PURDUE'S WIN OVER ILLINOIS UPSETS DOPE

Suckers Again Tied With Indiana for First Place Honors

The biggest upset of the conference basketball season occurred Monday night when Purdue defeated Illinois at Urbana by a 28 to 19 score. The Illinois five may have been merely over-confident, at any rate, the defeat was unexpected, and the winner of the Big Ten title is just as much a mystery as before, for Illinois and Indiana are again tied for first place and Purdue and Wisconsin are within hopeful distance.

Coach Meanwell and his men returned from Columbus on Tuesday. The trip was a strenuous one, and the men were given only a light workout yesterday afternoon. Regular practice will be resumed today in preparation for the game against Chicago on Saturday night.

Maroons Lose Two Games

The Purdue-Illinois game was by no means the only upset of the past week. While Chicago was due for a change in form, the break came sooner than was expected. As a result the Maroons lost to Ohio State on Saturday night and to Minnesota on Tuesday night. The two defeats put Coach Stagg's men, who, early in the season, had been picked as conference winners, entirely out of the running.

The return of Finlayson to the Iowa team had a most bracing effect. Instead of dropping their last two games, as had been predicted, they administered beatings both to Purdue and to Indiana, two of the strongest teams in the conference.

Indiana's playing was not up to par over the week end. Coach Levis' men found Northwestern a worthy opponent and had difficulty in winning by a score of 23 to 21. They were defeated by Iowa and, hence are not so certain of success in their remaining games.

Coach Mather called the Wolverine squad together on Monday to get them in shape for the rest of their schedule. It is rumored that Captain Karpus has been placed on the ineligible list. If this proves to be true, Michigan will not be so apt to put a crimp in Purdue's and Illinois' pennant aspirations. A Michigan victory over Purdue would materially assist in boosting Wisconsin toward the top of the percentage column.

W. A. A. COMMITTEE TO CHOOSE FINAL EMBLEM WEARERS

Three Seniors, Two Juniors, and Faculty Member to Com- prise Selection Group

Three seniors, two juniors and a faculty member were elected last night at a special meeting of W. A. A. to constitute the committee which will choose the women who will be awarded the final emblem.

The seniors on the committee are Margaret Fisher, Janet Epstein, and Agnes Samuels; the juniors are Auta Lyman and Frances Beecher. Miss Margaret H'Doubler is the faculty member of the committee and Helen Harper was chosen as the all-university member. The all-university member is the only student member of the committee that does not belong to the association.

The committee will pick the recipients of the emblem on the qualities of scholarship, athletic attainment, and womanliness.

SLOGANS

$5.00 Goes to Student Who Submits Best Cry For Little International

"Wild and wooly, but simply bully." "Everything but mules at the Little International." "A rational International, best ever." "A thoroughbred opportunity," and "Our domestic animals over the foot-lights" are some of the slogans submitted to the Saddle and Sirlain slogan committee this week.

The contest is conducted by the club in order to secure a short and snappy slogan for the Little International Livestock show to be held in the stock pavilion March 12.

Five round silver dollars, as a crisp five spot will be given to the contributor submitting the best slogan. Russell Frost '21, chairman of the committee has been receiving slogans all week.

The slogan contest will be continued until Saturday noon, Feb. 26, and all slogans received up to that hour will be considered by the judging committee. All slogans should be mailed to Russell Frost, Country magazine room, Agricultural hall.

INITIAL TRYOUTS FOR "MISS QUITA" HELD YESTERDAY

Over 150 Working for Positions in Cast and Chorus of Annual Play

With more than 150 men as candidates for parts in cast and chorus in the twenty-third annual production of the Haresfoot club, "Miss Quita," initial tryouts were held last night in the auditorium of the Wisconsin high school building.

The number of men trying out this year is larger than ever before, officers of the club state, and the quality of the voices is above the average. Singing and simple dance step work was used to judge the chorus. Those working for positions in the cast were judged on individual singing, and the reading of a few lines in the play of the character for which they were working.

There are 14 principal parts in the play, for which 28 men will be selected for final approval of the coach, who will arrive Saturday. The cast includes four feminine roles. There will be approximately 30 men selected for chorus work.

Further tryouts will be held tonight for cast, chorus, and orchestra men at 7 o'clock in the Wisconsin high school auditorium. The cast tryouts will be conducted by William Purnell '22, the chorus under Horace Carver '21, and the orchestra, with instruments, under Jean Juster '21. Men who were unable to be present last night should make arrangements to come to this tryout and notify William Purnell, F. 136, or Horace Carver, B. 3813, during the day. Announcements of additional tryouts will be made in tomorrow's Cardinal.

Men who desire work on the production staff as assistants to the production manager, property men, or stage managers should report to Norbert W. Markus '21, production manager, this afternoon in the Haresfoot office, third floor, Union building. Those desiring to work on publicity will meet Walter Schwinn '22, publicity manager, in the Haresfoot office between 4:30 and 5:30 this afternoon.

KENNEDYS READ IN MUSIC HALL TONIGHT

"The Kennedys were very enthusiastic over their visit here last year," said Miss Gertrude E. Johnson, assistant professor in the department of speech, commenting upon the appearance in Madison last year of Charles Rann Kennedy, well known playwright, and his wife, Edith Wynn Matthison.

Although the Kennedys gave one play, "Oedipus Rex," last year, the program which they will read in Music hall at 8 o'clock tonight will be varied. Selections from "The Merchant of Venice," "School for Scandal," "The Servant in the House," and the whole of "The Rising of the Moon," will be given. They will appear under the auspices of the three dramatic clubs, Edwin Booth, Red Domino, and Twelfth Night.

"Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy said that they found the students whom they met with interested and interesting," continued Miss Johnson. "They visited the classes in the department of speech, and expressed their approval of the work which is being done there."

COMMERCE CLUB ELECTS TWELVE

The following men were elected to the Commerce club last night:

Seniors—Gordon C. Ballhorn, Chester J. Miller, Harold H. Rehberg, Elmer Benson.

Juniors—John A. Dollard, Robert B. Stewart, Carl J. Englehardt, William F. Englehardt, Rollin E. Ecke, James A. Torbet.

Sophomores—Haskell E. Coates, Herbert E. Boning.

VOCATIONS TO BE SUBJECT OF MEETING TODAY

Miss Florence Marshall is Chief Speaker at An- nual Conference

Miss Florence E. Marshall, director of the Manhattan Trade school for Girls will give the opening address of the second series of the S. G. A. Women's Vocational conference this afternoon at 4:30 in the Lathrop concert room.

Round table discussions will take place Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. Prof. Thomas Lloyd Jones of the department of education will have charge of the discussion in the S. G. A. room, and Miss Eleanor Ramsey, employment manager of the French Battery company, Madison, who will explain the advantages of employment work, will be in the Y. W. C. A. room. In the S. G. A. office, Professor Hull of the psychology department, will indicate the opportunities for women in the new field of psychology. Miss Jessie Hoover, who is here as one of the speakers for Madison's "Milk Week," has been secured for the benefit of the agricultural women. She will hold discussions in the concert room.

Miss Marshall Knows Work

Miss Florence E. Marshall, as director of the Manhattan Trade school for Girls, New York, is in charge of the largest trade school in the United States. She was formerly head of the Boston Trade school, one of the first of that type of school in the country. Miss Marshall is interested in recreation and welfare work, and it is through her influence in Boston that the first clubs for girls, which met for recreational purposes, were organized.

Miss Marshall is a graduate of the Boston university. She has made an intensive study of trade schools abroad. During the war she served on the Federal Board of Vocational Education. During the past year she has been elected president of the Cosmopolitan club of New York city. Miss Marshall is prominent in both professional and artistic circles.

To Hold Conferences

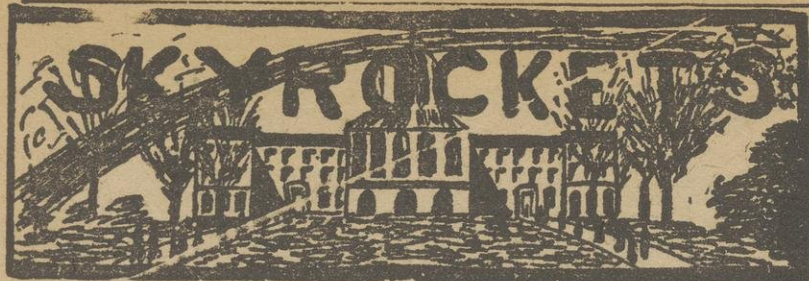

Miss Helen Bennett of the Chicago Collegiate bureau of vocations has been secured to give personal advice to senior women in regard to securing desirable positions. In order that every senior woman may have a conference with Miss Bennett all senior women are asked to sign up Thursday for a conference some time Friday or Saturday.

TICKET SALE FOR CHESTERTON TALK NOW UNDER WAY

Those who want tickets for Gilbert K. Chesterton's talk on "The Ignorance of the Educated," in the auditorium of the Madison high school Wednesday evening, March 9, are advised to reserve them immediately, as the sale is going rapidly, according to Paul Gangelin '23, editor of the Literary magazine. Gangelin has charge of arrangements for Chesterton's address.

Dollar tickets must be taken to Hook Brothers between 2 and 4 o'clock any afternoon, or to the Union building from 4:30 to 6, to be reserved. But the $1.50 tickets are reserved when sold, as there is little choice between them.

The mail order sale will close on March 2, and tickets will be put on open sale then, if there are any left. About a third of the tickets are already sold.

WELL, a week and a half of classes survived and we haven't cut yet—not many.

THE subject of most current interest seems to be the lightning bowling matches between Gnagi and Al Rogers and Scotty and Earle Hardy. Rumor has it that Ralph and Earle are the meal tickets of the doughty Delt boys.

OVER at the Mendota asylum yesterday we saw some deaf and dumb boys telling shady stories to one another with their hands. The finger movements were, of course, kept well under cover of a protecting overcoat so that the world at large would not be shocked. We have a faculty, however, of scenting out such stories in any language or form and were not fooled for a minute.

SNOUGH FLAKES
Now the gosh derned ice is rotten,
And the lake is full of holes,
We might take the bloomin' weather
For to make some rigmaroles.

Of course we can play poker—
What they calls the five-card stud,
But how can we toboggan
When the slide is full of mud?

Too, the Beta boys from Norway
Have to put away their skis,
And the co-ed now may safely stow
Away her wool chemise.

This winter is a fizzle right
As far as sport's concerned;
If we live through another such,
We hope we may be burned.

So sadly to our books we turn,
Neglected hitherto;
We hate it only, wot-th-ell,
They haint a thing to do.

THE only cool thing about the winter is the dean's reception. Then, too, our bedroom would be cold even if it went to 90 in the shade. Also, some sez the Illinois Central tracks are eye-see, but then that is an old chestnut and has even appeared in this column before. "But," we remarks, "tis the good things that bears repetition." And, you replies "Yes, what has that got to do with the subject, though?" which remark brings out your inherent ignorance, for the above is a hale and hearty quip and deserves laughter—yea, even giggles.

FELLOWSHIP CLUB TO HEAR FILIPINO

A talk on "The Significance of American Occupation of the Philippines" will be given Thursday evening at the Fellowship meeting of the university Y. M. C. A. by Conrado Paras, of Boac Mdge, P. I.

Mr. Paras has been a student at the university for some time, and has been active in Philippine student affairs. His personal view on American occupation will reflect that of the younger Filipinos who have received their education here and hope to return to active political and educational work in their own country.

The fellowship meeting is open to all men in the university. The meeting will start at 7:15 and will last for one hour.

PRES. BIRGE WILL SPEAK AT VESPER

President E. A. Birge will be the speaker for Y. W. C. A. vespers, Sunday afternoon, February 27. He will speak informally and his subject has not yet been announced. Ruth Storms '21, will preside. Arrangements for the music are being made by Ruth Chandler. Marie McKittrick '21 will sing.

OZO TWINS SELECT DOROTHY POERTNER AS CAMPUS BEAUTY

Holders of Lucky Numbers in "Lit" Subscription Drive Get Candy at Chocolate Shop

The Chocolate shop has two boxes of candy in its window awaiting the holders of the lucky numbers which the Wisconsin Literary magazine have been circulating about the campus this week. The winning number picked yesterday by the "Ozo twins" was 503, and the one selected this morning is 1775. Holders of both these numbers may claim their sweets at the Chocolate shop any time today.

Meanwhile, the twins are maintaining a busy schedule, and are passing out hundreds of numbers daily. Tomorrow morning's Cardinal will announce another winner.

The Ozo twins have another mission, however. Each day they are appraising the co-ed ranks with the idea of selecting a campus beauty, and last night turned in a list of 40 possible candidates. Then the elimination began, and the palm was finally awarded to Miss Dorothy Poertner '21.

The "Lit" staff is anxious to get your subscription for the balance of the year. You can get the remaining four issues of the magazine for only 75 cents, and may have it mailed either to your Madison address or sent home without extra charge.

THE PLACE OF THE LAW SCHOOL

NOT altogether unlike the universities under which they operate, law schools vary. The particular advantage of a state university law school comes from the service rendered the state over and above that of furnishing lawyers.

Operating on state funds, dependent on the good graces of the people for support, it is only logical to expect that standards in our law school must be kept at the highest possible level. This highly deserved end has been very amicably solved by a statute permitting graduates of the state law school, upon the completion of six months of office practice, to be admitted to the bar of the state without further examination.

A bill to repeal this statute has already passed the assembly and is now being considered by the senate. In considering the bill the senators ought to give some thought to the following facts in addition to those presented in this column last Sunday.

Since its establishment in 1868, it has been the policy of the law school to encourage prospective lawyers to avail themselves of the superior advantages of the law school and submit to its more strenuous and extended tests, by admitting to the bar those who pass them. This has been a good policy and should be continued. Fully three-fourths of the lawyers of the state are graduates of or have attended the university school. Sixty-two judges, including five members of the present Supreme Court are also graduates.

No unnecessary additional work should be thrown upon the bar examiners unless their compensation is increased. The Supreme Court, which is charged with the duty of appointing these examiners, now find it very difficult to secure the willing service, and impossible to secure continuous service, of able men on this commission. With the number of applicants largely increased, the court would find its difficulties practically insurmountable and the legislature will be compelled to increase the compensation or turn the work over to men of second rate ability.

Finally, the real question involved is, shall the present law, which admittedly has tended to raise the standard of the bar of the state, be overthrown in the interest of private schools? The state is concerned only as to the character and fitness of the men coming to the bar, and not at all with the prosperity of private law schools.

Communication

FROM THE FACULTY POINT OF VIEW

There is occasion for gratification over the present agitation for an Honor System in the University of Wisconsin. The writer, as a student several years ago, was largely responsible for the abolition of an Honor System, which, so far as the honor, is still in force. Under the plan, if a class on its own initiative requests the use of the Honor System, one without written pledges, the instructor, satisfied that it approximates the wants of the entire class, is permitted to use the System.

But much of the discussion in communications overlies two very essential things. In the first place, while a majority of the students are honest, many are not, a sufficient number to prevent the successful operation of the system.

In the second place it is apparently taken for granted that because the Honor System works elsewhere it will work here.

Then of course it is not true unless the factors which obtain at these institutions also obtain here. And the most important of these factors is the active willingness of students to enforce the system themselves. There seems to be a fairly general idea among students that they ought to be trusted, but that the instructor ought to prevent the cribbing.

When the students of the University of Wisconsin rise to the honor level themselves enforcing an Honor System, rest assured there are plenty of sympathizers in the faculty to make their honor dream come true.

But this means:

1. That students themselves must refrain from getting help or using dishonest means of passing examinations.

2. That students will refuse to help other students in individual topic, word or examination.

3. That students themselves will detect and report offenders, preferably to a committee of students, and heap upon the offender the odium of public censure.

Under such conditions an Honor System would work.

The writer used the Honor System successfully for three years. But his classes were small, he knew the students personally and as friends. With the considerable increase in the size of classes, the difficulty of maintaining personal relationships, and against the spirit of "Get By," the system broke down. Show us that students are prepared to enforce an Honor System and there'll be rejoicing among the faculty.

ALFRED P. HAAKE.

AT THE GRAND

The California Redwoods are the setting for a powerful story of love and adventure, entitled "The Man Who Dared," a new Fox photoplay starring William Russell, which is to open at the Grand theater today. Advance reports indicate that Russell here has a starring vehicle well suited to him. He plays the part of a lumberjack boss who commits a sin in order to hold the love of a girl, and is led to repentance and atonement.

The story and scenario are by Julius G. Furthman, and Emmett J. Flynn directed the production. Supporting Mr. Russell are Eileen Percy—since made a Fox star—as leading woman; Frank Brownlee, whom all film fans know; Fred Warren, Lon Poff and a squad of California lumberjacks—the real article. The chief of the lumberjacks is Jack King, who has been in the forests since early boyhood.

WINTER SPORTS OCTOPUS TO GO ON SALE TODAY

February Number Filled With Humorous Happenings of the Cold Months

Whether there are any other winter sports about the campus today or not, the "Winter Sports" number of the Octopus will be here to perpetuate the joys of a winter that is past—or passing.

Mufflers, knickers, big sweaters, and heavy ear-muffs will be the proper costume today, no matter what the weather, because if one has not some such protection, just a look at the Octopus is enough to "knock one cold." All the artists and authors have united to produce the most wintry periodical in the history of journalism.

Every type of winter sport, male and female, is represented. In years to come this February number of the Octopus will be used as an historical record of the years 1920 and 1921 at Wisconsin, because it is a thorough and complete compilation of unprejudiced views of characteristic phenomena connected with the winter months.

The snap of winter permeates all of the pages, and is especially noticeable in the editorials, "Octy's" own little inventions, which discuss and dismiss all the vital questions of the hour with scintillating flashes of wit and wisdom.

Next summer in the scorching heat of the dog-days, it will be a relief to turn to the chilly pages of the Winter Sports number to be temporarily cooled and refreshed. People in tropical countries, too, will be grateful for a gift of this frigid bit of winter.

COMEDY TRYOUTS

DR. ROBINSON WILL SHOW ATTITUDE OF SCIENCE TO RELIGION

Does cold science prove that God is a myth and that the Bible is an idle fairy tale, or does it verify and strengthen the beliefs of our religion?

Dr. D. S. Robinson of the department of philosophy will explain the scientist's views on this question in his lecture entitled "Are Religion and Science Incompatible?" to be given in the auditorium of the Biology building this afternoon at 4:30.

Dr. Robinson has drawn large audiences to his series of lectures explaining the relation of philosophy and religion. The public is admitted to the lectures, but discussions which follow are restricted to students.

COACH JONES' ATHLETES TO MEET PURPLE

First Dual Track Meet of Season Scheduled Saturday

Wisconsin track athletes are strenuously preparing for the first dual meet against Northwestern which is scheduled for Saturday, Feb. 26 at Evanston.

Coach Thomas E. Jones will present a strong lineup for the Badger's initial appearance of the season, and the squad will be almost the same as the one which won a third place in the 1920 Conference Track meet.

The loss of Ralph F. Spetz '22, who is ineligible, has rendered the team weak in the dashes, while Northwestern is reputed to be strongest in the short events. Kelsey, who hurled the shot and was a fast man in the 50- and 100-yard dashes, has left school. Peter M. Platten '23, varsity high jumper, will be unable to compete against the Purple because of an injury to his ankle suffered in practice. Excepting the loss of these three men, the Wisconsin team is intact and has an excellent chance of capturing the meet from Northwestern.

Although Northwestern has not engaged in any dual meet this season, advance notices declare that the Purple will put a veteran team on the track. In addition to much strength in the dashes, the Evanstonians possess a good all-around track and field man in Townley. The big Purple football man puts the shot, runs in the dashes, and is entered in the high jump event. Burkenwald is the distance man that will compete for Northwestern, and Szold, half back on the 1920 football team, is a quarter-miler.

The tentative lineup for Wisconsin follows:

60-yard dash—Field, Wood, Wallis, Knollin, Stolley.

60-yard high hurdles — Knollin,

Stolley, Armstrong, Newell.
One-quarter mile run—Kayser, Johnson, Holbrook.
One-half mile—Nash, Post, Holbrook.
One mile—Wall, Brothers, Wille.
Two-mile run—Dennis, Finkle, Noble.
Shot put—Sundt, Gude, Liskovec, Armstrong.
Pole vault—Merrick, Wilder, McClure, Cruzen.
High jump—Armstrong, Mobley.
One-mile relay—Four men will be picked from this group: Kayser, Nash, Johnson, McClure, McCandless, Holbrook.
