MORE THAN 500 HEAR MOTT AT RELIGIOUS MEET

Leader Will Give Talks This Afternoon and Evening

"As a Man Soweth So Shall He Reap" was the subject of the address given by Dr. John R. Mott before a crowd of more than 500 students, faculty members and citizens of Madison in Lathrop gymnasium last night, during the third meeting of the Campus religious conference.

A special meeting for men and women who are interested in future service and the great problems of the world will be conducted by Dr. Mott at 9:30 o'clock this morning. Further meetings will be held in Lathrop hall this afternoon and evening.

"The student sows in two fields of life, his own and that of others," Dr. Mott said last night.

Politics Reap Harvest

"All these seeds which the student sows in his college life are reflected in politics and other institutions of the social order. Politics will reap the harvest which the student has sown in his financial affairs. He enters the political arena with these characteristics and uses them for the political interests of humanity.

"Race hatred which the student accumulates in college is also reflected when that student enters the field of statesmanship. Such race enmity inevitably leads to future wars.

"What is most tragic, however, is the effect that the student's life has on others, sometimes those most dear to him," Dr. Mott said.

Speaks Before Council

"The seeds of right doing are bountiful indeed," he said. "When I was in China someone showed me a millet head. This head, he said, had 9,000 seeds. It was grown from one fruitful millet seed. This is analogous to the bounty of the seed of right doing."

Doctor Mott spoke on the character and magnitude of the university religious field and the necessity of religious cooperation before the Campus Religious council yesterday noon at the Y. M. C. A. "A wider vision which will include every segment of student life should be planned and understood," Dr. Mott asserted.

Walter Coutu '24, presided at the meeting. The Fiske university quartet and Miss Dunkin each sang several selections.

Senator Wants Action on Alleged Student Assault

Senator George Skogmo informed the senate yesterday that he would demand that action be taken on the alleged assault of M. B. Monfried '26, by assistant sergeant-at-arms George Clark.

It is claimed that Clark slapped Monfried when he was visiting a session of the legislature.

"We need no pug-ugly bouncers to enforce the rules of this body. I shall conduct an investigation of this matter and next week will take official action," Senator Skogmo said.

NEW DAILY FEATURE

Ramblings of Chatty have become so popular and the special Sunday theater page such an unexpected success, The Cardinal is introducing next Tuesday a special page for theatrical news and criticism as a DAILY feature.

Unprejudiced judgment of the critic, Chatty and the Orph Owl, will give you their reviews of the entertainments. It is the latest big Cardinal feature—

Begin Tryouts For Gun and Blade Play

Tryouts and rehearsals for "Blue Bandits," the 1924 Gun and Blade comic opera, began Thursday evening in Music hall under the direction of John T. McDonough, author-composer.

"Judging from the pep and enthusiasm displayed in the first reading of the dialogue and music, promises for a real treat are in store when the curtain rises on the opening night," William Christensen '24, vice president, said.

"The club is sparing no effort to make the coming production one of the most notable events of the kind ever attempted by the university people," he said. "In spite of the success of the previous plays, the success of the previous plays, the to excel any former attractions."

LONDON QUARTET TO BE HERE MARCH 14

The London string quartet will appear at the Christ Presbyterian church, March 14, as a number in the artist concert series conducted by the university.

The concert will include both classical and modern numbers, among others Hayn, Mozart, Beethoven and Brahms. A program typical of the quartet's concert includes the Mozart quartet in B No. 15, the Beethoven quartet in C, Opus 59, No. 3 and a quartet in A, No. 8 (Biscay) by J. B. McEwen and dedicated to the London string quartet.

This British organization has been most popular in all parts of continental Europe, and the success of its American tours has never been equalled by a visiting quartet.

The personnel is made up of James Levey, first violin; Thomas W. Petrie, second violin; H. Waldo Warner, viola; C. Warwick-Evans, cello.

The seat sale is now on at the Albert E. Smith Music store.

Methodist Leader to Preach This Morning

Dr. W. J. Gratz, national director of institutes for the Methodist Episcopal church, will preach at the regular morning service at the university church at 10:30 o'clock this morning.

As the Methodist representative to aid Dr. John R. Mott and the Religious conference, Doctor Gratz will lead the Epworth league service this evening at 6:30 o'clock. The vested choir, under the direction of Prof. Lowell L. Townsend, will render special music. A cost supper will be served from 5:30 to 6:30 o'clock.

Two hundred were served at a rally supper held Friday night to open the week-end program at the church, and more than 100 were turned away because of the lack of room. Doctor Gratz, Senator Lange and Senator Kuckuk were guests of honor at the supper.

Pythia to Hold Tryout Meeting For Women

Pythia literary society will hold an open meeting for second semester freshmen and upper classwomen who are interested in trying out for membership in the society, from 7 to 8 o'clock next Friday in the dancing room on the fifth floor of Lathrop hall. The program will be representative of the type of programs that the society gives. Arrangements for tryouts to occur the following Friday may be made at this meeting.

Square and Compass to Dance at Badger Room

The Square and Compass will give its first party of the semester next Friday night at the Badger room. The dance will be informal and will be in the nature of a St. Patrick's day party. Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Austermann have been invited to chaperon. Members of the club may get tickets and exchange dance tickets at the regular Wednesday night supper at the Y. M. C. A. this week.

Mrs. Wilber Kelso, Oak Park, is the guest of her daughter, Ruth, at the Alpha Chi house.

DOES YOUTH, AGE GET HIGH GRADES?

Does the youth average as well scholastically as the student more advanced in age?

The department of education is investigating this question, under the direction of Professor Uhl and Earl M. Haney '23. Circular questionnaires are being sent out to all university students, who enrolled in the University at the age of sixteen or under, requesting that they give statistics concerning grades.

"We are unable yet to announce the scholastic average of these students," Professor Uhl said, "because the letters are slow in being returned. This kind of an experiment has never been performed before in this or any other university."

ENGLISH LIKE NATION LEAGUE —LINDSAY

Oxford Debater Explains British Policy in Talk at Y. M. C. A.

"Everybody in England believes in the League of Nations. It is no longer a question of debate. On the contrary, people can believe in nothing else," Kenneth Lindsay, former member of the Oxford university debating team and member of the British Labor party, told members of the International club yesterday afternoon.

The meeting was held in the Green room of the Y. M. C. A. Miss Gladys Preston of the economics department introduced the speaker.

"The policy of England for years back has been to keep the balance of power on the continent. This policy was the cause, among other things, of England's alliance with France at the outbreak of the war," Lindsay said.

"Germany could not be justified in her striding across the continent and so we took sides, but now we are tempted to take the other side or to go back to the old policy of non-intervention and drop out of it all.

"But we can't do it. There are 1,500,000 persons walking the streets of England. We must do something to bring back economic prosperity of Europe."

War is not a thing to be surprised at, but rather to be expected, the speaker said. As long as the present outworn system of diplomacy, in satiable desire to sell goods at profit, the rivalry for international markets, are in existence, there must be war, in the opinion of Lindsay.

"The League is the only alternative to the present outworn diplomatic system. It does not reach the root of things by periodical discussions of particular questions, but its permanency is its greatness. The question of the Pacific does not end with President Harding's paration of it."

The present league, or "the concert of European powers," as it was called, is to be nothing more than a balance of power until the entry of some third party of sufficient strength to counterbalance it. That party is the United States, the speaker said.

Mr. Lindsay was a member of the Oxford team which debated Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Columbia, and other universities on the League of Nations. He is making a tour of American universities to lecture. He was an exhibitor at Worcester college, Oxford, served three years in the war, and returned to Oxford in 1919. He became president of the Oxford Labor club one of the groups of intellectuals backing the English labor movement.

BADGERS TAKE EASY GAME FROM GOPHERS; IOWA WHIPS MICHIGAN

Michigan Leads Hawks Until Final 2 Minutes of Game

(Special to The Cardinal)
ANN ARBOR, Mich., March 3.—Iowa's court five defeated Michigan here tonight by a 20 to 18 score in a Western Conference basketball game.

The game was close throughout with Michigan leading until the last two minutes when, by scoring four free throws in rapid succession, Funk put the Hawkeyes into the lead when the encounter ended.

The farmers opened with a fast brand of basketball and had a lead of six points before the Wolverines got started.

Michigan Leads

Michigan by sensational playing turned the score into 10 to 9 in favor of the Wolverines before the end of the period.

Michigan increased her lead to four at the opening of the second half, but Iowa, led by Funk and Janse, made the Hawkeye victory possible.

Ely was far off color in his free throwing, counting only two points by this route. His team play was of the best, however, the Wolverine star easily outplaying his opponent Dwight.

Wisconsin burlesqued its way to a 36 to 10 victory over Minnesota in a "Comedy of Errors" basketball game played on the armory court last night.

It was the eighth victory of the season, but with reports of Iowa's defeat of Michigan, Badger hopes for a first-place tie in the Conference went glimmering.

Wisconsin easily outclassed its inexperienced opponents and jumped into a big lead at the beginning of the game. The Badger defense held Minnesota to three baskets, two of which came in the second half while Meanwell's entire second team was playing. Wisconsin was on the long end of a 22 to 6 count at halftime.

Ecklund Out With Injuries

An airtight defense kept the Gophers well down the court and they were unable to get through the guards for short tries at the net. By holding Minnesota to 10 points, the Badger defense maintained its record of permitting no opposing Big Ten team to score 20 points and only Purdue to count more than 15.

The Northmen were handicapped by the absence of Paul Ecklund, high-scoring forward, who was unable to play because of a dislocated hip suffered in practice at Minneapolis. With Ecklund out of it, Severinson, Minnesota's only veteran, was forced to bear the brunt of the attack. He scored six of his team's points, and was the outstanding Gopher until he was hurt in a collision with Radtke, Wisconsin guard. Severinson resumed play after the crash, but was soon replaced by Canfield.

Badgers Take Lead Early

Leslie Gage and Doug Gibson vied for individual high scoring honors. Each dropped in five field goals, although they did not play throughout the whole contest. Diebold, substitute center, tossed two baskets during the short time he worked in the last half. Tebell, with four free throws, Williams, with a field goal, Elsom, and Barwig with one each, completed the Badger scoring. Rollie's basket came after he had dribbled, football fashion, through a knot of

"He is a violinist of marvelous talent. It is no exaggeration to say that as a violinist Nils Rein is a worthy successor of the illustrious Ole Bull. Into his music he puts the same soul and feeling that characterized the playing of that famous wizard of the bow."

GYMNASTS WIN FROM GOPHERS

Nose Out Minnesota With Margin of 14 Points

With a bare margin of scarcely 14 points to spare, the Wisconsin gym team nosed out the Gopher team in the dual meet held in the gym yesterday afternoon. The final score was 1197 to 1183.25 with the Badgers on the long end.

First places in the six events were divided equally between the two teams but Wisconsin succeeded in gaining the extra second and third places to win the meet. Competition was so keen in all events that the meet was not decided until the final event was finished.

As a result of the victory, the Badgers are considered among the likely contenders for the Conference title when all teams in the Big Ten class meet at Columbus, Ohio, on March 16 and 17.

The Gopher strength lay mainly in the efforts of two men, both of whom placed higher in individual scoring than any of the Badgers. Carlson, Minnesota captain, took high honors with two first places and a third. He was closely followed by Perl of Minnesota who took three second places.

Kubosch, Wisconsin ace, led in the scoring for the Badgers with a first place and two thirds. Porth took a first and a second place for Wisconsin.

A summary of the meet follows:

Horizontal bar—Carlson, (M) first; Perl (M) second; Kubosch (W), third. Points, Minn. 220.75, Wis. 215.25.

Side horse—Hansen, (W) first; Perl, (M) second; Stephens (W) third; points, Minn. 208.75, Wis. 224.05.

Flying rings—Porth, (W) first; Schmidt, (W) second; Carlson, (M) third; points, Minn. 225.25, Wis. 243.25.

Parallel bars—Kubosch, (W) first; Perl, (M) second; Skurdalsvold (M) third; points, Minn. 232.25, Wis. 222.50.

Approximately $500 worth of property was destroyed yesterday afternoon when a men's rooming house at 702 State street caught fire. A short circuit is believed to have caused the fire.

Severinson counted six points for his team by tossing four out of 10 free throws and one basket. The field goal, Minnesota's first, was made after the first half was nearly finished. Vancura, reserve forward, collected two baskets for the remainder of Gopher points.

Second String Outplays Gophers

Wisconsin opened the scoring when Tebell eased in a free throw. Gibson, Gage, Gibson again, and Rollie Williams followed with baskets and the Badgers were off with a 9 to 1 lead. They scored consistently during the rest of the first period. Minnesota points trickled through slowly.

After Gage had begun the second half with a basket, Meanwell jerked the entire first team. He sent Jack Harris, Radtke, Elsom, Barwig, and Mainland into the melee. The second-string outfit scored 7 points to 4 by Minnesota before it was replaced by the regulars.

GAMES MONDAY NIGHT

Northwestern at Wisconsin.

Ohio State at Purdue.

Iowa at Indiana.

A former Wisconsin coach will attempt to defeat the institution he once represented when Northwestern university meets the Badger basketball team in a Conference game here tomorrow night. The contest begins at 7:30 in the gym, and public sale of tickets will be held at 9 o'clock Monday evening.

Coach Maurice Kent, now in charge of Northwestern, was formerly baseball coach here. He directed the nine during the 1919 season. Kent pitched for Brooklyn, in the National league, before coming to Wisconsin.

Win Three Games

Although the Purple basketball team is not among the leaders in Big Ten standings, it has beaten some of the leading teams. The Methodists eked out a 30 to 28 victory over Indiana, a team which beat Purdue and held Iowa to a close score. They are in eighth place, having won three games and lost six.

A veteran team will represent Northwestern. Capt. Harold McKenzie is leading the quintet for the second year. Holmes, Franzen, Patterson, and Palmer were all members of the 1921-22 squad and they are fighting under Purple colors again this year.

Take Long Shots

When Coach Kent started the season, he directed his men to take only short shots at the basket. The system was unsuccessful, and Kent switched to the long-throw system. Northwestern immediately beat Indiana.

MUD

Rain last night of a drizzling, disagreeable nature set in shortly before the end of the Wisconsin-Minnesota basketball slaughter. Spring fever, so evident Friday and early Saturday, received a thorough drenching and almost lost its hold upon the many subjects who pay it homage.

To the natural downpour were added the tears of basketball fans when they learned the score of the Iowa-Michigan game—a 20 to 18 victory for Iowa, virtually cinching for them the Conference title. But we're off our subject—

What we started out to wonder was whether you, too, in the past week, have had the pleasure to "wade" along the south side of Langdon street between Park and Lake streets.

Whether you, too, after one experience, have forgotten and embarked again upon that small sea of mud, only to remember and attempt to reach shore too late to save an otherwise perfectly good shoeshine.

And whether you have, or whether you haven't, don't you, too, think it odd that of all the powers that be at such an institution as ours none so far have had the bright idea that a small concrete retaining wall would prevent such a seasonal siege of slime. We do.

SARDINES

We craned our necks but couldn't distinguish the 86 legislators who attended last night's basketball game as guests of the athletic department.

Still we couldn't help but hope—though we felt real mean about it at the time—that they were as uncomfortable physically as we were and that as many folks were packed in their rows as were in ours.

Wisconsin's crying need for a new gymnasium could be impressed upon the men who legislate in no more effective manner.

The athletic department is wise.

SERVICE

The Cardinal's telephone rang incessantly last night from 7:30 until after midnight.

Anxious basketball fans sought—and learned—the scores of the several Conference games.

No thanks are due.

We feel amply repaid in knowing that we were of service to our readers.

Call again!

SKELETONS

Several gaunt lamp-posts, devoid of electrical fixtures, do little to enhance the beauty of Wisconsin's upper campus.

Erected last fall at the time when improvements were being made in the sidewalks and drives, they have stood untouched and useless all winter.

Perhaps there was little need for them during the cold weather months.

At all events, they would look better of evenings if they were illuminated and certainly would render far more service than they do now as dark skeletons.

YELLOW

We left the Capital Times building at 6:20 o'clock Thursday evening and walked out to the Chemistry building, University avenue and Charter street, before a street car overtook us.

Not that we believe ours to be an exceptional case at all, only we can't help but wonder how often street cars run during the slack periods.

Nils Rein to Give

Concert Wednesday

The young violinist, Nils Rein, who has been doing concert work in Madison and vicinity will play next Wednesday at Christ Presbyterian church. Mr. Rein is a student of Professor Frederick of the Wisconsin School of Music. He has also studied under Henry Diamond of Chicago, Messrs. Spiering and Schaculbertson of New York. The latter is a student of Auers, who taught Mischa Elman. While overseas with the Wisconsin troops Mr. Rein gave a concert for General Pershing and entertained the cantonments many times. He is a personal friend of Knut Reindal, violin maker.

Editors Say—

WISCONSIN

(Cleveland Plain Dealer)

The country is accustomed to making allowances for Wisconsin. But the action of the house of representatives in voting to abolish the national guard of that state rather exceeds what is expected even of Wisconsin. A Milwaukee Socialist member sponsored the measure.

The national guard needs neither apology nor defense. Wisconsin, so far as the house speaks for it in this instance, sadly needs both. The senate may kill this Socialist measure or the governor may veto it. For the credit of Wisconsin one or the other step is necessary.

An essential part of our national defense policy is a well equipped, well manned and well officered national guard. If the action of the house at Madison represents the sentiment of that state, it is time for the rest of the Union to organize some Americanization work in Wisconsin.

PERIMENT

(Cornell Daily Sun)

The cloud-dispelling and rain-producing experiments of Professor Bancroft of the department of chemistry of the university, and his associate, Dr. L. Francis Warren, have created a stir in the scientific world during the last few days such as it has not seen for many years.

Scientists are practically unanimous as to the soundness of the theory, and even the feasibility of its working on a small scale, but many are skeptical as to the possibility of adapting it to large areas. On the other hand, eye-witnesses have stated that large clouds have been totally dispelled in a surprisingly short time, and rain has been produced.

Should the Bancroft-Warren experiments be able to act over large territories, London and navigation would henceforth be free from fog banks, agriculturists would live in the "land of plenty," and the movie directors would no longer worry over rainy days.

The world used to laugh when some new scientific experiment was made public, but now it does not even smile. It looks on with wonder, hope, and dread.

Professor Bancroft enjoys a high reputation among the scientists of the world, and the fact that he has associated himself with this experiment make it deserving of serious study. Should it prove successful another sector will be captured in man's eternal fight against the powers of nature.

That floating college idea may be all right, but it doesn't seem to be the way to get the most out of travel. The students might as well stay home and see the Burton Holmes travelogues every Saturday night as to tour the world under rigid discipline, visiting only the places pictured in their grammar school geographies, under "competent guides."—Daily Palo Alto.

SKYROCKETS

ON BROWSING THROUGH THE CO-OP

This school has sapped my youth away

I feel like sixty five
I've often picked my coffin out
I'm much more dead than live.
It worries me, I do confess
And many a sleepless night
I dream I've sacrificed my pep
On the altar erudite
But hope has sprung into my breast

The solution is divine
"Black Oxens" told me to rejuvenate
My worn out endocrine.

For the Gamma Phis and other sub intellectuals in the student body, we feel that a word of explanation as the subtleties of the above are necessary. The real captivating humor of the piece lies in the title. No one ever really browses through the Co-op. One may go in there to be ignored, short changed, jostled about, or even to shop lift, but never to browse. Any one who has been here four years will understand how absurd such a connotation would be.

Every one has no doubt noticed by this time how vastly superior the Sky rockets are on Sunday morning (Cardinal Board note). We stay in the fore simply by keeping abreast of all things that go on about us. So here we offer our suggestion for a new yell. If we win the 5 bones, we'll donate it to the Delta Gamma sister in charge of the frosh for the purchase of enough arsenic to get rid of their Cadillac and is incumbent. Many of us do not really realize what interesting pasts that not of few of our better known faculty members have with whom we come in contact every day. The constant association don't you know, really dulls our appreciation. But this interesting anecdote is told about Karl Young in the earlier days of his career when his sparkling sallies and scintillating wit was just beginning to be the talk of the country side. (Indeed in the earlier days when there was much less restraint about such matters, we've been told that his lecture classes simply died at some of the things Karl used to say. Honest dearies, you don't know the half of it. They say that even now many sink into a stupor at the third or fourth attempt.)

Well, to go on, Karl was bantering lightly one afternoon at a 5:30 tea at the Silver Dollar, with Joe Steinauer, who it seems, was pouring that afternoon. (Tea, my dears, not Bull.) Karl had been laying as it were for Joe, ever since Joe had pulled the famous story on Karl about the two Irishmen. Joe, egged on by the bystanders, attempted to follow up his latest victory, by asking Karl the apparently baffling question, "Prof. Young, why do you scratch your head?"

Quick as a flash, in his best Wildean manner, came Karl's retort.

"Why Joe," and he laughed lightly, "because I am the only one that knows where it itches."

I can tell you there was no mean amount of gossip among the good wives of Madison that evening, and toothsome was the telling of what has now become of the famous episode, "How Prof. Steinauer was so rudely besot upon."

And when its starts raining, you start complaining
Tell the weather man where to go.

Would you pray for the times when the June breezes blew,
Lykell you would,—now would you?

MR. PAUL F. HUNTER

Editor, The Cardinal:

I was about the thirtieth in line waiting for basketball tickets on Saturday morning. I waited from 7:40 till almost 9 for them. As it happened, this was not necessary, since there were lots of seats left after the line had gone through, but that is beside the point. Those first in line wanted seats, and wanted good seats, and were willing to wait considerable time for them.

The man just in front of me in line got two tickets. He wanted good dollar seats. He got seats 12 and 13, Row 2, of section BB—rather poor dollar seats on the west side of the gym, the visitor's side. He protested, and asked for seats on the other side, somewhere down near the center, about 40 or so. Mr. Paul F. Hunter, the man in charge of the ticket sale, was standing behind him. The following conversation, quoted, I believe, verbatim, was illuminating to me: Friend Hunter: "Move along there. You have got your tickets. We can't be bothered exchanging seats now." And, as the man showed an inclination to argue, "Get out of that line."

No. 29 in line: "But I want to get these seats exchanged. Can't I do that?"

Friend Paul: "No, you can't. You can take just what we give you. And you are darned lucky to get that."

No. 29: "It seems to me that I ought to be able to get better seats than this, being so near the head of the line."

Mr. Hunter did not seem to like to argue. He crushingly overbore No. 29 by the following unanswerable bit of barbed truthfulness: "Well, you know you don't have to come over here to buy tickets. There are plenty of other people here who want them."

Several minutes later, a man way back near the end of the line got two seats, 40 and 41 in section B, the very seats the man at the head of the line had asked for.

Mr. Paul F. Hunter has stated his creed. I admit that it is probably hard to sell 200 odd basketball tickets efficiently. I admit that friend Paul has probably got the students of the University of Wisconsin right where he wants them and right where no protest can do any good. I admit that there

Once in a while girl reporters come in handy. Such was the case yesterday when one gave us some interesting news about the kinds of books purchased by different types of co-eds.

Frivolous appearing co-eds don't read frivolous books, according to our friend.

This paradox of human nature, so it seems, has been proved in Madison by Mrs. Helen Burton, proprietor of the Polly Shop, University avenue.

"The frivolous looking university girl does not want to read frivolous literature," Mrs. Burton stated yesterday. "She does not demand the books of Ethel M. Dell, George Barr McCutcheon and Joseph Hergesh-eimer."

The Polly Shop has a circulating library in connection with it. Only the best sellers of the last few months are to be found there. Each week the best sellers in the larger cities are obtained for the library.

Since Walpole's lecture here his books have been in great demand. Also his extravagant praise of Joseph Conrad has called forth a renewed interest in that author.

Students of human nature will find that conducting a library is a most fascinating occupation," Mrs. Burton continued. "I have found that some of the most frivolous looking girls choose some of the most serious fiction, while the type one would expect to read the deeper psychological novels chose Zane Grey and Dorothy Canfield.

is probably absolutely no need for courtesy and fair play in the selling of the much coveted pasteboards. Probably all of the tickets will be sold, no matter what methods Mr. Hunter uses. Probably I am wrong in thinking that as a matter of justice, the man first in line should get the better seats. Maybe so.

Mr. Hunter probably expects us to be glad to get seats of any kind, to be grateful and appreciative of his efforts to see that we do get them. It is sad I am that I cannot accommodate him.

And Girl Ace
To Thrill Us

By CHATTY

Thrills still hold the center of the screen in the pictures booked at the local theaters this week.

The thriller of them all is "Hearts Aflame".

It is the very criterion of thrillers. We should think that this picture would be called "Trees Aflame"; for one of the big scenes is a forest fire.

The astonishing part of it all is that the film is supposed to be propaganda for forest preservation, according to the director, Mr. Reginald Barker.

Why he purposely destroys 20 acres of northern pine is beyond us. We think that his propaganda will not be worth the sacrifice.

He might as well have set fire to Chicago in order to show New Yorkers the perils of a city fire.

Next in order we rate "One Week of Love". The heroine, whose part is taken by Elaine Hammerstein, being a society girl becomes bored with life.

We can rather sympathize with her.

The only society girls we ever knew certainly had cause to become filled with ennui. We could never understand how they managed to hold on so long to their hum-drum existence.

Anyway, Elaine becomes an air pilot, and being an amateur at handling a flying machine after she has piloted up a ways, she begins to pilot down in too much of a hurry. Down she comes with a crash to earth, right into a camp of outlaws the chief of whom is a sort of a Captain Kidd.

We will leave the rest of the thrills to your imagination. If you see this picture, you'd better tie a bandage around your mouth before you go so that your heart won't be able to pop out. It'll be in your throat a good part of the time.

In "The Woman Conquers" (the title doesn't convey a very just idea of the picture) we are taken to the Hudson Bad district for our thrills.

There is the battle with the frigid, unrelenting elements of the Canadian wilds, there are the malicious tricks of a lawless husky but the final thrill—yea, it is gripping, gripping—the final thrill comes when the weakening over summons the strength of his ancestors and beats the wicked husky off the heroine, leaving him to the merciless thrust of an Indian, loyal to the heroine.

Then it is time for the shouts and bursts of applause to ring out and fill the house with echoing thunder.

We feel sorry for the Prince of Wales. He leads a life under which even our pet dog would die. We likewise feel sorry for pretty

The Madison,
Nearly Ready

With the bulk of their work completed, the managers of the new Madison theater expect to finish the final details this week in order that the playhouse can be put in readiness for the opening performance Thursday. Gloria Swanson will be seen in "My American Wife," the premier picture.

Yesterday the work of dismantling the scaffold revealed a greatly changed theater. Although the physical form of the old Grand has not been altered to any noticeable degree, the general tone of the house has been improved amazingly.

Mural paintings of light blue, soft hangings and carpets, elaborate wood carving make the old Grand almost unrecognizable.

The same seats that are used in the Majestic theater will be installed in the Madison this week.

Like those in the Majestic, they are without hat racks. But the management declares that hat racks on theater seats are quite "passe" now. So the men will have to hold their hats as well as their coats in the laps.

The stage is large enough to allow for the vaudeville attractions of the Fischer circuit which will come to Madison with each movie.

Hubby Must Have Ideals, Sense Of Humor Coeds Say

Wanted—Prosepective husbands by university women. Each man, to fill the bill, must have high ideals, a keen sense of humor (especially before breakfast) a strong personality and plenty of that indefinable thing, intelligence.

Could the members of this so-called "anti-coed organization" live up to the qualifications set down by several university women interviewed yesterday on "What Qualities the Ideal Husband Should Possess?"

Cleo Parsley '23, believes that one factor is a strong personality. This, she believes, will counteract many faults; however, it takes more than this to make a man a real man.

"He should have a definite work, decided convictions, and a controlled temper. He should be a success socially; but the dancing fool and the tea-hound are not a substitute for the sensible and intelligent man."

Marjorie Severance '23, thought that the co-ed's ideal companion would have a sense of humor, ambition, and a strong personality. Arlene Klug '24, considers intelligence the greatest quality a man should possess.

"A man with nothing but a line is absolutely worthless," said Margaret Callsen '24. "His conversation must be intelligent. He should have ideals and worthwhile thoughts and not only have them, but carry them out successfully. He should be athletic, congenial, and have a pleasing personality to make a real husband."

"I should think," said Josephine Snow '24, "that an ideal husband would be a man with a keen sense of humor, a man tolerant and dependable and very good natured especially before breakfast."

"I should like to find an honest university man, one who is honest with himself and everyone with whom he comes in contact. The man who has little regard for the truth really has no respect for himself, and therefore can have little respect for the girl of his choice. Of course, a winning personality and the ability and ambition to attain results are necessary requisites also." This from a junior who has refused to give her name.

Impersonator to Present Delineations of the Stage

"The Poster Girl," with Edna May Foster in the leading role, promises to be a unique surprise at the Orpheum today. Miss Foster is claimed to be a clever impersonator and will present delineations of famous stage stars in a new and interesting fashion. She is young, gifted and pretty and has won much fame on the vaudeville stage for her versatility and ability in this art.

March Brings Three New Irene Castle Creations

Miss Irene Castle, foremost exponent of American Style and Fashions, rivals the leading designers of Europe in presenting to the women of Madison, Wisconsin, her March selections. These beautiful creations, now on display in our establishment, show the impetus which research for the primitive in design has given to the display of ingenious ornament. The result is indicated in simple and elaborate detail. Three New Creations are Miss Castle's offering to Dame Fashion. These consist of:

Madelon, a real party frock, is of Corticelli Castle Crepe in square-necked style, embellished with wide velvet ribbon and an elaborate flower design at corsage.

Wanda, an extremely smart three-piece Turf COSTUME made entirely of Soft Corticelli Castle Crepe, with charming sleeveless jackets in color variety. These charming creations were selected by Miss Castle for their appeal to the well dressed matron.

Rosette, a shimmering creation of silk, lined with soft Corticelli Duvene, boasts detachable collar and cuffs of Lapin Fur.
