

LIBRARIES

UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN-MADISON

Tshithotliyo·hné ahatawłniyo·hné.

[s.l.]: [s.n.], 1970/1979

<https://digital.library.wisc.edu/1711.dl/264C6D66AJS7K9A>

The libraries provide public access to a wide range of material, including online exhibits, digitized collections, archival finding aids, our catalog, online articles, and a growing range of materials in many media.

When possible, we provide rights information in catalog records, finding aids, and other metadata that accompanies collections or items. However, it is always the user's obligation to evaluate copyright and rights issues in light of their own use.

Revolutionary War

Now what is most maddening about our affairs is what is written and surely it was that way. Here you'll find on page 37 that Charles K. Kappler was a writer for them at a meeting in Washington D.C. and they hired him to bring out the issues of the president and the Oneidas. This is the way he brought it out how the People of the Standing Stone did their business at the time a former president was fighting to become free so it would happen that he himself could control his own affairs. He depended on the Six Nations to help him. It was the People of the Standing Stone and Tuscaroras and a few of the Stockbridge that agreed to help him out as the president fought when he fought to become independent. It was on account of these People of the Standing Stone helping the president when he then had real hardships. Back then the king's soldiers came and they drove the Oneidas where their homes were and they burned their homes and ruined the way they did their business. That is why the president had such a difficult time then. And it was his own business what happened to the People of the Standing Stone and for that reason the president himself carried the entire burden of what happened to his friends and he will answer their issues when he becomes well off.