Portrait of a Year

The campus, a sprawling constantly changing canvas.
The buildings, expanding, increasing in number, form the slowly but constantly shifting background.
The people, the instantly changing element that creates the vital living portion.
Every day, every moment, all of these are interacting in some way, each time in a different way.
Because of the incessant change in these elements, no portrait of this university will ever, nor can it ever, be complete.
Only brief glimpses of different places, of various people doing a certain thing at a particular moment in time, can be presented in these pages.

CLASS OF '64

A student's year is a fleeting succession of images, an assemblage of scenes montaged one upon another. Classroom scenes, special events, teachers, students, sports and organizations create a pattern of memories. How do you draw a portrait of a year? From the chaos, abstract a class, an event, a face, a group. Frame them in a campus scene and create a scrapbook of portraits of a year — at Wisconsin State University-River Falls.

ACTIVITIES OPPORTUNITIES

The most colorful elements in the portrait are the special events and activities that highlight the year. All-school events like Homecoming and Winter Carnival are the froth and fun of campus life. But other special events add a vital dimension to the academic experience.

Fine Arts Week spurs creativity and an interest in the arts by bringing nationally known performers and artists to campus. The Grassroots Politics Conference applies national questions to state and local interests by attracting politicians and scholars to the campus podium. The World Affairs Forum presents opposing views of current foreign policy issues by visiting experts.

Special-interest activities such as theatre and music, publications and debate, dance and rodeo, offer every student a chance to contribute his talents and energies to campus life. From the whirling maze of activities, each student chooses those compatible with his interests and abilities — those most suitable for framing in his portrait of a year.

THE FACULTY/CONCERN

A university is no more than the sum of its faculty. A River Falls professor exhibits professional competence and scholarly achievement mixed with a large measure of that vital ingredient — concern for his students. Because his classes are generally small and taught in an informal atmosphere, he can devote special attention to the individual student.

At River Falls, students are identified by name, not by number.

STUDENTS/DEVELOPMENT

That wise and sophisticated student, the senior, is the final version of a series of out-of-focus snapshots. Four years at the University have transformed him from a confused, beanieed freshman to a polished senior.

For the student interested in charting his academic path, River Falls shows the way with many opportunities for enrichment. The honors program presents the talented student with chances to gain insight into his major field by participating in honors seminars and doing individual research in directed honors study. The Quarter Abroad is a three-month program of foreign travel and study which offers University credit. Great Ideas courses, in fields other than the student's major, provide him with a broader understanding of vital forces in American life.

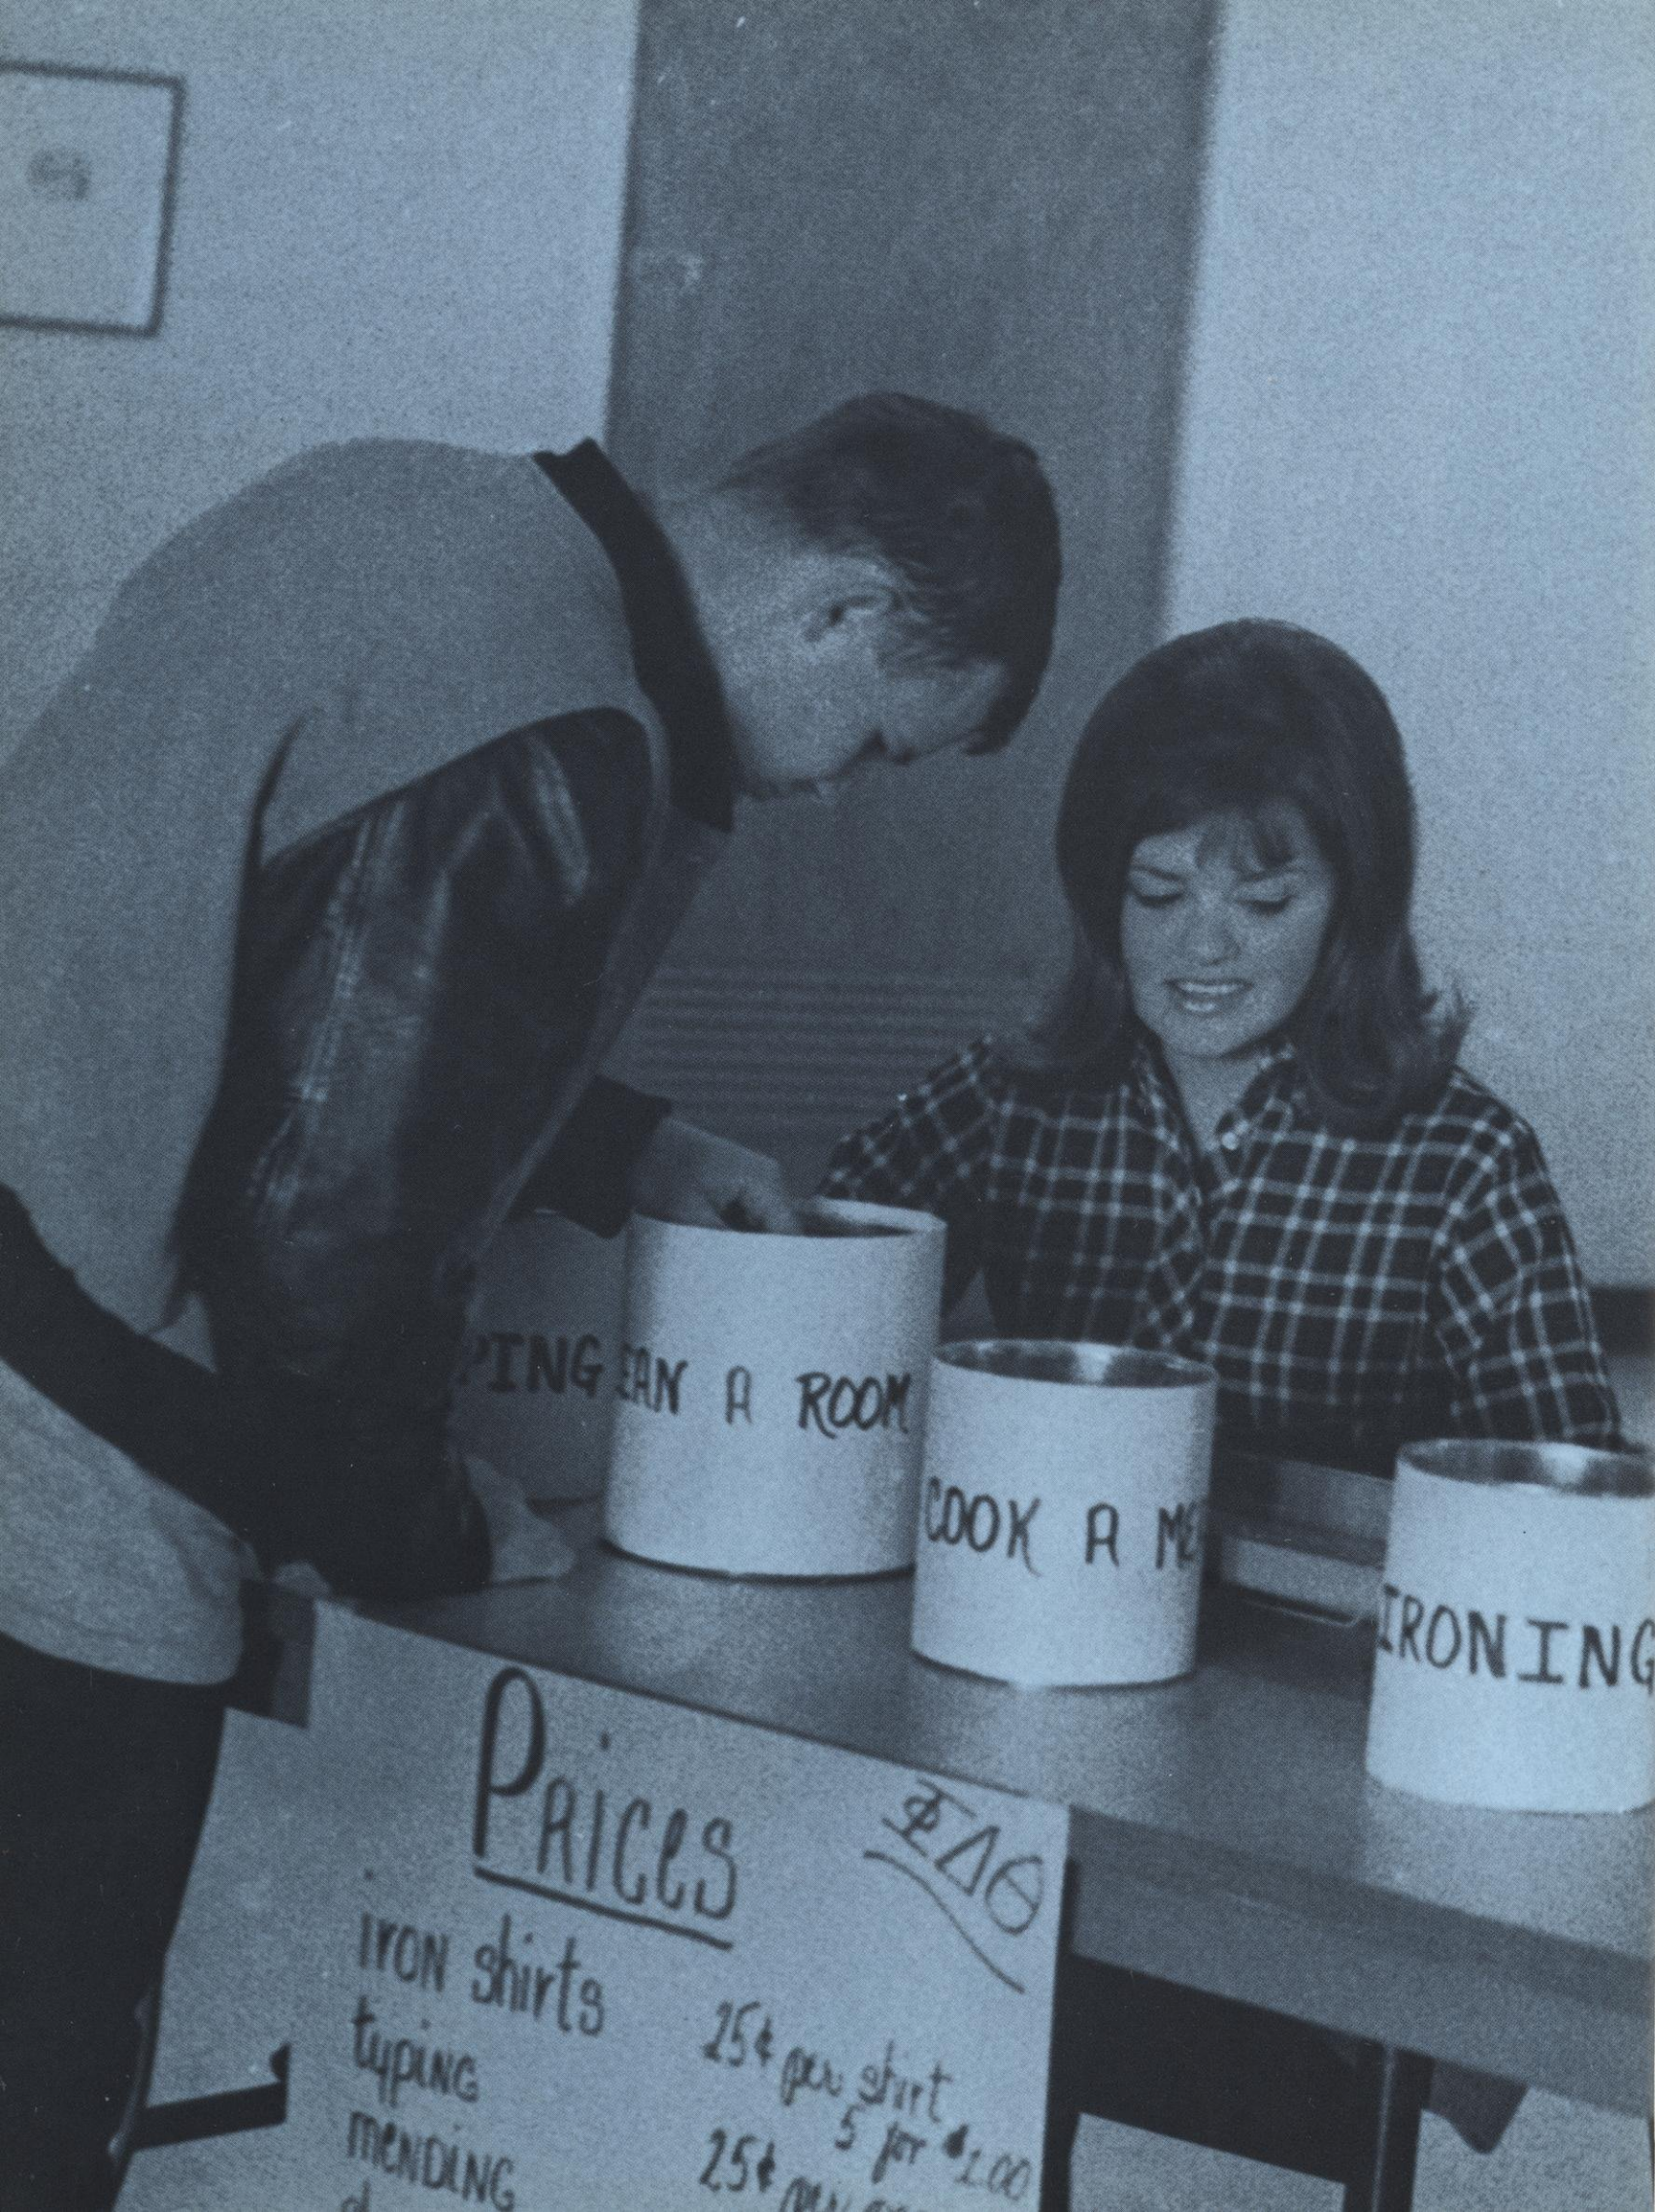

The River Falls senior is not a narrow specialist. He is a person of many dimensions. He is the most confident (and hardest-working) student, the most accomplished bridge player, the mainstay of the athletic teams, the committed artist, the campus politician; in short, the complete student.

SPORTS/SPIRIT

Spirit is a vital element in every student activity, but it is at its most colorful and vocal at a sports event. Who can resist the frenzied chants and jack-in-the-box dance of the cheerleader? Stand up and cheer for Big Red — block that kick, guard that basket, pin the heavyweight, kill the umpire! Collegiate exuberance breathes life into an otherwise inanimate image — the portrait of a year.

ORGANIZATIONS/FRIENDSHIPS

An organization is a collection of friendships: the most memorable moments of the student's career. River Falls students belong to a multitude of organizations: fraternal, professional, political, religious, social, cultural. Through these groups, the student meets people from other backgrounds and other countries, finds friends with like interests, and enhances his knowledge of his vocational field. Without organizations, the friendships they encourage, and the academic enrichment they provide, a portrait of a year would be only a preliminary sketch.

LEARNING/THE FREE SPIRIT

A portrait of River Falls begins and ends with learning — in classroom, laboratory, library; through listening, reading, debating. The most rewarding moments of the year are those in which a phrase, an idea, a philosophy illuminates a pattern for life.

River Falls' three undergraduate colleges —
Liberal Arts, Education and Agriculture — offer the student a choice of 30 majors. Small classes, accessible teachers, and a free and open atmosphere are conducive to a stimulating academic experience.

Learning is the element which frames
the portrait at the University
"where the free spirit prevails."

Dr. Richard Delorit, academic vice president, was appointed interim president September 1, 1967, when the resignation of Dr. E. H. Kleinpell became effective.

Dr. Delorit graduated from Wisconsin State University River Falls in 1942, with a B.S. degree. He served as vocational agriculture instructor at high schools in Abbotsford, Plymouth and River Falls. In 1953 he be-

'Acting' Administrators

This was the year of the "acting" administrators. With the resignation of President E. H. Kleinpell, effective Sept. 1, Academic Vice President R. J. Delorit became interim president.

Delorit appointed Graduate School Dean Philip Anderson to be acting academic vice president and named Agriculture Education Professor Marvin Thompson acting dean of the Graduate School.

Signature

Just as a portrait is signed by its creator this Portrait of a Year is also to be finished with a signature.

This signature is only that of one person but it also represents a number of people who have put a great amount of their time and work into the production of this book.

There are various people who are to be thanked for the work they have done, including the editors and photographers.

Very special thanks go to Mary Lepori who not only did her job but also took over a number of other jobs as the size of the staff dwindled.

Thanks also go to Dennis Stern who wrote the lines of poetry in the Activities Section.

This book has incorporated in it two ideas which have not been used in previous Meleteans. The biggest change is that the underclassmen pictures have been left out. And some faculty group pictures were taken to be used in that section.

Whether or not these ideas will be carried through in succeeding years will depend on the decisions of future editors.

Jerry Frigo, Editor
