BADGERS BEAT MICHIGAN FOR SECOND TIME

Captain Taylor is Heavy Scorer in 25 to 17 Victory

BY W. B.

Taking the lead from the start and maintaining it throughout the game, the University of Wisconsin basketball team defeated the University of Michigan by a score of 25 to 17 in a fast, exciting game before a capacity crowd at the gymnasium last night.

This was the second defeat suffered by the Michigan five at the hands of the Badgers this season.

Taylor Leads Scoring

Captain Taylor led the offense with five field goals. With Ceaser and R. Williams, he repeatedly broke up the Michigan offensive before it carried the ball into scoring territory.

Knapp, playing his last home game in a Cardinal uniform, performed with characteristic flashy style and dependability which will make him hard to replace. Frogner played the good defensive game which he showed against Illinois.

For Michigan Miller, right forward, scored three baskets. Karpus failed in four out of nine attempts at free throws but played a good defensive game. LeGalley at guard dribbled well but missed baskets repeatedly.

Play is Flashy

Both teams showed flashes of form that kept the crowd on edge throughout the game. Brilliant passing and team play by both sides was marred by failures to count on frequent tries at the basket.

The first half was all for the Badgers and ended with Coach Meanwell's men leading 14 to 6, both teams showing ragged teamwork during the last few minutes.

Michigan Rallies

Michigan opened the second half with a rush, Miller caging a shot almost from the tip-off. Wisconsin missed repeatedly but Taylor finally dropped one through. With the score at 17 to 8 Michigan staged a comeback that nearly smothered the Badgers. Two baskets by Miller, and baskets by LeGalley

DEPARTMENT STORE WORK IS REVIEWED IN COMMERCE MAG

Current Issue Also Contains Article on Building Loan Banks

Opportunities for young men in the department store field are discussed by A. T. Friedman, president of the Schuster company, Milwaukee, in the current number of the Commerce magazine, which has just appeared on the campus.

"Why not a department store career?" asks Mr. Friedman. "The time has come when the department stores, or for that matter, large retail establishments of any kind, should make a strong bid for college graduates."

The article goes on to discuss the various aspects of department store work.

Besides the usual departments, the magazine contains an article on the Federal Building Loan bank as an aid to America's housing problem by Leonard S. Smith, professor of city planning and highway engineering.

There are also several articles by students.

George Parker, chairman of Prom decorations committee, has made extensive plans to secure elaborate lighting and color effects in decorating the capitol for Prom night. ## ANNUAL RELAYS WILL BE HELD ON FEBRUARY 19

Entries Are Now Open For 14th Indoor Track Festival

Entries for the 14th annual relay festival, the biggest indoor track event of the year, to be held February 19, are now being received by the athletic department.

Four high schools, three military academies, military companies, literary societies, fraternities, and sororities represented by track men, will compete in the races.

Negotiations are being made to enter the colleges of the state in an inter-collegiate relay race and special track events. Beloit, Carroll, Lawrence, Marquette, Ripon, and other colleges have been invited to participate. The entry of colleges into the relay event would make the contest of state-wide interest.

Keen competition is forecasted by the large number of entries already received. Over 30 fraternities are expected to enter. The sprinters in the military companies of the R. O. T. C. will compete in the inter-company race. The literary societies, Athena, Hesperia, and Philomathia, will compete for ath-

TICKET SALE IS ON FOR PROM MOVIES

"An all-university Prom affair," is the way Dale Merrick '22, general Prom chairman, characterized the Prom benefit movie, "Up in Mary's Attic," which is to be shown at the Grand theater Thursday and Friday of this week.

Three thousand green pasteboard tickets are being distributed about the campus by Paul Fischedick '22 and his corps of over 100 workers. The sale is progressing rapidly; but the heaviest sale, it is expected, will take place within the next few days.

UNIVERSITY EXPOSITION WINS FACULTY VOTE; UNION BOARD TO NAME GENERAL CHAIRMAN

PICTURE OF PROM WILL BE FEATURE OF SPECIAL PAPER

Sigma Delta Chi Will Publish Midnight Edition of Cardinal

A picture of Prom, taken earlier in the evening, will be one of the features of the Prom Cardinal to be sold at 12 o'clock on Prom night. Members of Sigma Delta Chi, men's national honorary journalistic fraternity, will publish this issue of The Daily Cardinal, as they did last year.

Complete lists of all box-occupants will be published in this edition. An insert containing pictures of well-known guests will be added together with a description of many of the dresses.

A last minute story of Prom will be written just before the presses start; and several special feature stories, written by members of the fraternity, are to be included in the paper.

HAROLD TAYLOR WRITES WINNING PROM FOX TROT

"Waiting for You" is Title of Special Prom Composition

Harold Taylor '22 is the winner of the Prom Fox Trot contest with his piece, "Waiting for You," it was announced by the judges after the final tryouts last night. The prize of $15 is waiting for him and can be gotten on application to Clarence Rasmussen '22, who holds the Prom purse strings.

Taylor has been a member of the Badger staff for the last two years. Last year he was on the staff of the Commerce magazine and took part in the Senior play. He is a member of Beta Theta Pi fraternity.

Give Honorable Mention Four other pieces were given honorable mention: "Sweet Nothings," by Carl Maedje '21; "Toddle In," by David Bowlby '24; "My Angel Man," by Sada Buckmaster '21, and "Wishing Blues," by Jesse Cohen '23.

"Waiting for You" is an exceptionally good "toddling" piece, which alone means success for a fox trot. The words, too, are above par, according to the judges. Taylor played and sang the piece himself for his tryouts.

Decision is Difficult "A decision on Prom Fox Trot has never been so difficult to make before," stated Margaret McDowell '22, chairman of the committee in charge. "The final choice was a very hard one. There were 18 scores represented, the largest number ever entered in the contest for Prom Fox trot.

In quality, as well as in number, the pieces this year are very unusual. "Hal" Taylor's is the best of many good ones."

"Dream Girl," another piece of Taylor's, was one of the last to be eliminated, according to the judges. Those who are responsible for the decision are: Mrs. Lucille Cooper, Leon L. Iltis, of the School of Music, Majel Hooper '23, Julia Van Aken '22, and Cecil Brodt '22.

BADGER NOTICE

All honorary and class societies and clubs having space in the 1922 Badger must hand in the material for their pages at the Badger office before Thursday noon.

Big Fair Will Probably be Held in the Latter Part of April

The university exposition which has been so much discussed recently has become a certainty. The undertaking was approved by President E. A. Birge and the deans of the several colleges at a meeting held Saturday.

Union board, which had charge of the two former expositions, has been put in charge and will probably meet within the next few days to appoint a student to act as general chairman and appoint the committees.

No date has been definitely set for the exposition, which will be a great fair demonstrating the work of the university; but April 28, 29, and 30 is considered as the probable time. It will be held in the university armory and the gymnasium annex.

Sentiment in favor of holding the exposition, which has become quite pronounced in the last few weeks, was organized by White Spades, junior honorary society, and the Agricultural College federation. Members of these organizations have spent much time in obtaining the consent of the faculty.

Last Fair Was Gigantic

The exposition of 1915 was a gigantic affair. Over 8,500 people attended; the exhibits numbered 86 and filled 15,000 square feet of floor space. Every department of the university gave a demonstration of its work, showing the latest achievements in its line and the work of its students.

According to members of the committee which ran the exposition, Willard Sporleder '15, the general chairman, worked on an average of six hours a day for several months in planning and organizing it.

The gymnasium annex was occupied by the College of Agriculture, which exhibited prize stock and demonstrated other aspects of agricultural work. The physics department showed the workings of wireless telegraphy, then a novelty. The journalism department had a printing press on hand and published "The Exposition News." Other departments had displays equally distinctive.

It is planned to make the exposition

UNION VODVIL IS CALLED OFF BY FACULTY ACTION

Crowded Schedule is Reason Given For the Cancellation

That Union Vodvil will not be held this year has been decided by the faculty committee on student life and interest.

In regard to the omission of the show, which is usually given yearly by Union Board, Dean S. H. Goodnight said:

"The Union Vodvil will be given up this year because of the crowded student calendar for the second semester. The all-university exposition is assured, and it is to be conducted by the Union board. The Vodvil is regularly a first semester show."

The next one will be held in the fall of 1921.

HAVE you ever heard the exact story about the origin of the Shifters? No? We aren't sure about this, of course, but this is the way we got it from Ace Carver. Seems like the thing started on the Haresfoot trip last spring, at the Illinois hotel in Rockford. Van Pinkerton and Chuck Carpenter were rooming together on the top floor, in a very nice little room. It looked alright in the daytime, but when the two got home after the evening performance they found the room full of—visitors. So they shifted to Dave Mahoney's room and moothed a bed. Hence, wherefore, Q. E. D., the Shifters.

VARIATION ON AN OLD THEME

I loved a girl whose eyes were blue,
Whose cheeks were kissed with Aurora's hue;
I loved her scarlet lips, her hair,
Her pretty hands, her winning air.—
In fact, I loved her every way,
Just yesterday, but now today I hate her! For I saw in the street
That she was wearing on her feet
GALOSHES!

Oh gosh! Two goshes!
Oh slush! Two sloshes!
With buckles flapping, loudly snapping,
Galoshes slapping, widely gaping.—
One gosh! Two goshes!
Galosh! Galoshes!
Upon my love she puts kiboshes;
Under her feet my heart she squashes.
Oh, how I hate her when she sloshes,
Smashes and dashes, madly swashes
Down State street wearing those galoshes!

THE RETURN
(Apologies to B. L. T.)
The old grad met the youngster,
And he quoth with streaming eye,
"Is this the U. at Madison,
So quiet and so dry?
Is this the place I used to know,
With good cheer everywhere?
Ah, I've been drunk at Ferdie's,
At Ferdie's, near the square."

The younger said, "Choke down your sobs,
And cease to think of wine,
For in my cellar at the house,
I've quarts of new moonshine,
It has a kick like Pat O'Dea,
A-fighting like a bear,
I, too, was drunk at Ferdie's,
At Ferdie's, near the square."

They hit the brand-new copper still
And swilled the home-made brew,
But they missed the little pickles,
The champagne ham sandwiches, too.
And though they drank six quarts apiece,
They brains were clear as air,
For they'd been drunk at Ferdie's,
At Ferdie's near the square.

Methodist Student Choir Presents Second Of Sacred Concerts

BY ADRIAN SCOLTON

The second of a series of sacred concerts given by the student choir of the University Methodist church was presented last night to a congregation which tested the capacity of Wesley chapel. The work presented was the highly inspired cantata, Gaul's "Holy City."

We have learned to expect from the University Methodist choir productions which are artistic and finished. The choir's presentation last night again left a strong impression of thorough and conscientious rehearsals and a deep interest and pleasure in the public presentation.

The chorus work throughout was characterized by precision of attack, careful attention to details of shading and phrasing, rhythm, and clear, distinct enunciation. The perfection of ensemble was especially shown in such difficult choruses as "The Heavens Rejoice," which begins with a massive eight-part chorus, and "Great and Mar-elous are Thy Works," in which the voice writing is exceedingly intricate.

Particularly noticeable was the dynamic gradation of the chorus numbers, which in the cantata borders on the truly difficult.

Soloists Are Good

The soloists, Josephine Darrin, Marie McKittrick, Winifred Collier, Bernard Huebner, and Reuben Brown, seemingly vied with each other in their enthusiastic desire to aid in the creating of the atmosphere of reverence so necessary in cantata and oratorio singing.

The whole work is so replete with inspired solo passages that all the solo singers had unusual opportunity to add new laurels to their present reputations.

To Lowell L. Townsend, the director of the choir, should go the major share of a public's appreciation for so ably organizing and developing a body of singers capable of contributing to the musical welfare of the community a work of such caliber and beauty as Gaul's "Holy City" is.

Because of the limited capacity of the University Methodist church building this work should be repeated. Those who are interested in sacred music should not be deprived of an opportunity of hearing one of the best sacred concerts given in Madison this year.

Concert Given at Stoughton

The choir also presented the "Holy City" at the First Lutheran church at Stoughton Sunday night. The church is the largest in Stoughton but its commodious auditorium was packed to the doors and was unable to accommodate all of those who wished to get in.

Stoughton is a music loving city and a city of choirs. Once or twice each year the four Lutheran churches of the city combine their choirs and this large chorus gives a Cantata. So many of Stoughton's residents are members of church choirs that one is led to believe that no Wisconsin city of like size has a greater interest in sacred music. Its interest in and appreciation of such music was again shown Sunday night.

The names of the members of the choir are as follows:

UNIVERSITY STUDENTS COME FROM ALL WALKS OF LIFE

Sons and daughters of farmers, retail merchants, and workers in various trades constituted about 40 per cent of the freshmen who entered the University of Wisconsin last fall. There are 208 farmers, 205 retail merchants, and 182 employees or workers in trades among the parents or guardians listed by about 1,500 of this year's freshman class.

A total of 224 different occupations, trades, or professions are included among the vocations of the parents of these 1,500 students. The figures were secured through a study of enrollment cards of new students which has just been made by university officials in order to learn from what walks of life the students come.

Widowed mothers are the guardians of 144 of these students. Exactly 19 others list as guardians mothers who are engaged in various occupations.

Farmers Lead

While the 208 farmers and 205 retail merchants lead all other single occupations among the students' parents, other leading single occupations are: doctors, 74; manufacturers, 53; lawyers, 43; real estate dealers, 43; real estate dealers, 43; bankers, 39; railway officials or employees, 28; contractors, 28; ministers, 26; and grocers, 5.

Among the 182 parents who are employees or workers in various trades, the following census is shown by the students' cards: carpenters, 22; mechanics or machinists, 18; laborers, 16; clerks, 16; foremen, 10; tailors, 8; woodworkers, 7; barbers, blacksmiths, painters, and plumbers, 5 each; firemen, electricians, and masons 4 each; chefs, draymen, and printers 3 each; gardeners, janitors, peddlers, teamsters, telegraphers, timekeepers, and tinsmiths, 2 each; also a bricklayer, a buttermaker, watchman, milliner, miner, police-matron, and street car employee.

Professions Send Many

Roughly classified, professional workers sent 239 of the new students. The medical profession, including doctors, dentists, chiropracters, opticians, veterinarians, and nurses, is represented by 94. The legal profession sent 445. The teaching profession sent 33; engineers, 19; editors and writers, 9; architects, 3; chemists, 3; and musicians, 3.

Office holders in the government of city, county, state, or nation are represented by 42 students. Five postmasters and nine postmen or other postal workers are included. Some 32 students list their fathers as officials of corporations, and of these 13 are presidents. Exactly 51 others are sons and daughters of managers or superintendents in various plants or factories.

The field of commercial enterprise, mainly of the smaller type, is represented by 544 students and includes some 38 kinds of business or special commercial work. Included here are the 205 merchants, 53 manufacturers, 43 real estate men; 48 salesmen, 38 bankers, 27 contractors, 23 lumber dealers, and 13 wholesalers.

AN OFFICIAL UNIVERSITY PIN

IN the attempt to foster a constant and continuous community spirit here in the university, perhaps the various campus organization at work on the subject may profit by the action of one of our neighboring state universities. At this particular university there has been adopted an official university pin which is worn by every student. The shape of the pin worn depends on the class of the wearer. The pins are alike, however, in the fact that they are all done in the university colors and all bear the university letter. The pins are inexpensive in order that they may be within the reach of every student.

A similar plan would be apropos here in Wisconsin. An inexpensive official emblem that could be worn by all the students would prove a tremendous help in gaining that continuous spirit of union and sympathy that we desire in the student body.

The constant appearance on the campus of an official university pin would impress upon the minds of the students that they are parts of a great institution—that there is a certain spirit which unites them in common obligations, common endeavors, and common privileges.

Away from the university, Wisconsin students, through the agency of such an emblem, would remember that they have something in common—a great institution and all that that institution stands for. Such an emblem would serve to unite Wisconsin students throughout the state and the nation in a way that would be beneficial to them and to the university.

The campus organizations interested in the betterment of student life and in the furtherance of student well-being may properly consider the adoption of an official university pin that can be worn by all the students. Such a pin would be a big factor in uniting the student body.

TALKING IN THE LIBRARY

UNDER ordinary conditions, students will grumble but little over a friendly conversation in the reading room of the library. In these days, however, when time is at a premium, the situation is somewhat different. In these times when students are endeavoring to get reports up to date, when outside reading is overdue, and when final examinations are impending, that which was once an annoyance, becomes a pest.

The reading room at the library, contrary to the opinion of many, is not a place for social gatherings. When one of our dear little sisters saunters gaily into the reading room, flops down in a chair, and proceeds to hold a buzzing conversation of interminable length on almost every annoying subject conceivable, it is small wonder that many students have difficulty in making their tongues respect the laws of chivalry.

Now, of course, no one can object to a friendly conversation in itself. We can and do, however, object to its being held in certain places. We do most emphatically object to the incessant buzzing that has been going on in the reading room in the last few days. For the present, at least, let the talking be done in the proper places.

Those students who continually disturb their fellow students with their gabble in the reading room can well heed the rights of others. During this week at least they should suspend their pastime. With finals but one week off, few students have the time or the inclination to listen to talk about Prom dresses or new pledges.

Consider the other fellow and do your talking outside the reading room of the library.

Suggest $750,000 Hotel for Madison

A 200-room fireproof hotel, to cost $750,000 is proposed for Madison in the weekly bulletin of the Association of Commerce of last week.

According to the prospectus the project could be supported financially by the community by the purchase of $400,000 worth of stock, the balance of $350,000 to be raised by the sale of bonds. Members of the association are asked, in the bulletin, whether a campaign to raise the $400,000 shall be put on. It is claimed that a new hotel here would not hurt the present hotels because there is plenty of business for all.

The first conference was held at Wisconsin six years ago; since then it has met every three years. The last one was held at Chicago. The conference will be attended by delegates representing colleges and universities in all parts of the United States.

A committee for the appointment of final emblem wearers of W. A. A. will also be discussed at the meeting tonight.

At The Theaters

BILL AT ORPHEUM HAS GOOD HEADLINERS

The bill at the Orpheum this week has a headliner in the act of Carleton and Ballew. The girl in the act has charm, looks, the naive innocence of the baby-vamp, and oh, such clever costumes, my deah! She's there, all right! And she can almost sing, too. Her partner is Carleton, the writer of the song, "Ja Da," which he plays in both the classical and the popular version. The songs are good, the "line" is peppy, and the whole thing is a bit of really high-class vaudeville.

Two old men who might have stepped out of a Saturday Evening Post cover, were the saving features of a rather dragging playlet, "The Pest House." Their clever conversation made a hit with the audience. An act by Ferguson and Sunderland in "Bits of Musical Comedy" contained little comedy and less music.

"The Talkless Boys" might improve their act by talking, perhaps. The brightest spots are the grimaces of the fat janitor. The other boy balances on a ladder, but it doesn't look dangerous. They both do juggling, a little music, and songs without words. Silence is golden. Ho, hum.

Hebrew comedy is presented by Ash and Hyams. Some of their patter is good—but not much of it. But it goes fast. Their songs have some spots in them that are not at all subtle—no, even rough. Weston's Models have the same old stuff in the same old way.

AT THE GRAND

The motion pictures already have done wonders in bringing to the public their favorite topics and pastimes at all seasons, but it remained for Mack Sennett to give to the football fans their dearly beloved game in the mid-winter when the late fall games have been forgotten. In "Married Life," Sennett's super-comedy now running at the Grand, the opening incident is one of the most stirring scrimmages that has ever been filmed. Ben Turpin as the stalwart hero, in his struggles to carry the pigskin through opposition lines of giant players, furnishes one of the most realistic reproductions the screen has ever offered—and his gallant efforts on behalf of his home team end with his being sent to the hospital for repairs—what happens there will be another part of the story which all can see when you go to the Grand.

COUNTRY LIFE SERVICE, PLAN

Special Church Program on Feb. 6 for Farm Delegates

Madison churchgoers will have a change on Feb. 6, to hear what the people who live in "the space between cities" are thinking about.

It will be country life day, and churches of the city are planning special services as a welcome for hundreds of Wisconsin farmers who will be in conference here Feb. 1 to 16. A county life mass meeting of the farmers will be held in the afternoon at 4:30, according to J. H. Kolb, College of Agriculture, who is in charge of the Sunday program of the market conference.

Convinced of the prominent place that social and religious problems must be given in the future, the farmers plan to devote Sunday exclusively to a country life session. Justice M. B. Rosenberry, of the Supreme Court, will be the headliner at the mass meeting. The subject of his address will be "Christian Citizenship." E. B. Gordon, chief of the Bureau of Community Development of the University, will lead the special program.

Plans for the special services at 10:30 in the morning are being developed by the Ministerial association and the city's Federal Council of Churches, of which Rev. George E. Hunt is president and Miss Jenny Sherrill in secretary. On the committee making arrangements are C. P. Norgord, state Commissioner of Agriculture, chairman; E. W. Brandenburg, in charge of rural Y. M. C. A. work in Wisconsin; E. N. Warner, representative of the Federal Council; and Father P. B. Knox.

athletic honors as well as forensic laurels.

Four high schools, Stoughton, Edgerton, and two in Madison have already entered. This event is growing in popularity, and other schools may enter the competition this year.

The three military academies which have entered the military academy relay are: Culver, Ind.; St. Johns, Delafield, Wis.; and Shattuck, Fairbault, Minn. The three schools will also compete in the shot put and running high jump.

The special events will be as follows: 40-yard dash, shot put, pole vault, 40-yard high hurdles, and running broad jump.

The track festival will be supervised by Coach T. E. Jones. Earl S. Hirsheimer '21 has been appointed manager, and will have a staff of 20 men to assist him.

Chimney Fire — A small chimney fire at the Alpha Phi sorority house was quickly extinguished by No. 2 fire department about 8 p. m. Saturday night. Slight damage was reported.

CASH

Purchasers of the Octopus Get More Than Their Money's Worth

On each number of the Octopus the buyer gets 31.26 cents worth of paper, printing, and publication, alone, for 25 cents, according to Willard Rendall, business manager. Even if there were no interesting contents the purchaser would make 6.26 cents on the paper which he gets.

This extra cost is made up on the advertising, which pays the deficit and allows a profit on each number. The cost of the last three issues, of which altogether 9,000 copies were printed, was $2,813.82. The issues were sold for much less than this, but the advertising paid the difference.

The Prom number of the Octopus will be on sale tomorrow for only 25 cents as usual.

A new book on "French Foreign Policy" by Graham H. Stuart, political science department, University of Wisconsin, has just been published by the Century company, New York. The book pictures the foreign policy of the French republic from the Fashoda incident in 1898 up to the murder of Archduke Ferdinand in 1914. It deals with the settlement of differences between France and Great Britain, which led up to the formation of the Triple Entente, and rivalries of European powers in Morocco which nearly brought about a European conflagration in 1905 and 1911. The book contains chapters on French diplomacy in the Orient, and the diplomatic relations of France with Italy and the Vatican.
