DEVIL'S LAKE TRIP PLANNED

Students to Visit Ancient Lake on Excursion Saturday

Devil's Lake will be visited in an excursion Saturday conducted by the geology department. Prof. O. W. Blanchard, Prof. V. C. Finch, and Prof. F. E. Williams will conduct the all-day excursion, which will be open to the public. The train will leave the Madison C. & N. W. station at 7:40 a. m. and returning will arrive at Madison at 5:30 p. m. The round trip fare is $2.12. Participants should provide themselves with lunch, and come prepared for rough climbing.

Those in charge of the trip promise a most interesting time. A cut through a ridge, sometimes called Baraboo Ridge, will be visited. Another ridge rising 600 feet will be climbed. It affords one of the finest views in the state.

Lake 10,000 Years Old.

Devil's Lake is of glacial formation. Lying in the heart of the low, worn down hills, it is very young, geologically speaking, compared to the bluffs. The latter, geology teaches, were part of the original Isle of Wisconsin, the first land to appear above the surface of the water aeons ago. Later, the plateau and the mountain range of which the Baraboo hills are the low remains sank beneath the surface, and were again elevated at a later date.

It was not until the last glacial period, some 10,000 years ago, that the lake was formed. A glacier dammed up the Wisconsin river, and the water, backing up, sought a new channel through the bed of Devil's Lake which had been scooped out at an early period. After the glacier disappeared, the river again sought its old bed, and the lake remains.

No Outlet Known.

No outlet has ever been discovered. It is thought that there is an underground connection with the Wisconsin river. Indian villages were formerly situated on its shores, and many legends have grown up around the region. The Indian name, signifying "Spirit Lake," was changed to Devil's Lake by the whites. President Lincoln once spent a day at the lake.

CARDINAL WRITER TO START SERIES ON U. W. SCHOOLS

The first of a series of articles on the different colleges of the university will appear in the next issue of the Cardinal. These articles are being prepared by J. G. Crownhart, '21, who has been connected with the editorial staff of The Daily Cardinal for the past three years. The series will cover the various courses and departments as well as the colleges and schools.

TENNIS PLAYERS SIGN TOMORROW FOR NET TOURNAMENT

Students may sign up for the tennis tournament until 5 p. m. Wednesday afternoon. Both single and double matches will be played and the winner will receive a cup as a prize. An entry fee of 25 cents is being charged. Students who are interested can sign up at the office in the men's gymnasium.

THE WISCONSIN MEMORIAL UNION

If you have attended Wisconsin before you know the spirit of pride with which you point to the fact that you are one of her loyal alumni.

If this is your first attendance we hope you will leave with that spirit which has made Wisconsin famous. Wisconsin and her spirit are one. It is in her spirit that her greatness lies. It is an intangible something shaped by Wisconsin Ideals.

During the war more than 5,000 students and alumni left for the purpose of upholding her ideals. Many were killed. Wisconsin would not be Wisconsin if she did not properly commemorate their memory. The form of this commemoration is to be the Wisconsin Memorial Union. A building to take care of the social needs of the students. A building to continue the memory of those who have given in giving further to those who are yet to come.

The students' share of this million dollar memorial is $100,000. $90,000 has already been raised during the regular session. During the summer $900,000 is being raised throughout the alumni body. $10,000 remains as the students' share.

What will be your part in this memorial? When you point with pride to your attendance at Wisconsin, let that pride be backed by a feeling of actual participation in an undertaking, the successful completion of which, makes possible our slogan, "THERE ARE NO QUITTERS AT WISCONSIN."

BIG PUSH FOR UNION STARTS IN NEW DRIVE

Drive Begins Tonight to Reach Summer Ses- sion Students

The summer campaign for the Memorial Union building will start tonight. Prof. A. B. Hall will speak at the music gathering at Music hall tonight and during the week there will be three other ten minute speeches. At the weekly play hour tomorrow evening Prof. Frederic L. Paxson will speak, at the movies Wednesday Dean S. H. Goodnight and at the Mixer Friday night, Lawrence Hall.

A team of 12 girls, under the captaincy of Thelma Johnson, will be at tables in the various halls, and on the hill, canvassing. Blanks and literature will be distributed at the meetings and at these tables.

The campaign among the alumni is going strong. The alumni in every city so far canvassed have over-subscribed their quotas, and have responded generously to the Union board members who are doing canvassing during the summer.

Need Meeting Place

"There is not a place on the campus today where men can meet on a common ground for either a social hour or for discussions," says Lawrence Hall, former president of the Union board. "Is it any wonder that we feel there is not the united sentiment of old, when men living in various parts of the city are limited to the place in which they live for companionship?"

It is pointed out that the use of the Memorial building will be of great help to the women as well as the men. It will fill the need for headquarters for publications and societies, offering a theater for student dramatics, and a dance floor for social functions.

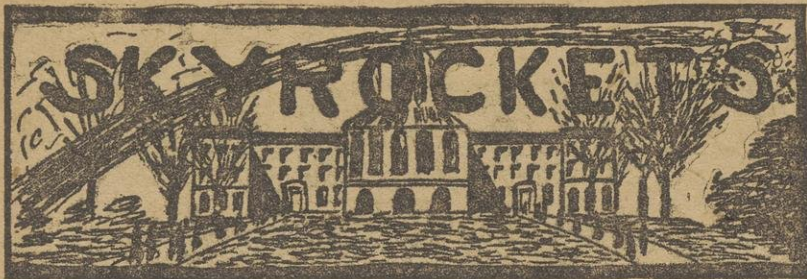

The need for a Union building has never been so imperative as now, when there are during the regular school year approximately 5,000 men in residence, yet the chance for obtaining legislative appropriations for buildings were never more discouraging," said Ronald Ramsey, who is directing the campaign. "The enormous increase in taxation necessary to meet the soldier bonus bills, the road bills, and the greatly increased cost of maintaining instructional work of the university make the prospect of obtaining new buildings for this purpose remote. Hence the project of a Memorial Union building at Wisconsin, to be erected on university property by subscription of alumni, students and friends of the university."

Of the $1,000,000 to be raised in the campaign, the alumni and friends of the university are expected to contribute $900,000.

TRYOUTS FOR 1922 BADGEE

Students who will be in school next fall and would like to work on the business staff of the 1922 Badger, and summer school students who would like to get some valuable experience on the staff, should report tomorrow, Tuesday, at 1 o'clock, at the office of the 1922 Badger on the second floor of the Union building. There are many good openings especially for advertising assistants and stenographers.

NOMINATIONS CONTINUE

Slight Gains Shown as Field Narrows Down

AUDITORIUM, MONONA PARK—An eleventh hour investigation of the candidates showed little variation in the nominations. The Canal Zone was still voting solidly for Rosenberg, Kathrine, Madison, L S 2 B-1311, while the conclave from the D. G. Delegates continued Fair and Warner with slightly variable S W winds throughout.

On the 39th round there was a split in the Ohio forces and Jack Dempsey, credited with piracy to evade sunburn received the solid Pi Phi count—both delegates voting under the unit rule.

Time was called in the eighth while Chairman Haley quieted the delegates from the Real Estate Offices who seemed to have lots to talk about. This unprecedented action started anew the lady from Music Hall whose shrill and emanating tones caused the hysterical galleries from the Law School to show signs of frayed nerves.

(Third Party?)

Gladys Wang demanded a re-deal and as she seems to suspect foul play, it is rumored that she may combine with a third party, if 5 straight turn up.

Anda of the Quakers closed the days meeting with a speech on "What is womans long suit?" It was short.

12 Cutters Keep Busy Trimming Campus Whiskers

That it required the services of 12 men constantly to keep the 500 acre lawn of the University of Wisconsin mown, was the statement given out today by A. F. Gallistel, superintendent of the buildings and grounds.

Even the casual observer has noticed these men pushing the old fashioned lawn mowers at some time or other over the many open spots on the campus. They are responsible for the personal appearance of the grounds and they have a fairly comprehensive job even even if more than half of the acreage is covered with trees and shrubbery.

"Old fashioned lawn mowers? Well yes, but you see that is the only kind we can use on the hill sides and among the shrubbery," explained Mr. Gallistel. "We have four large machines, two horses and two motor drawn but the boys couldn't use them except on the big open places, and they are just as particular about getting it done right as I am."

The lawn, spreading over different parts of the campus, is subjected to much the same treatment that might be given a customer in a barber's chair. The artists attending the grass are not so suave as the barber since the subject is compelled to submit to a short cut. He gets it down the side and around and instead of polite, white coated attendants, twelve sturdy out door men tackle the job with a vim and vigor that assures a lawn of perfect condition.

ENGLISH RULES FACE WRITERS IN C. J. COURSE

Standards of Journalism School Raised by New Requirement

Students, careless or deficient in English, will not be given a passing mark in newspaper reporting nor will they be admitted to the more advanced classes in journalism, beginning with September 1920. This announcement has been issued by the faculty of the College of Journalism.

A test of the student's ability to write easily and correctly will be made during the first week of the semester in the advanced courses which include Editing, Editorial Writing, and the writing of Special Feature Articles. Those not able to meet the requirements must complete successfully a course in English composition before they will be allowed to elect journalism courses in advance reporting.

The faculty urges all students who are deficient in English or in writing to make up the work by study and practice this summer so that they need not be barred from the advanced courses in journalism next fall.

TRYOUTS SLATED FOR FRENCH PLAY

Miss I. S. Bradley, chairman of the French club committee, announces the beginning of the tryouts for the French play this afternoon. They will continue until the cast has been chosen. The play, Moidan's "Les Deux Sours," will be given at the close of the summer session.

Thomas Furlong Injured, Sister Killed, in Accident

MILWAUKEE — Jane Furlong of this city, 19-year-old graduate of Milwaukee-Downer, was crushed to death under an overturned auto Sunday afternoon near Hartland. Her twin brother, Thomas Furlong, University of Wisconsin student, and three others were injured.

Edward Williams, driver of the automobile escaped. Skidding on loose gravel, the machine crashed into a stone, he said, rolled completely over and brought up against a fence standing on all four wheels.

All the occupants but Miss Kern were thrown from the machine. She was found sitting upright in the back seat unconscious. Her collarbone had been broken.

Miss Furlong had been caught under the machine, and was crushed under its weight as it rolled over.

Passing motorists carried the victims to a farmhouse, where Miss Furlong died.

FOREST LAB CELEBRATES DECENNIAL

Plans Being Drawn for Program Here
July 22-23

STRESS FOREST POLICY

Lumbermen, Paper Makers,
Scholars to Address
Meetings

Arrangements for the decennial of the Forest Products laboratory, which is to be held here July 22-23, are now being made by special committee of 45 men representing many branches of commerce and industry served by the laboratory. At the head of this committee is Howard F. Weis, consulting engineer of the C. F. Burgess laboratory and former director of the Forest Products laboratory.

The decennial is held to bring to public attention the practical work which is being done at the laboratory for the benefit of wood industries of the country. The Forest Products laboratory decennial will furnish occasion for the following meetings:

Committee to Meet.

Executive committee of the American Preservers' association; the Inter-Regional Technical Committee of the National Lumber Manufacturers' association; and a conference of deans of scientific schools interested in training men for industrial work in forest products.

A wood-using industry forestry conference will also be held to discuss a national plan for the better use and protection of forests and forest lands. This conference is called as a result of the nation-wide interest in this subject on the part of industries dependent upon wood. The importance of a national forest policy to provide for the most economic and profitable use of our forests is daily becoming more apparent. Some immediate action is necessary and concerted action on the part of the many diversified industries interested in obtaining an adequate supply of raw material for use in their plants is imperative.

Prominent Speakers.

The program for the celebration includes addresses by men prominent in science, industry, and commerce; and inspection of the laboratory; and a banquet on July 22 and conferences and committee meetings on July 23, the last day.

Short addresses will be made by H. H. Morrill, president of the Great Lakes Trust Co., and also of the Mississippi Valley association; Dr. H. E. Howe, chairman of the Research Extension division of the National Research council; Gov. Philipp; Pres. Birge of the University of Wisconsin, and Director Winslow of the Forest Products laboratory.

Talks will also be made by M. J. Scanlon, member of the Forest committee of the National Lumber Manufacturers' association; C. F. Kettering, general manager, Dayton Wright branch of General Motors; D. C. Everest, secretary-general manager, Marathon Paper Mills company, and a representative of the war department. The banquet will be held in the evening on the shore of Lake Mendota.

The general committee in charge of the celebration follows: Honorary chairman, Gov. E. L. Philipp; chairman, Howard F. Weiss, C. F. Burgess Laboratories, Madison, Wis., ex-director, Forest Products Laboratory; first vice chairman, Carlisle P. Winslow, director, Forest Products Laboratory; second vice chairman, H. J. MAIL CLERK IS HELD FOR THEFT

Oscar Omsted, railway mail clerk Superior, was arrested by Deputy United States Marshal W. T. Pugh, Superior, on a charge of stealing from the United States mails on the Soo line between Superior, Storm Lake and branch line points. Omsted was today arraigned before United States Commissioner H. E. Tichnor, Superior, and furnished bond awaiting the action of the federal grand jury, United States Marshal Frank O'Connor, Madison, said today.

Complaint was made by Postoffice Inspector A. A. Wicht, Superior who alleged that Omsted took numerous letters addressed to men at Storm Lake and other points. The extent of the thefts, which Inspector Wicht believes have been perpetrated during a period of several months, has not been determined. Penalties for robbing mails are extremely heavy, usually a prison sentence at Fort Leavenworth, Marshal O'Connor said. In exceptional cases violators are let off with fines.

DAIRY LEASE BEST IN STATE

Best Fits Wisconsin Conditions, Says Prof. Hibbard

Wisconsin tenants find that the so-called dairy lease best fits Wisconsin conditions, says B. H. Hibbard, agricultural economists at the Wisconsin College of Agriculture, in speaking of present tendencies in the relation of landlord and tenant. While there are seven or eight kinds of share leases in use in Wisconsin at present the half and half dairy lease is the dominant one in use at present.

"Tenant and landlord each have a half share in the ownership of productive livestock in this form of lease," said Mr. Hibbard. "Each bears one-half the burden of important costs, such as grain, threshing, silo-filling, veterinary bills and various minor costs. Arrangements as to gardens, chickens and so on may vary somewhat. The tenant furnishes the horses, the labor, and the machinery. If any losses occur in livestock, for instance, they are shared equally between tenant and farm owner.

"In those cases where the lease is based on the one-third arrangement, the procedure is usually the same except in the difference in proportion.

"Nearly one-half of the farms that are rented in Wisconsin are rented for cash. This requires only a single lease. It is difficult to say what a good cash rent would be, because this depends much upon the circumstances in the case, and since a large number of the cases of tenancy in the state are based on family arrangements, the details of many of the plans are not very distinct and typical. Some farms near Madison are renting for $12 to $15 an acre, for example, but a farm would have to be very productive to enable a tenant to pay such a rent."

10,000 CHILDREN GET PERMITS TO WORK IN STATE

Figures Do Not Include Milwaukee; Less Than in 1917

Over 10,000 child labor permits were issued outside of Milwaukee in the fiscal year 1918-19, according to statistics published today by the industrial commission. Of this number 5,445 were regular permits, 4,368 vacation permits, and 605 after school permits. Similar statistics have not yet been compiled for Milwaukee, but the Milwaukee figures are increased by at least 50 per cent.

There were 5,600 permits less in 1918-19, outside of Milwaukee, than there were during the previous year. This was due mainly to the fact that the child labor permits age was raised to 17 in 1917, and that there was an unusual rush for permits at that time. Many more child labor permits are being issued this summer in Wisconsin than ever before.

For 85 per cent of the permits issued in the state, birth or baptismal certificates were presented to prove the age of the child.

The statistics also shows that not less than 95 per cent of all children to whom permits were issued in Wisconsin were born in the United States. Only 5 per cent of the child laborers of the state were foreign born.

The largest number of children working on permits are employed in mercantile establishments. Next in order as employers of child labor come wood-working factories, machine shops, canneries, knitting factories, shoe factories, paper factories, messenger service, and candy factories.

YOUNGSTERS KEEP THEIR GARDEN IN FINE SHAPE, INSPECTOR REPORTS

Madison Kiddies Are Drawing Up Careful Accounts to Win Prize in City Gardening Contest

According to M. H. Albertz, garden supervisor, the inspector of children's home gardens has been at work for about a week. Up to this time very favorable reports have been received from the home gardens. Practically all of them are in a fine condition and free from weeds.

One of the chief essentials of good gardening is making economical use of the land. Gardens cropped intensively are given preference over those in which the land is not fully used. Most of the youngsters have a stake at each corner and know the exact dimensions of their garden.

The home gardens are scored on the following points: character of the crop, kinds of vegetables grown, use of the land, freedom from weeds, tilth, condition of the paths, and size of the garden. A small garden well cared for is more desirable than a large one poorly cared for. But of course a large garden well tilled is even better than a small one well tilled. Although the children's garden is small they have a good chance to receive a high score. The score of the home gardens will be taken into consideration in awarding prizes at the annual fall exhibit which will be held in September.

All the young gardeners are keeping a record of their garden.

The children are keeping a record of the cost of plowing, fertilizing and spraying material, the day they bought seeds, how many they bought, and the cost of the seeds. The children are keeping a record of the vegetables which they take out of their garden. They know what day they took vegetables out of their garden how many they took out, and the market value of the vegetables.

The children are keeping an account of the days they work in the garden and they number of hours they work on that day. On an average the children hoe and weed their garden in about twenty five minutes, and work every other day.

Later in the season the boys and girls will be furnished with small books into which they copy these records before sending them to the garden supervisor. If the present plans work out special prizes will be offered for such records if well kept, and at the end of the garden season the children will receive Achievement emblems.

The group gardeners meet regularly twice a week. Several of these gardeners moved out of the city and some forgot about their garden. These gardens will be reassigned to some other boy or girl during the next few days. Any boy or girl, if old enough, can now get a garden regardless of what school the youngster attends. As soon as the children are present at six successive meetings they receive the gardeners' insignia from the Bureau of Education.

FORD IS STOLEN; BLAME JOYRIDERS

Police today are searching for a five-passenger Ford touring car, license number 95689, owned by C. W.
