NEED SERVICE RULE TO MAKE REAL ADVANCE

—DR. TITTLE

Call for Leaders in East
Made in Talk of
Mrs. Eddy

"Civilization would come tumbling down if the world lost the illusions of its youth," said Dr. E. F. Tittle of Northwestern university in his address on the "Spirit and Purpose of the Inter-church Movement," last night at the Religious convocation in the gymnasium before a fair sized audience.

"Clemenceau is the most striking illustration of an old man who has lost his illusions of youth," quoted Dr. Tittle from an eminent Britisher's speech. "If men lose their ideals and illusions, the progress of the world will come to an end," he said.

"Some men argue that there has always been war, and that there always will be. So they said of cannibals, slavery, and saloons. These have passed away, and what men said was impossible, has been proved possible.

"Every man for himself and the devil take the hindmost," is the adage of the old civilization. A world cannot be built upon selfishness. Industrial progress can never be solved until service is substituted for selfishness, and the world adopts

Oh, Hum! Fame, Two Tickets Wasted on Page 2 Pirates

Was it Shakespeare that said "The Line's the Thing?"

If he was speaking of the terrible matter that has been keeping the junior play committee burning the midnight oil since March 1, he was probably right.

Shades of the postmaster general, of all the tenth class mail that ever traveled first class the answers to the "Last Line Contest" lead the race. Of all the decrepid, wheezy, dismal contributions gathered under the name of inspired writing, these stray thoughts take the cake.

And the thing was no simple. That's what makes it so painful. To think of all the crazy ideas that people would get when there was only one possible solution to such a limerick.

But, perhaps you are wondering who the really brilliant person was that could see through to the heart of this complicated matter.

Know ye, then by these presents (namely, two choice tickets) that the propellers of the Skyrockets (see page 2) have won permanent places in the hall of fame. It seems the Rockets editors read the instructions and found no reference made to rhyme. After that it was easy. The unique thought was

DUAL SWIM MEET PUTS TANK FANS ON TOES TONIGHT

Water Artists' Clash With Chicagoans to Be Keen Contest

The crippled Badger swimming squad will be pitted against the Chicago tankmen in a dual swimming meet in the gymnasium tank here tonight at 7:30.

For the entire season Coach Joe Steinauer has had to work with a team that has been incapacitated with ineligibilities, Rudy, Elder, and Wiethaup being the biggest losses. However for the last week he has been grooming his men incessantly in order that they might be in top condition for tonight's fray which will be the last before the conference meet, March 20, at Northwestern.

The Maroons have one of the strongest squads of swimmers in the "Big Ten" and the showing that the Badgers will make against them will disclose to a certain extent what chances Wisconsin will have at Northwestern. Chicago's most outstanding stars are Ries, in the sprints, and Meagher, a plunger, who broke the conference record in the plunge during a meet with Illinois last week.

A great deal of confidence is being placed in Bach, Koch, and Stark to hold up the Badgers' end of the score. Bach and Stark can be depended on to make a showing in both the sprints and distance events while Koch is the best diver that the varsity has. Lamboley, Davies, and Collins are also good men.

Two men are to represent each school in each event except the relay, in which teams of four men each will compete. Tonight's lineup will be chosen from the following:

BIGLER IS NAMED AS MANAGER OF UNION VODVIL

Big Frolic to Be Staged at Fuller April 2 and 3

The 1920 Union Vodvil is going to be the best in history, say advance announcements of the big frolic. It will be staged at the Fuller theater April 2 and 3, with three performances. Friday evening, Saturday matinee and Saturday evening. The call for talent and stunts has met a ready response and plans are going forward today which promise to make this year's Vodvil one of the best that has ever been put on.

Jack Bigler, general chairman and production manager, will pilot the show. He is at present booking all acts. All organizations and individuals wishing to enter the tryouts should notify him as soon as possible. Tryouts will be held about March 15.

The production staff was announced by the Union board yesterday as follows:

Production manager—John Bigler.

Publicity—Lawrence Murphy, Kenneth Olson, Fred Sperry.

Stage manager—Carl Richter, assistant, John Brophy.

Electrician—Phillip Dowling.

Octopus by Censor; New Thought Issue Out March 17

"It's by the censor and gone to press, b'gosh."

"Press what? Huh?"

"Well, it's going to press some of these worry wrinkles out of a few of these care worn faces that haunt the campus, when it comes hot off the press March 17, 3,000 strong. And it's going to impress even the most sceptical with the fact that the expression of true wit and art are fundamental requisites in student life. Ask President Burton if they aren't." So says the press-gang.

When the Board presumed on the student body and made known its pressing need for good snappy material for the humorous monthly, it had no presentiment that under pressure such a flood of jokes, yarns, and artistic gems could be produced by the geniuses of our midst, as have been presented for their approval.

As a result of this unceasing income of ridiculous seriousness, the high and mighty committee of ten have found it necessary to suppress some mighty good stuff, and room has been found for only the keenest wit-snappers and laugh-getters. The "New Thought" number of the Octopus will establish a prestige other numbers will find it difficult to maintain.

TOSSERS TAKE LAST TRIP FOR TWO BATTLES

Meet Wolverines Tonight and Ohio State on Monday

The Badger basket five began its last trip of the season yesterday noon when Coach Lowman and his squad left for a series of two games, one with Michigan at Ann Arbor tonight, and the other with Ohio State at Columbus Monday night.

Both of these teams were defeated by the Badgers on their home floor a few weeks ago, but both have shown up best at home and the varsity will experience no easy time in duplicating this feat. From the comparison of total points scored against the two teams it would appear that the Buckeyes would furnish the more stubborn opposition since they were beaten by only a few points while the Wolverines were smothered by a big margin.

Michigan, however, with Dunne at center, has shown much improvement in her recent games with Chicago and Illinois, holding the Suckers to a small score and losing the game by only five or six points, and Wisconsin will have to play better basketball than that displayed at Minnesota if the Wolverines happen to be in a fighting frame of mind. Ohio had the best conditioned team which the Badgers have come in contact with and if they happen to strike them on an "on" night, St. John's men will be even harder to beat than before.

The Badger lineup in the Michigan game will probably be the same as the one which first worked together against Illinois and started against both Ohio and Minnesota in succeeding games: Knapp and Taylor forwards, Zulfer center, Weston and Caesar guards, with Frogner possibly starting in place of Caesar.

After their return home next Tuesday the Badgers will be put through their last week of practice for the final game of the season against Chicago, the present conference leaders and probable champions.

MEDICS ARRANGE SPREE MARCH 13

"The great Spring Spree" with all such stunts, features, and attractions that a medical mind can contrive, will be sprung by the junior medics Saturday, March 13, at the Alpha Sigma Phi house.

Thompson's orchestra will furnish music for the dancing. Special attractions will entertain those who do not dance. The house will be appropriately decorated for the occasion, and members of the Medical school faculty will chaperon.

Since this is exclusively the big event of the year for junior medics, those who wish to go must sign up immediately as only 40 couples can be accomodated, according to Robert Holcombe, social chairman.

The present day sandman is different, in sooth,
From the sandman we all heard about in our youth.
Yet the former, believe me, deserves recognition
As much as the latter of quaint superstition.
The first-mentioned sandman's the boy with the cart,
Full of sand, and the shovel, who's mastered the art
Of keeping the head and the side-

From each other, when day after day
We plod up the hill with a counte-

Not fearing the ice with its coating of sand.
For massegin' the walk with one's

And we all much prefer to stay straight on our feet,
Safeguarding necks, knuckles,
kneecaps and faces,
And also some more or less per-

And carry them whole through the 'Cause we need 'em for "stepping

CONVOCAATION SPEAKERS WHO TALK ON CONFERENCE PROGRAM TONIGHT

DR. A. J. TODD

Today's program for the Religious conference provides one of the best offerings of the entire schedule. Three really big men are on the list of speakers — Dr. A. R. Todd of Minnesota university, Dean Shailer Mathews of Chicago university, and Rabbi Samuel Hirschberg of Milwaukee. There will be no afternoon meetings, but the evening convocation at 7:30 will be addressed by all three of these men.

Dr. Todd, who is a noted sociologist, hails from Minnesota university, where he is director of the course of social and civic training. He is at present on a leave of absence for two years and is acting as industrial mediator in the men's garment industry in Chicago. His specific job is to act as labor manager for the House of Kuppenhiemer. Dr. Todd was educated at the University of California and at the universities of Aix marseilles, Paris, and Munich. He was for several years engaged in social service work in San Francisco. Later he was connected with the Universities of Illinois and Pittsburg as professor of sociology. He is a member of the Delta Upsilon, Phi Beta Kappa, and Kappa Delta Pi fraternities. He is the author of numerous books on sociological subjects and is associate editor of The American Journal of the Institute of Criminal law and Criminology.

Dean Shailer Mathews is one of the foremost educators and religious leaders in the United States. He is at present dean of the divinity school of the University of Chicago. He is not only an educator but an author, editor, scholar, and man of letters—a man of national prominence. He is probably the most outstanding figure in the Baptist denomination.

Rabbi Hirschberg who comes from our neighboring city Milwaukee is conceded as one of the leading rabbis of the time. He is also ranked as one of the best Jewish orators in the country. He is an advanced thinker and a real progressive. His presentation of the relation of religion to university life will be of interest not only to the Jewish students but to every man and women in school.

Special facilities have been arranged by the university and church committees for student conferences

SOLDIERSHIP OR CITIZENSHIP IN POLITICS?

EX-SERVICE men at Wisconsin who are really interested in the sound political aspects of reconstruction would do well to exert what influence they can toward guiding the policies of world war veterans' organizations in a wise and temperate course.

The verbal hair-pulling match at Washington this week between rival veteran leaders over the method of dividing somewhere between one and two billions of dollars demanded in federal bonuses, is not very edifying, nor is it any more conducive to confidence in certain elements of leadership than have been the senseless outbursts against letting foreign artists such as Fritz Kreisler give concerts in the United States.

There is a considerable contrast in the attitude of Nathan Hale, the Revolutionary martyr, who said his only regret was that he had but one life to give his country, and that of Edward H. Hale, representing the Veterans of Foreign Wars, who complained to the congressional bonus committee that "the soldiers have been brought face to face with the ingratitude of the republic," and that "the only wonder is that we have stood for so long the apathetic attitude of congress."

The average wearer of the Victory Button who looks at the facts squarely and regards his war service not as a grandstand play demanding a perpetual flood of adulation and shekels, but rather as a simple, fundamental duty of citizenship, is going to object strenuously to this whining about the "ingratitude" of the country for his efforts.

As citizens, ex-service men ought to consider whether nicking the federal treasury for a couple of billions is in line with sound patriotism, when the country already is staggering under a war debt of $38,000,000,000.

If soldiers had brought pressure to bear upon state governments and more states had followed the example of Wisconsin in providing generous bonus laws, demand for this large federal bonus of $50 for every month of service would have been forestalled. All Wisconsin ex-service men should reasonably see, however, that there is a limit to the generosity of a commonwealth. Wisconsin taxpayers after having voted for a state bonus will be imposed upon if they have to contribute their share to an additional federal bonus.

The real issue, however, is one of larger import than the passage or non-passage of the federal bonus. If veteran organizations find in this election year that they are able to swing the big stick over congress, this first test of the sinew of unlimited power, which former soldiers by mass political action undoubtedly could wield, may have a sinister augury for the future. The pension grab as late as Harrison's administration that helped empty the treasury and bring on the financially tight times of 1893 is an evidence of the malign and lingering persistence.

Ex-service men who rank patriotism ahead of self would do well to help put into practice the counsel of Major Gen. Leonard Wood, who warns against the evil results of veteran organizations meddling in politics.

GETTING INTO THE GAME

TAD JONES will coach Yale next year. He is going to serve his alma mater without pay.

This is a striking example of the deep loyalty which some eastern universities inspire. The tie of love and devotion is not severed, or even weakened, by graduation, but lives in the hearts of their alumni as a vital force. It prompts them to sacrifice time and money, and what is even more significant, to persuade the most promising of their younger acquaintances to attend their alma mater.

Such loyalty is not confined to eastern universities. None of them has developed a finer enthusiasm than the old Wisconsin spirit. It was known and envied throughout the country. In the eagerness with which men competed for the varsity teams, and in the support of those teams, Wisconsin was unsurpassed. Every worthy activity, whether athletic, forensic, or dramatic, was backed by a live, interested student body.

This is not a roseate picture of the past viewed through tinted spectacles. It is an inadequate outline of a fact. Wisconsin spirit was the most real thing in Madison. It was the inspiration of "On Wisconsin," and the active expression of the ideal which animates that great song.

Men who have returned from service have noticed an absence of the old-time "pep." On several occasions this year the disagreeable fact has been impressed that Wisconsin spirit has ebbed. The difficulty of getting together an effective rooting section during the football season, the poor spirit shown at several basketball games, the lessened interest in the literary societies, and the advent of the tea dance, are a few of the symptomatic indications.

There was never before a greater need for the real Wisconsin spirit. Present activities need full support and new movements are under way. Basketball and intercollegiate debates are now on the calendar. "A Wisconsin crew at Poughkeepsie" is a slogan which should call forth constant and enthusiastic boosting. The Memorial Union drive, the greatest opportunity and responsibility that ever confronted a student body at Wisconsin, is just ahead. Every student has the opportunity this semester to prove his or her loyalty to the university by support of these activities and the Memorial Union drive.

Can we bring back the superb loyalty of the years before the war, and make it stronger than ever before? Can Wisconsin spirit become again the powerful force which enlists alumni, as Yale's spirit has enlisted Tad Jones, in constant boosting for their alma mater?

We can. But first, every student must become a booster and get into the game.

TRACK CHAMPS TO COMPETE AT ILLINI RELAY

Badger Cinder Men Enter Events Today at Urbana

Wisconsin will be represented in two relay races, all of the field events, and the all-around championship events at the annual Illinois relay carnival to be held at Urbana today.

A team composed of Dayton, Crump, Brothers, and Ramsey will be entered in the four mile relay, and Kayser, Spetz, Wall and Donaldson or Cox will compete in the two mile event. Knollin, who has been making some good records in the annex, will be the Badger entrant in the all-around events, and Captain Andrews and Spetz will run in the individual field events. Wilder and Endres will compete in the pole vault.

The champions of the east, the south and the west will enter the 75 yard high hurdles, a race that promises to develop into one of the fastest hurdle events of all time. Bob Legendre of Georgetown, world's pentathlon champion and premier of the eastern timber topplers, will be fighting hard to hold his own against John V. Scholz of Missouri, champion of the southwest, and Captain Carl Johnson of the University of Michigan, western hurdle record-holder. Never before has such a collection of nationally known satellites competed in one event. This event from the crack of the starter's pistol until the first man breasts the tape is bound to be a thriller.

Bog Legendre was expected to enter the all-around indoor championships for which event he is especially fitted by reason of his victory in France over the best all-around men in the world. Inasmuch as the big fellow will compete in the special individual events and the medley race, Coach O'Reilly of the Blue and Gray institution decided at the last minute to keep him out of the added feature of the carnival. O'Reilly is counting heavily on the Georgetown captain to pile up a big lead in his lap of the medley race, an event which Georgetown will make special efforts to capture.

More than 7,800 seats have been provided for. The student body alone has purchased 5,000. Urbana and Champaign hotels are overcrowded and several fraternities have given over their houses for the use of visiting teams. Rotary clubs of surrounding towns are planning to attend in a body, as well as are the different organizations.

The Service of an Electrical Research Laboratory

The research facilities of the General Electric Company are an asset of world-wide importance, as recent war work has so clearly demonstrated. Their advantages in pursuits of peace made them of inestimable value in time of war.

A most interesting story tells of the devices evolved which substantially aided in solving one of the most pressing problems of the war—the submarine menace. Fanciful, but no less real, were the results attained in radio communication which enabled an aviator to control a fleet of flying battleships, and made possible the sending, without a wire, history-making messages and orders to ships at sea. Scarcely less important was the X-ray tube, specially designed for field hospital use and a notable contribution to the military surgical service. And many other products, for both combatant and industrial use, did their full share in securing the victory.

In the laboratories are employed highly trained physicists, chemists, metallurgists and engineers, some of whom are experts of international reputation. These men are working not only to convert the resources of Nature to be of service to man, but to increase the usefulness of electricity in every line of endeavor. Their achievements benefit every individual wherever electricity is used.

Scientific research works hand in hand with the development of new devices, more efficient apparatus and processes of manufacture. It results in the discovery of better and more useful materials and ultimately in making happier and more livable the life of all mankind.

Booklet, Y-863, describing the company's plants, will be mailed upon request. Address Desk 37

Hair cloth, Batavia cloth, patent leather, faille, and taffeta silks, georgette, sipper, and numerous patterns of straw braids are the materials used in the development of the new Spring hat.

Raffia for embroidery, wings and ribbon for tailored effects, flowers in abundance—especially the new cellaphone effects in flowers—soft ostrich fancies—these are the vogue in trimming.

STOCK SHOW TO AID STUDENTS IN CATTLE RAISING

Many Features to Liven New Innovation of Agrics

The Little International Stock show, an innovation in Agricultural circles at the university, will be held March 13, at the stock pavilion under the auspices of the Saddle and Sirloin club and under the personal management of Ralph Peterson, senior in the College of Agriculture.

The show, it is hoped, will acquaint students and people of the state with stock and the various points to be considered in judging an animal. It is to be besides an exhibition test of the ability of students studying stock-raising to develop a horse or cow by proper treatment in a certain length of time. All entries, but the horses, are to be from the university stables. These animals are assigned to the students and after being in their care a certain length of time they will be exhibited at the show. The improvements in each case will be recorded. About 100 contestants have entered so far.

Entries will include beef and dairy cattle, swine, and sheep. The horse show given in the evening will be equally as important as the stock exhibit. There will be some feature stunts prior to the horse show which will include steer roping and riding, a greased pig contest, and a tug of war between first and second year short course men. A silver loving cup will be awarded as a prize for the steer riding. The horse show will be a social event analogous to the Chicago horse shows. Many good entries are expected, many of which will be made by Carl Johnson of the Ag. school.

NEED SERVICE RULE FOR REAL ADVANCE

the golden rule.
 "The hour has arrived when we must dream dreams of a new world and set out to realize them. We can say today as no generation before could that Jesus Christ is the one hope of the world."
 "Tremendous power without leadership is the most dangerous force working in the Far East today," declared Mrs. Katherine Willard Eddy, national executive for the foreign work of the Y. W. C. A., in her address.

 She pointed out that the women of Japan, China, and India are waking up to their possibilities. What they need is leadership. The women of America are natural leaders. Democracy for the world will only be possible when the East and the West hold the same ideals of moral courage and brotherhood.
 "Wisconsin needs not more rules, but a strong and unified purpose. It is not conduct but motive that makes life worth living," said Mrs. Eddy, in addressing the woman's meeting in Lathrop hall concert room yesterday afternoon.

 "The answers to the questionnaires," said Mrs. Eddy, "though very much divided on most questions, showed that the girls are not all lightminded now. The twenty-five groups that filled them out were much divided on the subject of afternoon dancing, but were unanimous in condemning cheek-to-cheek dancing. About half of the groups thought that Wisconsin was already democratic, and the other half thought that the democratic spirit should be acquired as soon as possible.

 "No rules will accomplish what is wanted here in Wisconsin, or elsewhere. There must be a purpose behind the work that is steady and enduring. It is better to go through the four years of college with no purpose at all than to have half a dozen plans started and never finished. If they are not carried out, they will be a drag on their originator for the rest of his college life, and afterwards."
