MILLER RESIGNS TO TAKE POST AT IOWA UNIVERSITY

Assistant Professor of Economics to Leave After Long Service

Within a month after the resignation of Prof. W. T. Root, who is to become head of the history department of the University of Iowa, comes the announcement that Sidney L. Miller, assistant professor of economics, will resign at the end of the semester to accept a full professorship at that university. Prof. Miller has been on the faculty here for nine years, and for the last five years has been assistant professor.

Author of Books.

At the University of Iowa, Professor Miller will have complete charge of the work in railway transportation and other work that is now being arranged. While here, Professor Miller has directed all courses in transportation and also assisted in the elementary economics, lectured in that course last year when Prof. W. H. Kiekhofer, chairman of the economics department, was on leave of absence. Transportation courses given here under Professor Miller's direction include Elementary Transportation, Railway Problems, Railway Finance and Railway Traffic and Rates.

Professor Miller is the author of "Principles of Railway Transportation" which was just published this year.

When asked his reason for leaving, Prof. Miller said:

"The years spent at Wisconsin as graduate student and as a teacher have been pleasant ones and make me reluctant to leave. Nevertheless, the splendid opportunity offered me at the University of Iowa, which has developed rapidly during recent years, could not be ignored.
I shall leave with regret but with high expectations for the future at Iowa."

Professor Miller was born at Ra-vanna, Kans., March 17, 1890. He received his A. B. degree at the Teachers' college, Emporia, Kans.
He received his M. A. degree here in 1916 and his Ph. D. degree in 1920.

AUTHORESS-REGENT TO SPEAK TONIGHT

Zona Gale Will Deliver Address
Under Arden Club
Auspices

"Scholarship and the Spirit" is the subject of a talk to be delivered by Zona Gale, graduate of the class of '95, at 8 o'clock tonight in Music hall, under the auspices of the Arden club.

Miss Gale is one of the outstanding figures who has graduated from Wisconsin. She is the author of several notable books. A dramatization of "Mr. Pitt" is at present enjoying a long and successful run at the Thirty-Ninth street theater in New York.

After her graduation from the university in 1895, Miss Gale was on the staff of Milwaukee newspapers until 1901 when she became a member of the staff of the New York World. While at the university she was a member of Laurea literary club, librarian of the Choral club, member of Aegis board and of the Badger board. She is also an honorary member of Theta Sigma Phi.

After the lecture this evening,
Miss Gale will attend President Birge's reception which will be given for the board of regents, of which Miss Gale is a member. A tea will be given for her at the Arden house this afternoon, and tonight she will be entertained at an English faculty dinner at the Arden house. Professor and Mrs.
Taylor and Professor and Mrs.
Lathrop of the English department will be among the guests.
Elizabeth Waters, member of the board of regents, will attend.
Charlotte Wood, faculty member and chaperon of the Arden house, will receive the guests.

Co-eds Still Fall For Bosco Despite His Advancing Age

Two co-eds fell for Bosco yesterday—literally.

In his eagerness to maintain his title of "King of the Campus," Bosco, while pursuing several lesser dogs on the Hill, collided violently with a couple of Wisconsin's fair ones and upset them, to say the least.

Bosco's weight and momentum sent the unfortunate co-eds into two awkward heaps much to the unseemly amusement of various balloon-trousered heartbreakers who were on the scene. When interviewed, Bosco refused to comment on the incident. It is reported, however, that he was being kidded by some inferior canines about his screen debut at the Strand this week and was bent for revenge when he became mixed up with the women in the case.

GLEE CLUB BACK AFTER LONG TRIP

"Two Weeks' Tour Was Most Successful Ever Made,"
Says Swinney

The Men's Glee club returned early Monday morning from its two weeks' tour of cities in Wisconsin, Iowa and Minnesota. The tour was the most successful ever put on by the organization, according to both Prof. E. E. Swinney, conductor, and Robert C. Nethercut '25, president of the club.

"In the 13 concerts presented, there were none that were not successful from the point of view of appreciation by the audience," Professor Swinney said.

At the Davenport concert Saturday night before the Davenport Outing club, music critics from three cities pronounced the concert of the club one of the best ever heard there. The singers repeated over half of their program in encores.
Press reports of the club's concerts have been complimentary.

J. Francis Mantell '26, violinist, who accompanied the club, received fervent press notice along with Nethercut, pianist, and Eugene
Leonardson '26, soloist.

One concert and two informal appearances still remain this season. The concert is scheduled for Evansville on Thursday of this week, while the other appearance will be before the Woman's club at the Woman's building, May 1, and before the Rotary club the same week.

Entries for the meet are being the gymnasium.

Galesburg, Ill.,
the city which is the site of Knox

expensive and elaborate prizes than were awarded the winners in 1924 will be given for successful competition, according to Manager Dennis.

To insure the meet against inclement weather, the athletic department will take out a $500 rain pol-

STRONG TELLS OF RUSS CONDITIONS

Relief Worker Delivers Lecture in Bascom Hall on Monday

"Education is thought of as the third front in Russia," said Anna Louise Strong, relief worker and newspaper correspondent, who spoke last night in Bascom hall, under the auspices of the League for Industrial Democracy.

With formal recognition by many of the European governments, Russia has fairly well overcome her major political problem, said Miss Strong. The most important problem at the present time, she said, is the economic problem; education being the chief concern of the future.

Miss Strong went to Russia in 1921 with the Society of Friends.
Since last December she has represented the first international in Russia. At present she is on her way back to Russia. Until 1921, Miss Strong was a writer on the Seattle Union Record.

Kiwanis Entertains
Haresfoot, Debaters
at Monday Lunch

The Haresfoot recording orchestra and several members of the cast of "Ivan-Ho!" were guests of the Kiwanis club yesterday noon at the regular weekly meeting in the Loraine hotel. Members of the varsity debate team also were guests. Glen
H. Bell '25 and Harold J. Sporer
'25 gave a condensed summary of their closing arguments used in the debates on the question of judicial review.

The Haresfoot entertainment was similar to those given by the club while on the spring tour. In every city on the itinerary the club was entertained by some civic organization or club and the orchestra and cast gave some numbers from the show.

The musical numbers "Knighthood" and "Saracen," and a song
"I'll Maybe Say No" by Byron Rivers '26, proved to be the most popular with audiences on the tour.

Sidney R. Thorson, grad, manager of the club, reports that there are still many good seats available for the Friday and Saturday performances this week.

TURNER LECTURES ON SECTIONALISM

Says Whig Period Formed
Bonds Between Minor
Regional Sections

That the Whig period of the time before the civil war formed bonds of union between the minor regional sections of the United States was one of the principal points brought out by Prof. F. J. Turner in the fourth of his series of lectures on "Sectionalism in the United States,"
given in 165 Bascom hall yesterday afternoon.

The parties of this era, Professor Turner pointed out, prevented sectionalism from becoming a dominating factor in American history.

"Most of the histories of this country have been written by New Englanders or Pennsylvania Quakers who gave the idea that the United States was horrified at the wickedness of the annexation of Texas," he stated, "but there must have been a great deal of wickedness then if we can judge by the huge preponderance of the vote in favor of annexation."

Professor Turner, who gained his reputation in the history department of this university and who later taught at Harvard University, is well known throughout the country in history work, especially his researches and books on the American frontier. He will give the last of his series at 4:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, when he will cover the period of American history from about 1850 to after the Civil war.

14,723 PERSONS PAY TO VIEW EXPOSITION

Exactly 14,723 persons paid to see the 86 exhibits of the university Exposition at the armory, according to Eugene Tuhtar, general chairman.

The armory and annex were crowded on Sunday as well as on the other three days despite the bad weather.

Although the extension of the exposition meant extra work, over 1,000 persons continued to work on, willingly through the extra day.

NARVESON TO HEAD SIGMA DELTA CHI

Palmer O. Narveson '26 was elected president of the Wisconsin chap-professional journalism fraternity, at its meeting Sunday night. Oth-

Wiese '26, vice president; Kenneth
E. Cook '26, secretary; Vilas J.
Boyle '26, treasurer; Hillier Krieh-

Fraternity in Top Position For Fourth Consecutive
Time

For the fourth successive time
Alpha Kappa Lambda placed first in the fraternity scholarship standings, with only .014 of a point advantage over Triangle, which was second. Pi Beta Phi with a comfortable margin placed first again in the sorority standings.

Farm House and Kappa Beta Pi were first in the professional fraternity and sorority standings respectively.

Alpha Kappa Lambda by winning first place in the standings this time keeps the fraternity scholarship cup for another semester and at the same time breaks the previous record for a fraternity keeping the lead for more than three semesters in a row.

The summary follows:

JOURNALISTS PLAN GRIDIRON BANQUET

Sigma Delta Chi to Inaugurate Novel Stunt
Here

Secrecy of the darkest sort will envelop the first annual gridiron banquet which will be held here in the latter part of May under the auspices of Sigma Delta Chi, national professional journalistic fraternity.

This banquet, the first of its kind at the university, will be a formal stag for approximately 150 selected students, professors, alumni, and well known men of the state at which affairs of the university will be discussed and no one's feelings spared.

Except for the fact that the guests are to be men who have done something meritorious for the university, the personnel will be kept absolutely secret. Each man invited will receive a card on which he will note a topic concerning the university that he thinks ought to be discussed. From these suggestions the subjects of discussion will be chosen.

The "roastmaster" in charge will be one who is fully qualified to handle the situation, and back of the whole idea is the object of doing constructive work for the university, according to Palmer Narveson '26, president of Sigma Delta Chi, who will appoint a chairman to arrange for the affair. He will in turn appoint entertainment, invitation, program, publicity, membership, and banquet committees.

The idea of a gridiron banquet, novel as it will be here, has been carried out with great success in other universities.

CARDINAL TRACK MEN AGAIN WORK OUT AT RANDALL

Squad Prepares For Coming
Drake Relays; In Good Condition

Anything but California climate greeted Coach Jones and his band of traveling tracksters as they shivered through their first workout on the home track for over two weeks.

Only loosening up work was on the schedule yesterday to get the men limbered up after the long rides on the train. All of the squad seemed to be in fine condition. "Chuck" McGinnis is getting back into shape rapidly and his ankle should be back to normal in time for him to jump with the best of them at the Drake Relays.

Smith May Compete

Harry McAndrews is suffering from a little stiffness after his competition at Kansas but will soon be tearing up the cinders at his usual pace.

Gil Smith, one of the best 440 and 220 men in the university, may be available for use in the Drake Relays next Saturday. He took an examination in French last week to remove a condition and is expected to come through with flying colors. He will have to do some great running this week to oust any of the four men who have been carrying the burden for Wisconsin in the mile relay so far this season.

Schwarze Trains Hard

Coach Jones has entered a team or a man in all of the relays and special events at the Drake Relays and expects his men to do even better than they did at Kansas although they will be facing much stiffer competition than Saturday. Both the Ohio and Kansas Relays drew strong teams from the middle west last Saturday but at Drake all the strength will be concentrated in the one meet.

Herb Schwarze is out to beat his own record next Saturday. The big fellow has settled down to a rigorous training program for this week and hopes to pass the 50 foot mark at the Drake Carnival.

While the men have been away, rapid strides have been made in the addition of the 220 yard straight-away at the Camp Randall track. Coach Jones expects this new feature to be completed within a week so that when the team gets back from Drake that Harry McAndrews and the rest of the dash men can make better time on a straight 220 yards and the quarter milers can cut off a second or so by doing a 440 around only one turn.

Russian Coloned Kills

Sweetheart and Self

KOBE, Japan—Col. Nikolai Ossipoff, former military attache of the Czarist embassy in Japan, committed suicide today after murdering his sweetheart, Malini Futalief. The murder and suicide came after a lovers' quarrel. Col. Ossipoff was one of the former diplomatic representatives ousted from the Tokio embassy after signing of the Japanese-Soviet treaty.

Wisconsin Athletic Leaders Against Student Coaching

Dr. Alexander Meiklejohn Favors Student Training For College Sports

Badger athletic leaders do not believe Dr. Alexander Meiklejohn's proposal to have student coaches for all athletic teams is practical though the scheme might have some good features.

Student coaches for athletic teams of all kinds were advocated by Dr. Meiklejohn, former president of Amherst college and noted educator, in an interview before a lecture at the University of Michigan. He declares that this will foster more responsibility in the hands of undergraduates. Dr. Meiklejohn does not advocate the elimination of professional coaches but he believes that they should serve more as advisors and teachers.

Various men prominent in athletics here have expressed their opinions on Dr. Meiklejohn's theory.

George Little, director of athletics—I believe in the development of initiative in the athletic captain and the seniors on the team. It seems advisable to give them authority. However, a coach must have experience equivalent to that of a member of the faculty and no student can have this experience. The coach should be the advisor but a happy medium will be reached by the development of initiative in the student with the advice of the coach.

W. E. Meanwell, basketball coach—I believe that the danger of improperly controlled athletics cannot be realized by a student. It requires years of study. A coach needs more rather than less technical training and a student cannot begin to have this training. I have found my medical training of great value in coaching and cannot see how an inexperienced student could avoid doing harm to the athletes.

Prof. J. F. A. Pyre—I think Dr. Meiklejohn's suggestion is impractical.

Lloyd Valley, captain of the track team—A student is too busy with his other work to be a successful coach. A man must put all time and energy in to the work. The coaching profession has the pick of the best men which makes for good influence on those who wish to try out for athletics.

Welton W. Harris, captain of the 1924 football team—I believe that paid coaches are best fitted to handle the job of coaching. Students are too inexperienced.

Ads Beat Old Church Bell, Minister Says

GALESBURG, Ill.—Ministers must use every legitimate means of advertising if their churches are to serve effectively, the Rev. M. Berger of Oneida told the Illinois Poster Advertising association at its annual convention here.

"The church bell used to bring them in, but it doesn't any more," he said. "For this reason pastors must ask appreciations for publicity and keep billboards and newspapers filled with church advertising."

"A WONDERFUL TRIP," SAYS COACH JONES

"It was a wonderful trip" was the comment of Coach Jones on his arrival in Madison after the two and a half weeks' jaunt half way across the continent and back again with his squad of 20 Badger track men. "It was wonderful for the team, for the university and for Wisconsin as a state."

At every stop the team made, a large aggregation of old Wisconsin alumni would be at the train to greet the men and revive their undergraduate spirit.

Whenever possible the alumni would plan a banquet or some form of entertainment for the team in order that the trackmen would not feel their work was not being appreciated.

U. S. Wins Skirmish In Ship Sale Injunction

WASHINGTON — The government today won its first point at the hearing on Pacific Mail injunction suit when Justice Hits in the supreme court of the District of Columbia decided to proceed with the motion of government counsel to dismiss the suit.

INDEPENDENT MEN MAY NOW FORM BASEBALL TEAMS

George Berg Arranges Competition For Men Not Connected With Fraternities

Independent groups may now form baseball teams and enter them in the Independent league which George Berg, director of intramurals, is scheduling to open in the early part of May.

Entries for the league will be taken in the intramural office at the gymnasium any day between 12:45 and 1:30 o'clock. No restriction whatsoever governs entries in the independent leagues, for any group of men at the university are eligible to form a squad and sign for the competition.

Last year but four teams entered this league, therefore special effort will be made this season to get more teams into the play. Letters will be mailed by the department to put the proposition up to the student groups, and the deadline for entries will be advanced to allow as many teams as possible to take advantage of the chance to sign.

Arrangements for the competition will be made at a meeting of the teams that enter a short time before the opening date.

"Abie's Irish Rose" Pleases Critic at Initial Bow Here

By E. H. S.

If you haven't seen "Abie's Irish Rose" and aren't planning to, you'd better change your mind, if only to save yourself from being a freak of nature around this locality after Thursday night, when the capable company which is appearing here at the Parkway in the comedy, leaves town.

Anne Nichols evidently meant her play to be funny; she succeeds in her endeavor to a greater extent than do most authors. The piece includes about every Irish-Jew joke you have ever heard and a whole bundle of new ones, all gotten off with a good mixture of horse play. Nor is any of it distasteful.

As a work of artistic realism, the play is sadly wanting. And I suspect that the moral it tries to preach is not altogether practicable. But its comedy is sufficient.

As for the players, Joseph Greenwald, as Solomon Levy, and Harry Garrity, as Patrick Murphy, are the real thing. Pauline Hoffman handles very well the difficult and exaggerated role of Mrs. Cohen.

LEVIS RETURNS WITH IDEAS FOR PROPOSED BADGER FIELD HOUSE

Best Gymnasium in Middle West Visited on Recent Tour

The first link in the new field house for the University of Wisconsin's athletes since the signing of the Sauthoff bill by Gov. Blaine, was forged Sunday on the return of George Levis, freshman basketball coach, who was sent as an emissary to all the leading schools in the west, where new field houses and gymnasiums have been, or are in the process of construction.

The results of Levis' observations, as to playing space, colors of walls, soil for indoor baseball diamonds and numerous other details that go to make up the ideal combination will be placed in the hands of the state architect for use in the specifications of the new building.

Levis visited Michigan and was much impressed with their Yost field house, but discovered that their 9,500 seating capacity was entirely too small. Illinois next on the list seats but 8,500 and is a gymnasium only. Stagg was in the east and those in charge of the Maroon structure about to be built were out of town, so George continued to Culver Military Academy where they have two floors of equal size, one of wood, the other of dirt. As spectators are not a problem here this idea is not of particular value to Wisconsin, save for a few innovations in the style of construction.

One idea that Levis gathered was that the business manager of athletics should be centrally located with the ticket sales department in conjunction and the offices of all coaches and assistant coaches within easy reach. It is desirable that every coach and even the assistants should have individual offices so that they can talk matters over with their boys without interference, and still be within a moment's reach of the director of athletics and head coaches.

Badger Crews Of Yore

NAVY NEWS would be the heading for this column if it was written in the early 90's for then the crewmen were called the navy boys.

"Andy" O'Dea of the Yarra Yarra boat club of Melbourne, Australia, was secured as coach in 1895 and a shell made by Davy of Cambridge, Mass., was purchased. The new shell made of red cedar was a revelation to the crew fans and great things were expected of the Badger carsmen.

A match was arranged with the Delaware boat club, first opponent of Wisconsin crews. The Delaware crew was composed of the best oarsmen in the Chicago navy and the varsity lost by a length and a half after one of the men broke his oar.

"O'Dea's little boys," as they were called, because the average weight of the crewmen was only 153 pounds, met the Minnesota Boat club of St. Paul in a race on Lake Minnetonka the following Monday. The "little boys" held their bigger rivals for a mile and a half but were finally beaten by three-quarters of a boat's length. The time, 10:21½, was the college record for two miles in dead water.

The next spring 1896, the first Wisconsin crew made its appearance in the East. It was a rather humble beginning, the opponents being the Yale freshman. Wisconsin easily outrowed the sons of Eli beating them by 10 boat lengths to the great surprise of the Easterners. From that time Badger rowing prestige was established and Yale's upperclassmen replaced the freshmen.

After returning from the East, the crews trained at Lake Minnetonka for their race on July 4 with the Minnesota Boat club's eight. Great interest was taken in the race and several thousand people turned out to see the O'Dea crew with the funny "Yarra Yarra" stroke—Wisconsin won by six feet.

TRIALS FOR FROSH WRESTLERS DECIDE NUMERAL WEARERS

The last activity for the season on the wrestling mats is this week as the freshmen grapple in the matches for numerals.

Matches will be held in each division and the successful men will receive the letters. Some of the division winners will be decided each afternoon and Coach Hitchcock hopes to have the competition finished this week.

One of the largest squads in the history of Wisconsin wrestling has turned out for the freshmen team this year and Coach Hitchcock is especially pleased with the work of many of the men who appear to be potential varsity material. The matches this week will help find out the best men in each division.

Muegge, Stipek, Splees, and other varsity wrestlers are out for football while the others take an occasional workout in order to remain in condition for next fall. Football training has been recognized as good training for wrestling and Athletic Director Little is heartily in favor of having all football men go out for wrestling and vice versa.

PISTOL CLUB WINS FROM PURDUE IN ITS FIRST MATCH

Matches Are Scheduled With Princeton and West Point Teams

The university pistol club triumphed over Purdue Saturday, scoring 1,670 out of a possible 2,100 points—a high average for a meet of its kind, the Badger average being 79.33 per cent.

It was the first meet of the season and with the successful outcome the men look for more victories under the able coaching of Sergeant Thomas of the military department.

Meet West Point

Challenges have been received and accepted from Princeton and West Point and the matches will be played sometime next month. Although the eastern teams will furnish strong competition, the pistol club has been making good scores in both its practice meet and the Purdue shoot and should have a good chance for victory.

Plans have been made to enter the national pistol meet and the local police department will soon receive a challenge for a match.

Owens High Man
Newman, Ladd, Owens, Duette, and Benedict shot against Purdue, Owens being high man. The net average for the team was 55.88 per cent out of a possible 70 per cent.

Pistol work has received new impetus this year with good matches scheduled and the military department believes that it will soon rank with rifle shooting as a competitive sport for students in the military companies and others interested.

DRAW THE CURTAIN FOR ANOTHER FOUR YEARS

Sunday night the doors closed for the last time for four years on a Wisconsin exposition. During the space of the last three days thousands of students and townspeople have entered the armory to leave it with a new and greater impression of what Wisconsin is and does; thousands of people from out of the city have come to Madison for no other reason than to attend the exposition and have left the city with their heads full of news to tell the folks who remained at home.

It has been generally agreed that the university exposition this year was a great success. Certainly it is true that it attracted enough people to make it such. Certainly the character of the various exhibitions would point toward the same end.

So, to those who have labored over it since the beginning of the academic year, high credit is due. They have done a fine thing for Wisconsin.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

Through the beneficence of certain well-known newspapers, Wisconsin in the last six months has had more than enough advertising of a hurtful and unfounded sort. In the last month Haresfoot, the track and baseball teams, the Glee club, and the Exposition have given the university advertising whose beneficial effects cannot be adequately measured.

The slogan "Be a Booster" has rather a distasteful connotation for many, but it is rather a good slogan at that. If every individual student would boost Wisconsin—brag about her teams—rave about her girls—apostrophize her lakes—here, traveling, at home—by word of mouth, by letter, in print—now and all summer, if 7,500 students would do all of these things, the better class of students here next fall would repay all the effort, even from the most selfish point of view.

TO THE WEARERS OF THE GREEN

It would doubtless be entirely too Utopian even to hope that one fall or spring might pass without an occasion for an editorial on green caps. Last fall the wearing of the caps was consistently fairly satisfactory; many complimentary things were rightly said of the class of 1928. But from the almost imperceptible sprinkling of caps on the hill this spring, it might be judged, with some excuse, that the freshman class has lost its spirit during the winter.

What has happened to the freshmen of the 20 odd fraternities who last fall pledged themselves to the voluntary wearing of the cap at all proper times throughout the year? This spontaneous organization of the freshmen themselves to further the wearing of their badge was highly encouraging, and it seemed to be efficient and lasting, but now the pledge seems to have been forgotten.

Reasons for wearing the cap are numerous and obvious. First of all—it is a Wisconsin tradition, one of the not too numerous university traditions, and as such it should be jealously guarded. In the second place, freshmen should never think of their caps as marks of ignominy, as a means of more readily exposing themselves to ridicule. The cap is a mark of distinction—if the freshmen are proud of being members of the class of 1928, they should wear their caps in testimony thereof to the wide world.

CRITICISM NEGATED

If even the most casual visitor had come to Madison last week-end and had spent an afternoon at the exposition and an evening with the Haresfoot club, he could hardly have failed to be impressed by the magnitude of student undertakings. The Expo, numbering its workers as a thousand, and Haresfoot, being the result of the efforts of hundreds, give the lie to the statement that Wisconsin undergraduates, as a class, are idlers or teahounds.

In many ways the most inspiring thing about the exposition was not what could be seen, wonderful though that was. The truly encouraging and stimulating truth was the fact that great numbers of students, without hope of reward even in the way of recognition, had labored long and tirelessly to make the Expo the success it was. They did earn one reward—the satisfaction that their work helped to renew confidence in this university in the mind of every visitor.

There are idlers, there are teahounds at Wisconsin. They must be rooted out. But the spirit of Wisconsin is essentially vigorous, productive, self-sacrificing.

HARD-WORKING ROYALTY

The Prince of Wales makes a triumphal progress down the coast of Africa. The other day he reviewed a parade of 20,000 natives; today he will probably lay the cornerstone for the new lodge-building of "the Sons and Daughters of I Will Arise." It is a poor day if this envied young man has to make less than ten speeches. Life to the heir of the British throne is an unending succession of changing clothes for different public appearances, being photographed and interviewed unmercifully, speaking graciously and tactfully to all sorts of people on every sort of occasion. It is hard to believe that the Prince has such a very good time. Even the unceasing deference of those about him must become monotonous.

While Edward revives the imperial loyalty in Africa, his brother and sister-in-law, the Duke and Duchess of York, are equally active and untiring in Australia. Prince Henry and Princess Mary lay the cornerstones in England, while King George and Queen Mary are taking their first vacation in 15 years. Brother George, who is an ordinary midshipman in the royal navy, probably has the easiest job in the family.

The rather common American conception of royalty drawn mostly from James I, Louis XIV, George III, and Wilhelm III must be revised. English royalty is a pretty useful, efficient, hard-working family.

Apropos of this subject of royalty, it may be remarked that according to a newspaper report, President Coolidge averages 700 handshakes daily. When will America stop killing her presidents?

Rumor has it that the lake is going to freeze over again in a few days.

According to a headline in the deet, Mr. Alexander Woolcott says that "play is a dream that comes true." Sometimes it comes true for too many, and final examinations are not passed.

The canoeing season is close at hand, but don't let your enthusiasm overcome your caution. High winds in the next few days are predicted by the weather man—and the water in the lake is still pretty chilly for an impromptu bath.

Zona Gale lectures here tonight. She is one of the most outstanding graduates in the literary field and is in addition a member of the board of regents.

The crew is now in daily practice on the lake. The men trying out are putting in a lot of time and effort with just one end in view—the Poughkeepsie regatta.

We've still got the old "jazz age" and "the younger generation" cropping up. The other day it was on the front page of the W. G. N. Seems as though many of us are doomed to insanity. Ho-hum.

We're just back from the north woods where the natives are so hard they eat raw hamburger sandwiches.

Up there they haven't yet discovered prohibition.

We were watching an inoculated gentleman walking, or trying to walk, down the street, dodging the telephone poles that insisted upon getting in his way.

We asked a small boy, "Who's that?"

"That's my brother-in-law," he answered. "Sis gave him $25 yesterday morning and he had the nerve to come home sober at noon. But he's all right now."

SO LONG SAYS:

"I like to smoke an old clay pipe," Said lazy Sam MacNapp, "Because if I should drop it, I need not pick it up."

The dumbest man in the university was the one who did not go to Expo because he thought it would be formal.

SIGN IN NEW HAVEN:

"For supper—and the rest of the night, Toasted Cheese Sandwich." Gastronomic candor

When he's a frosh, he tries to talk college; when he's a soph, he talks college; when he's a junior, he tries not to talk college; and when he's a senior he thinks he doesn't talk college—but he does.

All our famous men have written their epitaphs for Vanity Fair.

Somewhat in making up the list we were overlooked, so we shall give ours here:

HENMON DIRECTS LANGUAGE STUDY

Will Investigate Values From Studying Foreign Tongues in American Schools

Prof. V. A. C. Henmon, director of the School of Education, assisted by Prof. A. R. Hohlfield and B. Q. Morgan of the German department is in charge of a nation wide attempt to answer the question, "Should Americans study foreign languages?"

A campaign to study the value status and teaching methods of modern foreign languages in the schools of the United States is being carried on by the American Council of Education in 20,000 secondary schools, colleges and universities. The movement is supported by an appropriation from the Carnegie corporation of New York.

Professor Henmon is supervising a series of controlled experiments which will be conducted in almost every school in the country. Experiments are given with a view to discovering the best methods of teaching foreign languages to American boys and girls, and of determining what can be done to improve language study in the United States.

Direction of local tests will be carried on by students in the department of education. An effort is being made to discover what proportion of the graduates of schools and colleges use foreign language either in conversation or in correspondence.

Professor Hohlfield is one of the 20 members of the general executive committee and Professor Morgan is regional chairman of the central northwest district.

Zona Gale Story in Current Century is Work of Much Charm

By E. B. S.

"The Dime," a new story by Zona Gale contained in the current issue of the Century Magazine, is one of much charm. The two principal characters, Grandfather Tarkoff and little Jeffrey are closely akin to Grandfather Crumb and Oliver of "Faint Perfume," although Jeffrey lacks the sweetness and that inner vision of childhood that made Oliver one of the most fascinating children of literature. Jeffrey is a practical little boy, having the warmth and devotion of the child heart, but devoid of dreams and idealism. Grandfather Tarkoff is drawn with that deft artistry that is at Zona Gale's command, one of those simple, limpid characters that defy analysis but that pluck at your very heart strings.

Jeffery found a cocoon. "A butterfly will come out of it if you watch," Grandfather said. "Why?" Jeffrey demanded in excitement. "God fixed it," was all Grandfather Tarkoff knew. "But how do you know it will?"

The old man looked up with his intolerable wistfulness. "I never knowed," he said, "I only seen."

The "dime" of the story is the first money that Grandfather ever earned, a piece that he had treasured through all the years and which he kept beautifully polished, and the story of which he kept ever repeating to any available listener. I suspect that the idea is founded upon an actual parallel in Zona Gale's life, for it is known that her excitement over the first money that she actually earned was very great.

AT THE THEATERS

Foreign and Local NewsArlen's Green Hat, Dramatized, Plays
at Chicago's Theater

By E. B. S.

"The Green Hat," a dramatization by Michael Arlen of his famous novel of the same name, had its formal opening a week ago last Sunday evening in Chicago at the Selwyn theater. It was naturally a matter of great interest to see what form had been given to the rather informal, loosely presented material that constituted the book. The task was adequately done, for, if anything, the story of Iris March gains through its stage version. None of the incidents are lost sight of, and the major ones selected are given better continuity and unity than possessed by the book.

Rearrangement Necessary

This necessitates a rearrangement, however, and the curtain of the first act rises upon the morning immediately following "Boy" Fenwick's death. The personality of Gerald March and his devotion to the dead man dominates this scene. All the major characters except Venice are introduced. The physician, who late in the story attends Iris in her severe illness, is, through being a guest at the same hotel in which the tragedy occurs, brought into the play at this point, and by his conversation with Iris the motive for her reckless conduct and the clue to "Boy's" suicide is given. Here the drama gains appreciably over the novel, for it eliminates the element of suspense which throughout the book is too overpowering for its tardy solution at the end. An interval of ten years elapses before the time of the second act. The play then moves forward through three acts according to the logical sequence of the story, the last scene being at the country home of Sir Maurice Harpenden (Napier's father) where the final catastrophe of Iris's death is heard off-stage.

Katherine Cornell Stars

Michael Arlen's play is unusually well cast, and has all the benefit of stage artistry of the finest type. Katherine Cornell, but lately of the cast of the revival of Shaw's "Candida," has the role of Iris, and it is difficult to imagine it as being more sympathetically interpreted. That sad, gay, tattered character who is Iris March, last child of a degenerate and undisciplined family, is portrayed by Miss Cornell with infinite grace, and an utter absence of sentimentality. Ann Harding as Venice is very engaging. All the other parts are well done, though unfortunately the role of Napier seems too weak. This fault lies more in the character itself than in the actor, though the part might easily be more vitally depicted without detracting from its true value. Paul Guilfoyle gives an outstanding characterization of the difficult Gerald March.

"The Green Hat" will be a successful play and will enjoy a sufficiently long run, especially in New York. Like the book, its major appeal is to a sophisticated audience, but it will never have the range among that audience that the book enjoys. While better than the book in the unification of the plot, it lacks the whimsical charm of the author which has its natural manifestation in narrative. It fails, as the book fails, in lacking any essential value. "The Green Hat," novel or play, is not a tragic story of a sufficiently high level.

"Introduce Me" May Be Improbable, But
it is Really FunnyFeaturing Douglas MacLean

By H. J. B.

It's a funny, funny predicament for any normal young American traveler to find himself literally forced to climb the highest Swiss mountain top—just because he accidentally tumbled into another man's identity and was mistaken for America's most renowned mountain climber—and especially since he was too much in love to explain that he was really Jimmy Hughes, inflicted with love at first sight and in bad, dreadfully bad with his prospective father-in-law! Whew, quite a lengthy sentence, but honestly the plot was even more involved.

Doug always may be expected to appear in funny pictures, but "Introduce Me" is by far the funniest of his funnies. He has a desperate time being introduced to the sweetest young lady whom he vows

Now that the first week-end of Haresfoot is completed, those who give a thought now and then to things theatrical have to turn their attention elsewhere in regard to local dramatics.

There's "Abie's Irish Rose," for instance. Of course, you must know that Anne Nichols, its author, couldn't sell it to a single producer after she had written it.

You must likewise know that she finally thumbed her nose at the altogether stupid producers and staged the play herself. Perhaps you have heard too that she was supposed to have made a clear million dollars on it by last Christmas, and that that amount naturally has been increasing with the days.

It has been rumored that Miss Nichols turned down an offer from a certain movie film for a cold million for the film rights.

Wherewithal, the play is booked for Madison for four days and five performances, something unheard of for a roadshow in Madison. Of course, the critics said that the play was insipid, dumb, poor and lots of other uncomplimentary things. But then, these critics enjoy being a bit highbrow.

If you were in Chicago during the vacation you must have seen "Stepping Stones," "Rose Marie" and "The Stupid"—I mean "Student Prince," any or all of them.

Fred Stone has one of the most entertaining shows imaginable, with his exquisite daughter and his funny self, providing most of the entertainment. But the sixteen belles from England who compose the special chorus help out quite a bit. They are like clockwork, but they've been together for six years. You may have seen them in "Good Morning, Dearie."

Skeet Gallagher, who provided most of the comedy in "Rose Marie" was seen here last year with Ed Wynn. You may have been bored by "The Student Prince," but you must admit the singing was great. Some of those drinking songs might be learned by certain local lights.

on first glance he will make his wife. His traveling companion double crosses him a bit, developing further intricacies in an already complicated situation.

Last week the La Vern Players produced "Lightnin'" in a very fine manner, with Roy Hilliard's work as Bill Jones standing out as a shining example to lead the rest of the cast on. It was well done, and worth all the effort they put into it. After "Lightnin'", it is almost incredible that they could put on such a play as they do this week. "The Girl in the Limousine" does, however, have one outstanding virtue—its brevity. It is all over in less than two hours. It is a bedroom farce with all the paraphernalia—much aimless running around in dressing gowns or pajamas, much jumping in and out of bed, much screaming, some fainting, and very little real humor.

It concerns the plight of a young man who was knocked out in an auto accident and carried by a couple of thugs into a bedroom where he was robbed of his clothes and left lying unconscious under the heroine's bed. From then on the regulation events necessary to the life of a bedroom farce happen in the regulation way to the apparent amusement of at least part of the audience. It is a play somewhat similar to the other works from the pen of Avery Hopwood, but less clever than the worst of the others. It is not even satisfyingly naughty.

The company undoubtedly does the best it can with it. It gives the cast a great deal of physical exer-

To their credit be it said that the King street players have this week chosen a vehicle well adapted to their powers. The venture is thoroughly successful from every point of view. The action encompasses the dreams of one Sam Crane, whose size is about that of a grocery store, but whose ambitions run to oil gushers. The crafty spoilers relieve him of some $6,000 early in the play, and the remainder of the interest centers about his efforts to get it back—which he does, and with plenteous addition and profit. But the ending leaves the spectator in doubt as to the efficiency of the cure to which the poor hero is subjected for three merry acts, for he is at his old game of being hoodwinked again.

The piece is more than capably handled, except perhaps in the dish-breaking scene. The honors must go to Oscar O'Shea, whose character interpretation is more convincing this week than ever. It seems that there is no kind of part that he cannot do well. There must be praise for every other member of the company, also, and especially for the Messrs. STALWARTS FEAR PARTY MEASURE

Oppose Bill to Give State Committee Designation Power

Stalwart republican leaders in the assembly were prepared to oppose vigorously on the floor of that house tonight a bill which they regard as a forerunner to the organization of a "third party" by La Follette forces, Assemblyman Paul H. Raihle, Cadett, said today.

The bill would permit the state central committee of a political party to change the party's designation, providing the new name is not a duplicate of that of any other party. Thus, said Mr. Raihle, a "progressive republican" party could be formed in Wisconsin if the measure was enacted.

Another provision is that a party having candidates in the previous general election may have a place on the primary ballots if any of its candidates received one percent of the total vote cast at the last preceding general election. If the name of the republican organization in Wisconsin was changed to "progressive republican," Mr. Raihle said, the regular republicans in the next general election would be compelled either to run as "progressive republicans" or as independent candidates.

According to Mr. Raihle

The measure, is an attempt on the part of supporters of Senator La Follette to force the republican candidates for United States senator and congressmen to run in the next election either under the "progressive" banner or as independents.

"Attorney General Ekern is reported to have brought about introduction of the bill," Mr. Raihle asserted. At the attorney general's office it was said that Mr. Ekern had worked on a similar bill and was "very much interested" in the pending proposal.

There was some talk today that an attempt would be made to have the assembly go into a committee of the whole tonight to call Mr. Ekern and others for a hearing on the bill, but this was not confirmed, although Mr. Raihle said it was "likely."
