ADDRESS TO THE GRADUATING CLASS

By

President of the University

Members of the Graduating Class:

EVERY college class whose life has touched or included the years of the war may note some singular claim of its own for distinction; you also will be able to find something unique in your relation to the period. High school graduation for most of you came a few weeks after our country declared war, and as you stand here, four years later, Congress is still squabbling over the terms in which peace shall be proclaimed a few days hence. No other class can claim so close a coincidence with the practical and official continuance of the war as does the Class of 1921.

You are fortunate above your fellows in Europe in that you are not forced to go out from college into a country devastated by war, impoverished, and vainly seeking relief. You do not go out into a people urged by distress into blindly contending factions. Yet you, too, enter a world more changed during the four years of your college life than in any similar succession of years in the past.

It is this fact that calls out these last words of mine, and, speaking now as the representative of Wisconsin, I address them especially to you who are the children of our State, though I am not unmindful of the many others among you who in their own states and countries will find the words of equal significance.

You go out from this hall to take part in a society more altered by legislation than could have been dreamed possible four years ago when you came here as freshmen—a world changed economically almost beyond recognition, and spiritually perplexed beyond measure by the contending voices of rival propagandists.

At such a time it is right that I should remind you of the heritage that belongs to you as graduates of the State University of Wisconsin.

I need not, indeed, remind you that you are Americans—the war years showed this—and that upon you rests in full measure the responsibility of maintaining the honor and the traditions of our country. But I may ask you to hold in mind those peculiar traditions that belong to you as citizens of a state organized out of the old Northwest Territory. Upon you in an especial sense falls the duty of preserving those principles on which your fathers based the permanence of the state—that coherence and mobility of society out of which together comes democracy. There is reason for recalling this duty to you, for the unsettling excitement of war has broken the connection of many minds with their past. They no longer see in themselves or their fellows the children of their fathers, and they fancy themselves in a new world detached from all past history. Thus there are today no few persons who urge us to abandon entirely the democracy which your fathers established here in Wisconsin. For in place of that "vast democracy made up of mobile ascending individuals" which the men of the frontier made a living reality here in our commonwealth, they would substitute a state made up of classes, of permanent castes, of interests, engaged in constant economic conflict.

You, at least, who have found on this campus not only the bounty but the life of Wisconsin cannot share their error. For you have found here institutions which embody in a peculiar and visible way the spirit of those who founded our commonwealth. Here you have lived in daily contact with the work of those agencies to which they looked for its maintenance and its progress.

So I would have you think of the education symbolized by the diploma which each of you receives today—not only as representing the provision of the present state for future stability and prosperity; but even more truly as the gift of your fathers who founded here a democratic State and made education the central power to maintain it. Your diploma is the title to your heritage from them. In a deeper sense than any other children of the State you have received an inheritance in their great achievement. It is transmitted to you in order that you may ward it against the "passing of the days that devour and the years that heap the dust over the work of men" and even more that in your possession "their memories, their very life and their hopes for the days to be" may be fulfilled in the commonwealth of Wisconsin.

"The American University should be a place of spiritual inspiration as well as of technical training and not only should an adequate cultural training be required as a preparation for or as a part of all professional and technical university education, but the fundamentals of a genuinely liberal education must ever remain the soundest and the safest elements in the preparation for a truly human life."

COOPERATION is an easy theme to advocate and to preach. It is not always so simple to practise. Much has been said from time to time by students, by faculty members, by governing boards, and by graduates about the desirability of cooperation of these various groups mentioned. All too frequently it seems one group goes ahead and does something and other groups find fault with what is done or point out how better results might have been secured. An opportunity now presents itself for real cooperation. Responsibility as to whether such cooperation be tried rests with the Board of Regents. Our present Commencement schedule is a traditional relic of times when this institution was small in size and local in character. The time is now at hand for a committee, on which the Student body, Faculty, the Regents, the Board of Visitors, and the Alumni organization have equal representation, to investigate and report on the Commencement schedules in force in other institutions, and to make recommendations as to how any parts of these may be fitted into the Wisconsin plan, or to recommend a modified or an entirely new plan. Some institutions have the Dix plan. Some institutions hold the Commencement exercises while the undergraduates are still in regular attendance at the institution. Some institutions turn the Alumni Day program over to the twenty-fifth year reunion class. Many institutions make more serious, elaborate and expensive preparations to be real hosts to their returning alumni than does the University of Wisconsin. Certain institutions have successfully inaugurated departmental receptions. While we hold no brief for any of these other plans, we believe that many of them contain features which with some modifications might be well suited for us at Wisconsin. We can see no harm in a committee representing the various elements mentioned in looking into the matter and formulating a report, making recommendations, and earnestly trying to improve the present more or less archaic plan now in force at Wisconsin. Mention probably should be made also of the fact that some institutions begin Commencement on Saturday and complete their exercises on Monday. Radical changes might secure us a worse plan than we now have, but unbiased consideration of these various plans should we earnestly believe be made without unnecessary delay.

Is a special publication needed for recording in full Commencement activities? The scholarly Baccalaureate address, the Commencement speeches, the special dedicatory exercises, the

What Do You Say? Class Day activities, the Pipe of Peace ceremony, and so forth, are these worthy of a special printed and illustrated publication? Whether such publication should be distributed free or whether a cost price should be placed upon it is a further question that University officials might well consider. There is no denying the growing demand on the part of many former students for some sort of an official annual publication, gotten out by the institution, containing full details and if possible some illustrations. Is it worth while to dedicate buildings with fitting exercises and have no permanent printed record? Are full and accurate published proceedings necessary?

That, in addition to the many former students who returned to Madison because of class reunions, several hundred members of classes not holding reunions this year also registered at Alumni Headquarters, is significant. Names of those who so registered are printed at the end of Class News notes. Glance at these many names. See that your own appears often in the years to come.

COMMENCEMENT WEEK

The Library School

Wednesday, June 15, 8 P. M.

THE Commencement exercises for the fifteenth class of the Library School were held in its lecture room, second floor of the City Library Building. The address, Women in Public Life, was given by Justice B. W. Jones, '70, of the Wisconsin Supreme Court. President Birge gave the charge to the graduates. An informal reception by the faculty concluded the program.

Commencement Concert

Friday, June 17, 8 P. M.

The annual Commencement Concert of the School of Music, was given in Music Hall. The program was rendered by students of the School.

Baccalaureate Exercises

Sunday, June 19, 4 P. M.

In the Gymnasium. The address was given by President Edward A. Birge, on

The Pioneer Spirit in Education. This instructive address pointed out that as many diplomas were to be granted this year as were granted in the first third of the University's life, that the five thousand graduates of the short course in agriculture received inspiration from and made increasing demands upon research departments, that the great practical problem is how to serve the needs of the day, how to solve the problems of the State and yet remain true to the historic calling of a university, and that "the temper of the pioneer has been developed in our state universities in a degree unknown in any other institutions of learning."

Madison pastors assisted at the exercises, and musical numbers were furnished by the School of Music.

Class Day

Monday, June 20, 9 A. M.

Meeting of the Alumni Board at Alumni Headquarters, 821 State street.

The meeting was called to order by President Israel Shrimski, ex '88. Those answering roll call were Mrs. T. E. Brittingham, '89, Helen B. Smith, '19, Dr. V. S. Falk, '11, Robert McMynn, '94, and R. S. Crawford, '03, General Secretary; F. H. Clausen, '97, and C. N. Brown, '81, treasurer, sent their proxies to Mr. Crawford; L. F. Van Hagen, '04, was unable to be present.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

The Secretary announced that there was no unfinished business to report to the Board. It has been customary, but not necessary, for the Treasurer to bring his report to this meeting, and for the Secretary to make a sort of summarized report of the year's expenditure. Owing to important business Mr. Brown was unable to be present. He informed Mr. Crawford over the telephone that the most outstanding fact in his report was the large increase, about 670 per cent, in Life Membership during the past year.

With regard to the Secretary's report, Mr. Crawford announced that it is a brief resumé of affairs already mentioned in the official publication. During the year the growth of the Association has been wonderfully healthy. In addition to the impetus given membership, by the class of 1921, which joined as a body, by the action of the class of 1881 which joined as a class, and by the action of the Pittsburgh Club which has made membership in the Alumni Association requisite to membership in the local club, there has been no year in the Association's history in which so many other new members have come in. Last year the MAGAZINE circulation was about five thousand copies a month. At the present moment the circulation has increased to nearly seven thousand which means a growth in the Association of about a thousand members aside from those unit increases by classes or clubs.

The matter of Life Membership has already been covered by the Treasurer's report. Although the Association may look with pride on the fact that there are now fifteen thousand dollars in the funds, it may still look with envy to Michigan and Minnesota which have similar trust funds amounting to three times more than the funds our Association. The Alumni Association hopes to do everything it can to increase the popularity of the Life Membership plan.

There is another fund started by Doctor Vilas, known as the Living Endowment Fund to which but little time or attention has ever been given, and which is a very good way of increasing the revenue. The Living Endowment Fund may be used for any purpose that the Board sees fit. At such time as the Board may wish to consider the matter, Mr. Crawford said he was willing to submit a report on the matter particularly as to the success of such a fund in the Texas University Alumni Association. He also emphasized the fact that the contributors to the Living Endowment Fund have been very loyal and there have been no withdrawals.

The Secretary drew further attention to the growth of the work of the Association. According to old records, in 1895 there were apparently 250 members of the General Alumni Association, and they paid 250 dollars. This sum is considerably less than the present heavy postage bill some months. The job printing bill for May alone is considerably over 250 dollars aside from the MAGAZINE printing. In 1915 the membership was approximately 2500. Mr. Crawford did not think that it would be over optimistic to state that membership would reach the seventy five hundred mark this fall in the campaign towards ten thousand members.

In connection with the Treasurer's report, the Secretary felt that the Board should be warned against feeling too prosperous. There was still outstanding obligations of about two thousand dollars.

Mr. Crawford drew the attention of the Board to the quality of the present MAGAZINE, asking whether it would be desirable to attempt to print a more elaborate publication on better paper with a more expensive cover. He also put before the Board the question of the desirability of issuing a twelve-month publication, and whether in this instance it would be advisable to increase the dues. It was the recommendation of the Secretary last year that dues be not raised, but rather that Life Membership be emphasized. With that suggestion, however, mention was made at the same time that eventually it might be necessary to raise the dues. Now that there is a large summer school the Secretary felt that there is a legitimate demand on the part of many for an alumni publication issued each month in the year. If no increase in the number of issues of the official publication is made he felt that the dues of two dollars should be sufficient for the present. If an increase in the number of issues is made he felt that an increase of 25 cents per additional issue would be sufficient. In other words, if twelve issues per year were to be supplied instead of ten, the dues should be $2.50 instead of two dollars. He also suggested that it might be well for all members of the Association to vote on this subject, and that, following the decision secured through such a vote, the Board might try to give the members as nearly as possible the type of publication they desired.

Under the constitution the Board is to recommend to the Alumni Council a member for the Board of Visitors. As the term of W. A. Rogers, '88, expires he must be reelected or a successor must be chosen. Attention was called to the fact that Mr. Rogers represented a desirable out-of-state attitude on the Board as his residence is in Chicago. Consequently, if Mr. Rogers does not care to continue the Board might still care to consider some other out-of-the-state representative. In recognition of the loyal and active alumni work done by a number of the women graduates in Chicago the Board expressed some desire to consider members of the Chicago U. W. Alumnae Club in this connection, and made some inquiries regarding individual members thereof.

The Secretary's report was then declared open for discussion.

Mr. Shrimski said that the question of out-of-the-state visitors was worthy of consideration because such members may bring to the Board of Visitors' conferences certain points of view which may be different from the points of view of residents of the State. Motion was then made and carried that Alice Bemis, '18, of Chicago, be suggested to the Alumni Council as a member of the Board of Visitors.

On motion of Mr. McMynn the salary to be paid to the Secretary was referred to the President and Treasurer with power to act.

On motion of Mrs. Brittingham it was moved and carried that the dues should not be raised this year, and that the style of the MAGAZINE remain as it is.

Mr. Shrimski suggested that an arrangement might be made with the Athletic Department of the University whereby all members of the Association could be given preference regarding all athletic contests. This has been done in some of the eastern colleges, and he felt that this might increase the membership considerably. Mr. McMynn stated that as an association we are cooperating with the Athletic Department here, and this is a matter which can be taken up at some future meeting.

Mr. Crawford pointed out that the constitution provides that once a year at least one particular matter of general importance shall be submitted through the ALUMNI MAGAZINE, giving all members of the Association opportunity to vote thereon. It was a provision made under the constitution in order to encourage the individual interest of all receivers of the MAGAZINE to keep in their mind that they were members of an organization. A committee was appointed to take care of this matter, consisting of Mr. McMynn, Miss Smith, and Doctor Falk.

The meeting was adjourned at 10:15 A.M.

Meeting of the Alumni Council, at Music Hall. 10:30 A. M.

The meeting was called to order by President Israel Shrimski.

Those answering roll call were: Classes: '59 Bishop Samuel Fallows; '71 Albert Watkins; '80 Mrs. Magnus Swenson (Annie Dinsdale); '81 Emma Gattiker; '82 L. R. Head; '85 Mrs. F. K. Conover (Grace Clark); '86 L. S. Pease and Mrs. L. S. Pease (Emma Nunns); '87 Katharine Allen; '89 Mrs. T. E. Brittingham (Mary Clark) and Ernest Warner; '91 Mrs. F. S. Proxies from the classes of '65, '67, '68, '72, '79, '84, '93, '97, '98, 1900, '06, '09, '13 were sent to Mr. Crawford. Clubs: CHICAGO Alumni, Israel Shrimski, ex'88; CHICAGO Alumnae, Alice Bemis, '18; DETROIT Alumnae, Lucy Rogers, '18; INDIANAPOLIS, D. W. Flickinger, '16; LA CROSSE, J. J. Liskovec; LINCOLN, Albert Watkins, '71; MILWAUKEE, L. S. Pease, '86; NEW ENGLAND, John Purcell, '05; NEW YORK, Harriet O'Shea, '16; SHEBOYGAN, Jennie T. Schrage; WEST BEND, Carl Klumb. Proxies from the Clubs of PHILADELPHIA, MINNEAPOLIS, and FORT ATKINSON, were sent to Mr. Crawford.

At the suggestion of the President the reading of the minutes of the last meeting were dispensed with, and then were considered as approved as printed in the ALUMNI MAGAZINE for January.

The Alumni Board recommended to the Alumni Council the name of Alice Bemis, '18, of Chicago as a member of the Board of Visitors. The motion was made and carried unanimously.

At the request of R. S. Crawford, '03, Secretary, Mrs. Swenson brought to the notice of the Council a letter which Miss F. Louise Nardin, Dean of Women, addressed to Mr. Shrimski as follows:

If you can spare a little time, I should be glad to have you consider a question which I have this morning discussed with Mr. Robert Crawford, the Alumni Secretary.

You are doubtless aware that the women graduates of the leading colleges and universities of the United States have for more than twenty years had an association. It was originally called the Association of Collegiate Alumnae. In April, 1921, the name was changed to the American Association of University Women. Graduates of the University of Wisconsin are eligible to membership in this association, and some of our alumnae are individual members. However, our University has never had the full influence in the Association to which its members and its prestige entitle it. For example, as an institution, we have had only one representative at the convention of the Association. The Dean of Women has attended, representing the University. Our body of women graduates has had no direct representation, because we have no affiliated membership in the Association. Affiliated we should be entitled to the following: (1) one councillor in the Educational Council, (2) ten voting delegates in the annual convention of the Association and in the Conference of Affiliated Alumnae Associations.

Since Wisconsin has more than 1500 alumnae, our dues as an affiliated association would be forty dollars each year.

It has seemed to the alumnae whom I have been able to consult that Wisconsin should have a position of dignity and influence in the national councils of college women. It is our judgment, however, that it is not needful nor desirable to effect a separate organization of our alumnae in order to secure for them this affiliation.

It will be necessary to have within the Alumni Association some method of selecting representatives for the American Association of University Women. For this purpose it is suggested that the Alumni Council create a standing committee to be known as the Women's Central Committee, which shall have power to arrange for the affiliation of Wisconsin Alumnae with the American Association of University Women and to choose representatives to the Association.

It is hoped that the Council may see fit to create such a committee at the present time.

*Very truly yours,
(Signed) F. LOUISE NARDIN,
Dean of Women.*

After reading the letter Mrs. Swenson moved that the Council of the Alumni Association of the University of Wisconsin create a standing committee of five alumnae, three of whom shall be residents of Madison to be known as the Women's Central Committee, to have supervision over matters which are of special interest to women graduates of the University of Wisconsin, acting under the Council of the Alumni Association and the Alumni Board.

Mr. Crawford seconded the motion and recommended that Mrs. Swenson act as Chairman. After discussion the motion was carried.

Mr. Pease moved that the Chairman of the Committee be authorized to select the other members of the Committee and report to the Board. The motion was carried.

Mr. Pease stated that his attention had been called by some of the alumni in Milwaukee to a movement of considerable importance regarding educational work in the State. Normal schools had been doing much along that line, and the Milwaukee Club had taken it up. As this was work which he considered to be of great importance, he wished to move that a committee of ten consisting of five men and five women be appointed to inquire as to the work which has been done and the bodies who are interested, and to report regularly to the Alumni Board.

Motion was carried that such a committee be appointed by the Chairman who will advise the Alumni Council through the ALUMNI MAGAZINE at a later date.

Mr. Tubesing thought that more members could be secured by each reuniting class sending copies of the MAGAZINE to its members and also run a page of advertising in the MAGAZINE in order that its members may know more about the MAGAZINE and what it stands for. He considered that could be done cheaper and more effectively than by sending out a circular letter dealing with reunions.

Mr. Shrimski pointed out that this was really part of the membership campaign. Strenuous efforts were being made to reach the ten thousand mark. He would appreciate it if the class of 1905, like that of 1921 and 1881, would come in one hundred per cent. While it would, in his opinion, cost more to send a copy of the MAGAZINE to each member than to send a circular letter, circularization even by letter or magazine is not as effective as a personal letter from a classmate. Anyone who has had experience in getting subscriptions for any organization knows how difficult it is. So far the results have been fairly good, but the enthusiasm must be kept up, and each one of the alumni should help in every way. He had received great encouragement in the assistance received from members and friends of the Association in getting it to be a real live association, and he really believed that before the year is out the membership will have reached the ten thousand mark.

Mr. Pease asked for an explanation of the failure to include the list of non-graduates in the new Alumni Directory.

Mr. Crawford stated that the Directory was a University publication and not an Alumni Association publication; that after the copy was prepared it was turned over to the University Editor and the State Printer with the full assurance of the Business Manager of the University that the names of non-graduates who were members of the Association should be included. When the book was at length printed it was found that this had not been done, and on making inquiry of the Business Manager, he agreed that a supplement should be printed at once. The supplement copy was re-prepared by the Association and again furnished to the University Editor. More than two months ago the University Editor had page proof from the State Printer, but as yet the finished product has not yet been received. There are over twenty thousand non-graduates. For the past few years the Alumni Association has suggested that at least the small sum of one hundred dollars monthly be expended by the University in order to take care of the non-graduate files but no action on this important matter has appeared on this suggestion in reports of the Board of Regents.

On the request of Mr. Shrimski, Mr. Brown, Treasurer, submitted his report to the Council. (See center of the MAGAZINE.)

The report of the Funds Committee approving the Treasurer's report was also read. (See center of the MAGAZINE.)

Mr. Shrimski moved that the Treasurer's report be accepted and placed on file. The motion was carried.

Representatives from the local clubs of Detroit, New England, Chicago Alumni and Chicago Alumnae, Indianapolis, New York City, Milwaukee, and Lincoln, Nebr., gave accounts of the work carried on by their various organizations.

The meeting adjourned at 12 o'clock.

The University of Wisconsin Pictorial History, by The Photoart House, Wm. J. Meuer, '10, president, was exhibited at Alumni Headquarters.

Class Day Exercises, 3 P. M.

On Muir Knoll. Program: Address of Welcome, Frank L. Weston, President of the Class; Class History, Winifred Titus and Irwin Maier; Class Day Oration, Lothrop F. Follett; Farewell to Underclassmen, C. Wesley Travers; Junior Response, Sterling H. Tracy; Class Prophecy, Frances Ellen Tucker and Richard H. Tyrrell; Presentation of Memorial, William B. Florea; Acceptance by the Faculty, Dean Frederick W. Roe; Ivy Oration, I. Arnold Perstein; Ivy Ode, Marion Goodwin.

The presentation of the medal awarded by the Intercollegiate Conference Athletic Association was made by Professor T. E. Jones to Allan Davey, '21.

The Class Play, 8 P. M.

At the Open Air Theater, The Yellow Jacket, by George C. Hazelton and Benrimo, was well presented by members of the Senior Class.

Pipe of Peace Ceremony, 11 P. M.

On the Lower Campus, the ceremony, under the direction of C. Wesley Travers, began with Indian dances and songs around a fire. Charles D. Assovsky, '21, gave the Pipe of Peace oration, and Melbourne Bergerman, '22, responded for the Junior class.

The Pipe of Peace ceremony is becoming one of the historically interesting features of Commencement Week.

Alumni Day

Tuesday, June 21, 10:30 A. M.

In Music Hall. Annual Meeting of the Alumni Association.

The meeting was called to order by President Israel Shrimski.

It was moved and carried that the reading of the minutes of the last meeting be dispensed with.

The matter of the election of three members to the Alumni Board was discussed. The constitution provides that the members of the Board shall be elected for one year, and this body has the power of electing three members. The three members elected at the last annual meeting were R. N. McMynn, '97, College of Law, Dr. V. S. Falk '11, School of Medicine, and S. W. Reid, '15, College of Agriculture. It is necessary that these three colleges be represented on the Board.

Due to the fact that there were no nominations from the floor, Mr. Shrimski appointed a committee consisting of F. S. White, '81, Mrs. C. R. Carpenter (Imogene Hand), '87, and L. S. Pease, '86, to offer nominations. After a short deliberation Mrs. Carpenter announced that the Committee recommend the re-election of the three members already on the Board to the Board, R. N. McMynn, '97, Dr. V. S. Falk, '11, and S. W. Reid, '15.

With regard to the Alumni Council the Committee recommended the following names for membership: John S. Lord, '04, L. M. Hanks, '89, J. B. Ramsay, '90, H. W. Adams, '00, J. G. Wray, '93, Catherine Cleveland, '94, A. E. Van Hagen, '06, J. E. McConnell, '87, Charles Rogers, '93, and Mrs. C. K. Michener (Sarah Spensley), '18.

Motion was carried to adopt the recommendations of the Committee.

C. N. Brown '81, Treasurer, then presented his report. (See center of the MAGAZINE.)

The report of the Committee in regard to the investment of trust funds, of which E. N. Warner is chairman, accompanied the report.

Mr. Shrimski moved that the report of the Treasurer be accepted and put on file. The motion was carried.

The meeting adjourned at 11 o'clock.

Exercises in Honor of Dr. Sterling,
10:45 A. M.

The renaming and dedication of the Political Economy and Physics Building as STERLING HALL was the occasion for special commemorative exercises at Music Hall and for dedicatory exercises at the Charter street entrance of the P. E. P. Building.

On invitation of Professor Olson, '84, who had arranged the exercises, President Shrimski presided at Music Hall where Bishop Samuel Fallows, '59, paid a heartfelt tribute of respect, love, and reverence to Professor Sterling under the title of the theme allotted to him, Sterling, the Pioneer.

JOHN H. STERLING

Judge B. W. Jones, '70, spoke of Sterling, the Professor. Stressing the love of the students for Professor Sterling, Mr. Jones said: "We loved him because he knew that we knew he was not one of the first professors but the first professor of our University. We loved him because he loved the student body. We loved him because he loved our University."

In a very carefully prepared paper entitled Sterling, the Man, Mrs. Alice Crawford Baily Gorst, '75, praised Professor Sterling as "an austere soul, the vision of whose total lack of self interest and grand purpose in life magnificently carried out, fills us with awe at the possibilities of human service guided by such ideals, and causes our souls to bow in profound reverence before a mind so noble and a life so rich." Under the subject of On the Borderland of the New Age Magnus Swenson, '80, spoke of Professor Sterling's great mathematical mind, and of his sympathetic, kindly, and considerate nature which combined to make him a great teacher. Mr. Swenson also pointed out that, despite the remarkable inventions of the past forty years, "it seems as though we are now standing on the very brink of stupendous scientific discoveries," and expressed the trust that "the fine temple of learning to be named in honor of our beloved Professor Sterling will honor his name by great and glorious achievements."

Professor Susan A. Sterling, '79, expressed, on behalf of her father's family, gratitude to the speakers for their words of appreciation of his character and work. Regarding her father's association with the University Miss Sterling emphasized, first, his unselfish devotion and allegiance to the institution, and second, his belief that "character is higher than intellect," and that "a great soul will be strong to live as well as to think."

Reuben Brown, '19, with Vivian Rhodes, '21, at the piano, sang de Koven's Recessional.

Dedication of Sterling Hall, 11:45 A. M.

At the formal dedication Bishop Fallows delivered the invocation. President Birge pointed out that while the recent appropriation of nearly seven million for the coming biennial was a sum far beyond the imaginings of men of the eighties, the potency as well as the promise of it was already present and both faith and knowledge were in Professor Sterling's words (from his Commencement address in 1869) that the University of Wisconsin was to be "the chief pride of the State and its glory abroad."

By authority of the regents, Dr. Gilbert Seaman, their President, gave to the building the name of Sterling Hall, which words by the same authority have been cut in stone above the doorway. From President Seaman we quote the following, "This building, a gift of the State, so well suited to its noble purpose, is fittingly named after one of the great administrators of the University, a pioneer of education in the State, a scholarly professor of science, a worthy man who builded for the future, John W. Sterling."

Cafeteria Luncheon, 12:30 to 1:30 P. M.

In Lathrop Hall. Many Alumni and some Seniors remained for lunch. Several reunion classes attended in class groups.

Base Ball Game, 1:30 P. M.

On the Lower Campus, between the University and Chicago. A good game. Chicago won. This game with Chicago has become an established custom. The graduates extend thanks to the Athletic Council for providing it. Hope that it may be continued as a permanent feature of Alumni Day, is, we believe, practically unanimous. Come again Chicago. You are very welcome.

Alumni Parade and Lincoln Ceremony, 3 P. M.

Upper Campus. Beginning at 3:00 o'clock, the University Band played while some Alumni and a few Seniors assembled for the Alumni Parade and Lincoln Ceremony at 3:30. This ceremony, which had been arranged by J. E. Olson, '84, Chairman of the Faculty Committee on Public Functions, came as a surprise to alumni officials, several of whom had advised that, in view of the already full program of events for Alumni Day, no ceremonial of this type be attempted, despite its self-evident points of merit. Professor Olson reports that he has received a number of compliments on the character of his Lincoln ceremony this year. We quote one from Judge H. F. Mason, '81:

I can't tell you how much I enjoyed the exercises of the week. To those who are used to such affairs, they may lose at least something of their novelty; but to those who like myself participate in them only at rare intervals, the effect must be, as it was in my case, very impressive. The Lincoln Ceremony in particular struck me as the happy carrying out of a real inspiration.

ON ALUMNI DAY

University Band Concert, 4 P. M.

On Lincoln Terrace. Following the Lincoln Ceremony the University Band gave an extraordinarily fine concert.

Our Great Band has wonderful proclivities for "getting in wrong." Some of the reuning class leaders expressed pointed criticism of the refusal of the band officials to encourage the band to participate in class reuning stunts. The band leaders need to appreciate the necessity of getting our excellent University band "out of the show case" and "off the pedestal"—at least when graduates return, because the great majority of returning graduates come back to amuse themselves and to be amused, to cast aside the cares of the busy, work-a-day world, to have a good time. While these graduates and former students should no doubt appreciate the serious efforts made annually by various University officials to enlighten and elevate them, the fact remains that the University as host should try to meet the wishes of these returning former students on Alumni Day at least. While many of our graduates can hear good band music at home, few of them can hear a real university band play distinctively university melodies, and university melodies are, after all, what they want. The Alumni admit that the University of Wisconsin Band is great. They brag about it. When these alumni return let them have the college stuff they ask for and there will be a better feeling toward the band and toward the institution, and less of a suspicion that band leaders are more desirous of showing off the high grade product they have produced than of furnishing the type of entertainment desired by the graduates.

"The sermon our pastor right reverend Began, may have had a clever end;
But his talk, though consistent,
Kept the end so far distant,
We left, since we felt he might never end."

Alumni Dinner, 6 P. M.

In Armory Hall. Guests assembled at Music Hall for the Procession by Classes.

A cordial invitation to attend the dinner was extended by the officers of the Alumni Association to the members of the instructional force of the University, and to the administrative officers, as well as to the candidates for degrees. The price per plate was $1.50 for members of the Alumni Association, and $2.00 for others. The refusal of band officials to furnish music for this occasion necessitated the employment of a special orchestra.

Israel Shrimski, president of the Alumni Association, presided as toastmaster. President Birge represented the Regents and Faculty; Sterling Tracy, '23, winner of the Intercollegiate Oratorical Contest, represented the students; and Bishop Fallows, '59, represented sixty-two graduating classes. The reunion classes were present in force, and executed their various stunts. As not all speakers for reuning classes obeyed President Shrimski's specific and repeated instructions as to time limitations, a few reuning classes, particularly 1906 and 1916, graciously surrendered their places on this program. Hard luck! Will some after dinner speakers never learn the great value of proper terminal facilities? (See class reunion notes or details.)

Informal Alumni Ball, 10:15 P. M. to 1:00 A. M.

In Lathrop Hall. Admission by ticket. Tickets were free to members of the Alumni Association, and were secured for one dollar a couple by non-members who are administrative officers, members of the faculty, graduates or students. Everybody happy! (See class reunion notes for details.)

Commencement Day

Wednesday, June 22, 8:30 A. M.

The members of the Graduating Class gathered at the Lincoln Monument at 8:30, when the class panoramic photograph was taken. (See center of MAGAZINE).

Commencement Exercises, 9:30 A. M.

In the Agricultural Pavilion. Orations were delivered by the following members of the Graduating Class: Rachel Hauck, Letters and Science; Ernest Butterman, Engineering; Lyman Jackson, Agriculture.

President Birge delivered a brief address to the Graduating Class, and conferred the

Raud
Governor Blaine, President Birge, and Bishop Fallows, '59, leading Commencement Procession degrees. Bishop Samuel Fallows, '59, acted as chaplain, Dr. Mills, Director of the School of Music, led the singing, and the University First Regimental Band, Major E. W. Morphy, of the School of Music, conducting, furnished the music. (For President's address to Graduates see frontispiece page.)

A six by nine book of forty-four pages was necessary to print the list of recipients of degrees and special honors. The procession extended half a mile across the campus. The agricultural Pavilion was nearly half filled with candidates for degrees and members of the faculty concerned with the conferring thereof, so hundreds of spectators had to be turned away. Honorary degrees were conferred as follows: Master of Arts, G. M. Dahl, ex'96, Vice President of Chase National Bank, New York; and William Schaus, Smithsonian Institute, U. S. National Museum, Washington, D. C.; Doctor of Science, W. E. Castle, Professor of Zoology, Harvard, and C. S. McDowell, Commander U. S. Navy; Doctor of Letters, F. J. Turner, '84, Professor of History, Harvard.

F. J. TURNER

WISCONSIN ALUMNI CLUBS

"Sit together, listen together, sing together, eat together, and you'll work together."

"The surest means of making a vigorous centralized Alumni Association is through the organization of local associations that help to crystallize alumni opinion, keep alive alumni loyalty by occasional social gatherings and celebrations, and that can function in a business or executive way on short notice."

CHICAGO

By C. L. BYRON, '08

DURING the past month our weekly Friday noon luncheons at the Palmer House have been strictly informal in every respect, including the removal of coats to make the luncheons even more comfortable and enjoyable. To those who have not attended the luncheons during this sweltering weather, you are advised that our luncheon room at the Palmer House is maintained at a comfortable temperature and the summer luncheons are especially attractive.

While no speakers were announced for our last four meetings, on June 24 our President, H. J. Smith, '77, brought Col. William Lightfoot Visscher, who gave an impromptu talk in which he told many interesting stories. The Colonel, after serving in the Union Army during the Civil War, completed his course at the University of Kentucky, receiving the degree of Doctor of Laws. In his opening remarks he stated that "in spite of the fact that I received a law degree, I have never been in court except to plead guilty." Colonel Visscher, however, has made himself famous in press circles.

On Wednesday, June 29, the Wisconsin Society, a well known Chicago organization, had its annual outing in the form of a trip to Janesville, where it was entertained royally by the Chamber of Commerce of Janesville. About one hundred and ten took the trip. Of this number thirty-five were Wisconsin graduates. Glenn Williams, '00, and John Lord, '04, tied in first honors playing golf, and other Wisconsin men did spectacular work in the baseball game. Above all every one had a wonderfully pleasant time and feel greatly indebted to the Chamber of Commerce of Janesville.

On Saturday afternoon, July 23, our Wisconsin Club of Chicago is to hold a picnic at Ravinia Park, which affords wonderful opportunities to hear the Chicago Symphony Orchestra in the afternoon and some of the leading stars in Grand Opera in the evening. Between the afternoon and evening programs the picnic will be strictly of a Wisconsin type, namely, good-fellowship which cannot be beat.

In all of our enthusiasm of the affairs of life let us not forget the Wisconsin Alumni Association. Every person who has attended the University should get behind Mr. Shrimski in his wonderful drive to bring the membership of the Alumni Association up to 10,000. Each one should consider this a personal responsibility.

Mr. H. J. Smith, '77, President of the Chicago U. W. Club, is making a special drive in an effort to have each member of his Class become a member of the Alumni Association. Not only is our live wire president doing this, but already he has launched a campaign to create enthusiasm among all the members of his Class in an effort to have them attend their forty-fifth anniversary at Madison next June. Such is true Wisconsin spirit and enthusiasm and we are proud to have such a leader in Chicago.

NEW YORK CITY

By A. R. TAYLOR, '14

Our annual dinner held at the Hotel Pennsylvania, Monday, May 16, brought an attendance of 127. We were very fortunate to be able to get Zona Gale, '95, and Senator I. L. Lenroot as our guests.

At the conclusion of a very interesting talk, Miss Gale made a plea for the organization of a department or committee at the University to consider cases of people wishing to get special training without satisfying all of the requirements of the regular curriculum, and suggested the foundation of a scholarship to aid such people.

Senator Lenroot paid a glowing tribute to the work of the University and called attention to the help which had been given by the University in the constructive legislation enacted in Wisconsin. This legislation in many instances has formed the model for similar legislation in other states and the whole nation is indebted to the University. We have also given to the nation's service such men as Professors Meyer and Adams. Mr. Lenroot urged that we carry into our daily life the spirit of the University.

The by-laws were amended to provide for five vice-presidents and the following officers were elected for next year: H. E. Benedict, '16, president, Mrs. A. C. Campbell (Bernice Stewart, '16), A. R. Taylor, '14, Major James Case, '90, Zona Gale, '95, and Roy Tomlinson, '01, vice-presidents, P. D. Meyers, ex '21, secretary and treasurer. Mrs. Raymond Bill (Esther Kelly, '15), G. M. Dahl, '96, and L. F. Brumm, '14, were chosen members of the Executive Committee for three years.

Miss Gale was authorized to confer with proper authorities at Wisconsin with a view to the possibility of establishing a scholarship for students who have special talents and do not wish to satisfy the full requirements of the regular curriculum.

The meeting was adjourned for dancing and we noticed that no one seemed particularly anxious to get away.

Since the meeting Miss Gale has conferred with the authorities at Madison and a few of our members here have subscribed enough to cover the expenses for the first year of the scholarship proposed.

We look forward to another very active year.

ATHLETICS

By T. E. JONES

THE athletic activities of the University for the year 1920-21 were brought to a close by the Crew Race at Duluth on June 25, the occasion being that of the Annual Mid Western Regatta.

The event aroused an unusual amount of interest, and a royal welcome was given the Wisconsin party by the alumni of that section, who cooperated with a student committee to make the occasion a memorable one for Wisconsin. The banquet held at Superior on the evening before the race brought together an enthusiastic body of alumni, students, and prospective students, exemplifying the true Wisconsin spirit. A reception and dance at Duluth following the race, gave opportunity for a real reunion of the loyal Badgers.

The race itself was well attended and the performance of the Wisconsin crew very creditable in their showing against the best boat club in the country. The rough water proved considerable of a handicap to the lighter crew, but they held their own well up to the last quarter. At this point the experience and weight of the Duluth oarsmen gave them the lead and they pulled away to a victory over the Cardinal by two boat lengths.

SCHOOL OF PHYSICAL EDUCATION

THE University of Wisconsin enjoys a nation wide prestige as a producer of great athletes and great athletic teams. Long before technique courses were offered in the coaching of various sports, her graduating athletes were favorites in the selection of coaches in all parts of the country. Prominent Wisconsin men now in the university and college field include John R. Richards, '96, coaching Wisconsin in football; Robert Zuppke, '05, at the University of Illinois; Jack Wilce, '10, at Ohio State University; "Jumbo" Stiehm, '09, and George Levis, '17, at the University of Indiana; Walter Powell, '14, Leland Stanford University; William Juneau, '04, University of Kentucky, W. E. Schreiber, '04, at the University of Montana, George Bresnahan, '14, at the University of Iowa; Clarence Cleveland, '12, New Hampshire State College; Harold Olsen, '17, at Ripon College.

In view of the successful records of Wisconsin men in this field, it was not strange that the University of Wisconsin should lead the way by being the first school of the Middle West to establish a professional course for the training of physical educators and athletic directors. A four-year course leading to a college degree was established in 1911-12 and has steadily increased in popularity since that date. While other institutions of this section have since followed the example of Wisconsin, none as yet have so broad a course. The work at Wisconsin is not merely a practice course, but has as its foundation, courses in education and the fundamental sciences which give the individual a basis for the application of the technical work. In addition to these, courses in language, history and other academic subjects are included to afford the broad cultural background so essential to individuals who expect to hold responsible positions in this particular field. The University realizes that no other member of the teaching staff has such close personal touch with the student as has the coach and physical director and because of this influence, he should possess those qualities that mark the man of character and of culture.

The present enrollment in the summer session of approximately 4500 marks a record for the University, and the professional school in physical education keeps pace by reporting at the opening of the session, a total of approximately 1400 registrants in both Men's and Women's Divisions.

Courses offered in the technique of the major sports under coaches Jones, Lowman, Meanwell and Schlatter are extremely popular and the class rolls record the attendance of university, college and high school coaches from the Dakotas, Minnesota, Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Texas, Oklahoma and Ohio as well as a large registration from our own state. Unusual interest in Community Recreation courses under Dr. Elsom mark the trend of sentiment of the present day, and the demonstration play hours on Tuesday evenings in spite of the excessive heat have been well attended.

The Summer School Baseball League, representing the practice work of the course in Technique of Baseball under Coach Lowman, has six teams made up of states or a combination of states to represent a section of the country. Big League stuff is a regular event of every Thursday evening when the League gets in action on the Lower Campus.

Over fifty enthusiastic tennis players are contending for the gold and silver medals offered as prizes in the All University Tournament scheduled by the Department.

At the close of the summer session, the Department of Physical Education proposes to put on a grand play festival, exemplifying every department of the work of both Men's and Women's Divisions. The annual Water Carnival will also be given.

Meeting of Alumni Board

A MEETING of the Board of the General Alumni Association was held April 27, at Alumni Headquarters, Madison, at 2:30 P. M. The meeting was called to order by President Shrimski, ex'88. Those answering roll call were C. N. Brown, '81, Treasurer, L. F. Van Hagen, '04, Helen B. Smith, '19, Recording Secretary, and R. S. Crawford, '03, General Secretary, to whom had been sent sufficient proxies for the requisite quorum.

Plans for Commencement were discussed by the Board. All members present agreed that the Alumni dinner arrangements should be left in the hands of Mrs. T. E. Brittingham, '89, and C. N. Brown, '81, Treasurer, and that the dinner should be held in the same place as last year. The Board further agreed that the matter of speakers at the dinner should be left to the discretion of the President of the Alumni Association. Suggestions were offered to the effect that the reunion committees of the various classes be asked to provide entertainment at the Alumni dinner, and that these committees be informed that such entertainment should, if possible, be of a brief, informal, and amusing sort rather than lengthy, dignified, and serious speeches by some individual member of such reuning classes. A further suggestion was made, that, doubtlessly, the senior class, cooperating with Professor O'Neill of the Department of Public Speech, would provide some one first class orator from the student body, and that President Birge and Rt. Rev. Bishop Samuel Fallows, '59, should be asked to speak at the dinner unhampered by suggestion.

The question as to how to meet the increased dinner expenses received considerable consideration. Attention was called to the fact that the charge for the dinner had for years been merely the charge per plate made by the caterer rather than the charge for all expenses connected with the dinner, and that consequently the General Association had each year to draw on the general funds for various items of expense which properly belonged to and should be charged against the Alumni dinner. An estimate was made that about nine hundred would be present. Figures were offered showing that if a charge of twenty-five cents per plate were made in excess of the caterer's charge, the addition of $225 would probably take care of printing, flowers, decorations, and music. Another suggestion was that, while the price to members of the Association should be held at the charge per plate made by the caterer, an additional charge of fifty cents per person be made to non-members. This idea met with general approval and was finally referred to a committee consisting of Mrs. Brittingham,

Mr. Brown, and Mr. Crawford, said committee being instructed to make such charges unless they found, after further consideration, that the plan had defects that did not appear in the informal discussion held by the Board.

The subject of an insignia to be worn by Life Members was mentioned by Miss Smith who had been appointed to investigate and report on this matter. As Miss Smith was not personally in favor of such an insignia, and as some other members present expressed some indifference, the matter was continued for further consideration at some subsequent meeting at which all members might be present.

President Shrimski made informal mention that he had been informed of the encouraging progress made by the Memorial Union Committee to the effect that nearly one half million dollars had been pledged.

President Shrimski also made the very gratifying announcement that at the Senior Class meeting held that morning, the class of 1921 had unanimously voted to join the General Alumni Association as a body.

The meeting adjourned at 3:45 P. M.

DEATHS

GEORGE RAYMER, Ph.B. '71, M. L. '82, a regent of the University, 1885-91, and president of the Board, 1890-91, died at his home in Pasadena, Calif., June 17, suddenly of apoplexy, following an invalidism that had been progressing for ten years. Less than two years before he slipped in his bedroom, breaking a hip. Two nurses had long been in attendance. His wife, who was Ellen Frances Bradley, a teacher in the soldiers' orphans' home in Madison following the Civil War and to whom Mr. Raymer was married in 1875, died four years ago. She sleeps at Forest Hill, Madison, several children beside her, and in the fall her husband too will be given sepulchre there.

Mr. Raymer was born in Jefferson, Green County, Pa., Oct. 13, 1842. His parents, Samuel and Elizabeth Raymer, both natives of Virginia, removed with their family of five sons to Green County, Wis., in 1847, settling on a farm five miles out of Monroe. Mr. Raymer enlisted in Co. D, 36th Wisconsin volunteer infantry, in 1863 and served as a non-commissioned officer in the second army corps until the close of the war. He was wounded three times during 1864 in the battles around Petersburg. A bullet through the hip weakened the bone, and Mr. Raymer believed this circumstance occasioned the accident of two years ago. He was mustered out August 21, 1865. In 1867 he entered the University and was graduated in 1871. That same year he became one of the owners of The Madison Democrat and was its editor for nearly two decades, during an equal period he was president of the company and its business head. Associated with him at various times were several University men—Prof. J. B. Parkinson, '60, Gen. E. E. Bryant, L. M. Fay, '74, Gen. A. C. Parkinson '70, Henry W. Hoyt, '72, O. D. Brandenburg.

Mr. Raymer was a life member of the State Historical Society; he was a zealous friend of the humane society, a great lover of birds and of nature. He constructed the beautiful drive of a mile or more through his picturesque farm at Eagle Heights, now owned by the University, and dedicated it to public use; and his progressive spirit was further shown by the fact that the first type-casting machine in Wisconsin was installed in the plant of the Democrat Printing Co., that his was the first gasoline launch on Madison lakes, his motor car among the very earliest at the capital.

Of the immediate family an only daughter, Mrs. Ethel Raymer Edmundson, survives, with her three young children. A sister of Mr. Raymer resides at Ames, Iowa.—By O. D. Brandenburg, ex '85.

We have recently been advised that WILLIAM E. HOWE, '73, of Boscobel, died on Nov. 13, 1918.

GEORGE W. POPE, '98, contracting structural engineer for the Minneapolis Steel and Machinery Co., Minneapolis, died on July 7. He is survived by his wife and three daughters.

The death of OTTO H. LIEBER, ex '13, in 1911, was recently reported to the Alumni Headquarters.

DAVID ROBERTS, Chicago, a junior at the University, was drowned at Green Lake on June 25 when he dove from a becalmed sailboat and a puff of wind sprang up, driving the boat beyond his swimming powers. Roberts, a member of Sigma Phi fraternity, was spending the week-end at Green Lake with a party of fraternity brothers.

CLASS NEWS

"A good man out of the good treasures of the heart bringeth forth good things."

Bishop Samuel FALLOWS enjoys the distinction of being the graduate who holds a degree of an earlier date from Wisconsin than any other living person.

Our oldest alumnus in point of graduation is hale, hearty, and vigorous, attending not alone to the duties of his church and ministering regularly to his own congregation but giving himself unsparingly to scores of public health movements that call upon him for his inspiring personality and consoling optimism.

Under date of July 8, Bishop Fallows thoughtfully wrote us from New York where he was spending a few days, as follows:

"It seemed to me that the Commencement was one of the very best in the history of the University. The spirit of the Alumni was very encouraging. While it was felt that much more could be done for the University by its graduate body, yet this spirit of thankfulness for what already had been accomplished was great. The enthusiasm of the class of 1921, and the undergraduate students was very inspiring. The tributes of affection and regard for 'The Father of the University', Professor J. W. Sterling, and the comprehensive and affectionate reponse of Miss Sterling formed an enduring wreath of honor and love to this gracious and influential life.

"The class of 1916 set the pace for élan and picturesqueness for all succeeding classes.

"Mingling as I did so freely and fully with those in attendance, I felt that the University was more and more deeply imbedding itself in their hearts.

"As usual, Professor Olson proved himself a past master in organizing and carrying on the various functions connected with the Commencement. May I not give to our Alumni, as our watchword for the coming year the motto of our noble State, 'Forward.' And, in increasing numbers, may we come next year to honor our beloved Alma Mater, so queenly and radiantly beautiful, ever young, ever winning, for 'time writes no wrinkles on thy brow, thou cherishing Mother of our loyalty and love.'"

1860

To W. P. POWERS goes the honor of having attended the University earlier than any other living person. Mr. Powers was here in the fall of 1853 when he was ten years of age. For priority of attendance, therefore, we believe that he has no contesting rival. The healthful vigor he displayed when he was back for the anniversary of the sixtieth year since graduation in 1920 would lead one to guess his age as under sixty rather than that for sixty years he had been a University graduate.

1861

The Class of 1861, consisting of two living members, was not represented at Commencement this year. Michael LEAHY of Chicago was unable to come and W. W. CHURCH wrote us the following note from California:

"It will be impossible for me to meet with the Alumni Association in June. It would afford me great pleasure to meet the remaining few of my associates of the days long gone by and I regret very much that I cannot take advantage of the opportunity. I shall be 81 years old on March 3."

Annie E. CHAMBERLAIN, Lake Geneva, writes: "At Commencement in 1920, two members of our class were present, Mrs. H. C. NOYES, of Madison, and myself. Mrs. Noyes was about removing with her husband to California on account of his health, and he died in San Francisco on October 15 at the age of 84, and was buried in the National Cemetery at the Presidio. She is now at Knightson, Calif., with her son. Mrs. Clara Chamberlain PORTER of Champaign, Ill., another member of our class, is in sorrow on account of the death of her husband, Mr. Jasper W. Porter on June 3. He had served Champaign County as Circuit Clerk and Recorder for over forty years."

1866

Although the Class of '66 still has four living members on its roll, none were present at Commencement this year. The members are: Mrs. J. M. FERGUSON (Agnes Sawyer), Hastings, Nebr., Mrs. T. J. GILL (Margaret Spears), La Grange, Ill., Mrs. G. F. MERRILL (Ellen Bytne), Ashland, and Rev. W. H. SPENCER, White Plains, N. Y.

1871

Albert WATKINS, historian, Lincoln, Nebr., was the one member of the class of '71 who returned for the fiftieth anniversary and registered at Alumni Headquarters. He was accompanied by his wife and daughter. Mr. Watkins participated in the Alumni Council meeting, and spoke at the Alumni dinner. He had written to the eight surviving members of his class and in speaking of their responses he writes, "Robert Orr, Alberta, Utah, is the only one of the eight who did not respond. He has just been married for the first time, which sufficiently accounts for the remissness."

Here are some of the regrets: Leonard COLBY, attorney, Beatrice, Nebr.,—"It will be impossible for me to visit Madison for Commencement this year by reason of court matters which will take all of my attention . . . I am well, hard at work, and as busy as I was fifty years ago, and I feel the world has treated me very kindly." T. L. COLE, of the Statute Law Co., Washington, D. C.—"My associate, Mr. McCloed, is away on a business trip and will not return until too late for me to leave here." Mrs. G. F. SEGER (Sarah Hardenburg), Riverside, Calif.,—"California and Wisconsin are a long way apart, and there are many reasons why I cannot come . . . I only am left of the four girls of our class." George RAYMER, Pasadena, Calif.,—"I cannot come to the reunion of our class and I am very sorry about it as I would very much like to be there. I fell about a year ago and broke my hip. Since then I have not done any walking, and the chances for exceeding the speed limit in the future are not very good." O. J. TAYLOR, president of the Snake River Irrigation Co., Ltd., Boise, Idaho,—"I regret exceedingly that I cannot be present as I am leaving for the east tonight (May 31) and shall have to return here before Commencement time." Volney UNDERHILL, Chicago, Ill.,—"I am sorry that it will be practically impossible for me to attend the Commencement." Charles Noble GREGORY, Washington, D. C.—"I do not think I can be in Madison in June . . . I have been gone twenty years and find it very solemn to return."

Charles Noble GREGORY, who represented the University of Wisconsin at the centennial celebration of the University of Virginia, writes, "I find the part of 'envoy extraordinary' to the old University a very agreeable one."

Doctor Gregory sent to President Birge a detailed account of the historic university founded by the great Jefferson, relating with some amusement details of the big barbecue. He also mentions the announcement by President Alderman of $1,500,000 additional funds to the university, and refers with pleasure to a number of acquaintances among whom were many old Wisconsin names.

A medal commemorating this historic occasion was struck and has been sent to President Birge.

In speaking of the dignity, pomp, and notable ceremonial with which the University celebrated the centennial, The Outlook says: "The University of Virginia is one of the American universities of learning which has made for itself a definite spirit and an atmosphere of power, of intense individualism, democratic sympathy, religious freedom, uncompromising integrity, distinction of standards, austere toil, and devotion to public service."

Reunion of 1876

By F. W. HALL

Minutes of the forty-fifth reunion of the class of 1876, held June 21, 1921. Pursuant to previous arrangements made by the committee of arrangements, Mrs. C. N. Brown, A. S. Ritchie, and F. W. Hall, the class met at the Madison Club at one o'clock for luncheon together. The following persons were present: Eleanor Henry, Mary J. Hall, Mary M. Henry, Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Brown (Nellie Williams), F. W. Hall, R. B. Dudgeon, Mrs. W. F. Quirk (Emma Dudgeon), and W. H. Williams, all of Madison, A. E. Smith, Beloit, D. E. McKercher, Manly, Ia., G. C. Stockman, Mason City, Ia., Mrs. W. G. Clough (Elsena Wiswall), Portage, Mrs. Oscar Atwood (Mary Oertel), Prairie du Sac, A. S. Ritchie, Omaha, Nebr., and George Haven, Waterloo, Ia.

After the luncheon, the following were elected as officers: A. S. Ritchie, president, Mrs. C. N. Brown, secretary, and F. W. Hall, assistant secretary.

The roll of members was called, and all names accounted for.

Mr. Ritchie, as president, gave a very interesting talk to the class, and had many reminiscences of his connection with the same, and the work of the class. He paid special tribute to President Bascom.

The question of annual reunions was discussed, and it was resolved to hold a reunion each year, and Mr. Ritchie appointed as his committee on membership arrangements, G. C. Stockman, for Pacific Coast, Mrs. C. N. Brown and R. B. Dudgeon for Madison, with directions to take the matter in charge and see that everybody living came to the next reunion.

It was resolved to add to the class the names of F. W. Hall, and Mary J. Hall.

Mr. Ritchie directed that a class banner be obtained and that the same be carried at the alumni banquet as long as a member of '76 was living to carry it. The class yell was then announced to be as follows:

*We were bricks,
None were sticks,
Way, way back in '76!*

The class practiced the yell with vigor and enthusiasm, and Mr. Hall was directed to see that it was delivered on time and with enthusiasm and energy.

Meeting adjourned until 6:00 P. M., at Music Hall, to follow the banner.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mr. Hall made an able speech which, apparently, he is too modest to mention in his account of the class reunion.

Reunion of 1881

By EMIL BAENSCH

*Eighty One! Eighty One!
We took our flight in '81.*

With this reminiscent yell, and adorned with eagle headdress, the 81'ers wended their way among the banqueteers at the Alumni dinner in the Gym, in a goose-step march to jazz music. Ten of them were in the procession.—E. B. Steenland, F. S. White, H. F. Mason, E. P. Parish, Emil Baensch, Emma Gattiker, Mrs. Stephen Thayer (Maude Remington), Mrs. J. W. Hallam (Julia Clark), D. S. McArthur, and W. J. Moroney, reinforced and rejuvenized by the wives of the first five and the children of the first and of the last named.

At that dinner the chairman announced that 1881, being a 100% alumni class, was to have the honor of starting the speaking program. The U. W. yell, the Eagle Class yell, and the Kansas yell, greeted its representative, Judge H. F. Mason, who delivered a most forceful and impressive speech. And when 1911 put on its unique stunt of "ladies styles from 1861 to 1921," the Eagle Class was the only one who escorted its handsome "model" to the stage.

Eighteen Eighty-one began to reunite on Monday, with a chicken dinner at the Madison Club where "Ham" Steenland had arranged for a private dining room. Those present asked and answered innumerable questions, and of those absent many sent written excuses. Fred White was general manager of the program, and, knowing that after a substantial meal it is easy to "look pleasant," adjourned the meeting to the lawn "to have our picture taken."

This was followed by a cordial invitation from Mrs. Lucius Fairchild to hold the afternoon session in her adjoining garden. And there, under the trees the famous general and governor had planted and cared for, the '81'ers held their meeting. Although not conforming to Cushing's Manual, it was fruitful of results, for many a mysterious incident of the olden days was explained and exposed.

The junior engineers had been the bete noir of the class, but now that Mason is a justice on the Supreme Court of Kansas, and Stilts, alias Sanborn, is a Christian Science reader in Texas, a verdict of exculpation was rendered in due and gladsome form. Julia Clark Hallam, being given the third degree, frankly 'fessed that she had written some poetry about the juniors of '82. Moroney came under suspicion as Jim, the Penman, who had forged some billet-doux, but no full confession being obtained, the hearing was adjourned until the next reunion.

At any rate, they, the powers, alias Julius Olson, decided to make an exception to the rule which permits only semi-centenarians to sit on the stage at Commencement, and to accord that honor also to the class of 1881.

Accordingly, the next morning, the Eagle Class, minus its distinctive headgear, freshly shaved and powdered, promptly met at Music Hall, hobnobbed with the faculty, marched in procession to the Stock Pavilion, and then proudly passed through the long lane of a thousand capped and gowned seniors to its allotted place on the stage. After the exercises the members remained on the ground for some time, attracted by that most interesting sight, the reluctant dispersing of the crowd, the youthful, hopeful farewells, Tuesday, Alumni Day, fairly bristled with activities, in each of which '81 had a share, from the business meeting in the morning to the ball at Lathrop Hall in the evening. Only once did it fail to pass, and that was in the Zig Zag Parade, that splendid spectacle where the Alumni, by classes, marched up the campus and assembled at the Lincoln statute. Moroney was acting as major domo, and unlike McArthur and Baensch, who have been officers in the National Guard, has had no military training. While the members kept step with the lively military music, they lacked that precise alignment and proper distance in column which the technique of the ceremony demands.

But this slight slip had its compensation, for the powers that be apparently ascribed the irregularity to the feebleness of age rather than to the lack of military training.

where gladness and sadness so thrillingly blend.

Finally they fell in column and marched to Lathrop Hall where they sat down to a farewell lunch in its cafeteria. The fortieth reunion had been so successful and so enjoyable that each one registered a solemn obligation to be present five years hence and to engage in a propaganda to induce others to do likewise. Thanks were tendered to Fred White for his generous and untiring efforts, and to "Ham" Steensland and his family for their hospitality. The Steensland home will hereafter be known as Eagle's Roost. One more handclasp, one more good-bye, and then back to the folks at home to have the sunset of life gladdened by the memory of three happy days when they were boys and girls again.

Here are some of the excuses:

Howard SMITH, Professor, U. W. Law School. "Off the coast of Halifax, in sight of pinnacled and castled ice-bergs." Frank PORTER, Dean of Law School, University of Southern California, Los Angeles. School kept pace with the wonderful growth of that city; ten members in 1895, five hundred in 1921. J. N. SANBORN, too busy "shooting" oil wells round about Fort Worth, Texas. Same old Stilts, for he sent picture of a handsome man, claiming it as his own. Three children, three grandchildren. W. H. GOODALL, Principal public schools, Shipman, Miss. Sent blue print of a sprightly youth, arrayed in a natty outing suit and decked with a gaudy straw hat. Still a bachelor. Fond of hunting—(a wife?). W. P. LYON, Editor-in-chief of Mercury-Herald, San Jose, California. Manages a fifteen-hundred-acre orchard as a side-line. Standing invitation to come and share a prune with him. (Prunes are classed with raisins—Volstead). (Fred White coming, doctor prescribes change of climate—Reporter). Mrs. W. A. ACHTENBERG (Emma Goodall). Too busy settling down in new home in Minneapolis. Edward BRADY, Seattle. Prosperous and contented in that magic city, helping to relieve the Klondikers of a goodly share of their gold before being permitted to see the rest of the country. James VAN DYKE, Long Prairie, Minn. Sent picture, almost a fac-simile of the one forty years ago. Cheerful and happy but present ill health forbids attendance. Alva GROVER, the Rover. As railroad construction engineer, started at Portage, then to Omaha, Mexico, Pennsylvania, Milwaukee, the Philippines, China and Japan, back to Wisconsin, and finally settled down in Council Bluffs, Iowa, where mail will reach him at 108 Mt. Vernon Ave. Four children, two grandchildren. Charlie FOSTER, from Missouri. Started for the reunion on his honeymoon trip but got lost in transit.

The outgoing secretary is happy to state that at the forty-year reunion of 1881, F. S. White was unanimously elected secretary of the class. Upon him rests the responsibility of holding us together for the next five years and bringing us in increasing numbers to the gathering in 1926. His admirable fitness for this undertaking is attested not only by the outgoing secretary but by the 81'ers who so thoroughly enjoyed the reunion just past. In addition to the reunion program in which Fred S. was ably seconded by Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Steensland, credit goes to him also for enrolling 1881 as 100 per cent Alumni Association members.

On Wednesday after Commencement exercises, '81 took luncheon at Lathrop Hall and then and there W. J. Moroney moved that each one present agree, if possible, to bring himself and two other members to the 1926 reunion. So may it be. (By Emma GATTIKER.)

Reunion of 1886

By MRS. L. S. PEASE

The 25th reunion of '86 was well attended and twenty-four sat down together at lunch in Lathrop Hall.

The 35th reunion of the Class of '86 was celebrated at the home of Mrs. B. W. Jones (Katherine MacDonald). Here we enjoyed the company of Prof. Katharine Allen, '87, who was with '86 for three years. Mrs. Andrew Allen and Prof. John B. Parkinson were guests of honor and their presence added much to our pleasure. Those present for luncheon were Mrs. Andrew Allen, Katharine Allen, '87, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Belden, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Parkinson (Anna Strong, '94), Mrs. George Buckstaff (Florence Griswold) and her sister Miss Ada Griswold, '89, Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Pease (Emma Nunn), Carrie Morgan, and Mrs. B. W. Jones.

On Tuesday we attended Alumni meetings and Tuesday evening we were present at the Alumni banquet. Here we were glad to meet W. S. Dwinell, Mrs. J. L. O'Connor (Annie Wood), who is vice-president, and Mary Connor.

A motion was made and carried that Mary Connor be a committee of one to plan for our fortieth reunion.

The officers elected for the ensuing year are, F. E. Chandler, president, Mrs. J. L. O'Connor, vice-president, Mary Connor, treasurer, and Mrs. L. S. Pease, secretary.

Letters were received from the following who were unable to be present: Mrs. E. N. Smith (Sarah Gallett), Mrs. C. M. Conradson (Stella Prentice), William Park, Elsey Bristol, Franklin Hobart, George Parker, Millie Forsythe, and Otto Schuster.

The secretary was asked to start a Round Robin letter.

The roll call for the 35th reunion is as follows: Mrs. B. W. Jones, Mrs. L. S. Pease, Mrs. J. L. O'Connor, Mrs. George Buckstaff, Carrie Morgan, Mary Connor, E. B. Belden, W. D. Dwinell, John M. Parkinson, Mrs. L. S. Pease.

Reunion of 1891

By MRS. F. S. BALDWIN

The 30th reunion of the Class of '91 was one of the most enjoyable reunions ever held by that class. Carl Johnson, as local chairman, most generously opened his beautiful home at 142 E. Gilman street as class headquarters and general meeting place. About fifty people gathered there—members of the class, husbands, wives and children, and were most cordially greeted by Mr. Johnson and his daughter, Ruth Johnson, '20, and Mrs. Jacobs.

After an hour of renewing acquaintances a most delicious luncheon was served in the spacious lawn overlooking Lake Mendota.

Reunion of 1896

By W. G. BLEYER

The Class of '96 celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of its graduation at Commencement this year with the largest and best reunion that it has ever held.

The reunion picnic was held at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Crowley on Lake Mendota where a buffet luncheon was served at noon of Monday, June 20. While the members of the class recalled the interesting events of their college days, the children, of whom there were many enjoyed games on the lawn and swimming.

Albert Barton, as class historian, reviewed the accomplishments of members of the class during the twenty-five years since their graduation. Professor Grant Showerman read a clever class ode printed in this MAGAZINE in which he hit off various members of the class and satirized the present fads and foibles of college students. Miss June Zimmerman, daughter of Oliver Zimmerman, gave several dances in costume, and Miss Reba Hayden, daughter of Charles Hayden, rendered two whistling solos.

The officers of the class, Willard Bleyer, president, and Dr. George Thompson, secretary, were re-elected for life, as a penalty for having held office for a quarter of a century.

Present at the reunion were the following: Prof. and Mrs. W. G. Bleyer; Prof. and Mrs. Grant Showerman (Zilpha Vernon, '90), and daughter Anita, and son; Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Lucas and children, Warren and Marion; Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Sanborn (Gertrude Stillman, '99), and children, Katherine, Stephen and Arthur; Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Hayden and daughter Reba; Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Barton and daughter Ethelwyn; Dr. and Mrs. Walter Sheldon, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Crowley and children, Ralph and Marjory; Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Parkinson (Mabel McCoy) and daughter

ZONA GALE, '95

Caryl and son Ben; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lloyd Jones (Calla Westover) and children, John and Margaret; Mrs. A. L. Goddard and sons, Merrill, Arthur, and William; Dr. and Mrs. C. H. Bunting and daughter Elizabeth and son Henry; Prof. and Mrs. C. K. Leith, Mrs. W. L. Roach (Annie Main), J. F. Wilson, Iva Welsh, and Rose Dengler, all of Madison; Mrs. Richard Lloyd Jones (Georgia Hayden), Tulsa, Okla.; Mrs. Belle Kennicott Patterson, Milwaukee; Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Iverson, O. B. Zimmerman and daughter, June, J. L. McNab, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Oestreich (Carrie Edgren), and daughters, Ottilie, Cecillia, and Evelyn and son William, Janesville; Dora Haviland, Forestburg, S. D.; J. H. Liegler, Racine; Dr. and Mrs. B. J. Ochsner (Marie Malec) and two daughters, of Durango, Colo.; Mrs. B. A. Minor (Martha Torgerson), and daughter, Louise, San Diego, Calif.; D. C. Gile and daughter, Nyria, '22, of Edgerton; C. H. Parr, Charles City, Ia.; G. M. Dahl, New York; Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Coe (Emma Buckmaster) and two daughters, Barron; Mr. and Mrs. E. B. True and children, Katherine and Jack, Galesburg, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Thompson and son, George, Mt. Horeb.

Letters were received from many members of the class expressing their regrets at not being able to attend the reunion.

On Alumni Day, Tuesday, June 21, the members of the class had a cafeteria luncheon at Lathrop Hall at noon, took part in the alumni procession on the Upper Campus in the afternoon, but just escaped the moving picture camera, and in the evening were present forty-two strong at the Alumni dinner where they were represented on the program by Miss June Zimmerman who gave an interesting exhibition of artistic dancing.

REUNION RHYMES 1896-1921

BY GRANT SHOWERMAN

Dear Classmates, here assembled on the grass,
Unto a painful task I now proceed;
I must perform a duty by my class,
As our committee weeks ago decreed.
I mean that they appointed me your poet;
You thought 'twas something awful: now you know it.

2

But I'll not try your patience very long;
I've timed my lines precisely to the minute;
'Twill take but three or four to sing my song;
It's quickly done because there's little in it.
My Muse will mind her step: she'll come and go
Tripping the famous light fantastic toe.

3

I first invoke her aid to call the roll,
And get your names all neatly in my poem.
I'd like to mention every single soul
In some detail, to prove that still I know 'em;
Though I'm afraid some lines would come out
jazz,
For which I have no love, though others has.

4

How shall I plan to build the lofty rhyme?
Shall I attempt an order alphabetical?
My Muse would choke a half the time,
And swear it was the worst that ever yet.
I'll not; I'll go ahead and trust to luck,
Asking some kind friend's aid if I get stuck.

5

So, Amazeen, Cornelius, Fulton, Reel,
Gile, Smithyman, Smith, Thomas, Alsted,
Paul,
Spence, Blakely, Bennett, Holcombe, Thorp,
O'Neill,
Bohrer, and Burgess, Wilder, Craig, Reindahl,
Giss, Conway, Urdahl, Carlton, Dolph, Kuhnhenn,
A. Jones, C. Jones, D. Jones and Jones again.

6

Frank Cornish, Copeland, Edgren, Bostwick,
Ward,
Grosvenor, Hoover, Haviland, and Hayden,
McNab, Maloney, Nichols and McCard,
And Addiemae, that interesting maiden,
Healy, and Hedler, Henderson, and Hocking, Whose name would rhyme with shocking, or with stocking.

7

Medberry, Bushnell, Torgerson and Frame,
Kalahaer, Kinsman, Liegler, Sumner, Noye-
-s and Peters, Porter, Obenhaus, and Wehm-hoff, Rindlaub, Moody, Smith (this time the boy),
And Reynolds, Richards, Rowan, Sawyer,
Gillen,
Whose parliamentary ways were simply killin'.

8

Tarrant, the Thompsons, Daniells, Harding,
Parr,
Blomgren, and Ochsner, Shockley, Shuart,
Smith,
Carl Becker, Bleyer, Bunting, each a star,
And Katzenstein, a name to conjure with.
I'll pad this stanza out with Zimmerman,
And Tom Lloyd Jones, a once much slimmer man.

9

Gallagher (S.), E. Robinson, and Main,
Welsh (I.), Westover, Dengler, and Deere
Mable;
I'd like to smash this up and start again,
But I must speed along while I am able—
O. Mueller, Warning, Mid-Victoria James;
A guileful name to have, but names is names.

10

I wish I knew how I was coming out:
I've still some sixty names or so to go;
The class of '96 is sure a shout,
If not a scream, for rhymes: I'm saying so.
My rhyming dictionary doesn't serve:
I've got to do this poem on my nerve.

11

So let's begin with Powrie, Tallman, Hargrave,
Jackson, Bump,
And allow our faithful Pegasus the reins a bit more free;
With Page, Arndt, Birkholz, Witter, Hart, he
gives another jump,
And makes away with Crooker, Hager,
Warner, Kennedy,
Suydam, the Johnstons, Weinzirl, Whitmore,
Carlsen, Ernest True—
Just keep a speed like this and soon there won't be much to do.

12

Next, Ladwig, Crowley, Iverson, Ramien,
Maldaner, Rice,
Giss, Robinson, Van Ness, and Reeda, Williams, Schmidt and Ross;
They get their places easy now, the going's really nice;
It really seems quite probable we'll get the thing across.
Step lively, then, Burkholder, Lemon, Ela,
Bobb, and Scott,
And mind you watch your step, or you'll be left,
as like as not.

13

Just one stop more, for Goddard, Jeffrey,
Perkins, Lloyd, and Coe,
And Hambrecht, Wilson, Sanborn, Barton,
Walter, Sheldon, Trippe,
C. Hayden, Ruka, Lucas, Leith, if he really wants to go;
There, now, we're off! with Pegasus as steady
as a ship.
The ship I'm mentioning, of course, is the one that brought us here
Safe o'er the wine-dark waters from the far-off
Park Street pier.

14
So ends the calling of our little roll.
Many I name are present to respond;
Others, distant far, are here in soul;
The names you miss are in the Great Beyond.
Be theirs "the passing tribute of a sigh,"
With gentle memories of days gone by.

15
Now that the list of men and women true,
And noble, just, and wise, and dutiful,
Faithful, hopeful, charitable, too,
And altogether good and beautiful,
Is finished, let's more loudly sweep the strings,
The while we sing of high poetic things.

16
What shall it be—of women or of wine?
These always have been themes of poets' verse;
To turn the heart to thoughts of auld lang syne,
There's many a subject surely could be worse.
But wine may stir no more the bard's ambition,
Inside or out; we face a new condition.

17
Of men it surely is no use to write;
They're dull and uninspiring, all that's pale;
If you wish to spoil a pome, or kill it quite,
Just take your hero from the species male.
The female may be deadly in some ways,
But in movies and in poetry she plays.

18
Men sometimes make a quantity of bones—
A Sanborn, or a Lucas, or a Bleyer;
Men sometimes get to be such ones as Jones,
Or Smith, or Brown, or Black, or even higher;
But to make them stuff for poetry's no use;
'Tis to meditate a strictly thankless Muse.

19
But woman we may sing of as of yore,
And rhyme of them to suit our inspiration;
No one will say us nay, and, what is more,
We'll find ourselves in tune with all creation.
The big idee of this is not complex;
'Tis this: that all the world is talking sex.

20
So in this little ditty, if it pleases,
I'll say just what I choose about the women:
Their looks, their manners, all their little wheezes

The clo's they wear when they go in a-swimmin'
But here my Muse, if I may say so, kicks:
Which she says she'll sing the girls of Ninety-six.

21
The girls of Ninety-six that then were lasses,
And snapped their fingers in the face of time,
Are older now than once they were. Time passes
(I say this just to suit my powerful rhyme.)
They're older, but so are their husbands, brothers,
Their sisters, cousins, aunts, and then some others.

22
The girl of Ninety-six that I remember
Had not yet bid her senses all goodby;
She didn't pack her furs up in December,
And wear a sealskin coat in mid-July.
She had her little whimsies, never doubt,
But not with reasons far past finding out.

23
She didn't calfateer, or hit the pipe,
Or sport her charms in filmy fluffs ethereal;
She never stepped on the gas, but, true to type,
She kept her thoughts on themes that were aerial.
But did she set our ivories a-whirling?
You've said; I'll tell the world we did some girling.

24
She didn't roll her own or someone's else;
She didn't advertise her lovely knees;
Her comrades didn't low-neck to their belts;
She didn't owe her looks to pharmacies.
Yet were the times so wholly uninviting?
I'll say an earful: they were sure exciting.

25
She didn't shimmy, toddle, trot, or tango;
There was no such thing then as Home Ec. 1;
Her chosen sphere might be the far Hoang-Ho,
Or teaching home-grown babies for to run.
She was not a giddy, gaudy, gay co-ed;
She'd a grain (or two) of purpose in her head.

26
Was she a Saint, the girl of Ninety-six?
Did she never, never, never break a rule?
Well, hardly ever; what she knew of tricks
Were just exceptions proving her no fool.
I'll say a mouthful this time: by her look
You couldn't always read her like a book.

27
Her social life was horribly neglected:
Her evenings out, she didn't have to list 'em
Her chaperones, I fear, were not inspected
And certified, as per the present system.
She knew where she was at, and when to stop;
She didn't need four Deans and then the cop.

28
No, she wasn't quite so strictly regulated;
She must be back at 10, and that was all;
And that applied, be it distinctly stated,
Only to what was then called Ladies' Hall.
If late, she had a way of getting in, though:
You lent a hand, and she climbed through the window.

29
But I must stop this present strain of mine,
Before I say some things I hadn't ought ter;
For I am not the last of all my line:
I'm speakin' in the presence of my daughter;
And she, as well as yours, may draw conclusion,
If I keep on a-makin' these allusions.

30
So I'll get back upon my former tack,
And say our girls were quite correct and good;
They knew that white was white and black was black,
And worked and played as decent mortals should.
They always were in class and had their lessons.
And at exam-time got their teachers' bless'n's,

31
My lead is out, and so's my inspiration;
The next-to-the-last I turned was twenty-nine;
I couldn't turn one more for all creation.
Although for more I know you're simply dyin'.
Next time I do a class-reunion lay,
'Twill be a fiftieth anniversary;
It will be somewhere on the Milky Way,
Where all good sailors put in when home from sea;
And then I'll tune my heavenly Eversharp
To the music of a thousand-stringed harp.

SINCE GRADUATION

By A. O. BARTON

"Friends o' mine of long ago,
I would reach across the years,
To the days we used to know,
To the laughter and the tears."

—E. O. Guest.

To attempt anything like a comprehensive survey of the activities of our class since graduation were at once futile and anomalous. In the first place who could do justice to such a wonderful collection of versatility and individuality as was our great and glorious bunch, and in the second place we are no longer a class, except on occasions like this; and on such occasions we are all children again, with our futures before us instead of behind us. Our minds persist in dwelling in that golden period, when we climbed the hill together, the only period in which we were really of the same family. Instinctively and insistently, they call up, for instance, the varied remembrances of freshman days—those days of innocence, when we came to the oracle full of fear and trembling, in all the freshness of native feeling; when, in the words of the poet, "all the fair existences of heaven came open-eyed to guess what we would speak; before our brows had been taught to frown; before we knew that the winged thing victory might be lost or might be won." Like the warriors of Xerxes, we gathered from all the corners of the commonwealth, with varied garb and equipment. Then after four years of discipline under our wise and indulgent Alma Mater we approximated toward a type and went forth with bold camouflage and forgivable assurance.

* * * * *

And to those friends and comrades still active in the affairs of life who cannot be with us today except in thought we would fain send a mystic greeting, assuring them that all is well at the old home and that we bear them in mind. Were they now to return they would find our faculty of 113 grown six fold in size, and the student body correspondingly increased. Some changes in buildings, in campus geography, in practices and viewpoints, might also seem unfamiliar. But they would find the same moon and the same constellations overhead, the same hills and waters beneath, and, better still, the same spirit animating our Alma Mater as of old. A new generation now roves amid its fragrant shades when May is young and dips the spray on old Mendota on nights in June. Her templed hills are still the pride and glory of the surrounding country, the shrouding greenery of her walks still the happy haunts of peace and learning. May the lofty policy that has guided her to prosperity continue to dominate through all the years to come and no generation but shall rise up and call her blessed. We shall grow gray in the lessons of the world, but about her brows shall cling forever the dew and cheer of morning. Here ever young and beautiful she waits to welcome her returning children with the same glad smile as of yore.

1898

Sec'y—J. P. RIORDAN, Mayville

H. J. THORKELSON, business manager of the University, presented his resignation to the Board of Regents in June to become associated with the General Education Board of New York. He was granted a leave of absence for one year with the understanding that he will be available to assist the Regents in their problems when needed. In his new work, Mr. Thorkelson will assist the various colleges and other educational institutions which receive aid from the Education Board, in their problems of organization, budget, and financial management.

After graduating from the University, Mr. Thorkelson was connected with the J. I. Case Plow works at Racine for four years, leaving the position of assistant superintendent there to join the faculty of the College of Engineering. He became business manager of the University in 1914. He has been associated with the business and social life of Madison for many years.

Dr. E. L. BOLTON, has recently formed a partnership at Appleton under the name of Drs. Schaper, Pratt and Bolton.—C. E. MAGNUSSON has been appointed dean of the College of Engineering at the University of Washington.—P. S. WARNER (ex) recently returned from Minneapolis where he installed a branch of his system for fraternity management. The branch at Minneapolis is the fourth of this kind organized, others being located at Ann Arbor, Mich., Champaign, Ill., and the home office at Madison. A fifth branch will be opened at Chicago in September.

By LYNN TRACY

One of the features of the Reunion of the "Second to None" Class of 1901 was the plans that were made to start the campaign at once for a "Quarter Century Reunion" five years hence that will bring back more members than will have attended such an event up to that time at Wisconsin. The correspondence regarding the 20th Reunion brought to the committee a most interesting lot of information about the various members of the class, and this will be given to the ALUMNI MAGAZINE from time to time to be published in the news of the class. All who are not members of the Alumni Association are urged to join at once so as to have access to this information.

Practically every College represented at the graduation was represented at the Reunion, and while the number returning was not large, at the Alumni banquet, at least, they gave the old class yell—

*Second to none, second to none,
Varsity, Varsity, Nineteen-one.*

in the old style that would have done credit to five times their number at a college game.

The Madison Committee arranged for a fine banquet Monday evening at the Madison Club, and the evening was spent in exchanging experiences and recounting the attainments of various class members since graduation. Many familiar faces were absent, some missing their first reunion in twenty years, yet others attended their first reunion this year. All agreed to keep in mind that it's "Only five years more to the Twenty-fifth,"—also to return and bring one other member. All are especially urged to send information and suggestions to the Class Secretary at any time.

The list of those who registered at alumni Headquarters follows:

Claude Beebe, L. C. Burke, W. C. Burdick, Paul Boehm, Dorothea Chickering, F. N. Davidson, Grace Hastie, Mrs. R. B. Hartman (Clare Stillman), W. P. Hirschberg, Mrs. W. V. Jannsen (Carrie Evans), Rachel M. Kelsey, Merritt Murphy, Mrs. Charles Peterson (Antoinette Jackowska), A. W. Pollard, E. J. B. Schubring, Harry Severson, Lynn Tracy, Charles Williams, and L. B. Williams.

Reunion of 1906

By L. W. BRIDGMAN

Nineteen Six, full fifteen years out, celebrated its third quinquennial this year with about eighty-eight (including members of families) registered for the two days' festivities. Of the members of the class themselves, some 47, or about 12 per cent of the total, were back. More mature and ripened by experience they seemed, of course; yet they were the same nevertheless, and upon this rekindling of associations one renewed a vivid memory of choice personalities which made the reunion constantly recollective of old University days.

Back in 1902-06 a Nineteen Sixer asked or cared little of a classmate's personal affairs, such as the ages of his brothers, if he had any, if his sisters were good looking, or whether his dad was wealthy or possessed merely a few hundred thousand. On the hill it was just Bill or Hank, Ruth or Edna, in school to have a good time, and incidentally gleaning something of the education the folks back home fondly thought the dear ones in Madison were striving so hard to gain. Beyond this normal interest in their fellows nobody cared much.

But in 1921, together again, these old classmates after long separation exhibited quite a different perspective. This time it was the probability of interest rates going down that concerned the men; for the girls, the relative merits of Crisco over lard for shortening, their troubles in getting somebody to stay home with the children, or how much more one had to pay for milk than the others. Simply the great American home, no different from others', though it be a university graduate's.

Thus the hosts of '06 came, and it was a joyous two days of pleasure that followed. The large Union Building on Langdon, facing the Library, was the class headquarters, thanks to Nan Birge and her influence with the powers that be. It was an ideal hangout. It would be better if other classes in the future would utilize University buildings for headquarters and devote the saving, as '06 is doing, to substantial contributions to the Memorial Union Building Fund.

In orange and black headgear, the brightly garbed children not the least conspicuous, the prodigal sons and daughters of '06 met at the Park street pier at 1 P. M., June 20, and took ship for Camp Indianola, on Mendota's western shore. In this quiet, shady rendezvous the tables were found spread in the long dining hall of the main cottage, near the water's edge. The luncheon was delightful, all swore, and there followed an hour's reminiscence and banter, with Otto Kowalke doing the honors as chairman. He pleaded for 100 per cent membership of our class in the Alumni Association, and the suggestion was received with unanimous accord.

There were a few speeches in happy vein, each voicing his or her honest pleasure at being back again in the old haunts. Lily Ross Taylor, on Vassar's faculty, told interestingly of her experiences with the Red Cross in Italy and other allied lands years has no fears of immediate starvation. The size of that high-powered car which he drove from the western foothills is one straw pointing to another Nineteen Six success.

Fern Scott was also there with bells on, in the shape of a jaunty tam and the same sprightly air. Fern is for woman's rights, and to prove it she "ran" for register of deeds of Vilas county last fall, and won in a "walk."

Letters were read from the following: Fred Heinemann, Harold Falk, J. I. Bush, Wilfred Parker, Mr. and Mrs. Howell Parks (Isabel Cunningham), V. H. Kadish, Maynard Allen, Helen Rosenstengel, Helen Turvill, C. H. Preston, (he came later), Ralph Hetzel, president of New Hampshire college, Mrs. R. J. Kieckhefer (Meta Starke), W. E. Bates, B. M.

during the war, and mention was made of Marjorie Daw Johnson's notable Red Cross work among the Italian refugees, and of her audience with King Emmanuel, who quite appropriately accorded to her, as a chosen representative of the class of '06, kingly honors for exemplifying the ideals of her University in the field of human service.

Frederick Johnson, famed Philippine engineer-explorer, now in state highway service in Texas, voiced a tribute to Alma Mater. Art Melzner, from Butte, somewhat at the expense of his charming wife and mother, whom he brought with him from Montana, gave a truly western characterization of the way life's changes affect a fellow as he chases the wolves from his doorstep. Those who know say, however, that the little quarterback of other Concklin, Conrad Hoffman (by his mother as proxy), Thaddeus Brindley, Cudworth Beye, Martin Nelson, Dr. E. G. Festerling, S. E. Elmore. There was also a good sized list of contributors to the slush fund.

That evening the class attended the senior play in the open air theater back of Bascom Hall. On Tuesday, Alumni day, the grads of '06 reminisced among the trees, attended the Alumni general meeting, and participated with other alumni in a buffet luncheon in Lathrop hall. In the afternoon the members shared in the zig-zag parade and Lincoln service on the upper campus.

At the banquet '06 had a long table where 68 of them sat down. Noise was their second name that night. It was a wild affair. Here the class gave to the world some original songs, written and copyrighted by Marion Ryan, which got by in good shape. Then the president's reception, and to those of Nineteen Six who attended it gave extra pleasure, for Nan Birge is the hostess for this and similar functions in University life. About thirty of the class wound up the reunion by attending the Alumni ball at Lathrop gym.

The class photograph may be had by members from the Photoart House, Madison. Send 50 cents.

Those officially registered from '06 were the following:

Mr. and Mrs. J. Q. Ames (Edna Graves), and children, Fordyce and May, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Wetzler, William Lehmann, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Distelhorst and children, Stuart and Ruth, Anna G. However, I have an official family of some 850, including something over 100 ambitious seniors who are clamoring to be turned loose upon the waiting world on the same days that the reunion is staged in Madison; hence my inability to attend. I certainly shall see that the dates of our commencement exercises are not allowed to conflict with the dates of our next reunion. 1911 Ten Year Reunion

By E. D. STEINHAGEN

Some Reunion! Some time! Some gang! That's the 1911 Reunion in a nutshell. Plans for the reunion were under way since last February. But the short intensive bombardment of literature was let go at what was considered the psychological moment—the last week of May and the two first weeks of June.

Sunday saw the opening of "Ma" Mahoney's on Lake street as 1911 Headquarters. The spacious veranda invited all L'leveners to tarry and ask and answer questions and find out what's doing tomorrow. By Sunday evening about fifty L'leveners had donned the cardinal tams and smocks and were flaunting them on Madison's highways. The veranda at headquarters was also well decorated with flags, balloons, and the L'leven slogan "Ten years out and going stronger."

Monday saw the arrival of the rest of the gang until our register groaned under the weight of one hundred and four names, not counting the L'leveners-in-law and the L'leven heirs and assigns. At eleven o'clock the "pee-rade" to the boat was started, care being taken to pass by the 1916 class headquarters. A large fight gong was used to keep the cadence, Letty Hannan supplying the energy. The boat landed everybody at Bernard's Park after a live little trip, live with the singing and general kidding that had become the order of things. The good spirit of camaraderie made itself manifest very early and stayed till the last stroke of the music. At Bernard's a base ball game and impromptu concerts were the order, followed by dancing. But the thing we really came for was the picnic lunch. We realized that after we'd downed it. Ursula and Bob and their cohorts "done noble." That's our best tribute. After the afternoon's activities the return to Madison was made and a boat ride and an automobile ride were the order of things. Those who had had enough driving coming to Madison elected the boat. The rest drove.

Tuesday was the big day. "Ma" Mahoney's was crowded all morning. The class went en Massè to Lathrop for lunch, stampeded the cafeteria and livened things up for Naught Six who were slumbering over their lunches. The big "pee-rade" was formed after lunch and went up State street and went "over the top" onto the upper campus, where Col. Julius Olson met the line and gave the L'leven contingent the center of the stage. Escorted by the band and two peacherinas with wreaths and followed by the other reunion classes, the procession moved up the campus. Each person picked up a twig of evergreen and as the line passed the Lincoln statue, the two wreaths were placed at the base and the twigs were dropped likewise in tribute. After a simple ceremony about the statue the fun began. L'leven snake danced and paraded and danced rings around 1916 to its heart's content. It was here that the massing of the gorgeous cardinal costumes became particularly beautiful against the green background of the campus.

Photoart

A short interval to rest up and the line was formed for the banquet. The classes were seated in blocks. L'leven came supplied with noise makers and the gong which was placed under a table and could be heard—which was enough. Of course the L'leven parade among the banquet tables was the parade. But the feature of the evening was the 1911 stunt "The Follies of Yester Year." Beginning with 1861 each five year reunion class was represented by a 1911 girl in the prevailing costume of its graduation year. As each performer mounted the stage the class massed as a chorus sang a song popular at the time the costume was in vogue. Let me tell you if there wasn't any man there who didn't hope some one of the dainty misses of the 60's, 70's and 80's wouldn't vamp him, well! he was no true Wisconsin man. Of course it took L'leven girls to carry it through.

After the banquet an adjournment was taken to Lathrop for the Alumni Ball. L'leveners all attended in costume and stuck till the music packed up and left. Incidentally while the music was out for a drink—or what ever they do go out for these drinkless times—Barbara grabbed the piano and L'leven carried out some Paul Jones's on the floor.

This is a cold recital of events. To those who were there the warm spirit of fellowship will fill in between the lines and let them live over again the short, happy reunion time. To those who weren't there—well, be there five years from now. Based on a close observation, it is safe to say that not a member of the class was passed by in the endless exchange of questions and searches of the register. You can feel—if you weren't there—that somebody asked for you. Some were not known by the secretary personally, but he passed on the queries, and "where you are" and "what you're doing" were in most cases answered.

Every L'levener who was there and some who were not helped the success of the reunion. Several who couldn't come sent in their contributions and their good wishes. But a lot of hard work was done in preparation for the reunion in planning the costume and in editing and getting out the literature. Milwaukee was the scene of the preparations.

Gretchen Schoenleber, Helen Hennessey Zillmer, Red Dohmen, Cheb Rohn and Bill Howe did yeoman service in the promotion and planning. To Alice Smith, May Metcalfe, Katherine and Esther Lehman we are indebted for the conception and execution of the "Follies of Yester Year." From now on the follies of 1926 will be on our minds. In fact we'll have to get busy because Karl Kratz has already written in to tell us to register him for the Fifteen Year Reunion! Can you beat that?

Reunion of 1916

By JESSIE BOSSHARD MAURER

Commencement of June 1921 was the fifth anniversary of the Class of 1916 and its first reunion. One hundred thirty-two loyal members responded to the call of Alma Mater bringing with them all of the spirit, enthusiasm and loyalty acquired before and since our exodus from the greatest University in the country. There was no doubt about the spirit from the time the first name was registered until taps were sounded on Commencement Day. Not all of our loyal members were back, however, 108 class members who were not present at reunion sent in their preliminary one dollar fee.

Monday morning the 'Steeners paraded through the student quarter with a ten piece band lustily heralding our arrival.

In the afternoon, a business meeting was called in the Biology Building. Reports were read, future reunions discussed, and the following class officers were elected: C. N. Maurer, president, Harriet O'Shea, vice-president, Mrs. C. N. Maurer (Jessie Bosshard), secretary, Earl Cooper, treasurer, Crawford Wheeler, sergeant at arms.

At the conclusion of this meeting, "Bub" Maurer, as parade chairman, led the band and class members out in parade around the campus, down through the student section and back to headquarters at Mrs. Seymour's after which we disbanded until time to meet at the Woman's Building where a jolly banquet with good old 1916 pep, a fine orchestra and entertainer and friendly talks by President Crawford Wheeler, Dr. A. B. Hall, Prof. Carl Russell Fish, Judge E. G. Toomey and others from the distinguished assemblage made the hours fly all too quickly. Dancing at the Psi Upsilon House completed the evening's program.

At the Monday business meeting it was decided to have a picnic across Lake Mendota early Tuesday morning. An able committee provided ample amounts of fruit, buns, bacon, wienies and coffee for the large number which presented itself at the Park street pier ready once more to venture on the surface of the beautiful Mendota waters and recall former launch and canoe parties or even "picnics for two" (for even the latter institution existed long before 1916 ever entered into college activities).

A baseball game, foot races and games whetted our already keen appetites and the enjoyable breakfast was soon over and everyone on board the boat returning to Madison and the General Alumni meeting.

From this time the Alumni in general celebrated with a luncheon, baseball game between Chicago and Wisconsin, the time honored Zig Zag parade followed by the Lincoln Ceremony on Main Hill, the General Alumni dinner, President Birge's reception and, as a fitting climax, the Alumni Ball.

Plans for our next reunion are already under way and it is unnecessary to urge the attendance of those who were here this year, for they will surely come again. If you didn't reune this June, begin now to arrange to be here next time.

Professor Ludvig Hanneson of Stockholm, Sweden, and Prof. O. H. Larsen, of Denmark, directors of the Economics Research Bureaus of their respective countries, visited the College of Agriculture in June to become acquainted with the work of our college in farm management and general agricultural economics.

The University Tenting Colony, established several summers ago on the Mendota shore about two and a half miles from the gymnasium, is proving very popular with families coming to Madison, so that members may attend summer school. The University provides platforms for the campers, who must furnish their own tents and equipment. A well on the ground furnishes a very good water supply, and groceries and milk are delivered to the campers every morning.

Petroleum Geologists

By C. W. TOMLINSON, '13

At the annual meeting of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists in Tulsa, Okla., March 17-19, Wisconsin was represented by nearly a score of alumni, former students, and ex-faculty members. At the banquet of the Association on Friday evening, March 18, the Wisconsin men secured a table, at which the following were seated: H. J. Allen, '15, Wichita, Kan., Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Cheney, '09, Tulsa, Okla., G. H. Cox, '05, Rolla, Mo., F. A. Edson (grad.) and Mrs. Edson (Fanny Carter, '10), Norman, Okla., W. E. Hopper (Grad.), Shreveport, La., W. E. Hubbard, '15, Ardmore, Okla., A. W. Johnston, Okmulgee, Okla., Russell Knappen, '15, Lawrence, Kan., R. D. Longyear, '15, Minneapolis, Minn., Mr.

and Mrs. J. W. Merritt, '17, Sapulpa, Okla., J. M. Perkins, ex '14, A. B. Rowley, '15 Tulsa, Okla., Mr. and Mrs. R. J. St Germain (from the School of Mines at Platteville), Tulsa, Okla., W. H. Schoewe '14, Lawrence, Kan., C. W. Tomlinson '13, Denver Colo., and Samuel Weidman '94, Norman, Okla.

This Wisconsin bunch held the center of interest among the 400 guests present, throughout the dinner. We started out promptly with a rousing 'Varsity Locomotive which called forth half a dozen attempted responses from other groups scattered about the hall. This was followed up by "On Wisconsin" and a couple of other old Wisconsin favorites, which made the hall resound, and we capped the climax with the 'Varsity Toast and another Locomotive (all standing) at the end of the meal, before the regular program of after-dinner addresses was opened. One incident was a skyrocket for "Rockhounds."

Our only serious rival at volume of musical effort was the more numerous crew of "cub rockhounds" ("Pebble Pups") from the University of Oklahoma. Poor Chicago's contingent was scattered all over the room, and their attempts to get back at us were amusing. I attended a luncheon of Chicago alumni the following day and enjoyed listening to the wails about "the splendid impression Wisconsin had made," "what excellent advertising it was for their institution," "we must get together at the banquet next year," etc.

Alumni! First-class men in professional fields are listed in your professional directory. Other things being equal, members of the General Alumni Association can show their spirit of mutual helpfulness by doing business with those professional men and those business concerns that use the advertising columns of The Alumni Magazine.

Second class matter is not forwarded by the postoffice department. To insure receipt of your Alumni Magazine keep us posted as to change in your address.

What is a University?

By CHARLES REYNOLDS, '18

ATHLETE: "A place to get on a team and win a great big 'W.'"

COLLEGE FLAPPER: "Oh, without these sorority and fraternity parties, and all the fellows begging me to wear their pins, I would die!"

PROFESSOR OF PHILOSOPHY: "My dear sir, I will explain life to you, but a University?"

PROFESSOR GILMAN: "An inspiring place to learn to serve others."

HASH-SLINGER: "Same here, only leave out the inspiring part."

GIRL IN LOVE: "Isn't it wonderful? We are together in four classes!"

BOY IN LOVE: "Didn't the Girl give you a hint, just a hint?"

THE 14-YEAR-OLD FRESHMAN: "The complexities of modern life in all its vicissitudes, with the war's aftermath of materialism and need of stabilization of mind, are best analyzed in the idealistic atmosphere of the university."

EDITOR OF COLLEGE DAILY: "They will not let me publish what I know."

BUSINESS MAN: "The university, eh? Well, we had to fire one nice college graduate because he wanted to manage the whole works, and forgot about his own job."

COLLEGE POLITICIAN: "A good place to learn the game."

ORPHEUM MANAGER: "A place that sometimes drives the students to us; but still, we supplement the university, giving the students a harmless touch of sophistication."

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENT: "How do I know? But my brother went there and had a great time for four years, absorbed a lot of the family cash, and now I'm going to get my share."

ALUMNUS: "How in the world could we have an Association and talk over old times—that the fellows do not have now—unless we had a university to go to?"

ALUMNA: "Why, without a university, there would be no alumnae association, and how would we keep in touch with each other in regard to engagements and marriages of the old boys and girls and their babies? What better place to look over the boys?"

CONSERVATIVE: "A place that makes more radicals out of otherwise fairly good young fellows."

RADICAL: "A place that makes more conservatives out of otherwise fairly good young fellows."

BOY WITH AN INCOME: "Well, er-well, I have to go somewhere, don't I?"

BOY WITHOUT AN INCOME: "An institution whose benefits to me will enable my son to enjoy what I do not."

TOWN GIRLS: (Depends on whether you knew any of them.)

LAKE MENDOTA: "An institution that teaches love, and to associate that love with me I make the University what it is."

"DAD" MORGAN: "It doubled the output of the malted milk factories in America."

CHICAGO STENOGRAPHER: "Oh, those college boys!"

CHICAGO TRIBUNE: "I can't say too much for the University of Chicago, but Wisconsin!—not a word."

OWNER OF OPERA HOUSE: "It always fills my galleries."

NORTH HALL: "Students may come, and students may go. They remain the same, only they come and go in Packards, Cunninghams, Reveres, and Rolls-Royce now!"

HUMORIST: "I'll bite; what is it?"

And yet we wouldn't exchange our college life for a million dollars.

"When Good Fellows Get Together"

By SEARGENT P. WILD, '18

Pretty nearly everything but the Law School was represented at a little gathering of Wisconsinites at the home of Carl Q. Harris (he likes that Q) 6942 Calumet Ave., Chicago, on April 8. There were five L. & S., three ags, an engineer and a commerce man—pretty nearly all of them. I think, members of the local and general alumni associations, but so scattered through the city that except at the big annual football banquet they, or we, very seldom see each other.

Here was the gang: Carl Q. Harris, '18 (Ag.), Maurice Field, '21, (L & S), Eugene Hatch, '20, (L & S), W. G. Mantonya, '19 (E), A. R. Upgren, '20, (C), Edwin Godfrey, '20 (L & S), W. M. Fowler, '18 (L & S), J. F. Crawford, ex'22 (Ag), E. M. Schmidt, '21 (L & S), and S. P. Wild, '18 (Ag).

Art Kralovek, '18 (Ag), was s'posed to be there, but a late rumor had it that his wife wouldn't let him. Ed Perkins, '20 (C), was also AWOL, though not for the same reason.

We discussed, among many other things, all the "Dope" in the recent numbers of the ALUMNI MAG., and you would have been, as the perennial Skyrocket has it, "both surprised and pleased" at the favorable comments—but probably, unlike the Skyrocket, more pleased than surprised!

CAMP U S NOTES

Dr. J. D. Phillips, assistant dean of the College of Engineering, has been selected as business manager of the University for the period covered by the leave of absence granted H. J. Thorkelson, '98 (See '98 Class News).

"Distinguished" rating has been awarded for the fourth time to the University for the work of its military department. Governmental inspection was made by Col. W. D. Chitty, Fort Sheridan, on May 27, when 1,200 R. O. T. C. students were reviewed. Colonel Chitty declared at the time of the review that the co-operation between the University and the military department was better than at any institution he had inspected.

Walter J. Kohler was elected president of the Board of Regents of the University for the ensuing year.

George Hambrecht (ex) '96, a member of the Board of Visitors of the University, was recently appointed Director of Vocational Education for the State of Wisconsin.

A delegation of farmers of Boone County, Ill., visited the College of Agriculture in July under the leadership of their county agent.

Twelve students in the College of Mining Engineering are now on a two months' trip visiting the great mines of the Western states and of British Columbia. Prof. E. R. Shorey, '08, accompanies them.

The enrollment at the 1921 Summer Session at Wisconsin now exceeds 4500.

COLGATE'S

"HANDY GRIP"

The Refill Shaving Stick

*You don't throw your pen away
when it needs
refilling*

NOR is it necessary to buy a new "Handy Grip" when your Shaving Stick is all used. Just buy a Colgate "Refill," for the price of the soap alone, screw it into your "Handy Grip," and you are "all set" for another long season of easy shaving.

The soap itself is threaded. There is no waste.

Use Colgate's for Shaving Comfort, as well as for the Convenience it affords. The softening lather needs no mussy rubbing in with the fingers. It leaves your face cool and refreshed.

We took the rub out of shaving originally, in 1903.

COLGATE & CO.
Dept. 212
199 Fulton Street, New York

The metal "Handy Grip," containing a trial size stick of Colgate's Shaving Soap, sent for 10c. When the trial stick is used up you can buy the Colgate "Refills," threaded to fit this Grip.

This advertisement was run in Printers' Ink. It is the 3rd of a series of 12

PRINTERS' INK is a magazine of advertising and selling ideas for business executives. For over thirty years it has completely covered this field. It is read with warm interest by men who spend millions of dollars a year in national advertising.

In addition, over 1600 copies of this publication go to the advertising agents, who are sales advisors to constructive business men.

Reproductions of this advertisement are appearing in the alumni magazines of the following colleges and universities:

Selling of Goods

TO the Dominant man who heads the Dominant family whose purchasing agent is the Dominant woman, and whose office purchasing agent may be a young chap just out of College—

Obviously it is a waste on some accounts to use all publications that claim high percentage of subscribers who own automobiles and silk shirts. Why not play safe and cultivate the majority of really dominant men and tell your story to them through the alumni magazines?

The thirty-eight alumni publications have a combined circulation of 140,000 college trained men. You can buy this circulation by units of a thousand. Request a rate card for your file, or ask to see a representative.
