

Dear Gail spring 1969.

[s.l.]: [s.n.], 1969

<https://digital.library.wisc.edu/1711.dl/5JZYT3NXPZDW84>

<http://rightsstatements.org/vocab/InC/1.0/>

The libraries provide public access to a wide range of material, including online exhibits, digitized collections, archival finding aids, our catalog, online articles, and a growing range of materials in many media.

When possible, we provide rights information in catalog records, finding aids, and other metadata that accompanies collections or items. However, it is always the user's obligation to evaluate copyright and rights issues in light of their own use.

(6)

Spring 1969

Dear Gail:

Dollar enclosed and thanks much. They weren't quite strong enough to fend off the vicious sore throat I now have, tho.

Can you remember at all the Kenneth Cox article he wrote on me? He has finally placed it — the spring Cambridge Quarterly, a young magazine which he explains this way: "It is academic in setting out, not in objective, its tone Leavisite. Leavis: an English moralist who taught at Cambridge, rather unpleasant and quite unreadable but he disturbed the universities and left a school. They have the idea literature has to do with life and that people living now ought to know the best that is written today or at least yesterday.)"

2/ This is Cambridge, England - Cox is a Londoner. Don't know what gets parents do with moralists but I'm eager to see!

Has the water gone down so you can rake? I'll have to ask a young lad - Larry De Blare, to rake mine, can't manage it with my diphtheria. Flu, I mean — went to doctor but mine is a case of few words.

Happy now - listening to you and Bonnie.

Lorraine