STUDENTS PAY HIGH TUITION AT WISCONSIN —BIRGE

Non-residents Here Pay More Than at Other Universities

"The non-resident students at Wisconsin now pay a higher tuition fee than non-resident students at any other state university," declared Pres. E. A. Birge in a memorandum issued yesterday to clarify the variance of reports that are being circulated concerning the $500 tuition bill. The bill was recommended with an amendment changing the increase to $300 by the state affairs committee of the state assembly on Thursday.

The annual excess at Wisconsin in the College of Letters and Science ranges from $40 to $100, the statement says, as compared with fees in state universities in the adjacent states. A tabulation of tuition fees charged by state universities in the Mid-West, prepared by the Daily Cardinal, shows that Wisconsin leads by $43 over the next highest fee.

The table, which forcibly substantiates the statement of President Birge, is as follows:

University	Non-res. Fee
Illinois	$ 50
Iowa	65
Michigan	105
Minnesota	90
Ohio	50
Wisconsin	143

"The percentage of non-resident students attending the University of Wisconsin," continues President Birge, "has been very constant for the past ten years. The registrations have numbered from 28 per cent to 30 per cent of the whole number of regular two-semester students. The percentage shows no tendency to increase or to diminish in recent years."

According to a report compiled by the statistician in the president's

Junior and Freshman Crews Are Also Picked After Preliminary Work

After working the candidates for the varsity rowing crew on Lake Mendota for nearly three weeks, Coach Harry E. Vail has selected tentative first and second varsity eights which, except for slight changes, will be the crews representing Wisconsin in the three meets scheduled for this season.

Six crews have been rowing on the lake since "Dad" Vail allowed his men to launch the shells, and may replace some of the veterans on the senior eight. Because several veterans have been declared ineligible for rowing due to scholastic deficiencies, Coach Vail has been forced to get along without several men who are of varsity calibre.

The following men have been elected as a tentative first varsity crew: Captain A. Samp '23, A. Sanderson '23, P. J. Okenstaen '23, A. J. Plat-

GOVERNOR BLAINE'S GREETINGS

I had the opportunity Thursday afternoon to visit the University Exposition, and I found it most interesting and instructive. It is not a cheap or showy affair in any respect. It is altogether a substantial undertaking, and a few hours' visit to the Exposition will not only be enjoyable, but very profitable.

It takes in the whole field of university work—home economics, agriculture, engineering, chemistry, journalism, and the activities of every department of the university. I do not undertake to enumerate the scores of exhibits, nor can I state which is best. They are all good.

I commend the Exposition to all citizens of the state who can find it convenient to visit it, and to all of our officials as a worthwhile exhibition. I was delightfully surprised at its magnitude and its purpose.

Everybody is invited to attend, and I appreciate the privilege of giving the Exposition my unqualified endorsement, feeling that those who do attend will come away convinced that the University Exposition is a worthy and well-done accomplishment, by the students of every department.

JOHN J. BLAINE,

Governor.

INDIANA BALL GAME SPOILED BY RAIN; TWO TILTS TODAY

(Special to the Cardinal)
BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — Rain which fell all day Friday caused the cancellation of Wisconsin's first conference baseball game with the University of Indiana here.

A double header will be played this afternoon. Batteries for Wisconsin will be Paddock and Davey and Williams and Davey.

NORTH SIDE OF MUIR KNOLL TO BE DANGER ZONE

The north side of Muir Knoll will be the danger zone during the match between the artillery pistol team and Oregon State Agricultural college at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the rear of the hydraulics laboratory.

The teams will fire from the laboratory toward targets placed near the ski jump.

State Legislature Sees Ex- hibits During Night Session

With Madison hotels filled to overflowing and over 300 people assigned to rooming accommodations by the Exposition committee, the third University Exposition swung into full tilt yesterday. Visitors from out of town, including a large percentage of high school students, were pouring into town all day and many more are expected to arrive this morning.

Nearly 4,000 people, more than twice as many as attended the big fair on the opening day, thronged the exhibits from 1:30 p. m. until midnight, amusing themselves with intelligence tests, collecting souvenirs, and exclaiming at the graphic presentation of the work of the university.

Legislators Attend

The Wisconsin legislature, arriving in special motor cars at 7:30 p. m., attended the Exposition in a body.

Special guides were provided by the Exposition management to conduct the solons to the many booths and explain the exhibits. All evening the legislators wandered about the building, prying into the mysteries of the scientific exhibits and visualizing the scope of university work by the many charts.

Hear Snowflake Lecture

Besides viewing the varied exhibits of the Exposition proper, a large number of visitors took advantage of the special "Snowflake Lecture" by Prof. Benjamin Snow in the Physics auditorium, and of the tours of the campus conducted by members of Inner Gate.

The conference of high school editors with a luncheon at noon is the chief of the special events scheduled for today.

'MISS 'QUITA' HAS HOME BREW KICK

By O. J. CAMPBELL

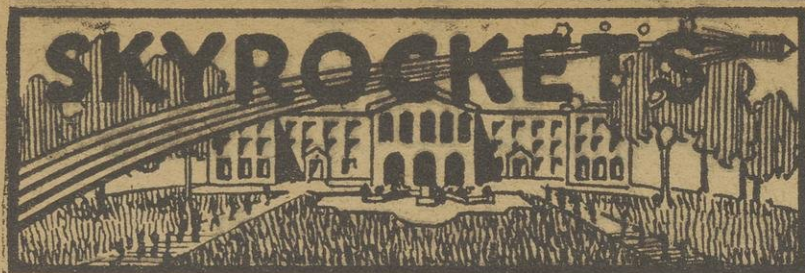

"Miss Quita," the twenty-third annual production of the Haresfoot club, scored a deserved triumph at its first home performance at the Fuller last evening.

It is a fine heady home-brew. All the ingredients—the book, the lyrics, the music, the beauty are home products. George Herbert, the coach, merely brought the yeast. The whole performance had the essential kick and continues to beat in one's pulse as he makes for home. The club's wise determination to have no more warmed-over professional musical comedies is splendidly justified by the result.

The scene is laid in Mexico, the modern land of Cockaigne to thirsty Americans, where only the climatic is dry and where all things are plausible and natural, even an exciting Oriental dance. Thither two enterprising Americans make their way to find wine, women, and song. The book is just the combination of extravaganza, farce, and humor best suited for a show of this sort.

The music to which Earl Carpenter has set the lyrics written by Horace Carver and H. V. Gregory, is full of vigor, charm, and variety. The songs which showed the most originality and power to catch the audience were the pretty "Songs of the Thrush," "The Hangman's Blues." The opening chorus of Act

Again the periodic appearance of the Hairyfeetters is the subject of much interest and gossip in the quiet, suburban, little town of Madison. It might be said that the show is the worst one we have ever seen, but this has not been said, nor would it be true.

Scientists have accurately shown that of the large number of uncompos mentis persons inflicting society with their presence half or more are those who have never seen a Haresfoot show. Yet everyone in attendance was crazy about it.

Mord Bogie plays his part in par. The excellence of Reginald Garstang leads us to wonder where the experience necessary to play such a part came from. He is a Sig Chi, though, come to think of it. Carpenter's music is to be especially noted, in fact it is. The prettiest legs in school are to be found in the chorus. Oh, will the boys be in demand when the swimming season begins! (shaving done by Runkel, by the way). The Kappa Beta were—well—sh. Bill Purnell scores a point for the Phi Gamma. He's one thing they should be proud of. But time is fleeting, and we do not own any medals for being a stage critic so will not dwell on the further merits of the heralds of histrionics.

It is estimated that the annual annihilation of olive oil at Wisconsin is in the thousands of gallons. Then, further, it is to be observed that the consumption of salads is very low. By a simple process of ratiocination it must be concluded that nature has not caser oil upon the hirsute adornment of the academic youth.

We are always fascinated by the onomatopoeia of "Ibsen under Ibsen."

X-RAY APPARATUS DRAWS ATTENTION TO MEDIC EXHIBIT

X-ray apparatus, a physiological chemistry exhibit, a smoking test, and other unique features form the entertaining shows of the Medical school at the Exposition. Upon first entering one is confronted with a sign warning him to stay at least a foot away from a wire connected to a high voltage machine. After stepping carefully around this monster his eyes fall upon an X-ray apparatus. Looking into this he is able to see through his hand or arm or anything which is placed before it.

At one end of the booth is the physiological chemistry exhibit. Here cards and foods reveal the terrifying fact that if one is to live only on potatoes he must eat one-third of a bushel a day in order to satisfy the need of his constitution; if he is to live on corn meal, 15½ pounds or three large glass jars full of the meal must be consumed daily. Seven loaves of bread are the daily rations for the person who is existing only on white bread.

Near the food is a "water softener," a device which will appeal to the co-eds at Madison who claim that our hard water is the ruination of pretty complexions and soft skin. This is a certain kind of rock that is used extensively to soften hard water. It is very porous and the water runs through it, leaving the rock the calcium or carbonate which makes the water hard.

OSAR, the observative, says: Children and also soup should be seen; not heard.

LIVES OF GREAT PEOPLE

No. 2.

Marjorie Boesch

Marge was born in the little but prosperous town of Burlington, Iowa, in that section of the country where considerable corn is belted. She started her far-famed social career in the rustic barn dances of the village, later distinguishing herself by leading the firemen's ball which is held yearly in the spacious clubhouse of the Sons of Burlington Independence league. The acme of her attainments was reached when she became a Theta paying the way for an unbounded series of triumphs. Miss Boesch likes books, athletics, dogs, filet de sole, and Phi Deltis.

It seems as though our life will be insecure until we finally give Florence Kelly and Grace Maxey the publicity of this col. Their supplications rend our soul and cut us to the quick. There is, however, only one thing that can be said about these two damoiselles and that would be censored, so you see we are handicapped consid.

A quip of ourn was bungled and made pointless in the last issue through typographical negligence. Several people, says we and we repeats, suggest that Gausewitz reminds them of their landlord. Our remark was that this should seem unfounded unless they mean he has a big beak...or, gosh we spoiled it...we mean bill.

When Earle Hardy's physiognomy was recently criticised destructively, he made the modest report that he knew one person who thought it was pretty nice.

And as the hair said to the comb "Nothing but apart shall come between us."

The age of which may be excused by our cold in the throat making us peculiarly susceptible to hoarse chestnuts.

II, and "Each Pretty Miss." Carpenter also played the part of Laurence Dree and sang many of his own songs in a clear resonant baritone with much musical skill and taste.

Two of the actors deservt particular praise. Bothe Geginald Garstang as Ralph Waldo Emerson Smith, and William Purnell as the mature but amorous sister of the Mexican president were immense. Garstang commanded easily all the comic devices of gesture and expression which his part demanded. Purnell's every motion was funny, and his dance in the third act one of the most ridiculous and original that has appeared in musical comedy for a long time. It brought down the house. Stephen B. Reichert as the negro hangman did a very clever piece of impersonation. It is a shame that the amusing words of his "Hangman's Blues" were rather drowned by the orchestra. The band, as a matter of fact, showed a recurrent tendency to play down the singers.

The girls were most of them astonishingly pretty and graceful. Hubert Townsend as Paprika, the Mexican virago and vamp, was rming throughout, and in atETAO charming throughout, and in the last act lovely in both bearing and figure. Philip Reed in the title role was appealing and sang acceptably. Of the girls in the chorus Russell O. Ferguson and Harold H. Paul were easily the queens. They betrayed by scarcely a single movement or gesture their sex and they danced extremely well.

The big ensembles were invariably effective. The dances of the chorus in "Mystic Movement," in the "Mexican Musketeers," and "Each Pretty Miss," were highly creditable. The last two, in particular, were very original and full of swift humorous surprises.

All in all the play was one of the two or three best that the Haresfoot has produced in the last decade.

After seeing it one will either decide forthwith to go next winter to Mexico or to the next Haresfoot show.

DISPROVES TUITION EDIT

Editor the Cardinal:

The Cardinal's leading editorial of Friday rebukes members of the faculty for rousing opposition from the now dominant political machine in the state by the "offense" of actively supporting the war during the days of "war hysteria."

On the same premises, who not brand as "offenders" the hundreds of Wisconsin university soldiers and sailors, living and dead, most of whom volunteered to do their time with the colors in the war which Senator La Follette opposed?

These men put into action convictions in which they believed strongly enough to lay down their lives.

Was their "offense" not as palpable as that of the university professors who put their convictions into resolutions and petitions?

The theory that state university teachers should have their action and opinions stifled and gagged in sycophancy to any political machine or faction in Wisconsin is an unhealthy one that many will be surprised to see the Cardinal espouse.

It at least involves a violent reversal of policy. Examination of the files for last year will show that the Cardinal took precisely the opposite stand from that of Friday morning on the war activities of the faculty.

If the Cardinal is now trimming and shifting its position for the sake of expediency, then the course is not worthy of its editorial traditions.

BOOSTING TUITION

THE one redeeming feature of the Perry bill to raise the non-resident tuition fee to $500 is found in the fact that it has made every student on the campus realize how sincerely he wants to attend the University of Wisconsin.

In one sense it is to be regretted that we have had to submit ourselves to the possibility of this measure being enacted into law; but if it can be headed off, its mere presentation will have done much to make students realize that in return for the benefits they are receiving they owe a debt to their Alma Mater. Students are going to work harder to prove that what Wisconsin spends to educate non-resident students is money well spent.

Some considerable objection has made itself manifest concerning the stand which the Cardinal took in its editorial columns yesterday. The objections centered around the statement that "certain elements in the university are partly to blame for the feeling of hostility that is prevalent in certain sections of the state. In the recent state of war hysteria violently patriotic persons on the campus passed resolutions, circulated petitions and thus won the hostility of some political forces in this state."

Although the foregoing quoted sentences might have led some to believe that the Cardinal disapproved of the stand or action of "certain elements in the university" such is not the case. The Cardinal merely called attention to the possibility of the Perry bill being used as the method by powerful political factions to square accounts for the offense that was given at that time. There is a possibility that the conjecture ventured by the Cardinal was erroneous in view of the fact that the Perry bill is fostered by the political faction in state politics which is at loggerheads with the faction referred to yesterday. At best the discussion resolves itself into something of a fifty-fifty proposition, and even now, after some days of discussion, it remains a much mooted question.

Withal, the Perry bill should fail of final passage. It is ostensibly designed as a means of reducing expenses by reducing the student personnel. In voicing this contention the proponents of the measure lost sight of the fact that if a great university is to accomplish the greatest good to the commonwealth, the best way to achieve that end is through large numbers of well-equipped graduates.

Granting for the purposes of this discussion that expenses will be reduced by reducing the number of students (this fact has much to be said on both sides) should we not also consider the great injustice which might be done the people of the state and nation by limiting the use of the university's facilities and making of a national institution a provincial college? When it is considered that the people of the United States spend more money annually for chewing gum than they do for education, present educational facilities and advantages ought to be boosted rather than curbed.

HOW DO YOU TALK?

SEE SPEECH BOOTH

"Does your speech show force, bashfulness, sympathy, laziness, worry, sensitiveness, confidence, nervousness, or grouchiness?"

This interesting sign stops all who pass the Speech booth. Dr. Smiley Blanton, in his talk, tells why so many people are defective in speech. He points out that 60 to 75 per cent of the speech defects are caused by nervous troubles.

"Speech is the thermometer of emotional life," he declared. Speech mechanism is closely connected with the thinking mechanism, and therefore we cannot afford to have our speech defective. Many cases of defective speech are caused by a defect in the shape of the mouth. In such cases the tongue can be trained.

Cases of stuttering have been found which are the result of forcing a left-handed person to use his right hand.

Dr. Blanton served as a medical captain in the Second Division. His wife, one of the first women to become interested in this comparative new field, worked with him.

The largest city tax delinquent list ever accredited to the citizens of Madison has just been turned over to County Treasurer H. G. Rinder by City Treasurer Carl Moe. The unpaid taxes amount to $5,769.13.

DRY

Horned Toad Beats Camel by Going Without Water For 119 Days

The camel which lived for eight days without water must yield his claims for the championship at abstinence to the horned toad, which has adapted itself to the lack of moisture in the desert regions of the West.

That a horned toad can live for 119 days in the total absence of moisture and food has been demonstrated in experiments carried on by F. G. Hall of the zoology department.

The apparatus used in the experiment, which is on exhibit at the zoology booth of the Exposition, is a sealed glass jar into which is passed a current of air from which all water has been exhausted. The water is absorbed by means of concentrated sulphuric acid and zinc filters.

How the blood circulates in the foot of a frog is another interesting exhibit at the zoology booth. The foot of a living frog is mounted under a microscope, and the pulsation of the blood in the arteries and the crowding of the corpuscles to get through the capillaries may be seen plainly.

PHARMACISTS TAKE WINTERGREEN OIL FROM BIRCH BARK

Give Away Wintergreen Candy Made From Three Different Materials

Distillation of oil of wintergreen from birth bark is the process carried on with a large still at the pharmacy exhibit at the Exposition. A display of three different kinds of wintergreen oil made from wintergreen leaves, from sweet birch bark, or made synthetically in the pharmaceutical laboratory attracted many visitors.

Small envelopes containing candies made in the laboratory and flavored with three kinds of wintergreen are being given away at the booth.

Display Plants

A display of various medicinal plants, the processes of extracting the drugs, and the numerous types of medicines derived from them are other features of the booth.

Among the more important of the plants are bella donna, which is the chief source of atropine, sinchona, the drug from which quinine is extracted, and digitalis used in making preparations for heart stimulants. The bella donna and digitalis are both grown in the pharmaceutical gardens. Displays of the numerous tablets, pills, ointments, ampoules, liniments, elixirs, and alkaloids derived from the plants, are also being shown.

Show Ginseng

Another interesting plant is the ginseng. It is a drug used only in China. Because of its form which resembles a man the superstitious Chinese believe it to have magic powers. It has, however, no medicinal value.

Even the decorations, which make the booth one of the most attractive, carry out the idea of drugs. Pharmaceutical urns of various colors and two mortars made of arba vitae, a medicinal plant, hang from the top of the booth.

"Ours is the only booth," said A. John Schwarz '22, chairman of the pharmacy exhibit, "that uses indirect system of lighting."

A bronze mortar brought from Europe by Mrs. A. F. Menges in 1850 has been loaned to the booth for the exposition.

PHOTOART HISTORY AROUSES INTEREST

The seven volume Photoart Pictorial History being displayed in its initial bow to the public and now on view in the Expo lounging room is creating much interest and considerable comment, according to Lydia Hendricks '22 and Lillie Whitmeyer '23, who are in charge of the booth. The history is the product of the Photoart House, and contains some 6,000 pictures of university life dating back to 1886.

The largest city tax delinquent list ever accredited to the citizens of Madison has just been turned over to County Treasurer H. G. Rinder by City Treasurer Carl Moe. The unpaid taxes amount to $5,769.13.

CO-ED SINGING SOFTENS DIN AT EXPOSITION

Above the inevitable thud, buzz, and bang, of the booths in the erected at the rear of the armory, came the sound of a piano and harmonious blend of girls' voices in the old "Sweet and Low" song. The Woman's Glee club, represented by 38 girls under the direction of Miss Madelin Willman, gave a half hour program of music, which was enthusiastically received by the crowd which formed a semi-circle around the stage.

Miss Willman, formerly of Wausau, where she taught music in the public schools, graduated from the university in '19. She is now taking Prof. C. H. Mills' place in the training of the Glee club.

"In an Old-Fashioned Town"—Squire—and "The Boat Song"—Ware—were sung by Miss Marie McKittrick. Following "Sweet and Low," the group chorus gave the program:

Pierrot—Johnson.
Miss Mary's Gown—Chadwick.
Croon—Croon—Clutsum.
Orpheus with His Lute—German.
Miss Herdis Hanson accompanied at the piano.

BOTANISTS SHOW HOW LILIES GROW

How the lilies of the field grow may be actually visualized at the Botany exhibit of the Exposition! A delicate instrument called the auxograph measures the growth rate of plants on revolving drums. It shows how conditions of environment affect the rate of the length-growth. If you look through the kathetometer at half-hour intervals, you can also watch the progress of the growth.

Desert plants and water ferns, toadstools and rubber trees, as well as many flowering plants made the booth a balmy greenhouse. Even the banana tree—with full description of its growth, but minus the fruit—awaits the visitor.

Minute forms of plan life are on display under microscopes, as a means of studying cellular structure and the process of cellular division.

One of the most interesting instruments in the exhibit is the atometer, which measures the evaporating power of the air.

MINIATURE STADIUM IS REPRESENTED AT PHYSICAL ED BOOTH

A miniature representation of the concrete stadium which is being erected at Camp Randall and which resembles the White Sox park in Chicago is the outstanding feature of the Men's Physical Education booth.

A blue line marks off the section already constructed, and a red line marks off the section to be completed next summer. When the stadium is finished it will be one of the best in the country.

A screen in one corner of the booth shows pictures of the Olympic games, in which may be found two Wisconsin men, Schardt and Bierath, who have won fame for themselves in the athletic world.

The third feature is a recently completed photographic album, including pictures of teams and individuals from 1889 until the present. Many pages are filled with excellent snap shots and photographs of "W" men, teams, coaches, and athletic events, as well as many cartoons. After the Exposition the book will be placed in the main athletic office. These three spectacles are framed by numerous trophies and sweaters. The object of displaying the sweaters is to show students what the various ones signify.

Across the top of the front of the booth is the 1920-21 basketball championship award.

Music Memory Contest

No. 7—How to Remember—(b) in Technical Terms.

Just as it is not necessary, in order to recognize them, to be able to tell the various colors which are used in a picture, the kind of leather or wood which is used in a chair, or the color of the eyes and the style of the nose which a friend possesses, so it is not essential for the purpose of this contest to be able to tell the minute matters of construction of the 28 pieces we have been studying. On the other hand, the same pleasure which comes to the person who, with an appreciative eye, noticed details in the picture, the chair and the friend will come to the music lover who enters into the workshop of the musician and sees by what human means these fine art products have been produced.

There are four types of ideas under which one may group these matters of details or technical considerations: (1) rhythm, (2) melody, (3) harmony, and (4) form. Rhythm refers to the swing of the music and more particularly under the name of metre to the arrangement of accents within a measure. As you listen to any piece of music you will find that certain tones are stressed rather definitely; others much less, and still others not at all.

The tapping with your foot or with your hand which is natural to everybody simply emphasizes these accents. Just as in the band there are certain instruments such as the drums, the cymbals, and the triangle which emphasizes these accents, while clarinets and cornets emphasize the melody; so all music may be regarded as being made up of these two elements of stress, accent or pulsation on the one hand, and melody or flowing tone on the other hand.

Try picking out the strong and weak stresses in some of these pieces and you will soon find that, in general, the arrangements are of two kinds—those for marching, consisting of one strong followed by one weak, and those for a more graceful and leisurely movement, such as the minuet consisting of one strong followed by two weaks. Go through all of the 28 selections and classify them on this basis. You will find that most of them (19) are arranged so that each strong accent is followed by a single weak accent, making thus a total of two stresses in each measure; while only a few (9) have the strong followed by two weak accents, making a total of three in each measure. Typical of the first type—that is, the double are But the Lord is Mindful of His Own, To a Water Lily, the Anvil Chorus from II Trovatore, and the Toreador Song from Carmen.

ASK 2 BILLS FOR EDUCATION

Measure On Truancy and
On Taxes Urged by
L. D. Harvey

Educators are asking for the passage of two bills which they claim will do much to improve the school system of Wisconsin. Both of these measures have the endorsement of L. D. Harvey, formerly state superintendent.

The first of these bills is an assembly measure and provides a method of putting teeth into the truancy law.

"The United States Bureau of Education figures that one-fourth of the school term is wasted by irregular attendance at a loss of $190,000,000 annually," said L. D. Harvey. "In Wisconsin 80 per cent, or somewhat over one-fourth of our children, go to school a little less than six months a year. We are getting only 70 per cent use of our school plant and only 70 per cent of our children are getting the education they are entitled to. The bill before the house is designed to enforce the compulsory education law."

This bill raises the age limit of from 16 to 17 years for unemployed children. Parents must forfeit $2 each day the child is out of school. The prosecution of parents for keeping their children out of school shall be compulsory on the district attorney. Teachers must report enrollment and delinquency to superintendent.

Another bill affecting education institutions of the state permits the school board to fix the school budget and no longer permits the common council to revise it. In other words, the common council would have nothing to do with the amount of money which educational boards felt was necessary. This bill while endorsed by educators, is meeting with strong opposition from common councils and many sections of the state. Under this bill if 2 per cent of the assessed valuation of property yields insufficient funds for school purposes, the board must submit to the voters the question of raising additional funds. Cities already operating under separate school boards are not affected by this bill. The taxing power of the common council for other than school purposes is not affected by this bill.

Farmers Ask Harding to Call Industrial Meet

AT THE GRAND

BADGER TEACHER, 86, IN PLEA FOR RETIREMENT BILL

Miss Mary Dowling, Who Taught 40 Years in State,
Makes Plea

For more than two score of years Miss Mary Dowling, now 86 years old, taught in Wisconsin schools, and Thursday she came to the Capital City to urge Wisconsin legislators not to kill the teacher retirement fund law after thanking the committee members for giving her a hearing.

Way back in 1858, when she was but 23 years old Miss Dowling started to teach in a rural school in Waubesa county, and with the exception of a few years in a village school at Arena, she has always taught in district schools.

Her first salary was $16 a month. This was increased rapidly until it reached a maximum of $30 monthly. On only two occasions did she receive a large salary; once when she taught for a half year at $40, and on another occasion when she received $35 for a couple of months, according to records in the office of the teachers' retirement fund.

In 1912 she retired, having taught over a period of 50 years. A wonderful reputation as a teacher has Miss Dowling, especially in Dane and Iowa counties, where she taught most of the time. She also spent a few years in Dodge county.

AT THE STRAND

Cecil B. DeMille's "Something to Think About" will be shown at the Strand theater for the last times today. It's refreshingly different from anything he has ever attempted before. The story is about plain folks and deep in its heart appeal. A country girl who allows a sudden infatuation to sweep her away from the man she really loves is the central figure.

Beautiful Gloria Swanson is the heroine and Elliott Dexter, whom you liked so well in "For Better, For Worse," plays the leading male role. Such favorites as Theodore Roberts and Monte Blue are also in the cast. It's a Paramount picture.

Bebe Daniels in her latest comedy drama "Ducks and Drakes," pictures taken at the University Exposition, and the latest Mack Sennett comedy, "Made in the Kitchen," will be the attractions for Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday.

AT THE FULLER

One of the artistic features that will help make the engagement of William Owen and his players in a Shakespearean revival at the Fuller theater Monday matinee and night, an event of note of the season, will be the orchestral accompaniment furnished by a selected orchestra under the baton of Miss Betty Hughes, a concert musician of experience and taste.

The orchestra will comprise of an instrumentation of violins, harp, cello and flutes and will play the quaint old tunes and lullabys of other days, thus furnishing the proper atmosphere for the drama. Miss Hughes appeared in concert and on the concert stage and her knowledge of folk music will add greatly to the excellence of the ensemble.

AT THE ORPHEUM

If it was for nothing else than Olsen and Johnson, this week's bill at the Orpheum would be memorable. This team of fun makers have all the secrets of comedy at their finger tips and they dispense laughs with an extravagant generosity. This clever pair put over comedy songs in a manner that has not been equaled at the Orpheum this year. Every song they do is a hit, and when they had given a generous share of entertainment the audience wanted more. Then there is Betty Byron and William Haig in their song and dance act called "The Book of Vaudeville," possessing an abundance of personality in a truly novelty offering.

The trio Hart, Wagner and Eltis, introducing something different in songs and conversation, while Boy and Arthur with their Chinese Restaurant act produce plenty of laughs. The Misses O'Hara and Neeley, beautifully gownned, sing songs in a most pleasing way and Frazer and Peck who open the show display remarkable strength. There office, the registrations for the past six years with the number of non-resident students have been as follows:

Year	Total	Non-res.
1915-16	5,181	1,482
1916-17	5,318	1,509
1917-18	4,286	1,192
1918-19	4,173	1,174
1919-20	7,294	2,087
1920-21	7,459	2,156

To the charge that the reduction of non-resident students would bring a great saving to the state, the statement declares that "the non-resident fees at Wisconsin are now so high that if a number of non-resident students was largely reduced, the saving in operating expenses would not equal the loss in income."

In this connection, it is pointed out by faculty members that the reduction of students would not necessitate the cutting of professors who are higher-paid officials. When the enrollment would be decreased, merely a smaller number of instructors and assistants would be required. A professor in a course, it is declared, can give lectures to a large class as well as to a small one.

"If a real slice is to be affected in the instructing staff at the university the professors and other higher paid officials will be the ones that the state should drop," said one faculty member yesterday. "This, however, would certainly not be tolerated by the people."

The university is now the only state institution which charges a non-tuition fee at all comparable to fees charged by endowed universities, the statement of President Birge points out. In view of these facts any considerable rise in fees will probably cause a net financial loss, since the fees are now about as high as the "traffic will bear."

MUSICIANS SHOW OLD INSTRUMENTS

All kinds of musical instruments from the Phillo fiddle "that looks better than it sounds" to the modern cello, from the Chinese predecessor of the "uke" to an expensive violin, from a score of wired instruments of western China to an American victrola, are to be found in the Music booth at the Exposition.

Pictures of the different musical organizations in the university are on display, and attractive posters announce the next Regimental band concert.

The proposed action of the state to boost the tuition fee to a higher sum is viewed by university officials as a "disastrous move." It would place Wisconsin in an exclusive and undemocratic relation with the attitude of her neighboring states. While other states welcome non-resident students, Wisconsin, always regarded as one of the most progressive commonwealths, would shut her gates and take a back seat of exclusion, they say.

The better way to reduce the enrollment at the university, one official believes, would be to do so on the basis of scholastics. Make the entrance requirements stricter and thus keep out those who either are not prepared to enter a higher institution of learning or who come for other purposes than education. This is one way, the official states, that the enrollment may be decreased.

That this method will be adopted at present, however, is not likely, he adds. As the enrollment of universities become greater each year, he says, this method will be one of those favorably viewed as a sane way to the solution.

HAIL!

Fish Have Hard Time When Military Department Fires on Lake Mendota

"Holy mackerel!" sighed the fish in Lake Mendota yesterday afternoon. "Another hailstorm!" But 'twas only the machine guns and automatic rifles at the demonstration of small arms firing by the cadet corps, on the lake shore, back of the gymnasium.

Shots were fired at the rate of 400 a minute from the Browning machine guns, which were sent from the Rock Island arsenal recently, and were used for the first time yesterday. Tracer ammunition was used during the demonstration to illustrate the light-traced shots.

A safety attachment on these guns, which were used during the war, makes it possible to regulate the altitude of the bullets so that the uns can be safely shot at the enemy without danger to advancing lines.

The automatic guns, which shoot from 400 to 500 shells a minute, have such a tremendous back-fire that two men were needed for each one.

Although the guns can shoot a distance of 8,100 yards, they were regulated so that the shells hit water at 400 feet from the shore. Sprays from the water showered the crowd gathered on shore when some of the shots fell short.

HOOSIERS GO TO JROM

One of the biggest events of Indiana was the Junior Prom. It was estimated that 10 miles of crepe paper was used, 1,000 balloons, 600 wisteria blossoms, 200 Japanese lanterns, 200 feet of lattice work and a great amount of other decorating material. The Prom was attended by about 350 couples.
