LOST THE DEBATE

MINNESOTA WON FROM US LAST EVENING.

WAS A GOOD DEBATE IN EVERY WAY.

Arguments of the Several Wisconsin Speakers.

The second intercollegiate debate between the State University of Minnesota and the University of Wisconsin was held in the university chapel at Minneapolis before an audience of about 400 students. The question discussed was, "Resolved that United States senators should be elected by direct vote of the people." The affirmative was upheld by Messrs. Ford, Cassels and Rogers, of Wisconsin. The Minnesota disputants were Messrs. F. L. Anderson and Burt Newkirk and Miss Elizabeth Beach. The discussion on both sides showed that the speakers had made a most thorough study of the question in its many phases and the manner in which the arguments were presented was highly commendable. Minnesota apparently had the best of the discussion from the start, though arguing against a popular prejudice. The debate was awarded to Minnesota. The judges were Senator Brown of Wisconsin, Judge Sanborn, of Minnesota and Judge Thomas, of North Dakota.

The debate was opened on the part of the affirmative by Edwin H. Cassels of Wisconsin, who argued that there were certain inherent defects in the present system of election of senators which demand a change to direct election by the people and among these, he held, were:

1. The fact that the real choice of the people is often ignored.

2. The protracted senatorial contests in the several states, which are becoming alarmingly common and which result in great expense, much corruption and irreparable injury to the state.

3. The senate of today has degenerated and has lost its influence with the people.

4. The mixing of state and national political issues which is disastrous to the interests of both.

Guy S. Ford continued the arguments in the affirmative. When the state legislatures, as composed at present, are surrounded with keen and unscrupulous politicians working for such a prize as the senatorship, the inevitable result, the speaker held, would be the long and corrupt contests which nearly every state has witnessed. Whole sessions are wasted in vain endeavors to elect a senator. The contests are extremely bitter and are costly. Such states as Illinois have paid as high as $275,000 for a three months' session devoted to nothing but a senatorial struggle. The expenses of the candidate are often as high as $60,000, the price Caldwell paid for the Kansas senatorship in 1871. These struggles are corrupt for political patronage and money is freely used. The election in Kansas in 1867, 1871 and 1873 furnish authentic instances of bribery.

Charles B. Rogers, opened with a short discussion of the method used in the Palmer campaign in Illinois, showing that it provides no remedy for evils of the present system. The act of 1866, regulating the election of senators, could not, he claimed, be so amended as to do any substantial good. Attention was called to some of the tendencies of the present system. The speaker asserted that it caused and promoted gerrymandering, by reason of the senatorial prize confided to the legislature. It also encouraged the spoils system, by making the state and national party machines alike. In the legislatures, the small number of the members, and the closeness of the contests, make it easy for unscrupulous candidates to secure an election through corrupt means. The recent Delaware contest, and the Bragg-Mitchell fight of 1893 were given as illustrations of this fact.

Passing to rebuttal arguments, the speaker claimed that the Australian ballot had made bribery of the people almost impossible, and that much less corruption is present in political conventions than in legislatures; in the latter the people can themselves nominate by instructing their delegates. It was claimed that the change is not radical in its nature, being a mere change in the mode of electing certain officers. It will in no way change the deliberative character of the senate, for it leaves unaffected those things on which this character depends. It would, however, make that body less responsive to the private interests of its members and more responsive to the people. It would also make state reforms easier of accomplishment, by separating them from national reforms. The speaker closed with a brief review of the debate, and a plea for the rights of the people.

CREW NOTES.

No changes have been made in the make up of the two shell crews. The men are improving very rapidly, especially those in the second 'varsity crew. On alternate days races take place between the two crews and the speed developed certainly shows that the crews do not lack "sand, form and physique," to say nothing of endurance. The new shell is now completed and as soon as it arrives the 'varsity crew will use it while the second 'varsity will row in the Senator Sawyer shell. The crews are made up as follows:

FIRST:
1. Bow, Alexander, A. F.
2. Alexander, W.
3. Day.
4. Austin.
5. Webber.
6. McConville.
7. Rohn.
Stroke, Seymour.
Coxswain, Crandall.

SECOND:
1. Bow, Tuller.
2. Kinnaird.
3. Smith.
4. Daniels.
5. Schmidtman.
6. Dietrich.
7. Ohnstad.
Stroke, De Lay.
Coxswain, Peterson.

EDITORS ELECTED

TO HAVE CHARGE OF THE CAR-DINAL NEXT YEAR.

HUGHES ELECTED ASSOCIATION PRESIDENT.

Business Manager and Delegates to Chicago Chosen—Other Business.

This morning occurred the annual election of the Editorial board which is to have charge of the paper for the coming year. The new board does not assume control until next September, but it is expected that all who have not had previous experience upon the paper will begin work immediately in order that they may be familiar with the work when they begin their duties next fall. With two or three exceptions the board is composed of men who have had considerable experience upon the Cardinal, which fact assures its success for the coming year. It has been the policy of the boards in the past to have all elections based upon competition and thus make election to the board a reward for faithful work. While this matter was overlooked in a few instances in the election this morning, still the men elected have had considerable experience in debating society work which will doubtless prove a valuable training for their editorial duties next year.

A PENNANT OFFERED.

Prof. Frankenburger Will Give it to the Society Showing Best Work.

The plans for a pennant to be contested for by the various literary societies are at last coming to assume a definite shape, and it is likely everything will be ready so that the contest for the pennant can begin at the commencement of the next college year.

Professor Frankenburger has very generously offered a pennant, valued at twenty-five dollars, which the society scoring the greatest number of points will have the privilege of having upon its walls until another society has gained a greater number of points.

Upon what basis the markings will be made has not yet been decided. Members were chosen at the society meetings last evening for a committee to arrange such a plan. J. B. Amazeen will represent Hesperia on the committee and M. J. Gillen will represent Athena.

A. H. Schmidt, of Philomathia, will be chairman of the committee.

RECEPTION TO PROF. D'OOGE.

A reception for Dr. M. L. D'Ooge, professor of Greek in the University of Michigan, was given by Pres. and Mrs. C. K. Adams last evening. A number of members of the faculty were given an opportunity to meet the distinguished scholar.

JACKMAN FOR ORATOR.

The New Officers for Philomathia
Were Inaugurated Last Night.

President Raish in a very earnest and forcible address reviewed the work of the past term and outlined the work for the future.

The remainder of the evening was given up to the election of the orator for next year's Junior Ex. There were four candidates in the field: R. W. Jackman, with an oration on "Louis Kossuth;" J. G. Graham, on "Napoleon Bonaparte;" J. H. Gault, on "Li Hung Chang;" W. C. Norton, on "Daniel Webster." The election was hotly contested, but on the eleventh ballot Mr. Jackman was elected.

The society admitted E. C. Joannes, '98, into membership.

Pursuant to Prof. Frankenburger's communication on an inter-society banner, Pres. Raish appointed a committee consisting of Schmidt, '96, Jackman, '97, and Burgess, '96, to confer with the professor.

CASTALIA BLOWOUT.

Castalia held their freshman blowout last night at the ladies' gymnasium.

The farce "Betsy Green" was presented in a very pleasing manner, calling forth volume after volume of applause.

The cast of characters was as follows:

Betsy Green, Maude B. Newell.
Chas. Roverly, _____.
Mr. Lippins, _____.
Betsy's Aunt, Pauline P. Gunthrop.
Nicholas, Hattie E. McKown.
Four Young London Milliners, Miss
Grover, Jessie M. Case, Jessie L. Nelson,
Clara A. Glenn.

Miss Jewett is the author of the play. Good acting was done on the part of all the young ladies, but especial credit is due to Miss Newell in her part as "Betsy" which was very well carried out, and also to Miss McKown as "Nicholas" which was a very good imitation of the typical farmer's boy. Miss Jewett, as the "Golden Calf," also deserves special mention.

Selections were played by Misses McKown, Allen and Grover.

A very good time was enjoyed by all, and much praise is due the freshmen for their evening's entertainment.

PROF. SMITH TO SPEAK.

At the Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. meeting Sunday Prof. C. F. Smith will speak on "Religion in College Life: Is it Practical?" Some practical ideas will be presented by Prof. Smith, which everyone should hear. Meeting at 4:30 p. m. in the senior law lecture room. All students are cordially invited to attend.

Our victories over Beloit at tennis this year are gratifying in view of the fact that Beloit has usually secured the championship with little trouble. No doubt the fact of her having lost Jewell has had much to do with it but the fact still remains that we have been successful. We hope our representatives to Chicago will be as successful there as at Beloit, though of course, such a thing is hardly to be expected.

It is gratifying to notice the hearty compliance which the various societies have made to the plan outlined by the rhetoric department for the promotion of oratory. By the generous contribution of a handsome banner from Professor Frankenburger to be held by the society winning the most points in the home contest the commendable features of the newly adopted open contest may be retained and at the same time a society interest taken in getting out competitors. Strange as it may seem there are very few orators who seem to care to go into a contest unless they are representing some society. Since the old plan of electing representatives failed to bring out the best men it is hoped that the present plan for an open contest together with the banner to be competed for will result in a system the perfection of which will put us in a way to win first place in the intercollegiate.

Harvard and Princeton took part in a gun shoot at the latter place yesterday. Princeton won by a score of 100 to 91.

COMMUNICATION.

It may be a trifle presumptuous in the writer to take the Cardinal to task for anything which appears in its columns, but nevertheless it seems as though someone ought to register a kick against the athletic policy of the paper which is rendering the university ridiculous in the eyes of the college world in general. The editorials which find out so much about the professionals of other institutions—after a defeat by them—are what is referred to. Last night's editorial on the defeat of the nine by the U. of M. in the best played game ever seen on the home grounds was puerile in the extreme, babyish in fact. The same thing holds true of the editorials about the games at Beloit, Ann Arbor, Delafield and elsewhere, and of the "roast" on the team which appeared in the paper after the second game with Beloit. The team played a great game Thursday and played in pretty good luck but were fairly beaten by a superior team, superior as everyone admitted by their greater ability to hit the ball and get runs. The U. of M. team played a clean, gentlemanly game and the fact that Sexton, a professional, was to play with them was well known when the games were arranged. The same may be said of the Beloit games which were arranged with the full knowledge that Hollister and their other professionals were to be on the team. Probably now, if by some mischance Northwestern should happen to win here next Thursday another long-winded rant about Evanston tactics and Wisconsin purity will follow.

The fact that Wisconsin has amateur teams is not a particularly creditable thing to the university—that is only as it should be. The writer is opposed to professionalism of every sort but believes it is a very unsportsmanlike policy to set up a whine just as soon as the team is beaten. It seems as though, if the Cardinal voices the sentiment of the student body (which the writer does not believe to be the case) that our sportsmanship is sadly degenerating. Our daily should take a lesson from the good advice which it administers in such large doses to the Aegis and quit roasting the base ball team and complaining of the professionals in other folk's fold—when said professionals happen to be good enough to beat Wisconsin. Come, brace up and help the teams along in every possible way during and before their contests, celebrate when they win but don't cry whenever we are beaten.

A CORRECTION.

In the item relating to the field day of the Madison High School which was printed in last night's Cardinal, it was stated the M. H. S. boys had been coached for some time by Richards, Downer and Cochems. This was an error, as the varsity track men have not spent any time in coaching and the correction is made for the reason that other high schools reading the item might think that the University favored the Madison High School in the coming meet, June 8th, when such is not the case.

PROF. HALE'S APPOINTMENT.

William Gardner Hale, head professor of Latin in the University of Chicago, who lectured at the university in the classical lecture course some time ago, has been elected first director of the American College of Classics in Rome. This appointment comes through the Archaeological and Philological societies of America, by which the college of classics in Rome was founded. Prof. Hale has written extensively for American philological magazines and is author of several monographs on Latin syntax. He is regarded as one of the greatest Latin scholars in the country.

GIFT TO NEW YORK.

Fast upon the announcement of President Low's gift to Columbia College comes that of a princely benefaction to the New York University, the greatest that has come to it in its history of two generations. It is a central building on University Heights, at 180 feet. The giver insists on being unknown as one of the conditions of the gift. The other is that the edifice shall, in beauty and cost, accord with its purpose and surroundings. No definite cost is prescribed, but it will not be less than $250,000. The building is to comprehend a library, a commencement hall, a museum, and administration offices. This means to the University of New York the hastening of the completion of the splendid plan of those at its head, the establishing on the beautiful hill overlooking the city of a home befitting a great university.

BOAT RACE RULES.

The following are the rules to govern the inter-fraternity boat race:

1. The race to be 1-8 mile and turn.
2. Two oarsmen in a boat.
3. Two outriggers; no sliding seats.
4. Boat not to be over 18 feet in length.
5. All graduate members, or those who are members of shell or gig crews, are barred.

NOW MINNESOTA CELEBRATES.

Last year the tables were turned. They won the football game and we the debate. These results are but a proof of the immense prestige which is given by an enthusiastic, sympathizing audience.

The Good Time club gave an open air party at Winnebago last evening. The boat left her pier at foot of Carroll street at 8 p. m., dancing began at 8:30 and continued until 11, when the party returned. A number of university students attended.
