In commemoration of the war, the University of Paris has ordered struck a medal representing Learning in the service of Right and recalling the services rendered by its teachers and its students either on the field of battle or in the silence of the study or the laboratory: scientia instrumentum justitiae, libro, ense, such is the inscription on the front of the medal.

The University of Paris has decided to offer a copy of this medal to each of the countries that were allies of France; it experiences peculiar pleasure in thus having an opportunity to thank the University of Wisconsin for the brilliant part played by its professors and students in achieving the common victory; it begs you to see in this medal a testimonial of its fraternal friendship.

Please accept, Mr. President, the assurance of my most respectful and devoted sentiments.

NEWS AND COMMENT

For about twenty years the Regents of the University of California felt that the Alumni Association should be represented by its President upon the Board. Such representation, however, was not possible until certain state legislation had been changed. In 1918, largely through the efforts of the Alumni Association, the amendment was passed which changed the Organic Act by which the university was created, and also granted official alumni representation on the Board of Regents. The California Alumni Headquarters report:

"We find that it has most decidedly stimulated the interest of alumni. Our Regents recognized the fact that none are so interested in the university affairs as the alumni of the institution."

The failure of student government to succeed in entirely abolishing certain rather undesirable, but nevertheless long established college customs, such as hazing and class scraps, brings upon it criticism which is at times, perhaps, unduly severe and unfair. Attempts by faculties in large universities to regulate and control these matters have by no means secured perfect results, and civil authorities have shown much willingness to follow the policy of "Hands Off." Unquestionably, student self-government needs bracing up. More definite public information as to the essential rules and regulations governing men students and improved organization of authority for the enforcement of such rules and regulations would probably add to the efficiency of student self-government.

The big problem of how to make faculty salaries meet to some degree the seventy per cent increase in the cost of living since 1914 is still unsettled at Wisconsin. The distribution of bonuses from the funds not expended last year because of savings possible on salaries of professors who were in government war service proved to some temporary assistance. Despite individual exceptions, the general economic law governing fair compensation and type of labor rendered seems inflexible. It is not possible to deceive ourselves into believing that college professors are more inclined to high thinking and poor living than are members of the ministry. Many denominations are now openly confessing the fallacy of the old idea that no matter what compensation the minister was paid there would always be sufficient able men to fill the pulpits. Somehow, and in some way, more public funds must be secured for professorial salaries if this University is to continue as a leader. This is a public question regarding which the public should be informed, and concerning which the public must decide. May it be possible to present the need so clearly that the citizens of Wisconsin will not only approve but demand that better salaries be paid before many members of the faculty of one of the greatest state universities are lead away by better salaries in other institutions, or are forced, by economic pressure, to leave the teaching profession. President Schurman of Cornell University makes the following clear statements on the question:

"The question of proper professorial salaries is at the bottom and in general terms the question of maintenance of the teaching profession of the United States in a high state of efficiency. Are Americans to be pre-eminent in industry, trade and finance, but without high intelligence, humane learning and scientific discovery? The answer to that question depends upon how the public treat the teachers in their schools and especially the professors in their colleges and universities. What is at stake in this matter is nothing less than the future of American civilization."

Many elements have contributed to make the University of Wisconsin great. The liberal support of the University by all the people of Wisconsin has been one of the most fundamental of these elements. Full publicity of the facts regarding the relatively stationary position of professorial salaries during a period in which the cost of living, according to federal investigation, advance seventy per cent, would give the public a chance to pass intelligently upon this important proposition.

The enrollment statistics show that nearly 7,000 students are at the University this year. There are 4,581 men and 2,368 women registered—a total of 6,949. There are 420 graduates, 95 seniors, 1,382 juniors, 1580

Enrollment sophomores, 2,408 freshmen, 151 adult specials, and 13 unclassified. The College of Letters and Science has an enrollment of 4,579. Of this number, 1,319 are in the course in commerce, and 83 in pharmacy. The College of Engineering has an enrollment of 1,107. The College of Agriculture has an enrollment of 877 which includes 259 women in the Department of Home Economics. The College of Law has an enrollment of 150. The College of Medicine has 131, and the School of Music has 105.

1919 HOMECOMING 1919

BY CLARENCE V. JOERNDT, '20, General Chairman

THE purpose of this short article is to bring the message of the 1919 Homecoming to the alumni of Wisconsin. Today the University has but one thought in mind—to defeat Minnesota and to welcome her alumni during the Homecoming week-end. Every student is confidently looking forward to a group of home-comers which will number at least five thousand. Are you going to be one of that group?

Perhaps if you were to know the plans of the committee and the program for the week-end you would at once decide to come to Madison. With that end in mind we are publishing our plans now.

Homecoming this fall will undoubtedly mean more than any previous Homecoming in the experience of Wisconsin. The relaxation after the last two years of war, the desire to return to the Alma Mater, the wish to renew old friendships are all reasons compelling men to the thought of Homecoming. With five thousand returning grads you will be one of the fortunate Wisconsinites who will have the privilege of being entertained during Wisconsin's greatest Homecoming.

At 7:30 on Friday, October 31, the great week-end will be officially opened at the mass-meeting to be held in the gymnasium. You will recall former mass-meetings. This meeting of Friday will generate the spirit which will prevail during the big game. Then after the mass-meeting a parade will be formed at the foot of the hill, and this parade—one of thousands of students and torches—will move up and around the square with an old-time University band in the lead. Returning to the lower campus, the thousands will gather around an enormous bonfire, and there crystallize the spirit of Wisconsin and its 1919 Homecoming. Can any grad afford to miss such a stirring picture and scene? You can't! You know that you can't! Make it a point to get here!

Then on Saturday morning you will renew old friendships, hear all that is new about Wisconsin, and become imbibed with the spirit that will break Minnesota in the afternoon. At 2:00 P. M. the big game will be on—you can almost hear the thud of the kick-off now! At the end of the first half Wisconsin will be leading by a narrow margin—a lead at any rate. Then we shall all wait for ten minutes, but those ten minutes will be the liveliest we have ever experienced, for the Special Stunts Committee will then present a "Ten Minute Ten Ring Circus." You can't possibly miss these ten minutes! The teams will once more come upon the field, they will battle every minute for the control of the pigskin, but Wisconsin will be victor—of that we are sure! Make it more certain by being there!

After the game a reception will be held in Lathrop Parlors. Here old friends and old classmates can once more meet and renew the experiences of past Wisconsin years. Prexy will undoubtedly be there to greet you personally!

Then in the evening the Homecoming Ball will call your time and your attendance. Sharply at 9:00 P. M. sixteen of "Al" Thompson's best music will "sound off," and the greatest informal party of the year will begin. You can't miss this party! Get here by any means!

On Sunday afternoon the round of entertainment and activities will be closed by a series of sorority open houses.

In brief the above outlines the plans for your 1919 Homecoming. In closing the article may we be allowed to express this thought: Wisconsin expects you here to help in the defeat of the Gophers!

PROF. ALEXANDER KERR, the oldest teacher on the staff of the University, died in Madison on Sept. 26 at the age of 91. He had served as professor of Greek language and literature from 1871 to 1907 and had been professor emeritus since 1907.

Born in Scotland in 1828, Professor Kerr moved to Canada in 1835 and then to Joliet, Ill., in 1838. He was graduated from Beloit College in 1855. After serving as professor in Brownwood Institute, Georgia, he came north during the Civil War and served in various educational work in Illinois and Wisconsin, heading the Wisconsin Teachers' Association in 1868.

After his retirement in 1907, he devoted his time to the completion of his translation of Plato's "Republic," which he had begun in 1901. The last two chapters were completed last summer after he had lost his eyesight. He was well known for other translations including Euripides' "Bacchae," published in 1899.

This Year

By President E. A. Birge

YOU ask me to comment this fall on the predictions which I made in the Badger last spring regarding Wisconsin after the war. I hardly think that the request is altogether fair. A prophet should never be asked to comment on his own prophecies. This function is properly reserved for those who either believe in him or who belong to the scoffers.

But if you wish me to write on the subject I will say that there is at least one matter in which I am willing to stand by my record. I said that the University "after the war will have more students than ever." This prediction has certainly been fulfilled. The only possible adverse criticism is that which was made of the weather bureau man of Noah's town who predicted "local showers" for the day of the Flood. His prediction was all right so far as it went, but it was hardly adequate to the event.

This is the only prediction of mine that can now be tested by fact. I am ready to stand by the others as well made when they were printed. They relate to the spirit and method of study, and time must pass before their corrections can be judged. I hope and believe that they will come true, for they embody my confidence in the University and its students.

I need not point out to you, however, that I have the prophet's usual way of escape if the future should disappoint him. The overwhelming flood of students creates for us, as for all the other universities, new difficulties and new problems, whose solution will lead, we believe, to new success. Today we can know little of these things, but we should be foolish to predict regarding them. We can see that the universities, like society at large, are entering on a new era with the close of the war—an era not without dangers and troubles, but also not without much confident hope of great reward.

MEMORIAL UNION BUILDING PLANNED

Begin Active Campaign to Raise Needed Funds

PLANS for the proposed Memorial Union Building, to be erected at the University of Wisconsin as a tribute to its men and women who served in the world war, are now well under way under the direction of a special committee appointed with the approval of the University Board of Regents.

To carry on the campaign for raising $750,000 through subscriptions by alumni, former students, and friends, headquarters have been opened in 600 University Building, Milwaukee, and A. L. Sommers, Sheboygan, '07, has been appointed manager of the campaign.

The executive committee consists of F. H. Clausen, Horicon, president; W. J. Kohler, Kohler, vice-president; H. L. Ashworth, Milwaukee, secretary; H. O. Seymour, Milwaukee, treasurer; Irving Seaman, Robert McMynn, and J. W. Mapel, Milwaukee; C. A. Johnson, Dean S. H. Goodnight, and Prof. S. W. Gilman, Madison; J. S. Lord, Chicago; and L. S. Baker, Evansville.

The building, to be known as the University Memorial Union, will contain a theatre with 1,500 seats, a memorial and trophy room, reading and lounging rooms, common dining halls seating 1,500 to 2,000, private dining-rooms, rooms for student publications and debating societies, rooms for dancing, bowling alleys, billiard rooms, faculty club rooms, and quarters for the Union Board, student senate, student court, and other university organizations.

Funds will be raised through pledges payable over a period of two years. Each Wisconsin county will have a committee and a quota. Special committees will campaign in other states.

The following men and women will serve as Memorial Union Board of Trustees:

By CARL RUSSELL FISH

THE British Branch of the American University Union in Europe has been largely a Wisconsin affair. The first director was John W. Cunliffe, who served for several years as chairman of our Department of English, and I joined him in October, 1918, as associate, and succeeded him in January. My secretary and successor, Dr. George E. MacLean, was formerly president of Nebraska and of Iowa, so that the state university idea has been to the front, and has found ready response among the British. British educators visiting America are always more interested in the West than in the East, because of the more marked differences they find as compared with Great Britain, and are attracted by the hospitality and the spirit of the western institutions. Most educated Britishers consider Harvard, Columbia and Wisconsin, as the leading American universities, and all are particularly eager to visit the last named.

The Union was primarily intended to serve the university men in the Army. It treated private and officer alike, handled mail, made purchases, looked up lost men, and endeavored to make life more tolerable for the university man in the Army, to keep alive his interest in education, and to turn his thoughts toward the completion of his training when the war should be over. In London we had an attractive club room, served tea daily to as many as our means allowed us, and tried to be an avenue of approach to British life. Our public dinners, where the men were seated and cheered and sang by colleges, brought the boys into contact with some of the leading Britishers of the day, and gave the latter quakes of shocked joy, which the press reflected by giving pages of description. At the next to the last dinner, "Cornell, Cornell, we yell, like Hell!" particularly caught their ear, but at the last and greatest, Wisconsin held the floor and our yell was displayed by all the London papers.

We never had as many boys as we should have liked, however, for with the armistice, came orders to clear the Army and Navy out of Great Britain as soon as possible. Truce, however, suggested to us as to others the idea of enabling the men to continue their work in some form, while remaining in Europe, ready for any emergency. We promptly canvassed the British institutions to find out how many American soldier students they could accommodate. The response was hospitable and generous, and when the Army was finally ready to move with the scheme, we were able to attend to the placing of the 2,200 men it sent over, where they would get what they wanted most—or as nearly what they wanted as possible.

What they got depended on the institution to which they went. At Oxford and Cambridge it was the university life, vital product of centuries of development, to which they gave most attention. London rose nobly to the occasion, and as the Army sent us the men in vacation time, put on special courses, and gave real instruction. The legal training produced the greatest enthusiasm, and the opportunities for medical instruction were fully appreciated. Every provincial institution did its share. All the men were impressed by the solidity of British education, and each group became devoted to the institution to which it went. Rival baseball teams played for the honor of Liverpool and Dublin, a newspaper was published, and the American college grouping was emphasized by college dinners which drew men great distances. Wisconsin celebrated by two, and the writer enjoyed pleasant visits to old Wisconsin friends at Cambridge and Oxford, and met them daily in London.

This pleasant episode foreshadowed the permanent work of the Union, the preparation for which occupied the greater part of our time. The sympathetic understanding of different cultures must be the basis, if peace and human brotherhood are to be effected. The key must be education. The appreciation of this fact was and is very keen in Great Britain, and the Union became the center of a dozen schemes for international educational effort. The misuse of educational exchanges by Germany and the debasing of them to purposes of propaganda, before the war, however, rendered caution necessary, but also illustrated some of the things to be avoided.

Very early the Union laid down the principles that any arrangement made must be generally international, not bi-national, that it must be a movement of the universities themselves, not of governments or of millionaires in behalf of the universities. The British educators responded, revived and strengthened the Universities Bureau of the British Empire. This organization has taken a house in Russell Square in London, the scholastic center of Great Britain, and has offered accommodations to the American University Union, a similar organization of French universities, and one of those of Greece, while other countries are organizing to unite with them. All quite independent, and with very modest budgets, they will be brought into cooperation by propinquity, and will all be strengthened by the resources of the others.

Here at 50 Russell Square, there already exists an international clearing house for education. Soon all the latest university literature of the world will be available. Alliances exist with helpful institutions in all the great capitals. Already students from all Britain and foreign countries are consulting it about the opportunities for education in America, and Americans concerning the opportunities in Great Britain. Few British scholars of distinction now cross the Atlantic without consulting it and receiving advice as to how most profitably to employ their time. Already American scholars, and in fact persons interested in anything remotely related to education, find that through the Union they can discover who are the vital men in their fields, what are their sympathies and connections, and can be introduced to those who may help them. A typical case just before my departure was that of a representative of a great national American organization who had spent two months without accomplishing anything whatever, and who as a result of two introductions, finished up her work in ten days.

The Union does not itself manage exchanges, but correlates the many organs now existing and being planned for that purpose. Exchange itself is no solvent of international misunderstandings. It must be wise. Plans of all kinds are in contemplation and many are being carried out. That most favored by the Union is the exchange of young instructors, who shall be joined for a year or two in the work of some foreign institution, and shall bring back to his native land an intimate knowledge of foreign methods and results with ideas as to which are adoptable and which are too racy of the soil for transplantation.

The Union is now governed by representatives of the subscribing universities. They will present American educational life to foreign countries, and their institutions will reap the advantages which foreign knowledge of America and foreign educational resources offer. The subscription fee for a first class institution is $500 a year. It is to be hoped that the legislature or the alumni will see to it that Wisconsin is not left out.

This Year

By Dean H. L. Russell

THIS fall witnesses a large increase in the enrollment of the College of Agriculture. Last year conditions were rendered abnormal by the organization of the S. A. T. C., and the work of the College, like that of the entire University, was more or less molded to meet the requirements of military service. Conditions this fall, however, are more comparable to the work of 1917, and if comparison is made of attendance of 1917 with that of this year, the growth in attendance has been most satisfactory. The long and middle (2-year) courses in agriculture have a preliminary enrollment (October 1) of 503 compared with 237 two years ago, and 272 for last year. The home economics course also shows a healthy growth, increasing from 247 two years ago to 271 this fall.

The passage of the educational bonus law has naturally increased the attendance of men in the University, but in the agricultural college the percentage of "bonus" students is only 19 per cent of the existing enrollment, showing that the increase has not been due primarily to the addition of the ex-soldier class.

During the war the agricultural extension work was greatly expanded on account of the food production drive. Emergency food agents were appointed by the College, who assisted greatly in carrying on the several campaigns for increased food supplies. With the close of the war, this emergency food work was naturally stopped, but the stimulus imparted in this campaign has left its imprint in a marked expansion in the field of agricultural extension. In 45 counties of the State authority now exists for the organization of the work of the county agricultural agents, who are resident representatives of the Agricultural College permanently located in the respective counties.

A very considerable number of changes have occurred in the staff of the College. In common with all educational institutions a considerable number of the men have left educational work to enter the more lucrative commercial fields. Changes in staff, however, have not seriously impaired departmental solidarity except in agricultural economics, where three professors have resigned. Prof. B. H. Hibbard, '02, has been made chairman of this Department, and Prof. Theo. Macklin of the Kansas Agricultural College has been added to our staff.

With the increased attention which agriculture is now receiving since its fundamental relation to living conditions has come to be more generally appreciated, it is highly probable that a future expansion in this field of University activity will be likely to continue.

WISCONSIN ALUMNI CLUBS

"Sit together, listen together, sing together, eat together, and talk together, and you'll work together"

CHICAGO

By W. H. HAIGHT, '03

OUR club continues to hold its regular Friday noon luncheons at the Intercollegiate Club, 16 West Jackson Boulevard. During the summer there have been no speakers provided for the luncheons.

On September 26 the club returned to its usual practice of having an occasional speaker. On that date we were addressed by W. F. Dodd, formerly Secretary of the Illinois Legislative Reference Bureau and now engaged in preparing data for the Illinois Constitutional Convention to be held in January, 1920.

On October 10 we were addressed to one of our own members, Dr. A. J. McCartney, '00, Pastor of the Kenwood Presbyterian Church of Chicago.

Our club's Song Book Committee is at work on a new edition of the Wisconsin Song Book. Suggestions and criticisms are requested.

U. W. SONG BOOK

The U. W. Club of Chicago respectfully requests us to give publicity to the following announcement in reference to the forthcoming edition of the U. W. Song Book:

The U. W. Club of Chicago announces that in order to encourage the production of songs suitable for editions of the song book entitled "U. W. Songs," two prizes are offered for new songs, the first being $50 and the second $25. The conditions under which these prizes will be awarded are the following:

(1) Any present or former student of the University of Wisconsin may compete.

(2) While preference in the award of prizes will be given to songs in which both the music and the words are original, songs in which the words only are new may be entered and will receive due consideration.

(3) The publishers reserve the right to publish any or all songs, either music or words, submitted in any and all editions of the song book without compensation to those who are not awarded prizes.

(4) This contest has been open since the last edition of the song book in 1916, and the present contest will close on Saturday, November 15, 1919.

(5) All songs should be sent to Fred D. Silber, 614 Home Insurance Building, Chicago, Chairman of the Song Book Committee of the U. W. Club. The manuscript should not be marked in any way to indicate the identity of the author but this information should be sent by separate letter accompanying the manuscript.

PHILADELPHIA

BY ERNEST F. RICE, '08
600 Otis Bldg.

Wisconsin Alumni in Philadelphia and vicinity officially opened the season of 1919-20 with a dinner at Kugler's Restaurant on Tuesday evening, Sept. 23.

The guest of honor and principal speaker of the evening was Regent Theo. M. Hammond, of whose reputation and prowess as an after dinner speaker we had heard a great deal of when he made his famous trip to the Pacific Coast last year, and I want to say right here that any alumni club that does not avail itself of his services will never know what it misses. It is no exaggeration to say that we learned more about our beloved Prexy Van Hise and our Alma Mater in an hour than we could otherwise gather in years. Our hats off to Regent Hammond, and may he soon come this way again.

The U. W. Club of Philadelphia is getting bigger and better every year, and we have a number of very interesting meetings planned for this season. If you know of any new-comers, send me their names, or ask them to get in touch with me at once, so that I can put them on my mailing list.

UNIVERSITY CLUB REOPENED

AFTER a year without a home, the University Club, composed of faculty members and graduate students at the University who leased their clubhouse to the University and the War Department for emergency use during the period of soldier-training, resumed possession and reopened the clubhouse late in September.

The clubhouse, which is a fire-proof structure containing nearly 60 dormitory rooms for members, a restaurant, club and committee rooms, was turned over to the University in September, 1918, when barrack room was needed for the several thousand S. A. T. C. soldiers at the University. After a few days' use as barracks, it was converted into a military hospital to handle influenza patients. Since the disbanding of the S. A. T. C., it has been used as University Infirmary.

After extensive redecorating, refitting, and renovating, the building was reopened on Sept. 29, and now all of its dormitory rooms are occupied and its restaurant is serving regular meals. Although deprived of their clubhouse for a year, almost 300 members of the faculty continued their membership and many more have been voted in since the reopening. To open further the club's facilities to graduate students and younger members of the teaching staff, two new grades of junior memberships were established this fall. Although all dormitory rooms are occupied, the club is maintaining, as before, a number of transient rooms for non-resident members who visit Madison.

A new departure this year is the placing of the management in the hands of a woman experienced in cafeteria and boarding-house enterprises. She has charge of the restaurant, dormitory, and all matters of housekeeping.

The present officers of the club are: Prof. C. E. Allen, '99, president; Prof. C. H. Mills, vice-president; Prof. George E. Wagner, '07, secretary; Prof. W. M. Smith, '90, treasurer. The clubhouse is in charge of a house committee consisting of Prof. G. M. Hyde, '12, chairman, Prof. C. I. Corp, '11, and Dr. L. F. Hawley. A membership campaign is being conducted by a committee on membership consisting of Prof. Karl Young, chairman, Professors L. J. Cole, M. E. Dunlap, W. H. Kiekhofler, L. F. Van Hagan, '04, and Judge J. B. Sanborn, '96.

FOOTBALL SCHEDULE

Oct. 4	Ripon at Madison.
Oct. 11	Marquette at Madison.
Oct. 18	Northwestern at Evanston
Oct. 25	Illinois at Urbana
Nov. 1	Minnesota at Madison (Homecoming)
Nov. 15	Ohio University at Madison
Nov. 22	Chicago at Chicago

The season opened auspiciously with a 37 to 0 win over Ripon, followed the next week with a 13 to 0 victory over Marquette. The Marquette game proved to be a very good one for a curtain raiser to the conference schedule since it was disposed of with straight football and gave Coach Richards an excellent opportunity to get a line on his material without using any of the offense prepared for conference games. The Marquette team was made up of experienced players, well coached, who had been pointed for the Wisconsin game early in September, and they offered the best opposition seen in a preliminary game in Madison for many years. Several times the ball was worked down almost to the goal but Wisconsin's 10-yard defense stiffened in every case to save the day.

With every school in the conference claiming championship teams, the schedule is most formidable and the October program alone, a severe test.

Coach John Richards is back on the job. Richards is an old Wisconsin man—has played on Wisconsin teams and coached them—and while he isn't painting bright pictures nor making big promises, he is using his time to better advantage, and Wisconsin supporters can be assured of a well-trained eleven—a team that will go all the way in every game. Some of that old Wisconsin spirit will do much toward giving an impetus to the football machine. Get behind them!

Wisconsin followers will find some familiar names in the line-up, Captain Carpenter of the '16 and '17 teams, Meyers, captain of the '16 team, Davey, Jacobi, Scott, Weston and Gould of the '17 aggregation. From last year's S. A. T. C. team, are Sundt, Smith, Brader, Barr, Collins and Margoles. Some new men who are showing up well are Rankin, Elliott, Perrin, Mungavin, McMurray and Sponholz. The two last named men were members of the '16 squad.

The Homecoming game will be played with Minnesota on November 1 and preparations are going forward to make this the greatest day in the history of the school. Orders for seats are coming in by the hundreds every day and the alumni who want a good location should not delay in sending in their order. Homecoming this year should mean more than it ever has before and you can't afford to miss it. It will mean meeting the friends that you haven't seen in years.

CROSS COUNTRY

The return to college of former cross country candidates will insure twenty-five karat competition between at least six middle western universities, and Wisconsin has been fortunate in having Crump, Dennis, Dayton, Nash and Gombar out for the 1919 team after service in the Army.

If these men are able to round into the same physical condition they displayed prior to the war, Wisconsin will be assured of a first class team. They have passed through the sore muscle period in the preliminary steps of conditioning and are fast swinging into stride for the hardest conference schedule in the history of the sport at Wisconsin.

Dennis and Crump finished second and third respectively in the 1918 Indoor Conference two-mile. Dayton was captain elect of the 1918 cross country team. Nash won his track "W" in the half-mile, while Gombar had previously showed signs of promise as a distance man.

Among the remainder of the 1919 squad are Captain Burr, Wayne Ramsey and W. Brothers of the 1918 team which defeated Ames, Chicago, and Minnesota; Homstad and Hunziker of the engineering team of 1918, Bernie Meyers and Gordon Taylor, who ran the two mile for the Varsity last spring; Powell, Brann, Forsbeck, Wade and Emmons of last year's freshman team.

The schedule for the season is as follows:

Nov. 1 Minnesota at Madison (Homecoming)

Nov. 8 Iowa State College at Ames

Nov. 22 Conference Race (place not decided.)

The race on November 1 will be run at eleven o'clock and the start and finish will be in front of the Men's Gymnasium. The dual meet with Minnesota is an annual event with us and they are always represented by formidable teams. Ames has their complete 1918 team, augmented by returned-from-service stars.

- 1913 Jeanne de La Barthe to J. J. Fleming, April 21. They are at home at Biltmore

His father was for some years County Treasurer of Dane County, and for many years lived in Madison after retiring from the farm.

Charles graduated from the University in 1868 in a class of nine, when there were only three University buildings, when the faculty consisted of five or six persons, when there were probably not more than three hundred students, and it is safe to say that he personally knew every one of them. He graduated from the Albany Law School in 1869.

In 1871 he married Emma P. Phillips, '67, whom he had known while they were students at the University, and who had graduated in the class of 1867.

The year before his marriage Mr. Vroman had established himself in the practice of his profession at Green Bay, and there he remained for about thirty years during which time he and Mrs. Vroman were active in the social life and the civic duties of their chosen home. For several years he was City Attorney of Green Bay, and he was also for several years District Attorney of Brown County.

Although he went to Green Bay as a stranger, he was soon recognized as one of the energetic public spirited young men of the community, and before many years was known as one of the ablest and most successful trial lawyers of his State. Green Bay was then, as it is now, a center for the legal business of a wide region in Northeastern Wisconsin.

He was successful as a trial lawyer partly because with superior ability and great energy he mastered and presented the law and the facts involved, and largely because he won the unbounded confidence of courts and juries. They soon came to know that trickery and guile were utterly foreign to his nature and that he would scorn to mislead them.

For some years he was associated as a senior partner with a former schoolmate at the University, L. B. Sale, '70, who died Aug. 10, 1892. Afterward he was a member of the firms of Greene & Vroman, Greene, Vroman & Fairchild, and Greene, Vroman, Fairchild, North & Parker. During all that time he was a busy trial lawyer ably trying important cases in many counties.

In 1900 he removed to Chicago and joined a firm which had been organized by James M. Flower, '56, a kinsman of Mrs. Vroman.

During the later years of his practice as his reputation had widened, he was naturally often retained by railroad companies and other corporations, and in 1906 he became Assistant General Solicitor of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad Co. He resigned this position in 1910 and organized the firm of Vroman, Munro & Vroman, hoping that his son William, '01, might succeed him in the business and profession he loved. William's early death prevented the realization of this hope, and from that time he never had quite his former zeal for his work.

LOREN EDWARDS, '69, died Feb. 13, at Oconomowoc.

GEORGE DU MARS CLINE, '72, editor of the Hudson True Republic, died at his home in Hudson, April 21.

HONORABLE JAMES QUIRK, '73, who died Sept. 12 at his home in San Diego, Calif., was born in Laxey, Isle of Man, July 18, 1849. With his family he came to America in a sailing vessel and settled at Jamestown. Though orphaned at seven, Mr. Quirk educated himself through his own efforts and perseverance and graduated from the University of Wisconsin in 1873 with the degrees of B. S. and C. E. In 1876 Mr. Quirk took the degree of LL. B. from the same university and went to Woseca, Minn., where he practiced law for ten years. He then began to manufacture flour, having mills and a chain of grain elevators in Minnesota and Dakota, and having a large foreign trade he maintained offices in Boston as well as Minneapolis, where he and his family were then living. Mr. Quirk was interested in the Minneapolis Electric Steel Elevator Company, and at one time in the Mesaba Mines of Minnesota, the oil fields of Beaumont, Texas, the Orange Rice

Mill and the Orange Canal in Texas, the Nile River Canal and the Sabine Canal of Louisiana, the last mentioned being the largest irrigation canal in the United States.

Mr. Quirk was much given to philanthropy and through his efforts several nephews and nieces obtained college educations. Mr. Quirk, though born in the Episcopal church, joined the M. E. church when fourteen and remained a consistent member throughout life. Taking a prominent part in politics, he cast the 9th electoral vote in Minnesota for McKinley. His friends wished him to run for Congress, but he refused because of his business interests. For many years Mr. Quirk was a director of the Security National Bank of Minneapolis and a regent of Hamline University in St. Paul.

Mr. Quirk is survived by his wife, Mrs. Lillian Park Quirk, a daughter, Nelle Faragher Quirk, San Diego, and three sons, James Park Quirk and Arthur Gilbert Quirk of Los Angeles, and Earl William Quirk, '10, of Watertown, all of whom were present when he died. He is also survived by three grandchildren, Akeley Park Quirk, Catherine Jean Quirk, and Lillian Brandt Quirk.

In respect to Mr. Quirk's memory, the offices of Quirk Bros. bond-dealers, were closed for two days and the Brandt Manufacturing Co. of Watertown, of which Earl Quirk is an officer, were closed for an interval on Sept. 15.

Funeral services were held at the Quirk home on Alameda Drive, San Diego, Calif., with interment in Pasadena, Calif.

MARY BUNN, '79, died at her home in Madison, Oct. 2.

The Reverend C. F. Spray, D. D.
Eva Andersen Director A. R. C. N. Div.

"TO MY FRIEND"

*"As in the depths of some cathedral dim
A radiant window glorifies the air
By sending thru the isles and arches grim
Its rich sweet light, replete with colors rare;
So, in the sacred places of my heart
Your friendship stands and sheds its radiant glow
Enriching, beautifying, in such part
As you and I shall ever know."*

To Selina Elizabeth Anderson, friends and co-workers pay this tribute. Ever was there something wonderful about her—ever a quiet poise sheltering a spiritual nature tender—. A radiant personality that now stands out in memory glorified!

It was the inevitable result of this richness that she interpreted life in terms of love and service. And inasmuch as it was a high service that she wished to offer, both intellectual and spiritual, she heeded the exhortation of the apostle that greater knowledge inspires to nobler virtues: that greater knowledge results in greater service. Unremittingly then—ever joyously—she pursued the study not only of the wonders and the secrets of Creation under the direction of our exalted, but departed president, but also of the purposes and progressive development of mankind. And through this she learned to discern the "beauty and richness of humanity, that it is very near the Infinite, very near to God."

SELINA ELIZABETH ANDERSON
University of Wisconsin 1903-1907
Cumnock School of Oratory 1915
University of Wisconsin—Fellowship and Post
Graduate Work—1917
Died July 19, 1919

Her eyes had caught a glimpse of the sun-crowned peaks where life's transfigurations occur. She could not be satisfied with life on the level, she must climb for the broad vision, of the highland. And the visions which she saw she sought as a teacher to present to her pupils. Uppermost in her mind was the purpose to give them the big aspects so as to create a force for enlarging their lives and for adjusting them nobly to the thought and the work of the world. Often she made the step from the intellectual to the spiritual.

A glorious vision! But we must remember that she was directly descended from pioneers and that the distinctive characteristic of pioneers is "seeing visions." With their tenacity to she continued work on this "living school" until she reached splendid attainment.

Upon the seriousness of her nature we must not dwell so long that we lose the sunshine of her personality. Her's was a joyous life packed with happiness—and it was this enthusiastic joyousness that drew her families of friends. Indeed in her it was an intellect keen to attain; it was a heart made for friendship. Her friends became her world. With some she wandered afield to enjoy the big out-doors and here she made the freshness of the morning and its majesty "pour joy into their hearts." So also did she refresh their minds with music—or possibly with others, it was a book or a political discussion—or ready sympathy for their sorrows. Always a "song to sing and a crust to share with a friend or two: a smile to give or a grief to bear with a friend or two." It is for this that always in the sacred places of our hearts her friendship will ever shed its tender glow!

We grieve at the cutting off of this noble energy and this quiet understanding. Undoubtedly it was this throbbing desire to give greatly that led to the over-taxation of her physical life. The soul burned out the physical in a supreme effort to attain. Triumphant—she has entered the wonderful kingdom of the Great Beyond. Now among the seers and the prophets, her mind is exhilarated, her vision undimmed, her range bounded by the stars.

*"I go to prove my soul!
I see my way as birds their trackless way;
I shall arrive: what time, what circuit first
I know not. But some time,
In God's good time, I shall arrive,
He guides me and the birds. In His good time!"*

J. B. THOMPSON, '13, 2nd Lieutenant in the Aero Squadron, U. S. A., died at Mincola, L. I., N. Y., of pneumonia, Oct. 13, 1918.

ARTHUR DUGGAN, '14, sergeant with the Chemical Warfare Service, died in France, March 5.

Often some of his friends in the republican party urged him to become a candidate for public office for they knew that his spotless reputation, his charm of manner, his ability and his enthusiasm would be an asset to their party. But for nearly fifty years he gave his work to his profession never yielding to the temptations of politics.

During his long and happy life nothing could exceed his devotion to his family. He loved his University, and as he returned on commencements and other occasions he was eagerly listened to as he told his recollections of John Muir who had been his roommate, and of University life when the University was young. All his life he was an optimist. He loved music, children, the woods, and above all with fond enthusiasm, his friends. In roundabout and unexpected ways they would hear of his devotion to them and how he had extolled their virtues. He had a genius for making friends and holding them fast. This was so true that few men have left our University who had a wider circle of devoted friends. He liked to gather them around him on his loved Island Espanore, Lake Huron, when summer came, and it was there with family and friends around him that on July 29, 1919, the peaceful end came. His widow, his son, John C. Vroman, and his sister, Mrs. E. C. Mason, survive him.—Burr W. Jones, '70.

In honor of REGENT ORLANDO E. CLARK, who died recently at his home in Appleton, the Board of Regents of the University voted the following resolutions:

"Regent Orlando E. Clark, died at his home in Appleton, May 20, 1919. Mr. Clark most ably served as one of the Regents of the University from 1892 to 1901, and again from 1904 to 1907. He was reappointed a regent in 1912 and served continuously, until his death, in all nineteen years, which is the longest period of any appointee.

"Regent Clark was always fine in his appreciation of the educational opportunities of our state, and in his sincere and devoted efforts to aid in promoting them. Wisconsin owes much to his wise, progressive, and able leadership.

"We are grateful to his memory for these distinguished services. We most sincerely mourn his death, and we tender his widow and family our most respectful regard and sympathy.

"We therefore direct that this testimonial be inscribed on the records of our board, and that an engrossed copy thereof executed on our behalf by our president and secretary, be furnished to his widow and family."

The Madison club honors itself in the selection of Charles H. Vilas as its president. Such honors should go to men of large public service. The genial warmth of Dr. Vilas' personality is known only to few, but the diffusive warmth of his generosity and public service is known to the whole community. His retirement from professional practice was merely an opportunity for prolonged and distinguished public service, particularly on the Board of University Regents, and the State Board of Education. Congratulations, Madison Club! Best wishes to you, Dr. Vilas!—State Journal, 10-14-19.

The editor of the Orange Judd Farmer had this to say about the visit to President Wilson of D. O. Thompson:

GENTLEMEN, THE PRESIDENT

"We sat down and crossed our legs and tried to act as if we had been used to it all our lives. After a couple of minutes a man came to the door and announced, 'Gentlemen, the President,'

Dave Thompson was describing to us his recent visit at the White House, in company with four other representatives of farmers' organizations, for a conference with President Wilson.

"Think it over. It means something to have the organized farmers of Illinois and other states send men down to Washington who will go straight to the bottom of things to get necessary action. We are more and more convinced that farmers must have a group of men constantly in Washington to look after their interests, to be able to say the right word at the right time.

"Congressmen, like any other people, are sometimes lacking in judgment, and it would help a good deal if some good man were there to talk it over and explain the real significance of some of the moves proposed. And Presidents, too, might sometimes need advice."

Dear Classmates:

I am in receipt of your letter of May 15, 1919, and gladly enclose draft for $5.00 to cover the fine imposed.

My best wishes for the prosperity of the University, and I hope that one and all had a good time at the reunion and that you did not forget to drink to the health of your absent classmates, and especially of

I. Ambler of the Nuuanu Y. M. C. A., Honolulu, T. H. writes: "Perhaps you will be interested in the work which I have been chosen to assist in working out here in the Hawaiian Islands. I am prompted to relate these incidents because I know that all who come in contact with the University of Wisconsin are glad to know of new plans and developments which its students and alumni are privileged to help carry out in the great world program. As a background of what is being done in Hawaii today in education and christianizing our friends and brothers of Oriental birth allow me to state that many years ago the white missionaries came to the Islands to christianize and educate the Hawaiian people, then the only inhabitants. As time went on, the children and grandchildren of these same missionaries started the development of the present sugar industry, the greatest source of revenue now from the Islands. As the plantations grew, the factor of labor grew more and more a problem. Then the importation of Oriental labor began. Japanese, Chinese, Koreans, Porto Ricans, and some others were brought in in large numbers until the time of restricted immigration. By that time a sufficient number were here to make the majority of the population Oriental. Today the Japanese out-number all other races here, totalling over ten thousand.

The generation now approaching seniority are American born and educated, and therefore, American citizens. So the new problem is how shall we educate these young men and women not only in our schools but also in citizenship and christian ideals. It is this question which the Y. M. C. A., backed by the leaders of affairs of the Islands, are trying to answer in the new undertaking of a common meeting place for all races. The Nuana Y. M. C. A. is an inter-racial association supported by Americans and Orientals alike and operated by secretaries representative of all races served. A fine $50,000 building has been erected and a $60,000 addition is in progress for the working out of the big problem of international brotherhood.

It is my privilege to be associated executive secretary of the work. The importance of the undertaking and the opportunities it offers grow upon me daily. I am coming to see the Oriental in a new light.

As to the climate and attractive beauty of Hawaii I can only say that it is truly the Paradise of the Pacific. During the recent visit of Secretary of the Navy Daniels and the Pacific fleet to the dedication of the wonderful $10,000,000 dry dock, I was increasingly impressed that the Hawaiian Islands are growing of greater and greater importance commercially to the whole world. Some day the average citizen of the United States will know where these Islands are located. Several graduates of Wisconsin are located here in Honolulu. We'll get together sometime and recall the great old days spent back at dear old U. W.

THE PROVERBIAL STITCH

Contributed by MAXON JUDELL

The stitch that saves nine has its parallel in the case of the man who marries one from Wisconsin.

One alumnus from the University of Chicago undertook to take unto himself a wife who came from the glorious University of Wisconsin. Here is reproduced his letter to the University of Chicago Alumni Magazine, appearing in its issue of July, 1919. The head is the U. of C's own.

It is our belief that no such letter has ever at any time been sent to anyone.

HOW ABOUT THIS! ALL MARRIED ALUMNI AND ALUMNAE, TAKE NOTICE!

Dear T. Linn:

This correspondence would be much more in keeping with the times, probably, if it struck some popular keynote such as bad postal service, with its annoying habit of bringing one returned manuscripts and duns from class treasurers. But another subject has been preying on my mind.

Have you ever married anyone from the University of Wisconsin? I have; just once. If you ever have any impulse to follow my lead, consult me. I will introduce you socially to every living graduate of the University of Wisconsin since the class of 1867. . . . It's inevitable. Meet one Wisconsin graduate and you have begun your social acquaintance with that University's alumni body.

I was still combing rice and confetti out of my hair when I began the mysteries of initiation which are open to the Wisconsin Alumnus-by-Marriage. By the time a brief wedding trip had ended, I was calling by their first names everyone on pages 1-54 of the Alumni Directory.

The graduate of Wisconsin is, ipso facto, a member in good standing of an order that makes the ties of Masonry seem about as close as the bonds between fellow Democrats. He is pledged to know every other male and female in whose educational history Madison has figured. By terrible oaths he is bound to recall, perfectly, every incident in the history of the institution, every inch of its environs, every text book, every face, everything everyone ever said. And Article One, Section One imposes on every member of this band the solemn obligation to boost Madison 24 hours to every day. In the final analysis, Madison is found to be the sum total of all the ecstatic adjectives ending in—est.

Imagine the effect on the subject, victim, in this case, me. I had always held a quiet pride in the fact that I had struggled and bluffed through a course at Chicago, and while I never opened a conversation with that fact, I was never ashamed of it nor of the history and reputation of the City Grey. But now . . .

I acknowledge having gone to the public grammar school; I admit having attended high school, but from there on my record is a blank, so far as my mental improvement is shown. I am now obliged to recall Chicago, dimly, as an institution humbled by Wisconsin hosts in football, baseball, tennis, track, craps, stud, strip, and jackpot, and in such other contests as have added to the fame of the Badger.

You've got to give them credit. They put the 'ell in loyal. Nothing ever happens to a Wisconsin graduate that approaches in importance the experience of having been at Wisconsin, and to their graves they go down with a U-Rah-Rah on their lips.

BOOK REVIEW

"Feudal Times in Venezuela" is the title of an illustrated booklet just published by Prof. A. S. Pearse, of the Zoology Department of the University, in which he gives his impressions of that country, its people, government, customs, and commercial history. The article is reprinted from the Scientific Monthly for July.

Venezuela, says Mr. Pearse, is in a period of transition from feudal life to commercial progress, better educational opportunities, broader outlook for women, and other desirable changes, but with these changes the romance attached to grand estates dominated by great personalities such as General Juan B. Gomez, must pass away.

CAMPUS NOTES

Prof. Frank L. Clapp, professor of school administration at the University of Colorado, has been appointed a member of the staff of the Department of Education at Wisconsin. He is by this appointment returning to the University after a five year's absence for he was an assistant in education at the University in 1912-13, fellow in 1913-14, and received the degree of doctor of philosophy in 1914.

Peter Eimon of Superior was appointed by Governor E. L. Philipp as a member of the Board of Regents to succeed A. P. Nelson of Grantsburg, who recently resigned when elected congressman. Mr. Eimon's term will continue until February, 1923.

Theodore M. Hammond of Wauwatosa was recently elected regent member of the State Board of Education to succeed Dr. Charles H. Vilas.

"The University's Tribute to Her Men of the Service and the Dedication of Lincoln Terrace" a booklet giving the history of the University's Lincoln Statue, Lincoln's relation to Wisconsin, and other sidelights on the new terrace, as well as a list of the soldier dead, was sent with a personal letter to the parents of each of the 125 soldier dead mourned by the University by President E. A. Birge.

The Forest Products Laboratory was forced to cut down its force to less than half that maintained during the past year, leaving a staff of less than 200 to carry on the work for 1919-20. Funds from the war department which would have enabled the laboratory to keep up its half-million-dollar-per-annum pace in investigative work were withheld because of the severe cut which that department's own appropriation received.

Bonuses have been granted by the Board of Regents to 327 members of the faculty and instructional staff of the University to aid them in meeting the increased cost of living. Instead of an increase in salaries, a fund of $46,385 was devoted to these 327 cash bonuses to be paid only during the year 1919-20. Ranging from $50 to $200 each, the bonuses have been granted in general to instructors and professors whose salaries are less than $2500.

The State Historical Museum has on display a number of religious tracts and related publications which were used during the war among English soldiers for the propagation of Christian knowledge.

Some 85 degrees were granted by the University at the end of the 1919 summer session. Of these 28 were higher degrees, and 57 were bachelor degrees. Added to the 606 who were graduated in June, this brings the total for the year to 691.

President E. A. Birge was elected president of the United chapters of Phi Beta Kappa to succeed Prof. E. A. Grosvenor of Amherst College. The council brought together at Harvard 150 delegates from 71 chapters in colleges throughout the country.

Dean Geo. C. Comstock, professor of astronomy and dean of the graduate school of Wisconsin, was elected vice-president of the American Astronomical Society at Ann Arbor, Mich. in September.

Prof. W. L. Westerman, who, as a specialist on Turkey, accompanied the American peace delegation to Europe, has returned to the History Department.

Exemption from compulsory military drill is being granted at Wisconsin this year to discharged commissioned officers of the army, navy, or marine corps, and to honorably discharged enlisted men who have the following records of service; (1) three months' overseas in a combat unit; (2) four months in the service of supply, or in training camps or schools in Europe; (3) six months' service in the United States. This will exempt a large number of service men, but members of the S. A. T. C. are not exempted. Two years of drill are ordinarily required of all men who are physically qualified and are not unnaturalized foreigners.

Professor Waldemar Geltch, violinist, who has given concerts in 225 Wisconsin cities during the past year, and who for nine years has been a member of the faculty of the School of Music at the University, has been granted a leave of absence to continue his musical studies under Leopold Auer of New York.

This Year

By Dean F. E. Turneure

THE year we are now entering upon promises to be one of the most interesting and important years in the history of the University. The attendance is a record-breaker, some 2000 more than the previous maximum. The value and importance of a college education has been advertised by the war as it could have been in no other way, and as a result in part of this publicity, a largely increased number of young people throughout the country are interested in college education. This is quite certain to be of permanent effect, and as a consequence, this institution, in common with all others of similar character, must prepare to take care of a very large permanent increase in students. This means a very large increase in financial support, but it is the youth of the State that are demanding educational opportunities, and I am [certain the State will] not fail to meet this demand.

This Year

By Dean H. S. Richards

WHEN the University opened in 1918, practically every student capable of military service registered in the Law School prior to our entry into the great war had enlisted in the military or naval service of the United States. The attendance was 92 per cent less than that before the war. Over one-half the regular courses were omitted. Members of the faculty were engaged in some phase of war work. Now they have come back from Archangel, Siberia, Italy, France and the sea—young men tried by war, who had seen much of the world and its peoples under the stress of war. They returned with an increased sense of responsibility and a greater pride in their citizenship. Never has the school in the fifty-one years of its existence had such a body of mature, earnest men returning with zeal to familiar and congenial tasks from the perils and hardships of war.

The registration for the year bids fair to be the largest since the adoption of the present entrance requirements in 1905. The largest previous registration since 1905 was in 1916-17, and the present attendance is in excess of that of 1916-17 at the corresponding date. In short, the school is again on a normal basis and enters on its fifty-second year with bright prospects.

While the great press of students this year is in the direction of medicine, engineering and commerce, callings emphasized by the demands of war, the law still attracts able ambitious young men, seeking a career worthy of their talents. In America and England the law has always attracted the ablest men to its service, not because it affords an easy road to wealth, but because it touches the most vital interest of civilized men, the administration of Justice. The degree of civilization of a state can be measured by the ability and influence of the bench and bar. The training and knowledge obtained in a modern law school is a fitting prelude to a business as well as a professional career. The large number of men of legal training occupying positions of power in the business world, and the increasing number of students taking law as preparatory to business, is evidence of the recognition that the arduous training in a law school is the best possible training for business.

The "Constitution" of To-day—Electrically Propelled

THE U. S. S. "New Mexico," the first battleship of any nation to be electrically propelled, is one of the most important achievements of the scientific age. She not only develops the maximum power and, with electrical control, has greater flexibility of maneuver, which is a distinct naval advantage, but also gives greater economy. At 10 knots, her normal cruising speed, she will steam on less fuel than the best turbine-driven ship that preceded her.

The electric generating plant, totaling 28,000 horsepower, and the propulsion equipment of the great super-dreadnaught were built by the General Electric Company. Their operation has demonstrated the superiority of electric propulsion over old-time methods and a wider application of this principle in the merchant marine is fast making progress.

Figures that tell the Story of Achievement

Length—624 feet
 Width—97 feet
 Displacement—32,000 tons
 Fuel capacity—a million gallons (fuel oil)
 Power—28,000 electrical horsepower
 Speed—21 knots

Six auxiliary General Electric Turbine-Generators of 400 horsepower each, supply power for nearly 500 motors, driving pumps, fans, shop machinery, and kitchen and laundry appliances, etc.

Utilizing electricity to propel ships at sea marks the advancement of another phase of the electrical industry in which the General Electric Company is the pioneer. Of equal importance has been its part in perfecting electric transportation on land, transforming the potential energy of waterfalls for use in electric motors, developing the possibilities of electric lighting and many other similar achievements.

As a result, so general are the applications of electricity to the needs of mankind that scarcely a home or individual today need be without the benefits of General Electric products and service.

An illustrated booklet describing the "New Mexico," entitled, "The Electric Ship," will be sent upon request. Address General Electric Company, Desk 44, Schenectady, New York.
