ORATORIO THIS EVENING

SECOND CONCERT OF THE CHORAL UNION.

FINAL CHORUS REHEARSAL THIS AFTERNOON.

List of the Ushers—Will begin at 8 O'clock.

Tonight the great musical event of the year, the rendition of Haydn's immortal "Creation," will be given at the Armory building by the Madison Choral union. This is the second appearance of the union in an undertaking of this kind, the first being the production of Handel's "Messiah," at the time of the new gymnasium's dedication last year. The new departure proved a great success, and tonight's effort will undoubtedly be even more successful. The chorus has been in constant training ever since the beginning of the year and the final rehearsal took place this afternoon. The entire orchestra, and the three soloists were present and everything passed off in a satisfactory manner. Professors Parker and Sired of the College of Music, to whom the success of these entertainments is principally due, expressed the most sanguine expectations of the production this evening. "It will surpass anything of like nature ever attempted in the state," was the universal opinion. Of the soloists little need be said, as their exceptional merit for entertainments of this kind is too well known to need comment. Mrs. Bishop and Messrs. Knorr and Clark are equalled by few oratorio soloists. The orchestra will be the largest ever seen in the city, being composed of the combined orchestras of Madison with thirty-four pieces from Bach's orchestra of Milwaukee. Theodore Kelbe will have the direction of this part of the concert. The sale of seats has been progressing very favorably and at this writing only a few reserved seats are left. Chairs have been reserved by sections, there being four in all—A, B, C and D, all the seats in this part of the house being first class and near the stage. The ushers for the evening are eight university young ladies, Agnes Basset, Ella Guile, Jessie Hand, Bessie Steenberg, Jessie Shepherd, Helen Brown, Anna Flint and Martha James. The performance will commence promptly at 8 p. m. From present indications it will be the greatest musical treat which Madison has ever had, and anyone who stays away without a good reason will certainly be paying a great price by missing so rare a chance.

CONTEMPORARY CLUB.

The Contemporary club will meet tomorrow, Wednesday evening, at the Unitarian church at 8 o'clock. Rev. W. D. Simonds will speak on "The Moral and Immoral in Literature" and Prof. Storm Bull will describe the central heating plant of the university of Wisconsin. All are invited.

GOVERNOR UPHAM TO SPEAK

Will Address the State Agricultural Society.

The Wisconsin State Agricultural society will hold its annual convention in the capitol beginning today and ending Friday. This evening in the assembly chamber Gov. Upham will address the society. Profs. Russels and King of the College of Agriculture will also appear on the program during the week. The students of the School of Agriculture in particular are urged to be present at as many sessions as possible.

ROWING AT COLUMBIA.

The candidates for the 'Varsity crew at Columbia college have been reduced to thirteen. The weight of each man has increased in almost every case, thus raising the average weight to about 165 pounds. Yesterday for the first time a whole eight was put on the machines. No exact order of the way the men are likely to row can be announced as yet, as each man is being tried individually in different places. The thirteen men who remain are: Prentice, captain; Fish, Carter, Irving, Miles, MacGregor, Snyder, Hudby, Norton, Gennert, Pierrepont, Putnam, Pressprich.

It is almost certain that a triangular race will take place between Columbia, Cornell and University of Pennsylvania. An answer to the challenge is expected at any time.

The class crews are going to meet soon to elect captains, as it has been decided by the rowing committee to have the class regatta about May 1. This event will probably take place on the Hudson, as it has been proposed to move the boathouse from the foot of 145th street and the Harlem river to the Hudson river. If this is done, it will be placed at the foot of the college grounds, 116th street.

One of the main objects in moving the boathouse is to enable the crews to become accustomed to rough water once in a while, as on the placid Harlem there is seldom a day that the water is as rough as the smoothest day on the Thames. The rough water heretofore has always been a drawback to Columbia crews when they reached New London. The boathouse is at present undergoing repairs, and as soon as the weather permits it will be removed.

The freshmen are also rowing in eights and no doubt before long a general idea can be formed as to how the crew will be made up. The average weight is somewhat smaller than last year, and until the training begins to show on the men no idea as to their prospects can be formed.

—LeRoy Thomas, '98, spent Sunday at his home in Superior.

—James Solon, '97, is very sick with typhoid fever.

—E. R. Stevens, law '95, spent Sunday at his home in Janesville.

—Wm. Schumann, Ph. '96, is visiting friends in Dubuque, Iowa, for a few days.

—B. E. Tilton, '97, has returned to the university, after having spent several weeks at his home in Oshkosh.

—E. W. Hirschburg, '98, received a visit from his mother and brother over Sunday.

ABOUT ENGLISH CONSTITUTION

ITS GROWTH THROUGH THE COMMONWEALTH.

STRUGGLE BETWEEN CHARLES AND PARLIAMENT.

The Doctrine of the Divine Right of Kings—The English Revolution.

Prof. Parkinson continued his lecture on the English constitution from the reign of James I. Briefly stated he said:

"The title of James I. was good and he endeavored to make it stand fast and divine against the divine right of the people. To make his subjects fear him was the great hobby of James I.

Charles I. inherited the idea of "Divine right of kings" and was at first more popular than his father. Charles had two great failings: first, he misunderstood the kingship of Great Britain. Secondly, he was faithless in his conduct toward parliament. He executed many without the consent of parliament and imprisoned many who did not respond to his call for loans. The Bill of Rights, while the third parliament of 1628 enacted provided that no money should be raised without the consent of parliament; no persons should be committed to prison for the non-payments of debts; that no soldiers should be guaranteed for enforcement of loans; and prohibiting the employment of martial law. To this bill Charles finally yielded but broke its provisions and again arbitrarily levied loans. He dissolved parliament and for eleven years ruled despotically without the council of his people.

The long parliament of 1640 passed the resolutions that it should not be dissolved without its own consent; and further that a parliament should convene at least once in three years. After the exclusion of the bishops from the House of Lords trouble ensued which led to a disruption between Charles and parliament, ending in his execution.

The divine right of kings was sincerely maintained by Charles and parliament he regarded as a mere machine for his own use. Upon the execution of the king, there still remained amongst the people a regard for the royal authority, and dignity of a king. The Magna Charta still remained as a precedent, to which all England clung as a statute of liberty. While French revolutions have overturned and scattered to the wind all former governments, England in her political changes has never forsaken the good and righteous laws of her predecessors. Of the two exponents of their time, Napoleon was the giant child of the French revolution but Oliver Cromwell was a product of his time.

—Prof. Miller will not meet his classes until Wednesday, on account of his illness.

—Cyrus Dolph, '96, has resumed his work on the hill after a two weeks' sickness with pneumonia.

"AN AWFUL BUTCHERY."

A member of the German faculty of Yale has furnished a translation of an account in a German paper on the Harvard-Yale football game at Springfield. It is interesting as showing the ideas of American sports which are presented to the German public. The account comes from the Muenchener Neuste Nachrichten, under the head of "Brutal Sport."

"From New York the following is reported to the Madeburger Gazette:

"The football tournament between the teams of Harvard and Yale in Springfield had terrible results. It turned into an awful butchery. Of twenty-two participants seven were so severely injured that they had to be carried from the field in a senseless condition. The vertebral column of one was put out of joint; a second one's nose was broken; a third lost an eye and a fourth broke his leg. The rest suffered severe internal injuries.

"The intention to injure each other in all their attacks was clearly evident. Therefore there can be no question of accident. Furthermore both teams appeared upon the field with a crowd of doctors, ambulances and attendants, which from the very start did not fail of producing a gruesome impression upon the spectators.

"Many ladies were present who fainted away at the awful cries of the injured players. The indignation felt towards the brutality of the students was powerful, but terror so dominated the spectators that nobody dared interfere.

"From other towns, too, incidents of brutality in football are reported. In Shreve (Ohio) and in Worcester (Mass.) they resulted in the death of a young man at each place.

"Many professors at the universities are openly proclaiming in the newspapers their disgust at this disgraceful sport and protest against allowing its continuance. They are complaining a great deal about the behavior in general of a majority of the students. The study of the sciences has become a side issue.

"The cult of all possible sports dominates all the colleges to such an extent that the parents of the students are in despair about the matter without being able to make any headway against the abuse."

Mr. Gruener, who furnished this translation, thinks he sees a political motive in this fiction, and is of the opinion that the papers printing such reports were misled by those who sought thus to influence the popular mind against the introduction of American and English athletic sports, which the Emperor favors.—Harvard Crimson.

"A course in the theories of poetry has been started at Yale."—Ex. This is a deviation from other college courses only in a transposition of terms. For many years college men have been studying the poetry of theories.

"More than 4,000 American college men are now preparing for the ministry."—Ex. This would argue a rough thing of it for charity balls in the future were it not for the mitigating feature that the rest of the college men are now preparing for the charity balls.

Only this week has the attention of students in general been called to the fact that two students have been relieved of overcoats, left in the rotunda during recitation hours. This is by no means the first time of such an occurrence, indeed it has almost become an old story and an exceedingly tiresome one at that. If the rotunda is an unsafe place to leave garments, some means must be adopted for watching the locality, during the periods of morning hours. Any one in so desperate need of an overcoat at this time of the year could gladly be supplied with them, if really entitled to one, by many students who would give up old clothes very willingly. But when it comes to depriving one of a protection against the severe weather of the past weeks with no possible clue to the offender it is time some stop is taken. Stop the mischief.

COMMUNICATION.

To the Editor of the Cardinal: There appeared in the last issue of the Cardinal, the partially completed arrangements of the much looked for Junior Promenade.

I hardly dare to write for fear that my overwhelming disgust and contempt of, and unlimited zeal to reverse, the wrong that has been instituted by a particular sect, to the exclusion of the students at large, in regard to the issue of preliminary programs, will cause my pen to express it too strong to have the desired effect.

In submitting this criticism, it is fully realized that the committee is not entirely or in any great extent to blame, for doubtless they gravely considered the question, and came to the conclusion that preliminary engagements would be made, at all events and that it would be better to authorize them, but they have made a decided error.

It is beyond all bounds of courtesy or justice to the ladies, and their friends, to allow their escorts, to fill out their engagements, among his friends, not her's, so as to exclude others from enjoying their company.

The evils of this practice was well illustrated in the last athletic ball given in the Armory, where this thing first occurred, and was there denounced by all reasonable minded students of both sexes.

Then, and much more will it be now, that the dances of some of the ladies, were virtually awarded to the highest bidder

The class parties of times by-gone, served to enable the students to become better acquainted with each other and to enjoy a social hop. This party in the absence of others, should serve a like purpose, and tend to familiarize the students at large and not for the exclusive enjoyment of a particular sect, who are already well acquainted, and who become so through their own private gatherings.

The way to effect this popular reform, is for the committee to discourage and unauthorize such preliminary engagements, and for the ladies to not permit their programs to go into the hands of their escorts for canvas, and if this sentiment can be established in a good number of those who love justice and right, the affair can be made the most enjoyable that the university has ever witnessed. If the arrangement committee wish the assistance of the students in general, as they do, it will be to their great advantage to take proper steps to avoid this exclusion, above referred to, as this communication expresses the sentiment of a large proportion of the student body.

PENNSYLVANIA-CORNELL DEBATE.

All arrangements for the second annual debate between the university of Pennsylvania and Cornell, which is to be held in Philadelphia on March 8, have been completed, except the selection of judges, of whom the president of Pennsylvania appoints two and Cornell's president one. The subject for debate is: "Resolved, that the most effective means of restricting the liquor traffic is to eliminate the element of private profits." Pennsylvania selected the question and Cornell, who had the choice of sides, took the affirmative. The debaters, who were selected on both sides by public competition, are: Pennsylvania, Douglass, '97 Law, Riley, '95, and Parker, '95; Cornell, Chapman, '95, Fordham, '95 Law, and Belden, '95 Law. The first debate between these universities was held in Ithaca last year and was won by Pennsylvania. The judges gave the latter 66 points and Cornell 65.

SCHOLARSHIPS AT DARTMOUTH.

The system of scholarships at Dartmouth has been revised and will go into effect at the beginning of the next college year. There are two scholarships of $100, one of $125 and one of $150, which will be given to the four students needing aid who pass the highest entrance examinations. There are four scholarships the same as the above for each of the three upper classes. These scholarships will be distributed to the four in each of those classes who shall pass the highest examinations and at the same time need help financially. In addition to these there are a large number of $50 scholarships to be given to those who need the help of the college. These $50 scholarships were formerly $70. Under the new system the applicant receives a guarantee of $50 and as much above that as his average in his studies shall exceed 50 per cent. The tuition has also been raised $10, making it $100.

THE AUDIENCE WAS ASTONISHED.

"Standing room only," was the reply to the late comers at the Fuller Opera house, last evening, and it will be so for many evenings during this week. Only a man like Dr. Flint, with his wonderful hypnotic entertainment could hold such a crowd spellbound through the entire performance. The audience, many of whom had come scoffing and doubting the doctor's marvelous claims, left the building with a new revelation dawning upon them. To see staid and sober men completely lose control of themselves, and obey the slightest, indicated wish, of a little child is almost past belief, yet it was seen last night and will continue to be seen every night during the week. The thrilling rock-breaking experiment completed the performance as advertised, and capped the climax of the evening's entertainment. A complete change of programme will be given to-night.

THE YALE "Y."

The Yale Gymnastic association has decided to confer a "Y" on the college gymnast in the following way: Through the winter, contests are held in eight different gymnastic events and the man who wins the greatest number of points becomes the gymnast for the year. First place in each event counts five points and second place three points. One meeting has already been held and three of the events decided. One "Y," and only one, will be conferred by the association and that "Y" to the man winning the college gymnastic championship for the year. This method, it is believed, will act as a stimulus to a higher degree of excellence in gymnastic training.

YALE FOOTBALL BANNERS.

Handsome banners have been presented to the members and substitutes of the Yale University eleven by the Football association. The banners are of blue silk, two and one-half by three and one-half feet in size, with a border of gold fringe. They are mounted on varnished poles seven feet in length, at the top of which is a gilt eagle. The wording on the one side is: "Yale University Football association, 1894—Springfield, November 24. Yale 12, Harvard 4. New York, December 1. Yale 24, Princeton 0. Below this is given the name of the player and his position. The reverse side contains the names of the men who played in the Harvard or Princeton game and hence receive banners.

They are: F. A. Hinkey, '95 (Capt.); A. M. Beard, '95; J. A. McCrea, '95 S.; P. T. Stillman, '95 S.; W. O. Hickock, '95 S.; F. T. Murphy, '97; L. Hinkey, '97; G. T. Adey, '95; S. B. Thorne, '96; A. MICHIGAN-NORTHWESTERN DEBATE.

The question for debate between the U. of M. and the Northwestern university is as follows: "Resolved, that the United States government should build and control the Nicaragua canal." On this subject Michigan has choice of sides, as it was proposed by the Northwestern.

—The Yale-Princeton point debate takes place May 1st.

The secretary of the interior has granted permission to J. B. Through the generosity of Mr. Augustus Mendenway of Boston, the Harvard gymnasium will be enlarged by the building of a considerable addition. The present building will be extended forty-six feet and will contain ample accommodations for 28 shower baths, 2354 lockers, and a hot water tank with a capacity of 1000 gallons.
