I, a wandering student, seeking knowledge, came knocking at the gates of the great University of Wisconsin, and it took me in, filled me with inspiration, and when I left its doors the kindly people of the state stretched out welcoming hands and gave me a man's work to do.—An Alumnus.

One feature distinguishing the man of culture from the man who looks it is the language he uses. There is too much carelessness in the use of language. Using good language does not detract from

The Language Test originality nor lessen strength. It does add greatly to the pleasures of conversation. Careless language, written or spoken, gives rise to misunderstandings. By study a writer can usually find words in which to express himself with clearness. Although the study of English is emphasized in schools and colleges, many young people come fresh from school work using the most faulty language. The verb "get" is used where it is not needed, "expect" is used when "intend" would be better, and there are scores of others. If one watches his own speech as well as that of others he will find many instances of the misuse of words. "A bird is known by its note and a man by his talk," Steele said. "Men should not talk to please themselves, but those that hear them." It is not given to every man to create a new language, nor even to modify the language we have. It is wise to beware of new and careless expressions and colloquialisms.—Milwaukee Journal.

The first bills sent for past due dues to members for this year were mailed during February. The results are gratifying. Prompt payment, good nature, appreciation, and co-operation are returns we are pleased to report. Any business house that secured as gratifying replies would feel well satisfied.

Membership in the Alumni Association shows a steady healthy increase at the rate of fifty per month for the college year. Ten new local clubs have been formed. Older clubs show renewed activity. If you will secure that one new member the awakening movement will continue. Do it now!

Could YOU do this? I wrote to Mr. Crawford for an Entire list of the Fort Atkinson alumni. He sent it by Return mail. There were seventeen.
Three or four were members. I mailed a letter to each non-subscriber,
And sent each one a sample copy of the MAGAZINE.
It took ten minutes. The postage was Not over 24c. I got three new,
Live members for the Association. Can tendered by the unanimous Success! vote of the directors after they had carefully considered secretaries of thirty cities. Madison loses an efficient servant; the University loses a powerful regent; the state loses a rising citizen. Congratulations to St. Paul!
You do as much?

The following statements are taken from a letter written February 6 by

Professor E. B. Mc-
Philosophy 25? Gilvary, chairman of Continued the department of philosophy: "The course remains in the University. It will be given again next year as it was given the first semester of this year. The department stands firm in the conviction that the course in question is neither irreligious nor sectarian. The decision made by the administration safeguards the freedom for which the department has insisted upon is adequate freedom within statutory limits."

"Editor of THE ALUMNI MAGAZINE:

"You ask for a statement concerning the policy of the University upon the question of legality which has been raised regarding one of its courses.

"The only legal limitation in regard to freedom of teaching in the University is contained in section 381 of the statutes which says: 'No instruction either sectarian in religion or partisan in politics shall ever be allowed in any department of the University.'

"Whenever any question has been raised in regard to compliance with this law, the attention of the department concerned has been called to it; and injunctions have been given strictly to abide by it.

"This being done, it has been the policy of the University administration to place the full responsibility in each case upon the department concerned. It would be wholly improper for the President of the University to pass judgment upon the scope of instruction in departments of knowledge which he does not profess.

"The policy above outlined which has been followed for many years will be continued.—Very truly yours, CHARLES R. VAN HISE, President."

THE WISCONSIN COMMERCIAL AND INDUSTRIAL CONGRESS

By RALPH H. HESS, Ph. D. '08

THE calling of an annual convention of recognized leaders in the business activities of Wisconsin, February 14 to 18, was the suggestion of Professor Richard T. Ely. Dr. Ely believes that the theorist and the practical man may discuss business subjects with mutual profit, and that the solution of many problems requires their joint action.

The fact that the University of Wisconsin has the best equipped department of political economy in the country, through which to establish and maintain reciprocal relations with state-wide industrial activities, indicates its ability to serve the business interests of the State.

The purpose of the Congress was "to create an open forum for the discussion of serious and growing economic and social problems involved in the development of the industrial resources of the State." The achievement of this first session has been characterized by former Senator W. H. Hatton as follows: "The Wisconsin Commercial and Industrial Congress supplies the missing link in the business structure of the State of Wisconsin; that is to say, it has created an open forum wherein the various economic and social interests and organizations may join in a friendly and amicable discussion of their relations to state-wide and nation-wide problems of the present and of the future."

The aims of the committee in charge were: first, to formulate a series of addresses and discussions touching significant practical and theoretical aspects of present day business methods and relations; second, to secure a list of speakers of recognized authority or demonstrated leadership; third, to gain the interest and co-operation of a group of men who would be representative geographically and by occupation of the chief business activities of Wisconsin.

The general session topics indicated below, each of which occupied a half day or an evening and included several addresses on correlated subjects, are suggestive of the scope of the Congress: The Functions of Commercial Organization; Industrial Development; What Constitutes an Efficient Commercial Organization; The Employer and Employee; Advertising and Salesmanship; Education for Business; Traffic Problems and Foreign Trade; Government Regulations of Business; Some Principles of Regulation; The Commercial Association and Community Welfare; The Roads Problem; Scientific Management and Labor; The Business Organization and Management of the University; The Commercial Association and the Farmer; The Bank and the Community; Business, the University and the State; The Forces That Make Cities.

Among the speakers were some forty men engaged in business and recognized as leaders in business policy and opinion. About half this number of university professors contributed the results of their analytic studies of economic principles and conditions and of broad phases of industry and commerce. A few speakers were drawn from outside the State, including Joseph E. Davies, '98, chairman of the federal trade commission, Frank S. Gilbreth, efficiency engineer of Providence, R. I., Professor John H. Gray, head of the department of political economy of the University of Minnesota, Samuel O. Dunn, editor of the Railway Age Gazette, Professor Roland F. Hoxie of the University of Chicago, and Allen D. Albert, president of the International Association of Rotary Clubs.

A special effort was made to secure a direct and representative treatment of both sides of controverted and debatable questions. Success in this was such as to elicit much favorable comment on the fair and well rounded treatment of mooted questions, and many inquiries have since been made from official bodies for copies and briefs of papers and discussions.

The registered membership of the Congress was 283, 50 of these are residents of Madison, leaving an out-of-town attendance of 233. With one or two exceptions every town in the State having a growing business men's organization was represented by one to ten delegates. Eight neighboring states were represented and official delegates from the universities of Minnesota, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, and Chicago were present. The estimated aggregate expenditure of delegates in attendance is $5,750 or $5.75 to $1 of cost to the University.

The commercial and industrial interests of the State have expressed their appreciation of what was accomplished, and confidence in the ability of the University to render a substantial service in this field, and their desire to co-operate in the future.

The State Association of Commercial Secretaries has determined to hold its annual meeting in conjunction with the Second Wisconsin Commercial and Industrial Congress if such a convention is held at the University next year.

A. L. Sommers, president of the Wisconsin Association of Commercial Secretaries, of Sheboygan, George J. Smith, of the Oshkosh Commercial Club, and E. S. Hebbard, president of the La Crosse Board of Trade, were the committee on resolutions. The resolutions include a vote of appreciation to the University, a request that the Congress be made an annual event, a desire that the proceedings be published, and hearty appreciation to the press of the State and to all identified with this Congress "to whose combined efforts we are indebted for the wonderful success of the First Wisconsin Commercial and Industrial Congress."

This success will justify repetition of such conferences. Every member was enthusiastic in his support of the plan to continue the meetings. The demand for the publication of the proceedings is already so strong that probably a volume containing the more essential particulars of the papers and addresses will be published.

The author violates the privilege of personal correspondence in publishing the following quotation from a recent letter from one of the foremost executives in Wisconsin, "I shall be much interested to hear what the Board of Regents did to the Commercial Congress project. Here is hoping that in their infinite wisdom and mercy they have decided to repeat it another year."

Nothing would give me more pleasure than to meet again my classmates of 1866, and if possible I will be at their reunion in June.—Mrs. George F. Merrill (Ellen Byrne).

I was at once inclined to approve Dean Huntington's suggestion that the classes antedating 1877 have a joint and several reunion at the commencement of 1916.

During the early period in question there was a real comradeship among students, due to their small number and the close association of many of them in the two original dormitories. So the proposed reunion would be very real, and its pleasures would commonly cross class lines. It has so befallen that in the five and forty years—and still "one to go on with"—since the originator of the pan-reunion proposal quit the University, I have not once heard his velvety voice or felt the witching presence of his unsimulated suavity and native urbanity, which were wont so to set the table on attention, and served most subtly as exemplar to the rustic rudeness of less favored members of the Athenaeon Society.

This year recurs the quinquennial intention of the class of '71 to have a reunion. May there be something doing next June! Having successfully argued myself into acquiescence in Dean Huntington's plan, it is up to his traditional persuasiveness to do the rest.—Albert Watkins.

The class of '81 celebrates its thirty-fifth anniversary. Members intending to participate will please notify Mrs. E. F. Woods (Margaret B. Allen), Janesville, or Professor Howard L. Smith, law school, Madison.

“86” Attention!!!

Our 30th anniversary is drawing near, and it has been suggested that in honor of that event we publish the autobiographies of the members of the class. The class of “84” did so and the copies are “without price” to the individual members. A number of the class are in favor of this and think the reading of these biographies would add interest to the class banquet. The cost would not exceed, probably, $1.00 per member. Write immediately to the class secretary, any suggestions you may have.—Mrs. Lynn S. Pease, secretary, 520 Wauwatosa Ave., Wauwatosa.

ATTENTION, 1906BE PREPARED FOR THE BEST REUNION

By OTTO L. KOWALKE

All those members of the class who at the last reunion promised to be present for the reunion in 1916 are going to be held to their vows. Chief of Police Shaughnessy will serve warrants for your arrest if you fail to come. All who have not been back before are going to miss the best time ever if they do not “come back.” We’re all “coming back.”

Committees in Milwaukee, Chicago, and Madison are making plans for a record-breaking attendance and a top-notch series of good stunts. We want ideas for a costume. Get busy and send in your ideas for one to A. E. Van Hagan, 212 W. Washington St., or to E. T. Howson, care of Railway Age Gazette, Transportation Bldg., Chicago. The committee in Madison will offer a prize of $5.00 for the best idea.

“Everybody Out” now! You’ve got to help make this reunion a success by coming back and by sending in your ideas of what you believe will give everybody a good time. Ed. Loew in Seattle and Cud. Beye in New York have written that they would be here. Now all you folks between these extremes of West and East do your part. We’re all coming back!

1911 CLASS REUNION NOW UNDER WAY

The officers of the class of 1911 are busy making preparations for the big reunion in June. Lists are being prepared and preliminary plans are being formulated by the class officers. Committees will be appointed in the larger cities and in various sections of the country to see to it that the members actually come to the reunion early and stay late. The May number of THE ALUMNI MAGAZINE will contain full particulars, and it is planned to issue a 1911 class journal which will be sent to all members. Of course the executive committee will need some funds. All members are urged to economize from now on so that at the propitious moment each member may contribute his pittance cheerfully and without depriving the baby of the necessities of life. At the present time the officers still have good credit, so members keep your funds and be prudent. Begin accumulating a reserve for your railroad fare. Far be it from the officers to divulge class secrets, but be assured that there will be both volume and speed to this reunion. 1911 both challenges and defies all other classes to even approach our event. The secretary invites suggestions and news items from all members of the class, married and single. Communications addressed to any officer of the class in care of the Alumni Association at Madison will be forwarded promptly.—Erwin A. Meyers, secretary, 208 S. La Salle St., Chicago.

WISCONSIN ALUMNI CLUBS

"Sit together, listen together, sing together, eat together, and talk together and you'll work together."

NEW YORK

By JAMES S. THOMPSON, '10

AN inspiring address by President Van Hise on "The Value of An Organized Alumni," and the use for a full hour of transcontinental telephone service for exchanging songs, yells, and speeches with alumni gathered in Milwaukee and San Francisco, were the main features of a distinctly successful dinner of one hundred and thirty New York City alumni at the Hotel Manhattan, Saturday night, March 4. President C. R. Van Hise, '79, made a special trip to attend the dinner and his effort was greatly appreciated by the New York alumni.

C. R. VAN HISE, '79

President Van Hise reviewed the recent events in the Wisconsin legislature that had affected the University. He stated that the crisis at Wisconsin seems to have been passed but emphasized how the arguments for preparedness in national affairs can be applied equally to the state universities. He made a plea for a vitalized alumni organization, strongly united by classes and local groups, and bound to the parent organization. He inspired his hearers with a definition of the function of a progressive university today. The address was warmly applauded. It made a great impression on the alumni.

Toastmaster William S. Kies, '99, vice president of the National City Bank, in presenting the President, referred to the great opportunities of the University of Wisconsin for developing men with more than local vision. He has recently observed the demand for such men in connection with the promotion of banking and trade relations with the Latin-American countries.

Among the other speakers were Herbert A. Heyn, '91, Gilbert E. Roe, '90, and Dr. Paul Withington, Harvard, '10, the newly appointed football coach, who asked for alumni support and encouragement for the team as well as the coaching staff. He said there would be nothing spectacular in the opening of the season; that he hoped to develop slowly and substantially a winning system. A nominating board, with Gilbert E. Roe, chairman, was announced to report shortly for an election of officers. It is believed that the two hundred and fifty alumni, including a large number of recent graduates, in Greater New York merit an active organization that should be closely in touch with the General Association.

This dinner was successfully arranged by a committee whose chairman was Karl M. Mann, '11. The telephone demonstration, provided through the courtesy of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, was negotiated by Glenn P. Cowan, '11, and the other alumni who are connected with the telephone company. It was unique and provided many thrills. Regent Seaman at the University Club in Milwaukee caused a laugh when he tried to warn "Prexy" regarding Broadway's bright lights but the President replied that he felt "relatively safe in the company of one hundred and thirty Wisconsin alumni."

"U-Rah-Rah," "On Wisconsin" and the "Varsity Toast" went back and forth from New York to Milwaukee and San Francisco, from Milwaukee to New York and San Francisco and from San Francisco to Milwaukee and to New York. Phil Spooner, '02, in New York sang across the continent "A Perfect Day" and was roundly applauded—much more enthusiastically it was observed, than were the New York alumni who tried to sing "On Wisconsin" and proved that the Chicago U. of W. Club song book committee has not realized what a fertile field for sales exist in New York. A Milwaukee alumnus sang in reply "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes."

A dozen alumni had gathered on the Pacific Coast and brought a roar of applause when their songs and yells were heard in the Manhattan dining-room. Jack Friend, '03, who had come from a hospital on March 1, was connected at his room in the St. Francis Hotel and talked with friends in the other two cities. The roar of the Pacific Ocean surf coming over the wire ended the demonstration.

Conrad's orchestra provided music for dancing after the dinner.

Notice: The Wisconsin Musical Clubs may make a western tour next June similar to that taken last summer by the varsity regimental band. Already eight or ten commercial clubs in cities along the Northern Pacific and Great Northern Roads have expressed a desire to arrange for an entertainment by the Glee and Mandolin Clubs, and if, during the next few weeks, enough other cities show sufficient interest to insure a modest guaranty to the clubs, the trip will be definitely arranged. Inquiries addressed to Alumni Headquarters will be referred to the manager of the musical clubs.

SAN DIEGO

By R. T. NICHOLS, '04

The University of Wisconsin Club held a most successful Foundation Day celebration at the San Diego Hotel Grill, Friday evening, February 11. About 25 alumni representing classes from 1868 to 1914 were present. After the dinner President L. S. Everts, '01, introduced President E. L. Hardy, '93, of the State Normal, who discussed certain phases of the University's history and development. President Hardy suggested a resolution, which was passed by the club, forming a committee whose business it should be, in co-operation with the officers, to keep club members in touch with the trend of events at the University.

Following Mr. Hardy, Jane Butt, '10, presented a discussion of the legislative enactments of 1915 affecting the University, reading a letter from Dean E. A. Birge and quoting from articles by Dean G. C. Comstock and Professor Joseph Jastrow in the Educational Review. The discussion aroused considerable interest and several others spoke along the same line.

Roy T. Nichols, '04, secretary of the club, presented a brief comparison of the work of the Wisconsin Alumni Association with that of other institutions notably Yale, Michigan, Minnesota, and California, and urged all club members to become members of the Association.

One of the most interesting features of the evening was a talk by James Quirk, Ph.B. '73, C.E. '76. Mr. Quirk spoke of the history of the University from the time he entered in '67, mentioning the names of many important members of the faculty and student body, and relating many interesting episodes of the early days.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Varsity Toast and a rousing U rah! rah! Wisconsin.

The names and classes of those present follows: Ida B. Arzberger, '15; Jane Butt, '10; Mrs. Elizabeth Blackall, Library '15; Vinnie B. Clark, '10; Mrs. Kathryn Hardy Dickson, Ex '92; L. S. Everts, '01; Mrs. L. S. Everts, '02; Bernet S. Hale, '04; E. L. Hardy, '93; Mrs. E. L. Hardy; Roy T. Nichols, '04; Mrs. R. T. Nichols, Library '14; C. C. Pease, '04; Dr. Rawson J. Pickard, '03; Mrs. R. J. Pickard, '03; E. W. Quirk, '10; Mrs. E. W. Quirk, '10; James Quirk, '73; Mrs. James Quirk, '74; Elizabeth Robson, '67; Mrs. J. R. Simison; and Charles P. Wolf, '14.

SCHENECTADY

By E. S. HENNINGSEN, '12

The Wisconsin Alumni Association of Northwestern New York held their second monthly luncheon at Glenn's Restaurant, Schenectady, New York, March 1, 1916. Hereafter these luncheons will be regularly held at the above named restaurant instead of as originally announced, and any Wisconsin men who happen to be in the city on the first Wednesday of the month will find a congenial crowd assembled who will welcome him in true Wisconsin spirit.

The fact that there were thirteen at table at this last luncheon only served to add to the merriment, and to create a determination to get more of the fellows out so this so-called unlucky number will not repeat itself.

Our bowling team in the Intercollegiate League here in the city is fighting hard for first place; three teams, Cornell, Union, and Wisconsin, being practically tied for that position at the time of writing. We hope in the next issue to be able to announce that, as usual, there was nothing to it but Wisconsin.

DULUTH

By A. W. TORBET, '12

At the annual meeting of the Wisconsin club of Duluth held February 12, the following officers for the current year were elected: J. R. Stack, Ex '05, president; S. L. Stroud, Ex '05, vice-president; A. W. Torbet, '12, secretary; H. K. Pratt, '10, treasurer.

We understand that the University band is to be at Superior next summer, and some of the fellows are in favor of bringing them across the bay to Duluth while they are in this part of the country.

AMES

By MRS. A. R. LAMB, '12

On the evening of February 7, twenty-seven of the local alumni and friends of the University of Wisconsin gathered at the Ames Hotel, Ames, Iowa, for their annual meeting. The dinner was followed by a toast program. Dr. J. E. Brindley, '02, who acted as toastmaster, told of the services that the University had rendered the State. Dr. L. H. Pammel, '85, gave a brief history of the University and Professor J. W. Parry discussed the work of the extension department with which he was at one time connected. The following officers were elected for the current year: Professor B. W. Hammer, '08, president; Mrs. A. R. Lamb, '12 (Nellie Schwartz), secretary.

Those present were:

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Brindley, '02; Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Pammel, '85; Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Hammer, '08; Mr. and Mrs. M. I. Evinger; Dr. and Mrs. B. G. Dyer, '92; Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Chaney, '12; Mr. and Mrs. I. E. Melhus, '12; Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Lamb, '13 (Nellie Schwartz), '12; Mrs. F. A. Fish (Anne Caulkins), '01; Ruth B. Safford, '03; Neva F. Gates, '13;

Harriet B. McKinley, '13; Wm. Kunerth, '04; D. C. Faber; J. W. Parry; O. G. Lloyd, '12; R. W. Post; F. F. Householder, '13; and E. F. Stuewe, Ex '14.

KENOSHA

By LA MAUDE YULE, '02

With Professor S. H. Goodnight, Ph.D. '05, and Thomas Lloyd Jones, '96, present at the University of Wisconsin banquet, what wonder that the celebration of the sixty-sixth birthday of our alma mater was a success. It was held Monday night, February 7, in the parlors of the Congregational church. The rooms were prettily decorated with cardinal and white. Varsity songs were sung and varsity yells given with enthusiasm.

A. E. Buckmaster, '89, president of the club, acted as toastmaster. Professor Goodnight answered some of the criticisms which have lately been hurled at our University. Every guest present enjoyed the talk but felt that a mistake had been made in not inviting more people to hear it. It was certainly too good to keep for seventy people; Kenosha should have heard it.

Thomas Lloyd Jones, when called upon, knocked down a few charges that Professor Goodnight had forgotten to mention.

This banquet was also the celebration of the founding of our local club in Kenosha, and we hope to live to celebrate our 66th birthday.

CHICAGO

By W. H. HAIGHT, '03

Friday, February 18, being the third Friday of the month, the officers and directors, together with the heads of committees, held their business meeting according to custom.

On February 25, we were addressed by Henry J. Toner, a member of the Chicago bar, whose reputation as a wit and philosopher brought out a large attendance. Mr. Toner's subject was "The Pendulum."

At our luncheon on March 3, the customary "sangerfest" was perpetrated.

Governor Philipp was the guest of honor at luncheon on Friday, March 10. His talk on University affairs was particularly interesting and the attendance was the largest of the season, there being nearly one hundred present. The Governor's views on the relation between the University and the State were presented with convincing logic. We believe that the alumni can rely upon him as a true friend of education in Wisconsin.

We believe that the best interests of the University, and of the State, demand that the institution be maintained as a real University where research work is carried on, and where of necessity, money is spent in experiments. But that the University may not suffer in the future it should be borne in mind that the power that creates can take away, and, as Governor Philipp pointed out, the real friends of the University will not permit it to become so entangled, that through the vicissitudes of government by party, real harm may come to it.

EUGENE

By W. D. SMITH, '02

Alumni of Michigan and Wisconsin living in Eugene, Oregon, met at a joint luncheon at the Hotel Osborn on February 19. Speeches were made for Michigan by Attorney Immel and Professor Frink and for Wisconsin by E. E. DeCou, '94, and Professor D. W. Morton, formerly of Wisconsin. Other Wisconsin men present were W. D. Smith, '02, and Professor H. A. Clark.

SYRACUSE

By R. T. BIRGE, '09

On February 12, there was held at the home of Dr. and Mrs. C. W. Cabeen, Syracuse, New York, an informal gathering of Wisconsin alumni now residing in Syracuse.

After the usual well prepared and much appreciated dinner, the company, nineteen in all, gathered round the grate fire and told tales of Wisconsin, past and present. C. W. Cabeen spoke on "Wisconsin Thirty Years Ago," Dr. Steensland on "Impressions of Madison," R. T. Birge on "Present Conditions at Wisconsin," C. W. Hill on "Wisconsin Spirit," and C. R. Folsom on "Milwaukee." The gathering ended with mutual pledges of an early repetition.

Those present:

TRI-CITY CLUB

By GEORGE M. SHEETS, '08

Pete's Temperance Beer Hall, Davenport, Iowa, January 28 (Special to THE ALUMNI MAGAZINE). There is sawdust on the floor and steins on the bare oak tables. "Otto," white aproned and friendly, is asking, "Do the gentlemens wish to eat now or will they have some more first?" There is a chorus, "Bring the dinner" and the "Pete Hamacher party" of the Tri-City Wisconsin Club is on. Technically we are holding a banquet in Unter Den Linden, hard by Turner Hall, in the Hamburg quarter of Davenport, but there's a large printed sign (not paid for yet) "Pete's Temperance Beer Hall" hanging on the wall, and as we shuffle our feet in the sawdust we know the matter of fact present is but an illusion and it's really a Saturday night in Madison, ten years ago. Singing "On Wisconsin" and "The Varsity Toast" and telling each other of things we all once knew are Buck Fellows, '12; Andy Seiffert, '13; Frank Hinrichs, Ex. '05; Charles Distelhorst, '12; W. C. Epstein, '14; Clarence Watson, '10, and George Sheets, '08. There's a sound of laughter in the hall and "Bart," hearing it first, goes out to investigate. That's the last we see of "Bart."

Time passes, nine o'clock strikes and our first and last Hamacher party is a pleasant memory. The town's dry now and so is the Wisconsin Club.

Another Basketball Championship

By winning a hard-fought battle from Northwestern University at

W. E. MEANWELL

Evanston on Saturday, March 11, the Badger 1916 basketball five annexed the western championship for the fourth time in the last five years.

Victory over the Evanstonians meant a clear title—defeat a tie for the honor—and although the first half ended with the score 15 to 10 in favor of the Purple, Captain Hass' men managed to overcome the lead and nosed out their opponents, 24 to 21. According to all reports, the game was one of the most brilliant ever staged in the West.

In winning the title the Badgers did a really remarkable piece of work for never have the teams in the conference league been as evenly balanced as this year. Northwestern and Illinois both had fives that were of top-notch caliber and a great deal of the credit for the championship must go to Dr. Meanwell, the coach whose ability to diagnose plays and situations, made it possible for his team to emerge at the top. The men themselves played consistent basketball all year and their record was only marred once, their solitary defeat coming at the beginning of the year when they succumbed to Illinois at Urbana.

The final conference standing of the three leaders was as follows:

	Won	Lost	Pct.
Wisconsin	11	1	.917
Northwestern	9	3	.750
Illinois	9	3	.750

The victory at Evanston gave Dr. Meanwell a record of 54 conference games won and 6 lost in the five years that he has been at the helm at Wisconsin. This record is one that is unparalleled in the West and it is doubtful whether it has ever been equalled in intercollegiate circles.

DR. MEANWELL'S RECORD

Wisconsin with—	Won	Lost
Minnesota	10	0
Purdue	8	0
Indiana	8	0
Northwestern	6	0
Ohio State	4	0
Iowa	4	0
Illinois	7	3
Chicago	7	3

Coach Meanwell volunteered to take charge of the team five years ago after Coach Noyes, '07, had been graduated from the law school. Without any intercollegiate experience in coaching, he produced a team which not only won the championship but established a new record—twelve consecutive victories over conference fives. The following season he lost one game out of twelve—Chicago defeating the Badgers in the final game of the season. A year later he again turned out an undefeated team but the season of 1914-15 proved a disastrous one with four defeats—two to Illinois and a like number to Chicago. This year the team suffered defeat only once—that being at the hands of Illinois, last year's champions.

The team loses three men this season, Captain Hass and Levis, forwards, and Smith, guard. Captain Hass, while not a heavy scorer, is one of the best floor-players the Badgers have ever had. His passing and guarding made possible several of Wisconsin's victories. Levis, who finishes in June, has played two seasons and in both he has led the other conference players in field goals. He played his best game this season. Smith has been a consistent guard for the last two years and it was his basket in the Northwestern game that turned the tide. The places of these men will be hard to fill, but Dr. Meanwell has developed a capable substitute five this year, and with Olson and Chandler back next season, the prospects for another good five are bright.

Meyers, the football captain-elect, will fit in nicely at Captain Hass' place. In case Dr. Meanwell can develop a center, Chandler will move up into a forward position and Carlson may take Smith's place at guard. The other substitutes are Simpson, the football star, and McIntosh. There are a number of promising men on the freshman team and these men may make some of the regulars hustle to keep their places.

Two Track Victories

With victories over Notre Dame and Illinois to their credit, the Badger track team appears to be well on its way to another championship. Coach Jones has a large squad of men at work and, although the withdrawal of Stiles left the Badgers without a capable high and broad jumper, the team is still strong.

In the Notre Dame games, Arlie Mucks, the Badger weight star, established a new world's indoor record in the shot put with a heave of 49 feet 4½ inches. Two other local records were broken when Schardt, a junior, ran the mile in 4:35 while Felton, his teammate, in his first appearance as a cardinal wearer, negotiated the two-mile in the remarkable time of 9:53 3-5. Captain Harvey's mark of 2:00 in the half-mile broke the old record by four seconds. The summaries:

40-yard dash—Smith, Wisconsin, and Hardy, Notre Dame, tied for first; Casey, Wisconsin, third. Time :04 4-5.

Shot put—Mucks, Wisconsin, first; Bachman, Notre Dame, second; Becker, Wisconsin, third. Distance 49 feet 4 1-2 inches.

440-yard dash—Williams, Wisconsin, first; Hardy, Notre Dame, second; Voelkers, Notre Dame, third. Time :54 1-5.

Half-mile—Harvey, Wisconsin, first; McDonough, Notre Dame, second; Forsberg, Wisconsin, third. Time 2:00.

High jump—Van Auken and Huston, Wisconsin, tied for first; Bachman, Notre Dame, and Nelson, Wisconsin, tied for third. Height 5 feet 8 1-2 inches.

Two-mile run—Felton, Wisconsin, first; Benish, Wisconsin, second; Reynolds, Notre Dame, third. Time 9:53 3-5.

Pole vault—Huston, Wisconsin, and Edgren, Notre Dame, tied for first; Yeager, Notre Dame, third. Height 11 feet 6 inches.

Relay race—Wisconsin first.

In the Illinois meet, Wisconsin, by capturing the relay race, won the meet, 44 to 42. In this meet, Carman Smith tied the world's record in the 60 yard dash in :06 1-5, while Ray Williams, the Badger quarter-miler, broke the Wisconsin record by stepping the distance in :51 4-5. Captain Harvey again ran the half in two minutes. The summaries:

Pole vault—Culp, Illinois, first; Huston, Wisconsin, second; Burgess, Illinois, third. Height 11 feet 8 inches.

60-yard dash—Smith, Wisconsin, first; Hohman, Illinois, second; Carter, Wisconsin, third. Time :06 1-5.

60-yard hurdle—Ames, Illinois, first; Burke, Wisconsin, second; Heintzen, Wisconsin, third. Time :08.

Mile run—Mason, Illinois, first; Schardt, Wisconsin, second; Merrill, Wisconsin, third. Time 4:27.

Time 9:52.

Relay race—Wisconsin first.

Ehler Still Director

The athletic situation at the University of Wisconsin remains the same, no changes having been effected by the Board of Regents. It is not expected that there will be any announcements made until the April meeting of the Board. A story was printed here some time ago to the effect that Professor George W. Ehler, director of athletics, would resign and that his place would be filled temporarily by Coach Jones of the track team. Dr. Ehler has not resigned nor has he expressed any intention of doing so.

Gymnasts Beat Chicago

Another Badger team that bids fair to annex a championship this year is the gymnastic team coached by H. D. McChesney. Winners of the conference title last year, the gymnasts opened their season auspiciously by defeating Chicago, their nearest rivals, by a score of 1250.25 to 1216.75. The Badgers won four firsts while Chicago took two. Noble was the individual star of the meet, winning two firsts. Smith, Garling, Nelson, and Suhm, his teammates, all performed capably.

In the wrestling, however, the Badgers fell down badly, Chicago carrying away the honors by winning two falls and three decisions. Chicago also won the fencing.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Minutes of the meeting of the Executive Committee of the Alumni Association, held at Madison on Saturday, January 29, 1916.

Present: Charles B. Rogers, Robert S. Crawford, Mrs. Florence Vernon Showerman, Charles N. Brown, George A. Buckstaff, and Miss Mary F. Connor.

The president outlined the plans as discussed by the Committees on Funds and Membership and in general such plans, while not yet formally adopted, were approved.

The general question of reorganization was discussed and it seemed the sense of the Committee that clubs and local associations should receive representation on a general council in the new plan.

The plan under which the Kenosha local association has been organized, viz., of collecting from each member as a part of his dues a fee of $2 to make him a member of the general association, was discussed and approved. The secretary reported a good growth in membership and in organization of local clubs.

The budget for 1915-1916 for the work of keeping up the alumni records was discussed and approved as recommended by the secretary. Estimates for 1916-1917 were also discussed and the recommendation of the secretary approved.

Mr. Alexander and Mr. Thorkelson appeared before the Committee in reference to the securing of alumni help toward the building of more seats for the new stadium. The matter was discussed but no definite action was taken, pending further report.

NOTICE

Mr. Solon J. Buck, '04, superintendent of the Minnesota Historical Society, St. Paul, Minnesota, would like to secure a copy of the Alumni Magazine for April, 1914. This is Number 7 of Volume 15. Will some alumnus who can furnish this number please notify Mr. Buck?

CHINESE BASEBALL TEAM OF HONOLULU

Submitted by KIM TONG HO

Kim Tong Ho, '12, is the first person standing on the extreme left. A few of the players visited Madison in the spring of 1912, when they played against the University and lost by the score of 7 to 6 after a 10-inning struggle.

KIM TONG HO, of Honolulu, Hawaii, had the honor of being the first man to bring a Chinese baseball team to the Orient, a trip covering a distance of over 18,000 miles. The team played eight games at Manila, P. I., after an ocean trip lasting four weeks, and surprised the thousands of fans there by winning practically all the games against the best professional teams—the All-Americans, the All-Filipinos, and the U. S. Army. In Shanghai the Chinese team defeated the crack U. S. Navy team by the score of 8 to 0. The All-American team of Shanghai, with a former pitcher from the University of Washington in the box, also fell a victim to the Chinese team. At Tientsin and Peking, the Chinese team from Hawaii had a clean sweep, much to the delight of the hundreds of Chinese students who had been educated in America. The eight games played in China gave the American national game a wonderful boost.

In Peking, U. S. Minister Paul S. Reinsch, one of Wisconsin's notable alumni, entertained the team and acted as master of ceremonies during the team's visit. The Chinese team took part in the Second Far Eastern Olympic Meet held in Shanghai, winning all the games handily, and bringing back several beautiful trophies, one of which was given by President Yuan Shih-kai on the team's visit to the North. Manager Ho was also given a special medal by Vice-President Li Yuan Hung of the Republic.

The Chinese team's visit to the Orient was made possible with the initiative of Dr. Y. T. Tsur, M. A. '10. Dr. Tsur is now president of the Tsing Hua College, Peking, which annually sends large numbers of students to America to be educated under the Boxer Indemnity Fund.

DEATHS

Mrs. Adele Overton Brown, '71, died at her home, 909 Grant Street, Denver, on February 12. She went to Denver from Lodi, Wisconsin to accept a teaching position in 1871. In 1882 she married the late J. Sidney Brown, a merchant of Denver. She was active in the social, educational, and business life of Colorado. In her death '71 loses one of its most enthusiastic members. "It is my pleasure to have been familiar with Mrs. Brown's career since her marriage and to have witnessed the development of a strong and vigorous character, mellowed by abundant sympathy and generosity."—Albert Watkins. "Mrs. Brown was one of our noblest alumnae."—W. E. Huntington.

Charles A. Wilkin, '74, died at his home in Canon City, Colorado, on January 27th. At the time of his death he was, and had been for some time, Judge of the Judicial District in which he lived.

He was born at Athens, Ohio in 1853, and received his elementary education in the schools of his native place. His father was a captain of cavalry in the Civil War, and at its end believed that the South offered great opportunities for a new start in life. He thereupon established a home at Hannibal, Missouri, where the subject of this sketch received his preparation for the ancient classical course by absorbing much Latin and Greek at the Hannibal Institute.

He entered the University in 1871 and was graduated with great credit in 1874. The survivors of that college generation will remember a somewhat tall, slender youth, with pink cheeks, blue eyes, and black hair. He had a straightforward look out of those blue eyes, a smile was always on his face. It was what has since been called an "affidavit face." He very early took high rank in his class, and from the very first took the highest rank in the affections of his college mates. They will not be surprised to know that he lived a brilliant and useful life, and rose to high station and high esteem in the communities in which he lived. His personality was so attractive, his mental vision so clear and exact, his moral purpose so far-seeing and elevated, his character so made up of gentle sweetness and great strength that all who knew him at all knew he must take first rank in any community in which his lot might be cast. So much all of his college fellows felt and knew and they have not been disappointed.

After leaving the University he went into the world to face and solve its problems with great courage and with a pure heart. His aims were high and right and in following them he never faltered and was never swayed from his lofty purposes by the clamor of the unthinking nor by the whims of the hour.

After a few years' connection with the public high schools of the State, he studied law and almost immediately established himself in practice at Fairplay, Colorado. He was soon elected prosecuting attorney for his district, and this office he held for many years. At the same time he was president of the Board of Education for a period of ten or twelve years. All of this time he continued in the active practice of his profession and so came to win the affection and the regard of the people that, as one old miner of that region told me: "All a Park County jury wants to know is how Charlie wants the case decided." At last he came to be a Judge. He could have had the office much earlier, but with that fine sensitiveness of character which was always his, he held back until those of greater experience had dropped from the race, then he consented to the demands of his friends and became the highest of all "A Just Judge."

Early in his career in Colorado he married Sarah Chambers, '82, who had been a pupil of his in his school teaching days and who later than he became a graduate of the University. She traveled his whole professional and official career with him and upheld his hards in all his lofty undertakings. They raised a family of boys and girls, to know whom is to bring back the memory of the best qualities of both.

The above to those who did not know him may seem an undue eulogy. In fact it is not. Wilkin was one of those rare individualities that become in after years the subject of anecdote. He should be the subject of a symposium—Brindley and Bright and Brown and Bunn, and all the others of that remarkable coterie should be asked to contribute to the symposium. The writer knew Wilkin from the time he was a boy of twelve to the day of his death, and loved him in his lifetime and does honor his memory now that he is dead.—Charles T. Harding, '75.

Dr. Henry Baird Favill, '80, died of pneumonia, February 20th, after an illness of one week, at Springfield, Massachusetts, where he had gone to attend the meeting of the New England Dairymen's Association.

Born in Madison, August 14, 1860, he received his early education in the public schools, from which he graduated and entered the University of Wisconsin at the early age of 16. He received the degree of B.A. in the ancient classical course, in 1880, before he was 20. He graduated from Rush Medical College, Chicago, in February, 1883, and returned to Madison to enter the practice of medicine with his father. He was soon in command of a large and growing clientele. In 1888 he was tendered the position of demonstrator of anatomy in his medical alma mater, but he did not, at that time, feel that in justice to his family he could leave his assured practice in Madison. Moreover, although he had been in his student days prospector for the professor of anatomy, surgical practice, to which in those days anatomy was the usual stepping stone, never especially appealed to him.

In 1893, however, he yielded to the persuasion of some of his influential friends and admirers in Chicago, who felt that so strong a man should be at work in a larger field, and removed to Chicago, locating on the north side of the city, and here he continued in general and consultation practice for the remainder of his life. The conditions in that quarter of the city were ripe for the advent of such a man, and in a remarkably short time he was again absorbed in a large and exacting practice among people who demanded and who appreciated the faithful, capable service which he rendered.

Few men have possessed in such high degree all of the requisite qualifications for such a practice, and fewer still have made such good use of them. Of commanding physique and superb health—in part an inheritance from his Indian forbears, of whom he was very proud, and in part due to sane living of the out-of-door life—of fine address, and a cheerful, reassuring manner, he inspired confidence the moment he entered the sick room. His absolute integrity, his conscientious devotion to his work, his breadth of view, his high ideals, and his exceptionally sound judgment impressed his patrons not only in the sick-room, but in large matters of public interest and importance. And so in later years, they were glad to be guided by him in movements for the public weal, and to become his copartners and generous supporters in such activities.

He became adjunct professor of medicine in Rush Medical College in 1894, Ingals professor of therapeutics in 1898, and in 1906, professor of clinical medicine, offering bedside courses at the St. Luke's Hospital, of the staff of which he was for many years a member, as he was also of the staff of the Augustana Hospital, the Parsavant Hospital and others. He was, throughout his career in Chicago, professor of medicine in the Chicago Polyclinic.

Dr. Favill's largest service, however, was as a publicist, although largely in quasi-medical lines. This phase of his activities was entered upon with definite purpose, I think, about 1906, when he became one of the promoters and the president of the Chicago Tuberculosis Institute, Chicago's representation of the nation-wide anti-tuberculosis crusade. In this position he continued until the organization was taken over by the city government in 1913. It had grown under his directing hand and with financial support received almost wholly by him, to splendid proportions.

HENRY BAIRD FAVILL, '80

He was one of the founders, for some years a director, and some time president of the City Club, an organization which has done much to elevate and purify the standards of municipal government in Chicago. From 1910 to 1913 he was president of the Municipal Voters League, whose great accomplishment has been the purging of the City Council of its "gray wolves." Nowhere did his fine courage stand out more clearly than in his conduct of this difficult and trying position. It brought upon him scurrilous attempts to vilify his character, and his conscientious convictions compelled him to lines of action which directly affected the interests of some of his best patrons and estranged them to his considerable pecuniary loss, but he swerved not a jot from the performance of his duty as he saw it.

He was a member of many other societies, local and national, medical and otherwise, and had been president of the Chicago Medical Society, the largest local medical organization in the world, and of the Chicago Alumni Chapter of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity, of which fraternity he became a member in his sophomore year in college. He was or had been a director of the United Charities of Chicago, of the Physicians Club, of the Chicago Association of Commerce, a trustee of the Chicago Bureau of Public Efficiency, and a director of the National Society for Mental Hygiene.

Perhaps nothing illustrates more strikingly the wide scope of his interest and activities, or the impression he made on the men with whom he was in any way associated, than his election, not long before his death, to the presidency of the National Dairy Council. A few years ago he had purchased a farm near Lake Mills, Wisconsin, the home of his paternal ancestors, and had become interested in the breeding of dairy cattle. For him, however, this was an incidental diversion from an intensely busy life in lines far remote, and yet so strongly had his breadth of information about dairy cattle, and his efficiency in this avocation, impressed his fellow-members of the National Holstein Friesian Association, men, for the most part, devoted exclusively to farming and cattle-breeding, that they elected him to preside over their deliberations.

His largest field of public service he found in the last five years as member and chairman of the Council on Health and Public Instruction of the American Medical Association. This council, created in 1910, has for its function the advancement of the health interests of the people by education, the promotion of wise legislation, and in every possible way. No agency in America has done more to advance these interests than has the council since its organization. Its annual conference held in Chicago, in February of each year, over which he presided, have done more than any other agency to coordinate the work of the numerous local, state, and national bodies working along health lines. In this position he discovered rare administrative ability, and exceptional tact, wisdom, and power in selecting and directing the lines of activity of the council and in steering it clear of embarrassing political and other entanglements.

He was honored by election to Phi Beta Kappa, as an alumnus member, when the chapter of the fraternity was installed in the University a few years ago.

He was a student of the University under the regime of its great president, John Bascom, and he entertained the conviction, practically unanimous among the students of President Bascom's time, that in all that makes for noble manhood, for useful citizenship, and which prepares for and inspires one to a life of useful service to one's fellow-men, his debt to President Bascom was greater than to any other man or teacher who had had to do with the shaping of his character.

No alumnus who has gone forth from the University of Wisconsin has exemplified more effectively in a life of conscientious able service to humanity, the "inspiring instruction and lofty ideals of a great teacher" than did Henry Baird Favill.—John M. Dodson, '80.

RESOLVED, That the University of Wisconsin Club of Chicago has heard with profound sorrow of the death of Henry B. Favill, one of its most distinguished members.

He was respected by all who knew him for his lofty ideals, his elevation of soul, and for his great learning, which by much reflection had ripened into wisdom. He was a constant inspiration to the young and an example to them of what a good citizen should be. Professionally busy, he was never too busy to lend a helping hand to any enterprise which promised uplift to his fellows or to the community of which he was a part. Our loss is great but that of his immediate family is much greater.

RESOLVED, FURTHER, That we extend our profound sympathy to the members of his family, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to them.—A. E. Van Hagan, President.

HENRY B. FAVILL

How like a giant oak he constant stood,
His face forever turned to meet the blast;
The sturdy trunk rising to Heaven's light,—
Faith in the Future,—wisdom from the Past.

The Woodman now has felled the massive tree;
On Mother Earth its branches softly lie;
What a sad void doth mark the landscape fair
When monarchs full of life, like him, must die.
Beneath the sheltering arms rooted and grew
Full many a tender shoot to vigorous age;
He drew the lightning's blow, the thunders
crash

And saved the weaker things from Nature's rage.

But 'cross the fallen oak now streams the sun,
And smaller trees and seedlings thrive anew,—
So the warm life he fostered brings its fruit
To crown his life, so noble, tried and true.

F. D. Silber, '94.

Dr. Julius Nelson, professor of biology in Rutgers College, died at his home in New Brunswick, New Jersey on Tuesday afternoon, February 22, after a brief illness from grippe which passed into pneumonia. Professor Nelson was a graduate of the University with the class of 1881, and was one of the figures who will be best remembered by those who knew the institution in the late seventies and early eighties. He was married in 1888 to Nellie Chase, '82, of Madison, sister of Wilfred Chase, '99, and Dr. S. H. Chase of this city. Four children are now in residence at the University of Wisconsin—Thurlow C., assistant in zoology, Samuel Max, graduate student in economics, Theodora, '17, and Ingrid, '18. Another son and a daughter are at home. The funeral was held from the Rutgers College Chapel on Friday, February 25.—W. B. Cairns.

Professor Nelson, as a member of the class of 1881, was one of the first group of students to occupy the old Science Hall—the first science laboratory of the University. He profited largely by these new advantages since he was also one of the first students of the University to devote himself to science, and the first of my students to devote himself to biology, as distinguished from medicine.

He was one of our numerous successful students who have "put themselves through college." He told me at the end of his college course that he had expended in the four years less than $600. This situation, I always thought, rather added to the happiness of his life here, since he used to find in the adjustment of income and outgo the constant pleasure and interest of a scientific problem.

He went to Rutgers College on taking his doctor's degree at Johns Hopkins University in 1888 and his whole subsequent life was spent there, teaching and working at problems of pure and applied science. For years he had been investigating oyster culture on both the theoretical and practical sides, and here he made many important contributions to knowledge. These problems of science and teaching he handled with the same courage and skill and devotion that he showed as a student. His death takes suddenly away from his college and state an important influence in their scientific life.

It is hard for me to express the sense of loss which his death brings to me, both personally and as a teacher—if these two relations can be separated. The teacher looks to his students to carry on the work of the world after he has gone, and when one of them is taken away out of due time, the loss can never be made up. And the personal relation was peculiarly close in those earlier days when the University was young—as well as ourselves—and when science teaching under adequate conditions was also a new thing in Wisconsin.—Dean E. A. Birge.

Ellen Jewett Rountree, '94, died at the home of her sister, Mrs. Evan A. Evans, '99, in Baraboo on July 13. The Waterloo (Iowa) Times pays the following tribute to Miss Rountree: "She was one of the most successful teachers employed in the English department at the high school, and during the four years in which she was connected with the school, 1906-1910, she endeared herself to all the pupils."

Mrs. Arthur R. Crathorne (Charlotte Elvira Pengra), '97, died recently at her family home in Brodhead. She held a fellowship in mathematics for the two years following her graduation, and in 1901 she received her doctor's degree. Her husband, who was on the faculty from 1902 to 1904, is now professor of mathematics at Illinois.

Ole N. Trooien, '07, died at his home in Brookings, S. D., on December 21. He entered the graduate course in mechanical engineering after having served for four years on the faculty of the South Dakota State College, where he received his bachelor's degree in 1902 and his master's in 1904. He worked on the construction of the Hudson River tunnels and later on the staff of the Stone-Webster Company of Boston.

Many alumni will be grieved to learn of the death of Mrs. John Bascom on February 27 at her home in Williamstown, Mass., where she has lived since leaving Madison. Dr. Bascom was president of the University from 1873 to 1887. The Springfield Republican says: "The 14 years spent in Madison were undoubtedly in some sense, the fullest of her life."

Judge Belden has always been an interested loyal alumnus, and has been a useful member of the Board of Visitors for several years. After graduation he spent a year in the office of the attorney general, and then located in the City of Racine. He was elected County Judge of Racine County at the age of twenty-two years. He was twice re-elected without opposition, and served in that position for twelve years. He was then elected Judge of the First Judicial Court, has been twice re-elected without opposition, and has an enviable record as a jurist. Probably no judge has a wider or more favorable acquaintance throughout the State. He has held court in every circuit and in all but four or five counties, thus coming in touch with all phases of litigation in all parts of the State. He has presided frequently in the City of Milwaukee and tried many important cases. It is said that fewer appeals from his decisions have been taken and fewer cases reversed than any judge in the State for a like period of service. CAMPUS NOTES

The University Band, under the direction of Major J. E. Saugstad, made a successful tri-state tour from

MAJOR J. E. SAUGSTAD

February 9 to 15. They visited Baraboo, St. Cloud, Minn., Valley City, N. Dak., Fargo, N. Dak., Fergus Falls, Minn., and Eau Claire.

The Society for the Promotion of Training for Public Service has just issued the first number of its monthly, The Public Servant.

One of the aims of the society is to secure University credit for practical public service work which Charles A. Beard of Columbia says "is undoubtedly a serious matter and must be closely controlled, but it is fundamental to any real advance in training for public service. That it can be done without impairment of academic standards I have no doubt." Charles McCarthy, '01, and Zona Galé, '95, are on the board of directors.

The Engineers Minstrels gave their biennial production at the Fuller on March 11 and 12.

Athena captured its fifth consecutive forensic trophy by winning the banner presented by President Van Hise to the debating society scoring the highest in the annual oratorical contests. Atheneans will represent Wisconsin in both the Northern Oratorical League Contest at the University of Illinois and the Hamilton contest at Chicago. Milo K. Swanton, '16, will speak in the former and Forest Black, '16, in the latter.

"The School Review," March, contains an article by C. H. Judd, entitled "Wisconsin Repudiates Professional Training of Teachers." Dr. Judd deplors that the state superintendent, the Board of Regents, and some departments of the University do not insist upon a minimum of 17 credits in Psychology and Pedagogy, the standard set by the division which has charge of the training of teachers.

Admiral Robert E. Peary lectured on his Arctic explorations in the Gymnasium on the evening of February 22.

"The Survey" for December 25 contains an article entitled "Madison," by George H. Mead, professor of philosophy, University of Chicago. It is an interesting discussion of the position of the University of Wisconsin through the state political agitation of 1914; the expensive survey by Allen and his staff and the legislative fight of 1915, with indications these offer of the place the State University holds in the community.

Chi Phi is the latest addition to Wisconsin's Greek letter societies. The local society, Red Triangle, has been installed as the Kappa chapter of the national organization.

"Collections on Labor and Socialism," compiled by John R. Commons, gives a summary of the State Historical Society's material in these fields. Professor Commons says that the collections constitute "unquestionably the most complete material of the history of the labor movement in America which has been collected in any library."

County news-letters, made up of items about the students from various Wisconsin towns and about the University in general, are prepared as part of the laboratory work of the students in journalism. The letters are sent to the papers of the state.

Many farmers, merchants, and professional men are taking advantage of the correspondence course in the construction and operation of motor cars given by the University.

Class politics witnessed a decided innovation this semester when a noon convocation was held at which each candidate for a sophomore office was allowed five minutes in which to present his candidacy to his classmates. The success of the scheme warrants its continuance in the future for all classes.

The Senior Class Play, "The Road to Yesterday" will be given at the Orpheum on June 19 and 20. Miss Johnson of the public speaking department is directing the production.

William H. Orpet, a junior in journalism, has been indicted by the grand jury of Lake County, Illinois, for the murder of Marian Lambert.

The "Point System" which was adopted by the faculty last December will go into effect with the present freshman class. "Points" will be awarded as follows: For grade excellent, three points per hour of credit; for good, two points; for fair, one point; for poor, no point, but credit allowed. The required number of hours for graduation is retained. Assistant Dean Roe has prepared an article on the new system which will be published in a subsequent issue.

The War and Peace Conference which was organized last year will continue its meetings during the present semester. The Conference, which is composed of fifty selected upper-classmen, meets bi-weekly for the discussion of military and conciliation problems under the leadership of a faculty member.

The 1916 Junior Prom, unlike those of the past three years, was a financial success. The total receipts were $2,549.90 while the expenses were $2,100.15, leaving a profit of $449.75 which will go into the treasury of the class.

Delta Upsilon won the interfraternity basketball championship with Theta Delta Epsilon second and Sigma Phi third.

Dr. Thomas Sewell Adams of the department of political economy, who has been lecturing at Cornell University on leave of absence, has tendered his resignation to the Regents to take effect June 30, at which time he will receive an appointment to the faculty of Sheffield Scientific School of Yale.

A Chilean Scholarship for the year 1916-1917 has been granted to C. Garcia Burr by the Regents.

Professor W. D. Frost of the department of bacteriology has been granted leave of absence for three weeks for the purpose of working on a new method for the determination of the bacterial content of milks at the Harvard Medical School.

Ten Wisconsin alumni have seats in the national legislature at Washington. Three are in the Senate and seven in the House. This gives Wisconsin fifth place in the representation by colleges.

A model farm house will be built by the University for demonstration work as to type of construction and arrangement and equipment. The house will be used by the home economics department in their course in house management. The wood for the building will be given by the northern hemlock and hardwood association.

Excavation work has begun for the new stadium at Camp Randall.

BOOK NOTES

Free Speech for Radicals by Theodore Schroeder, '89, which illustrates the free speech struggle by some incidents of our industrial war, has been issued in an enlarged edition.

Being Well Born (Bobbs-Merrill) by Michael F. Guyer, professor of zoology, University of Wisconsin, is the latest volume of the Childhood and Youth Series edited by Professor M. V. O'Shea. It examines into the natural endowment of the child by first studying the physical mechanism by which hereditary traits are transmitted, then reviewing the principles of genetics and their application to human heredity, and finally giving an account of the new science of eugenics. It presents present-day scientific knowledge on heredity in such a way that it can be read by all who are interested in the study of human nature, or who are charged with the care and culture of the young.

The Operation of the Initiative, Referendum, and Recall in Oregon (Macmillan) by James D. Barnett, Ph.D. '05, professor of political science, University of Oregon, offers to the student of government a mass of well arranged material collected and explained by a trained observer who has seen these instruments of direct legislation in actual operation.

Problems of Readjustment after the War, a series of seven essays by an equal number of eminent specialists in economics, sociology, political science, history, international law, and military science, contains a study of "The War and International Commerce and Finance" by Emory R. Johnson, B. L., '88, M. L., '91, professor of transportation and commerce in the University of Pennsylvania. The essay discusses the probable economic effects of the war upon international banking and finance, upon foreign trade and ocean shipping, and upon immigration. (Appleton, $1.00).

Effective Business Letters by Edward H. Gardner, assistant professor of English, is a useful handbook which contains in systematic form the principles embodied in the best modern business letters. Professor Gardner has had charge of the work in business correspondence for the Course in Commerce for the last five years and his book is developed from that work. (Ronal Press Company, 20 Vesey Street, New York City, $2.00).

The subject matter of Practical Track Work by Kenneth L. Van Auken, B. S. (C. E.) '09, is handled by one who has studied track work as a track man since the author was formerly an extra gang foreman for the Chicago and Northwestern Railway. The volume contains 200 pages of reading matter dealing with such subjects as labor and organization, the various phases and methods of track construction, slip switches, and new track surfacing. There are twenty tables, a glossary of five hundred words compiled entirely by the author, and forty-seven original diagrams. (The Railway Educational Press, Chicago, $1.50).

To Wisconsin Men Everywhere:

For some time past THE WISCONSIN ALUMNI MAGAZINE has been running a "Classified Directory" containing the names of individuals and firms with University of Wisconsin connections in various parts of the country.

We now propose to develop this department and make it more directly than ever before a comprehensive directory of alumni business and professional men.

We do not propose to make it a series of advertisements, but purely a business and professional register of our alumni. We believe it will be helpful to our growing constituency, and also to those whose names appear in the list. The space will be as heretofore, one-half inch deep and one column wide, price five dollars a year, including membership dues and magazine subscription.

It is desired that the new and enlarged directory begin in our next issue and we shall esteem it a great favor if you would let us have the acceptance of the suggestion by return mail.

It is needless to say that your participation in this plan will help us to strengthen the magazine on the financial side, and, we trust, will justify itself in our consequent ability to undertake the desired improvements. We may add that other alumni publications maintain similar directories; for example, the Brown Alumni Monthly and the Princeton Alumni Weekly, which include lawyers, architects, insurance and investment brokers, and other business and professional men in their lists.

Asking your co-operation, we remain, in the bonds of Wisconsin friendship,

Yours very sincerely,

THE WISCONSIN ALUMNI ASSOCIATION.

SUMMER MILITARY CAMPS FOR STUDENTS

(Furnished by the Advisory Committee of University Presidents)

THESE camps have now been in operation for three successive summers under the direction of the War Department. In their growth and admirable management during the past two summers of 1914 and 1915, they have more than fulfilled the expectations of those endorsing them.

The students attending are under careful oversight. The excellence of food, sanitation, and medical care, has been well maintained. The students have an ideal five weeks' outing, pleasurable and beneficial to them, and the instruction, drill, cavalry exercises, field manoeuvres, field surveying and field work generally, give them in the continuous five weeks' training, an insight into military matters. They are, in addition to this regular work, given ample time for recreation and rest.

We commend the camps to the authorities and students of the universities and colleges of the country. The training and instruction not only emphasize the dangers and losses of wars lightly and unpreparedly entered into, but the training given is excellent, and a great benefit, mental and physical, to the students attending.

Signed by the following presidents: J. G. Hibben, chairman, Princeton; H. S. Drinker, secretary, Lehigh; A. L. Lowell, Harvard; A. T. Hadley, Yale; J. H. Finley, New York; H. B. Hutchins, Michigan; G. H. Denny, Alabama; E. W. Nichols, Virginia Military Institute; B. L. Wheeler, California; J. G. Schurman, Cornell; E. J. James, Illinois; J. H. Kirkland, Vanderbilt; A. C. Humphreys, Stevens Institute of Technology; and H. A. Garfield, Williams.
