N. O. L. CONTEST PRIZE GOES TO MICHIGAN MAN

Gladys Borchers of Wisconsin Places Second in Event

A crowd which packed Music hall to capacity last night heard J. J. Goshkins, representing the University of Michigan, win first place in the Northern Oratorical league contest with his oration, "The Nation's Struggle for Life."

Gladys Borchers, Wisconsin's speaker, won second place with her oration, "The Unfinished Task." Honorable mention was given to Charles C. Spray of Northwestern who spoke on "The Challenge to Americanism." Goshkins will receive the $100 Lowden prize for first honors, and Miss Borchers the $50 second prize.

"The promise of equality and opportunity in America brought me here from Russia ten years ago. I plead for justice and friendship to Russia," said Goshkins in his winning speech. His oration was of great human interest and he held his audience spell-bound for nearly 40 minutes.

"The Russian peasants were denied education for many years, a peaceful petition to the Czar was met by a volley of bullets and the slaughter of over 3,000 people, such was the terrible oppression." Goshkins also told many personal tales of suffering and hardship. "But still the ignorant hordes of peasants struggled on, and in 1917, when the government crumbled, they supported the bolshevik regime. All other parties were controlled by corrupt leaders, and although they did not support all the radical bolshevik principles, the people joined this party. Now that the war is over, Russia is wrongly considered a traitor and outcast. The Russian people distrust France and England for their past acts, and look to America. We can still help and it does not all have to be charity. "Russia has unlimited natural re-

SOPHOMORES HOLD BIG SPREE TONIGHT

Al Thompson's first orchestra, including "Dick" Ede, "Jean" Juster, "Cece" Brodt, "Port" Brown, "Babe" Naset and other well known jazz fiends will feature the Sophomore Spring spree tonight in Lathrop gym.

The Spree is open to all members of the university, and in order that everyone might be able to attend the committee has kept the price down to a minimum, only 25 cents being the charge of admission. The Spree will be second only to the Jamboree in novelty and pep, every effort being made by the committee to make it the biggest dance of its kind.

Refreshments will be served to those desiring them. Although arrangements are being made to accommodate a large number of couples, only a certain number of tickets will be issued, in order to avoid

PICNIC STARTS '21 WEEK-END

Frolic at Bernard's Park Proves Peppy Party for Juniors

The peppiest class picnic in history opened up the junior week-end yesterday afternoon. More than 100 juniors turned out to make the frolic at Bernard park the biggest event thus far in the class annals.

The picnic, which was the curtain-raiser for the entire week-end of junior festivity, was pronounced "the best ever." Threatened rain may have prevented a larger crowd, but a very representative group of juniors was on deck for the party. Junior week-end will last throughout today and tomorrow, and all juniors are being urged to wear their yellow tassels and to get behind the idea of a junior week-end, which promises to become an established precedent in class activities.

The junior play will be the next big feature of the 1921 festivities. "Cheating Cheaters" will be produced twice today—matinee and evening—by the best dramatic talent in the junior classes. Every effort has been concentrated to put on a production that will be professional in its staging. Scenery has been obtained at a high additional cost, and time and effort has been expended in the coaching of the play.

The baseball game which was the feature of the picnic aroused considerable enthusiasm and a fine spirit of heated rivalry. The Bevo Bums scored heavily against the Feminine Few in spite of the more than friendly services of Joe Chamberlain, umpire. The following was the line-up:

Bevo Bums	Feminine Few
Pinkerton	C. Swift
Follett	P. Sutcliff
Dexter	1B. Shepherd
Barrows	2B. Graham
Wright	SS. Schaper
Currie	3B. Hinkins
Royce	R.F. Carlock
Hamblen	C.F. Quinlan
Pesch	L.F. Iverson

PRE-PROM PROGRAM TO BE OUT MONDAY

The official pre-Prom program will be out on Monday, according to an announcement made late last night by Lothrop Follett, Prom chairman. This program affords Prom goers an opportunity to fill out their schedule of dances in advance. The programs may be obtained at Morgan's, University pharmacy, and from Winifred Titus.

JUNIOR STARS IN TOP TRIM FOR '21 PLAY

Movie Men Will "Shoot" Audience While "Crooks" Perform on Stage

With a moving picture man working behind the scenes and another taking pictures of the crowd outside the Fuller and of the audience inside, Cheating Cheaters, the junior play, will be staged this afternoon at 2:15 and tonight at 8:15.

Pictures of an "old-time" gallery scene will be taken under direction of Edwin Booth society. The "shooting" will begin as soon as the doors are open for rush seats and will be completed before the performances start. The other pictures will be reeled off during and after the play.

Cast Works All Night

The cast for the play has been driving hard during the last week, and the final dress rehearsal at the Fuller last night showed the production to be ready for the final performances. At 6 a. m. after an all night session the players and members of the staff straggled home to get a few hours rest before the matinee.

"The best play of the year" was the comment of critics and spectators who witnessed the dress rehearsal. The play is one in which tense and humorous situations are so cleverly intermingled that the audience must be constantly on the alert to separate the thrills from the laughs.

Tickets Going Well

A check up on the tickets shows the night performance practically sold out and a good advance sale for the matinee.

The complete sets of scenery have been sent from Chicago. One of these, the only all-wood set in the middle west, was secured only after two trips to the studio from which it was rented. The cost of this scene alone exceeds $150.

Star Wears Prom Gown

The costuming is effective and gives a professional touch to the actors. Helen Harper, playing one of the leads, wears several charming dresses, among them her prom gown, in the second act. The characters as they appear on the program follows:

Antonio Verdi ... Eugene Bepalov

FIRST LAKE PARTY INCLUDES 7 FROSH

Invitations to a brief after-lunch gathering were accepted yesterday noon by seven members of the freshman class with practically no urging on the part of the sophomore traditions committee, who on behalf of the student senate did the entertaining.

Those attending the party were E. J. Fechtner, D. K. Newell, Roy Richter, E. V. Hill, Leonard Larrabee, W. McCrory and Leland Deitsch.

A tour around the lower campus district, a moment of parley, a few swaying movements, and seven engulfing splashes were the outstanding features of the affair. A little thrill to offset the tameness of the party was accorded when the Sigma Chi pier bearing spectators grew dejected and sank into the lake.

The tradition breakers responded to the mandates of their sentences by appearing at the Union building at 12:30. Members of the sophomore class led them to the foot of Lake street where the rites were duly performed. Absolute resignation to their fate was evidenced by all the victims save McCreery, who succeeded in hauling his persecutor

HAIL JUNIORS! OR SLEET IF YOU WANT TO

(snow joke)

Attention! all youse who hail not, neither do you sleet (this is the worst since the rain of Queen Bess). It has always been the policy of The Cardinal on juniors' day never to mention any names, so we will start out by not mentioning the following names:

Julia Hanks in any connection, Fran Turney with regards to her recent Phi Beta Kappa experience, the mention of which makes her irate (she says "I rate not this honor").

Will Delaney with respect (with all due respect) to his new collar which is one hundredth of an inch higher in height.

OUR ETERNAL TRIANGLES

Brud Taylor, Marion Downing, Fanny Ward.

Don Marvin, Gladys Wang, Hobart Price.

Shorty Barr, Tommy White, Scotty.

Shadrak, Meeshak, Nebedrigo (correct this spelling, Dad Wolff).

Get set! Ready! (I forgot the last one).

S. A. E. Moe's nose.

Louis Hayes requested of us to print something about Bill Hoard so we will say that he is a despicable old measly Tea Hound.

It is rumored that Laboratory Dan Manson, the Beta inebriate, picks his classes not only by late hours but by convenient floors in Main hall. Fritz says he wishes we could use slates so he might sponge his lessons.

Is it the thing, would you say, during a 10 o'clock to hollar c'mon 'leven?

It is the pet idea of ours to get a job someday designing patterns for billiard cloths.

Dean Goodnight wants to put a stop to cheek-to-cheek dancing. At our all-discerning suggestion why doesn't he find out who the offenders are? Might introduce barber's itch in some of our premier dance halls.

Speaking of Elsie, reminds us of the esteemed Lit. In the last number assisted by Cellery Leonard, Eugene Debs was idolized. We can hardly wait for the next issue to see who will be next—Wilkes Booth or Berger.

To assume the position temporarily of an employment agency we should like to suggest a job for Gordie Fairchild. In our opinion he mightest not gain many blisters by sounding a gong in a floral estab. every time a century plant burst into bloom. As you know this would be as interesting as the Mrs. Gun whom the visiting French lady wanted to see—who had so many scns in the late war.

Editor Skyrocket Column,

Dear Sir:

Night before last the Haresfoot club had a throng of persons parading the streets, clad in garments which any self-respecting girl would be ashamed to wear in her own room. Is that Wisconsin spirit? Do we have to resort to indecency to conduct our school activities? And yet, at this monstrous spectacle, "university students were foremost in applauding" (I quote from Weiss' prize essay of last year). Among those who were reveling in the mire was Louis Pratt. I'm not surprised at this, after his conduct at Union Vodvil.

Cannot we do something to remedy such things? We also voice our protest against silk stockings, bathing suits, coco colas, the curse of nicotine, and the other prevalent evils which hold undisputed sway over our campus life.

Fervently yours,

TYPICUS.

CLASS OF '21 SETS DUCKING RECORD WITH TOTAL OF 200 IN TWO DAYS

By MARION GOODWIN

A struggle, a splash, a gurgle, and then a shivering, dripping frosh. This process, repeated more than 200 times in two days, is the record of the class of 1921 in the great class war that marked the passing of the old order of hazing. The outbreak on April 7 and 8, 1919, ended in the senate ruling forbidding promiscuous and unauthorized lake parties and the effective squelching of the impertinent "frosh."

It was a beautiful spring night, like the poets tell about, when the lower campus and the Latin quarter rang to the call "22 Out" and the impertinent freshmen precipitated the crisis in spring hazing activities by an organized attack upon the sophomores. Long-established university precedent was ignored and the resulting riot is a thing that will go down in history as a triumphant rally to the colors of the present junior class.

Frosh Beat Up Sophs

After marching in a rowdy band around the square the frosh headed toward "Dad" Morgan's and a real row started without delay. Bloodshed and horror marked the raid. When the five-minute free-for-all was over, the sophomores beat a hasty retreat, completely outnumbered, and the frosh started in another triumphant trip around the square. The sophs were not slow to wreak vengeance, and a loyal group of fighters soon rallied to the battle-cry—"21 Out!"

Recruited from the theaters and fussing parties, under the generalship of "Bud" Follett, "Jack" Brindley, and "Tom" Brittingham, the wrathful sophs were soon organized into a revengeful army. Then truly the party began in earnest! Not a stone was left unturned to restore the honors of the class of '21. Rooming houses, fraternities, the "Y"—every corner that could hide a shivering frosh—were raided and the culprits brought to justice. And it was a chilly day for "Willie", indeed.

sources, and either the United States or Germany can profit with her. I plead not for bolshevik principles, but for thousands of hungry children and suffering human beings. Tired and worn from war in which she made great sacrifices, Russia now turns to us and says, "Feed and clothe us until we have time to organize and settle our civil war."

Smoothness of delivery and continuity of thought characterized the oration of Gladys Borchers. She said in part, "Joy swept over the world when peace was declared, because we had fought not for acquisition of territory, but for the crushing of a philosophy, and the salvation of humanity."

"Our great contribution was not in men and guns, but in the spirit and moral support of our people and army. We revived a hope in the allies against which the hosts of blood and iron were of no avail, at a time when the situation looked blackest. Has this spirit been carried over to the time of peace?"

"After the armistice, nations relaxed and became suspicious again. Old treaties were examined, and small nations presented their grievances to the peace conference. America was given the chance to show that the war spirit would function in the days of peace. We were looked to for the moral leadership of the world, but we renounced it. Peace took on moral collapse, and we surrendered to the spirit against which we fought."

"We dare not abandon the fight now. Having felt the courage of war, we must fight for democracy now with the same strength and determination. A better social order will come when the nations of the world subordinate themselves for the good of the world. In peace, we must stand for the same ideal for which we fought, democracy, and the assurance of justice and liberty, and harmony and brotherhood will be attained."

Miss Borchers spoke first on the program, and her oration was very well received by the record audience which packed Music hall.

Charles C. Spray of Northwestern who received honorable mention, pointed out the dangers that threaten us as we turn back to peaceful occupations after a period of war, and suggested some preventive measures.

Sophs Have Vengeance

Lake street and Henry—the entire lake shore, in fact—were the scene of the vengeance. The count of the toll of sadder but wiser frosh was faulty, but sages affirm that over 120 first year men felt the cooling waves of Mendota pass over their heads. The lake was reported to have risen several feet and overflowed its banks in many places. Casualties and near-casualties were reported, and authorities assure us that everybody in the university took part in the fracas—from "Scotty" Goodnight to the Psi U. pup. The party dispersed with triumphant shouts when the last cowering frosh was dragged forth and reduced to shivering—but respectful—submission.

And then when Monday came, the sophs still felt the weight of the injury done to them and the university traditions, so they lined up at the foot of the hill at noon and picked up the frosh as they came down from classes. The escort to the lake was large and highly enthusiastic. Even the interference of Dean Goodnight was merely temporary, and the list of submerged frosh numbered 80 this time. It was a great and glorious occasion!

Senate Takes Action

But the day that followed was not so hilarious. The senate laid down the law in a summary manner and the list of culprits placed under bond by the student senate contained names that are destined to illuminate the pages of history—Follett, "Jack" Brindley, Foster Strong, "Teck" Teckmeyer, "Rudy" Blatter, "Bud" Follett, George Martin, "Jimmie" Brader, and "Bill" Collins.

It was a great scrap while it lasted, and even though the old order changeth so that the hardest thing an unruly frosh does now is carry a placard up the hill—still the class of '21 proudly claims honors in the biggest campus war that the memory of man recalleth.

gely well with his speech on "The New Leadership." "The problem of America is that of leadership," he said. "The colleges and universities of the country will provide men who will lead the nation to conquer and yet to serve."

"Other nations have given us our law, our philosophy, and our religion," said Earl W. Wells, the representative of the University of Iowa, in his oration on "The New American Principle." "America's gift to civilization has been to show the world the democracy as an institution is practical and useful."

"The party system has broken down in this country. It is the duty and privilege of college men, the leaders of tomorrow, to purify politics and elevate this country to a place of moral and intellectual leadership," said Fred Ossana from the University of Minnesota, who spoke on "The Challenge to the College Man."

Hits—Bevo Bums 15, Feminine Few 4. Errors—Bevo Bums 1, Feminine Few 1. Runs—Bevo Bums 16, Feminine Few 5. Umpire J. Chamberlain.

The Feminine Few showed real skill and a professional appreciation for the great American sport, but luck ran high against them and in spite of superiority upon most of the fine points of real baseball the final score showed a rather amazing one-sidedness. Both teams played first class ball, and the bleachers were crowded with fans.

Among the features that marked the contest as a unique performance were the fence-post bats that the hefly Bevo Bums shattered to pieces with their mighty hits. "Bud" Follett scored a mighty home run for the Bums by the unusual process of making the entire circuit without touching a single base.

After the final whistle that brought the contest to an end the crowd was served with a feast that left no room for further desire. Everything that could be thought of to make a real picnic supper was provided. "Take all you want" was the motto of the hour and authorities assert that none held back. After supper, the party returned by boat.

The picnic was a fitting and successful start for the week-end and the junior class will go on record again as a precedent-maker. Junior

JUNIOR PROM TO EXCELL ALL PAST AFFAIRS

Everything in Readiness for Biggest Social Function

"The biggest event of the social year," the 1921 Prom, will be staged in the Capitol next Friday night in accordance with the new plans of the general committee.

Although Friday the 13 proved to be a jinx, the extending time given the committees has made it possible to arrange a number of new features which would have otherwise been impossible, and the plans now completed will give the dancers the largest and most spectacular affair of its kind ever staged.

Changes Made

A number of minor functions have been changed. The Prom reception which was to have been held at the Sigma Phi house Friday afternoon was cancelled by a vote of the general committee on account of classes which will be in session as usual. Fraternities and other organizations which had planned sleighrides as part of their week-end program have had to make new arrangements, and the Prom concert which was to have been held at the Fuller theater Thursday afternoon and evening has been changed to only the evening performance which is to be held in the Madison high school auditorium.

The general program of events, however, will be the same. The big dance will commence at 9:00 with a reception by the Prom committees and guests of honor at the State Capitol. Because the regular Prom reception has been cancelled the reception at the Capitol will be a much more elaborate affair.

Harvey to Play

Little difficulty was encountered in changing the music arrangements and as was first announced the music for the Prom will be given by "Cope" Harvey and his famous Chicago dance orchestra of 15 men. Among the musicians Harvey is bringing with him will be "Hub" Lenz, a former university student. Although but three months have passed since the time of the original date of Prom, the committee has found that expenses along a number of different lines have jumped almost 100 per cent. Maid service in the boxes at the Capitol will be four dollars instead of the original two and in many cases fraternities have encountered difficulties in obtaining cabs at the original prices.

Owing to the necessity of stopping the dance at 3:00 o'clock it has been necessary to change the 3:30 dinner checks and spread them through the other shifts which begin at 11:30. Arrangements have been made with the management of the Capitol cafe and no crowding will result.

Few Tickets Left

Few of the original 720 general admission and 100 extra supperless tickets have been turned back to the committee and all tickets that have been turned back have been readily sold to parties who were unable to get them at the first sale. Spectator tickets are beginning to sell rapidly and a record crowd is expected to witness the big affair.

Plans have been completed by which all out-of-town guests will be taken care of by sororities and women's rooming houses during the week-end, and a force of 30 ushers will direct the dancers about the Capitol on Friday night.

Picnics and dances across the lake will take the place of the many sleighrides and other winter sport parties that were planned by various organizations for the February Prom.

Rev. Gifford to Speak at Christ Church

Rev. Burt S. Gifford and his wife, Mrs. Emma Campebl Gifford, together with their five children, are the guests of Christ church for the week end.

Mr. Gifford is a Wisconsin man, a graduate of Ripon and of McCormick Theological seminary of Chicago, has spent the last six years in Tabriz, Persia, during the massacres and terrorism of the Turkish raids. His wife, Mrs. Gifford, was the kindergarten teacher in the Hawthorne school previous to sailing for Persia about seven years ago, as a missionary teacher. The young people met just before going abroad and were married upon their arrival at the mission station in Tabriz. They are being entertained at the Park hotel as the guests of Christ parish.

Mr. Gifford will speak in the pulpit of Christ church both morning and evening. They have witnessed the terrible war conditions of Persia, saw the Russian forces driven out by the Turks and later the Turks driven out again by the Russians.

Class of 1921 Wins Bag Rush in 1917 But Falls a Year Later Before 1922

The lower campus was the scene of the scrappiest inter-class battle ever staged at Wisconsin when the class of '21 came out victorious in the first organized war with their traditional enemies—the sophs. The date was October 6, 1917, and the occasion was the historic frosh-soph bag rush.

The class of '21 obtained their victory by hard scrapping and ingenuity. The 500 frosh came up against the 350 determined members of the class of '20 with their minds made up to carry away the bags and when the final whistle blew the frosh counted a total of eight bags against the five secluded behind the soph lines. Two remained unaccounted for in the center of the field.

No serious accidents resulted from the fray although the battle, was mud flung at their enemies. The sophs flooded the freshman side of the campus according to the usual custom, but in spite of the mud that swamped them the frosh continued to come up smiling, and the final whistle showed a real freshman victory.

The next year, however, it "wasn't so good for WHO!" The sophs, outnumbered 500 to 250, fought hard to overcome the frosh lead and when Chief of Police "Moose" Hanson fired the last gun the count numbered seven sacks to the credit of the sophs and a record of eight for the frosh. Superior strategy and the good old fighting spirit of '21 are responsible for only the slight majority of the frosh.

The sophs resorted to several new plans to defeat the over-expectant frosh, but superior numbers prevailed.

FEAR ENGLISH POOL IN GRAIN

Request for Operation of Lever Act is Turned Down

CHICAGO—Suggestions of grain exchanges that the United States government invoke the embargo privileges of the Lever act if necessary, to prevent the pool of foreign governments from manipulating American wheat markets were vetoed today by Julius H. Barnes, wheat director who told the grain men that the proposal presented "untold difficulties."

Mr. Barnes met board of trade representatives, grain dealers, flour millers, terminal and country elevator men and bankers to discuss restoration of open markets after June 1, when the wheat guaranty act expires.

The exchange men are apprehensive of the power exerted by the allied governments through their grain pool and want the government to assure them its support in blocking foreign manipulation of the market with undue depression of prices.

The conference decided to submit the question of future trading to the exchanges.

Twenty-one Proved to be Good Entertain- ers When Frosh

"Twenty-one out!" "Twenty out!" When '21 as freshmen heard this call they were not a bit backward about coming forward. In fact, they gave so general an impression of energy and pep during hazing, that the fact even got into The Cardinal, thus proving its absolute accuracy.

At hazing, the freshmen invariably were the whole show. They sat on bubble-fountains so comfortably that the sophomores began to feel hot and dry. Leap-frog and tag they went into with a whole-souled enjoyment that caused all beholders to envy them. Pantleg parades and proposals alike, when performed by the class of '21, were entertainments rivaling the Circus or Union Vodvil in originality.

When '21 went in for lake parties, it went in for them in an extensive way. Members participated in "the most extensive and serious one for years, when 50 men were put in the lake one night in the fall.

But they were not always selfish as to their enjoyment of hazing. There is a case on record where four friendly freshmen took three sophomores in on one of their lake parties, after resistance on the part of the unwilling guests. Another time, on "Cap Night," a sophomore who posed as a "cop," was geust of honor at a lake party attended by freshmen. And once, when a number of sophomores were trying to spoil a freshman's evening walk, there was a general explosion, in which "Frank's" large plate glass window, a sophomore, and the freshman were all injured.

Finally, hazing got to be so hard on the sophomores that the senate was forced to pass a ruling prohibiting lake parties and other "harmless pranks," which is the cause of the absolute absence of such pastimes so noticeable in the last year.

WISCONSIN IS FIRST TO PRINT "WHO'S WHO"

Publication of White Spades to be on Campus
Prom Week

Being the first college in the world to publish a "Who's Who" of its students, alumni, and professors is the latest achievement for Wisconsin. "Who's Who at Wisconsin" will be on the campus Prom week and will carry a complete biographical summary of all who have fallen within its rigid standards.

The idea was first conceived by Herbert Baker, '19, a member of White Spades last year. When presented to White Spades they decided that such a publication would be a great step in the advancement of worthwhile activities at Wisconsin. This formal recognition of those who have done something worthwhile in the interests of their Alma Mater should spur others on to attain a similar recognition.

Last fall the editorship was given to Lawrence W. Murphy and J. George Crownhart was chosen business manager, both members of White Spades. With the aid of large staffs, the task of selecting those who deserved the honor, and the financing of the new publication has been accomplished. The book is now in the hands of the printers.

In addition to the biographical sketches, a "What's What" section has been added. This contains a short history and the aims of all the campus activities.

The entire edition of 1,500 copies has been sold out and still the requests for copies continue to stack up in the office. The waiting list is now in excess of 300. A second edition will not be printed because of the greatly increased cost of production.

ELEVEN JUNIORS IN WHITE SPADES

Actual Accomplishment Necessary for Election to Membership

White Spades is the foremost junior honor society on the campus. It elects on the basis of activities from each junior class; a few being selected at the end of the sophomore year and others during their junior year. The membership is limited, and election is acknowledgement of actual accomplishment and success in some form of the worthwhile activities on the campus.

White Spades was formed by a group of men in 1911 who saw the need for such a society and the good that would result from the combined interest and work of such a representative group of juniors and seniors. Meetings are held frequently, and are for the purpose of furthering the best interests of Wisconsin.

The present juniors who are members of White Spades are Millard Barlow, Jack Brindley, George Bunge, George Crownhart, Allen Davey, Lothrop Follette, Carson Lyman, Irwin Maier, Lawrence Murphy, William Pickard, and Wesley Travers.

Among the projects that have been the work of White Spades was the Wisconsin service flag, the present publication of "Who's Who at Wisconsin," the promotion of hockey as a minor sport; and they are at present endeavoring to restore the crew to its former place.

Bankers Oppose Big Railroad Loan

WASHINGTON — Bankers called before the senate interstate commerce commission today did not agree with the testimony of railroad executives yesterday that the government should loan $500,000,000 additional to the roads for new rolling stock. They said that no great part of the $610,000,000 which the railroad presidents estimated to be necessary for new equipment to relieve present congestion could be raised from the public.

FREIGHT CARS BADLY NEEDED

So Says C. B. Chapman, Advocating Interest in Railroads

"Madison's greatest need at the present time is freight cars," said Pres. C. B. Chapman of the Association of Commerce, in a talk last night to the Junior association. "This country is short 800,000 cars and Madison, with all other cities, is suffering more from this cause than from any other. I do not believe it possible to emphasize in too striking a manner the great danger to all chance of progress in our nation that lies in the pitiable state to which our railroad systems have been allowed to fall.

"We are too apt to figure that somebody else is going to take care of the nation's problems, but we cannot dodge the fact that we are a part of the nation and that we will prosper only as our nation prospers."

Mr. Chapman pointed out some of the ways in which the shortage of cars affects us directly, one example being the price of sugar, for delayed freight shipments offer one of the greatest opportunities for the profiteer. The shortage of cars will mean that Madison must burn more soft coal next winter, which will mean that buildings will have to be painted sooner because of more soot in the air.

"My suggestion to you," said Mr. Chapman, "would be to study this railroad problem until you come to the conclusion that you must either pay an adequate rate for freight and passenger service, or you must go back to the old method of hauling by ox team or you must learn to do without what you want."

VENETIAN NIGHT IS CALLED OFF

Date Set for Event Was in Conflict With Varsity
Circus

There will be no Venetian Night this year.

The student life and interests committee has asked the athletic department to cancel arrangements for this annual event because of the crowded calendar for the balance of the semester. Many activities which were to have been held during the winter had to be carried over until this semester on account of the influenza epidemic, which has augmented congestion of the calendar of activities.

May 22 was the date set for Venetian Night. It is also the date for the interscholastic day and the University Circus. Since the Circus is the bigger event, Venetian Night was eliminated.

Organizations winning cups for floats last year will be permitted to keep them until Venetian Night next year.

A "Hello Day" somewhat similar to the one held last summer during the summer session will be staged this summer.

INDIANA RABBI GIVES TALK SUNDAY NIGHT

In co-operation with the music department of the university in their music memory contest, the choir of the Jewish Students' association will render several additional musical numbers.

JUNIOR WEEK-END

IN presenting the junior play this afternoon and tonight, the junior class is bringing about a fitting culmination to the first junior week-end at the university.

The other classes should not be of the mistaken impression that an inflated self-esteem is the moving power which suggested the plan. The junior class is rightly proud of the record it has maintained in every branch of student life during its three years at Wisconsin. But junior week-end was not planned for self-congratulation.

In the midst of the good times at the picnic, and behind the idea of "every junior wear a yellow tassel," there is a determination to do more for Wisconsin in the time which yet remains before graduation. The fun, the fellowship, the team work engendered during these two days all will result in greater service to the university.

Junior week-end deserves perpetuation. It should assume its place beside other traditions which mean so much in the life of the university.

As an event which unites the class at the end of the third year for a retrospect of what has been accomplished, a taking of stock, and a mustering of energies for a senior year of real service to Wisconsin, junior week-end will perform a function of lasting value.

ACCOMPLISHMENT

FROM the time the university was organized down to the present day accomplishment has been the sole means of determining leadership. On that basis the junior class presents its claim to the title of an established leader. Not out of necessity, attention is called to two commonly misused words—egoism and egotism.

The former, says Webster, is self-praise of a highly desirable type; the kind which those who merit praise are justified in using. The latter is a vaunted egoism. The record of the class of '21 can permit only of application of the former and an utter ignoring of any classification under the terminology of egotism.

There is no one at Wisconsin who does not hold his Alma Mater next to home and country. The junior class has gone a step further. Its members have set examples which make it infinitely easier to appreciate Wisconsin in its true light. They hold traditions as something more than things requiring only passing submission. When they go into something it does not resolve itself into a one-man proposition, but, far better, an all-class affair in the true sense of the word.

At this point it might be well to offer just a word of warning and admonition. Junior class accomplishments are Wisconsin accomplishments. Reductions to a class basis of any of its undertakings has always been avoided. The school is the thing; the junior class is merely a medium for attaining Undoubtedly the junior class has done big things. It should not, however, rest on its oars of past accomplishments as it enters upon the home stretch.

THE JUNIOR PLAY

ALTHOUGH this week-end is named after the class of 1921, its crowning feature is of an all-university nature. The junior play is a class affair only in its cast and general management. Tickets are in demand by other classes in equal volume.

"Cheating Cheaters" was selected as the junior play because it seemed best to embody the elements of humor and dramatic interest. Throughout the four acts which raise it in form above the less ambitious comedies of today, the interest never flags. Mystery, high society life, crooks, romance, —these elements are combined in a play which is both a thrilling and an artistic production.

An unusually able cast is required to interpret the play. The production staff has been remarkably happy in its selections for the leads and the less prominent parts. The rehearsals have shown individual merit of a high order, and the ability to work together which is essential to a well-balanced production.

The junior play is one of the big dramatic events of the year. The advance demand for tickets has necessitated a matinee in addition to the night performance. "Cheating Cheaters" will be remembered as one of the most enjoyable and worth-while events of the university year.

RESPECT FOR THE FLAG

FOR thoughtlessness, a portion of the student body is in line for a rating that is black on all sides.

At the cadet corps review yesterday afternoon the majority of students who lined the lower campus stood with their heads covered when the American flag was carried by.

Service men took notice of that. One veteran was moved to forcible language on seeing the disgraceful conduct of the crowd. This is what he said:

"A flag is perhaps only a symbol, but those Stars and Stripes have been so glorified during the last few years that they are about the holiest symbol that we as Americans have. The ordinary civilian does not, perhaps, think of these things as important, but to us old vets a thing like this hurts. There are too many of our old buddies who have sacrificed their lives for that flag to allow an insult like that to pass by unchallenged.

"If nothing else, there is a pretty definite law which requires the men in uniform to stand at salute and civilians remove their hats in respect to the flag when it is carried by."

There are times when thoughtlessness is no excuse. Indifference to a patriotic duty, as was displayed in this case, can have no excuse. Respect for the American flag IS a patriotic duty. Put that down under your hat, and DON'T FORGET IT.

STARS AND STRIPES FOREVER

By John Philip Sousa

The ordinary band march is like the popular song: it has its day and is then forgotten. Some of Sousa's marches have had exactly this history, but the Stars and Stripes Forever is now in its twenty-third year, and is as great a favorite as it ever was. Who has not been thrilled with a little more patriotic fire when listening to its inspiring strains?

The Stars and Stripes Forever is undoubtedly one of the best military marches ever written. vigorous rhythm starts every foot to keeping time and its brilliant instrumentation develops to a remarkable climax. There are three main themes: the first, sprightly; the second, broad; the third, the so-called trio, quite at its first appearance. There is then introduced the famous transitional theme with its difficult passage for the basses and trombones. Then as a close the trio is repeated most brilliantly and sonorously with sparkling ornamentations, especially by the piccolo.

At The New Strand—Elsie Ferguson is one of the few dramatic actresses in the world who has won international fame on the screen as well as on the stage. Dances of all ages, and many countries, ranging from the posturings of a Greek frieze in flat silhouette to a Russian revel, vivid with color and motion, make for the widest kind of diversity in the programs, both afternoon and evening.

As a feature of the afternoon's program, Mlle. Margit Leeraas will interpret a poem by Fiona McCloud in a beautiful dance, "The White Peacock," which the New York World characterized as a "stunning picture," while the more classic ballet will be present in the toe-dancing of Miss Ruth Page.

CINDER STARS IN FIRST MEET AT EVANSTON

Track Men Open Outdoor Season With Dual Meet

The Badger track stars leave this morning for Evanston, Illinois, to compete against Northwestern in the first dual track meet of the outdoor season.

"Although there are no phenomenal stars on the squad," said Coach Tom Jones last night, "Wisconsin has an exceedingly well balanced team and I see no reason why the boys should not come through with the long end of the season. In almost all respects the team is decidedly better than it was during the indoor competition."

There have been numerous changes on both squads, and the results of the various events are in doubt. On Wisconsin's group of cinder men there are eight men who will run in their first varsity competition today, and there are men on the Purple squad who were not eligible heretofore.

Sundt is doing better work than ever in the weights and can be counted on for places in both the shot put and the javelin throw. He will also be entered in the running broad jump to take the place of Holbrook, Badger star in this event, who has been incapacitated with an injured ankle.

The two mile race will probably be the feature of the day with Dayton, Brothers and Dennis running against Captain De Swarte of the Northwestern athletes, who was beaten in the indoor meet held at Madison in March, but took second in this race at the conference indoor meet. "Bernie" Meyers who was entered in this event will not be able to make the trip because of illness.

Knollin and Andrews, the head of the Badger squad, will find a fast man in Strawn in the hurdles. Strawn also performs to advantage in the dashes and high jump, and will probably be the high point winner on the Northwestern team.

Besides Linn, who is good for six feet in the high jump, the ability of most of the remainder of the Evanston cinder men is not known.

Wisconsin entries follow:

100 yard dash—Maleckar, Spetz, Kelsey, Hall.

220 yard dash—Maleckar, Spetz, Kelsey, Maddox.

Quarter mile—Nash, Kayser, Cox, Donaldson.

Anniversary of Dormitory

Back to the days of hoop skirts and pantalettes, of queer little bonnets and queerer gowns, of patches and curls, to the days when women were called "females" and were considered almost incapable of acquiring higher education, back over half a century of busy days the women of Chadbourne hall led their guests in the pageant which they presented last night to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the hall.

The pageant depicted the most important event in the history of Chadbourne in each decade since 1870, the date of its founding. Much time and effort were spent in getting the gowns belonging to each period so that every scene might be historically correct. The music, which continued throughout the performance, was also in keeping.

The pageant opened with "Memories," suggesting the spirit of the occasion, and the Wisconsin women before 1870 were depicted as "Dainty, Delicate, and Demure." "In a Kingdom of Our Own," the decade from 1870 to 1880, showed the women established at Chadbourne. The next ten years found the women taking part in new activities, and the scene, "As You Were," depicted the attempt to have some sort of physical education which the women made, first having a broom brigade and later a squad which drilled after school hours. "Perhaps Days in Ladies' Hall," was the era from 1890 to 1900, when the legislature proved by ample appropriations that they no longer held doubts as to women's intellectual ability, or physical endurance.

In the next decade, "Female College," as it had come to be called, acquired its present name, and the scene "What's in a Name" showed the meeting which took place when the name "Chadbourne Hall" was decided upon. "Carry On" the last scene, showed the progress and spirit of Wisconsin women during the war, and the days when Chadbourne was given over to the S. A. T. C.

A dialogue by Katherine Ferguson and Enda Lund served throughout the performance to explain and amplify the scene. The program was also varied by dances of different periods. At the close of the pageant President E. A. Birge gave a short talk, telling something of the former Wisconsin president after whom Chadbourne was named.

Great credit is due to Margaret Logeman, who had entire charge of the affair. Her committee included: Music, Jane Salisbury and Elizabeth Beebe; dancing, Gladys Hawthorne; costumes, Leona Older; stage, Ruth Marie Urban, and Elvira Ostlund; photographs, Mary Swan; invitations, Helen Hinn; publicity, Eunice Nelson; reception, Mildred Sinclair.

CO-ED IS MODEL FOR COVER OF MAGAZINE

LAWRENCE, Kas. — Miss Marguerite Vickery has the unique honor of being the first woman at the University of Kansas to have her likeness represented on the cover of a magazine. She is the model of the Haskell Coffin picture on the cover of the Red Book for April. One remarkable thing about this incident is that the artist never saw Miss Vickery but drew his pictures taken by an aviator in Kansas City who was interested in painting.

men May Go Back to Work

PARIS — The executive committee of the railwaymen's Federation held a meeting last night at which, it is understood, there was strong sentiment in favor of calling off the
