bum note? I don't know and if I did I couldn't find out.”

Rat-a-tat-ta-ta-tat. “Come, come! Shtop dat doodling, ve vant to get through this piece before six. Are you ready? Vat's de matter, Mr. Hinn? You say you haf no part? Vell, den look on vid de next man. Now, a-l-lready! Begin!” Rat-a-tat-ta-ta-tat-TAT-TAT! “No, you don't come in till the second strain. Now, begin again.” Tat, tat, tat, tat, tat . . . . . Rat-a-tat-ta-ta-tat! “Hey, bass drum, your notes don't read: ‘Da, da-da-boom!’ Dey read: ‘Da-da, boom-boom!’ Bring those two beats out strong. Begin at the end of de first bar. Now!” Tat, tat, tat, tat . . . . . Rat-a-tat-ta-ta-tat-TAT-TAT! “No, no, no, no, no! Vat's de matter vid you, second clarinets? You vant to hold dat note so: ‘Ta-de-E-la,’ not: ‘Ta-de-DE-la.’ Begin back at de third strain. Now!” Tat, tat, tat, tat . . . . .

Up to time,	And you think
And the time	As you blink
Jolly K. M.s.—while your sweetheart waits	What a queer condition this would be
For your step	To work off
On the step	For your prof,
And wonders if again you've mixed your dates?	When you're dazed and have no faculty?

Above, Children, we see a cut of the Chi Psiverein.

Is it not a pretty place?

The Express Man is carrying a box of Spring Tonic into the House.

Would you like to be a member of the Chi Psiverein, Willie?

Then you must move to Milwaukee and change your back name so it will sound German.

Good done.

If you do not break in now it will be a sure sign that something is rotten in Denmark.

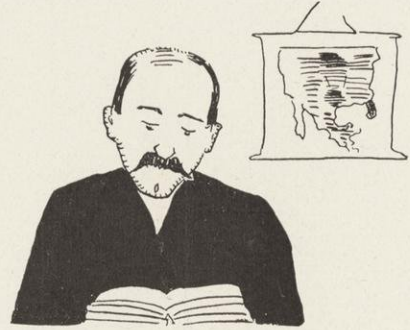

Here is a picture of the University of Wisconsin Freshman Football Team. It is out of sight, is it not?

It has been in existence, on paper, for about Six Years and has never yet been defeated.

I will wager two sticks of Chewing Gum that it will not be defeated in Twenty Years, either.

Is it not fine to have Wisconsin a leader in Freshman sports?

Sometime they will get up a real Freshman Football Team and then everybody will drop dead.

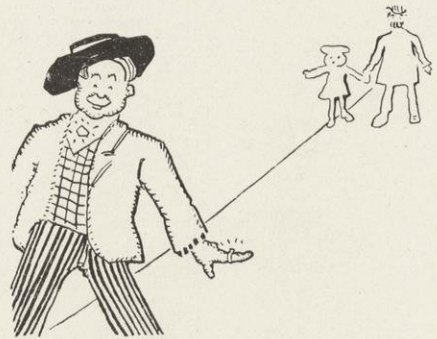

Up above, in a general way, we see Professor Coffin.

How jolly he looks!

He has been spending the hour telling his class funny jokes about European politics.

Sneak up behind, Arthur, and cut off his head.

Then we will never know what happened to the Schleswig-Holstein controversy.

Who is this poor boy?

He is an impoverished student who is working his way through school on a laundry route.

He is indeed a hard worker.

Sometimes he has to sit up till late at night signing checks.

Poor fellow!

This is a Fraternity.

A Fraternity is a Collection of Kindred Spirits who have Crushes on one another.

One of the Kindred Spirits has strayed from the straight and narrow path and the other Kindred Spirits are Telling Him what they think of him.

How would you like to be a Kindred Spirit?

This is a picture of a Grind.

She is getting out a Topic in Modern History and preparing for one of Sunny's Quizzes.

Is she not as busy as a little bee?

Run up, Charlie, and butt in on that boy at her Right.

Then I will give you a nice piece of Bread and Jam.

See the Gym.

My, what a nice clean Gym!

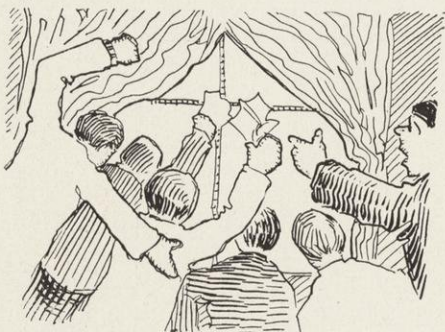

See the Germs too.

They are taking a shower-bath so that they will feel good and Strong when the time comes.

How nice of the Authorities to provide Bathing Facilities for the Germs.

Catch a Germ, Willie, and take it home with you.

Then you can teach it many funny tricks for the amusement of the boys.

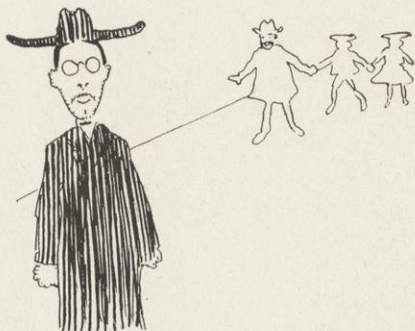

This is a Fraternity group.

Two lady friends are passing.

The Fraternity is giving them a royal welcome.

Is it not fine and dandy of the Fraternity to give their lady friends a Royal welcome?

No, Ellen, it is not the Phi Beta Kappa fraternity.

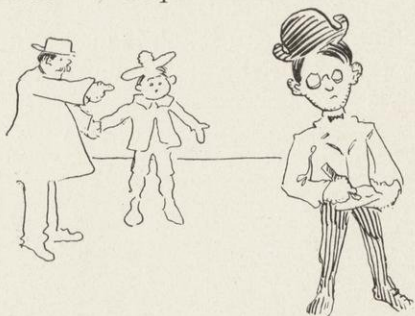

Take off your hat, Eddy, here comes a Cardinal man.

He has interviewed all the prominent people in the University.

He knows Andy personally and has probably talked over the track prospects with Kil.

Someday he will win a five dollar prize off the Badger. Then you will be sorry that you never made his acquaintance.

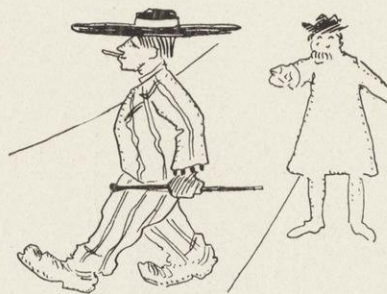

This, Percy, is a really, truly newspaperman.

Do not think Percy, that you can shake dice at Louie's without his knowing it.

Gertrude, you run out and tell him that President Birge has dyed his moustache and that Billy Scott has dismissed classes and that Crawford Ross said "O Fudge" on Langdon Street.

Then we will have a nice scandal for tomorrow morning.

Here he is, Willy.

He is a sport.

He does not care what he does and he is smoking a real, live cigarette.

Pretty soon he will say something and it will be a nasty Cuss Word.

How would you like to be a Sport, Willy?

Look at this Depraved Individual.

This is Harry Johnson, the Editor-in-Chief of the Sphinx.

Watch him. He is thinking up some villainous joke for the next issue.

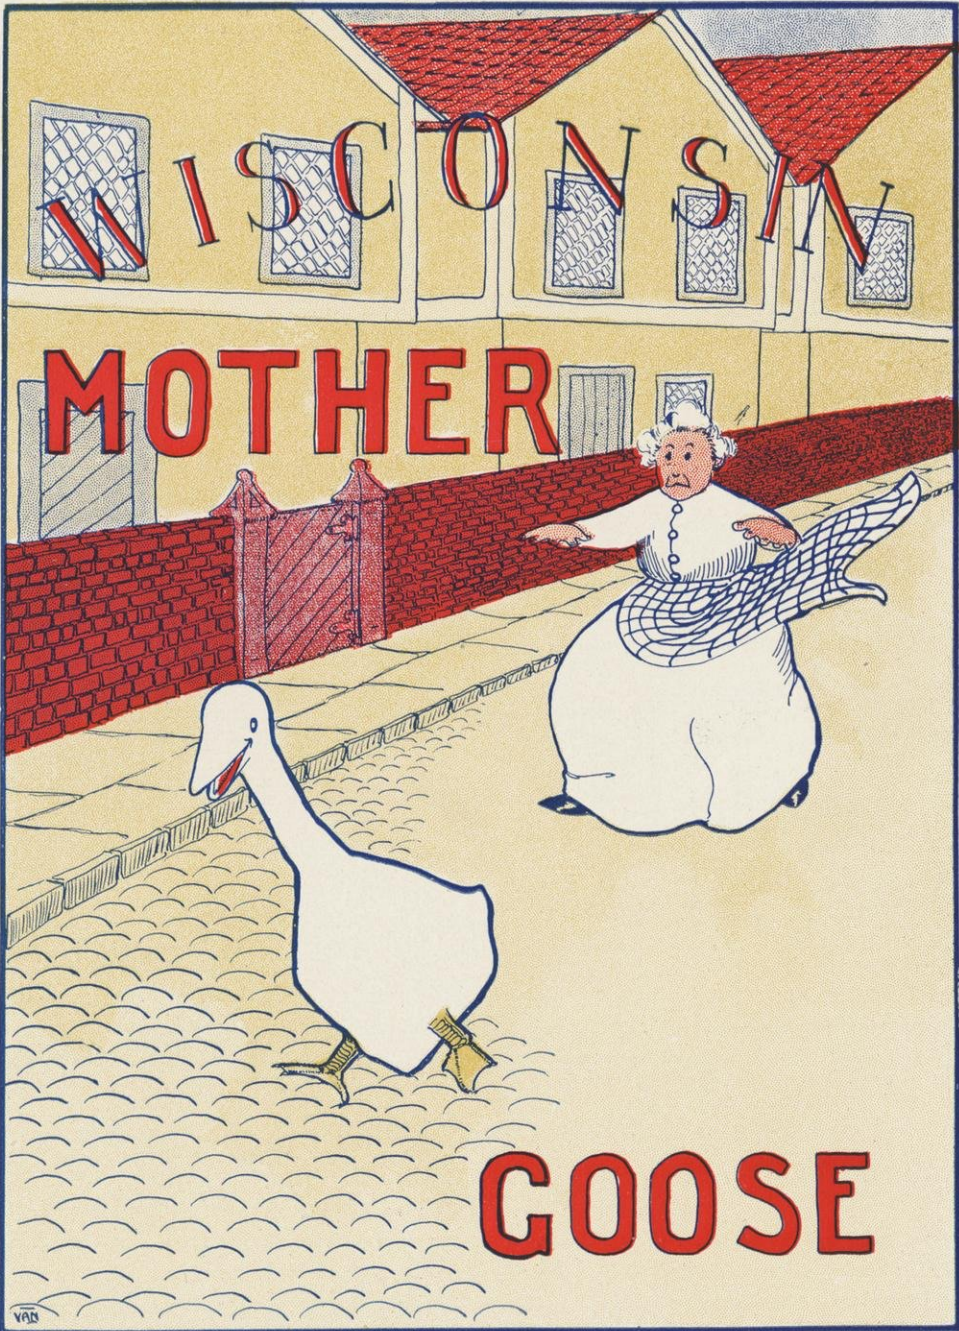

Let us see who shall kill him.

Eenie, meenie, minie, mo—ah, Jenny, you are the lucky one.

Take the hatchet and chop three notches in the back of his neck.

Well done! Next week we shall have a colored cover on the Sphinx.

VAN

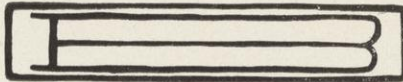

MOTHER GOOSE

A Alphabet.

A's for the Artists
Who draw for the Sphinx.
They're like the Old Masters,
So everyone thinks,
Because you don't know what They're drawing. By jinks!

B is the Butter
Whose wild Indignation
Will probably cause a
Prodigious Sensation
When next he assists
At an Initiation.

C is the Carnival
Which in progression
Bore quite a resemblance
(To make a confession)
To a harmless and peaceable
Sunday School Session.

D stands for Dub,
Which applies, without doubt,
To the Senior
(That boorish unmannerly Lout)
Who finally succeeded
In cutting you out.

MOTHER GOOSE

E's for the English
Department. When lost in
It's intricate mazes
Or possibly pahssed in
The Subject it's due to
The Young Men from Boston.

F is for Flom's
Where the Funnyman springs
A host of old Jokes
While the little Maid sings
The Budweiser Ballad
And other nice things.

G is the Grotto,
A place of good cheer
Where high class variety
Artists appear.
We go there and listen
And pay for bum Beer.

H is the Haresfoot,
A club, so they tell us,
Whose wonderful Acting
Will surely compel us—
Just like it did Mansfield—
To feel rather jealous.

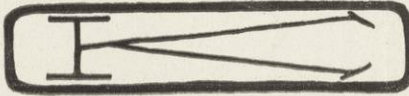

MOTHER GOOSE

I is for Ice,
Cold and readily felt;
The kind that sends Chills
Through a Polar Bear's Pelt;
Much used by the Coeds—
The sort that won't melt.

J stands for the Jolly—
The light innuendo—
Which even Instructors and Profs
Must unbend to
Until they have done what
They didn't intend to.

K is the Knocker
Who knocks long and steady.
No matter what's done
Or no matter what's said he
Is there—and his Hammer
And Anvil are ready.

L is the Library—
Refuge of Sharpers—
Who flee to escape
Professional Carpers.
We come to read History
And stay to read Harpers.

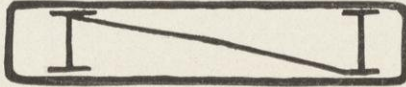

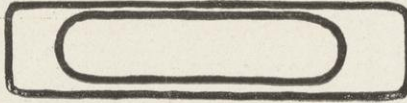

MOTHER GOOSE

M stands for Money,
The cause of all Badness,
The root of all Evil
And Sorrow and Sadness—
But usually bringing Considerable Gladness.

N stands for Nervousness,
Caused by Exams;
Usually vented in “Darns” and in “damns”
Not taking place when
One properly crams.

O—Osculation—
The meaning is lacking.
After Hops, when the Hackman
Is hard at work hacking,
It sometimes occurs—
With a slight sound of Smacking.

P stands for Perfect—
—No Errors—and yet
It's really a mark that
We most of us get.
We're terribly hard-working
Students—you bet!

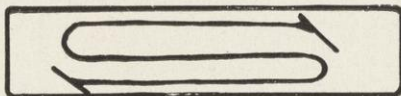

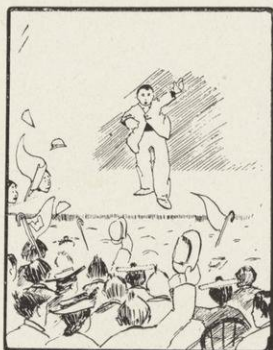

MOTHER GOOSE

Q is for Question and
Query and Quiz:
The Whereness of When and
The Whyness of Is.
Oh, we never feel safe
Till the Class has ariz.

R—the Red Domino—
Brings on the Scenes
Talented Coeds
As Tragedy Queens;
All of them beautiful
Young Actorines.

S is for Sakki,
A model young Man;
A footballist on
The American Plan;
He'll show them all how
Back in sunny Japan.

T is for Team
Which we backed with avidity,
Failing to see
(With our lack of lucidity)
How it could lose with Such awful Rapidity.

MOTHER GOOSE

U is the Universe—
 All there may be—
 Comet and Planet and
 Mountain and Sea.
 Listen to Michigan:
 "Say: That means me!"

V is the Varsity,
 Honored and Great,
 Cheered for right royally
 Early and late,
 Really the best of its kind—
 In the state.

W—Woozy,
 The feeling we feel
 When called on to make
 An elaborate "spiel"
 On the Molecules in
 An Elliptical Eel.

X is our Xercise—
 Here's where we hustle,
 Boxing on Boxing
 And Tussle on Tussle.
 Feel of our Biceps:
 My goodness! What Muscle!

MOTHER GOOSE

Y is the Yawping
We get when we drill
From Captain, Lieutenant and
Sergeant until
We feel very much
Like an undersized Pill.

Z is Ze Keyhole,
One Yard from the Ground,
Which moves in a Circle
Around and around
And firmly refuses
To stand still when found.

If all the world were formaline
Or cyanide of zinc;
If all the sea were turpentine
Or phosphorescent ink;
If all the air were sulphur smoke—
My goodness! What a stink!

Jack Spratt could eat no fat
Nor could he stand for lean;
He loathed such trash as stew and hash
And luscious Butterine.
But he learned to fill his every want
At the Hygienic Restaurant.

There was a Deane in Chadbourne Hall
Who had a wondrous wit;
She jumped into a pile of jokes
Some funny and some nit.

And when she saw her jokes were gone
With all her might and main
She jumped into the selfsame pile
And told them o'er again.

MOTHER GOOSE

Mamma with a battle ax
Pounded Willie full of tacks.
Willie shouted, "Let me be.
Mamma stop attacking me."

Hark! Hark! The dogs do bark;
The agrics are coming around.
Trousers light,
And trousers tight,
And trousers high from the ground.

Multiplication is vexation,
Division is as bad;
The Rule of Three perplexes me
And as for the Binomial Theorem—Logarithmic Functions
—Calculus—Higher Trigonometry and Simple Harmonic
Motion—they drive me pretty nearly batty.

Ding, dong, dell.
Pussy isn't well.
They carried her to Science Hall
And chopped her up uncommon small.
Oh what a wicked man was that
To thus dissect a pussy cat;
Who never did him any harm
And wasn't used to chloroform.

Little Jack Horner
Sat in the corner,
His heart playing tunes on his ribs;
And he murmured, "O damn!
Here's a final exam
And I've gone and forgotten my cribs."

Little Boy Bugler, come, blow your best!
In with your tummy and out with your chest!
The Freshies at home and the Sophs on the Hill—
Come, summon them all to a rollicking Drill.

THE STORY OF RAB

By ERNEST THOMPSON-SETON

(Contributed by request)

I.

It was a cloudy morning in September when Rab pulled out of Jay Center. It was a little later on the same morning when the Fool-Killer pulled in. Words cannot picture the wrath of the Fool-Killer when he reached Jay Center and found Rab gone. The Fool-Killer had counted on Rab but Rab had been too smooth for the Fool-Killer. Early in the gray dawn Rab had stolen away from Jay Center to catch a train for the University of Wisconsin.

II.

The University of Wisconsin is a large place full of bright boys and girls. When Rab entered the University he made an impression. True, he wore only a number six hat but his gift of the gab was remarkable. He was a loud and fluent conversationalist and this made him a great favorite. At the boarding house people used to stop eating while Rab told them what he thought of the foot-ball prospects and just why he was willing to bet a dollar and twenty-five cents on Michigan.

III.

As a member of the Atheria Literary Society Rab was a peach. He had hardly been in the Society two weeks before he was able to talk for fifteen minute-straight without repeating himself or saying anything. This mark of genius caused his election to the Joints Debate team.

IV.

Rab was invited to join the Hoxie-Moxie fraternity and needless to say accepted the invitation. He became "one of them." No sooner were the sacred ceremonies over than Rab hurried out into the street and blatted about the "advantages and disadvantages of being a fraternity man", thus making it pleasant for all.

V.

When there was anything doing Rab was right there with his talk-machine working overtime. From dog-fights to inaugural balls Rab took it all in. Whenever Bobby Knoff was off his feed or hit the dope and wrote fairy stories little Rab was Johnny-on-the-Spot. Rab knew all about the knife fracas and the boy who was hanged and he would tell it too if you would only stand still long enough.

VI.

Nothing was so delightful as to spend an evening in Rab's room and hear Rab give his opinion of the University. Rab always spoke of "Eddy" Birge and "Billy" Scott. He said that as long as they did things right he would never bear a grudge against them.

VII.

One of Rab's specialties was girls. He was up and coming there. When Rab called the chaperone had to tell him when it was time to go. Rab used to shine in the light and airy nothings of fashionable conversation, which naturally made him a great favorite with his lady friends. Many of Rab's remarks were rare witticisms. The way in which Rab would say, "Aw, go on, you're joshing me," and "You're a josh, you are," was a constant source of envy to other society men. Yes, Rab was a winner with the women.

VIII.

One morning at 8:15 as Rab was climbing the Hill for an eight o'clock he met the Fool-Killer.

"Aha," said the Fool-Killer drawing out a large cake-knife, "at last we meet."

"No," said Rab, "we do not meet because there is no one to introduce us. When it comes to etiquette what I don't know about the subject isn't in the book. A man of my reputation can't make a break now to please you or anybody else. Farewell!" and Rab passed on, leaving the Fool-Killer humiliated and beaten.

* * * * *

Brave old Rab!

Instructors and professors may pass and be forgotten but Rab will exist in undiminished rabness when the co-ed from Manila shall take her stand upon a broken pillar of the Library to sketch the ruins of Main Hall.

Letters from our Loving Friends

DEAR MR. MOFFATT:—

Please make Frank Merriwell come to Wisconsin and run a sail-boat. It is lots of fun to run a sail-boat. I run a sail-boat and have a fine time. Not many little boys know as much about sailing as I do.

Your little friend,
RALPH GROMANN.

Madison, Wis.

DEAR MR. MOFFATT:—

Please make Frank Merriwell come to Wisconsin and find out how we do things here. I think Frank Merriwell is a awful fine athlete, but I think we could show him how we do things here, such as controlling a mob at a football game and talking and so forth.

Your little friend,
JAMES GARFIELD MCFARLAND.

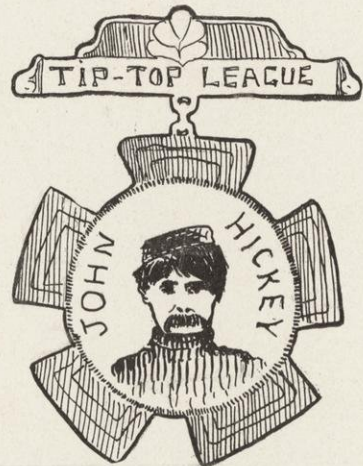

DEAR MR. MOFFATT:—

We read Frank Merriwell and we like it very much but I wish you would make Frank Merriwell come to Wisconsin and have a fine time here. I have a fine time at Wisconsin and sometime when I have lots of time I will tell you some of my experiences, because what has not happened to me is not worth happening.

Your little friend,
CHARLEY THOMPSON.

In response to the urgent requests of the Madison Art Association we have finally adopted a Flip Flop League Members' Badge which is a model of beauty and elegance. The design, which is by Professor Jastrow, is at once pleasing and graceful, while the decorations by Mr. R. E. N. Dodge and Professor Lathrop, are fully up to the Madison Art Association standard. It is indeed a gem of artistic excellence to which the reproduction below does faint justice.

We offer this badge to Flip Flop League members only and for the low price of six dollars in postage stamps. Order early so as to avoid disappointment.

JASTROW-DODGE FECUNT.

CHAPTER I.

"I tell you I will not haf it yet!"

Professor Hohlfeld bounded out of the chair in which he had been sitting.

"When you do that," he added, "you are putting the horse before the cart. No, sir, I will nefer, nefer, haf it!"

"You talk as though you had been vaccinated," giggled Professor Slaughter.

"Sure, an' if the boys want it—give it to 'em," John Hickey grumbled reassuringly.

It was at the special meeting of the faculty—called to decide whether or not John Dean should be elected President of the University.

"Possibly you remember," began Professor Coffin, "that, in the Schleswig Holstein Controversy, the Holy Alliance, balked by the ordinances of 1815, was unable to—"

"We are wasting time," remarked Dean Scott. "I have thirty people to turn down between now and five o'clock. Let us come to the point. Is or is not Mr. John Dean to be president of the University?"

"It shall not be," cried Professor Hohlfeld, excitedly, "he has not taken my course in Faust."

Dean Turneure rose to his feet.

"John Dean is an engineer."

"Three cheers! three beers! Varsity! Varsity! Engineers!" chanted Professors Mack and Swenson under their breaths.

A veiled figure had entered the room.

"He shall be turned down yet!" shrieked Professor Hohlfeld.

The veiled figure advanced.

"I forbid it!"

"And who are you?" queried Dr. Fish, turning to the newcomer.

"I," said the stranger, throwing off his disguise, "I am George R. Keachie."

After a moment's silence the faculty left the room gravely kowtowing.

CHAPTER II.

"I am going to show you a beautiful thing," said Bennie Snow, taking an eraser in each hand and firmly gripping a piece of chalk between his teeth.

You all know that  $\pi$  over  $A$  is equal to  $\omega$  and  $X$  over  $L$  is  $\omega$  also. We now have left  $T$ , the unknown quantity, and so—now see how beautifully all this works out—we must divide  $T$  by the known in order to get the unknown. What shall the divisor be?  $X$ , of course, because  $X$  is the smallest quantity.  $X$  is in  $\omega$  twice and over the line sub one three times thus giving us  $Y$  equal to 1,804,320 or the acceleration in foot pounds of a normal expansion gas magnet."

The perspiration streamed off his face.

"But we will go farther."

"I forbid it," cried a veiled figure in the rear of the room.

"And who are you?" asked Professor Snow, turning toward the speaker.

"I," said the stranger, throwing off his disguise, "I am George R. Keachie!"

"The class is dismissed," said Professor Bennie Snow, hastily projecting himself into the fourth dimension.

CHAPTER III.

"Now, the next number of the Sphinx," drawled Herbie John.

"Which I wrote myself and which was pretty darn good if I do say so," observed Archie Braley, winking at his reflection in the mirror.

"Indeed!" began Miss Dean, a touch of severity in her usually sympathetic voice. "Now, in Boston—in Boston—I always thought that a good joke—"

But she was interrupted by Harry Johnson.

"What we want—"

"Is money," finished Judge Brindley, giggling convulsively.

"Speaking of jokes, I'd like to have Miss Froelich's opinion," Herbie observed with some interest.

"I think," said Clara G. Froehlich, "that the Sphinx is like a crockery store. Because," she shyly added, "it has in it so many pitchers."

"Speaking of pitchers," put in Scrappy Rose, "how would you like a pitcher of me refereeing a—"

Crash!

With fixed bayonets the University regiment butted into the room.

"We are lost!" cried Harry Johnson dramatically.

"Put a want ad in the Cardinal," suggested Mr. Masters, who had mysteriously appeared on the scene.

"Let no guilty punster escape," Adjutant Page cried, a sneer curling his patrician features.

"Regiment—load—make ready—aim—"

Colonel Beers was speaking.

A thrill of horror ran through the crowd, but was promptly arrested by a Madison policeman.

A veiled figure had advanced.

"Fire!"

"I forbid it!"

"And who are you?" demanded Captain Curtis, in some surprise.

"I," said the stranger throwing off his disguise, "I am George R. Keachie."

"Present arms!" said Colonel Beers gravely.

CHAPTER IV.

It was at convocation.

Professor Lathrop was delivering an impassioned address on the rise of the Pre-Raphaelites.

"Never," he said, throwing an inkstand at Leo DeRuche Ludlow, "never did such an aggregation of realists pierce the ideal with the consummate shafts of the Infinite. Never did such a galaxy of genius before or since delight the lovers of Art."

"Three cheers for Art," cried a Delta U. Freshman and the crowd yelled wildly:

"Hurray!"

"Hurray!"

"Hurray!"

"BEULE!"

"Coming to the present condition," continued the Professor, "what should we do?"

"Work it off," suggested Happy Werder sleepily from the gallery.

A murmur of applause followed.

"I forbid it!" cried a veiled figure from the background.

"And who are you?" queried Professor Lathrop.

"I," said the stranger, throwing off his disguise, "I am George R. Keachie!"

There was a commotion upon the platform. Dr. Tilton had fainted.

CHAPTER V.

For three long hours the tide of humanity had been streaming into Camp Randall. The great grandstand was already filled and the bleachers were a waving sea of cardinal. Tubby Washburn was there, Ralph Gromann was there—in fact, everybody was there.

It was the last baseball game of the season—Wisconsin was playing Michigan for the championship. There was a nervousness to be felt in the very air.

Crack!

A Wisconsin man stepped to the plate and knocked out a two-bagger.

The game had begun.

Once Balthasar Meyer reached fifteen feet into the air and caught a foul, and once when the play seemed to lag, Professor Monaghan spoke for three hours on Industrial Conditions. Aside from this the game had no features.

At the last half of the ninth inning, Wisconsin was one run ahead.

It was Michigan's bat.

Three men on bases—two out and the strongest hitter of the Michigan team at the plate.

Two strikes and three balls.

The Michigan man spit on his hands.

"I will hit out a home run," he said.

The Bray twins were smiling appreciatively at one another. Professor Birge was whispering to Dean Henry, and Dick Hollen, pencil in hand, was busily taking down notes for the Cardinal. It was a thrilling moment.

"I will hit out a home run," repeated the Michigan man.

A veiled figure arose in the grandstand.

"I forbid it!"

"And who are you?"

"I," said the stranger, throwing off his disguise, "I am George R. Keachie."

"Strike three—batter out!" yelled the umpire.

The game was over.

Wisconsin had won.

(The End.)

The next number (2,840) will contain "Billy Scott's Protege or Emil Seow from Arcadia."

She did not answer.

"You know I—care for you more than I do for any one else."

She looked a moment at his face.

"Yes, Maurice," she answered, "I believe you do."

He shut the book and they left the little office.

The sunset was glorious behind them as they drove back to Madison.

ODYSSEAN SONNETS

XV.

HOMER

Homer, now on the dead, you write a lot
Of bally stuff about dead common guys.
This man Ulysses wasn't such a prize;
He did a bunch of things there on the spot
That strike the careless reader, well—as rot;
And kind of slow—he really wasn't wise;
A rank four-flusher, and the way you size
Him up—I say it makes me blooming hot.

Why don't you take some man that's seen a few?
That knows what's doing once or twice a day?
Some one who's onto things—a smooth boy—see?
Who knows what's what and likewise knows who's who;
Who makes some copy for the press—and say,
Homer—old man—why don't you write up me?

THE HIDDEN SOUL

You may sing of the sea when the wind is blowing free,
Or of any old thing you choose,
But let me write of the revels of the night
And the boys who buy the booze.
Oh, I ain't so very bad,
I'm a quiet kind of lad,
Or anyhow that's what the public thinks;
But let me get a start
And you'll see that in my heart
I'm a devil when I'm writing for the Sphinx.

WILLIS BRINDLEY.

SORORITIES AT WISCONSIN

WALLACE BENEDICT

Many of the women students at the University of Wisconsin live under what is known as the Sorority system.

Instead of residing at Chadbourne Hall or at a private residence some twenty-five or thirty form themselves into a "Greek Letter" society and rent a house in common.

These sororities—as they are known—are considered one of the features of University life. Each has its individual characteristics by which it is known and recognized and sometimes identified.

In the early part of the year the Kappa House is particularly popular—the front porch being used extensively by Freshmen serenaders and fraternity initiates.

At the Chi Omega Lodge the passerby hears the energetic rehearsals of George Shattuck or Jennie Porterfield as they adapt themselves to some particularly difficult part.

The Gamma Phi Beta house has a fine porch with a nice hammock.

One of the principal objects of a sorority is to cultivate among its members the airy form of conversation known as the "jolly." Each sorority has its particular star "jollyers" who rather excel in the gentle art. Among the winners in this line are Minna Weber, Nell Russell, Ethel Strong, Grace Dixon and others.

Each year the newer members of the sorority are compelled to pass a rigid examination on Greek letter affairs.

The examination of the Delta Gamma freshmen follows. This gives an excellent idea of the style of questions asked and the thorough knowledge of sorority matters required:

DELTA GAMMA EXAMINATION

1902-3

- I. Who is Gene Byrne?
  - (a) Why?
  - (b) Calling nights?
  - (c) When not, why not?
  - (d) When receiving should you say "Gene" or "Mr. Byrne"?
- II. Name five snap courses.
  - (a) Is dramatic reading easy?
- III. Rank the fraternities. Give authorities.
- IV. Say a few words about each of the following:

Sorority assembled to greet the president.

Fish was smoking.

The mob again surged forward, but were driven back into the mud holes where many women fainted into manly arms. Suddenly a hush fell over the multitude as Ross Beebe, a prominent sophomore, stretched out his arms and held the mob spellbound by his magnificent oratory until the president appeared.

Fish was smoking.

Two or three people cheered, but were promptly hissed down for ill manners. A little column of smoke crept out from behind a pillar and some one yelled "fire." Accustomed to obey, the regiment fired and killed four policemen. This pleased the crowd. Upon search it was found that the smoke came from where,—Maj. Fish was smoking.

The crowd at last became quiet and there was no disturbance save the noise of Chief Baker commanding silence. In a few moments the ceremony was over and the mob dispersed. The regiment marched down State street in good order, but were largely obscured from view by a cloud which drifted back over the column. Marching coolly at the head of the regiment, looking neither to left or right,

LEGISLATURE GETS GENEROUS

Big Gifts to University
(Special to Milwaukee Sentinel.)

April 10, 1903, Madison, Wis.—After a month of lobbying the Wisconsin Legislature has finally decided to appropriate five million dollars to the University. This amount is all to go to those special departments which in the minds of the legislators are doing the University the greatest amount of good.

A large section of land has been purchased out beyond the Heights and will be laid out to accommodate a model $1,500,000 city. This city will be run as an experiment station by Dr. Sparling, who will have it under his immediate supervision. It is planned to let him work off all his pet theories upon the inhabitants. Some agitation has been raised against this appropriation by the Humane Society, but it is thought that the plan will be carried out.

A magnificent dancing hall and auditorium, to cost about half a million, will be built for the exclusive use of the Engineers. The fact that the Engineers have been embarrassed in former years for want of a suitable place to hold their social doings, has induced the legislature to make amends now. The idea at present is to hold six engineering socials a week with minstrel shows on alternate Sunday nights.

Two million dollars has been set aside for the erection of a large germ gymnasium. It is understood that the present quarters of the bacilli in the red brick building are becoming crowded. By building a large new gym the authorities hope to induce the germs to vacate their old quarters and move into the newer ones. This move will be much appreciated by University students.

Wake! for the Class Bell ringing overhead,
Proclaims another lecture hour has fled.
Wake! for the next is Turner and a Quiz—
And you must go—e'en though he flunk you Dead.

LAST

XCII.

Some for the Stabbers easy nerve, and some
Sigh for a Crib when Tests and Quizzes come.
Ah, take the Crib and let the Stabbing go—
Nor heed the prompting of your dearest chum.

XCIII.

And if, perchance, you notice that I take
Long-winded notes—alas, 'tis but a Fake!
They will not occupy my leisure Hours:
I put them down to keep Myself awake.

XCIV.

A Book of Lectures under Coffin: "How Linguistically, the Physiographic Thou
Deters the Proletariat from Crime."
Ah! that were Soporific Stuff enow!

XCV.

Before the midnight Bellstroke slowly died
Methought a Voice within the Lunch Cart cried,
"When all the Wieners are prepared within Why lags the lonely Wanderer outside?"

XCVI.

And as the Steak fried—those inside the door
 Gave forth their Slogan with an awful Roar,
 “Ay, though they Con us, let us have our Fling—
 For once we’re Conned, we may return No More.”

XCVII.

And then One said, “Why, all that stuff is Bosh,
 No One is ever Conned—’tis but a Josh
 Announced by Bugs to frighten Freshmen minds—
 He’s a Good Fellow and we’re safe, B’Gosh.”

XCVIII.

Myself when young did hopefully Frequent
 Libe and the Lab—and long, long Hours I spent
 That might have been at Tommy’s or at John’s,
 And ah, how oft that Waste I must repent!

XCIX.

And this Ten Dollars—sent some bills to Pay—
 Shall I so waste its crispness, sadly, Nay—
 ’Twill buy those Violets I meant for Her
 And then, Perchance, will take us to the Play.

C.

So, while the Hours shall last—and while my Friend
 Still has the Cash to lend me—I shall spend
 All that I have and more—and at the Last—
 Make exit in one great and Glorious Bend!

L'Envoi.

With customary apologies.

When the year's last clam is dissected and the scissors and knives are all dry,

When the last pan of water is emptied and we hand in our cards with a sigh,

We shall rest and, faith, we shall need it—we shall rest for a month—
one or two,

Till belief in co=education shall call us to work anew.

And those that were good shall be happy, they shall loll in a ham= mock or chair;

They shall draw only lakes and the rivers that seem to them lovely and fair.

They shall find real beauty to draw from—loveliness patent to all,
They shall work for hours at a sitting and never be tired at all.

And only our fathers shall praise us and only our fathers shall blame,

And no one shall work for Eres or Phi Beta Kappa or Fame;

But each for the joy of his working, pleasing his own sweet will,
Shall draw the thing as HE sees it—not the Little Tin Gods on the Hill.

BOOK VIII ADVERTISEMENTS

ENTERING UPON PROSPERITY

Is easy if you only have the key. Here it is. We say of a man who becomes fore-handed—saves from his income regularly—that he is prosperous. Many find this saving a difficult proposition; they need a motive for saving, and then they can save. Life Assurance furnishes this motive better than anything else. A double motive is offered, that of saving for protection to family in event of death, and saving for self if the assured lives to complete his period.

We invite any one interested to investigate our plans, and will be glad to furnish details.

We would also like to hear from anyone contemplating an agency.

Situation of the University

The University Grounds extend along the north shore of Lake Mendota more than a mile. In point of beauty the site is unsurpassed, if not unequaled. The campus contains 240 acres, besides an athletic field, known as Camp Randall, of 42 acres. On the lower Campus are the Gymnasium and the Historical Library building.

Organization

The College of Letters and Science.
The College of Mechanics and Engineering.
The College of Agriculture.
The College of Law.
The School of Pharmacy.
The School of Commerce.
The School of Economics and Political Science.
The School of Music.
The School of History.
The School of Education.

Library and Laboratory Facilities

The completion of the new Historical Library building, which also includes the University Library, affords unsurpassed accommodations for the use of students. The number of volumes contained in the Libraries accessible to students is about 257,000. The laboratory facilities of the University are excellent and include well equipped laboratories in chemistry, physics, biology, geology, mineralogy, petrography, psychology, botany, and in engineering, pharmacy, assaying and agriculture.

Facilities for Physical Training

The Gymnasium, 200 feet long, 100 feet wide and three stories high, affords probably the best accommodations to be found in the country. Besides offices, locker-rooms, lecture-rooms, shower and tub baths, bowling alleys and rooms for other special gymnastic work, it contains a swimming-tank 80 feet long by 28 feet wide, a running-track of eleven laps to the mile, a ball cage, and a general gymnasium 165 feet long by 96 feet wide.

Conditions of Admission

Students are admitted either by certificate or graduation from an accredited high school, or upon examination. For detailed information, address the Deans of the respective colleges, or W. D. HIESTAND, Registrar of the University.

The Sharples Tubular Dairy Separator

The most simple, durable and efficient Separator made. A recognized necessity in every home where cows are kept, and a general favorite with the wives and daughters, because it is so easy to turn, easy to clean, convenient to operate, and such a labor-saver. Thousands of them sold every year. Write for descriptive catalogue . . . . .

Mary's Calf.

Mary had a little calf,
Now please don't misinterpret,
For Mary was as plump a maid
As e'er wore an encirclet.

But Mary loved this little calf,
For well she knew 'twould grow,
And visions of its future charm
Would cause her eyes to glow.

She dreamed of milk from chalk exempt,
Of cream so rich and sweet;
Of butter and of buttermilk
To please the most elite.

All this appealed to Mary,
A sweet girl graduate,
With memories of her boarding house
And what she drank and ate.

She learned at school 'mongst other things,
Which made her calf seem greater,
The worth of calves, and cows and milk,
And the Tubular Separator.

You see they used it in the school,
With utmost satisfaction,
And thus the little 'Tubular
Gave Mary's calf attraction.

She tells her friends of all her hopes,
And adds with jolly laugh,
"Just keep the 'Tubular in mind
When admiring Mary's calf."

Trostel's Phoenix

Kid like good wine, improves with age

Unlike japanned and patent finish leathers, Trostel's Phoenix Kid takes on more vigorous brightness with use and polish. It has the staying qualities of a "Cresceus," the beauty of a Venus and the comfort of a through Pullman.

It may not look so lustrous as patent calf in the new shoe, but in a few months' wear patent will look like sixpence to a pound, in favor of Trostel's. Besides, it keeps soft, feels like a glove, but wears like forged steel.

Your shoeman will give you shoes made of Trostel's Phoenix Kid that will make you feel happy as a clam in high water. He will also have the Trostel's identification tag on each pair, so you may know that you secure the genuine—if you insist.

Is This An Ad?

The fact that we are filling "space" in a "publication" does not prove it, any more than does the fact that we were asked to "go into" it. In other words, the mere formulation, printing and publication of an announcement does not make it

An Advertisement

Obviously it is the circulation which the announcement gets that counts—quantitatively and qualitatively. And, in this instance, it's not the number of copies given out, but the sort of persons to whom they are given that is likely to avail

STEEL TAPES

IN STEEL CASES

In our tapes the figures denoting feet are smaller than those denoting inches. Two reasons for this:

This dissimilarity of figures materially lessens (in fact ought to entirely prohibit) the liability to erroneous readings that frequently occurs through the uniformity of all figures in steel tapes of other makers.

The smaller figures denoting feet also allow the graduation line under each to be plainly visible instead of being obliterated by the usual larger figure.

No. 505 are graduated in feet, inches and eighths of an inch.

No. 506 are graduated in feet, tenths and hundredths of a foot.

These tapes have our push button handle opener. A slight pressure on the button instantly opens the handle, with a glove on as easily as with the bare hand.

American Balance Valve Co.

All kinds of BALANCED MAIN VALVES for any service

Slide Valve perfectly balanced in all positions of stroke and with double admission and double exhaust openings.

The J. T. Wilson High Pressure Slide Valve, balanced on a new principle; balanced area changes; balancing feature is stationary, is fully automatic and positive in action and adjustment, and is indestructible. The valve is the only moving part—least friction—best distribution of steam. IT NEVER COMPLAINS, and NEITHER DO THOSE WHO USE IT.

What is a so-called balanced valve that is without automatic adjustment? Don't be deceived. Stop and think. Then investigate. Our American Automatic Plug-Snap Ring Piston Valve is a snap ring valve when without pressure, but rings are converted into plugs by the pressure, so it is a plug valve in WEAR, and a snap ring valve in adjustment. No "by-pass" or other relief valves required.

We make and sell the NIXON SAFETY STAY BOLT SLEEVE—over a million in use.

Commercial Education

The need of such a course of study as the School of Commerce of the University of Wisconsin provides has long been felt by the better class of private commercial schools. On the other hand, there is probably greater need that the University graduates should have the special training in accounts, shorthand, penmanship and related studies, which is afforded by the high-class private school of commerce, in order that point and application may be given to a University education. Neither course is complete in itself, and the wise student will give himself the benefit of both . . . . .

The Gilbert Commercial College

of Milwaukee furnishes exceptional advantages for the special training which every man needs, and will mail information concerning its courses of study on application

ABBOTT'S TRIAL BRIEFS

Civil Trial Brief. Second Edition, 1 vol., 620 pages, published Nov. 1, 1900. Price, $4.50, delivered.

"A Brief for the Trial of Civil Issues Before a Jury"—Has for years been a favorite. It tells how to try a civil case before a jury. This edition is equally useful in any state. It is three times the size of the original work, and its usefulness is equally increased, though it has always been a most popular trial hand-book. Over 7,000 lawyers are now using this edition.

Brief on the Facts. Second Edition, 1 vol., 675 pages, published Oct. 1, 1901. Price, $4.50, delivered.

"A Brief on the Mode of Proving the Facts Most Frequently in Issue or Collaterally in Question in the Trial of Civil or Criminal Cases"—Tells what evidence is necessary to prove certain facts. This edition is equally useful in any state. It is arranged alphabetically by subjects. It has been expanded by the natural growth of the subject into a work of 700 pages. Over 5,000 copies sold.

Criminal Trial Brief. Second Ed., 1 vol., 834 pages, published Oct. 1, 1902. Price, $4.50, delivered.

"A Brief for the Trial of Criminal Cases" cost, when first published, $5.50 net. This edition is twice as large, has twice as many citations, and 100 new sections, and is equally useful in any state. You may not make a specialty of criminal cases, but more times than you appreciate, you will have occasion to refer to just such a work. It tells the rights of the accused from arraignment to sentence, with leading authorities from every state. Over 2,000 copies were sold the first two months.

Brief on the Pleadings. Second Ed., 2 vols. To be announced later. Price, $4.50 each, delivered.

"A Brief for the Argument of Questions Arising Upon the Pleadings, on the Trial of Issues of Law or Fact in Civil Actions at Law, in Equity, and Under the New Procedure."

Vol. 1. Demurrer—to be ready soon.

Vol. 2. Issues of Fact—to be ready Fall '03.

STRENGTH

Pabst Malt Extract The Best Tonic

THE manner of its making gives it just the strengthening properties necessary to fortify oneself against a cold, wet spell. Hardly anyone is so constituted but that some of the time he or she does not need a bracing, palatable tonic. Even the most robust are often susceptible to the inroads of disease, owing to disregard of the well-established necessity of keeping one's physical condition up to the proper defensive standard. It is not sufficient to be strong; it is equally important to remain strong. Pabst Extract will make you strong and keep you strong.

Pabst Malt Extract is recommended by physicians, and sold by druggists. Write to Pabst Malt Extract Department, Milwaukee, Wis., for interesting booklet.

The Only Double Track Railway Between Chicago And the Missouri River

The Chicago & North-Western Railway announces the completion of its new double track between Chicago and the Missouri River at Council Bluffs.

Three fast trains each way daily between Chicago and San Francisco, and two per day between Chicago and Portland, provide for passenger traffic between the East and the Pacific Coast over this trans-continental highway. These through trains are operated on fast and convenient schedules. They are drawn by powerful locomotives and carry an equipment of Sleeping Cars, Reclining Chair Cars, Observation, Dining, Parlor, Library and Buffet Cars of the most approved type.

The perfectly ballasted roadbed of heavy steel is maintained in the highest state of efficiency, equipped with automatic block signals, interlocking switches at railway crossings, and all devices for the safety and comfort of passengers known to modern railway management.

The 9,024 miles of railway embraced in the North-Western System penetrate to every point of importance in Wisconsin, Iowa, Nebraska, Northern Illinois, Northern Michigan, Southern Minnesota and South Dakota; with eastern terminals at Chicago, Peoria and Milwaukee.

The Overland Limited, daily between Chicago and San Francisco, via the Chicago & North-Western, Union Pacific and Southern Pacific railways, is the most luxurious train in the world. It possesses the most complete arrangements for the comfort of passengers and is operated on fast and convenient schedules—less than three days en route between Chicago and the Coast.

The Beverage of Health

There is no beverage more healthful than the right kind of beer. Barley malt and hops—a food and a tonic. Only  $3\frac{1}{2}$  per cent of alcohol—just enough to aid digestion.

Rhine wine is 12 per cent alcohol; champagne, 20 per cent; whiskey, 40 per cent.

There are no germs in pure beer, while the sweet drinks which you give children are full of them.

Pure beer is a tonic which all physicians favor. They prescribe it to the weak, the run-down, the convalescent. And they recommend it to well people who want to keep well.

But get the right beer, for some beer is not healthful. Schlitz is the pure beer, the clean beer, the filtered and sterilized beer. No bacilli in it—nothing but health.

And Schlitz is the aged beer that never causes biliousness.

A NEW AND ENLARGED EDITION THE AUTHORITY of the ENGLISH-SPEAKING WORLD

All Good Things must win upon their merits. THE INTERNATIONAL has won a greater distinction upon its merits and is in more general use than any other work of its kind. A. H. SAYCE, LL.D., D.D., of Oxford University, England, has recently said of it: It is indeed a marvellous work; it is difficult to conceive of a dictionary more exhaustive and complete. Everything is in it—not only what we might expect to find in such a work, but also what few of us would ever have thought of looking for. A supplement to the new edition has brought it fully up to date. A large number of similar testimonials have been received.

THE GOLDEN DOZEN

THERE are just thirteen newspapers in the United States to which the American Newspaper Directory accords a quantity of circulation of over 20,000 with the gold medal for quality denoted by the mystic symbol  $\odot \odot$ , the meaning of which is explained in this note:

“Advertisers value this paper more for the class and quality of its circulation than for the mere number of copies printed. Among the old chemists gold was symbolically represented by the sign  $\odot$ .”
