TEETH Need CALCIUM

...AND CALCIUM NEEDS
Vitamin D

TEETH need calcium, phosphorus, and Vitamin D—first to make them strong and hard, then to nourish and help keep them sound.

Milk and other foods supply these minerals. But no ordinary food, nor winter sunshine, supplies enough Vitamin D.

So, include low cost Vitamin D fortified milks and foods in your family's daily meals.

ASSURE ENOUGH

Vitamin D

Weak winter sunshine fails to create enough bone-building, tooth-nourishing Vitamin D in your body. Moreover, most people are indoors. Ordinary foods contain too little or none of this scarcest of Vitamins. That is why it should be added to the diet—by using Vitamin D fortified milks, foods, and pharmaceuticals. It is vital for adequate nourishment.

Fighting Badger Mail Bag

Dear John:

I've been seeing and doing a lot in the year plus that I've been in the army. We've seen service in England and North Africa, and have had side tours to Sicily, Scotland, and Wales. At present we're in action in Italy and, between inspecting officers and German air raids, we've had a busy time of it.

But the winter rains are now in progress; so enemy missions have been decreasing in force and quality. (Perhaps the best anti-aircraft protection is bad weather, anyway.) Life, as a result, has become less exciting—and General Clark's offensive has slowed its pace. I suppose it's all part of the game, though. Just let the skies clear again, and we'll be in a fury measuring our fox holes for depth and length, and cheering at the continued pace of the peninsular campaign.

T/5 ALASTAIR J. SELLAR, '42

Hello, Fellow Badgers:

Just the night before Christmas and a very nice surprise. The Cardinal Communique for November came today. I have been wondering just when it would catch up with me.

We won't have a holiday tomorrow, but have made little packages of candies, cookies, and other rations we saved to give to the Italian children around here. I for one shall enjoy myself as I did last year in England, when we gave their children a real Christmas party. No matter how far from our loved ones, the true meaning of Christmas can be felt. Plan to attend church services to-night, and sing those familiar carols.

The news from here is very scarce. I have been on special detail for three weeks, and it sure is nice to be back with the boys; also the old routine. The weather looks as if we are to have a wet Christmas, but that can't dampen a G. I.'s spirit!

DR. LLEWELLYN R. COLE, director of the department of student health at the University and professor of clinical health in the School of Medicine, won his M.D. degree from the University of Wisconsin in 1929. He has served as guardian of student and faculty health at the University since 1936.

Dr. Cole's many activities include medical supervision in the department of athletics as "team doctor" and weekly radio broadcasts over station WHA in which he teaches Wisconsin homemakers how to keep themselves and their families healthy.

In his article "Comments Concerning Your Constitution", written especially for the Wisconsin Alumnus, Dr. Cole gives alumni a few basic rules in care of one's health, in the prevention of illness and spread of disease.

"you have an obligation to yourself to keep healthy . . ."

COMMENTS...

Concerning Your Constitution

THERE is not a single one of us who has not felt the impact of this cosmopolitan conflict, this second World War, and it covers the entire population from infancy to the end of life. If you tried to buy toys or electric trains for your offspring during the holiday season just past, you managed, in all probability, to get some poor substitute made of paper or wood. Small coaster wagons and some baby buggies had wooden wheels. Those of you who make an annual hunting expedition in the fall for anything from squirrel to bear found a shortage of shells. Even if you did manage to get a few boxes of ammunition you probably did not have the gas or tires to carry you to the "greener and grassier pastures" of a former day.

Still we, in this United States of ours, are the best fed, the best dressed, the best housed, the best paid and the best treated of all the folks in this tremendously topsy-turvy world in which we live—and please labor under no delusions to the contrary. I mean it!

We are a very fortunate folk in this country. We have not been disturbed by air raids or invasion or hunger or starvation or disease or cold. Our large cities are intact. Our livestock has not been appropriated by a ruthless invading enemy army. Our children have not been sent to some far-off point of relative safety for their protection from possible bombings. Our transportation systems have been taxed to capacity but they have continued to do a pretty good job of getting us to our destinations and back again without serious misadventure for a half-hour to one hour. Oh, yes, you do have the time, if you are anything like I am there are brief dribbles of time in your day which are completely wasted and can, almost always, be put to the accomplishment of your useful work. This will give you more time in the afternoon and night.

By

hap. Our fighting forces are the best cared for, the best paid, and the best fed of any in the world.

Our educational systems have been taken into the confidence of our government. They have accelerated the devious details of learning, and in a relatively short space of time have been able to convert their sprawling plants to useful units of practical instruction in some of the highly technical aspects of communication and chemistry, as well as medicine and mechanics. And yet there are those folks who have the temerity to criticize their state of being and recount their "hardships" on the basis of a few errors in foresight and prophecy on the part of their government.

I have been asked to voice some opinions on the subject of what can be done to help in a health way so far as our war efforts are concerned. I think that the first consideration of all for those of us at home should be an everlasting effort to maintain a satisfactory degree of physical fitness. By this I do not mean that we must join golf clubs or athletic associations or Young Men's Christian Associations to do a too strenuous workout once or twice a week and be sore-musled and shin-splinted for the balance of the week, as some do.

I mean that we must take regular exercise each day, and regular exercise in most cases can conveniently consist of brisk walks in God's sunshine and fresh air. Not just the walk that you had to take as a student to get up the hill to Bascom Hall, or now from your home to your office or place of business; but, in addition, a regular routine of brisk Skating, sliding and skiing are winter sports which tone up those flabby muscles and stimulate that jaded appetite so that even the lowly spinach will cause a flow of saliva and gastric juices. From my library window I can watch some of the more daring folks in my community make splendid use of a ski jump which is one of the village's winter sport adjuvants. A local private golf club encourages the use of its hills for sliding each winter. Then, in addition, there are the several lakes which surround Madison, each one calling in both winter and summer to those interested in fishing, or swimming, or boating, or skating. Do not abandon those health-giving sports when you leave Madison and I can assure you that each of them will contribute to your physical fitness and efficiency. You have an obligation to yourself to keep your health at its optimum level today more than ever before.

Closely associated with a program of regular recreational exercise is the problem of nutrition. One may literally be starved in the midst of plenty. The average every-day American, who works in our larger metropolitan areas, who has only a brief half-hour for his or her noonday meal is undoubtedly the worst offender. You rush from your desk or counter or office to the nearest drug store soda fountain or quick lunch counter to order a sandwich, a cup of coffee and a piece of pie. You gulp the sandwich, wash it down with some poor coffee, and finally top off this dietary nightmare with a portion of pie—and then wonder why you suffer from dyspepsia and hyperacidity.

Probably the breakfast for the average unmarried male or female has been toast or a roll and coffee and occasionally a glass (small) of orange juice. Sometimes you say that you are trying to keep your food bills within a reasonable figure but more often you contend that you "don't have time for more". Even the breakfast of the average commuter is often hurried and gulped. I think that the food habits of many Americans are bad and can be improved considerably, with a consequent improvement in health. Unbalanced, irregular, vitamin deficient diets are a constant health hazard for the average urban American.

The problem of nutrition is a much broader one than we usually picture it. It is frequently of considerable influence in our productivity and our efficiency. Doctors advise pregnant mothers about their diets and often prescribe supplementary vitamins. Balanced diets, one of the fish liver oils, and adequate quantities of vitamins B and C are exceedingly important for our children. Then we are constantly reminded of the deficient and starvation diets of the occupied countries of Europe. Herr Hitler and his henchmen have seen to it that most of the food of these unfortunates has gone to his hordes or has been sent back to Germany.

Very recently it was my pleasure to hear a lecture by Dr. Ragnar Nicolaysen, Professor of Physiology and Nutrition as well as Director of the Institute of Nutrition Research at the University of Oslo, Norway. He had managed to get out of that stricken country after considerable experience with the Nazi way of doing things. He described the diet of the average desk or white collar worker in his country. The Nazis had set up—on paper—a 2500 calorie diet but the worker was indeed fortunate if he were able to get a total of 1700 calories during a day. Protein is chiefly in the form of fish, when it can be obtained. Bread is almost inedible. Potatoes are scarce. Animal fats and vegetable oils cannot be had. Eggs are unheard of. Fuel is so scarce that cooking and heating are serious problems. Everyone loses weight and is constantly hungry. No, not a pleasant picture, but some of us follow a paranoid pattern and feel abused while we are warm, and our stomachs are full, and our gas ration adequate, and our shoes are intact, and we are adequately clothed, and our educational systems are functioning as usual. We are the most fortunate folks in the world if we only knew it.

Then there are many other ways in which we can contribute to our potential supply of good health besides physical fitness measures and proper nutrition. All of us are subject to "colds", the grippe or "flu", sinus trouble, sore throats and pneumonia. Up to late January the weather had been greatly in our favor, but the winter is not finished. I have read and reread the observations of that old master of many trades, Benjamin Franklin, concerning "colds". He left, among his multitudinous manuscripts, an outline, "Preparatory Notes and Hints for Writing a Paper Concerning What is Called Catching Cold". In these notes he comments on how "colds" are contracted, ". . . by coming in close contact with a person having a cold". For treatment he suggests, ". . . warming; perspiration; quinine taken early". He stressed prevention. After all, little has been added to the therapy of the garden variety of "cold" since Franklin's day. It is only in the complications where more specific therapeutic measures have been developed. Take care of your "cold" and probably your fellow worker will not develop sinus disease or pneumonia.

Then that astute old Greek, Thucydides, author of the "History of the Peloponnesian War", gave a vivid picture of the Plague. He commented upon the conditions and the rats and the filth. Today some of our fighting forces face the same situation, and Plague can be controlled by adequate sanitary measures and cleanliness. Today we have soap and pure water and bathing and washing facilities which should take us a long way in the direction of elimination or control of communicable disease, when frequently and generally used.

The modern household faces many problems in connection with the control of sickness and disease. Physicians and nurses are leaving our communities each day, and more and more of the problems of health and disease fall upon the mothers of this land. Probably the most important health problem of all is that of the small child and the youngster in the primary grades. Doctors are making fewer home calls. An increasing amount of advice is being given by telephone. Epidemics are a constant threat. Meningitis increases. The incidence of tuberculosis rises in some quarters. Housing conditions are unsatisfactory in some communities. Drives of all kinds increase. Help becomes a serious problem.

As a partial answer to some of these situations, courses in First Aid, Home Nursing, and Nurse's Aide instruction are sponsored in each community. For a few hours of effort one can learn a great number of facts in connection with the care of the sick as well as the prevention of illness. I have continually urged folks to have their children vaccinated against smallpox, immunized against diphtheria and whooping cough, and suggested typhoid fever vaccination where indicated.

In summary, may I say that a great deal can be done for the improvement of our collective health through nutritional lines, physical fitness efforts, by increasing our knowledge of preventive medical measures, more careful supervision of our children, greater care in our methods of cleanliness, and then, above all, to accept the fact that we are the best cared for nation in this world. Let's make it the most healthy.

University Trains 7,520 for National Service; 3,300 Military Personnel Study on Campus

Servicemen and women who have been trained at the University during the past two years total 7,520, a year-end survey reveals, while 3,300 more are now being trained on the University campus.

Navy trainees rank highest in number with 5,000 radio code and communications men, 850 WAVES, 100 SPARS, and 100 marine auxiliaries having gone from Wisconsin to active duty on ship and shore bases in this country and abroad.

Smaller specialized training groups included 80 navy cooks trained in the University classrooms and kitchens, 100 navy diesel engineering officers, 220 army air force mechanics, and 420 army air force meteorologists. Also trained at the University were 50 marine glider pilots, and 600 men who took civilian pilot training courses.

A continuous training program being conducted at the University now includes 1,000 sailors in radio code and communications; 1,400 army specialized training program students in engineering, foreign area studies, medicine, and basic training; 140 navy aviation cadets; 450 navy engineers; 175 army and navy medical students; 100 army officers studying civil affairs of foreign countries; and 16 WACS in physiotherapy.

The University is also educating servicemen and women abroad through the Armed Forces institute correspondence courses which now have an enrollment of 15,000.

12,108 Students Attend U. During 1942-43 School Year

Operating on a full three semester schedule, the University has given instruction to almost as many people during one wartime year as it did in the record breaking year of 1939-40.

While 11,949 students were enrolled in the two semesters of the pre-war year, 12,108 different students attended the University during the regular session and 15 week summer school of the 1942-43 year. Studying at the short six- and eight-week summer sessions last year were an additional 1,540, a considerable decrease, however, from the 4,680 enrollment in the 1939 summer session.

Total enrollment for the regular session, summer school, Extension division, agriculture short course, and workers school for the 1939-40 school year was 47,823, whereas the total for these courses and the armed forces trained on the campus in 1942-43 is only two percent below this all-time peak.

Decreases in the enrollment in the Extension division and the agriculture short courses have been compensated for by the addition of 4,000 servicemen on the campus.

U. Experts Discuss Peace Problems in Milwaukee

Problems of peace will be discussed by a dozen experts of the university social science divisions during February, March, and April in a series of lectures being presented in Milwaukee.

A course to help create an informed public with a background of dependable knowledge on what is termed "the greatest problem of our day—how to end the war," a similar series was recently presented in Madison for an enrollment of more than 100.

Prof. A. C. Garnett, department of philosophy, started the series on Feb. 4 with a lecture on the war of ideas behind the guns, and was followed on

Feb. 11 by Sir Bernard Pares, formerly of the University of London and visiting lecturer at the University, who spoke on Russia before and after the war.

The schedule will continue as follows:

Feb. 18, National aspirations and the Versailles settlement, Prof. C. V. Easum, department of history; Feb. 25, Germany before and after the war, Prof. Howard Becker, department of sociology; March 3, Successes and failures of the League of Nations, Prof. C. P. Higby, department of history; March 10, Japan before and after the war, Prof. G. T. Trewartha, department of geography; March 17, China before and after the war, Prof. F. A. Ogg, department of political science; March 24, India before and after the war, Prof. Philo M. Buck, department of comparative literature; March 31, Economic problems of peace, Prof. W. A. Morton, department of economics; April 14, Colonial problems of peace, Prof. Paul A. Knaplund, department of history; April 21, Racial problems of peace, Prof. Thomas C. McCormick, department of sociology; April 28, Political problems of peace, Prof. L. H. Adolfsen, department of political science.

The series is being given at the University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee, 623 W. State Street, with a fee of $5 for the 12 weekly lectures.

Education Students Lead In Scholastic Averages

School of Education students received higher grades than those of any other school or college in the University, according to the table of scholastic averages for the second semester of the 1942-43 year.

The average for all men was slightly higher than that for all women, and non-fraternity men averaged higher than fraternity men, while sorority women averaged above non-sorority women.

Visual Instruction Bureau Acquires 125 New Films

The University Bureau of Visual Instruction has acquired 125 new educational films for use in schools, clubs, and civilian training groups. In addition the bureau has listed 216 new pre-induction and flight-training films.

Extension Division Offers Credits to High Schoolers

High school credit is being offered by the University extension division for those teen-aged youths who have given up their schooling to take war-time jobs.

Courses giving credits toward a high school diploma are being offered in Kenosha, Racine, and other Wisconsin cities. Pre-flight training, science, mathematics, English, and languages are among the most popular courses, reports Dean Frank O. Holt of the Extension division.

Mrs. Kate Nalon, 74 Retires After 46 Years

After having watched 11 generations of University students come and go, Mrs. Kate Nalon, 74, will retire from the job of campus charwoman which she has held since 1898. She is one of the 25 University employees who will come under the retirement ruling of the new state pension system.

Mrs. Nalon has worked more years than any other service department employee. She has worked half-time in Agriculture hall for the last six years; before that she was at the chemistry building 20 years.

Five $300 Scholarships Established by Alumnus

A new scholarship fund of five $300 general scholarships enabling high school graduates to attend the University of Wisconsin was recently established by Oscar Rennebohm, owner of the Madison chain of drug stores.

The fund is to be known as the Oscar Rennebohm University Scholarship fund, and the scholarships will be made yearly to students whose parents reside in Wisconsin. The first scholarships will be given in July, 1944. The fund is administered by a board of trustees, composed of four University faculty members and a Wisconsin business man.

Rennebohm is a graduate of the University pharmacy school, class of 1911. He has made several previous contributions to University trust and loan funds.

109,300 Students Study at U. Since its Founding

Since the founding of the University of Wisconsin in 1849, more than 109,300 students have been enrolled in University classes, according to a survey made recently by the bureau of graduate records.

Through 1942, 50,415 or 48 per cent of the total number of students listed have received at least one degree. The remaining 53,872 did not complete their academic work or were granted a degree from some other institution.

The survey also revealed that more than 6000 former students had received two degrees from the University. One per cent received three degrees. Thirty-eight alumni have been given four degrees from Wisconsin, and two graduates have the incredible record of winning five degrees from this University.

Living Conditions Satisfy 87%

In a survey of 300 University students queried about housing conditions, 87 per cent of them were satisfied with present living conditions, and 13 per cent objected to lodging house facilities.

Objections made were to the high rents, poor room lighting, and noise during quiet hours. Forty per cent of the students favored expansion of the fraternity and sorority house system; thirty-nine per cent endorsed a University dormitory building program.

Asked if they would object to residing in campus quarters with "people of any race or creed," 51 per cent of the students said they had no race discrimination prejudices.

REGENTS

Regents Vote to Establish Separate Commerce School

The university board of regents at a meeting Jan. 15th voted unanimously to establish a separate school of commerce at the University apart from the College of Letters and Sciences, and ordered that steps be taken at once to select a dean.

The regents heard a report by Regent John D. Jones on the regent-faculty committee action. The seven faculty members voted 4-3 in favor of a separate commerce school while the three regents on the committee all voted in agreement to the change.

The new school will come into being "when the necessary plans have been developed and the necessary funds for facilities, equipment, and operations have been provided," the regent action read.

Regents Request Salvage of U. Building Program

"An immediate non-lapsible appropriation for the preparation of plans and specifications for new construction, remodelling, and improvements at the University," was requested of the Wisconsin legislature joint finance committee in a statement submitted by the University board of regents by Regent Daniel H. Grady, chairman of the board's constructional development committee.

The request was made in an attempt to salvage part of the University's building program since the only University building project approved for immediate attention in a former meeting of the legislature was the construction of a Wisconsin General hospital wing.

The regents are asking the legislature to reconsider the University's building needs, because, although building cannot be started until after the war, it takes about a year to draw up specifications and ask for bids. The immediate appropriation of $160,269, three per cent of the total cost of the post-war building program, is requested now so that plans and specifications can be drawn up now, building to start immediately after the war.

As discussed before in the magazine, the building projects specifically recommended are: Bascom Hall, fire-proofing and remodelling; Dairy building construction; Home economics building addition; Engineering buildings; Chemistry building (and rebuilding old part) and work on the Historical library.

Regents Accept $29,105 in Gifts and Grants

Gifts and grants totalling $29,105 were accepted by the University board of regents last month. An initial payment toward a $5,000 memorial scholarship fund named in honor of the late Abby Marlatt, former head of the department of home economics, was also accepted by the regents.

Dr. Stovall Proposes Establishment of Welfare Center Near University

Dr. William D. Stovall, professor of hygiene and clinical pathologist in the medical school at the University of Wisconsin, addressing the board of public welfare in Milwaukee recently, proposed the establishment of a welfare center that would provide optimum diagnostic and treatment facilities at minimum cost.

Appalled at the lack of such facilities in state institutions and convinced that creation of suitable facilities within these places would involve prohibitive cost, Dr. Stovall proposed the center be set up near the state University and staffed by University specialists, though presumably maintained by the department of public welfare.

If all persons committed to welfare institutions were first sent to such a center, the work of that institution could be narrowed down to the specific job of rehabilitation and minor health problems within the community. The center would be a broad reception unit where the whole personality and background of the patient could be studied.

The public welfare board directed Dr. Stovall and Director Bayley to invite Dr. H. M. Coon, superintendent of the Wisconsin General hospital, to confer with them on the plan's feasibility.

Prof. Kiekhofer Gives Pep Talk at Bond Rally

Prof. William H. "Wild Bill" Kiekhofer of the University economics department was the featured speaker before Madison employees at the retail salespeople's bond rally launching the Fourth War Loan drive Jan. 18th at the Capitol theater.

Professors Show Variety In Types of Collections

President Roosevelt collects stamps, and marine pilots collect dead Jap Zeiros. Campus professors are collectors too, of things other than honorary degrees and text books.

Assoc. Prof. C. F. Gillen of the French department collects chromoxylographs. (Really). Prof. Gillen owns about 300 original etchings, engravings, and chromoxylographs (color prints made from wooden blocks) from many European countries and the United States. Some of the etchings date from the 17 century, and some engravings were done in the 16th century. His chromoxylograph collection is the largest in Wisconsin. Many of the French, English, and American water color paintings in his office are dedicated personally by their painters to Prof. Gillen.

Instead of collecting first edition newspapers as a hobby, Director Grant M. Hyde of the School of Journalism spends his free time drawing house plans. His first house was built in 1912, and since then he has been the architect of eight Madison homes, including his own. Prof. Hyde undoubtedly does not collect canoes, but he does own a canoe given to him 32 years ago by C. R. Van Hise, then president of the University.

Prof. Blanche Trilling, director of the women's physical education department, likes to spend her extra moments admiring and acquiring luster pitchers.

Miss Catherine Marting, instructor in the women's physical education department, has a memorable collection of slides showing physical education costumes which date back before the "bloomer girl" gym suit period. After seeing these slides, the blue shorts and white blouses worn in phy ed classes now are a decided improvement.

A "good neighbor" collection of Mexican and South American jewelry belongs to Miss Dorothy Webster, acting instructor in the Spanish department. The delicately worked bracelets, necklaces, brooches, and rings are made of Mexican silver with mosaic and gold designs. Her rugs, Indian pottery, and serapis add an extra colorful note to her collection.

State Professional Engineers Elect M. O. Withey President

Prof. M. O. Withey, of the university mechanical engineering department, was elected president of the newly formed Wisconsin Society of Professional Engineers in Milwaukee last month. Prof. Ben G. Elliot, also of the mechanical engineering department, was named alternate national representative.

The group represents 446 Wisconsin men who are legally qualified and registered in various engineering fields. The society is affiliated with the National Society of Professional Engineers.

Prof. Otto Asks For Religion of the World

"Ours has been a western religion, but there are millions on the other side of the globe. Now we must have a religion of the world, and that's another little job," declared Prof. Max Otto, chairman of the philosophy department at the University, in a talk on the "Philosophy Behind Post-war Planning" at a luncheon meeting of the Wisconsin Alumni Club of Milwaukee recently.

Prof. Max Otto
Asks for democracy in world terms

"Our old world has gone to pieces, you've got to accept that; in our time nations have dissolved into a world such as has never been seen before," he continued. "I have always thought of democracy in national, state and community terms. Now it must be in world terms.

"I have always taught patriotism—the love of my country. Yes, but my country is the world now. In education I was brought up with every cell of me imbibing Americanism, but that just won't go now. We must find how to get students to respond to the change in world terms.

"If you doctors and lawyers and insurance men don't let us educators get children interested in finding the way along charted lines, they will turn to the uncharted or will take the mechanics and machines of life as their ideals. If that should happen—and I say this although it may sound brazen—if that should happen then a period of such darkness as the world has never seen will come upon us."

Dean Lloyd K. Garrison, Law School
wartime experience in labor relations will benefit the future

Dean Garrison Sees Progress in Wartime Arbitration

Two years of wartime experience in managing labor relations have made permanent contributions to developments which may be expected to carry over in the post-war world, Lloyd K. Garrison, dean of the University Law School on leave as alternate public member on the national labor board at Washington, said recently.

Voluntary maintenance of membership clauses between the open and closed shop, concepts of union responsibility in connection with the membership clauses, social necessity of correcting sub-standards of living, equal pay for equal work, government commitments and decisions not to be made in union cases while strikes are in progress, job classifications and well balanced wage systems for efficient production—were the accomplishments listed by Garrison as “hammered out by the war labor board on the anvil of hard cases.”

“Foremost of all,” Dean Garrison claimed, “the spreading experience, through national and regional boards and panels, in the tri-partate method of settling controversies and evolving policies—a method which, by bringing together around the table representatives of industry, labor and the public, and charging them with equal responsibility for carrying out the conclusions once arrived at, embodies the essence of our democratic wisdom.”

Securities Study Published in Last Law Review

The first of a planned series of detailed studies of the administrative process as exhibited in agencies of the state government was published in the June 1942 Law Review which rolled off the presses in November, 1943. The delay was due to wartime duties of several contributors—“Inter Arma Delayent Leges.”

For alumni interested in the regulation of securities in Wisconsin this issue would be a particularly interesting one. It includes articles on “A Study of the Administrative Process” by Lloyd K. Garrison, dean of the Law School; “The Nat’l Assoc. of Securities Dealers; Its Origin and Operation” by Paul S. Grant, district committeeman, N.A.S.D.; “History and Analysis of the Wisconsin Securities Law” by Marjorie Loomis Marshall, L.L.B. ’36; “The Economic Aspect of State Regulation of Securities” by Vern Zeller, director, Wisconsin dept. of securities; and “Denials and Revocations of Securities Dealers’ Licenses” by E. Weston Wood, L.L.B. ’42.

Broadway Producer Buys Prof. Mitchell's New Play

“The Shoemaker’s House,” a new play written by Ronald Mitchell, assistant professor of speech and director of the University theater, was bought by Marie Louise Elkins, Broadway producer.

The play is described as a modern work set in Europe, dealing with Czech people. There was said to be a possibility that Joseph Calleia, now on a USO overseas tour, will stage the play when he returns to this country.

RESEARCH

Arboretum Pheasants in Wildlife Study

Pheasants who reside at the University arboretum have brought to light many unknown and useful facts regarding wildlife management and game bird population. In fact, it may truthfully be said, the arboretum pheasants have had their habits more thoroughly investigated than any other group of wild birds in Wisconsin’s history.

One important finding made by Aldo Leopold and Robert McCabe of the state experimental station and Frank Koslik of the conservation department, has been that pheasants apparently can thrive without protection from their natural enemies. Foxes, minks, weasels, raccoons, skunks, and opossums live at the arboretum too, but do not bother the pheasants.

Despite predators, the pheasants have more than held their own. No birds have been planted since 1933, yet the population is several times what it was at that time. Some have even been forcibly ejected because of complaints of damage they have caused to nearby crops.

Another finding is that pheasants are by nature home bodies and do not belong to the rover-boy aviary society. A high proportion of them stay in the same locality the year round.

The average age of a pheasant is one year. Banding birds shows that only four out of 100 live to the fourth winter.

Aspirin Tablet Dangerous, Dr. Karl Link Discovers

That the common aspirin tablet, consumed by millions of Americans annually, is a drug which in large doses slows the coagulation of blood and thereby may produce hemorrhage was revealed in a nationally important announcement made by Dr. Karl Paul Link, biochemist at the University’s College of Agriculture, at a meeting of the Harvey society in the halls of the New York Academy of Medicine last month.

This discovery developed out of research carried on by Dr. Link on a strange bleeding ailment in cattle. Badly cured sweet clover hay was found to contain a white, crystalline substance which prolongs blood-clotting time, and in many cases produces fatal hemorrhage. This substance, which is being produced artificially under the trade-name Dicumarol, is being used in post-operative medical treatment to prevent dangerous blood-clots which sometimes form after surgery.

Dr. Link reasoned that the sweet clover anti-coagulant might produce its effect through chemical breakdown in the body to salicylate acid. Therefore, he thought, any salicylate drug would have the same effect.

When aspirin was given daily to rats in sufficiently large doses, it first prolonged the clotting time of blood and then the rats died of hemorrhage. Later experiments on humans showed that large doses of aspirin did reduce the clotting power of blood in humans.

The new knowledge in Dr. Link’s discovery emphasizes the point that taking one or two aspirins at infrequent intervals won’t hurt a person. But “eating” dozens of aspirin tablets, day in and day out, in huge overdoses, may prove extremely hazardous to one’s health.

Too many aspirin tablets taken in too many consecutive days causes the prothrombin (substance that causes blood to clot) factory in the body to get hopeless behind. Then there is not enough prothrombin to make one’s blood clot normally, the blood-clotting time lengthens, and eventually serious hemorrhage may result.

Students Study For Exams in Flurry Reminiscent of "When We Were in School"

That seasonal "sleepless night" look, with bloodshot eyes and a nagging conscience, caught up with the students the last of January. The occasion was exam week.

There might come a time when students do not drink coffee by the gallons for seven days and seven nights, do not burn the electric light bill to enormous heights, do not rush fevered and flushed to an exam room to emerge looking like shriveled leaves, drained of every ounce of energy and blood plasma, and groaning.

But odds are 90 to one that it will be a cold day in July when students study for finals in a calm intelligent way. One of the finer points students master after four years on the Hill, is that you can study under pressure and learn what's writ.

The Phi Bete list would certainly soar if the student body continued at this mile-a-minute clip all year. At least for one week, student initiative and endeavor hits the zenith of maximum accomplishment, and the number of psychoneurotics is still small.

After it was all over the question of the week was how many students would stay around after the grades were posted. The ranks of the two pointers were expected to be greatly depleted, and the biggest worry of all seemed to be whether or not a .9 allowed one to stay in school.

In the midst of all the moanin' and groanin' Jan. 26th arrived, instruction resumed, life returned to normal, and the majority found themselves hale, healthy and happy in spite of the ordeal they had just been through.

Students Agree on Service Vote

Students participating in the student radio roundtable discussion of the subject "Shall the National Government Supervise Service Votes," agreed that servicemen should be allowed to vote and that this vote should be nationally administered. Since then the soldier absentee vote bill before Congress has suffered serious setbacks in the transfer of administration from a federal to a state basis.

(In the Wisconsin legislature, however, the soldier vote bill was passed unanimously in the Assembly and Senate and was signed into law by Governor Goodland. Every serviceman from Wisconsin, whether or not he made application for one will be sent a ballot and allowed to vote in the 1944 presidential election.)

It was pointed out that attempts to reach the soldier vote were not successful during the Civil war and World War I. While the students were undecided as to the best way candidates for office could reach men overseas, it was stated that today the 10 million soldier votes would be enough to swing the election one way or the other.

Prof. R. W. West, professor of speech pathology, acted as moderator for the four students, one of whom was an army corporal stationed on the campus under the army specialized training program.

Dishonesty Poll Reveals 'Cheating' is Infrequent

According to a recent dishonesty poll conducted on campus, 69 per cent of the student body questioned maintained, on the basis of their own observations, that

The Wisconsin Memorial Union
A typical February campus scene cheating in classrooms was not great enough to be investigated and improved.

The questionnaire results were presented by the student board academic problems committee and carried out by the student public opinion poll.

The students said on the whole that they would not allow anyone to copy from their exams, themes, or term papers. Suggestions were made for shorter, easier, and fewer exams and tests that hit the high lights of the course without trick questions. Better and stricter proctoring with improved seating arrangements were also suggested to lessen the chances for cheating.

The results of the poll were discussed in a university faculty meeting in January. The faculty discipline committee recommended that such changes in teaching methods be made to carry out the results of the questionnaire.

Junior Prom Held January 28th

The third post-Pearl Harbor Junior Prom took place Jan. 28 in true Wisconsin spirit, with King Robert Henkel, N. Y., and his Queen Martha Woodling, Wauwatosa, the reigning couple. Buddy Franklin and his orchestra were supposed to play for students' and servicemen's dancing at this traditional 2 a.m. social event of the year, but transportation difficulties in St. Louis at the last minute stymied the band and Stan Myers replaced him as the featured band of the evening.

Miss Woodling, School of Education junior, was also chosen as a Badger Beauty and is believed to be the first co-ed to receive this double honor. John Powers, head of the famous New York model agency, chose the beauties who formed the queen's court of honor and graced the Badger yearbook with their pictures.

Badger Beauties this year were Anna May Snyder, Alpha Chi Omega, Portage; June Wegner, Delta Delta Delta, Wauwatosa; Margaret Ohm, Delta Gamma, Madison; Ruth Wutke, Milwaukee; Gwen Frimoth, Pi Beta Phi, Clinton, Iowa, and Margaret Due, Alpha Phi, Racine.

'Firewater' Failed to Quench Famous Amber Inn Fire

The Alpha Deltas can drink a toast in fond remembrance to the Amber Inn, the scene of their many Sunday school sessions, which recently succumbed to fire and ashes. The Amber Inn has undergone and survived, until now, many changes during its career as a Madison-University landmark, and will be remembered by many alumni as the home of many bottoms-up parties.

After reading about the fire Jack Berge, high school son of Executive Secretary John Berge, suggested the name be changed to "Ember Inn;" forward condolences to that address.

Students From Four Corners of World Attend University

As usual, Wisconsin has attracted students from the four compass points on the globe. Every state in the Union is represented, and 29 countries have sent students to the campus this year.

The largest delegation from a single foreign country came from Canada; 30 maple leaf alumni are studying on the Hill. Twenty-one students are from China, and Hawaii is the home of 11 students. Other countries represented are: Alaska, Argentina, Austria, Brazil, British Guinea, Bulgaria, Costa Rica, Cuba, Denmark, England, France, Germany, Guatemala, Iceland, India, Mexico, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Palestine, Philippine Islands, Thailand, Turkey, Uruguay, Peru, Venezuela, and Wales.

Illinois heads the list of out-of-state students with 892 students; New York ranks second with 496. All of Wisconsin's 71 counties are represented among the students on campus, comprising 75 per cent of the total enrollment.

'Keep Off the Grass' Signs are Serious

Although the grass on Bascom Hill is brown, 40 Wisconsin students were arrested by Campus Cop Joe Hammersey recently for failing to obey the "keep off the grass" signs. Student court passed a ruling to arrest all students 'wearing down the green' or smoking in various buildings. Net result was that the offenders, one of whom pleaded temporary insanity before the court, literally passed the buck in penalty of their crime.

In a Daily Cardinal editorial, it was pointed out that it would cost the university $5000 to repair the damage done to the campus lawn unless students and servicemen stop taking short cuts over the Hill.

Dear Alumni,

The boys "over there" are doing one of the most magnificent jobs of all times. All along the line on the five continents we played in, during our 33,000 mile trek, we found the finest bunch of Americans I have ever met up with.

Their homesickness, or better, perhaps, their desire to get the whole thing over with and get back home, is all important to them. They have had a chance now to compare those other countries with America and they realize now as perhaps never before what a truly great country they are fighting for.

I do not mean to imply in any way, however, that they would settle for a compromise or a "negotiated" peace at this time or at any other time. They are there to see the thing through.

They are hungry for home, and hungry for news from home, and as I have said before, it seems to me Morale "over there" is spelled M-A-I-L. Please write them more, and more often—anything at all, just so it is a letter from home, but naturally, the pleasanter the news, the happier it makes them.

*With all good wishes I am,
Most sincerely,
FREDRIC MARCH, '20*

U. Lifeguards Rescue 587 From Lake Last Summer

Rescued from Lake Mendota by University life guards during the past season was a total of 587 persons, including 145 soldiers, 39 sailors, 2 marines, and 2 WAVES.

The annual report of the University life saving station revealed that three boats, two of them supplementing the work of "Isabel," the regular University life saving boat, were used for rescue work. Two women were employed in the service last year.

Mail Call is Highlight of Madison Army's Day

Although the plea of "mail for morale" sometimes may seem an overdone theme, the 3,000 letters and 200 packages per day average of the 3654th service unit at the University of Wisconsin shows that letters from home do play a very necessary role in the life of every soldier.

Making two trips to the Madison post office daily, Corporals Alfred Caplan and Francis Koenigsman are kept busy sorting the fifteen bags of mail in time to meet the companies' mail calls. In addition to these two mail clerks whose responsibility it is to pick up, sort, and distribute the mail to the various branches of the military unit, each ASTP company has appointed three mail clerks for company distribution.

But even fifteen bags of mail no longer carry much worry for the mail clerks. Just now recuperating from the Christmas rush, it was routine work during the holidays for them to handle from eight to ten thousand letters a day in addition to approximately one thousand packages. During this rush five men worked more than ten hours a day keeping the mail on the move.

All Around Program Keeps ASTPees Happy

Recreation time for ASTP trainees is short—there's only time from evening chow until study hall and between 3:30 p.m. Saturday and 5:30 p.m. Sunday for fun and relaxation.

Yet in those few hours the soldiers are provided with a well-rounded program through the cooperation of the ASTP special service office and other campus groups. In the basketball league every Monday and Friday night competition and calibre of play is high, as a large percentage of players come from college or community teams. Games are played on the Armory courts.

Every Tuesday and Wednesday twenty-five bowlers swing into action on the Memorial Union alleys. In all, 125 ASTP men enjoy kegling and take an active part.

As for movies, comedies and short subjects are shown free of charge to the trainees on Tuesday and Wednesday in the Play Circle. A new program is being worked out to show G.I. and orientation films on certain evenings. "The Battle of Russia", "Fighting in the Southwest Pacific", and "The 1943 World Series" are typical titles.

"Mail Call" at an ASTP barracks
To all soldiers everywhere, the highlight of the day

For the all too short weekends, programs featuring dancing, parties, ping-pong, billiards, and outdoor sports are provided by the Union, Madison's U.S.O.'s, and various campus groups.

Pfc. George Rowe Wins Prof. Bardeen Award

For accomplishing outstanding work in his medical school courses, Pfc. George G. Rowe of Company E (ASTP) was honored with the Charles R. Bardeen award which is given annually in memory of the doctor who was the first anatomy professor here and who later became dean of the University medical school.

The award is made each year to the student most proficient in the fields of gross anatomy, neurology, and histology. Pfc. Rowe, who is in his third year of med school, has received an "A" in every course taken there.

Rowe, born in Vulcan, Alberta, has been in the United States for the past twenty years. Before entering the medical school, he attended the College of Letters and Science at the University.

ASTP Contributes $236 to "March of Dimes"

Answering the call to the nation's "March of Dimes", the men of the ASTP went all out to contribute over $236 to the Infantile Paralysis Foundation, announced Lt. Sam C. Carrier, chairman for the drive at the 3654th Service Unit. This amount tallies well over the quota of a dime per man.

In addition to this fund raised by the ASTP men, the U. S. Armed Forces Institute, Headquarters officers and enlisted men, the WAC detachment, and the Civil Affairs Training School officers raised the total contribution to $320.

The local drive which began January 7, ending January 10, represents the first time that the Infantile Paralysis Foundation has asked the cooperation of the War Department in the solicitation of funds, Lt. Carrier said.

Pre-G. I. Backgrounds Offer Great Variety

The pre-war occupations of ASTP students now studying at the University of Wisconsin represent a wide scope of interests and talent, but it would be difficult to find life sketches more diversified than those of an artist, a symphony conductor, an inventor and road builder, and a hero of Dunkerque.

Born in Vienna, Pfc. Laszlo Matulay—artist-student, painter, and designer of stage sets—found only the memories of the romance and music that were once called Vienna. Shortly after the uprising of February, 1934, he left for America. Here he has done cartoons and illustrations for Esquire and Harper's Bazaar, tapestries, book jackets, murals, and advertising work. Employed for a time by one of New York's largest commercial art studios, his work has been exhibited at the New York Public library and at the New York World's Fair.

Also studying in the area and language course, Pfc. Malcolm H. Holmes has already conducted the Boston Symphony orchestra five times. He received his B.S. degree in languages at Harvard university in 1928, then entered the New England Conservatory of Music and the Harvard Graduate School. After completing his schooling, Holmes went to Wellesley College as faculty member instructing in chamber music, managing the concert series, and conducting the Wellesley College orchestra. During three summers spent in England, Holmes photographed many unpublished manuscripts returning to America with some 3,000 of them from which he has made full scores.

Pfc. Theodore F. Tribovii is equally well known as a roadbuilder, an instructor, and consulting chemist. He was graduated from Marquette University in 1931. Several years later, while working as engineer in charge of building all the roads at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, he discovered a new process of emulsifying asphalt for which he has established a number of plants both in this country and in Mexico.

From Swiss-born T/5 Benno Persitz, still another area and language student, comes the account of his participation at historic Dunkerque. In 1940 Persitz, who had volunteered to serve with a French hospital unit, served with a unit of 279 men out of which 37 survivors returned to their base after many hours of close fighting. Later, of these same 37 sent out on a reconnaissance mission, only seven returned. For his heroic action at Dunkerque, upon Persitz was bestowed the highest French citation, the Croix de Guerre. He and the six other survivors were commissioned lieutenants in the French army. Successful in eluding the Nazis, he made it to Portugal where he boarded ship for America. Before entering the army here, he spent some time in Hollywood acting in the capacity of technical advisor in many well-known films.

THE NAVY

By MARTIN GARDNER, Y3/C

Navy's Recreational Program Enlarged

Because of the increase in the intensity of the training program, the commanding officer felt that recreational facilities for the students should be increased comparably. This has taken the form of more navy "Happy Hours" (variety shows), the formation of a Bluejacket's choir, and the showing of free commercial motion pictures every Wednesday night.

Under the direction of Lt. (j.g.) Jack Elder, former Notre Dame football star who is serving as the station's physical training and welfare officer, the first of the new Happy Hours was presented January 19, at the Memorial Union, featuring talent drawn from both the radio school and the navy's V-12 unit.

The outstanding star of the show was Seaman Stanley Gunning-Davis, of Division 20 in the radio school, a former professional comedian of vaudeville and radio. Born in London 36 years ago, into a family of vaudeville troopers, he joined the family act (a combination of song, dance, and hokum that was billed as "The Davis Family") as a small child. The family toured the principal countries of the world, finally making their permanent home in Los Angeles, California.

The act broke up in 1925 and Stanley joined a stock company which played in Madison at the old Garrick theater (now the Madison), and later at the Eastwood theater. For the last five years Stanley has been program director and announcer at radio station WJOB in Hammond, Ind.

Music at the show was furnished by a recently organized swing orchestra, all the members of which are navy V-12 trainees. Harry Emerson, of Rockford, Ill., a former University of Chicago student, is the director. Jim Breed, of Appleton, Wis., a freshman at the University last year, plays tenor sax in the orchestra.

The station's Bluejacket choir of 60 voices is being trained by Prof. Raymond F. Dvorak, director of the University band, and will be featured in forthcoming Happy Hour shows.

The motion pictures, outstanding full-length talking films of the past year, are being presented every Wednesday night at the auditorium of Agricultural hall, and are open to all radio and V-12 students, as well as officers and members of "Ship's Company."

Ex-Prof. J. H. Walsh Joins Navy Unit

Lieut. Joseph H. Walsh, formerly an assistant in the University's department of education, joined the staff of the naval schools early in January as the assistant officer in charge of the V-12 unit. Lieutenant Walsh expects to complete work on his doctorate this winter and to receive the Ph.D. degree here this spring.

When he was commissioned in the navy last year he was working at Truax field, in a civilian capacity, as chief educational consultant for the Army Air Forces Technical Training Command. He is a graduate of the Wisconsin State Teachers college, at Eau Claire. Before coming here, he was stationed at the naval training schools at Iowa State teachers college, at Ames.

New 'Fox Certificates' Awarded at Graduation

An increased tempo on both the training and the recreational side marked the activities of the past month at the navy's radio communications school.

In an effort to place a greater emphasis on the student's ability to copy code messages under actual working conditions, when the message has to be taken through considerable static interference, Lt. (j.g.) Lonnie Coker, officer in charge of training, has inaugurated a policy of awarding "Fox Certificates" at each graduation ceremony.

The new certificate certifies that the trainee has proved his ability to copy Fox messages (coded radio messages which emanate from the navy's radio station in Washington, D. C.) under actual circuit conditions. The trainee must be able to copy not less than 120 Fox groups (each group containing five letters) without a single error.

"Ability to copy Fox 'solid' is a prime requisite of a successful navy radioman," Lt. (j.g.) Coker declared, and we hope the practice of awarding Fox certificates will provide a new incentive for trainees to improve their ability to copy standard Fox transmission."

Fifty of these certificates were distributed for the first time at the graduation of Division Eighteen, held January 10 at the Memorial Union theater.

Another new feature of the ceremony was the ranking of each student in terms of his scholastic standing, a practice which will be followed at all subsequent graduations.

Guest speaker at the graduation was Col. Joseph W. Jackson, executive director of the Madison and Wisconsin foundation, and University alumnus.

Badger Cagers Are In the Race

With just about the first half of their Big Ten schedule completed as this is being written, it seems safe to say now that Coach Harold "Bud" Foster's Wisconsin cagers have given as good an account of themselves as could possibly be expected in their first five conference games, and that they have a chance (and not such a slim one either) to climb into at least a share of the conference cage crown this season.

Maybe we're getting our hopes too high, but this is the way it looks, briefly: The Badgers now rest in fifth place by virtue of three wins and two losses in their first five conference games. They split with Illinois in two games, downed Michigan twice, and lost one to Northwestern. All three of these teams are considered to be first division contenders in the conference race this year. As a result of getting these tough games out of the way early, the Badgers have games with only two first division contenders remaining on their schedule—with Northwestern and Purdue on Feb. 4 and 19 respectively—and both games are on Wisconsin's home court here. At the same time, the other first division teams—Northwestern, Purdue, Iowa, and Ohio State—still have to get by each other and some must fall along the way. If the Badgers can conquer the Wildcats and Boilermakers on their own home floor, they should get by their second division opponents on the road with any luck at all, and then they should be in for at least a title slice. But we know it's a big IF—and only time can tell.

Two More Cage Games

The Badger cagers have added two more games to their schedule for this season, with the De Paul Demons in the Chicago stadium on March 3, and with the Great Lakes Bluejackets at the Naval Training station on March 5. The latter game will be played on a Sunday evening, but was approved by the Wisconsin Athletic board for that time because it is for the benefit of the sailor trainees at the station only. Traditionally Wisconsin does not approve Sunday sports contests.

Badger Boxing Schedule

Six dual matches, four of them with two navy mitt teams, comprise the 1944 schedule of the University of Wisconsin

Boxing Coach John Walsh
Six dual matches for his boxers sin boxing team as announced by Harry Stuhldreher, Badger director of athletics.

Wisconsin's leather pushers will meet the Iowa Preflight and the Ottumwa (Ia.) Naval air station mittmen in home-and-home matches, and will take on the boxers from the University of Maryland and Penn State college in matches in the Wisconsin fieldhouse here.

In addition, the Badger fighters will hold the finals of their All-University boxing tournament in the fieldhouse here Feb. 11, Coach Johnny Walsh announced. Walsh revealed that the customary semi-finals have been eliminated this year so that one big University-wide tourney can be held in addition to the four intercollegiate home matches. Following is the complete schedule:

- Feb. 11—All University Tournament Finals.
- 18—Iowa Preflight here.
- 26—Maryland here.
- Mar. 3—Penn state here.
- 10—Ottumwa (Ia.) Naval Air Station here.
- 18—Iowa Preflight at Iowa City.
- 24—Ottumwa Naval Air Station at Ottumwa.

Grapplers Hard At It

The University of Wisconsin's inexperienced but willing wrestling team, now supervised and coached by Frank Jordan, also football assistant, lost its first match of the year to the powerful Iowa Seahawk grapplers, 27-3. With only two veterans from last year's squad available this season, Coach Jordan has a young, green squad which is showing some promise of developing into a stronger outfit as the season advances.

The two veterans on the Badger squad are Eddie Dzirbik, who wrestles at either 135 or 145 pounds, and George Shampo, 155 pounder. Dzirbik was the only Badger winner in the match with the Iowa Seahawks.

Twelve navy students and eight civilians, including two members of last fall's football squad and a member of this year's boxing team, make up the 20-man squad which Jordan now has out for the mat sport. The two former football players are John Davey, regular guard, who wrestles at 155 pounds, and Dick Ramlow, end, who is in either the 175 pound or heavyweight class. Dick Miyagawa, nifty boxer from Coach John Walsh's mitt squad, is also out for wrestling.

Following is the remainder of this year's schedule for the Badger matmen:

- Jan. 29—Minnesota there.
- Feb. 5—Northwestern at Madison.
- 12—Minnesota at Madison.
- 19—Conference meet at Northwestern.

Swimmers Under Way

Next event on the University of Wisconsin swimming team's calendar is a meet with the University of Iowa team in the Armory tank here Feb. 5, Coach Joe Steinauer announced today. The Badger swimmers will also meet Lawrence college's tankmen here Feb. 12, and will participate in the Big Ten swim meet at Evanston on Feb. 19. The Wisconsin team lost its first meet of the season to Minnesota's swimmers by the close score of 43-39.

FIVE IMPORTANT YEARS

On February 5, 1949, the University of Wisconsin will be one hundred years old.

During this five-year period, many important jobs must be successfully completed if this Centennial is to be properly celebrated and if the University is to be adequately prepared for its second century of service to Wisconsin and the nation. Some of these jobs are now being systematically tackled by the Centennial Committee recently set up by the Board of Regents. This Committee is mapping out a series of long-time projects which have a definite bearing on the University's prestige and future welfare.

First on the list is a comprehensive University history. The only history now available is the one recently published in twelve installments in successive issues of the Wisconsin Alumnus. This history was built around the activities and achievements of the presidents that have served our University during its first ninety-five years. Unfortunately, however, this history has not been printed in book form, thus reducing its value as a history of our Alma Mater.

Paul Knaplund, chairman of the history department, has accepted the chairmanship of the history project. In accepting this assignment, he emphasized two facts: (1) the importance of starting work on it immediately and (2) getting the invaluable aid of President Emeritus E. A. Birge, Charles L. Schlichter and other faculty veterans who have firsthand information about significant University developments.

Alumni Directory

Publication of an alumni directory is another long-time project under consideration by this Centennial Committee. The last directory was published in 1921. Its 662 pages listed 13,000 graduates. If a Centennial directory is published, it will be a sizable volume because the list of graduates now exceeds 54,000 and will undoubtedly run more than 60,000 by 1949. Compiling and listing 60,000 names and addresses accurately is no small undertaking. If this directory is to include former students who were not graduated, it will run better than 100,000 names. The numerous requests for such a directory indicate that alumni are interested in its publication. A sub-committee is now investigating means of financing this project. Even if limited to graduates only, the cost will probably exceed $15,000.

A Campaign for University gifts and bequests is also under consideration. While this campaign will not approach the magnitude of similar efforts by privately endowed universities, it will strive to accelerate the rate at which bequests are now being made to our University. Last year such gifts and bequests totalled $425,398.66. During the first half of the current fiscal year which started on July 1, 1943, these gifts and bequests total $326,301.02. With a little organized effort, this total should be even more encouraging during this Centennial period. The University needs substantial bequests to carry on its special services and research projects.

15,000 Students

The biggest job, of course, is to get the University ready for its second century of education, service and research. This job demands the active cooperation of faculty, students, alumni and citizens of our state.

It is generally conceded that University enrollments will reach new heights after the war. The peak of 12,134 in 1940-41 will probably be topped by enrollments of 15,000 to 16,000 by 1949. Present facilities of the University are sadly inadequate to take care of this increased enrollment. Many classrooms and laboratories were overcrowded during prewar days when the student body numbered 12,134.

Many of these postwar students will be Fighting Badgers who left the Campus to join the armed forces. Letters from these Fighting Badgers indicate that many of them hope to come to Wisconsin to complete their University training as soon as the Axis gangsters are properly liquidated. When these boys come back they will expect new courses and new educational opportunities geared to meet the demands of a post-war world.

Like the boys who came back to the Campus after World War I, these Fighting Badgers will be considerably older than the average student. Many have had special training in radio, radar, aviation and other technical fields. Wisconsin cannot afford to disappoint these gallant Badgers. Wisconsin must take steps now to provide courses that meet their educational needs.

These needs can not be met with present facilities. Our obsolete buildings must be replaced with modern structures that provide adequate classrooms and laboratories. Our faculty includes some of the best teachers and finest research men in the country. Many are recognized leaders in their field. Asking them to work in antiquated buildings with obsolete equipment is unfair to them and equally unfair to the students working under their tutelage.

Providing these facilities is clearly and definitely a state responsibility. Furthermore, it is a responsibility that cannot be postponed until 1949. It takes time to translate a legislative appropriation into a University building. If the University is to be ready for its second century of service on February 5, 1949, the necessary legislative action must take place soon—not five years from now. Faculty, students, legislators and alumni must get together on this vital problem now so that the next five years may be used effectively and advantageously for the best interests of the University and the thousands of students who will flock to the Campus after the war.—John Berge

AWARD WINNER

Ivan "Cy" Peterman, '22, war correspondent who has been awarded the Purple Heart by the army, was presented with The Silver Medal and Citation for Distinguished Service of the Poor Richard Club in Philadelphia, Jan. 6. The Medal, awarded publicly only once before in the club's history, was presented to "Cy" at a dinner in his honor attended by distinguished guests of the army, navy, and civilian life. Peterman was praised by the toastmaster "for his work as a reporter abroad, for having sent back stories rich in human interest and appeal, such as have been duplicated by few foreign correspondents."

Reunion in New Guinea

Raymond Clapper, famous war correspondent who was recently killed in an airplane crash while covering the Marshall Islands invasion, had previously written in his column about the meeting with Lt. Col. Phil LA FOLLETTE, '19, and of the narrow escape Col. La Follette had on the beaches at Gloucester when he went in on the second wave with a group of newspaper correspondents. They walked within 20 feet of a pillbox which they assumed had been cleared, and after they passed a Jap popped out and began using a machine gun on others who were coming up.

"As our plane landed in New Guinea from Australia we were greeted by Col. Lloyd LEHRBAS, '19, of Gen. MacArthur's staff, wearing jungle green and high-topped rubber sneakers. He was dirty, but otherwise just as we all knew him around the National Press Club in Washington. He has been on every front in this war, beginning in China in the 30's. He was in Warsaw when the Axis attacked.

"At the Red Cross hut was another old friend, Marjorie HENDRICKS, '18, who owns the famous Normandy Farm restaurant near Washington. She has been a Red Cross worker at forward air fields and was just boarding a plane for Australia. She and Lebrbas and La Follette were classmates at the University of Wisconsin, and met by accident on the airfield in New Guinea as I arrived. Nobody said it was a small world," Mr. Clapper concluded.

On Cranberries in Iceland

When this war is over and all the foreigners have returned to their homes, wherever they may be, there may be something which will remain in Iceland that will remind those people of Wisconsin. And that is the cranberry.

Maj. William H. HAIGHT, '36, who has been in Iceland since the winter of 1942, noticed that one of the chief problems of the Icelanders is their food supply. Next he noticed that parts of country looked to his experienced eye like cranberry land. Taking up the matter seriously he wrote to Vern Goldsworthy (B.S.A. '31) of Wisconsin Rapids for literature on cranberry crops and induced the largest farmers' co-operative in Iceland to take an interest in his project. The co-operative ordered four boxes of cranberry cuttings from Wisconsin Rapids and planted them in selected spots in Iceland.

"The faithful watching of the caretaker of the experimental farm resulted in frost preventative flooding whenever necessary, and the cranberries did survive the summer. (The summer of 1943 was Northern Iceland's coldest summer since 1883). At the end of the summer half of them were alive and slowly growing. Icelanders were thrilled to see the strange new plants from Wisconsin still living even after their hardy potatoes had been killed by the mid-August frost," Maj. Haight wrote.

THE "PENNY" GETS BACK

Lt. Richard H. KAUFMAN, '44, Antigo, brought the Flying Fortress, "Penny's Thunderhead," safely back to a successful emergency landing on an RAF coast field recently, after the ship had been severely crippled and eight members of the crew had bailed out over enemy territory.

The bombardier had just released the bombs when a tremendous anti-aircraft burst staggered the plane, disabling the number three engine. Before Lt. Kaufman could get the ship under control three more bursts hit the nose, the bomb-bay door and the number one engine which caught fire.

Unable to level the ship off Lt. Kaufman ordered the crew to abandon ship, and eight of them did, one by one. As the bombardier stepped to the escape hatch, Kaufman stopped him, shouting, "The fire's out in no three engine, it has started to freeze already!" Three German fighters on the Fort's tail quit the fight, thinking the whole crew had bailed out.

Although the plane had lost 10,000 feet altitude and was going down rapidly, the two decided to gamble on getting back to England safely, and won. They made it.

Capt. Spika's record shows that he has engaged in 25 daylight bombing missions over continental Europe, has shot down 15 confirmed Nazi fighter planes. He was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross following a crash landing on the English coast when his "Shady Lady" was demolished but none of his crew was injured.

The Air Medal with three clusters was awarded Capt. Spika for successful raids over Bremen, Hamburg, Paris, Stuttgart, and Sweinfurt. These raids were made with the same crew that first took off in a B-17 Fortress on Sept. 5, 1942, for the European theatre of war. The crew is still intact.

The Reis family, all alumni, all flying enthusiasts

Mrs. Robert Welch (Carol Ann Reis, '41), is one of two women from Wisconsin to hold the rating of flight instructor. Judge Alvin C. Reis, '13, was a major in the balloon corps in France during first World War. Lt. Alvin C. Reis, Jr., '45, is a navigator and aerial gunner in the AAC.

Air-Sea Story

T/Sgt. Louis SCHILLINGER, '45, saved his life and those of the crew of a Flying Fortress when the American plane was forced down into the English Channel following a raid over Germany recently. Sgt. Schillinger is an aerial gunner and radio operator who has taken part in more than 50 raids over Axis-held territory.

The Flying Fortress on which Schillinger was the gunner was forced to land in the channel when it ran out of gas and the crew spent seven hours on a life raft until they were picked up by an air-sea rescue boat.

"The pilot made a beautiful landing in the channel and we all scrambled into the water and swam to the dinghies we had released," Sgt. Schillinger wrote. "Picture me, if you can, trying to swim with my heavy flying clothes on, clutching my emergency radio in one hand and doing a version of the Australian crawl with the other! I should have been the acme of seriousness at that time, but I knew I looked so comical I couldn't help but laugh.

"As a result I swallowed a good share of salt water, and I'm still waiting for the report to come in that the channel lost two feet in depth."

Once aboard the raft Schillinger started to send out SOS signals with his radio equipment until they were picked up. Planes were scouting the channel for crew members but because of the heavy fog it was practically impossible to see the raft. The happy ending to the story was Sgt. Schillinger's "All of us are safe and sound, none the worse for wear!"

IN LINE OF DUTY

They Gave Their Lives So That Freedom in This Country and Abroad Might Not Perish

Lt. Comm. Thomas UTEGAARD, '17, husband of Isabel FLETCHER Utegaard, x '20, Wisconsin Rapids, died Dec. 17 at the U. S. Naval Hospital, Brooklyn, N. Y. Lt. Comm. Utegaard had served in the first World War and reported for active duty in World War 2 in Jan., 1943. After his indoctrination at Norfolk and Williamsburg, Va., he was appointed Public Works Officer at the U. S. Naval Supply Depot at Bayonne, N. J. In civilian life, Lt. Comm. Utegaard was a civil engineer with the Consolidated Water Power & Paper Co., Wisconsin Rapids.

2nd Lt. Willis A. CARPENTER, '41, brother of Mrs. A. C. Rehwaldt, 929 N. 31st St., Milwaukee, was killed in action, his sister was informed in Dec., 1943. He was with the Marine 2nd Division, having enlisted in Aug., 1942.

Dear Mr. Berge,

At present I'm located in a Melanesian jungle and can say that it's not as bad as I had anticipated, although no South Sea paradise. The temperature is less severe than in most mid-west cities during the summer; the nights are always cool making sleeping under a blanket desirable. Lions and tigers are not found here but there are hordes of ants, flies, ticks and leeches.

The short, brown-skinned natives with fuzzy black or red hair, who inhabit this area, make an interesting study, for their civilization is a combination of our own and the Stone Age way of life, mostly the latter. Living in communities of thatched grass huts, they produce most of their own food, manufacture their own tools, kitchen utensils, and clothes, the latter amounting to a piece of bark cloth or a grass skirt wrapped around the waist,

MISSING IN ACTION

Lt. Earl FRYE, x'44, has been reported by the war department as missing in action over Germany since Dec. 30. Lt. Frye was pilot on a Flying Fortress, "The Raumsley Wolf." He was graduated from advanced flight training at Yuma, Ariz., and has been in England since Nov. 1. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frye, Oregon, Wis.

Major Alfred D. BELSMA, x '41, has been missing in action over Italy since Nov. 30, according to the war department. After receiving his primary training at Silkeston, Mo., his basic training at San Angelo, Texas, and advanced training at Shreveport, La., Major Belsma served in the ferry command at Long Beach, Calif., and with the medium bomber group at Pendleton Field, Ore. He was sent to North Africa after receiving his captain's commission in September, 1942, at Fort Myers, Fla.

As your correspondence must reveal, Wisconsin has a large representation in SWPA. Right in my company is Edwin Curtiss, '39, who is an operations sergeant and a special correspondent for "Yank" magazine.

S/SGT. DAVE STEINBERG, '39

Dear John,

Was on a 11 day survey which took us over 1000 miles of African roads that at times were impersonating rivers. Saw plenty of sand, camels, and former battlegrounds. Visited most of the important cities of the war in the North African area.

The trip was highly eventful. We broke a rear axle trying to pull out of a sandhole and had to hike for help which we eventually found. After get-

He received his majority in September, 1943. His wife and daughter are residing with her parents in Pendleton, Ore.

PRISONERS OF WAR

Staff Sgt. James R. MARTIN, x '45, is a prisoner of war in Germany, his mother, Mrs. Essie M. Martin, Madison, Wis., was informed through the International Red Cross. Aerial gunner and radio operator on a Flying Fortress, Sgt. Martin was listed as missing in action on Dec. 7.

Lieut. Col. Harry PIKE, x '35, is believed to be a prisoner of the Japs, according to information given to his family by his former commanding officer, home in this country on leave, and by the Foreign Broadcast commission, which reported that a Jap broadcast claimed Lieut. Col. Pike as a prisoner. He has been listed as missing since September after air action in China. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pike, Sr., Portage, Wis.

ting the truck in good shape we started out again only to hear our fan belt get ripped to shreds. This time we used a tent rope and got 50 miles to a garage which took care of us. All this happened in a very barren and deserted part of Tunisia.

The nights here in Africa are cold and our pyramidal tents don't offer much protection—however, they do keep the rain on the outside of the tent—which is something.

Alumnus Oscar Rennebohm, '11, May Seek State Governorship in Primary

Oscar Rennebohm, '11, famous for his local philanthropies and chain of drug stores, is planning to enter the Republican primaries for governor of Wisconsin this year, according to a recent story in the Capital Times.

The year after his graduation from the University Mr. Rennebohm purchased the old Badger Pharmacy on the corner of Randall and University Ave., ten years later acquiring a second store in the 200 block on State St. In succeeding years additional stores were acquired, and now the Rennebohm chain includes 13 local stores, four of them downtown and nine in neighborhood areas.

A former president of the Wisconsin Pharmaceutical association, Mr. Rennebohm has for the past 20 years been a member of the state board of pharmacy. He received an honorary award and a special emblem for his work in organized pharmacy when the association held its convention in 1941.

Mr. Rennebohm, beside being active in the Community Union organization at Madison, recently established a fund providing for five scholarships of $300 each for graduates of Wisconsin high schools to be used in financing their education at the University.

Chinese U. Student Takes Blood Bank to China

A former Chinese student at the University, Ching sen Fan, will return to China this month with a medical unit organized to carry on blood bank work at an important Chinese outpost. Ching will handle bacteriological work in connection with the blood bank. Later he will train others to carry on his work while he will join the teaching and research staff of the University of Nanking.

CLUBS

Founders' Day

Founders' Day this year was a true red letter day on most alumni clubs' calendar. Feb. 5, the anniversary of the University's founding in 1849, was celebrated by most of the clubs with exceptionally outstanding programs this year.

Maj. Richard A. Knobloch, '40, the only Badger who flew with Gen. Doolittle in the historical raid on Tokio, was the guest of honor at Founders' Day meetings in Chicago, Milwaukee, and Madison. He addressed the Chicago club at a luncheon meeting Feb. 4 at the Union League Club. The Milwaukee Club heard Maj. Knobloch tell about the raid Monday night, Feb. 7 at the Milwaukee Athletic Club.

President Dykstra and Major Knobloch spoke to a capacity audience in the Union theater at Madison on Feb. 8 in celebration on the University's 95th birthday. Parts of the program were broadcast over the Wisconsin network so that alumni throughout the state could also get in on the celebration.

The Twin Cities alumni invited Commander L. K. Pollard, commanding officer of the navy unit at Madison, to be their Founders' Day speaker. Commander Pollard told alumni about the successful navy program being carried on at the University.

Prof. R. R. Aurner, professor of business administration in the school of commerce, spoke on "The Shape of Things to Come", discussing what's beyond the horizon for business with particular attention paid to business development, new forms of distribution, merchandising, public consumer relation and the role of free enterprise in postwar business. The event was the Green Bay Alumni Club's Founders' Day Celebration Feb. 15th.

On Feb. 7 Rockford alumni heard Dean Scott H. Goodnight, dean of men at the University, speak on the Campus in Wartime. Dean Frank O. Holt, the University's public service director, addressed La Crosse alumni on Feb. 9 and Prof. Philo Buck of the comparative literature dept. was the Wausau alumni's Founders' Day speaker. Coach Harry Stuhldreher was the main speaker at the Beloit Founders' Day banquet on Feb. 8th.

Dean Mark Ingraham reported to the Wisconsin Alumni Association of Ithaca, New York, and the Wisconsin Alumni Association of Schenectady, N. Y., on the changes that have occurred on the Wisconsin campus since the university converted itself to a wartime institution.

The Wisconsin Alumni Association of Cleveland, of which Malcolm S.

Douglas is president, arranged for an especially interesting program for Founders' Day. The program was called "The Voice of Wisconsin."

Messages about the University at the present time and greetings from President Dykstra, President Emeritus E. A. Birge, Prof. W. H. Kiekhofer of the economics department, Athletic Director Harry Stuhldreher and John Berge, executive secretary of the Wisconsin Alumni Association, were transcribed on phonograph records and played at a special Founders' Day meeting of the Cleveland alumni.

Other alumni clubs thought the idea so excellent that the Akron, Chicago and Los Angeles Wisconsin alumni clubs decided to follow suit. The Akron alumni heard the transcription at a Feb. 5th Founders' Day program and the Chicago and Los Angeles Alumni clubs met for the program later on.

This line-up of how alumni clubs throughout the country celebrated Founders' Day, 1944, is only a sampling; there will be accounts of more Founders' Day meetings in the next issue of the Wisconsin Alumnus.

Detroit

The University of Wisconsin Woman's Club of Detroit has been growing steadily due to the popularity of the dinner meetings being held monthly in the homes of the members. Mrs. Allen Wright, the president, was the hostess at the first meeting and Mrs. Emil Broders entertained the group in October.

A good crowd of alumni and alumnae attended the Wisconsin-Michigan football game in November and enjoyed dinner and dancing at the Harmonie Club in Detroit later that evening.

Mrs. Paul Kavanaugh was the November hostess and Mrs. Don Schram had the Christmas party complete with carols and gifts. Officers for the 1943-44 season are: Mrs. Allen E. Wright, president; Miss Lucille D. Born, vice-president; Miss Mary Henry, corresponding secretary; Miss Mae Devine, recording secretary; and Mrs. A. J. Olshesky, treasurer.

Milwaukee

The Wisconsin Alumni Club of Milwaukee opened their 1944 program with a luncheon meeting Jan. 18th at which Prof. Max Otto, chairman of the University philosophy department, spoke on "The Philosophy of Postwar Planning."

Miss Betty Heebink, '41
Manages Kimberly-Clark's cafeterias

Prof. Otto warned the group that they must think of democracy not in national, state or community terms, but in world terms. The luncheon meeting was held jointly with the alumni group and the woman's auxiliary.

Mexico City

Dr. Harold P. Rusch, associate professor of oncology in the University's School of Medicine, recently met with a group of Wisconsin alumni in Mexico City, where he had gone to do some research on cancer.

The Mexico City group arranged a dinner party for Dr. Rusch and for alumni in the city, and Dr. Rusch told the alumni about how the University of Wisconsin is helping to win the war.

On Dr. Rusch's return to Madison he immediately called the Alumni Association office to report on the enjoyable time he had with alumni in Mexico City, and to tell how cooperative the alumni were in arranging help for him in his research. Dr. Rusch said that he intended to get in touch with Wisconsin alumni in every city he visits from now on, he received so much help from them and had such a pleasant time, too.

WISCONSIN WOMEN

A Wisconsin girl, Betty HEEBINK, '41, manages the two employee cafeterias at Kimberly-Clark corporation, Neenah, which have recently been enlarged and modernized and now serve 1,519 people a day. About 3,000 lunches and dinners are served daily now while a year ago at this time the number was only 1,200.

After graduation from the University (home economics) in 1941 and after a semester's graduate work Miss Heebink joined Kimberly-Clark and worked for a year in regular mill progression in the converting departments. Then she was assigned to the Badger-Globe Mill cafeteria management, and being college-trained for the job she was given freedom and an opportunity to improve conditions all around as she saw fit.

She worked three months as a regular member of the kitchen crew, which experience enabled her to study the working conditions and problems of the girls employed, the need for new or improved kitchen facilities and equipment, the nutritive value as well as sales appeal of the meals being offered.

After that preliminary observation she proceeded to recommend and put into effect improvements in food service, employee hours and wages, kitchen arrangements and equipment, menus, safety and sanitation.

In March of 1943, she was assigned the two company cafeterias, The Badger Globe and Lakeview. With both men and women crews working shifts "around the clock" Miss Heebink and her cafeteria crews were faced with the problem of continuous food service, 24 hours a day, seven days a week. To take care of this extra demand the Lakeview cafeteria was enlarged and remodelled; the kitchen was equipped with modern time and labor saving devices.

Last summer, to forestall threat of a possible food shortage in the cafeteria, Kimberly-Clark sponsored a Victory Garden program at the Mill which Miss Heebink supervised. As a result they were able to serve fresh Victory Garden produce on their menus during the summer months as well as preserving a few surplus products for winter use.

Miss Heebink has standardized hours, increased wages in accord with increased responsibilities, and has established a line of progression for employees in the cafeteria department. Since she encourages suggestions for improvements from kitchen employees there has been a marked decrease in turnover and dissatisfaction. There seems to be a shared feeling of responsibility and pride in the operation of the cafeteria, developed by Miss Heebink.

REMEMBER WHEN

Remember when, in 1930, "Bud" Foster was the captain and star of the basketball team? His "height and determination" made him a valuable man in the center position.

Remember when the Liberty Loan campaign among the women students on the campus in 1917 netted $12,000?

Remember when tickets to Junior Prom were reduced from $6 to $3 by the social committee of the University faculty in 1906? Groups who were alarmed at the drastic change were reminded that the price paid for the Prom ticket was, after all, "only a small portion of the cost of attendance."

Remember when, in 1940, student leaders, feeling the quiet and calm St. Pat's parade of '39 could not be repeated by the engineers, and also feeling that the traditional "riot" should be avoided, planned an engineering exposition instead?

WHY CARDINAL?

A request for information about the origin of the University of Wisconsin's colors (cardinal and white) has been routed to this office and we can find no definite answer to the question, either.

The University had a color as early as 1881, but what it was or why has not been noted in any University history. If you can shed any light on the choice of cardinal and white for the University's colors, will you send your information into the Wisconsin Alumni Association, 770 Langdon St., Madison 6, Wisconsin, please?

Remember when the University wireless station, after several months of experimentation, succeeded in communicating with the Great Lakes Naval Training station in 1919?

Remember when "Ten Kinds", the sandwich man, was a familiar figure in fraternity and sorority houses?

Remember when in 1925, after the annual "rush" tussle between classes, the participants were reported as having "no more clothes on than the modern flapper?"

"Who, ME?"

YEP, YOU! This time we're talking to civilians.

That other ad you have in your hand, we ran some months ago. It was addressed to service men — explaining the advantages of Uncle Sam's NATIONAL SERVICE LIFE INSURANCE, in which we sincerely believe and on which we don't make a nickel.

A flock of friendly letters thanked us for our advice, and many Army and Navy insurance officers seem to feel that the ad helped contribute to this very heartening fact:

Over 95% of the men in military service today have NATIONAL SERVICE LIFE INSURANCE averaging better than $9000 for each man — more than twice as much as the national civilian average per family.

Does this mean that you care less about your family than the fighting men do about theirs?

Of course not. It means simply that far too few civilians are realistic in recognizing the daily hazards that take their toll on the home front.

And even if you are one of those who own more than the service man's average, ask yourself this question — "Is my insurance coverage enough to give my family the security they need and deserve?"

If it isn't, why not do something about it? The solution is simple. For planned protection to fit your personal needs, call one of our Career Underwriters.

★ BUY WAR BONDS EVERY MONTH ★

To men about to enter the service

See your regular agent and arrange to keep your present life insurance in force. This is made easy for you, but there are papers to sign.

For your information, we have published a folder, "What the Service Man Should Do About His Life Insurance." A post-card to our Home Office in Boston will bring it to you.

Upon enlistment, be sure to take the full $10,000 of NATIONAL SERVICE LIFE INSURANCE to which you are entitled, in addition to the regular life insurance you already own.

The First Mutual Life Insurance Company Chartered in America—1835

Do civilians love their families less?

The advertisement on the opposite page points out the disparity between the life insurance estates of the average service man and civilian. Probably you're well above the national civilian average. But regardless of amount, two comments still apply.

1. Wartime tensions—extra work and worry — may make you uninsurable. 2. Wartime changes — in family or finances—may upset your insurance set-up. And either can happen without your realizing it.

Every life insurance program ought to be reviewed regularly to keep it up to date. Perhaps yours needs it now. Below is a list of people who can counsel you.

They're alumni of your college and they talk your language. They are also trained representatives of the First Mutual Life Insurance Company Chartered in America.

Out of their experience you'll get practical suggestions. They'll help you make the most of your limited life insurance dollars—help you protect your present policies with premium loans if necessary.

Badger Bigs

The secret of the speed and accuracy of these cranes lies in their unique hoisting equipment which in effect weighs each load. The "brains" of this weighing operation is a development called the cross-flux exciter, Mr. Whiting's invention, which is about the size of a bushel basket. This device measures the load on the crane continuously and automatically, and controls the hoisting and lowering speeds accordingly.

The lighter the load the faster the speed, the heavier the load the lower the speed, both hoisting and lowering. This feat has heretofore been considered impossible except by the use of a complicated battery of sensitive load-responsive relays.

Mr. Whiting entered the testing department of General Electric company in Schenectady in 1905 after graduation from the College of Engineering. He was later transferred to the power and mining engineering department of the firm (now the industrial engineering division) and for the past 20 years has been a research and industrial consulting engineer for General Electric on special engineering studies and electrical problems.

J. M. Bickel, '15, Studies Postwar Business Plans

Speaking at the fifteenth Boston Conference on Distribution, Mr. J. M. BICKEL, '15, chairman of the postwar planning committee of the Carrier Corporation, discussed the main points developed by a previous series of forums on postwar planning arranged by him and attended by representatives of twenty leading industries.

Titled "Now Is the Time," Mr. Bickel attempted to answer the "Monday morning" question of what industry would do when the armistice is signed and war contracts are cancelled. The Forum agreed that the first after-the-war responsibility of American business would be to furnish full employment.

Foreign trade and development of the Latin-American market, reconstruction and research in railroads, the use of light metals, and new adaptations of capital equipment are only a few of the points discussed by representatives of leading American industries at this national forum on problems of distribution.

Dr. Frederick Stare, '34, Warns Against Vitamania

Americans who think they can eat anything they want and keep healthy as long as they take their vitamin pills have swallowed "overenthusiastic and misleading statements", according to Dr. Frederick J. STARE, '31, M.A. '33, Ph.D. '34 in an address before the New York Academy of Medicine's annual Graduate Fortnight Oct. 22.

The St. Louis nutritionist declared that good nutrition comes from a wide choice and a wide variety of wholesome food, and that the public has been scared by vitamin-deficiency publicity which has opened up a vitamin racket rivaling that of patent medicine days.

In the November 8 Newsweek magazine Dr. Stare was quoted as doing his best to debunk the idea that pills of whatever potency can pinch hit for a square meal. He does not minimize the need for vitamins—nor does he discredit their use in pill form in cases where a vitamin deficiency exists. He does point out that vitamins are no panacea for that general dragged-out feeling due to malnutrition.

dreds of malarial mosquitoes making mosquito nets a necessity from dawn to dusk, a candle flickering in such breeze as there is, and nothing to write on except your lap) is a major operation.

I guess I can tell you that I am "Somewhere in New Guinea" with a medium (Mitchell) bomber outfit. I have been 16 months overseas and with a combat outfit the whole time which has taken its part in the action in the Southwest Pacific area with very creditable results, according to various citations and commendations. It is a far cry from those days when the Nip had everything and all we had was good old American spirit, to the present day when we are definitely on the offensive, and slowly driving the yellow rats back to their holes.

Your Christmas Communique reached me today (Christmas Day) and that picture of the snow-covered campus is the prettiest thing I've seen since I said good-bye to my wife. Positively made me homesick. Just to see some snow again would really be a thrill. This is my second "Black Christmas" and the only snow I've seen in two years was a little patch on top of a mountain range we crossed at 10,000 feet on the flight to Sydney, Australia, for a seven day leave last August. And there, Gentlemen, is the gem of the Southwest Pacific. The pet dreams of every combat man over here are (1) "I Wanta Go Home" and (2) 7 days leave in Sydney.
