YOUNG ENGINEERS: What Does the Future Hold for You?

JOHNS-MANVILLE has an answer to that question for many of you. Because Johns-Manville's business is based primarily on engineering knowledge and skill, we can offer young engineers many opportunities for training and experience, and for an attractive future in congenial surroundings. Our engineering activities are as diversified as American Industry itself. The products we manufacture and sell fill many essential needs of every basic industry.

Right now we need engineers in four technical fields. As our broad peacetime expansion program unfolds, more such opportunities will develop.

ARE YOU INTERESTED IN RESEARCH?

J-M's modern, well-equipped Research Laboratory offers real opportunity for talent and initiative in actually creating a wide variety of industrial and construction products from asbestos, other organic and inorganic fibers, and from plastics and ceramics.

ARE YOU INTERESTED IN PRODUCTION ENGINEERING?

J-M owns and operates sixteen factories and mines, including the world's largest asbestos mine. Expansion of manufacturing activities offers many opportunities in the production engineering field.

ARE YOU INTERESTED IN INDUSTRIAL ENGINEERING?

J-M's expansion program involves further mechanization, wage incentive, job evaluation and cost reduction studies to improve efficiency of manufacture of more than 1200 products.

ARE YOU INTERESTED IN SALES ENGINEERING?

J-M manufactures hundreds of industrial products which require salesmen with engineering background to help solve customers' technical problems.

Throughout its 87 years, Johns-Manville's reputation for stability and quality products has been earned because of the reliance we place on Research and Engineering. This is the key to the opportunities J-M offers you, as a young engineer.

Johns-Manville will have no reconversion delays and has made financial provision to go ahead immediately after the war with its program of peacetime expansion. If you have no definite commitments, will you please write to.

The Purpose of the University

An Interpretation

E. B. Fred, President, University of Wisconsin, at Reunion of Alumni, May 26, 1945

THE University of Wisconsin needs its alumni. It desires their alert interest in its accomplishments, its problems, its points of view, and its needs.

There's a Constant Winnowing

While any institution, establishment, or organization has a tendency to grow smug and complacent and consequently to stagnate, this, I can assure you, holds true less for Wisconsin than for most educational institutions. After fewer than six months as executive head of the University, I can report that its president has found the staff of your University is not complacent.

I have found that every time that I have asked a question concerning a University situation or problem, a bombardment of suggestions results. This is a healthy situation. I like it. There has been no question of the sincere motives of those who make the suggestions, and prejudices of a selfish type have been so few as to be negligible.

I have been intimately related with all of the faculties for thirty-two years. I do not believe that in any university there have been gathered over the years more consecrated men and women—men and women more devoted to the ideals of scholarship, more interested in the affairs of their associates, more diligent in seeking ways to comply with their obligations to their students and to the state.

Keep Objectives Clearly in Mind

You will be gratified to know that, true to its traditions and ideals, the University of Wisconsin—your University and mine—points clearly to the great objectives which have motivated it through the years. Firm in the conviction that nothing surpasses in importance the objectives of the University, I should like to consider them with you.

I refer, first, to new developments which will alter and expand the possibility of more effective teaching on the campus and greater service to the state when the war comes to a close. Visual aids in the teaching process, for instance, have been demonstrated to be of great value in the programs of the armed forces. We are studying the possibilities in this field and we are giving thought to other techniques in the hope and with the belief that we can benefit from Army and Navy experimentation.

Then we have in mind the broadcasting of educational programs. The University has great pride in its radio station WHA. It is recognized as outstanding among the educational broadcasting facilities of the nation. New technical developments will step up markedly the possibilities for the use of the radio.

The University is now cooperating with other educational agencies in the state in a hoped-for development of a state radio system. Should this development meet with success, it will be possible for the University to make the services of a considerable number of its faculty available to every home in the state. The possibilities for service by radio are beyond anything which the most imaginative could have conceived ten years ago.

Thousands Have Answered the Call

Over 12,500 University of Wisconsin men and women have entered the service of their country. They are in all parts of the world—serving in the air, on the sea, and on the land. They reveal the soul of the University. Nearly four hundred of them have been reported as killed in action. Almost every day we learn of others who have made the supreme sacrifice. To their alma mater they will ever be her immortal sons.

Many of the men and women in service will return when peace comes to complete their interrupted education. Thousands of additional Wisconsin men and women now in service will seek educational opportunity in the various schools of the state—a large proportion will call upon the University for instruction.

The increment of students ready for college year after year will steadily increase. The University must plan to take care of a very much enlarged enrollment of Wisconsin boys and girls. This increase will undoubtedly begin next fall, and various estimates place the number which we must take care of by 1950 at from 12 to 15 thousand or even greater numbers. This responsibility cannot be escaped.

If the legislature finds it possible to grant the request made by the Regents for buildings we will be assured of adequate quarters, as soon as construction is completed, for twelve thousand students, the enrollment on the campus in the year prior to the war. Our problem then will be to give priority to residents of Wisconsin who apply for admission, and we will be under the necessity of much crowding if we admit any considerable number above twelve thousand.

Campus Encompasses 71 Counties

We must not only provide for resident teaching in our various schools and colleges. We must likewise provide for extension teaching, that is, teaching of youth in certain centers in the state, and of teaching and demonstrating to adults out in the field, through the Service of Agricultural Extension and the Division of General University Extension. We are also looking forward to a constantly expanded program of conferences and institutes to serve the interests of special groups that may convene either upon the campus or meet in more advantageous locations off the campus.

We must further serve the public welfare through research in every college, providing facilities for encouraging the inquisitiveness of our scholars; and through investigations in the Engineering College, the School of Commerce, the agricultural college and the agricultural experiment stations, the Medical School, the College of Letters and Science, the School of Education, as well as the Law School.

Must Send Forth Inspired Men and Women

As alumni you realize that the University has been established by the people of the state primarily as a place where young men and women can go to school.

I believe that the people of Wisconsin, those who place their sons and daughters in the care of the University, and all others who support the University because they have faith that an investment in the training of youth will bring valuable returns, want the University to send young men and women back into the life of the state and nation who are sound in body, sound in mind, and sound in ethical character.

The record of physical weakness and incompetency of our young men drafted into the armed services has been appalling. The rejection of men having arrived at the age of forty-five was sixteen out of twenty, of those eighteen and nineteen years of age it was 25.4 per cent, and the rejection rate upon the basis of lack of physical fitness nationally was about 30 per cent. The situation is a direct challenge to education.

Health For All to Be Aim of University

These facts are revealing of a shortcoming of the educational program of public education in America. It is an indictment of the health and physical education program of elementary and secondary schools and of colleges as well. The importance of health and the physical condition of our people cannot be overstated. The University must take cognizance of this responsibility and expand an adequate program for all of its students. It must diagnose and analyze health and physical deficiencies with ever-increasing thoroughness and care and expand a reasonable program of corrective and remedial measures to correct defects which are prevalent.

For the sound in health and body there must be activity programs which will maintain healthy, vigorous bodies, and as far as possible develop interests in participating in physical activities which will carry over into later life. Such a program envisions participation by the entire student body.

University Must Teach How to Think

The University of Wisconsin desires to develop sound minds in its student body. A University is not organized to indoctrinate or regiment. It should not be a propagandizing agency for any faction or group. A University should not attempt to teach young men and women what to think, it should be eager to train them how to think.

Some philosopher has said that "our intellects are but a small speck afloat upon a sea of feeling." It is feelings, the emotions, not intelligence and reason, which give rise to prejudices. Prejudice undermines the stability of a nation and sabotages the possibility of understanding and peace among the nations. The current world catastrophe was made possible by playing upon the prejudices of people, by arousing the emotions to the level of passion.

The students in a university must be educated to use their minds. The faculty of a university has the responsibility of presenting honestly and fearlessly facts, that students may be accustomed to evaluate problems objectively upon the basis of facts and courageously arrive at the truth and follow wherever the truth may lead.

The university should seek out those students who are willing to practice "that continual and fearless sifting and winnowing by which alone the truth can be found." The student who is so controlled by prejudice and emotion that his mind is not susceptible to training in objective thinking will find the university a very unsatisfactory place to work.

Nothing Can Replace Character

The significance of sound character in the lives of a people has always been recognized, and every adult generation has always expressed a hope for a renaissance of character. This has always carried the implication that morals were at a low ebb. Whether the implication has always been right or wrong, there are none who fail to recognize the significance of character and the desirability of its constant improvement.

The state maintains the university for the service which the trained mind can bring to the solution of the problems of its citizens in their individual and corporate lives. But the university never forgets that this emphasis on the intellectual is an emphasis on a function of a whole human being, and not on a part that can be isolated from the rest.

The university knows that in the living, studying, working man or woman it is impossible to draw the line between the mind and the will. For example, nothing is more indispensable to all intellectual work than intellectual honesty. How much of what we mean by intellectual honesty is a matter of the mind, and how much a matter of the character of the man as a whole?

University Must Train For Leadership

Again, we all know that the state looks to the university for its leaders in the many branches of activity that constitute a modern community. And since this is a state pre-eminently dedicated to the carrying out of the democratic ideal in all its daily affairs, it is clear that the leaders which the State of Wisconsin wants to see come out of its University are men and women who are trained for democratic leadership.

You are, of course, interested in knowing of the attitude of the distinguished and scholarly faculties which have been brought to the University toward the vision which I have outlined. I am happy to report that it is theirs as much as mine.

Technical competence is indispensable for any modern leadership, but social intelligence is no less essential. And social intelligence is made up of attitudes and values and habits and experience quite as much as knowledge. In other words the university knows that it is training the whole man and woman and not a part. It is, therefore, vitally interested in the maintenance of a university community that will be not only intellectually but morally and socially healthful and stimulating.

It wants at all times to see its students leave its campus not only with trained minds but with character strengthened and ennobled and social vision raised and widened as well. And it is especially ambitious that its graduates should be able to take their places in the day to day affairs of their communities and the world at large. That is why in all its instructional programs the university sets much store by character, good judgment, and plain common sense.

University Builds Upon Home and Family

But no parent needs to be reminded that the university neither begins at the beginning nor works in a vacuum. The foundations of character are laid long before the age of sixteen to eighteen at which the student comes within the influence of the university. The home and the family must have done their work if the university is to do its work. But the parents who have done their job of implanting ideals and training in good habits may rest assured that the University will do all in its power to sustain and to encourage the continued growth of their young people in the qualities of character and citizenship we all desire.

And while the separation of church and state, written into our state constitution, applies to the University as to all state institutions, the University is fully appreciative of the contribution of the churches and other religious and character-building organizations to the creation of the kind of community in which it may do its best work. It welcomes the help visible in the student churches and foundations and associations that rim our campus. The University never forgets that it is training the whole man and the whole woman for public service and leadership.

Unimpeachable Integrity is Always Needed

I am concerned that Wisconsin men and women shall be characterized by sheer, utter integrity. I should like them to be mentally and morally honest. Although it may not be possible to demonstrate by the empirical methods of the laboratory what truth is, what decency, fair play, honor, are; yet there are established and recognized codes which are as realistic as the demonstration of a geometrical theorem or the performance of an experiment in the science laboratory. University men and women are rightly expected to assume positions of leadership in our state and national scene, and should, with sincerity and effectiveness, live by the codes which our society has formulated and recognized as necessary to maintain our social, economic, and political order at its best.

I am certain that the people of the state and the alumni of the University want the faculty to feel that freedom which gives impetus to initiative and original thinking. I am equally certain that neither our Wisconsin citizens nor our Wisconsin alumni desire that the freedom of our scholars to investigate fearlessly problems affecting human welfare be curtailed. I am positive that there is no disposition to protest a similar fearless announcement of their findings. Because our faculty is composed of genuine scholars I have every confidence that they will realize their responsibility always to perform in such manner as will reflect credit upon the University. I am sincere in these convictions; they are the basis for my optimism that Wisconsin will always be a great University.

State Legislature Appropriates $8,000,000 For University's Post-War Building Program

Wisconsin legislators faced both the needs of their state university and the demands of their roles as politician-statesmen Tuesday, June 19, when they agreed to make an $8,000,000 appropriation for postwar construction of the University of Wisconsin.

This appropriation was the first provision the legislature has made since 1929 for any major construction on the campus.

The final figure of 8 million was a compromise solution to a problem that has faced legislators since the beginning of the year, and which, because of a two-day deadlock on the issue, necessitated delaying their summer recess for almost a week.

In deciding to appropriate 8 million dollars for university construction in the next biennium, the state legislature granted almost two-thirds of the amount which the Board of Regents had requested.

The history of the appropriation is this. In the fall the Regents asked the state to give them $12,334,000 for urgently needed buildings on the campus.

On Feb. 1 Gov. Walter E. Goodland presented a construction bill to the legislature which included a request for $12,704,000 for the university building program. Two months later he revised his request for university funds, reducing it to $11,404,000. The bill was referred to the Joint Finance Committee and there was amended late last month to allocate only $8,000,000 to the university.

Meanwhile friends of the highway segregation bill sought to place all funds arising from motor vehicle taxes and fees into a special state highway fund, making them available for use only on highways. Gov. Goodland vetoed this measure, declaring that highway segregation would cut the state's general fund and that with such a cut his full postwar construction program for the state's public welfare and educational institutions could not be financed unless extra taxes were levied.

When the highway segregation bill came back to the senate, legislators listened to highway interests and overrode Gov. Goodland's veto.

Then the assembly approved the Joint Finance committee's amendment giving the university only $8,000,000. But the Senate refused to be satisfied with that figure. They joined Gov. Goodland in his demand for $11,404,000.

The issue was forced into the hands of a conference committee, where three senators (Robert P. Robinson, Beloit; Jess Miller, Richland Center; and Edward Hilker, Racine) and three assemblymen (Julius Spearbraker, Clintonville; Orin Angwall, Marinette; and Arthur Lenroot, Superior) remained deadlocked over the problem for two days while legislators longed to finish up and go home for the summer.

Finally, in a last-hour session, the conference committee accepted the recommendations of the joint finance committee, presented their decision to the senate and the senate was forced to agree to the lesser figure.

In addition to the $8,000,000 sum, both houses agreed to appropriate $600,000 for a diagnostic clinic under the state department of public welfare. This clinic would be built adjoining Wisconsin General hospital and would be run in cooperation with the university's Medical school.

Commencement

For the 92nd time the University of Wisconsin held commencement exercises, this time awarding degrees to some 650 students who had completed work for both first and higher degrees.

The fourth war-time commencement was held in the Field House on Saturday, May 26th, a small affair because of the war-time travel restrictions which kept many parents and relatives home. About 2,500 local people watched the graduates receive their diplomas, and heard Pres. Fred charge the graduates with the responsibility of helping civilization in its march forward.

Dr. Fred, in the commencement address told the students that a great obligation "rests upon every one of us", an obligation "to become more clearly conscious of the fact that we are indispensable to each other, and, with this consciousness alive within us,

Printing of this issue of the WISCONSIN ALUMNUS was held up so that the story of the final legislative action on the university building program appropriation could be included. (See col. 1)

to improve the instruments through which we may work together."

The University service flag of World War I hung above the platform across which the candidates passed to receive their degrees. This flag was marked for the thousands of Wisconsin alumni and former students who have been called into the service of their country.

"Great and complex as the problems are, so, too, are the resources we have to draw upon," Pres. Fred told the graduates.

"If we should fail to respond to the challenge of the extraordinary age we have entered, it will not be because we have not the power of mind and heart. It will be because we allowed ourselves to be confused when we might have been clear headed. It will be because we retreated when we had every reason to advance."

Reminding the graduates that "you belong to a generation called to live in momentous times," he added: "Such times have occurred before. They were turning points in human history and, when the right men and women were on hand, civilization moved ahead."

Among the graduates were ten students from foreign countries.

Gov. Goodland spoke to the class, saying, "The road to permanent peace cannot be traveled in a conveyance made up of ignorance. We have learned that cooperation is of utmost importance. But cooperation means that we have knowledge and facts both about ourselves and others that make for understanding."

Regents Elect Officers; Sensenbrenner New President

F. J. Sensenbrenner

Frank J. Sensenbrenner, Neenah, was elected president of the Board of Regents by a unanimous vote of board members at the regents' meeting held on Commencement week-end.

"I want you to know that I was drafted," declared Sensenbrenner as he took over the president's chair vacated by retiring president Walter Hodgkins, Green Bay. "In view of my age (he is now 80) I was reluctant to accept, but I'll take it and do the best I can."

Sensenbrenner has been active on the Board of Regents since his appointment by Gov. Heil which became effective Sept. 20, 1939. Serving as a member of the finance, constructional development, legislative, personnel, and regent-faculty conference committees of the Regents, Sensenbrenner is also a director and member of the executive committee of the University of Wisconsin Foundation.

He recently retired from active service as chairman of the board of Kimberly-Clark corporation, Neenah, and since then has devoted most of his time to public interests.

Sensenbrenner's interest and active help in serving the educational programs of the state began long ago. He was a member of the State Board of Education from 1919 to 1923. One of his first moves as a university regent was to aid in obtaining Picnic Point and the Arboretum as university property. He has served as chairman of the regents' finance committee.

Sensenbrenner was nominated by Regent Michael J. Cleary.

Other officers elected by the board include A. T. Holmes, who was re-elected vice president, and M. E. McCaffrey, who was re-elected secretary. It was understood that McCaffrey's position be held on a monthly basis only, inasmuch as he has reached the retirement age, and he could not be replaced by a suitable successor at the present time.

The regents reappointed A. D. Gillett, Eveleth, Minn., to the Board of Visitors for a three year term.

Pres. Fred was authorized to appoint three university representatives on the Madison area planning council.

Alumni Day

Almost 500 local alumni paid honor to Pres. and Mrs. E. B. Fred at the annual Alumni Day program which was held in the Union Theater on Saturday, May 26. 400 of these loyal Badgers filled the Union Terrace at the Alumni dinner which preceded the program.

Philip H. Falk, president of the Wisconsin Alumni Association, introduced the program, due to the illness of John Berge, and the Freds, in their first appearance before an alumni group in Madison since Dr. Fred assumed the presidency of the university, received a welcome of applause from the crowd.

Alumni Certificates of Appreciation were presented to Michael J. Cleary, Milwaukee, and Edwin C. Austin, Chicago, for the work they have done on behalf of their university.

The main address of the evening was given by Pres. Fred (see pages 3 and 4).

Capt. Leslie K. Pollard and Lt. Col. Franklin Clarke, the naval and military commandants on the campus, demonstrated the handy-talkie which is made in Madison and in their conversation revealed some of the wartime services their departments have conducted and discussed some of the postwar plans in which they will participate.

Frank O. Holt, chairman of the student awards committee of the alumni association, presented checks to the outstanding junior woman and man on the campus (see page 9).

Faculty members who reach retirement age this year were introduced and given Life memberships in the Alumni Association, as a token of alumni appreciation. Honorary degree recipients were also introduced.

The Swiss Family Fraunfelder, who had entertained out on the terrace during the dinner, reappeared on the terrace for a short while after the alumni program.

Special class tables on the terrace made it possible for local alumni-classmates to eat together.

Gifts and Grants

Gifts and grants accepted by the Board of Regents included $13,500 for fellowships, $6,400 for scholarships, and 58.3 acres of land.

The land given to the university is now known as the Faville tract and it is located on the Crawfish river near Lake Mills. It was given by Mr. and Mrs. Philip E. Miles, Madison, and is to be known as the Stoughton Faville Prairie reservation, in honor of Stoughton Faville, who has made extensive studies in the preservation of native grasses and flowers.

Pres. Fred told the regents that the marsh land is chiefly noted for its collection of ladyslippers, and that it is near enough to be used in connection with university arboretum studies on prairie plant and animal life.

In addition to these, the regents approved the setting up of scholarships amounting to about $30,000 from the Kemper K. Knapp estate. They also arranged for transfer of about $23,300 from the Knapp estate to the Knapp loan fund, thereby making the fund equal $50,000.

The regents also heard a report that the Allen J. Shafer, Jr. scholarship fund now totals $5,672.20.

UW's Role in Penicillin Research is Disclosed

At the start of the fall semester in 1943, Prof. W. H. Peterson, '13, of the department of biochemistry, was approached by a representative of the government.

"We need penicillin, and we need it in a hurry," he was told. "What can you scientists at the University of Wisconsin do to help us?"

The answer to this question, one of the most closely guarded secrets of the wartime campus, can now be revealed. Wisconsin scientists have not only helped our government get penicillin; they've helped them produce it in greater quantities, with greater speed, and at a lower cost than was ever dreamed possible 22 months ago when the research project was first proposed.

Working as one unit of a nation-wide team of researchers, Wisconsin scientists undertook but one assigned problem connected with penicillin at the start. They were given the job of finding food for the mold from which the miracle drug is extracted.

Penicillin grows in a mold—the same type of mold which forms on stale bread. This mold had been grown commercially, not on bread, but on liquids. It had been allowed to form a coating on the top of solution-filled bottles.

It was suggested that by finding the best liquid food for this mold, one might cause the mold to make a speedier growth, thereby enabling more penicillin to be extracted. So, at Wisconsin, some fifty laboratory workers studied all sorts of liquids on which the mold might feed.

It was also suggested that if the mold could be persuaded to grow not only on top of the solution, but also submerged throughout the solution, production might be stepped up tremendously. So, the Badger biochemists not only fed the mold on various diets, but they coaxed the mold to grow while submerged.

The lab workers applied various liquids to the mold. They dipped the molds; they submerged it and circulated air through it. At the beginning they used milk bottles on shelves which rocked, but before long they found themselves working with 80 gallon tanks through which air was blown and in which a mechanical stirrer kept the solution agitated.

They dealt with the problem of food combinations, the job assigned to them, but they also dealt with supplementary problems such as keeping the liquid from foaming, thereby wasting the drug, and keeping the tanks absolutely sterile so that other bacteria would not grow, thereby crowding out the penicillin mold.

Wisconsin scientists found that the mold would produce the most penicillin when the mold was fed on a combination of milk, sugar, mineral salts, and cornsteep liquor, a byproduct of the manufacture of cornstarch. This mixture doubled production.

"The success of the penicillin program," said Peterson, "is an outstanding example of what can be done by co-operative effort. Government, industry, and science all joined in this work. They have demonstrated what a democracy can do when working together to reach a goal."

For instance, the University of California and the University of Minnesota were assigned the tasks of selecting the particular mold which would produce the most penicillin. They selected those molds which looked good and sent them on to the University of Wisconsin to see how they reacted under further tests. More than 50 of these choice molds were tested in the tanks, and one of them was found to produce double the amount of penicillin produced by its nearest competitor.

The penicillin project closed officially on May first, but a dozen biochemists are still working on various production problems. Faculty members who directed the work at Wisconsin along with Dr. Peterson include M. J. Johnson and Robert Burris, biochemists; W. C. Frazier and Elizabeth McCoy, agricultural bacteriologists; and M. P. Backus and J. F. Stauffer, botanists. More than 30 graduate students worked on the project.

Selective Enrolment

Because of the housing shortage, the Board of Regents recently took action to bar out-of-state women students who are in the lower scholastic half of their high school class from registering for enrolment next fall. They also drew up regulations to give preference to graduates of Wisconsin high schools who wish to attend the university.

Honorary Degrees

Herbert Eugene Bolton:

With pride in the great record you have made as historian since you left us a half-century ago—pride in your many scholarly volumes, in your brilliant teaching at both the graduate and undergraduate levels, in your pioneering studies in Latin-American life and culture, interpreting the Americas to one another and promoting understanding and unity among them—the University of Wisconsin welcomes you back today and happily confers upon you the degree of Doctor of Letters.

Edward Joseph Dempsey:

Holder of an enviable record at the bar, eagerly sought counsellor by numerous organizations, private and public, devoted and forceful public servant particularly in the program for the liberal education and professional training of teachers, the University of Wisconsin honors itself in conferring upon you the degree of Doctor of Laws.

The 1944-45 school year brought 4500 women to the campus, the largest female enrolment in the history of the university. Accommodations for these many women students has been a problem for university administrators all year long. Applications are coming in at a rate which indicates that this year's number will be equalled or exceeded.

Rules drawn up include the following:

1. The university will refuse to grant permits of admission to all out-of-state women graduating in the lower half of their class.

2. The university will grant permits of admission to women graduating in the upper fifth of their high school classes outside Wisconsin.

3. Permits for those who do not fall into one of the two groups specified above will be held in abeyance until "the situation as to Wisconsin residents and housing accommodations is clearer."

4. Wisconsin residents who apply for rooms and permits to register by June 20 will be given preferential treatment.

Comparable regulations are to be worked out for women transfer students, the regents decided.

Cornelius Allen Harper:

Devoted physician who has brought healing and cheer to thousands; able and courageous public health officer whose knowledge and administrative skill have benefited millions; wise from experience but always youthful enough to pioneer health ventures; loyal alumnus whose intelligent counsel is always welcome; the University of Wisconsin proudly confers upon you the degree of Doctor of Laws.

William Elgin Wickenden:

In recognition of your exhaustive investigation into the ways and means of improving engineering education, the administrative genius you have shown in handling men and situations, the wide acceptance of your findings, and your own well-balanced leadership at Case in the training of liberally-educated as well as professionally equipped engineers, the University of Wisconsin is happy to confer upon you the degree of Doctor of Laws.

Stone receives the Half Century Club Cane

Pres. E. B. Fred, Philip H. Falk, James A. Stone, '85, and Prof. Herbert E. Bolton, '95

Half Century Club

Almost a hundred Badgers of fifty or more years standing were guests of the university Friday noon, May 25, at the annual luncheon meeting of the Half Century Club. Men and women who left the campus with degrees now at least fifty years old flocked to their alma mater to display Wisconsin loyalty which the years had not dimmed.

Special guests were members of the class of 1895 who were inducted into membership in the Half Century club. The regular members included graduates of all classes from 1885 through the next nine years.

Club president, Francis E. McGovern presided at the meeting which followed lunch. Alumni Association president Philip H. Falk presented Golden Jubilee Certificates to the new members of the class of '95. Prof. Herbert H. Bolton expressed the thanks of the class at being inducted into the club, and University President E. B. Fred gave the address of the day.

A new tradition was started when a special gold-tipped cane was awarded to the oldest alumnus who returned to the club meeting. The cane was given to James A. Stone, '85, a Reedsburg lawyer, who is 88 years old. Stone may keep the cane until the club meeting next year when he must give it back to the Alumni Association so that it can be awarded again. This cane was given to the late Prof. John Barber Parkinson by the class of '71.

Officers elected to serve the club for the next year are Charles Rogers, '93, president; Prof. E. R. Maurer, '90, vice president; and Mrs. Fred Bolender, '93, secretary.

The Golden Jubilee certificates which are presented annually to members of the graduating class of fifty years before, bear the inscription: "Wisconsin Alumni Association Golden Jubilee Certificate. Awarded to (name of graduate) in recognition of fifty years of loyalty to the University of Wisconsin as a member of the class of 1895. Presented on the campus of the university, May 26, 1945."

The oldest class represented at the meeting was the class of 1884. Mrs. Clara Flett attended from that class.

John Commons

John R. Commons, famed emeritus professor of economics and pioneer in social legislation, died May 11 in Raleigh, N. C. where he had been living with his son for the last several months. He was 82 years of age.

A member of the faculty from 1904 to 1933, Prof. Commons was a leader in economic thought both in Wisconsin and in the nation, and was consistently a champion of social legislation. He has been called "the spiritual father of the New Deal."

He was active in the establishment of industrial legislation in the state, and was appointed a member of the U. S. commission on industrial relations by Pres. Wilson shortly after World War I.

Commons is the author of 16 books, and in honor of him, the John R. Commons Memorial Labor Research library was installed at the university on the occasion of his 72nd birthday.

Many of his former students continued to seek his advice long after his retirement from active teaching, and many of these men and women hold high positions in the fields relating to labor. His influence spread far beyond the boundaries of the campus and state. He was frequently called upon as advisor to government officials, and he worked out the first industrial index ever to be developed.

Harold Taylor

Harold A. Taylor, assistant professor of philosophy, will soon become one of the youngest college presidents in the country. At the age of 30 he has been chosen to become president of Sarah Lawrence college, Bronxville, N. Y.

Dr. Taylor has been on the faculty at Wisconsin for the last six years. Since coming to Madison, he has written extensively, acted as counsellor and advisor to students, and served as volunteer coach of the tennis team. He has been one of the most popular faculty members among the student body.

Dr. Taylor is a native of Canada, and was graduated from the University of Toronto. He received his doctorate at the University of London in 1938.

As president of Sarah Lawrence, Taylor will succeed Dr. Constance Warren who is retiring. "Sarah Lawrence college is one of the most progressive institutions of higher education in America," Taylor explained. "Whatever personal contribution I can make to the liberal ideals for which the college stands will be due mostly to the preparation I have had in working at the University of Wisconsin with Max Otto and my colleagues in philosophy and with such men as John Gaus, Lloyd Garrison, Merle Curti, Norman Cameron, and other liberal spirits."

Grad School

J. Homer Herriott, professor of Spanish, has been appointed assistant dean of the Graduate School by action of the Board of Regents.

Herriott will serve in this new capacity on a half time basis, still handling the chairmanship of the department of Spanish and Portuguese.

FACULTY NOTES

Dr. Lowell E. NOLAND, professor of zoology, will head the zoology department as its chairman upon the retirement of Dr. Michael F. Guyer, present chairman. Dr. Noland has been at the university for twelve years.

Prof. Arthur D. HASLER, another member of the zoology department, has left for Germany where he is to work with the strategic bombing survey of the War Information board. Prof. Henry H. BAKKEN of the department of agricultural economics has just returned after eight months in Italy where he worked on price stabilization and control establishment. After serving in Washington with OPA, Bakken was transferred to the Federal Economic Administration and was later sent to Rome. There he set prices on all civilian and military goods, public utilities, transportation and imported goods. Prof. Bakken expects to leave soon on another overseas assignment. This time he will go to Norway to make an economic survey of food requirements, agricultural equipment and supplies and needs for rehabilitation of the fishing industry there.

Dr. Merle CURTI, professor of history, will not be able to go to India as an exchange professor until travel restrictions permit the trip. Instead he will teach summer school here and be in Madison when his new book, The Foundations of American Patriotism is published.

Prof. Harry Hayden CLARK of the English department has been awarded a fellowship by the Library of Congress for next year. He will move to Washington with his family and work on a book dealing with "The Influence of Newtonianism and Darwinism on American Thought." He expects to return to Madison for the 1946-47 school year.

Prof. William H. PAGE, 77, the oldest member of the faculty, has been reappointed professor of law. He joined the faculty in 1917.

Dr. Leon J. COLE, professor of genetics, was the recipient of an honorary degree of doctor of science given by Michigan State College, East Lansing, Mich., on June 9. Dr. Cole is an alumnus of Michigan State. While in East Lansing he was guest at the Patriarch's Luncheon, a dinner for graduates who have been out of school fifty years or more.

Prof. Ronald E. MITCHELL'S play, "See It in Troy" has been given first prize in the University of Georgia play-writing contest.

Dr. Janet McCARTER of the department of agricultural bacteriology has accepted a Guggenheim fellowship and is now on leave. She is studying various aspects of tuberculosis at Columbia university. Since receiving her Ph.D. here in 1933, Dr. McCarter has specialized in the study of tuberculosis reactions in animals.

Prof. I. Walter RUPEL, of the College of Agriculture, has accepted an offer to head the department of Dairy husbandry at Texas A and M college. Rupel has been at Wisconsin for the past three years, specializing in dairy education and research.

New Faculty

Three new faculty members who will come to the campus next fall are Dr. C. Leonard Huskins, geneticist, Dr. Cyrus Klein, paleontologist, and Prof. Svend Riemer, sociologist.

Dr. Huskins, who has been chairman of the department of genetics at McGill University, Montreal, Canada, will become professor of cytology. He will succeed Prof. C. E. Allen. After receiving his Ph.D. at the University of London, Dr. Huskins did research work in Germany, Russia, Sweden, and Denmark before coming to McGill university. He is well-known for his work in the origin of abnormalities in wheat and rye, and on chromosomes.

Dr. Klein, a graduate of the University of Iowa, will succeed Prof. W. H. Twenhofel, who retires at the end of the current semester. His special field is petroleum geology, and at present he is professor of paleontology at Iowa State college.

Prof. Riemer is now at Cornell university and on leave from his post at Washington university, Seattle. He attended the London School of Economics, and as a sociologist is a specialist in urban living and family life.

60 Year History

Sixty years ago the graduates of the class of 1885 vowed to keep in touch with each other in future years. They elected Asa G. Briggs to serve as their historian, and they specified that each time their class held a reunion, he was to compile the class information in the form of a class history.

This year, Briggs performed his duty for the twelfth time, bringing forth a 30-page booklet entitled, Post Graduate History—Class of Eighty-Five.

Mimeographed and held together with a heavy green cover, this book contains a picture of the class reunion in 1930, their 45th reunion, letters from 15 members of the class, obituaries of the six members of the class who died since the last reunion, and a listing of all the deceased members of the class.

Each surviving member of the class received a copy of the book, and copies are in file in the University library and the State Historical Society library.

Alumni Awards

Eileen Martinson, '45

Eileen Martinson, New York, Elaine Frediani, Lake Geneva, and George E. Hlavka, Racine, were chosen to receive the three Wisconsin Alumni Association awards given to outstanding students, it was announced by John Berge, executive secretary of the association. Each of these students received a check for $100.

The award for the senior student who has done the most during residence upon the campus to promote the best interests of the university went to Miss Martinson. As executive editor of the Daily Cardinal she has contributed many hours of service to the university, and has been one of only several women to hold that important campus position. She is the second woman student to ever receive this award.

The awards for the outstanding all-around junior woman and junior man went to Miss Frediani and Hlavka, respectively.

Miss Frediani is a speech major, president of Phi Beta, and a member of WHA players. Hlavka is a student of mechanical engineering and is a member of Tau Beta Pi and Pi Tau Sigma, honorary engineering fraternities.

Both of these junior students are entirely self-supporting.

SPORTS

Baseball

Coach Art Mansfield's Wisconsin baseball team finished its season May 27 with a record of 12 victories in 17 games, after the game with the Iowa Pre-Flight nine was rained out at Iowa City.

The Badgers dropped a double header to Michigan, 11-1, and 8-1, the day before, May 26, to finish the conference season with a record of eight won and four lost, and with second place in the league standings a certainty. By winning that twin bill Michigan assured itself of its second straight title.

Earlier that week, on May 22, Iowa Pre-Flight handed Gene Jaroch his first loss of the season, 9-5, in a game played at Madison. Jaroch lost his second game in the first game of the Michigan series.

1920 Directory

To commemorate the 25th anniversary of graduation from the University of Wisconsin for members of the class of 1920, the Wisconsin Alumni Association recently published a Silver Jubilee Directory of the class of 1920.

Fredric March, president of the class, wrote a greeting to members of the class, and the 24 page booklet contains names and addresses of all alumni who received bachelor's degrees in 1920.

Because of ODT regulations the 25 year reunion which had been scheduled for the class had to be cancelled and held only for members of the class living in Madison.

The Badgers upset Minnesota's championship hopes by edging the Gophers twice, 2-1. The first game, a night affair on May 18, saw Wisconsin take advantage of the only three hits it got during the game by bunting Bob Perthel's single and stolen base, Jim Ackeret's double, and Dan Murphy's single for two sixth-inning runs to win over Jack Verby.

John Robinson came through for Mansfield with a six-hitter the following day, and an eighth-inning base knock by Phil Nelson scored Orv Zimmerman from third base to give Wisconsin the decision over the veteran Gene Kelly.

May 12 saw the Badgers sweep a double-header with Purdue, 7-1, and 5-4, behind Jaroch and Robinson, who hurled six innings of excellent ball after relieving Wally Pearson.

Jaroch won the first game of the Northwestern twin bill with a three-hit effort, 11-0, but a base hit through Orv Zimmerman gave the Wildcats a 6-5 victory in the nightcap. This blow, by Bob Tornquist, came after Jaroch, relieving Lloyd Auman with the bases full in the eighth inning, had fanned two batters and walked another to force in one run.

Jim Ackeret, freshman shortstop, paced Badger batters. He was followed by Orv Zimmerman and Dan Murphy.

Track

Wisconsin's outdoor track team triumphed in two meets, one a dual and the other a triangular, before taking sixth place in the conference meet May 26.

Coach Tom Jones' cindermen whipped Minnesota, 61-56, in a Minneapolis dual meet on May 19, a week after they soundly whipped the Gophers and Northwestern at Madison.

In the Big Ten meet at Champaign, Ill., George Fuchs scored the only Badger first, as he put the shot 46 feet. Bill Lawson and Knight Webster took third and fourth, respectively, in the two mile run. Max Kelly was fourth in the pole vault at 12 feet; Eddie deVine tied for fifth in the same event at 11 feet, 6 inches, and the Badger entry finished fourth in the mile relay.

Tennis

Prof. Harold Taylor's tennis team did its share to make the weekend of May 19 a sad one for Minnesota, as it scored a 6-3, revenge win over the Gophers to join the track and baseball teams in a clean sweep of events with Minnesota.

The Badgers tied for fifth place with Chicago in the conference meet at Northwestern May 26. Each team had five points.

Bill Rogers, Wisconsin number one man, reached the singles finals only to lose, 3-6, 2-6 to Aris Franklin of Ohio State.

MY SECOND LIFE, An Autobiography.

By Dr. Thomas H. Shastid, Honorary D.Sc. '22. George Wahr, Publisher. Ann Arbor, Mich. 1944.

During the more than 68 years in which Dr. Shastid has been actively practicing medicine, he has had the opportunity to witness tremendous changes in the pursuit of his profession. This personalized history of the "Strange Passage from the Old Time Medicine to the Later, Finally, to the Astounding Recent Medicine," contains almost 1200 pages of interesting and miscellaneous observations.

Dr. Shastid himself calls his lengthy volume an "Encyclopedia". In it are character sketches of his associates, acquaintances, and relatives. In it are anecdotes about medical experiences, historical vignettes, personal reflections on life about him. The volume also includes a great many pictures, reproduced manuscripts and illustrative material. It begins with pen portraits of a dozen doctors he knew, then tells the story of his life (that of the "Tramp") up through the death of his wife (the "Companion").

THE EMBRYOLOGY OF BEHAVIOR.

By Dr. Arnold Gesell, '03. Harper & Brothers, Publishers. New York. 1945.

Adding a further contribution to his long list of books on children, their growth and development, Dr. Gesell here goes before the stage of infancy and studies the behavior and development of embryos and fetuses.

By examining and keeping a written and photographic record of the early lives of premature infants and living embryos and fetuses, Dr. Gesell has piled up a composite biography of the infant before birth. The conclusions he comes to at the end of his study are in full accord with the developmental philosophy for which he is famous. He sees, in his observations, proof that the human organism develops according to a pattern which is inevitable and the mere product of maturity.

Time magazine describes Gesell as the man who is "generally considered the world's best-informed expert on the child as father to the man. Much of what has been considered learning, he thinks, actually has nothing to do with education, but is a natural, inevitable process of mental growth, progressing by pre-determined stages independently of the environment."

OUR OWN WISCONSIN. By Marvel Y. Ings, '38, 219 page mimeographed book. State Historical Society Museum. Illustrated by Byron C. Jorns, '24.

Planned to be used to teach the history of the state to school children, this book is divided into teaching units, and contains listed objectives, teaching aids, and suggested book lists for further reading.

It begins with a unit entitled "How the Land Came", and the story of the state progresses with the story of the people who settled it, how they lived, how they worked, and how their state government was developed. The Civil War is dramatically discussed in stories of a nurse and a soldier.

Miss Ings has aimed at capturing the interest of children who will be asked to read this book, and without much doubt she has succeeded. She tells the story of "Gee Whiz, the Cave Man" and the story of "Black Hawk, the Warrior" with equal charm at the early grade school level, adapting each unit to the readers' reading level and interest range.

Green Bay Hears Holt

Frank O. Holt, director of public service at the university, spoke before the Green Bay alumni club at a recent meeting held for the purpose of explaining the university's building program.

"No campus in the Middle West has as beautiful a setting," declared Holt, "but all the major universities in the area have better buildings than the University of Wisconsin."

He explained that the building request for $12,000,000 sent to Gov. Goodland was one of minimum need based on the requirements of a peacetime enrollment of 12,000.

Holt was introduced by club president George Holmiller. A period of discussion of the building program followed Holt's speech.

Kenoshans Discuss Buildings

The university's building program was the concentrated center of attention at a recent meeting of the Kenosha Alumni club when A. W. Peterson, director of finance, John G. Fowlkes, dean of the summer session, and John D. Jones, university regent, came from Madison to speak before the club.

Peterson presented a picture of the proposed building program. Jones traced the history of the university and presented estimates of the post-war population of the university. Fowlkes showed how the university's curriculum has been changed to keep abreast of the times.

The club adopted a resolution urging legislators to vote favorably on Bill 174-A, the building bill which includes university appropriations.

David L. Phillips, president of the club, announced the following committee appointments: Mrs. E. V. Ryall, scholarship; Mrs. Frank Disbrow, social welfare; George Epstein, social; Lloyd Newberry, civic relations; Celia Safranski, membership; and Walter Turner, program.

The club now has a membership of over 100 alumni and former students.

Chicago Hears Trewartha

Prof. Glenn T. Trewartha, professor of geography, and member of the class of '21, was guest speaker at the annual meeting of the University of Wisconsin Club of Chicago which was held on June 6 at the LaSalle hotel.

Prof. Trewartha's speech was entitled "Japan, Before and After the War". Trewartha is author of a recent book, Japan, a Physical Cultural, and Regional Geography. He is serving as adviser to the army and as lecturer for its civil affairs training schools at Chicago and Northwestern universities.

Viroqua Dinner

Alumni and former university students living in and near Viroqua met for dinner May 30 and heard Frank O. Holt, university director of public service, explain details of the proposed university building program.

Holt was the speaker at the high school commencement that evening, so the dinner was arranged to permit alumni to get first hand news of the university from Holt while he was in Viroqua. Judge Lincoln Neprud and Mrs. H. R. Vergeront were in charge of arrangements.

WELCOME, CLASS OF '45

Welcome to the Wisconsin Alumni Association family. It's a great family—made up of thousands of loyal Badgers like yourself, all interested in promoting the best interests of the University of Wisconsin.

No matter where you go, you'll find fellow Badgers. Your membership card which shows that you are a member of the Wisconsin Alumni Association is your card of introduction. Carry it with you, always. If you lose it, let me know so that we can send you a duplicate card.

In 82 cities from Boston to Honolulu you'll find Wisconsin alumni clubs. The Honolulu Club has been a favorite meeting place for Fighting Badgers headed for battle areas in the Pacific theatre. Karl Sonneman, president of the class of '44, attended one of these meetings recently and found himself in a group of 800 Wisconsin service men. Not all of them, of course, were alumni of the University of Wisconsin but all came from our good old Badger state.

It's good business for you to get acquainted with Wisconsin alumni in your city. Many of them are civic, industrial and professional leaders. They are the kind of people you need to know in getting started in your life's work.

Association Publications

Dedicated to you and your classmates, this June issue of the Wisconsin Alumnus is your first copy as a member of the Wisconsin Alumni Association. This magazine is published monthly except in August and September. Each issue is packed with news about Wisconsin and your fellow alumni.

Two other publications will also keep you in touch with your favorite campus: the Badger Quarterly and Stuhldreher's Football Letters. The Quarterly is an 8-page newspaper published in September, December, March and June. Stuhldreher's Football Letters, written for the Association by the Little General, will be published again this fall for the tenth consecutive season. These letters bring your Badger football news direct from the sidelines.

These three publications will give you the news you want about your University and your fellow Alumni. They give you a very complete coverage of all Association and University activities.

Your Address

Be sure your correct address is on file at Association headquarters. Magazines and newspapers are not forwarded by the postal department, so your copies of the Badger Quarterly and the Wisconsin Alumnus won't reach you unless we have a good address for you. This June issue has been mailed to the address you gave us last month. If your address has changed since then, please send us your new address—today.

Mail for Fighting Badgers

Association publications are sent free of charge to the thousands of Wisconsin alumni in the armed forces. More than 12,000 Fighting Badgers are now listed in our War Records Department. Even so, this list is incomplete. There are probably two or three thousand Wisconsin alumni in the armed forces who would like to get our publications, but who are not getting them because we do not have their military address. If you meet any such Fighting Badgers, tell them about this special service and suggest that they send their military addresses to me at the Union.

Full-Time Badgers

Membership in the Wisconsin Alumni Association makes you a full-time Badger.

There are, unfortunately, two kinds of Badgers: full-time and part-time. A part-time Badger is concerned chiefly with what he can get out of his Alma Mater; he has little interest in what he owes his Alma Mater or his obligation in promoting her welfare.

A full-time Badger recognizes his obligations and responsibilities as a Wisconsin alumnus. He is a member of the Wisconsin Alumni Association so that he can do his part in carrying out the Association's primary objective; to promote, by organized effort, the best interests of the University.

This organized effort is best effected through membership in the Association. Scattered alumni working alone can do but little; thousands working together can do much for our Alma Mater. As a member of the Association your influence is combined with that of thousands of your fellow alumni—all full-time Badgers working together to carry out this five-point program of activities:

1. Send Association publications, free to the thousands of Wisconsin alumni in the armed forces.
2. Support the University's building program.
3. Help to maintain Wisconsin's leadership among American Universities.
4. Work with the Regents and the University administration in promoting the best interests of our Alma Mater.
5. Expand and develop Association services to make membership increasingly valuable.

All of these projects deserve your support, so I hope you will cooperate with your fellow Badgers in carrying out this program of activities.—JOHN BERGE.

At Sea

"Just received Cardinal Communique #19 the other day and it reminded me of the fact that you haven't received a word from me for a good long time. I hope this will bring you up to date and at the same time put me on the right side of the ledger. The time is passing quickly because we're keeping busy and I hope the curtain falls down on all fronts before many more months roll by.

For the last year and a half, we have been operating with a fast carrier task force and it's enabled us to see a large portion of this side of the world. However, it's been mostly water. During this time I've run into quite a few boys I knew at school, and we always had a good reunion—usually over a few cans of beer. Those I have met have been mostly carrier pilots, and their tour of duty out here is much shorter than the term allowed destroyer sailors. Enclosed is a snapshot taken at one of these gatherings, and at this writing the pilots Burtch, Fryatt and Maxwell are enjoying stateside duty. Dawdy is on a carrier and Hulten is on a battlewagon.

We don't get into port as regularly as we used to, so the opportunity to meet many more is considerably decreased. I'm always on the alert and have gone out of my way more than once to look up someone I knew at Madison who's now on another ship.

We took part in the first and subsequent raids by carrier forces on Tokyo, and although the fliers did all the damage, it was a thrill to be in the front row giving them a hand. Our ship is ready to come back any time now because a lot of miles have been traveled since she passed under the Golden Gate.

Best regards,
ROY BELLIN, '39"

Spell it, Please . . .

T/Sgt. Everett A. Stecker is a Badger lawyer, '37, but fortunately he has difficulty spelling names.

Not long ago Stecker was near the front with members of his glider infantry regiment when he was called upon to list the names of the men who were reporting in from the hospital to go back to their companies. Stecker asked the men their names, jotted them down on paper, and then decided to verify their spelling. Just as he stepped forward to hear how one man spelled his name, a German artillery shell struck the house they were in and, of those men who were standing where Stecker was before he took the step forward, one was killed and two were seriously wounded.

The one step forward which Stecker took to correct the spelling of a man's name saved his life.

Sgt. Stecker is a veteran of the campaigns in Normandy, Holland, and Alsace, in addition to Bastogne.

Lt. (jg) Grace Moore Parker, '39, S/Sgt. John E. Moore, '43, and Lt. James R. Moore, '44

It might appear that when the three Moores come home after the war and the talk settles down to their war experiences, the lone member of the family to represent the navy would have quite a time upholding her branch of the service. Such will probably not be the case.

Lt. (jg) Grace Moore Parker is, after all, the ranking officer of the trio, and just in case her brothers talk her down too much, she can always call in her husband to come to her defense. He is Lieut. (sg) Frank A. Parker.

Mrs. Parker is a research chemist and she has been able to continue in that capacity while in service. She is now working at the Naval Research Laboratory, Anacostia. She entered service in July of '43.

S/Sgt. John Moore preceded his sister in entering service by four months, and he has been serving in G-2 with an Armored division in Europe. He's with the First Army. He plans to finish up his work at Wisconsin when he returns to civvies.

Lt. James R. Moore just returned from Italy where he served as the co-pilot of a B-24. He too hopes to return to the campus to finish his studies. Back in 1943, just before he entered service, he was active in campus politics and was chosen to be pre-prom king. At Christmas time, brother John came down with the measles, and of course Jim had to pick up the germ just in time to go to the infirmary instead of to pre-prom. Almost a year afterward, Jim was on his way overseas when he spied a familiar face on the troop transport. The old acquaintance, now a fellow traveler, was the UW student of a year before, the very one who had given the two Moore boys their measles. Jim is now at Sioux Falls, S. Dak., learning B-29 flying.

Bravery Under a Bushel

Jack DeWitt's parents would like to be in on a secret. Back in January Capt. DeWitt, '40, cabled them he'd been awarded the Silver Star, and a short time afterward they received the medal in the mail. In early May he notified them that he'd received the Distinguished Service Cross. Just recently he cabled them a third time. This time he had been awarded the British Military Cross.

Just what did Capt. DeWitt do during these five months to earn all those medals which testify to so outstanding a career of bravery? Military modesty has prompted this secret, but when DeWitt is given a leave from his Seventh Army job in Germany, he will undoubtedly be persuaded to "tell all" and be accorded all the respect due a Fighting Badger hero.
