UNIVERSITY MEMORABILIA

THE COLLECTION AT THE HISTORICAL LIBRARY.

NOTES ON FORMER DAYS AT WISCONSIN.

Many Old Programs—What the Collection Is.

One of the best and most interesting methods of preserving the history of an institution like the university is by means of the programs, the records of its social events, memorabilia as they are called. Such a record furnishes only the outlines of a picture but outlines that can readily be filled in and the element left to the imagination makes a study of such records the more fascinating.

Such a record of the history of the University of Wisconsin can be found at the library of the State Historical society. The collection of these university memorabilia was only begun a short time ago but already a large number of articles of interest to university students have been procured. Although necessarily incomplete, especially in the earlier years of the university, yet even there it is full enough to enable one to form many ideas of the old days at Wisconsin.

As one reads these old records a picture is formed of the university as it was in the past, like and unlike the present. A university where athletics were little known, literary society events more frequent, parties as numerous but not as elaborate, no football games heralded by flaming posters, no athletic balls, no great gymnasium and in short a university without many of the things which make life worth living to the average undergraduate of the present time. But as the old students knew not what they missed they were perhaps very well off.

The earliest of the collection is the commencement program of the class of '59, this being the fifth annual commencement. It is in Latin, a language which every graduate must know at that time, and begins, "Dedicatio Illustrissimo Alexandro W. Randall Armigero, Republicae, Wisconsinensis Gubernatori." The salutatory was also delivered in Latin. There were eight graduates. In addition to the regular orations delivered by the graduates there were two master's orations, every candidate for the degree of M. A. being required to deliver one.

On May 9th, 1862, occurred the second anniversary of the founding of Hesperian and Athenaeian halls, and these twin occasions were celebrated with due formality by the two societies. The programs are very similar but Hesperia seemed the more pious for the evening in her hall was opened with readings from the Bible, while Athena only had a benediction, at the end. The program consisted of essays, orations and toasts.

On the day before commencement day occurred the graduation exercises of the Female College, as it was called. There are several of these commencement programs and they are much the same as the regular ones except that essays are substituted for the orations. These separate commencements continued until 1870, when the Female College and the University became one in name as well as in fact.

The first joint debate is that of 1873, between Hesperia and Athena and is on the familiar question—"Should the United States adopt a system of free trade?" In addition to the debate each society was represented by an orator, one oration being delivered before and the other after the debate. The original owner of the program has denoted the winning society, which in this case was Hesperia, on the affirmative. The program of the joint debate of 1876 between Calliope and Hesperia is also in the collection. This was the first debate in which a new society took part and Hesperia, which had won a majority of the previous debates fell before the younger rival. This, however, was the only joint debate won by this society.

About 1875 began a series of "joint exhibitions," given by one of the girls' and one of the boys' societies together. In '75 a joint exhibition was given by Laureia and Calliope and in '80 one by Laureia and Athena. These seem to have continued until about 1886.

There is the program of the "Junior Ex." of 1875 in which the contestants were Hesperia, Calliope, Laureia and Castalia. The result is not recorded. The program of the first meeting of the oratorical association is preserved but it is not very different from such programs of the present.

In connection with the junior exhibitions there are several interesting mock programs. One of these was gotten out for the Junior Ex of 1877. It is headed:

Sweeping Cyclone of '78.

Grand Junior Gush.

Then follow the names of the contestants with mock titles to the orations, presumably take-offs on their peculiarities. They are well gotten up and the titles of the orations still seem witty even to those who know nothing of the individuals.

A dainty idea is that of Hesperia's program on her fifteenth birthday. It is in the form of a fan which when opened discloses the program on the leaves. This would be pretty and appropriate for a dance card.

The first sign of the Alumni Ball is in 1874 when a "Promenade Concert and Soiree Dansante" was given by the alumni. The program is of good length, consisting of twenty-one numbers. After this the parties became more frequent. One young man, who has donated the card for the reception given by the class of '75 to the intercollegiate oratorical association, has omitted to erase the young ladies names. No clue, however, remains as to who the owner of the card was.

Then there is a program of the second Greek letter reception, given in 1882 by Beta Theta Pi, Phi Kappa Psi, Phi Delta Theta and Chi Psi, those being all of the men's societies then organized.

One's curiosity is aroused at seeing two different class day programs of '75, alike in matter but different in size, and one being dated the Tuesday of commencement week and the other Wednesday. What should have caused

WORK OF THE CHORAL UNION

MRS. BISHOP AND MR. NORTON SECURED AS SOLOISTS.

CONCERT PROBABLY TO BE GIVEN FEBRUARY 7.

Good Attendance Yesterday Evening.—Membership Tickets Issued.

The meeting of the Choral Union last evening was attended by a very large number. The policy of registering the attendance of the members at the remaining rehearsals before the concert insures more vigorous and efficient practice.

Tickets were distributed to the members on entering and the fact was revealed that about two hundred will participate in the final event. The rehearsal was characterized by spirit and careful attention to time and expression. Prof. Parker announced that two soloists who sang in the concert last year, Mrs. Bishop and Mr. Norton, will aid in "The Creation" and other excellent artists will assist. The date of the concert will be in all probability, the 7th of February.

NEW CO-OPERATIVE MANAGER.

W. R. Graves, '95, has resigned as business manager of the co-operative society and the board of directors in their meeting Saturday elected R. B. Cochrane, '97, to fill the vacancy.

—Thirteen pitchers and nine catchers have presented themselves as candidates for Harvard's base ball team.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

—A rink has been cleared off on Lake Mendota, east of the boat house, and students will have an opportunity to skate in spite of the snow.

—A. G. Murlless of Milwaukee has entered the junior class in the Law school. Mr. Murlless passed the state board examination in December and has been admitted to the bar.

—Theo. Kronshage, '91, who has been ill for some time with typhoid fever at his home in Boscobel was able to return to his business in Milwaukee this morning.

—The observatory will be opened for the first time this term, tomorrow evening. If these open evenings are taken advantage of many students can learn something about a science which they may not be able to study in their regular course.

—The two classes in freshman Latin have been found insufficient to accommodate the large number of students now taking that study. Another division has been formed which will meet at 8 o'clock Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursday and Fridays.

—This term students who are absent from military drill more than twenty per cent. of the time will be conditioned and required to make up the term's drill in their junior year. As there are only twenty-two meetings for drill in the present term, four absences may bring serious consequences.

—The supply of catalogues for 94-95 is exhausted. Work will be begun on '95's catalogue as soon as definite action has been taken on the proposed semester system. The board of regents met today to consider the question. It is probable that the new catalogue will be completed before the end of the term.

INTERNATIONAL GAMES.

The correspondence between the New York Athletic Club and the London Athletic Club relative to International Amateur Track Athletic games to be held in New York during the coming season resulted in the acceptance of the challenge by the London Athletic Club. The contestants are to be members of these two clubs. It is probable that a number of University students will be available, though it is impossible to say now who will be the respective representatives of the clubs. The list of events as proposed by the Englishmen are: 100 yards dash, 120 yards hurdle, 440 yards run, half mile run, one mile run, three miles run, high jump, long jump, 16 lbs. shot (or hammer). Probably twelve men will be selected to compete by each side and they will be chosen in conformity with the rules of the Amateur Athletic Association of England and the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States. The list of events proposed by the London A. C. is the same as that favored by the N. Y. A. C. with the exception that both hammer and shot contests are desired by the latter, and a 220 yards dash to be the odd event, making eleven in all instead of nine as suggested by the visitors. The date favored by the N. Y. A. C. is early in May, and the only possible alternative is in the middle of October. The N. Y. A. C. will probably pay the expenses of the visiting team.

NOTICE.

No Cardinals will be delivered to any address after Saturday unless subscriptions are paid up. Leave name and address in cash boxes in Library and Science hall.

We wish to call the attention of the students to the fact that news matter handed in to the Cardinal must be signed by the writers names. We have sometimes been criticised for failure to publish items given us but these are usually found to be cases where the matter has been unsigned. This also applies to official notices as the Cardinal is not allowed to publish as official any unsigned notices.

The recent action of the city council in suspending the ordinance for the closing of saloons at midnight deserves the strongest condemnation from all university students. It is not a question of politics but of morals. The students cannot do anything to abate the evil at present save to frown at it but when the spring elections come around they can and will do something more. It is indeed a shame that such a thing should have taken place in this city and all the more so because it is the center of learning and education of the state and the moral side of its life should be correspondingly high. Harvard, Yale and Princeton as well as a majority of our eastern colleges are in temperance towns. We have not yet advanced to such a stage in Madison but we have advanced far enough to feel the shame and the evil that such an action as that of the city council arouses.

UNIVERSITY MEMORIBALIA.

this difference is hard to surmise.

The class day programs were always different in minor details although the history, the prophecy, the poem and the song occurred with unfailing regularity. We occasionally meet with "advice to faculty," a somewhat thankless part in the exercises. '83 has a class motto in a language which most nearly resembles Chinese. The translation furnished is: "Loyalty and never two hearts."

Of the very recent class days the most interesting program was gotten out by '89. In this it is announced that under the tomb stone of '89 would be buried "the proceedings and programs and publications and ponies of the class * * * as a corner stone of '89 future greatness." So when you notice '89 class stone, near University hall, remember what lies buried there.
'89 also gave a class play, "The Man with Four Souls," written by W. A.
Curtis, a member of the class.

Some of the old glee club programs are curious affairs. The concerts were not as "light" as they are at present.
The music was more of the classic school and the college songs were not thought worthy to be sung at public concerts. The assistance of a soloist was also procured and the concerts must have been more like our present choral union concerts.

One of the class day phophecies, that of '79, is in the collection. It is well written and accurate, if we may judge by the statement in regard to Prof. Van Hise, in which the prediction is made that he would occupy the position he now holds.

For the last few years nearly everything of interest to the university has been collected. Tickets to ball games, posters, dance cards, clippings, literary society programs and miscellaneous articles are found in abundance. Yet the collection even for the last year is not complete. The notice given by '96 to '97 last year in regard to the carrying of canes is there but the freshmen answer it not. Not all of the tickets for this year's football games are there. Any of the students who have anything suitable for this collection should add them to it so that it may be as complete as possible.

A LONG SERMON.

Charles II. was wont in his humorous way to say of his chaplain, Dr.
Barrow, that "he was the most unfair preacher in England, because he exhausted every subject and left no room for others to come after him." It was, indeed, too much the doctor's way. When he got hold of a topic he never knew how to leave anything unsaid about it. One of his best discourses, that on the duty and reward of bounty to the poor, actually took up three and a half hours in delivering.

The most remarkable creature in the world is the hydra. It does not amount to much physically, for it is nothing but a sack, open at one end, and fastened by the other to a stone, but it is almost impossible to kill it. Turn a hydra inside out, and it will get along just as well as before. Trembley, the French naturalist, cut hydras in slices, and each, in a few days, became a full-grown animal. He grafted them, and produced monsters with six mouths and only one body. He divided them longitudinally, and produced a cluster of hydras. He found this creature is superior even to decomposition, for when a part of a hydra's body decays, it throws it off and replaces it as a matter of course.

of Scotland's greatest literary leaders,

NATATORIUM READY FOR USE.

Directions for the Prevention of Accidents.

During the last week of last term the natatorium was filled and opened for use. Those few days proved the sport to be a popular one and it was patronized by not a few students. The water became very dirty, a thick scum forming on the top, and was drawn off after college closed. During the vacation it has been filled and emptied several times, but every time a scum has formed over the water. Last Monday Prof. Birge examined the water and found the scum to be caused by lake substances which had gotten in. It is being filled again now, and it is thought this time the water is much clearer and better; so that it will be open for use in a few days.

Now that this natatorium is to be used often by the students it is not unnatural to suppose that accidents will happen, as has been the case where similar sport is indulged in. But these accidents can be prevented from becoming serious if the person is taken in time and has the proper treatment. Therefore it is essential that every student should know the first steps to be taken to restore life to a person who may appear to be drowned. The following rules are printed here for the benefit of all. They are the rules adopted by the government for the life saving stations of the country, and given by Mr. Everett who was at one time a member of a government crew:

Directions for restoring the apparently drowned:

To arouse the patient—Expose the face to a current of fresh air, wipe the mouth and nostrils dry, give two or three quick smarting slaps on the chest and stomach with the open hand. If considerable time has elapsed since the patient became insensible and he does not revive then proceed to expel water, etc., from the stomach and chest. If the jaws are clinched, separate them, and keep the mouth open by placing a stick or cork between them. It may be necessary to pry them apart with a bit of iron or a knife, turn the patient on the face, place a roll of clothing beneath the stomach, and press heavily over it for half a minute, or so long as fluids flow from the mouth.

To produce breathing:—With a handkerchief wrapped closely around the forefinger clear the mouth and throat—turn the patient on the back; place the roll of clothing so as to raise the pit of the stomach above the level of any other part of the body. If there be another person present, let him, with a handkerchief hold the tongue out of one corner of the mouth, this will prevent the tongue from falling back and closing the windpipe, both arms of the patient should be held back above the head. The last two positions are not necessary for success, but are great aids. Kneel beside or astride the patient's hips, and with the balls of the thumbs resting on either side of the pit of the stomach, let the fingers fall into the grooves between the short ribs, so as to afford the best grasp of the waist. Now, using your knees as a pivot, throw all your weight forward on your hands, and at the same time squeeze the waist between them, as if you wished to force everything in the chest upward out of the mouth; deepen the pressure while you can count slowly, one, two, three; then suddenly let go with a final push, which brings you back to your first kneeling position. Remain erect on your knees while you count one, two, three; repeat the motions as before at a rate gradually increasing from four or five to fifteen times in a minute, continue this movement with the same regularity that is observable in natural breathing. If natural breathing is not restored in four or five minutes, turn the patient on the stomach turning in the opposite direction from that in which it was first turned. This will free the air passages from any remaining water. Artificial respiration should be continued from one to four hours, or until the patient breathes. After the appearance of returning life carefully aid the first short gasps until deepened into full breaths. Drying and rubbing should have been constantly practiced from the beginning by an assistant, the limbs should always be rubbed in an upward direction towards the body, using the dry hands, flannels or handkerchiefs and continuing the friction under the blankets and over the dry clothing. The warmth of the body can also be promoted by the application of hot flannels to the stomach and arm pits, bottles or bladders of hot water, heated bricks, etc., to the limbs and soles of the feet.

After treatment:—As soon as breathing is established, let the patient be stripped of all wet clothing, wrapped in blankets only, put to bed comfortably warm, but with a free circulation of fresh air, and left to perfect rest. Give whiskey or brandy and hot water in doses of a teaspoonful to a teaspoonful, according to the weight of the patient, or other stimulants at hand, every ten or fifteen minutes for the first hour, and as often thereafter as may seem expedient. After reaction is fully established there is great danger of congestion of the lungs and if perfect rest is not maintained for at least forty-eight hours it sometimes happens that the patient is seized with great difficulty of breathing, and death is liable to follow unless immediate relief is given. In such cases apply a mustard plaster over the breast. If the patient gasps for breath before the mustard takes effect, assist the breathing by carefully repeating the artificial respiration.

IS ROWING INJURIOUS?

Some years ago, there arose in the press of England a great discussion as to whether rowing was injurious. This extended to the medical profession with the result that a prominent surgeon, himself an old Oxford oar, undertook the task of an exhaustive search of the post-collegiate lives of all the men who had rowed in the University races from 1829 to 1869. In these forty races, two hundred and ninety-four Oxford men rowed. The result of the investigation were as follows:

Benefited by rowing 115.
Uninjured 162.
Injured 17.

The last figure would undoubtedly have been reduced and the first figure correspondingly increased, had there been in those days the system requiring medical physical directors now in vogue in the leading gymnasiums.

Thus, out of this large number, but 5.8 per cent were injured, while 39 per cent were benefited by the exercises, together with the effect of their good habits when training. It seems to us that this might be made a telling argument in the present athletic controversy.—Columbia Spectator.

COLLEGE NEWS.

—The University of Pennsylvania base ball team will use a riding academy this spring, for a practice cage.

—Edward J. Phelps, ex-Minister to England has returned to New Haven to assume his course of lectures before the students of the Yale Law School.

—It is probable that the Harvard, Yale, Princeton and U. of P. baseball teams will play the New York league team on the Polo grounds during the month of April.

—The University of Pennsylvania athletic management have just completed a board track over the cinder one. This will be used by the track men during the bad weather.

UNIVERSITY BULLETIN.

GOOD TEMPLARS: Capital Lodge No. 1, I. O. G. T. meets every Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock, in Good Templar's hall located at No. 20 East Mifflin street, just east of the post office. All students who are members of the order are cordially invited to attend any or all sessions of the Lodge.

U. W. BAND: The Board meets to-night at 7:00 o'clock sharp. All members are requested to be present.

FRESHMAN MEETING: The freshman class meeting will be held Friday, at 2:30 p. m., in University hall.

COLLEGE NEWS.

—A course in the theories of poetry has been started at Yale.

—Ex-Governor Long of Massachusetts, will preside at the Yale-Harvard debate.

—Among the three thousand students registered at Harvard University, four hundred are actively engaged in athletics.

—John Blakely, third baseman on last year's team has been elected captain of the U. of P. base ball team for this season.

—Out of 1,112 foot ball players in the 18 leading institutions, only sixty-five were disabled for a week or more during the past season.

—Charles A. Dana, of the New York Sun, addressed the students of Cornell University on "Founders day," "The Art of Newspapers Making."

—A Hand-Book of University Extension, edited by George F. James, has been published, giving a complete summary of the university extension movement in America.

—Harvard has just had an "enthusiasm" meeting to stir up the track men. The meeting was addressed by graduates who were noted athletes in their day.

—The Athletic Committee of the University of Pennsylvania has selected Orton, Seymour, Freeman and Silliman for the relay race with Harvard which will take place next month, for the inter-collegiate championship.

—At a meeting of the Harvard Varsity crew held recently E. F. Fennesy announced his resignation as captain. His reasons for doing so are personal ones and have not and will not be made public. Coach Watson has promised that by the first of May the make-up of the crew will be practically decided upon. An election of permanent captain will then be held. Until then J. R. Bullard, '96, will temporarily act as leader of the crew. By this new arrangement the captain of the crew will be the choice of the men who rowed the year before.
