The First Published Story of the Writing of Wisconsin's Famous Song as Written by Its Author

On Wisconsin!

By Carl Beck, '10

"ON WISCONSIN" has become in nearly a quarter of a century, such an organic part of the spirit of the state and the University of Wisconsin that it is hard for many to believe that before it was captured for Wisconsin it was in its incipient state being composed for Minnesota. You will observe that the beat of On-Wisconsin is also that of Min-ne-so-ta.

"On, Wisconsin" was conceived as a slogan, written as a football song and composed as a march in September, 1909, in a rooming house in Chicago, a stone's throw from the University of Chicago. I was a Wisconsin student, out one year to fight poor health, and to earn a little money. Purdy was a recent graduate of Hamilton College, working in Chicago, and had never seen Wisconsin. The odd situation of two men born in the east, one of them never having set foot in Wisconsin, writing the University of Wisconsin march beginning as a Minnesota march causes such surprise that a little background may be interesting.

The fact that I had left Madison in the middle of 1909 to find a job in Chicago brings up my part of the background. Still a youngster, for the third time I was fighting poor health brought on, as I can see looking back, by long hours of over-work and over-strain when I was earning my way through high school, as a newsboy.

One evening in middle September, I heard a few measures of entirely new music from the piano. It was stirring and martial. The football season had just opened and I was feeling its spirit. I came out to Purdy at the piano and asked where he had gotten that fine strain of music. He replied, "I have just started to compose a football march in competition for a $100.00 prize offered by a music store in St. Paul for a new Minnesota football song." It will probably surprise Minnesotans to know this. I have a hazy recollection that Frank Waller, '07, had told him about the prize offered. I asked Bill to play those few measures again. He had begun on the chorus to which he was trying the words "Min-ne-so-ta, Min-ne-so-ta," as a start on the musical composition. When he played it over, like a flash I answered, "No, Bill, 'On, Wisconsin! On, Wisconsin!'" I went on with enthusiasm, "If you will make it Wisconsin, and let me work with you on it, I will guarantee you will get that $100.00—maybe more". It was one of those gusts of boyish confidence, for I certainly had no way of guaranteeing any $100.00—never having sold or promoted anything in business except my high school newspaper route! I persuaded him, however, and we went into a huddle of song collaboration.

Purdy had the creative musical ability and technique but he had never played football. I knew nothing of the technique of music, I have never been a song writer—in fact I cannot even carry a tune, but I had played football,—I had been brought up on Yale's famous "March on down the field",—I had imbibed the spirit of Wisconsin and had cheered for Wisconsin teams. As Bill composed I tried to interpret and improve. I had to do it by my poor voice and by gestures, and by plunges across the room. I have often wondered since what the other lodgers must have thought! As for Bill, with his overflowing Irish humor, he never so long as he lived ceased to laugh at my efforts to get over to him some of the rushing high spots of what is now "On, Wisconsin!"

When we had the music to our satisfaction we went at the words. Remembering that most college songs are too long for quick memorizing, I proposed that we have one verse and that the chorus. I have always felt that its brevity, with Bill's swinging music helped the student body to get the quick grasp it did on its first introduction. We never thought of writing a "State" verse, or verses for other sports, like crew.

With the simple words completed, Purdy worked at the conventional march prelude, which also has its stir. Next, how was it to be published for the big Minnesota game at Madison in October! Together, we knew one Wisconsin man in Chicago, an engineer and his wife who used to room at the same house. To publish a

The New Forest Products Laboratory

THE IRON jaws of giant steam shovels are busily engaged in digging the huge hole which will form the foundation for the beautiful new Forest Products Laboratory. A few months ago Congress passed a $900,000 appropriation bill for the construction of this building and work began immediately. The entire building is to be completed in one year's time.

The project is the second largest in Wisconsin under the current Federal program of public works and will furnish employment to considerable numbers of skilled workers and mechanics. In general plan the building will be U-shaped, about 275 feet in length and over-all breadth. It is of modern design, emphasizing "stepped-back" construction, vertical lines, and large areas of glass in the external walls. C. B. Fritz & Co., of Madison, Wis., were the successful bidders. Holabird and Root, Chicago, are the architects. Davidson and Constable, Stamford, Conn., assisted in the landscaping design.

Better utilization of forest materials and broader markets for forest products are the objectives for which government research workers will use the new facilities. In its six stories with total floor space of 175,000 square feet, the building will contain modern technical and scientific facilities for testing and investigating wood and other forest products in manifold uses and transformations, from logs, poles, and lumber, to pulp, paper, and turpentine.

A large group of dry kilns equipped for close control of temperature, humidity, and air circulation will help to solve the problems of seasoning many species and types of wood. A cold storage chamber will be provided in which green logs and timber can be kept in unchanged condition for experimental work at any time.

Since every step of wood manufacture and construction and the satisfactory performance of wood in service are influenced by moisture conditions, a number of humidity rooms will be provided in which wood can be brought to the exact moisture content desired for study under conditions simulating any season of the year or any climate of the temperature zone.

Machines for testing timbers and framework up to a breaking load of 1,000,000 pounds will be served by cranes in a testing gallery accommodating pieces and panels as large as 30 feet high and 100 feet long. Tests of boxes and shipping crates can be carried on at any degree of dryness or dampness that would be met in service by storing and testing the containers in a special moisture-control room served by movable machinery.

The pulp and paper research laboratory, occupying six floors at one end of the building, will include grinder equipment, a digester tower 40 feet square, beating and refining apparatus, and an experimental paper machine with all moving parts under precision control. With this equipment the study of various

American woods as pulp and paper raw material will be continued, along lines that have already broadened the pulpwood market and pointed the way to improved chemical pulping.

Among unusual features of the building will be an ultra violet ray chamber, where wood can be sterilized for mycological studies and where paints and other materials can be exposed for tests, an X-ray room provided for the examination of the minute structure and growth characteristics of wood, a microphotographic studio, and a stone table and shaft for ultracentrifuge apparatus to determine molecular sizes of cellulose and other wood components.

Provision is made for a large timber preservation laboratory, a wood fermentation unit, fractionating

WHILE AT Wisconsin, Carl Beck specialized in social science and political economy. He was one of the pioneers in opening the school houses for community centers, for a time in that work in Superior, Wisconsin. He was called to the Civic Secretaryship of the People's Institute in New York and for several years carried on social and civic work on the East Side. He was a leader in the open forum movement, was secretary for several years of Mayor Mitchell's Independence Day Committee, and during the war was connected with the War Labor Board, Washington, D. C.

At the close of the war, Carl Beck went into business and is now a trust adviser of the Chase National Bank. He is active in the New York Alumni Association, having instituted the Round Table Discussion group, of which he is chairman.

HOW WOULD you like to live once again the years you spent on the Campus? We knew you would, so the Association has prepared a film depicting the life of a student on the campus for the full school year. The picture is available in both the 16 mm. and the 35 mm. sizes. There are many clubs about the country which are confronted with a dearth of program material and it is the hope of the officers of the Association that the preparation and release of this three reel film will add a pleasant evening's entertainment for members of alumni clubs.

Briefly, here is the story of the picture. A boy who has just graduated from high school, with insufficient funds to enroll in college, finds a friend in one of the directors of the Alumni Association. This man, ably portrayed by Dr. Arnold Jackson, '16, helps the boy to enroll at Wisconsin. The film shows views of the freshman week activities and the historic Varsity Welcome, and then takes this character through the life of the average student at Wisconsin.

Homecoming, Prom, Commencement and reunions are shown as representative of the special occasions held every year. Certain professors, among them Dr. Birge, John R. Commons, E. A. Ross, Dr. Steenbock, are shown at work in their offices and laboratories. Most all of the prominent buildings on the campus pass in review before the audience and many of the very attractive spots about the campus are again brought to life.

We are sure that you will enjoy this film when you see it. All you have to do to get it, is to write to the General Secretary, Herman M. Egstad, asking for the use of either size and he will see to it that the film is sent to you on the date you specify. Inasmuch as there will probably be quite a demand for these films, some time should be allowed for the return of the film from other clubs and the mailing of it to you. Let us know at least two to three weeks in advance of when you want it.

Team beats Purdue, but Loses to Pennsylvania and Minnesota; Wins Initial Doubleheader, Ties Auburn

By GEORGE DOWNER

AS THIS is written, Wisconsin's football season, taking account only of the major games, is just half over. The team has defeated Purdue and lost to Pennsylvania and Minnesota. Illinois, Ohio State and Chicago are still to be met.

Before undertaking to review the year's football to date, I ask Magazine readers' indulgence for a personal statement. Last year the editor of the Magazine sent out a questionnaire in which, among other matters were some requests for suggestions relating to Magazine's treatment of University athletics. Most of those who answered these questions assumed—possibly because of the number of times I was a contributor—that I was a regular member of The Alumni Magazine staff.

Because I am not, I have avoided, so far as possible, any editorial expressions about Wisconsin athletics. As a member of the athletic department, handling sports publicity, I submit that when I write for a University publication, like the Magazine, my proper role is that of a reporter, not an analyst or commentator.

It is a problem to know how to handle these reviews for the Magazine. Readers living in the central west have either first hand knowledge of the events from having attended the games, or they have already read detailed accounts of them in the newspapers. I have, therefore, assumed that I was writing mainly for subscribers at a distance, who knew little more than the scores, and I have sought to give them news stories, emphasizing what seemed to me the outstanding facts rather than personal opinions.

Practice opened Sept. 15 with a squad of about 60 men. Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite started his fifth year at Wisconsin with practically a new staff of assistants. Fred Swan, line coach, a graduate of Stanford with two years experience in the same position at Colgate, had succeeded Leonard Allison in March when Allison joined the staff at California. Guy Sundt, former freshman coach, had been named to coach the varsity backs. Elmer Lampe, former Chicago end, succeeded Jack Ryan as end coach. Rube Wagner remained as assistant line coach. All but Sundt had worked in spring practice.

Wisconsin opened with the usual double-header—against Bradley Institute and North Dakota State. Coach Thistlethwaite had intended to use all his leading candidates, alternately, against both teams, but because North Dakota State, a week earlier, had held Minnesota to a 13-7 score and seemed much the stronger of the two opponents, most of the game against Bradley was played by the second team. The reserves won handily, 33 to 6. Outstanding players were Strain, Elliker, Linfor and Kruger.

Clair Strain, sophomore fullback, ripped through the Bradley line for repeated gains including two touchdowns and did some splendid forward passing. Elliker showed some of the speediest and shiftiest open field running seen in a preliminary game in recent years though his muff of a punt gave Bradley its score.

North Dakota State proved one of the strongest opening day opponents a Wisconsin team has faced in years and when ward passes and one lateral accounted for the 70 yard march and the score.

This game revealed Wisconsin's weakness against a passing attack which has not yet been fully corrected. It also showed the old Badger offensive weakness when the 10 yard line is reached. Wisconsin gained 218 yards but was usually halted when a touchdown seemed imminent. In neither game did any of the ends—Thurner, Lovshin, Haworth and Catlin—show anything to suggest that the wing problem had been solved. Kabat, Captain Smith and Simmons looked good in defense.

Then came the game with Alabama Polytechnic Institute, known in the south as Auburn. It had been difficult to convince the public that this would be a real test and the players probably absorbed some of this popular feeling. The game, however, proved a battle and Wisconsin was fortunate to escape with a tie, 7-7. Coached by Chet Wynne and Roger Kiley, former Notre Dame stars and experienced coaches, Auburn gave a fine demonstration of Rockne football and fought to the last ditch. Receiving the kick-off, they had the ball most of the first period. A fumble by Rebholz was recovered by Auburn on Wisconsin's 30 yard line and Auburn rushed and passed for two first downs, eventually reaching Wisconsin's 3 yard line, where the Badgers braced and an Auburn pass was grounded in the end zone on fourth down. The rest of the first half was a punting duel in midfield in which neither team was able to rush the ball beyond the 50 yard line.

Joe Linfor, Wisconsin halfback, took Auburn's second half kick-off and by a beautiful sprint, aided by some fine blocking, ran it 95 yards for a touchdown. After three punting exchanges, Auburn started from midfield and rushed and passed its way 50 yards to a touchdown, Hitchcock's tying goal kick ending the scoring. The southerners got their touchdowns in seven plays, including two passes which gained 30 yards.

The fourth period was indecisive, neither team being close to a score though Wisconsin once reached the 15 yard line where a fourth down pass went for a touchback. Auburn then rushed the ball 30 yards but lost it on a fumble in midfield.

This tie game served to break down the complacency of the squad and put the players in the proper frame of mind for the all-important game with Purdue the next week. It was a common observation, before the Auburn game, that as the Wisconsin-Purdue game went, so would the season probably go for the Badgers. The Boilermakers were considered almost equal favorites, with Northwestern and Michigan, for the conference championship. They had the best backfield material of any team except Northwestern and were believed little inferior to the Wildcats in that department. Their ends, Moss and Calvert, were veterans, Moss being considered the peer of any Big Ten pass receiver. Miller, their captain, was an outstanding center and it was believed that Purdue had guards and tackles capable of holding up their end of the work.

All this was well known here by both coaches and players and the Badgers entered the Purdue clash "keyed" to the limit. The result was that they jumped into the fray in exactly the right frame of mind. In just eight plays after Wisconsin first secured possession of the ball, John Schneller crashed over Purdue's goal line for a touchdown. It took only about three minutes of the period to do it. In this march, Schneller, fullback, and Walter McGuire, halfback and field general, did most of the ball carrying. The line and the other backs, by fine blocking, made their steady gains possible and the whole team was clicking in perfect unison and with magnificent dash and drive.

About six minutes later, Wisconsin had another touchdown on a similar drive of 55 yards and before

Regents Discuss Photo Lab and Rowing Tank In recommending a plan for the establishment of a central university photographic laboratory, the university board of regents at their October meeting, rescinded the action taken in August for the transfer of the university photographic laboratories to the bureau of visual instruction.

The plan for a photographic laboratory which would be independent of any department of the university, was made upon the recommendations of the executive and agriculture committees of the board.

The two committees held that all university photographic work should be done on a strictly cost basis. The photo work was formerly done by the university laboratories under the direction of M. E. Diemer, while the extension division maintained its own laboratories in the bureau of visual instruction for the making of photos, moving pictures and lantern slides.

The recommendation for the reduction of board rates in the men's and women's dormitories was unanimously approved by the board at the same meetings. The cut of $20 from the total yearly bill leaves a total of $230 to be paid by the women, and $250 to be paid by the residents of the men's dormitories.

Power to act on the construction of the proposed rowing tank and tank house for university crews was given to the executive committee, provided that the receipts of the current football season warrant the expenditure. The cost of the new building is estimated at $8,000, Regent Fred H. Clausen, Horicon, chairman of the regent physical education committee, said.

Other actions of the regents taken at the meeting were:

Approval of the reorganization of the personnel in the bursar's office made several weeks ago by the executive committee to cut administrative costs.

Appointed J. D. Phillips, business manager, D. L. Halverson, director of dormitories and commons, and C. L. Christensen, dean of the college of agriculture, as a committee to devise a plan for the housing of short course students in the university dormitories.

Approved the construction of a new dairy building, if a public works program is drafted by the special session of the legislature.

Five studies intended to effect economies in the university administrative departments will be submitted at the next meeting of the board. These studies were initiated several months ago in an attempt to reduce expenditures in an attempt to meet the budget deficit of nearly $100,000.

Museum Owns Early Edison Inventions With the passing of Thomas Edison, "Wizard of Menlo Park," the world lost one of its most versatile inventors, humanists, and scientists. Three of Mr. Edison's inventions have spread throughout the world: the motion picture machine, the incandescent light, and the phonograph.

The Wisconsin historical museum possesses two of Edison's earliest creations, an Edison kinetoscope or motion picture projector, and a switch-board built for the Appleton, Wis., electric plant in 1892.

The kinetoscope was patented in 1897. The machine possessed by the museum is 32 years old. Approximately six feet high, the projector stands on a tripod. Two ungainly looking boxes contain the necessary equipment. One case contains gears, film box, and film container. The other contains a carbon-arc to furnish illumination. Outstanding among the differences between Edison's earliest projector and the modern motion picture machines, is the fact that the early model was cranked by hand.

The switchboard once used by the Appleton, Wis., light company, contains two of Edison's inventions, an ammeter, and an incandescent light with bamboo filament.

The switchboard, with control devices, current and pressure indicators, was used in the first commercial lighting plant to be operated from water power. The entire station was enclosed in a seven by ten wooden structure in the city of Appleton.

Request Funds for Babcock Memorial A plea to the people of Wisconsin in particular and of the United States in general for aid in supporting the Babcock Statue Fund, with which will be erected a memorial to Dr. Stephen Moulton Babcock and his unselfish devotion to high ideals, has been made by E. H. Farrington, emeritus professor of dairy husbandry and secretary-treasurer of the fund drive.

Although satisfactory progress in obtaining donations to the fund has thus far been made, Prof. Farrington explained that Wisconsin's citizens must give their whole-hearted support to the project if it is to be entirely successful. It is proposed to raise $30,000 for the fund, to be used entirely in erecting a statue to Prof. Babcock, who so unselfishly gave his discovery of the Babcock milk test to the world.

Award 114 Soph Honors Sophomore honors were awarded to 114 members of the class of 1933, it was announced in a statement released by Harry S. Glicksman, junior dean of the college of letters and science. Twenty-four of the sophomores were awarded high honors.

Honors were awarded to four more students of the 1933 class than of the 1932 class which had 110 students of honor rank. The list of those receiving high honors was decreased by eight, while those receiving sophomore honors was increased by 12.

Honors were awarded any student earning during his first two years 135 grade points, plus one and one-half grade points for each credit above 60 required in his course. Any student earning 165 grade-points, plus 2 grade points for each credit above 60 required in his course during his first two years will be awarded sophomore high honors.

A.K.Psi Delays Commerce School Change Request

Alpha Kappa Psi, professional commerce fraternity, will yield to the demands of economic depression and soften its request this year for the separation of the commerce school from the college of letters and science, according to a tentative decision announced by the officers of the organization. However, Willard J. Snoeyenbos '32, president of the organization, emphasized that Alpha Kappa Psi is just as much in the fight for separation as before, and would proceed with its campaign to obtain approval of the business men of the state.

The task of collecting comparative statistics which the organization hopes will prove graduates of the university's commerce school less prepared than those in commerce schools which operate as independent units will also be continued.

These two tasks will be the objectives of the organization rather than insistent agitation for the radical changes it championed last year when the drive for separation gathered momentum.

Such agitation, Snoeyenbos pointed out, will be resumed when economic conditions improve and funds become available which would permit the setting up of a school of commerce which would function independently of the college of letters and science.

Alpha Kappa Psi's campaign last year culminated in June when a petition was submitted to commerce students which was to have been turned over to the faculty of the college of letters and science. The petition, setting forth in great detail the organization's purpose in asking for reform, received considerable support before the close of school in June called a halt to the campaign.

The organization's action in deciding to withhold further demands for the present is in keeping with the unofficially expressed sentiment of several members of the faculty of the commerce school who are in sympathy with the program of Alpha Kappa Psi, but believe the present year an inopportune time to ask for the greater expenditures which the change would involve.

Wild Life Society In its last official act, the executive committee of the Lake Monona Wild Life Sanctuary association voted to present $200—the balance of the organization's funds—to the university student loan fund.

In making the gift, the association's committee specified that it be "used for loans to worthy students of the university, preferably Indians, and that it be handled by the university in its usual and customary manner for handling student loans."

Organized six years ago for the purpose of purchasing Frost's woods, on Lake Monona, for a wild life sanctuary, the association was dissolved last February after efforts to raise the necessary funds had failed.

At a meeting of stockholders on Feb. 25, a special committee consisting of Frederick Bodenstein, L. W. Burch, and Mrs. C. A. Harper was authorized to close the business of the association and to dispose of funds remaining in the treasury "for some laudable purpose."

Persons who had contributed to the fund were then notified of the association's action, and that they might get their share of the association's fund, or that they might leave their money in the treasury to be disposed of by the executive committee.

Many contributors took their money, and the balance to be disposed of by the committee was $200. This amount was given to the student loan fund as a memorial to the association.

Seek to Help Fraternities

Harassed Wisconsin fraternities were offered support by Dean Scott H. Goodnight and Registrar Frank O. Holt in retaining their membership if they appoint freshmen study supervisors.

With financial difficulties and high scholastic averages requirements for freshmen facing the Greeks, a scholarship chairman to supervise pledge study in each house would reduce the number of failures, the dean told the interfraternity council. Assistance would be readily given to all of the study chairmen, he promised.

"I would be more than glad to meet these men several times each year," he said. "Once after the six-week exam period; again after the mid semester and a third time after Christmas. Let these men exchange ideas with each other and give all fraternities mutual benefit."

Abolition of all pre-orientation week rushing in Madison was urged by Mr. Holt who declared that the rushing, while legitimate under the council rules, might bring faculty wrath and the discarding of the freshman period.

Introduce New Course in Advertising

A new course in advertising procedure, introducing the student to the technical side of advertising work and giving an insight also into the opportunities and qualifications for success in this field, was announced by the university extension division recently.

The student is first given a view of advertising as a vocation and of types of advertising careers. The technical treatment covers the preparation of the advertisement, advertising mediums, and the materials and machinery used in advertising.

The course recognizes that in preparing an effective sales appeal the advertising man must deal not only with the writing of resultful copy but with the mechanics of advertising. Hence the assignments aim to make students familiar with layouts, borders, backgrounds, typography, illustrations, size and shape of the advertisement, and other technical requirements.

The characteristics and relative value of various mediums are explained. These include newspapers, magazines, farm papers, business papers, direct mail, radio, programs, directories, signs, locations, containers, specialties and demonstrations.

This and That ABOUT THE FACULTY

WILFRED PAYNE, well known instructor in the philosophy department, has left the University and accepted a position as Professor of Philosophy at the University of Omaha. Dr. Payne received his three degrees, B. A., M. S., and Ph. D., at Wisconsin and with the exception of two years when he was doing graduate work has been here ever since 1919. The new university to which he is going is a municipal university supported by a mil-tax on all property in Omaha. The new president is gathering as many young men who are leaders in their respective fields as possible.

ASHER HOBSON, director of the foreign agricultural crop and market information service of the United States Department of Agriculture, has been appointed professor of agricultural economics. He will be in charge of co-operative marketing.

A graduate of the University of Kansas, Hobson has a master's degree from Wisconsin and a doctor's degree from the University of Geneva, Switzerland.

Prior to his present position, Hobson was for seven years American representative at the International Institute of Agriculture, Rome, Italy. He has held faculty positions at Columbia University and Washington State College.

"Hobson should be of invaluable service to Wisconsin," declares Dean Chris L. Christensen of the college of agriculture, "since he brings an intimate knowledge of world-wide conditions which affect the products which our farmers have to sell."

J. D. PHILLIPS
Business Manager

PROF. H. C. BERKOWITZ, of the Spanish department, has spent the past year in Spain with a Guggenheim fellowship doing research work on Galdos. He has made investigations in Madrid, Santander, and the Canary Islands, and through the help of members of the Galdos family he has had access to the library of the great author and his private papers, obtaining valuable material. The authorities in the Canary Islands extended many courtesies to Prof. Berkowitz, who was recently promoted from assistant professor to associate professor.

EDWARD KREMERS, director of the course in pharmacy and the pharmaceutical experiment station, was one of three members of the American Pharmaceutical association nominated recently for next year's president of the organization.

Balloting was conducted by mail during September and the elected individuals for various posts will assume them at the annual convention next summer at Toronto where a joint session will be held with the Canadian Pharmaceutical association.

J. D. PHILLIPS, business manager of the University, has been elected by the Memorial Union building committee to succeed G. L. Gilbert as treasurer of that committee.

Mr. Phillips was one of the founders of the Union project in 1919 and has served continuously as a member of the committee since that time.

The Memorial Union building committee is made up of 15 alumni and university officers and has for the past 12 years, under commission from the university regents, directed the fund raising for the Union building. In this period the committee has secured 17,289 subscriptions among alumni, faculty, students, and patrons, with a total value of $1,175,686. Of this amount $905,818 has been collected and presented to the university for the construction of the Union building.

Fund raising by the committee is still being carried on from the headquarters at the Memorial Union. At the present time Porter Butts' 24, elected in 1926, is secretary of the committee and director of the campaign.

PROF. E. A. ROSS, eminent sociologist and lecturer, has been named a member of the editorial board of the American Observer, a weekly periodical intended to inform high school students of the latest developments in the fields of economics and politics. Prof. Ross will read each number and offer his reactions, he said.

PROF. AND MRS. RICARDO QUINTANA, both of the English department, spent the summer in England where Prof. Quintana did research work in the British Museum. Following this they toured the continent, visiting friends in Ireland and Switzerland. Prof. Quintana used to conduct the "Recommended Books" section of this magazine. Prof. Quintana is now in charge of special English honor courses for seniors.

ARTICLES OF incorporation for the University Faculty Credit union have been filed with the secretary of state, according to Mrs. Anna Campbell Davis, research associate in the department of economics, and treasurer of the Union.

The purpose of the new organization is to promote thrift and establish a loan fund for members. An unlimited number of shares will be issued at $10 each.

Officers of the Union are: Prof. Selig Perlman, president; Prof. W. G. Rice Jr., vice-president; Prof. Lelia Bascom, secretary; and Mrs. Anna Campbell Davis, treasurer.

CLASS ELECTIONS followed by demonstrations which were hailed in the press as "student riots", a campaign for the revision of student eligibility rules, agitation to stop the passing of an all-night parking ban in the University district, featured the first six weeks of the 1931-1932 school year in an opening of campus activities that has scarcely been duplicated for its large number of organized movements to change the city and University rules by which students are governed.

A quiet two weeks of electioneering by 17 campus politicians ended Oct. 13 in a wild orgy of ballyhooing staged in front of the Memorial Union, where the polls were located. Supporters of the candidates buttonholed every passer-by in an effort to gather the last votes that would win the election. When the final count was made it was found that 2,072 ballots had been cast, the largest poll in the history of the University.

Edwin Kinsley, Elgin, Ill., a member of the Sigma Chi fraternity, was elected to the chairmanship of the 1933 Prom. Despite the fact that they will have the prom king in their house, the Sigma Chis, who were placed on probation this semester, will not be allowed to have a prom party in the chapter house.

Following the victory of their party, members of the fraternities situated on the north end of North Lake street built a large bonfire in the middle of the street to celebrate the successful conclusion of their campaigns. As a result of the confusion and revelry which accompanied the burning of the bonfire, seven students were arrested and were forced to spend the night in the Madison jail. Police making the arrests were jeered and booed by the large crowd, but they carried out their "duty."

Other successful candidates in the election included Douglas Weaver, Edgeley, N. D., senior class president; John Doolittle, Lancaster, sophomore class president; and James Kennedy, Arlington, N. J., freshman class president.

Throwing aside the historical precedent which has always maintained that the Badger, University year book, should be a junior class publication, members of the governing board of the annual have given the positions of editor and business manager to two members of the class of 1932, thereby converting it into a senior class publication. Although the faculty student life and interest committee has not formally endorsed the change, it is expected that it will follow the recommendation of the faculty publications committee in approving the move. John H. Thompson, Wausau, and Gerhard Becker, Madison, have been reappointed editor and business manager of the Wisconsin Badger, the new name of the publication, positions which they held on the staff of the 1932 Badger. The name has been changed to prevent confusion in dates, due to the fact that two year books will be published by the class of 1932.

The Daily Cardinal

WHAT ABOUT IT?

The age-old debate over student eligibility rules was again raised when leaders in campus organizations started a campaign to equalize the rules for athletic and non-athletic activities which require an athlete to maintain a .8 grade-point average and a non-athlete a 1. average. The student leaders are also directing their campaign against the rule which keeps freshmen from participating in dramatic or publication activities, while they may play on freshman athletic teams or enter freshman forensic and music activities. Not stopping at this point, the group has included the rule which prohibits a student from appearing in more than one major dramatic activity in a semester. It is claimed that this is discriminatory, as an athlete may play on more than one varsity team.

Sentiment in favor of the abolition of all eligibility rules expressed at a student forum held in the Memorial Union for a discussion of the subject, opened up a new angle upon which the committee will work. Results of a ballot taken at the forum indicate that 80 per cent of those in attendance did not want the standards for athletes raised, while over 50 per cent asked that the activity levels be lowered to the .8 requirements. Final action on the question will be made, pending the report of the student committee which is now being prepared under the direction of James Johnston, Milwaukee, chairman.

Alexander Cannon, Milwaukee, and John Dowling, Madison, Neb., were selected from a group of nine candidates who applied for the Rhodes scholarships. These two will represent the University in the state competition to select Wisconsin's representative for the district.

Deaths

JOHN J. WELLER, ex '66, a lifelong resident of Memphis, Tenn., and for nearly 60 years actively connected with Masonic orders, died at the age of 83 years on August 21, 1930.

Mr. Weller was active in business until about ten days prior to his death, when he suffered a stroke of apoplexy. He was at the time of his death connected with the True Tagg Paint Company, where he had been employed for the past 10 years. He died at the home of his son, John J.
 Weller, Jr., 950 Galloway St., where he lived with his wife, Mrs. Emma Maddox Weller.

Mr. Weller was born in Memphis on May 17, 1847. During his life time Mr. Weller held many offices in Masonry and was for many years assistant secretary of the Masonic Temple. Mr. Weller was prominent in public affairs during his entire life and was first secretary of the Memphis Artesian Water Company.
 He also served as assistant postmaster under Postmaster J. H. Smith during 1882 to 1886.

Mr. Weller is survived by his wife and son, and a sister, Mrs. John C.
 Henderson, all of Memphis. His son,
 John J. Weller, Jr., is a well known
 Memphis architect.

CHARLES FORSTER SMITH, Professor of Greek and Classical Philology at the University since 1894, emeritus since 1917, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Edward J. Harvey, in Racine, Wisconsin, on August 3, 1931, after an illness of some months. He was buried at the old home in Spartanburg, S. C.

Born in Abbeville County, South Carolina, on June 30, 1852, of good Anglo-Saxon stock, reared in the best traditions of the "Old South" of ante-bellum days, Professor Smith ever preserved an intense love for his native section and exemplified in his own life the high sense of personal honor, loyalty to friends, and to principles, hospitality, and old-fashioned courtesy, which are associated with that time and place.

His father was a preacher, and home influences, his undergraduate study at Wofford College, where he was graduated in 1872, and his subsequent study at Harvard, (1874), Leipzig and Berlin, in 1874-5 and again in 1879-81, when he received his Ph.D. at Leipzig, cultivated his natural taste for the humanities, and for general culture, with more intensive philological training. He had a fondness for good literature, was widely read in several languages, and especially appreciative of good poetry. In Madison, he was a member of the Madison Literary Club, of the Town and Gown Club, and organized the University Heights Poetry Club and was for years its leading spirit, interested not in the writing of verse, but in the aesthetic enjoyment of great works.

He taught the classics and German at his alma mater from 1875-79, was assistant professor of Latin and Greek at Williams College, Massachusetts, just after his return from Leipzig, and went to Vanderbilt University as professor of modern languages in 1882, taking the chair of Greek the following year, and remaining in this position for twelve years, a leader in the faculty and in the intellectual life of Nashville. He was a charter member of the Literary Club and the Round Table. In 1894, at the urgent solicitation of President Adams, he came to what appeared to be the larger opportunities of the University of Wisconsin, where during twenty-three years he served as chairman of the Department of Greek and Classical Philology, relinquishing his active work with great regret when he reached the retiring age of sixty-five in 1917. He was President of the American Philological Association in 1903, and, by exception, was appointed annual Professor at the American School of Classical Studies in Athens in 1920-21, after his retirement.

He was an ardent lover of mountain-climbing and, at the age of seventy, ascended Mt. Olympus, during his stay in Greece. He liked to go walking with his friends, and his conversation was rich in the observations of life and men drawn from his long experience and wide reading. The writer of these lines recalls as a memorable occasion, a night spent on the top of Mount Mitchell, in North Carolina, with Professor Smith and the latter's boyhood friend, Judge Charles A. Woods, of the Supreme Court of South Carolina. It was in 1918. Both men were past sixty-five, and had made the ascent of the peak together, by train this time, though they went down on foot. The life-long friendship, in perfect confidence and loyalty, the crystal clearness of a blameless life, the lofty idealism of thought and sentiment, the boyish exuberance of spirits and courageous optimism, the instructive conversation ranging from quaint personal reminiscence to views on literature, politics and religions, all characteristic of the men, made a lasting impression.

Professor Smith married Miss Anna L. Du Pré, of Spartanburg, S. C., in 1879. She died in 1893, leaving five children, all of whom were later graduated from the University of Wisconsin. Warren Du Pré Smith, B. S. 1902, Ph. D. 1908, now professor of geology at the University of Oregon; Mrs. Julia Forster Harvey, A. B. 1901, M. A. 1907, at whose home he died; Mrs. Anna Du Pré Blackeman, A. B. 1906, whose husband Reverend E. W. Blakeman organized the Wesley Foundation at the University of Wisconsin and has just gone to the Wesley Foundation of the University of Michigan; Charles Forster Smith ("Frosty"), A. B. 1908, LL. B. 1910, attorney-at-law at Wausau; and Daniel Du Pré Smith, A. B. 1914, M. A. 1915, who died in 1923, just as he was to receive his Ph.D. in history at Princeton. Professor Smith's brother, Dr. Perrin Smith, noted professor of geology at Leland Stanford Junior University, died just a few months ago.

Able scholar, forceful teacher, eager exponent of the humanistics, man of character and convictions, loyal friend, Professor Smith has left his impress on those who knew him and helped make the Wisconsin of today.

CASIMIR D. ZDANOWICZ,
Professor of French.

LEWIS EDWIN REED, ex-'67, for many years a prominent public official and businessman of Ripon, Wis., died at his home on September 21, after an illness of several years, the last ten months of which he was confined to his home. Born in New York, he moved to Wisconsin at an early age. During the Civil War he served with the First Wisconsin cavalry for two years. He returned to the University after this war to continue his studies.

He was admitted to the bar in 1867. He was municipal judge of Ripon for twenty years and served as mayor and school superintendent for a number of years and for a long time as president of the First National Bank of Ripon. He was prominent in Masonic circles in Wisconsin.

FRANK J. WOOD, ex-'75, prominent and widely known business man in central Wisconsin, died at his home in Wisconsin Rapids on August 17. Death was caused by embolism, which had troubled him for about six months prior to his death. He had taken an active interest in the business and finance of his home community, especially the paper business. He was an active director of the Nekoosa-Edwards Paper company. He was also active in the sales and promotion of the state cranberry industry.

He was instrumental in the organization of one of the city's banks and served as its president for many years. Despite his many business interests he found time to do a considerable amount of traveling and was also a lover of books, being a trustee and a liberal patron of the Wisconsin Rapids public library. He was also an active member of the Republican party, serving four terms as county clerk and being honored with the position of Mayor of Wisconsin Rapids at one time. He was affiliated with the Elks and the Masons.

MRS. ELIZABETH CLARK FISHER, '76, died at the home of her sister, Mrs. E. H. Hemenway at Carlsbad, New Mexico, on August 19. She was seventy-six years old when she died. She was the widow of John Joseph Fisher, also a graduate of the University in the Class of 1876.

MARY HILL, B. L. '77, B. A. '78, M. A. '80, for thirty years the chaperone at the Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority house on the campus, died on September 21 in a Madison hospital after a lingering illness. She was seventy-two years old. No immediate relatives survive her. She had lived at the Kappa house until a year ago when her health failed and she entered a hospital for several months, only to return a few weeks prior to her death.

JAMES L. O'CONNOR, '81, former Wisconsin "boy attorney general," died in Milwaukee on August 19. He had been ill for some time. After receiving his law degree from the University he joined a Madison law firm. He rose to the attorney general's office by the successive stages of clerk in the assembly, Dane county district attorney and Madison city attorney, being elected to the state office from that post during Gov. Peck's administration in 1890-94.

Mr. O'Connor was stricken with paralysis in March, 1928, and was confined in a Milwaukee hospital for some time. He is survived by his widow, Annie Wood O'Connor, ex '85, and three sons.

NICHOLAS D. BAKER, '82, died at his home at Mendota Beach, near Madison, on August 29. He had been ill for a long time. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mary Clewly Baker and two daughters.

HERMAN A. GROTOPHORST, '84, prominent Baraboo, Wis., attorney, died at his home in Baraboo on July 19 after an illness that had lasted for almost a year. Mr. Grotophorst had spent last winter in Florida in an effort to recover his health.

Mr. Grotophorst began his practice of law in Baraboo shortly after his graduation from the University. He was instrumental in organizing and for many years edited the Sauk County Democrat. He was a close friend of the late Senator La Follette, Sr., and tried many cases with him. When Mr. La Follette was governor, he appointed Mr. Grotophorst to the state board of control where he served for nine years. He was president of the state board of education under Gov. Philipp.

He had served as district attorney of Sauk county and had been president of the Sauk County Bar association. He once ran for Congress but was defeated by fifty votes. He organized a law firm in Baraboo which at one time contained Judge Evan A. Evans, past president of the Alumni Association and present Federal Judge in Chicago, as a member. He is survived by his wife and two daughters.

COL. JOHN L. SHEPARD, '90, died on May 23, at Erie, Pa., where he was in charge of the Hamot hospital. After leaving Wisconsin, Col. Shepard graduated from the Rush Medical college in 1893. He then took a post graduate course in Vienna.

After serving as medical examiner for the C. B. & Q. railroad for a number of years, he entered upon a long career in the army. He rose from the rank of captain to that of colonel. He served at the Letterman hospital from 1903 to 1905 and was chief of the Sternberg General hospital at Manila until 1913. From 1918 to 1920 he was chief of the eye, ear, nose and throat service. He was professor of ophthalmology in the Army Medical school from 1919 to 1922 and was technical adviser in sanitation to the governor general of the Philippines in 1924.

During the World War he was chief of Division of Hospitalization and was awarded two bronze stars and a silver star for gallantry. He won a distinguished service medal, a croix de guerre and two citations. From 1926 to 1929 he was executive of the Medical Department reserves and was promoted to colonel of the Medical corps.

A. J. MYRLAND, '90, known to some of our alumni as "Ajax" Olson, died of heart failure at his home in Madison on September 9. After leaving the University, Mr. Myrland taught at the Belleville, Wis., school for several years and then returned to the University to take his law degree in 1894. He practiced law in Grantsburg after his graduation and was district attorney of Burnett county before the late Senator La Follette then governor of Wisconsin, appointed him a member of the University board of regents. He also published the Grantsburg Sentinel, a weekly newspaper, for a short time.

In 1912 he was appointed secretary of the State Tax Commission and held that post until two years ago when he was appointed law examiner, a post he held until his death.

Mr. Myrland, then known as "Ajax" Olson, was the center on one of the first football teams organized at the University in 1889. He was also the manager of the baseball team in 1890. He was one of the original members of the "W" club and served as its president for several years. His interest in athletics remained undimmed throughout the years. He is survived by his widow and two sons and two daughters.

J. J. CUNNINGHAM, '92, Law '94, died at Janesville, Wis., on September 9. He practiced law at Janesville from the time of his graduation until the time of his death. He served as postmaster of Janesville from 1914 until 1925. He is survived by his widow, Gladys Cunningham, and two daughters.

CHARLES D. HASTINGS, ex-'92, prominent Kenosha, Wis., real estate operator, and his son, Minson, '33, were killed when their car stalled on a railroad crossing in sight of their home. Mr. Hastings was on his way home when his car stalled on the private roadway to his home. The engineer of the train was unable to halt the train in time and both men were instantly killed when their car was completely demolished.

RICHARD GOODELL, '95, died on September 7 after an illness extending over several months, from the time he was injured in an automobile accident. He served as secretary to Congressman Babcock before entering the law course at the University. He later opened law offices at Platteville, Wis., where he served as postmaster and court commissioner for many years.

JOHN W. SCHEMPF, '96, ended his life with poison in Madison on July 13. Ill health and financial worries were attributable to his action. He had been unsuccessful in attempting to find steady work in the pharmacy business during the past months.

FRANCIS TAUGHER, ex-'96, died at Oshkosh, Wis., on July 1, where he was overcome by the heat while cutting grass. Mr. Taugher had been teaching school in Manitowoc and Oshkosh ever since his graduation from the University. He served as superintendent of Oshkosh schools for several years. About the time of Memorial Day he sought outside work as a means of restoring his failing health. He obtained work in a cemetery cutting grass. The heat, however, proved to be too much for his weakened body and he succumbed.

JOSEPH W. COLLINS, '97, died at his home in Port Washington, Wis., after a short illness on August 18. He was city attorney of Port Washington at the time of his death. For many years he had been a widely known attorney in the eastern part of Wisconsin having served in numerous important political, civic, and judicial capacities for many years. He opened law offices in his home city immediately after graduation and there served in the capacity of city attorney for twenty-three years. He is survived by his mother and three sisters and three brothers.

DR. B. L. SNASHALL, ex-'97, for the past 35 years an active dentist in Delavan, Wis., died at his home on September 7. He was graduated from the Chicago Dental College. He was active in the Masonic work in Delavan.

ARTHUR R. BARRY, ex-'97, a practicing lawyer in Milwaukee since 1901 and widely known for his legal work throughout the state, died at his home on Oct. 6 from an apoplectic stroke. He was active in the political circles of the state, being a conservative Republican, but never holding any public office.

LOUISE ERB DIETRICH, (Mrs. John H.), '08, died at her home in Minneapolis on February 22. While at the University she was prominent in dramatics and had the lead in the Senior Class play in 1908. She is survived by her husband and two sons.

E. S. GERALDSON, '13, prominent attorney and assistant Douglas county attorney from 1921 to 1926, died at his home in Superior, Wis., on July 13 from a stroke caused by the undue heat. He began practicing law in Superior in 1914 and remained there ever since.

BERNADETTE CORRY, '13, died on July 12, in a New York hospital following a serious operation for sinus trouble. Miss Corry had been working as a travel advisor in many of the metropolitan areas of this country and had traveled extensively both in this country and abroad.

PAUL GRAF, '14, died at his home in Mt. Hope, Wis., on October 3.

BUFORD W. DONNELLY, ex-'15, who had been missing for several months, was found in a cave near El Paso, Texas, on August 23. He had been killed by a bullet apparently from a pistol found by his side.

MILFORD WITTS, ex-'18, former associate professor of community service at the University, died at Washington, D. C., on August 3. Mr. Wits had been living in Washington.

In the ALUMNI World

'71 Dr. Charles Noble GREGORY spent the summer at the Homestead, Hot Springs, Va. On August 27 he celebrated his 80th birthday. He was overwhelmed with flowers, books, gifts, telegrams, and letters from both sides of the Atlantic. He fell at the Metropolitan Club in January and broke his hip, but recovered nicely in six weeks.—Henry L. GREEN of Chicago celebrated his 80th birthday on September 5.

'79 The death of Belle Case LAFOLLETE on August 18 was to us all most unexpected and sad. The members of the class recall, with so much pleasure, the happy reunion and luncheon at her country home, Maple Bluff Farm, in June, 1929. Her sunny cheer and sparkling responsiveness, her bounteous hospitality, the joy of that day will never be forgotten. As I was absent from home at the time of her death, this notice was too late for the October issue.—Susan STERLING.

'81 The following is a quotation from a letter referring to the good old times. It is dated May 8, 1891, from C. A. F. to E. B.: "Even now as I write I have got a smile on my face that would make a new moon out of a pumpkin pie were my jaws to close down on one, when I think of the time that P—and I stole the coal from you and K—and how T—squealed on us." This is a case where confession is not only good, but pleasing to the soul.

'82 John J. ESCH writes: "As president, I presided at the annual convention of the Association of Practitioners before the Interstate Commerce Commission which was held in Washington on September 24 and 25. The association, although only two years old, has a membership of about 2,000, residing in every state in the Union. With my family, I spent the month of August in vacation at my former home, La Crosse, Wis."

'83 Mr. and Mrs. E. G. MCGILTON of Omaha, will spend the coming winter in Honolulu.

'85 Enthusiastic accounts of the 1931 commencement were brought to Emma GODDARD Marsh of Portland, Oregon, by Grace CLARK Conover and Margaret ALLEN Woods, '81.

'86 R. C. SPENCER, formerly a well-known architect in Chicago, is teaching in the architectural department of the Florida State College at Gainesville.

'88 Emory R. JOHNSON is chairman of the Research Council upon the Operation and Effect of the 18th Amendment, a body of ten scientists who constitute an independent council that has prepared a plan of scientific research to be made by such university teachers and graduate students as may desire to undertake such investigations. The council does not itself conduct research. The plan has been submitted to about 300 universities and councils.—James A. JAMES is chairman of the committee on history and pageantry for the "Century of Progress" exposition to be held in Chicago in 1933. He is a member of the Illinois Commission appointed by Governor Emmerson to cooperate with the National Commission on the celebration of the bicentennial of the birth of George Washington.—Kirke L. COWDERY, who taught French for 41 years at Oberlin College, retired from teaching at the end of the last school year.

'89 Dr. and Mrs. Arthur P. McKINLAY (Jessie GODDARD) spent most of the summer at their cherry ranch near Salem, Ore., and in Berkeley, Calif. Their home is in Los Angeles, where Dr. McKinlay is head of the Latin department of the University of California.—Erik T. ERIKSEN has recently returned to the government service with an assignment to the Orland irrigation project of the U. S. Bureau of Reclamation. His address is Orland, Calif.

'90 Mr. and Mrs. Daniel E. KISER of Eau Claire were recent visitors in Manitoba.—Andrew A. BRUCE has just published, through Little Brown and co., a new edition of Cooley's Principles of Constitutional Law, the original edition of which appeared in 1880. The work has been revised and brought down to date by the new editor, and since fifty years have elapsed since the first edition, a great deal of new material has been added.

'94 Edward J. HENNING has been a lawyer and jurist for the past thirty-four years. He is now practicing in New York City at 36 W. 44th st., and living at the Hotel Astor.—Dr. Joseph SCHAFER, superintendent of the State Historical Society of Wisconsin, is about to issue a new book in the Wisconsin Domesday Book series. The present volume deals with Wisconsin's lead region.—Hermann L. EMERICH was elected president of the Wisconsin Pharmaceutical Association for 1931.—Estelle HAYDEN of Sun Prairie returned in July from a trip to California, where she spent several months with her sister, Grace Hayden, at Pasadena, and enjoyed many interesting side trips from that point. Miss Hayden served ten years as president of the Board of Education at Sun Prairie, and she is now president of the Library Board in her home town.—

Horace P. BOARDMAN, who is professor of Civil Engineering at the University of Nevada, presented a paper on Snow Surveys and Hydro-Forecasting at the Pacific Coast convention of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers at Lake Tahoe, Calif., in August.

'95 George T. SHIMUNOK writes: "I will be gone for a couple of years making a Round the World trip via the Dollar Line steamships, stopping at all the principal cities and making inland excursions from them."—Ralph E. SMITH on August 8 was made second in command of the U. S. bureau of internal revenue.—Dr. Victor F. MARSHALL was one of the incorporators of the Appleton Clinic, Inc., which was opened October 1 in the Irving Zuehlke bldg. at Appleton.—The following was clipped from the Los Angeles Times: "One of the most interesting men on the university faculty is Prof. Herbert BOLTON, the historian. He finds his history in the open spaces. Whereas, most historical writers are content to take somebody else's word for it, Prof. Bolton goes out and sees. Before writing his epochal work on Juan Bautista de Anza he rode on horseback over the whole route, identifying every camping place and every water hole. His classes have all the fascination of high drama."

'96 Prof. Grant SHOWERMAN is the author of a new book, "Rome and the Romans" which was published during the summer.—H. A. HARDING is executive vice president of the Mathews co. of Detroit. This company furnishes educational and advertising material for the dairy industry. For about ten years, Mathews has been chief of the dairy research bureau of the company.

'97 At the Doty celebration at Neenah on September 19, ex-Governor Kohler spoke on Governor Doty and Louise Phelps KELLOGG on Mrs. Sarah Collins Doty, mistress of the Loggery, Doty's early home now in Doty Park, Neenah.

'98 Allard SMITH, executive vice president of the Union Trust co. of Cleveland, and Margaret BUTT Smith, ex '00, visited Leonore MEINHARDT Van Cleve, '01, at the latter's cottage on Brown Lake at Burlington, Wis.

'99 W. C. RUEDIGER taught in the summer session of Cornell university during the past summer. He is on sabbatical leave for the year 1931-32 and will spend the first semester in teaching and research at Cornell and the second semester in Europe.—William S. KIES was the author of an article on the origin and early growth of the Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation which appeared in the September issue of the Review of Reviews.

'00 George P. HARDGROVE, a member of the firm of Ferris and Hardgrove, investment bankers in Washington and Oregon, was a recent visitor in Madison.—Francis J. CARNEY has been elected vice president of the Interfraternity Club of Chicago.—Lee Hoon KUN, Ph. D. '30, returned to Korea last spring and is teaching in the Agricultural College of Peng Yang Union Christian College. At a dinner party recently, he and Grace DILLINGHAM welcomed back to her native land Mrs. Kim In Duk Pak, who has been traveling for the Student Volunteer Movement in America and England for the past two years and a half. This, so far as is known, is the first alumni meeting ever held in Korea, where Wisconsinites are scarce.

'02 B. H. HIBBARD has been appointed a member of a five-man committee selected to work out a regional land planning program for agriculture.—Louis A. BRUNCKHORST, who is an attorney in Platteville, spent two months abroad last summer. He visited England and nine countries on the continent.—The following was clipped from a recent column by O. O. McIntyre: "The editor of this paper (The Whitewater Register), R. K. COE, climbed into his car this morning and waved goodbye to the harassed novices in charge. His fingers itch for a fishing pole with 10 pounds of trouble on the end of the line. He headed for Park Falls to be gone as long as he darned pleases. And that's the way Ye Editor takes Ye Depression!"—F. W. BUCKLIN of West Bend is county judge of Washington County court, which by legislation now has jurisdiction of all actions, civil and criminal, except homicide.

'03 H. C. FISH, head of the history department of the Teachers College at Ellensburg, Wash., on his recent sabbatical leave, took an auto trip of 13,400 miles. He visited the historic places around the rim of the United States. He was accompanied by Mrs. Fish and their twelve year old twin daughters.—Mary JENKINS Espey has returned to South Gate, Shanghai, after a year's leave in America. She and her husband return to the Presbyterian Mission at South Gate.—Homer C. HOCKETT, professor of history at Ohio State University, is the author of "Introduction to Research in American History," published in May by the Macmillan co.—Lloyd PULLEN was vice-president of the national convention of Delta Upsilon fraternity at Kansas City in September.

'04 Margaret ASHMUN returned recently from a year's sojourn in England. She is now living at Waupaca, Wis.—John S. LORD is a member of the law firm of Lord, Lloyd & Bissell which was organized recently in Chicago.—Solon J. BUCK has left Minneapolis and is living in Pittsburgh, where he is professor of history at the University of Pittsburgh and director of the Western Pennsylvania Historical Survey.—L. F. VAN HAGEN has been named to a position on the state examining board for architects and civil engineers by the Wisconsin Industrial commission.

'05 Elias TOBENKIN has written a new book, "In the Dark," a story of racketeering in the Chicago underworld.—Arthur J. CLARK has completed twenty-five years with the department of chemistry at Michigan State College. He has been head of the department since 1916.—Andrew FISH, who is chief engineer for John Monks & Son and Ulen & co., is working on a twenty-three million dollar contract for the Greek government. It is a drainage river control and irrigation project on the Stousa river in central Macedonia. The work has been going on for two years and the project will be completed in 1934.

'06 F. V. LARKIN, professor of mechanical engineering, head of the department and director of the curricula in mechanical engineering and industrial engineering at Lehigh University, Bethlehem, Pa., has been granted sabbatical leave for the current year. He will make a world trip.—Anna G. BIRGE has been elected corresponding secretary of the Wisconsin branch of the American Association of University Women, whose annual meeting was held at Superior.—Ralph D. HETZEL, president of Penn State College, has been appointed general chairman of The Greater Pennsylvania Commission by Governor Pinchot. The commission was provided for by the last legislature and is charged with finding ways and means of developing the resources of the state. The commission will number 150 and has a fund of $250,000 for its work during the next two years.—Thomas L. ST. GERMAINE, Chippewa Indian, who for the last three years has been a judge on the Lac du Flambeau reservation, has been admitted to the Wisconsin bar by the state supreme court. He plans to establish a private law practice at Lac du Flambeau.—John E. BAKER, long active in China famine and flood relief projects as executive head of the China Famine Relief commission, has found the present flood conditions on the Yangste in many respects the worst of them all. The press reports chronicled his efforts to organize relief for the sufferers. He has used airplanes to survey the devastated country. It was Baker who initiated the movement for the purchase by China of the American Farm Board's surplus wheat under a long-term credit arrangement. His service in famine relief is through leave of absence from his post as adviser to the Chinese National railways.—Thomas L. BEWICK, Wisconsin 4-H Club leader, was recently made an honorary member of the 4-H Club organization by representatives of the 400 junior leaders assembled at Madison.—Charles HINRICHS is secretary-treasurer of the Broadway Press of Milwaukee.

'07 Albert A. JOHNSON, president of A. A. Johnson & Associates, returned from Russia early in October, where he was engaged in an active business survey of the industrial problems of that country. His new book on Russia will appear this fall.—Edith McCORMICK Ayers writes: "The ordinary chronicle of an average family, fortunate in not suffering illness or mishap. Bruce, the eldest, is now in the bank with his father. Jannett just graduated from high school and is attending Billings Normal school. We find the development of the West an interesting life to lead."

'08 Al CUMMINGS is a chiropractor with offices at 1036 West Santa Barbara st., Los Angeles.—Roland B. ROEHR is associated with the Liberty Mutual Insurance co. of Milwaukee. — Carolyn GALLAGHER has begun her second year as head of the speech department at Ellsworth Junior College, Iowa Falls, Iowa. Before going to Ellsworth, Miss Gallagher studied at Oxford.—Harry STEENBOCK spent the summer in Europe as a U. S. delegate to a conference called by the League of Nations for standardization of methods used in vitamin research.—Edgar H. ZOBEL is director of the Zobel Music studios of Ripon, the Princeton High school band, the Neshkoro Concert band, and conductor of Ripon's Little Symphony orchestra.—Here is a case of a son actually filling his fathers' shoes. Dr. Harold B. MYERS, who was captain of the track team in his senior year, is now assistant dean and secretary-treasurer of the University of Oregon medical school at Portland. He gave his track shoes to his son, Harold, Jr., who wore them when he won the 440 yard dash to set a new record in the Portland city tournament. — William Howard Beasley, Jr., son of William BEASLEY, entered Texas A. & M. this fall, hoping to become the engineer that his father meant to be. Beasley, Sr., is now president of the D. L. Whittle Music co. of Dallas.—Anna STEVENS is living at 689 Locust st., Pasadena.—Major Frank M. Varsity Slumps After Victory the quarter ended, Kabat blocked a Purdue punt for a third touchdown. All three tries for point were good and Wisconsin was leading a temporarily demoralized Purdue eleven, 21-0, when the first quarter ended. Wisconsin's game had been almost flawless during this period and though they did not score in the second period, they held their advantage and were not seriously threatened. Purdue had the ball in midfield as the half ended.

It was a different Purdue team which came back in the second half. Wisconsin naturally played a defensive game to protect its lead, while Purdue strove desperately, even recklessly, to score, no longer waiting for position to use its favorite weapon—the forward pass. Largely by this passing attack they scored two touchdowns, in the third quarter, kicking both goals. For a time in the fourth period they were threatening, but as is usually the case when a team is hurling passes on every down, the ball began to fall into Badger instead of Boilermaker hands. Three interceptions by Wisconsin in the final period snuffed out Purdue's dying efforts, the game ending with Wisconsin a 21-14 victor.

A week later came the game with Pennsylvania—Wisconsin's first eastern invasion in 31 years. Everyone was hoping for another great game from the team though none who were football-wise believed that Wisconsin—or any other eleven—could come back within a week with another such supreme effort as had brought victory over Purdue. It was thought, however, that the Badgers would be sufficiently recovered to play at least par football—and that the circumstances surrounding the inter-sectional clash would be enough to rouse the old spirit.

Most readers of the Magazine already know the outcome of that game. Pennsylvania ran wild in the first half, scoring 20 points against a Badger team which its friends were unable to recognize as the eleven they had seen a week before. I did not see this game but coaches and players seem to agree that the Badgers never really found themselves until they were 27 points behind—Penn scoring another touchdown on a blocked kick in the third period. Then with some sophomore replacements—notably Bobby Schiller, who replaced McGuire at right halfback and called signals—the team came to life and scored two touchdowns by fierce, concerted driving, the final score being 27-13.

It seems to be generally agreed that over-confidence had something to do with the debacle. Then again, some of the younger players seem to have had a bad case of "buck fever." The blocking, charging and tackling of almost the entire team was way off color.

Pennsylvania, on the other hand, was thoroughly "set". Their new coach, Harvey Harman, had done his work well and in addition to being soundly coached, Penn's mental attitude was perfect for the game. Their schedule, too, had been framed to bring them up to the Wisconsin game at concert pitch. Yet each of Penn's scoring plays was aided by Badger errors of omission or commission and only in those four plays did they smother opposition. At no time during the game were they able to make a long, sustained drive to the Badger goal line.

It was felt, after this upset, that Wisconsin would again hit its stride against Minnesota. There was no chance of any over-confidence against the Gophers. Forty years of traditional rivalry make this a desperate game for both teams, whatever they may do against others. Moreover, in defeating Iowa 34 to 0, the Gophers had shown themselves a powerful, well balanced machine, both offensively and defensively.

Yet, as it turned out, this was almost another Pennsylvania game for the Badgers. Minnesota got the jump on them, scoring within three minutes of the kick-off, and held the upper hand during the entire first half. Minnesota's kick-off was short and Bratton, playing right tackle in place of Captain Hal Smith—injured at Philadelphia—ran it to Wisconsin's 33 yard line. Three line drives by Schneller left a yard to go on fourth down, so Schneller punted to Minnesota's 7 yard line, Somers getting back to his 20 yard line. Penalized 15 yards on the first play, Minnesota punted and recovered the ball on their 33 yard line when Linfor muffed. Somers slashed off tackle for 9 yards and on the next play, Manders, 200 pound Gopher fullback, shot between Wisconsin's right guard and tackle and ran 56 yards for a touchdown, eluding or shaking off several Badger backs during his sprint. Manders kicked goal.

The remainder of the first quarter was largely a punting duel, in which, although facing the wind, Munn made small gains on every exchange. Minnesota made one first down in this time and once reached Wisconsin's 37 yard line but as the period closed, they had the ball, third down with four to go, in midfield.

One play gave them a first down as the second quarter opened, but a penalty and a loss forced a punt to Wisconsin's 20 yard line. Wisconsin could not gain and Kabat's punt was partially blocked, Minnesota getting the ball on Wisconsin's 34 yard line. With 4 yards to go on fourth down, they pulled a forward pass to Robinson, end, followed by a backward toss to Munn as he—Robinson—was tackled, which Munn took over for a touchdown.

One Badger back had a good shot at Munn on the 5 yard line but could not bring him down. Manders' goal after the touchdown made the score 14-0, where it remained to the finish.

Minnesota made one more threatening drive in this period, reaching the 12 yard line on three successive first downs but with 11 to go on third down, Ubl's pass was intercepted by Goldenberg as the half ended.

The second half saw Wisconsin making desperate efforts to score and looking like another team. Minnesota naturally elected to defend its lead but that does not detract from the Badgers' gallant effort. They had the ball during most of the half, made eight first downs to one by Minnesota—and that gained on a penalty—reached the Gophers' 5 yard twice, and twice, on other marches, were at the 15 yard line. Yet, when all is said, they could not, despite all this ground gaining, break through for those last yards to cross the goal line. Late in the third quarter, Wisconsin needed only a foot to give them first down on Minnesota's 4 yard line but on a wide sweep, Robinson ran Linfor out of bounds for a slight loss and Minnesota took the oval. Munn immediately punted to midfield. On two other occasions, fourth down passes by Wisconsin were grounded in the end zone for touchbacks while a third, from the 17 yard line was intercepted by Munn.

On Wisconsin

minimum number of piano copies, we found it took $50.00. We two hallroom boys had no such surplus. So we went to call on the Wisconsin engineer. Purdy said he never could ask anyone to invest $50.00. I never had, but I did the talking. We didn't get the $50.00, for the engineer couldn't see any chance of success in the venture at all. Seeking out other Wisconsin alumni did not occur to us. Necessity is the mother of invention, so we went to the music plate engravers and got $10.00 credit there and ordered the plates. We went to the printer and gave the engraver as reference, got credit and ordered the printing. Then we went to the cover plate engraver and gave the other two as references, and by this high financing got the march song under way. Purdy and I figured that between us we could scrape up $10.00 for the cover design, though at times we ate on a joint meal ticket, and once I remember paying for a meal with postage stamps!

I wanted the cover of this new song to be unusual. I hunted up a cover stock as much like pigskin as possible. "On, Wisconsin" was the first song that ever appeared in a cover of brown craft paper. To an instructor in the Chicago Art Institute I went to draw us a cover design. When I got it, my spirits fell. The artist had copied a football player of twenty years before, with stuffed, padded pants and shirt, and a long shock of hair worn before the days of helmets! That drawing alone would have laughed us off the campus. Our time schedule had just twenty-four hours left. I had to step in as artist, and fall back on what I had learned in high school. It was Sunday. I went out to the news stand and bought three current magazines whose covers carried football players. They were the models that gave me something of anatomy. I worked all Sunday night, and Monday morning I had a drawing of a Wisconsin football player with the plunging go that satisfied my own idea of football snap, amateur job that it was. The platemaker got the drawing on time.

My idea was to spring this new Wisconsin song at the big student mass meeting before the Minnesota game. It never occurred to me that nobody had asked we two to write a Wisconsin song,—that personally I was little known at the University,—that Bill was not even a Wisconsin man! How did I know the song was good enough to be favorably received? What inexperienced youth and enthusiasm will do! Furthermore, I was "working on the railroad all the live-long day" with exacting duties and could not get away from Chicago to introduce our creation at Wisconsin. So Bill, armed with a letter of doubtful introduction from me, plus his own enthusiasm, took a couple of bundles of the printed songs and mimeographed copies of the words to Madison the day before the mass meeting. To Jack Wilce, fellow Deke and football captain, Purdy made his first Wisconsin appearance. Apparently Jack was sold, and blazed the way for trying out "On, Wisconsin" at the mass meeting. A stranger in a strange land, all Bill could do when introduced to the student body was to say that he "had come in the name of Carl Beck, a Wisconsin student, to introduce a new Wisconsin college march". Fortunately they did not ask who Carl Beck might be, or where do you come from, and what makes you think we want a march or a new college song. Only an open-minded Wisconsin audience would have given the chance to go ahead and try anything once!

Needless to say when Purdy got to the familiar piano, the music did the rest. His ability to sing out our creation captivated the student body, and they tried it over and over. I learned afterward that after the mass meeting, students were found gathered under the light of corner street lamps, singing it over.

Next morning at the railroad office I got a jubilant telegram from Bill telling of the successful reception. Two hours later, I got another asking my advice on something or other. In the afternoon I got still another asking me to ship more copies of the song at once. The following morning my employer told me that since my outside interests required three telegrams a day, I might better seek employment elsewhere on the first of the month. "On, Wisconsin" cost me my job!

While neither Bill nor I had the slightest business experience, I must have had some little promotion instinct. When Wisconsin came down that fall to play Chicago I had hand-made "On, Wisconsin" slogan signs marched before the Wisconsin band. The boys carrying them, along with Bill Purdy, were thrown out when an attempt was made to dramatize the song inside the Chicago field!

The growing success of "On, Wisconsin" did help us pay costs of publication, but I had to get some kind of a job not having any particular confidence in music publishing. Bill had neither time nor inclination to carry on a sales campaign by himself. And there was that $100.00 I had so rashly promised him! So we made a royalty arrangement with a Milwaukee music house, just because it happened to be in Wisconsin. Purdy and I had no one to consult. I doubt there was a written contract. As tried and trusted friends, we ourselves had no formal agreement though there was an oral agreement. We both knew that we had collaborated in both words and music, each with a half interest. Neither of us looked upon it as in any sense a commercial enterprise, and neither of us dreamed that it might be potentially valuable. Since Bill was just launching out into the professional musical field, I suggested that we copyright our joint effort in his name as "composer", and I would take the position as "author", just as the song sheets show today. This arrangement benefited him greatly in his musical field, as I expected it would.

So many people have taken it for granted that Purdy and I made a tidy sum from "On, Wisconsin" that I want to testify publicly that I never received over $15.00 in royalties, and I do not believe Purdy had any more. When he was a desperately sick man,—with a family to support, just before the start of the World War, the publisher came to Chicago and persuaded Bill in whose name it was to sell the copyright of "On, Wisconsin" for the absurd sum of $100.00. I was in New York immersed in social service, not hearing nor thinking about "On, Wisconsin". The publisher was careful not to tell Bill that since he had been approached by the phonograph and player piano people to use the song on a royalty basis, "On, Wisconsin" had considerably increased in value.

Mary Purdy, Bill's widow, in poor health, has recently arrived in Madison with her two children. She is a plucky mother and true to the fine spirit of Bill Purdy. It is my hope that she may be welcomed and received, and, if ever in need, cared for, as much as she will permit, as a tribute to Bill Purdy, a good old scout if ever there was one, who contributed much to Wisconsin.
