THE UNIVERSITY AVENUE ENTRANCE TO LATHROP HALL HAS LONG BEEN A CAMPUS LANDMARK, AND ITS ATTRACTIVE PLANT ARRANGEMENT OF A BIG, RED V AND THE UNIVERSITY SEAL IS AS GOOD A SETTING AS ANY TO PICTURE THE CAMARADERIE BETWEEN COEDS AND SERVICEMEN ON THE CAMPUS.

The Wisconsin ★ ALUMNUS

IN THE month of May a few years ago the Nazi government of Germany "burned the books" in a gesture to the world which proclaimed, they said, a new freedom. In 30 university towns great fires blazed in the streets, torchlight processions and songs celebrated the destruction of thousands upon thousands of volumes of "subversive" or "un-German" literature and the authorities gloated over the spectacle of students entering upon a program which they called "ideological re-armament." This stirring demonstration flowed naturally from the doctrine proclaimed by the minister of propaganda, Herr Goebbels. Said he:

"Intellectual activity is a danger to the building of character. The intellectual side of things fills me with disgust. Philosophy? There's a reactionary concept for you! I put on my helmet, I draw my dagger and declaim heroic verse."

Goebbels' chief, the Fuehrer, added his message as follows:

"My teaching is hard. A youth will grow up before which the world will shrink back—a violent, active, dominating, intrepid, brutal youth. Youth must be all of these things. It must be indifferent to pain. There must be no weakness or tenderness in it. I want to see once more in its eyes the gleam of pride and the independence of the beast of prey."

He discoursed also on the blessings of illiteracy.

Attacked Professors

Not so long after the burning of the books the attack on the professors began. They were ordered to conform politically and teach this arrogant doctrine or leave their posts. Some who did neither were punished in various tragic ways. A few escaped to find refuge in England or in America. In such ways were university centers and libraries desecrated and dishonored by a party which confidently announced that it was building a new world to last a thousand years.

To build such a world and make it safe for dictators it was necessary to keep a people in ignorance and on their knees. There must be no free interplay of communication or of thinking. A free press and a wide open radio cannot be tolerated. The dictator knew from the beginning that freedom of speech or conscience for the student or the teacher would undermine his influence and even his safety. Freedom to think makes for danger to dictators. From books men learn the lessons of liberty and freedom, and as for professors, they were disturbers of the people's peace of mind.

All of this happened more than 10 years ago—the burning, the exiling, the teaching of youth to goosestep, to be hard, cruel and violent, to pilfer and loot and ravage and destroy. And the youth have marched, millions of them, with fanatical determination! The tragic results of this grand crusade you all know. The world has become a fiery pit. We have had a Stalingrad, a Sevastopol, a Dunkirk, a Tunisia, a Cassino, a Tarawa, and all the rest. Great cities lie in ruins, the bottoms of the seas are thick with sunken ships, and millions are dead or maimed or mentally ill. A tragic doctrine! A tragic result!

Knew No Gestapo

You who leave the campus today came to us in 1940 with a song in your hearts and a smile on your lips. Little did you know of the burning or the teaching which I have just described.

The WISCONSIN ALUMNUS is published monthly, October through June-July, nine times a year, by the Wisconsin Alumni Association and is entered as second class matter at the post office at Madison, Wis., under the act of March 3, 1879. Subscription to the ALUMNUS is $1.00 a year and is included in the membership dues of the Wisconsin Alumni Association—regular membership, $4; intermediate, $2; Victory memberships, $10; life memberships, $75.

You had had a different training and experience. Your schools were free, your teachers were unshackled. You knew only a wide open communicating system of press and radio, you worshipped where and how you wished, you came and went without hindrance, you knew no gestapo. This was all part and parcel of you; you were as unconscious of this heritage as you were of the air you breathed; indeed, it was the air of America.

Yes, there was trouble on the other side—there was war in fact. The commentators were telling us about it. But it was all very far away. We were not involved. There were here and there those who said we would be—but not so many. There were more than twice as many men as women on the campus. There were a few ROTC uniforms. More than 11,000 students were going up and down the hill.

And then something happened. A selective service act was passed and some of your comrades began leaving for the training camps. You began to think—perhaps we too! And then that December Sunday of 1941—Pearl Harbor! The die was cast. We were in. The gauntlet thrown by the aggressors was picked up and America declared herself as all out. You and the others became overnight positive Americans; we declared there were things worth defending, worth fighting for even on foreign soil and in the far southern seas. The idea we call Democracy came alive and dynamic and we pledged ourselves and our Allies to victory over the totalitarian nations. That victory is on the way—it is only a matter of time and sacrifice—perhaps heavy losses. Here we can only hope.

Great Question

To your generation then comes the great question—what shall we do with victory when it comes. We are proving the aggressor wrong. He declared that the democracies were soft and decadent, unable to keep their houses in order or to protect themselves. He now knows that he was wrong. We believe that he is wrong also in his doctrine of social control. Fascism declares that modern applied science and industrialism have made society so interdependent and complex that a democratic society cannot cope with them for they require for handling, unified leadership, the acceptance of one dogma, iron discipline, unconditional obedience and the complete surrender of the individual to the party and the state.

This generation must answer the question as to whether freedom and an industrial civilization can exist together. It must demonstrate that we can by democratic and co-operative processes discover the ways to operate and control the modern technological machine in the interest of all. The restlessness of nations and of peoples which we have observed in recent times has its roots in the fact that man craves dignity and what some have called social justice.

Wants Simple Things

The common man is not interested in vague promises of a new social order. He wants simple and specific things, a home, a well fed family, educational opportunities for his children, reasonable safeguards against illness and the hazards of old age, freedom, a chance for self expression and participation in general decisions

TO THE CLASS OF '44

You came to the University of Wisconsin in 1940 just as conscription became law and war looked like more than a possibility. Your president became national selective service administrator and things were already changing on the campus. Your freshman year was nearly normal and you enjoyed your education and social life as usual. In your sophomore year Dec. 7 became the date everyone remembers and war was declared. Many of your classmates left school and joined the armed forces; the campus turned itself over to the national government for the training of service personnel wherever possible. When you came back to your junior year many of you found your rooms and dormitories taken over by service men and women and there were almost as many students in khaki and olive drab, service blue and forest green as the traditional saddle shoes and sweaters, slacks and skirts. Big dances were curtailed and entertaining the service people stationed on your campus became your big project, that and what war work you could do. With the calling up of the ERC the exodus of students became greater and greater, and fraternities and other campus institutions were forced to close. In your senior year your ranks had shrunk so that your graduating class was the smallest in years, only 600. Much of the gaiety of the social side of your college life, you missed. A sense of responsibility and maturity, an understanding of the world beyond the University, you gained. You became men and women faster than those who were graduated before you. We salute you, Class of '44, as we pass on to you the great Wisconsin tradition, "Numen Lumen," Light of the World. Because we believe in you, to you this Wisconsin Alumnus is sincerely dedicated. Good Luck, Class of 1944!

which affect his life and the common good. He has an idea that modern technology and scientific advance have made such things possible. The democratic way can make these dreams come true. It must if it is to persist. Your stay on this campus has made you aware of the challenge of the future. You have been learning the lessons which our university has taught for almost a century, that we seek truth through the process of careful "winnowing and sifting," that we believe in individual freedom and in the paricipation of all in self-government, that we have responsibilities and duties to the commonwealth wherever we are—indeed, to the idea of the expanding commonwealth, that we do not live for ourselves alone, and that we can make democratic procedures work to the benefit of all.

You know something of the struggle of the race with its natural environment, of the culture and philosophy which man has developed in his long history, of the expanding field of science and its meaning, of his social and political organization and experimentation, and also you know of man's hopes, his faiths, and his ideals. This knowledge or awareness is now a part of your heritage, Wisconsin has put some kind of stamp upon you; you are inevitably marked as a product of this university.

Responsibility is as Great

You have seen Wisconsin men and women leave this campus to defend—on land, on sea and in the air—the things for which this university stands. You are only a few of the great company which came here with you as classmates in 1940. Your responsibility is as great as theirs; your task and obligation the same.

I charge you, therefore, to safeguard and make even more secure by thought and deed the freedoms and opportunities which America has always promised; that you give your all at this time, first to achieve victory and then to make victory permanent and worthwhile; that you pledge yourselves to some program of international co-operation which promises peace and decency among the nations; and finally that as Wisconsin men and women you remember that our watchword is forward and that upon you, along with the thousands who have gone before, rests the obligations to keep our banner high in the air, unsullied, and clean. The blessings of the university go with you today.

"The Little Man Who Wasn't There"

Was Doubtless Lost Upon the Square

By Pvt. Arnold M. Auerbach, Truax Field

Since first I left to Fight My War,
Confusing spots I've seen galore
But none, my brothers, can compare
To what is loosely termed "The Square."

A square? Oh no! a web, a maze,
That Dali planned in bygone days,
Whose streets (to quote an ancient gag)
Go zig where you expect a zag.

Right in the center stands the dome,
But all the rest is Rennebohm.
Uncharted seas you may have crossed
But on the square you must get lost.

With map and compass you go forth,
You shoot the sun, you steer True North,
But when you think you've got things straight
You're trapped, my boy, Ha-ha Just wait!

At dark a group of little men
Sneak in and shift it round again
And so you'll find Br'er Liggett's store
Where Walgreen's stood a while before.

I joined this thing to tote a gun,
But here I stay in Madison,
Condemned, the whole duration plus,
To wait there for the Truax bus.

THIS IS WHY

This June-July combined Wisconsin Alumnus is made necessary by our old friend the paper shortage. It will, then, be the last magazine 'till next October 15 when we will be back again with fresh news of the University, alumni, and Fighting Badgers.

By combining the July with the June issue we were able to save 1400 pounds of paper and thus keep the most important news of campus and alumni going to that many more loyal sons and daughters of Wisconsin, especially those in the armed forces, while at the same time meeting governmental regulations on paper savings. A pleasant summer to you all, and be seeing you next October!

COMMENCEMENT • REUNIONS

600 Receive Degrees

At the 91st annual Commencement exercises of the University of Wisconsin held Saturday morning, May 27th, at Camp Randall field house, more than 600 students received their first and higher degrees before an audience of 4,000 friends, relatives and alumni. Three noted Americans in the fields of science, agriculture and law were granted honorary degrees from the University of Wisconsin.

A special ceremony "We Are the United Nations" was a feature of the graduation exercises which were dedicated to the Wisconsin men in service. More than 30 United Nations flags were borne into the fieldhouse by representatives of the army, navy and marines stationed on the campus. President Dykstra offered the dedication address with Wisconsin's service flag of World War I hanging above the commencement platform in honor of the more than 12,000 alumni now serving their country.

Rev. John Patterson of the Grace Episcopal church gave the invocation and benediction and Gov. Walter S. Goodland addressed the graduates. The University band was under the direction of Prof. Raymond F. Dvorak. "United Nations Hymn", written by Pfc. Edward Krushinski, stationed at Truax Field, was sung by Corp. Warren Brown of Truax.

Of the 600 students waiting to receive their degrees where formerly there were 1,300, two-thirds of the number were women. Older graduates would have missed the traditional sky rockets between the plumbers-engineers and shysters-lawyers which was always a colorful note. This year the engineers were graduated earlier to make them available to help in the nation's war work. There were nine graduating lawyers, three of them women. All the journalism graduates were women. One soldier and six sailors marched across the platform to receive their degrees. Edward A. Birge, president emeritus of the University, was in his usual place where he has sat, with only a few exceptions, for every commencement ceremony since 1876. He was the University's president during the first World War.

Honorary Degrees

Honorary degrees and citations given by President Dykstra were as follows:

JESSE TALBOT LITTLETON, graduate of this University and even now wearer of our doctor's hood, scientist who left the campus for the industrial laboratory, at present associate director of research in a great industrial plant, contributor extraordinary to our knowledge of the properties of glass and extender of its uses and usefulness, participator in the solution of the challenging problem of developing and successfully building the great 200 inch mirror which will bring the heavens infinitely closer to students of the stars in that great Pacific Coast Observatory, physicist who has drawn to his laboratory many Wisconsin graduates for further study and technical training, investigator and stimulator of investigation, the University which conferred upon you the degree of Doctor of Philosophy now adds to that the honorary degree of Doctor of Science.

HERMAN LEWIS EKERN, son of this state and of this University, distinguished citizen and public servant of Wisconsin through many years, pioneer in the great idea of applying the insurance principle to war risk for soldiers and sailors and to the field of railroads and teachers retirement, promoter of the program for pensions in the public service, practitioner in the field of insurance law, educational and religious leader in this commonwealth, tireless and devoted alumnus and friend of this institution, your University honors itself and you today by conferring upon you a second degree, an honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

ARTHUR JAMES GLOVER, citizen of Wisconsin by conscious choice, agricultural leader and counsellor in the state and nation during two generations, conscientious and devoted servant of this University as consultant and regent, friend of students and faculty, long time advisor on public policy to the United States department of agriculture, modest wearer of many honors and distinctions, effective editor of a national dairy publication for 40 years, the University which you have helped to build and guide gladly honors you today and thus in the fulness of time makes you one of its own alumni. Upon the nomination of the faculty and the vote of the regents of the University of Wisconsin, I admit you now . . . to the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

500 Alumni Back

About 500 alumni of the University returned to the campus this year to celebrate their class anniversary Reunion weekend, May 26 and 27th. Reunions were streamlined and simplified again this year with the Half Century Club luncheon, Commencement, class luncheons and the Annual Alumni dinner and program the highlights of the weekend.

Classmates of 1899 really started the reunion ball rolling with a class breakfast Friday morning, and Friday noon about 50 members of the Class of '94 were received into the Half Century Club membership at the Golden Jubilee ceremony. Membership cards were presented to all new members and Half Century Club directories, listing all surviving members back to the class of 1872, were distributed to all members. The directories were made possible through the generosity of Herman L. Ekern, '94.

Looking back 50 years ago to a University headed by Charles Kendall Adams, with an enrollment of 1,110, the class of 1894, the first senior class to exceed the 200 mark, gave voice again to their rollicking class yell at the Half Century club luncheon:

"Two hundred and more,
200 and more
We're the class of '94
U-rah we roar
We're the Mighty '94."

Half Century Club president Charles Morris, who passed away June 7, welcomed '94 members into the club, and Class President W. L. Woodward responded. President Dykstra welcomed the veteran alumni back to the University and described changes on the campus while lauding the 12,000 younger alumni who are serving their country.

"Those of you who are proud of the old University of Wisconsin can be proud of the younger generation that has left the campus during the last three years to go out and fight on battlefields throughout the world," President Dykstra said.

In addition to the members of '94 present at the luncheon, there were others who could look back a half a century plus ten, with Judge Levi H. Bancroft of Richland Center,

President Dykstra, Governor Goodland and the three honorary degree winners, Commencement—1944

McClellan Dodge of Madison and Mrs. Clara Flett of Madison, representing the class of 1884. Oldest alumnus attending reunions this year was William J. Mutch, Ripon, of the class of 1882.

New officers of the club were announced, with Former-Gov. Francis E. McGovern, '90, Milwaukee, to serve as president; Judge Oscar Hallam, '87, St. Paul, as vice-president, and Mrs. Grace Conover, '85, Madison, secretary-treasurer.

Order of Events

Friday afternoon alumni were invited to attend the sixth annual honors convocation at which 248 seniors who maintained a scholastic average of 2.25 were the guests of honor. Prof. Philo Buck, who established the department of comparative literature at the University, presented the convocation address, "The Open Road", and President Dykstra, who presided, presented the medals and awards to the outstanding seniors.

Friday evening President and Mrs. Dykstra entertained at their annual reception for alumni and parents at their home. Alumni attended the 91st annual Commencement exercises Saturday morning in the Field House, which were dedicated to the 12,000 alumni in uniform.

Class luncheons were held Saturday noon with members of the class of 1904, 1909, 1914, 1919, 1924 and 1929 meeting to celebrate their class anniversaries. The class of 1919 celebrated their silver anniversary at that occasion. The class of 1909, celebrating its 35th anniversary, had the largest class reunion with 70 members present. The classes of 1934 and 1939, whose members have contributed heavily to the Fighting Badgers roster, reuned by mail this year instead of the usual luncheon.

"The Class '34 Clarion" and the "Five Year Final" were the names of the two four-page reunion newsletters which were sent to all class members. Published and mailed out by the Wisconsin Alumni Association, the '34 letter was edited by Bill Harley proxying for Lt. Delmar Karlen, class president, who is in the army; and Polly Coles Haight, '39, substituted for Class President Howard Weiss who is serving in the navy as an ensign.

Alumni Program

The annual Alumni dinner was held Saturday night on the Union Terrace, a serve-yourself arrangement this year because of the shortage of waiters. During the dinner hour the Swiss Family Fraunfelder serenaded alumni from the theater promenade with a variety of entertaining songs.

The Bluejacket Chorus from the University naval training school started off the annual alumni program by singing several navy songs, and President Van Pelt announced the new officers and presented Alumni Certificates of Appreciation to Judge Oscar Hallam, '87, of St. Paul and Mr. William Haight, '93, Chicago.

John Berge, executive secretary, presented the Wisconsin Alumni Association awards to the outstanding junior man and woman, John March of Madison and Susan Ammann of Madison, N. J., and to Emily Jane Graham, of Madison, went the Association's award to the senior who has done the most to promote the best interests of the University.

Mr. Berge reported to alumni on the activities of the Wisconsin Alumni association, explaining that all activities had been tuned to the wartime needs. He described the four main aims of the Association, (1) to send all mail possible to the University's Fighting Badgers, (2) to maintain the leadership of Wisconsin as a university, (3) to work in close co-operation with the university board of regents and (4) to make membership in the association increasingly valuable to members.

Dean Frank Holt, new public service director of the University, explained the duties of his position and urged closer integration of the University with the people of the state.

President Dykstra described to the alumni the planned building program of the University, explaining the campus development plan which calls for the grouping of buildings by colleges. For instance, all engineering buildings should be together, all agriculture buildings, etc.

In looking forward to the next five years President Dykstra prophesied the return of a great number of men who had been in the armed services. A student body with a peak enrollment of 15, 16, 17 or 18,000 two or three years after Victory comes will be entirely possible, according to the president. To be ready we need staff, equipment and housing to handle this enrollment increase. The prospects for getting our needs taken care of by the legislature are greater now than ever before, the President said, but the University needs the help of alumni to do it.

Wisconsin X Club

Plans for making the Wisconsin X Club a more valuable auxiliary of the Wisconsin Alumni Association were formulated at its annual meeting on Alumni Day. Organized in 1940 as a division of the Wisconsin Alumni Association, the membership of the X Club is made up of former officers and directors of the Association. Their experience in Association work has given these members a special interest in Association and University affairs. Proposed plans for the X Club will provide additional opportunities for these members to participate in Association activities. These plans also make it possible to extend membership in the X Club to Alumni who have not served as officers or directors of the Association. Final details of all these plans are being worked out by the following committee appointed by President John S. Lord: Harry A. Bullis, Chairman, Howard T. Greene, and C. F. Van Pelt. Present officers were re-elected: President—John S. Lord; secretary and treasurer—John Berge. Executive committee: John Lord, Mrs. George Lines, L. F. Graber.

Merit Awards Received

Two service Merit awards have been presented to the University by the navy and the army air forces for its services in training many thousands of the nation's armed forces. Close to 10,000 service men and women have received their training at the University up to the present time.

The University was the first school in the country to receive the Merit award from the navy for its services, which have now extended over two years, in training sailors, WAVES, SPARS, men and women marines and coast guardsmen. The certificate of service award from the army air forces service command was presented recently in recognition of the meritorious service rendered the air forces in this war. The University has been giving meteorology training to army air forces students since early in 1943.

The total of 10,000 servicemen trained includes some 5,000 sailors in radio code and communications as well as 850 WAVES, 100 SPARS, and 100 marine reserves in the same work; nearly 100 navy cooks and bakers; 100 naval officers trained in diesel engineering; 200 mechanics and 420 meteorologists for the army air forces; 50 marine glider pilots; 600 civilian pilots; 100 civil affairs students; and over 500 army trainees in engineering, foreign area studies and medicine. Approximately 2,500 army and navy men are taking training on the campus at the present time.

Cardinal is Tops

The All-American Pacemaker, highest award a college newspaper can receive, has been awarded to the Daily Cardinal for the fifth consecutive year by the Associated College Press in June. Only six college papers received the Pacemaker this year.

"The Cardinal is a consistently sound paper with an alert news coverage" commented the judges. The Cardinal received "excellent" ratings in news coverage, balance, vitality, originality, treatment; in content, organization, style and lead of news stories; in features and speech reports; in headlines, front page make-up, editorial page features; all sports; and in covering the war effort, both in news stories and editorials.

The Pacemaker award is described by the Associated College Press as "an extra honor for those papers that are so generally excellent that they stand out from the rest of the Results of the April election for members to sit on the Wisconsin Alumni Association board of directors were also announced: Mrs. Bernard Brazeau, (Cathryn Chesley), '29, Wisconsin Rapids; Allan C. Davey, '21, Oshkosh; Harold L. Guisse, '05, Wausau; Dr. H. M. Stang, '16, Eau Claire; and Mrs. Barbara Munson Vergeront, '06, Viroqua, are the new directors. Mrs. L. D. Timm, '25, Milwaukee were re-elected to the board. Emily Jane Graham, '44, was elected by the senior class to be senior director.

All-Americans . . . Editors and staff members deserve sincere congratulations for their outstanding achievement.

Executive editor of the Daily Cardinal last semester, the issues for which this Pacemaker was awarded, was Ruth Jaeger, who graduated in February, while Eileen Martinson, present editor, was managing editor. Past Pacemaker editors were Stanley Glowacki, '43; Robert Lewis, '42; Clarence Schoenfeld, '41; and Richard Guiterman, '40.

Summer School

With registration in the eight-weeks summer session at the University going over the 1,600 mark, total enrollment of students taking summer courses on the campus, including army and navy trainees, is over 6,000.

Almost 1,000 students enrolled for the summer semester beginning May 29, and with the students enrolled in the eight-weeks session the number exceeds 2,600. Another 1,000 students are enrolled in engineering and medicine, while close to 2,500 army and navy men are taking training on the campus throughout the summer.

Thousands more are expected to come to the University during July and August to attend 14 special conferences and workshops in the fields of education, music, rural life, and industrial relations. The special institutes are being held in addition to and in conjunction with the state University's regular summer semester and eight-weeks summer session.

"Business Institute"

A "Business Institute", housed in a new building on the campus to cost around $500,000, is being promoted by a group of Wisconsin business men as a post-war project for the University. The proposed institute would study the problems of Wisconsin business and industry and act as sort of a clinic from which business leaders in the state could seek advice.

The new building would be financed in part by money from the Kemper K. Knapp bequest and partly by funds raised by the Wisconsin business men. The Business Institute would function somewhat as the school of Business Administration at Harvard university where students and research experts are put to work on problems of business and finance. Business concerns in the state would be privileged to turn their specific problems over to the staff of the institute for research and reports would be made to them.

According to the plan the new "Business Institute" would be turned over to the University as a gift with the provision that it be used exclusively as a business clinic and research laboratory. After acceptance by the regents other expense would be met presumably out of regular university funds.

Summer Workshops

Fourteen special conferences and institutes in the fields of education, music, rural life, and industrial relations are expected to draw several thousand persons from all parts of Wisconsin and neighboring states to the campus of the University this summer.

The special conferences, institutes, workshops, and clinics, ranging all the way from child development to linguistic training, will be held along with the regular summer semester and eight-weeks summer session. The university School of Education will again operate laboratory schools in elementary and secondary education which will provide opportunity to observe teachers and pupils in action from the nursery school through senior high school. The school also offers an opportunity to observe modern practices in education in operation, to carry on independent work, and to participate in conferences dealing with new educational problems through institutes, conferences, and workshops.

On June 26th the 20th anniversary summer session of the University of Wisconsin School for Workers started and continues through Aug. 19th. Another triumph of the "Wisconsin Idea"—that education be a flexible civic tool forged jointly by educators, farmers, and other active cross-sections of the people—the School for Workers was launched in 1925 as a state-supported workers' education program. Today many universities are following Wisconsin's example, including Harvard, Yale and Wayne, and several church institutions of higher learning.

Budget Approved

The board of regents recently approved a university budget of $7,105,288 for all educational, science research, and public service on and off the campus for the 1944-45 fiscal year beginning July 1. The budget for the University's ensuing year is built on appropriations made by the 1943 legislature for the 1944-45 fiscal year.

With the exception of an increase of $22,745 in the cost of coal the legislature allotment of state funds to the University is the same for the 1944-45 year as the 1943-44 year. The state appropriations sum is $4,277,144; the remainder of the total budget funds come from direct receipts including fees, the federal government, and gifts.

The newly approved budget includes provision for the restoration of salary waivers for about 100 faculty members in upper pay brackets who had not had depression waiver reductions on their salaries restored at the end of the depression. Salary waivers were taken by the entire faculty in 1932 but were restored for all earning less than $3,000 in 1937.

The estimated income from student fees is $575,000 compared with budgeted receipts of $679,000 for 1943-44, a decrease of $104,000. The funds allocated to instruction have been reduced by $212,745.

While last year's budget included $467,900 estimated receipts from the army and navy training programs, the 1944-45 budget includes no income from this source. It is planned as federal programs definitely materialize the income derived from that source will pay the costs of the army-navy programs which are self-supporting.

Gifts and Grants

At their last meeting regents of the University accepted gifts and grants totalling $55,250, including $40,000 from the Wisconsin Alumni Research foundation in support of research at the University for the 1944-45 school year. It included $25,000 in aid to professional research, $10,000 for research in the field of chemical engineering, and $5,000 for financing a symposium.

Besides the financial gifts the university regents accepted for the history department a gift from Joseph L. Shaw, Geneseo, Ill., of 16 volumes of the Congressional Globe for the period of 1859 to 1864.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF THE
FACULTY, STAFF, RESEARCH

E. B. Hart Retires

Edwin Bret Hart has retired as chairman of the biochemistry department at the University after an association of nearly 40 years during which his own research and that carried on by his associates have made important contributions to agriculture and nutrition. He expects to continue in university service as chairman of the research committee, which co-ordinates all research activities of the institution.

Prof. Hart came to the University in 1906 and shortly afterwards succeeded Stephen Moutlon Babcock as head of the agricultural chemistry department. Research in the department continued to add to the worldwide fame the department had already achieved under Babcock, inventor of the test for butterfat.

Among the results of research during Hart's directorship of the department were the discovery of vitamins A and B by E. V. McCollum, now head of the biochemistry department at Johns Hopkins university; the discovery of the vitamin D irradiation process by Harry Steenbock; the discovery of dicumarol, a new drug for treating blood clots, by Karl Paul Link; and discoveries by C. A. Elvehjem, a leader in vitamin research. Another discovery saved the evaporated milk industry, important to Wisconsin, when it was found that the heat coagulation of milk can be prevented by use of sodium phosphate.

Under Hart's direction, department research also discovered the possibilities of home-grown feeds for supplying the protein requirements of cattle for efficient milk production; methods of the preservation of green plants in the form of grass and legume silages; the use of urea as a protein substitute in cattle feed; and the importance of vitamins A and B in eliminating sterility in cattle and the impotency of males.

Polio Research Grant

The University of Wisconsin has been granted $10,400 for a five-year infantile paralysis virus research program, it was recently announced. Effective July 1 the grant is part of a total of $1,128,770 given to 27 universities, laboratories and other organizations by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Serviceman Sends Gift

One of the gifts accepted by the regents at their May meeting was a check for $200 from Corp. David K. Hess, '36, who wrote that his "gift to the University is given in appreciation of a legislative scholarship which I received during my last year in attendance at the University." The gift is the first one received by a World War II man for scholarship purposes.

The University, alumni and state citizens were deeply appreciative and grateful for Corp. Hess' gift coming as it did from Somewhere in the South Pacific where men have other things on their mind besides an impersonal state scholarship received eight years ago. It is the sort of thing that reaffirms people's faith in students and ex-students.

Regent Officers Re-elected

All officers of the university board of regents were re-elected at their May meeting. Walter Hodgkins, Ashland, will again serve as president of the board, with Arthur T. Holmes of La Crosse remaining in the vice-president's office. Maurice McCaffery, Madison, was re-elected secretary of the board for the 37th consecutive year.

Borden Winners

Helen T. Parsons, professor of home economics at the University, and Dr. Paul H. Phillips, professor of biochemistry, have been presented with the 1944 Borden awards for outstanding achievement in research. Besides the scientific recognition the award carries a grant of $1,000.

Miss Parsons was presented the award at the meeting of the American Home Economics Association in Chicago June 21. In selecting Miss Parsons to receive the honor the committee on awards paid high tribute to her work on biotin, pantothenic acid, and riboflavin balances done by a group of research workers at the University of Wisconsin. Having been one of the workers participating in the study and having made many contributions to the science of nutrition and also having been the one to receive credit for offering the first experimental evidence on the nature of "egg white injury" which ultimately led to the recognition of biotin, Miss Parsons was unanimously recommended for this year's award.

According to the official committee report the recognition was based on the fundamental nature of the earlier work done by Miss

Parsons on the nutritional value of protein, her more recent studies that demonstrated the nature of egg white injury and contributed to present knowledge of biotin, her recent participation in studies designed to determine human requirements for biotin, pantothenic acid, and riboflavin, and her exemplification of well planned basic research that should be encouraged.

Dr. Phillips was presented the Borden award at the concluding session of the American Dairy Science association at Cleveland, Ohio, June 22nd. He was selected as this year's recipient of the award for research in dairy production by a special committee of the association. The award, $1,000 in cash and a gold medal, was presented by W. A. Wentworth, New York, representing the Borden company.

Dr. Phillips was selected for this honor because of his outstanding work in such problems as reproduction in dairy cattle, maintaining fertility in cows and bulls, vitamins in the nutrition of calves, and the effect of various flourine levels in the rations of dairy cattle. Dr. Phillips who earned his doctorate at the University in 1933, spent several years in Russia as assistant director of the agricultural school in the Caucasus operated by the Near East Relief Foundation.

The Borden awards were established in 1936 to give appropriate recognition to those who have made outstanding contributions through research to human nutrition. Of the 32 awards given to date, six have been won by members or former members on the University staff; Kenneth Weckel, dairy industry; E. B. Hart, bio-chemistry; Hugo Sommer, dairy industry; Amy Louise Daniels, home economics, Miss Parsons, home economics, and Prof. Phillips, bio-chemistry.

Seven of the other winners have been men or women trained in whole or in part at Wisconsin; Ronald M. Bethke, '20; B. W. Hammer, '08; Ralph Hodgson, '29; Julia Outhouse Holmes, '19; Carl Huffman, '33; Charles Turner, '19; and Vigfus Asmundson, '30.

Groves' New Book

Harold M. Groves, professor of economics and newly appointed chairman of the department, in a recent book, "Production Jobs and Taxes," makes twenty recommendations calculated to produce an adequate peacetime revenue of around $20,000,000,000 annually and to do so without "double taxation" or unfair burdens on anybody.

The book is the first volume in a comprehensive series on "Taxation and Business" being prepared by the Committee on Economic Development, and says that "in recasting the federal tax system after the war, particular attention should be given to the development and preservation of adequate business incentives. This is necessary because the most important single thing after the war will be to develop high levels of production and employment opportunity in order to establish a new high in standards of living and to achieve a new and better realization of the possibilities of democracy."

This encouragement to business is one of the "fundamental interests", along with "fairness", and "adequacy of revenue." The 20 recommendations made by Prof. Groves embrace complete though gradual revision of the whole federal tax structure.

Every one of Professor Groves' provisions is distinctly favorable to business. Indirectly—since the people pay business taxes as well as their own—every one is also beneficial to citizens generally. The combination should tend to lower prices of commodities, to stabilize profits, to increase wages and, because business will know where it stands and be able to plan ahead, to raise production to new highs and employment along with it.

Prof. Harold M. Groves
Writes CED book on taxation

The person of low income, under Prof. Groves' plan, though he paid higher income taxes would presumably have steadier work and higher pay because of the abolition of business taxes. He would also benefit disproportionately by repeal of all the federal sales taxes, except possibly those on liquor and tobacco. Such repeal is an integral part of Prof. Groves' plan.

The person of high income, though he paid lower income taxes (in order to encourage him to risk capital in new and pioneering enterprises) would in the end be subject to higher and less easily avoidable "death duties."

The Groves' plan involves a strengthening and integration of the estate-gift tax system, with the closing of many loopholes and probably with sharply lowered exemptions to heirs not closely related to the testator and gift recipients not normally a responsibility of the giver.

Prof. Groves and his committee realize that the proposals they make cannot be adopted altogether and at once when the war is over. A scheme for the gradual adoption of the plan's features is incorporated in it.

'Father' Jones

Tom Jones, veteran track coach of the University, is the father of the National Collegiate Athletic Association's annual track meet, according to Maj. John L. Griffith, Western conference athletic commissioner and president of the NCAA.

When American colleges organized some 25 years ago, Coach Jones suggested that a national meet be held. The first one, staged in 1921, was so successful and so well received it became an annual event. The great success of that initial venture led to numerous other athletic activities sponsored by the NCAA for American collegiate sportsmen.

Two on Staff Honored

Awards from distinguished British medical societies have been given to two famed physicians of the University of Wisconsin medical school, Col. William S. Middleton and Dr. Ralph M. Waters.

Col. Middleton, dean of the university medical school on leave for the duration, who is serving as chief consultant of medicine for the U. S. troops in the Western theater of war, has been chosen a fellow of the Royal College of Physicians, an honor bestowed on only two other American physicians by the organization of noted British medical men.

Col. Middleton, who is world-known for his writings and who has been distinguished in medical science for many years, left his post at the University to enter the army in 1942. He served as a medical officer in the first World War, first with the British troops and later with the famous Rainbow division and the first U. S. army corps.

Dr. Waters, professor of anesthesia at the University since 1927 and director of Wisconsin General hospital's department of anesthesia, has been awarded the Hickman medal by the Royal Society of Medicine of England for outstanding work in his field.

The fourth man to receive this award since it was initiated in 1931, Dr. Waters is recognized as one of the world's greatest anesthetists. Among his greatest contributions to this field are the introduction of the closed method of anesthesia and his many scientific papers on anesthetic agents.

Col. Lewis Decorated

Col. Herbert H. Lewis, former commandant of the University reserve officers training corps and army specialized training program, has been awarded the Legion of Merit it was revealed late in June.

Col. Lewis was cited by the war department in Washington for meritorious conduct in performing outstanding service from September, 1939, to October, 1943, while commandant of Wisconsin's military unit.

Prior to retiring from active duty last October, Col. Lewis had seen service in the European theater during World War I, and served at numerous army posts in the United States and Hawaii. He is now living in Studio City, Hollywood.

"Enlightened Nationalism"

Urging an "enlightened nationalism", Chester Easum, university history professor, believes the United States should get behind something like the old League of Nations as the best way to maintain peace and improve civilization.

"At best, an enlightened nationalism is comparable to self-respect or pride in an individual," Professor Easum points out. "It makes a nation easier to deal with and more dependable." Co-operation with other nations in an international organization similar to the League of Nations, to maintain peace and improve civilization, would carry out a chief national interest of America, Prof. Easum believes.

Predicting that the number of isolationists will remain small if isolationism means that this country disregards other nations and goes its own way, Prof. Easum says that "this is insane" and adds that it would be equally impractical for any kind of super-state to disregard nationalism.

"We are much more likely to be able to 'civilize' nationalism by enlightening it in this fashion and keeping it within bounds than to eliminate it or to substitute for it the 'broader' cosmopolitan attitude of world citizenship," he declares. "Nationalism is strong and intensified in wartime. It is here to stay."

Radar Developer Honored

Dr. Albert Hoyt Taylor, physics professor at the University of Wisconsin in the early 1900's, and now of the naval research laboratory, Washington, was awarded a medal of merit by the United States government. Dr. Taylor helped to develop radar.

The medal was awarded by the President, and presented to Dr. Taylor by Secretary of State Hull on March 28, 1944. Dr. Taylor was praised for having "labored tirelessly in a course of intensive research and experimentation which eventually resulted in the discovery and development of radar."

Social Studies For Fresh?

In a recent student poll concerning the liberalization of the freshman curriculum at the University, a cross-section of University students living at Elizabeth Waters hall voted 272 to 31 in favor of the liberalization plan. The proposal to allow first-year students a wider choice of social study course was defeated by the College of Letters and Science faculty 54 to 52.

Under the plan, proposed by the university division of social studies, freshman students seeking B. A. and Ph. B. degrees would have a choice of history, economics, philosophy, political science, psychology, sociology and anthropology, or cultural geography. At present the "choice" is limited to history.

Faculty members favoring the liberalization declared at a faculty meeting in May that the University of Wisconsin is one of the few large colleges in the nation which restricts freshman study to history. Their statement called present methods "outmoded and opposed to the development of a well-balanced curriculum" and said that "only in the division of social studies does such an inequality still exist."

Signing the report advocating liberalization were Profs. C. M. Bogholt, V. C. Finch, John M. Gaus, H. F. Harlow, Walter A. Morton and T. C. McCormick. The seventh committee member, Prof. Gaines Post, dissented.

11 Petition For Jews

Eleven University of Wisconsin faculty members were among the 1,700 American university professors who signed a petition submitted to the White House in May urging President Roosevelt to act in behalf of free entry of Jews into Palestine, "so that the Jewish people may ultimately reconstitute Palestine as a free and democratic Jewish commonwealth."

The University of Wisconsin signers were Walter R. Agard, professor of Greek; H. C. Berkowitz, professor of Spanish; Leon W. Cohen, visiting lecturer in mathematics; Philip P. Cohen, assistant professor of clinical chemistry; Merle Curti, professor of history; William Ebenstein, associate professor of political science; the late William Ellery Leonard, professor of English; Selig Perlman, professor of economics; Frederic A. Ogg, professor of political science; Elizabeth B. Rauschenbush, assistant professor of economics; and Lily Salz, instructor in French.

Faculty Notes

Richard C. Church, former music and band director at Madison West high school, has been appointed associate professor of music at the University by the board of regents. Church will have charge of the university symphony orchestra, formerly led by Prof. Carl Bricken, now conductor of the Seattle symphony orchestra, and he also will teach the public school music classes formerly taught by Prof. E. B. Gordon who has retired from the music school.

The regents also approved two new appointments to the university history faculty, associate professor Fred H. Harrington, now at the University of Arkansas on a Guggenheim fellowship, to teach diplomatic history, and Merrill Jensen, now at the University of Washington, to replace Curtis Nettels who left the University for Cornell. Harrington was on the Wisconsin faculty three years ago and Jensen is a former instructor here.

A leave of absence without pay was granted to Prof. Charles Bunn of the law school for the academic year 1944-45. Prof. Bunn has been recalled to service in the United States state department where he has been an advisor in the economic division.

The regents approved the reappointment of John Steuart Curry as artist in residence during the 1944-45 school year.

The resignation of Volney B. Hyslop, professor of oral and plastic surgery, who has been serving on the medical school faculty on a part time basis, was accepted.

Establishment of a special short course in artificial insemination sponsored by the animal husbandry department of the College of Agriculture was also approved.

Harold W. Stoke, acting dean of the Graduate school and professor of political science, and Ivan S. Sokolnikoff, professor of mathematics, were granted leaves of absence from the University by the regents to engage in government work.

Dean Stoke will go to Washington, D. C., where he has been requested by the director of the budget bureau to make a study and report in the field of administrative changes in the federal government for the past few years. Prof. Sokolnikoff will be doing war work in New York City.

Dr. Frances A. Hellebrandt, director of the University physical medicine department and a faculty member for 20 years, has been appointed to a Richmond, Virginia post. She will be professor of physical medicine and acting head of the new physical medicine department in the Medical College of Virginia.

An associate professor at the University, Dr. Hellebrandt has worked with the physical medicine and physiology departments since 1924, when she began teaching as a student assistant. She received her M.D. degree here in 1929.

Dr. Norman D. Newell, associate professor of geology who has been on leave this past year, has been appointed professor of stratigraphy and paleontology at the Johns Hopkins university. Dr. Newell is now engaged in special geological studies for the Peruvian government, to which he was assigned by the state department.

Edward N. Doan, lecturer in the school of journalism, was appointed by Acting Governor Walter S. Goodland recently as his press secretary. Mr. Doan, who has been on a leave of absence from the University this past semester, will return to his teaching duties Sept. 1.

Dr. Annette Washburn, associate professor of neuro-psychiatry, was elected president of Alpha Epsilon Iota, national women's medical fraternity, at a recent convention held in Madison.

A broader rehabilitation for returned servicemen was asked by Dr. Frances A. Hellebrandt, associate professor of physical medicine and research associate in physiology at the University, at a banquet of delegates. The best reward a nation can give its returned soldiers is the ability to work and return to normal living, she said, in defining rehabilitation as "the restoration to men and women of the privileges of full and abundant health."

SPORTS

By BOB FOSS

Spring Sports Close

Fifty-five athletes of the University of Wisconsin have been awarded major or minor "W's" or numerals as a result of their participation in spring sports on the Badger campus, it was announced recently by Harry Stuhldreher, Wisconsin athletic director. The awards were approved by the student and faculty athletic boards. Of the total, 41 athletes were awarded major "W's", eight minor letters and six were awarded numerals. Fifteen of the awards were in baseball, 28 were in track, five were in golf, and seven in tennis.

Football Coming Up

Summer football practice opened on the University of Wisconsin campus on Monday, July 10, it was announced by Harry Stuhldreher, Wisconsin director of athletics and head football coach.

Football equipment was issued to the Badger summer gridders on Friday and Saturday, July 7 and 8, Coach Stuhldreher said, emphasizing that Wisconsin's 1944 summer practice will be fitted in again with the University's constant physical fitness training program.

Wisconsin's summer football practice squad consists of Navy trainees stationed on the campus for engineering and radio training, and 16 and 17 year old freshman civilians now enrolled.

Included on the squad, under present expectations, will be three veterans from last year and at least five men from the spring squad who were among the more impressive in practice action then. The three veterans are Pat Weber, end; John Davey and Jim Kusa, guards. The spring practice veterans are Ed Bahlow, end; Joe Campbell, halfback; Earl Crum, Carl Kulawinski, and Del Hanke, tackles.

With these veterans plus about half of the spring practice squad of 71 expected to be out for summer training and perhaps back on the squad when the fall campaign opens, the Badger football picture generally looks better for next fall than it did a year ago, Stuhldreher said.

Last fall, with transfers to other training centers and inductions into the services at the last minute, the Badger football practice and campaign of 1943 had to start from scratch.

Here's 1944 Schedule

Designation of special day occasions for all five of the University of Wisconsin's home football games has been announced by Harry Stuhldreher, Badger director of athletics and head football coach.

The game with Ohio State's eleven in Camp Randall stadium on Oct. 14 will be the Homecoming contest for the Badgers, while the gridiron affair here with the Great Lakes Navy team Oct. 28 has been designated as Service Men's Day.

Wisconsin's opening home game with Marquette on Oct. 7 will be High School Day; the Big Ten game with Iowa on Nov. 11 will be Dad's Day; and the annual grid argument with Minnesota here on Nov. 25 will be "W" Club Day.

Wisconsin opens its 1944 football season on the road, meeting Northwestern there on Sept. 30. The three other games away from home for the Badgers are at Notre Dame Oct. 21; at Purdue Nov. 4; and at Michigan Nov. 18.

WELCOME, CLASS OF '44

Welcome to the Wisconsin Alumni Association family. It's a splendid family because it is made up of thousands of loyal Badgers like yourself—all interested in promoting the best interests of the University of Wisconsin.

The sun never sets on Wisconsin Alumni. No matter where you go, you'll find fellow Badgers ready and eager to greet you. Your membership card in the Wisconsin Alumni Association is your card of introduction. Carry it with you, always.

In 84 cities in the United States you'll find Wisconsin alumni clubs. A few have weekly meetings, some meet monthly and others at irregular intervals. Contact the officers of these alumni clubs and attend their meetings as often as you can. The best Badgers in each city are members of these clubs. If you have any difficulty in locating these club officers, let me know and I'll supply their names and addresses.

It's good business for you to get acquainted with Wisconsin Alumni in your city. In the first place, they are good citizens—good people for you to know. Wisconsin alumni are civic, industrial and professional leaders in your city. Get acquainted with these leaders. They're good people to know.

Many of you, of course, will have to wait until after the war to make these alumni contacts. But even as a Fighting Badger you'll meet other Fighting Badgers, no matter where Uncle Sam sends you. On every battle front, Fighting Badgers are doing their full share to win this war. In distant India, Fighting Badgers have organized a Wisconsin Club—the biggest club in that area. It meets twice a month and features good entertainment and refreshments.

Your Address

Be sure your correct address is on file at Association headquarters. Magazines and newspapers are not forwarded by the postal department, so your copies of the Badger Quarterly and our magazine, the Wisconsin Alumnus, won't reach you unless we have a good address for you. The next issue of the Badger Quarterly will be off the press in September and the first fall issue of the Wisconsin Alumnus in October. There are no publications in August. Stuhldeher's Football Letters will be published again this fall, starting with the Wisconsin-Northwestern game on September 30. Make sure that you get all these publications by supplying a good address for our mailing list.

Association publications are sent free of charge to the thousands of Wisconsin alumni in the armed forces. As this issue goes to press, nearly 10,000 Fighting Badgers are on our mailing list. Even so, the list is incomplete. There are probably two or three thousand Wisconsin alumni in the armed forces who would welcome the opportunity to get these publications, but are not getting them because we do not have their military address. If you meet any such Fighting Badgers, tell them to send their military addresses to the Wisconsin Alumni Association, 770 Langdon Street, Madison.

If you are sent overseas as a member of the armed forces you will get the Association's newest publication—the Cardinal Communique. This boiled down news letter is published exclusively for Fighting Badgers serving outside the United States. It is sent air mail because regular mail takes too long. Mailing restrictions make it impossible to send the Wisconsin Alumnus overseas, so this Cardinal Communique was developed to supply campus and alumni news to our Fighting Badgers overseas.

Membership in the Wisconsin Alumni Association makes you a full-time Badger.

There are, unfortunately, two kinds of Badgers: full-time and part-time. A part-time Badger is concerned chiefly with what he can get out of his Alma Mater; he has little interest in what he owes his Alma Mater or his obligation in promoting her welfare.

A full-time Badger recognizes his obligations and responsibilities as a Wisconsin alumnus. He is a member of the Wisconsin Alumni Association so that he can do his part in carrying out the Association's primary objective: to promote, by organized effort, the best interests of the University of Wisconsin.

This organized effort is best effected through membership in the Association. Scattered alumni working alone can do but little; thousands working together can do much for our Alma Mater. As a member of the Association your influence is combined with that of thousands of your fellow alumni—all full-time Badgers working together to carry out this four-point program of activities:

1. Send Association publications, free, to the thousands of Wisconsin alumni in the armed forces.
2. Help to maintain Wisconsin's leadership among American Universities.
3. Work with the Regents and the University administration in promoting the best interests of our Alma Mater.
4. Expand and develop Association services to make membership increasingly valuable.

As a member of the Class of '44 you are particularly well qualified to participate in this work. You know Wisconsin's needs and problems better than many of your fellow alumni who have not been back to the Campus since their graduation; you know what changes must be made to prepare for post-war needs. From first-hand experience, you know which of Wisconsin's buildings have outlived their usefulness; what new equipment and structures must be provided to insure adequate educational facilities for the army of students that will flock to our Campus when the Axis gangsters have been liquidated. Make good use of these facts as you work with your fellow alumni in supporting your University's building program. This program needs your backing, just as it needs the support of every full-time Badger.

ANOTHER YEAR OF PROGRESS

By C. F. VAN PELT, Retiring President

This issue signalizes another year of progress by your Association. Since the WISCONSIN ALUMNUS is not published in August, this is the last issue during the current fiscal year which ends August 31. During this year your Association has concentrated on four objectives:

1. Sending Association publications, free, to the thousands of Wisconsin alumni in the armed forces.
2. Helping to maintain Wisconsin's leadership among American universities.
3. Working with the Regents and the University administration in promoting the best interests of our Alma Mater.
4. Expanding and developing Association services to make membership increasingly valuable.

Until Hitler and his cohorts have been exterminated, objective No. 1 must continue to be our primary objective. These Fighting Badgers are fighting our battles for us. They are doing a grand job on every battle front. They are safeguarding the liberties that we on the home front take for granted so casually. They're giving all they've got for Uncle Sam and the rest of us back home.

Like all service men, these Fighting Badgers are hungry for mail and news from home. Lt. Julius J. Werner, writing from the South Pacific, puts it this way:

"News from home and friends is definitely the shot of 'adrenalin' that we need out here, so your service is very instrumental in keeping our chins up."

Letters like this arrive at Association headquarters in a steady stream. To supply this news, the Wisconsin Alumni Association sends all its publications, free of charge, to our Fighting Badgers. Such letters, and there are hundreds of them in our files, make one point crystal clear: This service for our Fighting Badgers MUST be continued for the duration. We must not let them down.

Cardinal Communique

Your Association has also developed a new publication, the CARDINAL COMMUNIQUE, for our Badgers overseas. This special news letter is sent air mail to more than 2,000 Fighting Badgers serving outside of the United States. Two reasons prompted its development. In the first place, mailing restrictions made it impossible to send the WISCONSIN ALUMNUS to non-members. Secondly, magazines take from eight to ten weeks to reach their destination. By that time the news is too old to be interesting. Furthermore, addresses are changed so frequently that some magazines had to be relayed two or three times before reaching the addressee. The CARDINAL COMMUNIQUE solves both of these problems. Going by air mail instead of regular mail, it reaches our Fighting Badgers in eight to ten days instead of that many weeks. It does not, of course, supply as much news as the WISCONSIN ALUMNUS. It has to be small to be sent air mail. But the letters from these overseas Badgers indicate that this new publication fills the bill.

Membership Income Up $1,166.00

Fortunately, Association members have supported this war-time service splendidly. Membership income so far the first ten months of this year (September 1, 1943 to July 1, 1944) totals

$17,022.00. This is $1,166.00 more than the membership income for the same period last year. This increase must be continued in order to take care of the 400 new Fighting Badgers added to our mailing list each month. This list now includes 9,748 names. So far your Association has managed to "get by" successfully—thanks to your fine support and the cooperation of our victory members who pay $10 a year instead of the regular membership fee of $4. But we have reached the point where we must get several hundred more new members or curtail our services to our Fighting Badgers. Since they are giving all they've got for us, there is only one answer to this problem: New members, now!

Our worst headache right now is the paper shortage. War-time limitations make it necessary for us to operate on the same paper quota we had in 1942. This means stretching our paper supply to the very limit because our mailing list of Fighting Badgers is five times as big today as it was in 1942. To stretch our paper supply, we have used lighter paper stock, smaller type, narrower margins and fewer pages. Other magazines (Time, Liberty, Colliers) have had to do the same thing. We don't like it, of course, but we'll have to put up with it until Hitler, Tojo and their cohorts have been exterminated. After all, it's pretty insignificant compared to the headaches encountered by our Badgers in the jungles of Saipan or the foxholes in Normandy.

Until the war is over, these special services must receive our major efforts. However, we have not forgotten objectives 2, 3 and 4 listed above. With minor curtailments here and there, all these activities have been continued on a pre-war basis.

The Association's twelve standing committees have continued their activities, with fewer meetings on account of travel restrictions. Whenever possible, this committee work has been carried on by correspondence.

700,000 Pieces of Mail

More than 700,000 pieces of mail were sent out from Alumni Association headquarters since last September. This includes over 100,000 copies of the WISCONSIN ALUMNUS, 120,000 copies of Stuhldreher's FOOTBALL LETTER; 2,700 copies of the CARDINAL COMMUNIQUE; 240,000 copies of the Badger Quarterly. Smaller mailings run the total above 700,000 for the current fiscal year.

The Association is also completing its first year's radio program on WHA. Last August this station asked our executive secretary, John Berge, to go on the air with a weekly program based on letters from our Fighting Badgers. Each week John selects the best of these letters and reads them to his WHA audience. This program gives Badgers on the home front an opportunity to share in the experiences of Wisconsin alumni in the armed forces.

My term of office is now over and my successor, Philip H. Falk, is now at the helm of our Wisconsin Alumni Association. Phil is well qualified to take over this job. His experience as director, treasurer and vice-president make him thoroughly familiar with Association needs and problems. Since his office as superintendent of Madison schools is only a few blocks from the campus, he will always be readily available for immediate action in handling Association problems. I am confident you will give him the same splendid support you gave me while I served as your president.

World War I Retread

Lieut. Robert T. HERZ, '20, is one of the very few lieutenants in this war who wears a service stripe from World War I. He is probably the only World War I veteran who enlisted in this war as a private and worked his way up through the ranks.

Lieut. Robert Herz, '20
Enlisted in both World Wars

Feeling that he must get into this war, Bob tried every which way to get into service back in 1942 but was repeatedly and consistently turned down because of his age. In the best "If at first you don't succeed . . ." manner, determined to get in some how or other, he managed to get his enlistment accepted and the day before his 45th birthday he became a private in Uncle Sam's army at Spence Field in Moultrie, Georgia.

In his induction i.q. tests, out of an aggregate of 160 questions, he scored 157. When his records went through to the commanding officer's desk he sent for Pvt. Herz and asked, "What in the name of goodness are you doing here at your age and with an i.q. such as you have registered?"

Bob edited the camp's paper for awhile and then was sent to officer candidate school in Florida where he went through an intensive thirteen weeks training for airforce combat intelligence. There, competing with boys just out of college, Bob was in the first 200 out of a class of 2300 candidates.

After a number of assignments at training fields in the United States, Bob was promoted to a first lieutenantcy and last January was sent overseas. He is now serving in Italy, interviewing flyers returned from a mission for information that plays an important part in any army operations. That's Our Man Herz, and we are sure that one star on the University of Wisconsin service flag shines a little brighter for an army career that succeeded although it had two strikes on it at the start.

Four-Sub Man Fryatt

Several months ago Lt. (j.g.) Harry E. FRYATT, Jr., '43, was called to New York to broadcast over the Admiral Hour of World news. Announcer Edwards introduced him:

"The news of the Allied fight against the U-Boat menace has been increasingly good in the past few months, and it looks as if we've smashed the weapon the Germans had depended on for ultimate victory. Recently President Roosevelt gave a citation to the U.S.S. Card, her air squadron and escort vessels for destroying more submarines than any other team in naval history. In that squadron is Lt. Harry E. Fryatt, of Waukesha, Wisconsin, who alone has accounted for four U-Boats. In a recent battle in the North Atlantic, this 22-year old pilot sank two submarines in three days."

Lt. (j.g.) Harry E. Fryatt, Jr., '43
Was "Yank of the Week"

The interview then went on to describe the details of his one wheel crash landing. While combatting a surfaced submarine, Harry's plane had taken a 40 mm. shell through its wing, which damaged the landing gear so that only one wheel could be lowered. He was then forced to attempt a landing in the gathering darkness while the Atlantic was kicking up considerably. After three passes, he finally came in, shearing off a wing tip of his plane and crashing into a parked plane that was standing on the deck. Neither he nor his gunner or radio man were injured.

Later Harry was nominated "Yank of the Week" over Bob Hawk's Saturday evening program and received thousands of cigarets from the company that sponsors the program. The award was for his one wheel landing.

Besides the presidential unit citation, Harry has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for airmanship, courage and accuracy in bombing submarines. On June 4, 1943, he received a letter of commendation for aggressiveness and bravery in his determined attack on an enemy submarine and the valuable support he gave another attacking plane by his well-directed machine gun fire after his own depth bombs were expended.

On October 4, 1943, he received another letter of commendation for aggressiveness and bravery exhibited in attacking a heavily firing submarine and on his subsequent skill and expert airmanship which enabled him to land his damaged plane without loss of life. Lt. Fryatt is now on duty with the Pacific fleet.

Disabled Workers Successful

George Barr, a 1933 graduate of the University of Wisconsin, became the successful president of his own business when nobody would hire him after he lost his leg in an automobile accident in St. Paul, Minn., in 1935. Barr has a message for the men overseas: Those who are partially disabled should not fear the future.

"The physically handicapped veterans of this war need not look forward to selling apples," he said. "Many employers, through the manpower shortage, have learned that the blind, the deaf, and the crippled sometimes make better workmen than do physically perfect persons."

When he was unable to find work he went to Chicago to live with a boyhood friend from Superior, Wis.—Mitchell Echikoditz, a deaf mute. No one would hire either of the two men so they went into business for themselves, manufacturing cosmetics, drugs, and other chemicals. Barr used the knowledge gained in getting his chemistry degree at the University of Wisconsin.

"Business grew and we hired . . . other deaf mutes until we had 15 working. When we bought our first machine, a labeler, I decided that since I, a man with only one leg, could run it, another one-legged man could do the job. So we hired one."

Now Barr has 150 employees working for him, of which only ten have no physical handicaps. They are working on government contracts involving more than $1,500,000.

For machines which require the use of powerful arms Barr hires legless men who have developed their arm muscles through the use of crutches. Blind persons have been found to be exceptionally skillful at tipping fragile tin tubes. He hired more than fifty persons, all blind, for this job.

"We didn't lose one employee to the draft," Barr said. "We have no problem of absenteeism. In our nine years we have had only one accident."

Ma Bradford's 50 Years

By Louise Troxell, Dean of Women

Mrs. Cora Bradford has completed more than 50 years of housing University students, most of the time women. She has abundant faith in them and a youthful ability to think their antics funny rather than ominous signs of the decay of civilization.

Two campus landmarks have been headquarters for Mrs. Bradford—Grady's on Langdon Street, and Ye Gath Inn on Frances. Probably the latter is asked about by more homesick alumni than any other house on the campus. It is one of the last remnants of "the good old days" when the campus was a molehill compared to its present size, when everybody knew everybody, when life went easily and casually, and when men and women students, married or single, lived under the same roof in serene indifference to Mrs. Grundy.

But Time marched on and so did Mrs. Bradford. In 1900 she bought her present location, 613 N. Frances Street. Here the Sigma Nu fraternity was organized in 1902, and here in 1912 she finally succumbed to the pleas of Dean of Women Mrs. Lois K. Matthews, now Mrs. Marvin B. Rosenberry, to take women students. She liked them, they liked her, and here 32 years later she remains, with the able assistance of her daughter Irene, as head of Bradford House. In the early days, even on picnics, her "young ladies" wore long skirts and shirtwaists, cartwheel hats on towering pompadours, chatelaine bags, gold watch fobs, gloves and veils; now on picnics and often on campus they are "girls" in pigtailed and dungarees, socks and bare legs.

Mrs. Bradford is no sentimentalist, but "I loved them then, I love them now", she says. "They come back to see me after years away. They are, in a sense, my children, and I like to think that I have done my part faithfully in their years spent with me."

BADGER BIGS

Publisher F. E. Compton, '98

FRANK E. COMPTON, '98, recently celebrated his anniversary of 50 years in the book business. Publisher of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia, extensive reference book, "F.E." as he is known, was the son of Wisconsin pioneers and began his book selling career to earn his way through the University of Wisconsin.

It was in 1894 that he began selling books for Chandler B. Beach, publisher and owner of "The Student's Cyclopaedia", which he later bought. In 1898 Compton became a crew manager of Beach salesmen and for the next seven years organized and directed sales crews in the eastern states. In 1905 he returned to Chicago to become business manager for Chandler Beach, and soon he borrowed $150,000 and bought the business from him.

In 1918, soon after the first World War, he was ready to build the new encyclopedia on which he had been putting so much time and thought. Guy Stanton Ford, late president of the University of Minnesota, and a former classmate of Mr. Compton, was engaged as editor-in-chief of the new series. Staffed by a group of experts, the new and rather revolutionary Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia was launched in 1922. The encyclopedia underwent "continuous revision" until 1932 when it was completely overhauled, largely rewritten and expanded to make it more useful to both older and younger readers. Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia today holds a distinguished position in its field, and can be found in almost every elementary and high school library. It was the first encyclopedia to be published in England, was later published in Italian, and shortly before World War II a Scandinavian edition was launched.

Scientist Frederick L. Hisaw, '24

FREDERICK LEE HISAW, Ph. D. '24, is the Harvard zoologist mentioned in the April 10 Time magazine as the scientist who proved the existence of a new female sex organ. The new hormone, named relaxin by its discoverer, may eventually help to make childbirth easier.

The pocket gopher served as "guinea pig" for Dr. Hisaw's long, painstaking experiments. "Though the pure hormone has not yet been isolated, Hisaw has produced highly concentrated doses. A conscientious scientist who never lets himself get ahead of his facts, Dr. Hisaw refuses to predict what use, if any, may be made of relaxin," we quote from Time.

Playwright Herbert Kubly, '37

To the already long list of Wisconsin alumni who have contributed to the entertainment world as actors, playwrights and directors, the name of HERBERT KUBLY, '37, can be added. "Men to the Sea" is the name of a new play written by Kubly.

Now on the staff of the New York Herald Tribune, Kubly has written a wartime drama of enlisted men at sea and their women at home. The play will be produced on Broadway late in the summer, with Eddie Dowling producing and Kubly assistant director.

Kubly got the idea for his play, which has a deeply religious theme, last October after covering an assignment near the Brooklyn navy yard. He sketched in the principal theme and after several rewritings, submitted the manuscript to Dowling, an important New York producer, who agreed to produce it.

WPB Exec. L. R. Boulware, '16

Lemuel R. BOULWARE, '16, as operations vice-chairman of the war production board, enacts the role of a stern parent to industry and he constantly lives under a deluge of requests and protests. He must dole out fair production allowances to all industries manufacturing thousands of products, from baby clothes to ships, from penicillin to explosives.

He was vice president and general manager for Celotex corp. before going to Washington in February of 1942 to serve as assistant to William Batt on the WPB requirements committee. He ran WPB's landing craft production program and was deputy comptroller of ship building before he was promoted to operations vice chairman six months ago.

BADGER BOOKSHELF

McCARTHY OF WISCONSIN, by Edward A. Fitzpatrick. Reviewed by Irma E. Hochstein, '09.

"I think I am destined to play quarterback always." Charles McCarthy,—"Mac" to the Wisconsin athletes of the first two decades of this century—once said in speaking of his work as distinguished from the accomplishments of elected officials in the public eye. No Wisconsin football player minimizes the pivotal importance of the quarterback. Yet the spectacular work is the full-back's.

His experience as a leading all American quarterback on the Brown university teams during his college years, as coach at the University of Georgia in the fall of 1897, as assistant coach at the University of Wisconsin, made it natural for Mac, in talking of his life, to find comparisons here. In founding the legislative reference library, in his work in the broad field of social legislation, in education, in cooperation, his relationship to the man who carried the ball was that of guide, coach, educator, philosopher and friend. When the time for action came, from the first draft of the bill to the approved law and the administration of that law, Mac never failed in giving the signals. But how great a genius he was at bucking the line and playing the game is now revealed in Fitzpatrick's McCarthy of Wisconsin.

The biography is most timely now. Never more urgently than now do we need to know and to use one of the most valuable tools we have here in the states of the United States to keep democratic processes of government functioning. We need the fact finding, information giving legislative reference libraries created to help the individual law maker to get the facts on which to suit laws justly to human life.

We need men trained to carry on democratic processes. Fitzpatrick, in his biography, shows how McCarthy trained men, unbeknownst to themselves, as a part of his work for the functioning of government to serve the individual common man.

McCarthy's work in developing the University extension, in establishing continuation schools, in investigating industrial relations, in agricultural marketing, standardization and cooperation, in efforts to control the assumption of legislative powers by the courts and by the executive, are described with scholarly accuracy and interest. It is the first time that an account of the progressive legislative history of the state of Wisconsin and its significance in national affairs has been given so well in one book.

We of Wisconsin owe a great debt to McCarthy's friend, Edward A. Fitzpatrick, for having written this biography. We may think that he has been too objective in the account of his and McCarthy's friendship for each other, and in understatement of that which evolves when two superior minds stimulate each other and energize each other's thoughts. But he has given us what we are in great need of at the present time, a renewed knowledge that men can work together to achieve a good life and he has shown us the way—it can be done.

OLD WORLD WISCONSIN, by Fred L. Holmes, '06.

In this third book of a projected trilogy to tell the unsung glories of his native state, Fred Holmes travels "Around Europe in the Badger State" and weaves a story of the different customs, religious feasts, family habits, language differences, and the pageantry of an-

REMEMBER WHEN

REMEMBER WHEN four decades ago the favorite student entertainment rendezvous was Flom's, located in the basement of the building at the southeast corner of E. Main and Webster streets? A colorful figure of Madison of that day. Fred later built a more pretentious theater just around the corner in the 200 block on E. Main street, which became a favorite vaudeville spot. Students flocked there in great numbers, and it was a rollicking place where customers sat at tables down in front and sipped their beer while watching the show.

In that day when a student got his monthly allowance from home, he usually headed downtown for a thick steak or lobster spread at Tommy Morgan's famous restaurant located in the basement of the old Tenney block. Sid Rundell's old place on Main street near where the Woolworth building now stands, was a great gathering for the football stars of the day. Norsky Larson, Ikey Karel, Eddie Cochems, Joe Flogg, Emil Skow, and others, could usually be found in one of these three places.

Those were the days, too, when you could get a tailor made suit at Olson and Veerhusen's for about $35, and there Albin Johnson would tailor the peg top trousers and the styles of forty years ago for a generation of students. Back then, when a good show came to town there would be a line-up of students in front of the old Fuller Opera house, now the Parkway, and battle ensued to determine who would get the choice seats up in "nigger heaven" under the roof.

Back in the days of Flom's and Tommy Morgan's and Sid Rundell's, Eddy's "One Minute" restaurant was also a favorite meeting place for students. There was a separate charge for every article of food and you could get a good meal for 18 cents. Fred Flom was an authentic symbol of those colorful days, and grey-haired alumni throughout the United States will mourn his recent passing.

REMEMBER WHEN the Capital Times printed a picture of the state capitol dome collapsing, about ten years ago? The picture, which appeared then as an April Fool's joke, appears in a recent issue of Coronet magazine, leading off a series of hoax pictures.

REMEMBER WHEN the football rules in 1910 were so modified that some daring '09 boys climbed up and painted "Ping Pong Hall" on the gymnasium, and the football team, including Vanderboom, staged a marble game, written up in true sports style, in the Cardinal?

Contributed by Ethel Burnham, '09, Los Angeles.

REMEMBER WHEN you could have your sheets laundered for 2¢ each, and the laundry called for and delivered them? The annual spring Castalia banquet at Keeley's Pal was 50¢ and the menu included bonbons? The horse and buggy rules were posted on your dormitory door? You could have your dormitory room cleaned for 15¢? You had to be in bed by 10 P. M. at Chadbourne? (You could cover your transom with a voluminous black sateen petticoat and keep the watchwoman who came with a lantern from knowing your light was on).

cient drama and the legend and lore of the people of Wisconsin who came over from "the old country." Imagination and color make it a fascinating book, and Mineral Point's Wisconsin-bred Max Fernekes did the sketches.

It is like discovering acres of diamonds in your back yard, to read Fred Holmes' book.
