CREEDS, SECTS, AND CEREMONY NOT RELIGION

—KENT

Any Chasm Between Science and Christianity Is of Man's Own
Making

"Religion is not a denomination-ism, not a ceremonialism, nor is it a dogma," declared Charles Foster Kent, professor of Biblical literature at Yale university, in speaking on "The Place of Religion in the Life of an Educated Man" last night at the second of two meetings held at Music hall under the auspices of the Campus Religious council. He also spoke in the afternoon on "The Democracy of Jesus and the Prophets."

Religion is far broader than the faith of any denomination or the creed of any age," he continued. "Religion might be defined as the individual's entire reaction to the universe. Religion is personal, as the religion of Mohammed was his personal reaction toward life."

Science and Religion
"Is there a chasm between science and religion? If there is, the gulf is of man's own making. Science is endeavoring to construct working hypotheses with which we can only attempt to obtain a better knowledge of the nature of God and of Jesus' relation to Him. The dogmatic method of studying religion is not that which will give reality and truth, and it will not lead to exact knowledge."

"What is the real value of religion to the educated and intelligent man? We find the answer at every turn. It synthesizes all our thinking; it binds us to our fellow men; it is the anchor of life, and it is a force which leads to righteousness."

Professor Kent laid particular emphasis upon the link of religion with eternal evolution. He spoke of the onward surging of humanity and what life is to become. The few thousand years in which our present civilization has developed are nothing when contrasted with the millions of years which scientists say are to come, he said. Answers to questions from the audience concluded Professor Kent's address.

"Christ Democratic"

"Only on the basis of mutual service can there be a real democracy," said Professor Kent, at the afternoon meeting. "The teachings of Jesus show the ideal of political, religious, and economic equality. Christ dreamed of a family of nations; he recognized no difference between Jew and Gentile, and he looked upon rich and poor alike—for his standard was service."

Professor Kent will speak at a luncheon at Lathrop hall this noon on "The Interpretation of the Bible," and at Music hall tonight on "The Dramatic Interpretation of the Bible."

Mlle. Didgrain Speaks to University Women

Mlle. Suzanne Didgrain, traveling secretary for the World's Student Conference association, who is the guest of Miss Mary Andersen of the university Y. W. C. A., will deliver a speech for university women this noon at 12:45 in the concert room of Lathrop hall.

Her talk will be concerning the students in Europe. This is the only opportunity that the women of the university will have to hear her speak.

Union Board to Banquet Personnel of Memorial Drive

A banquet for the Memorial Union workers will be given by Union board tonight at 6:30 in Lathrop hall. All the canvassing personnel is invited and plans are being made for about 300.

"We'll just get together and have a grand jamboree, and forget the trials and tribulations of the past two weeks," said "Hap" Baker '22, chairman, yesterday. "We want everybody who has been working on the campaign to consider this a personal invitation, and contribute his good spirits to the party."

Letters have been sent to each of the division leaders inviting his whole group.

President E. A. Birge, Dean Scott H. Goodnight, and Prof. E. A. Gardner, William H. Kieckhefer, and Stephen W. Gilman will be present; and speeches and toasts from them will make the dinner an enjoyable one. Emerson Ela, in charge of the city campaign, will tell of the progress of the drive in Madison.

Charlson to Lead Chippewa Club for Coming Semester

Roy M. Charlson of Eau Claire was unanimously elected president of the Chippewa Valley club at the annual organization meeting held at the university Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon.

The other officers are John A. Farr, Eau Claire, vice-president; Maurice S. Cook, Chippewa Falls, secretary; Arthur L. Anderson, Eau Claire, treasurer.

The purpose of the club is to spread Wisconsin spirit through the Chippewa valley. The big event of the holiday season will be a "W" dance at Eau Claire for old grads, prospective students, and other friends of the university. "W" men from the valley will be guests of honor.

Edwin Booth Holds Tryouts This Evening

Tryouts for Edwin Booth dramatic club will be held tonight at 7:30 in 401 Bascom hall. Men desiring to try out but who have not been in conference with the tryout committees may try out. If possible, they should let some member of the committee know some time today. The committee consists of Lawrence Norem, Badger 186; Vincent Conlin, and Kieth Davis.

A considerable number of men have responded for the tryout and it is expected that some talent will be in evidence. Owing to the fact that Edwin Booth is planning a dramatic program this year which exceeds that of any previous year, the club is looking for good material.

Program Prepared to Honor Dante

In commemoration of the sixth centenary of the death of Dante, a special program has been provided by the University of Wisconsin department of Romance languages, and a special Dante exhibit, prepared by Prof. A. Lipari of the department, is already on display in the Wisconsin Historical museum.

An open meeting of the Dante club will be held tonight at 8 o'clock in Music hall. Prof. M. E. Slaughter, of the Latin department, will give an address on Dante, members of the Italian classes will give vocal solos, and the Dante club will sing several songs in Italian.

The exhibit will remain in the museum for some time, and consists of a collection of books on Dante, various editions and translations of Dante's writings, pictures of Dante, and also of episodes in his "Divine Comedy," and charts.

November "Lit" Is Improvement Says Slaughter

By M. S. SLAUGHTER

The Literary magazine for November is a vast improvement on the last number. The editorial cries for more support from the students for a literary adventure, something that can never be popular, but none the less deserved the interest of all the students if the magazine is to be a credit to the university. If the tone of the present number is maintained the support will come. Tea and young instructors make more pleasant reading than women and wine, and are, I may add, less risqué and sad.

Would not a larger representation among the contributors and editors be popular? There are doubtless more students who can write well enough—the thing is to get them to do it, and the apparently limited number of contributors is the fault of the apathy of the students rather than of the management of the magazine.

Verse Excels Prose

In this number the verse is better than the prose—a generalization, perhaps, because verse is always easier to youth than sustained prose. All the verse is regular in form, nothing exotic or free or spasmodic. John Culnan's romantic one-act play, "The Fond Obsession," is cheerful reading and delightfully Irish—the best thing in the number. The easy flow of the lines and the taking rhymes are most attractive. Read it. O'Carolan is a contribution and ought to make the Lit sell.

Oscar Wilde's "Ballade of the Younger Dons" is a delicious bit of kindly satire. But does Oscar appreciate the discipline that precedes such art? Try holding a cup gloves, and a cigarette in one hand and with the other wildly seek to gather in a bit of bread and butter from the lower tray of the curate! Esoteric conversation is a mere trifle by the side of such parlor gymnastics. "Open House," by Pennell Crosby sounds tragic, sentimentally tragic. Other verse is "Conciliation," by Mildred, and "Mors Amoris" by Guy K. Tallmadge, both of which are very well done.

Prose Bits Good

Of the pieces in prose the best are the two most unpretentious—Margaret Emmerling's gem of a letter show high ability in description and a real interest in life and letters. It takes a lot of life to make a little literature.

"Three men at a Concert," by John Weimer, strikes a sympathetic chord. Get the heart of the thing; interest is more than form, though form is fundamental. Form in a vacuum is hardly enough. Why get angry about technique? The body is more than the raiment.

Old readers of the magazine will welcome another installment of "The Adventures of Gaucelm," by Irving Ramsdell. "Thirty Years Old," by Pennell Crosby, is the story of a grade school teacher aged 30, and an unrequited love. Why so pessimistic at 30? It is rather a drab story, but distinctly well told, with artistic skill and insight.

Union Forum to be Regulated by Board

That the proposed university Memorial building will not possess an absolutely open forum is the opinion expressed yesterday by Pres. E. A. Birge.

The plans for the management of any forum in the proposed building are still very vague, he stated. The matter is in the hands of the Board of Regents. The regents will probably provide for some board, made up of representatives of the students or the faculty, to control the use of the building.

DECEMBER 17 IS DATE FOR JOINT DEBATE

Philomathia and Athena to Meet in Fifty-first Annual Forensic
Contest

The date of the fifty-first annual literary society joint debate between Philomathia and Athena on the subject of unemployment insurance for Wisconsin, has been set for December 17.

The proposition, "Resolved, that a system of compulsory unemployment insurance applicable to at least a majority of the industrial workers of Wisconsin be adopted by Wisconsin," will be defended by the Athena team, composed of Abraham Kaufman '22, Samuel Sygman '22, and Melbourne Bergerman '22, closer.

The Philomathia team composed of Francis Lamb '23, Dean Kimball '22, and Philip Deicher '23, closer, will present the negative.

Biggest Event

The joint debate is considered the biggest event of the forensic year by the members of the literary societies, as the teams have much more time to study their subject than the intercollegiate teams. The winner this year will debate Hesperia next year.

Prof. John R. Commons, of the economics department, is one of the leading advocates of unemployment insurance and has spent considerable time analyzing labor conditions and working out a remedy for the periodic plight of the working classes.

Question Timely

In view of the present conditions of unemployment, the question is especially appropriate this year. The Huber bill for unemployment insurance was introduced at the last session of the legislature, and has called forth nation-wide discussion on the merits of the plan.

The teams have been working on the subject since last spring and have amassed a large amount of data. Work on a joint debate team exempts the members from writing theses.

Stock Judging Team to Compete at Chicago Show

The university stock judging team that will represent Wisconsin in the student stock judging contest at the International Live Stock show at Chicago, November 26 to December 3, has just been selected by J. G. Fuller, coach.

The personnel of the team consists of R. P. Knoll, J. W. Koch, R. C. Klussendorf, K. P. Sayre, Harry Weavers, and Guido Weber.

Last Saturday was the last strenuous workout for the team. A trip was made to the Anoka farm at Waukesha where several classes of beef cattle and sheep were judged. The remainder of this week will be spent in rounding off for the contest. The team is scheduled to leave for Chicago Thursday.

Chinese Students Discuss Disarmament

Fifty-seven Chinese students of the university held a banquet in Lathrop hall last Saturday evening. Several members gave interesting talks on the problems concerning China at the Disarmament conference.

Under the chairmanship of Leo Shen, an enthusiastic discussion on the possibility of international control of China was conducted.

NOW that we have all had a chance to talk to those who went to Chicago, we have probably all reached the same conclusion, namely, that they found plenty of excitement down there on Saturday evening which helped to take their minds off of the defeat.

BEFORE we forget it, it might be well to add that with the football season a thing of the past, we have nothing to look forward to but Thanksgiving, mid-semester, Union Vodvil, Christmas holidays, semester exams, Prom, and one or two other distractions before we make out our next programs with our advisors.

ALSO, before we forget it, we desire to add that it is no joke to write this column, day in and day out. If someone you know happens to sit on a tack, or something funny like that, don't forget to tell us about it, 'cause we can always use contributions. Out of the 7,000 people in this here university, we never see more than 5,000 or 6,000 a day, so naturally we miss up on some of the humor that is going on. Tell us about it!!

POSSIBLY this comment is a little out of season, but our idea of a perfect gentleman is one who can eat corn-on-the-cob and then sit for half an hour and not look as though he wanted to pick his teeth.

THEREIN one sees the great advantage of false teeth, for where there is no life, there is no feeling.

FALSE teeth brings to mind a very promising business career for after college. Why not manufacture false teeth for combs?

A young lady was asked to a Theta Delt party the other day, and her roommate was very anxious to know just what sort of a time she was looking forward to.

"Oh, my dear, I have never been to a Theta Delt party and so I don't know much about the boys. Tell me, do they give you a good time?"

"Well, I would rather go there than to a movie. There is no question about that. I might say that they're mild...., but they satisfy."

CERTAIN expressions in our daily speech have no place there, for time is swift and has put some of them out-of-date. For instance, who can justify the use of "Chicken Feed" when speaking of nickels and dimes? Maybe it used to was, but it ain't no more.

THE ADVANTAGE OF WOOD

Said a bald-headed man
To a waitress bold:
"See here, young woman,
My cocoa's cold!"
She scornfully answered:
"I can't help that;
If the blamed thing's chilly,
Put on your hat."

POPULAR EXCLAMATIONS

Step lively, please.
No smoking in here.

YOU might like to know that the Zeuglodon was a fossil while-like Cetacean found in the strata of the Eocene. Then again maybe you don't care anything about it. But it really interested us a great deal.

"Oh, I'm only getting even with him. He cut me three times this morning."

"That's a heluva note," said the monkey, as he sneezed into the saxophone.

Riding Academy Offers Essay Prize

Twenty-five dollars in riding lessons to a beginner, or in rides to one who is experienced has been offered as a prize for the best circular letter written upon horse-back riding, by the Black Hawk riding academy.

The letter must emphasize the following points: (1) Riding is healthy; (2) It is the best form of exercise; (3) When riding in winter one is not cold; (4) In the larger cities riding is more popular in winter than in summer.

"Letters will be judged solely by their value as advertising material," said H. Bruekner, head of the academy.

Grant M. Hyde has agreed to act as judge of the letters from the newspaper value. All letters must be sent to his office before 12 o'clock Monday, Nov. 29.

Letters must not exceed one page nor be longer than 225 words. It is not necessary that they be that long, however.

Fuller particulars may be had by calling at the Black Hawk Riding academy.

Art Association Will Hold Two Exhibitions

The Madison Art association announces two exhibitions for November, one, a collection of oil paintings by members of the Guild of American Painters, at the State Historical Museum; the other, the collected photographs of the work of Wisconsin's most famous sculptor, the late Helen Farnsworth Mears, at the public library.

Miss Mears' work is imaginative and thoughtful, finely expressive of the inner beauty and meaning of life. It is hoped that her masterpiece, "The Fountain of Life," symbolizing the three stages of Man's development, will eventually become the property of the state. The paintings at the Historical Museum are varied and highly interesting.

HAWKEYES WIN CHAMPIONSHIP OF BIG TEN

Iowa Annexes Conference Title For First Time Since 1900 With Team of Veterans

| Team | Percentage |
|--------------|------------|
| Iowa | 1.000 |
| Chicago | .800 |
| Ohio State | .800 |
| Wisconsin | .800 |
| Michigan | .750 |
| Indiana | .333 |
| Minnesota | .250 |
| Illinois | .250 |
| Purdue | .250 |
| Northwestern | .000 |

The curtain was dropped Saturday on one of the most successfully conducted football seasons since the organization of the Big Ten conference. Illinois' victory over Ohio State and Chicago's 3 to 0 victory over Wisconsin were the big events of the day.

The winner of the conference was not decided until Saturday, and, as usual, the one upset of the year occurred. The Suckers, after being defeated by every team on its schedule, rose to the occasion and spoiled the aspirations of Ohio State by a score of 7 to 0. Thus the Iowans were left the undisputed champions.

Champs Are Good

Coach Jones' aggregation gave the impression of being powerful when a win was registered over the strong Notre Dame team early in the season. The team seemed to improve with each game, and closed by bringing to Iowa the first championship since 1900. Capt. Aubrey Devine performed the best quarterback in the entire west. The work of fullback Locke was also a most brilliant nature, as no opposing line was able to check his onrushes.

These two ground-gainers were well supported by a line which was second to none in the conference. The colored tackle, Slater, was a tower of strength both on offense and defense, and the holes which he opened were responsible for the gains made by the Hawkeyes' famed off-tackle plays.

Maroons Deserve Second

Chicago is well deserving of second place in the conference. Staggs had a well-balanced eleven which displayed a versatile attack at all times and which was effective against all but one of its opponents. A defeat from the Buckeyes put the Maroons out of the running for the championship, but the season was well concluded by winning from the Badgers.

The Maroons made a name for themselves this season by being the first western team to invade the East and returning with a victory. This was done when the Princeton Tigers, who tied for the championship of the Big Three conference, were taken into camp by a score of 7 to 0.

While the Buckeyes have the same rating in the percentage column as do the Maroons, the 7 to 0 beating from Oberlin college in a preliminary game makes it necessary to credit them with only third place. Wilce built up a powerful team, however, which surprised the entire country by developing as fast as it did.

Badgers Rate Well

Wisconsin produced a team which was practically on a par with the strongest in the conference. A 3 to 0 defeat and a tie shattered its championship chances, but the team will go down in history as one of the most representative ever turned out at the university. The backfield was second to none, and it was only the breaks of the game that prevented the pennant from being captured.

Michigan's chances were given a jolt in the game against the Michigan Aggies, as several stars were sent to the sidelines for a great part of the season by injuries. The team did not become intact again

Everybody's Happy Illinois Hands Crepe to Wilce's Hopefuls

By CHUCK

The whole world is happy. For Ohio, the 1920 horsehoose champion, was beaten by Illinois, underdog of the Big Ten conference.

A.. Columbus is hung with crepe paper today. If there's a lack of it in the Buckeye state, Madison fans will gladly send a ton or more down to Wilce. He feels like a deserted wife. All dressed up for the championship party and then the "other woman" came along.

Zuppke must have fed his men on "Dago" red and turpentine. They made the German spring drive seem like a Memorial day procession of Civil war vets. They hit the Buckeyes so hard that a couple were picked up outside the field after the game. Nobody missed them. A moving picture of the game should be colored blood-red with streamers of white bandages. Zuppke's head will be decorated with a halo, and Captain Walquist has been offered two bottles of port wine because of his touchdown. What man could want more?

Wilce suspects dirty work. On Saturday morning he looked around for his charms, but the rabbit's foot, horseshoe, four-leaf clover, and swastika were gone. He immediately put in a petition to abolish all but the fourth quarter in the game, but it failed to go through. "Jack" has won so many games in the fourth period that he waits for it like kids do for Santa Claus. When the old last quarter rolls around, merchants hoist the American flag, Wilce whistles "Wait Till We Get 'Em in the Air, Boys," and Workman starts throwing those long passes. They're up in the air, too. Ohio ends wear stunts when the heavens come in the last quarter.

Workman busted up a card game the other day. He's so used to the open game that he shouted, "I pass" whenever the bid came to him.

Wilce and his gang were beaten. He gets the brown derby with a pink baby ribbon. "Illinois beat you, eh, Jack? Wish you many happy returns of the day."

Until the time came to play the Badgers, whom the Wolverines held to a tie score. In the meantime, the Buckeyes had administered a defeat to them. The eleven exhibited its best form of the season Saturday, when they licked Minnesota 35 to 0.

Indiana was one of the weaker teams of the conference, and a three game schedule is all that prevents it from being rated lower than Illinois. Coach "Jumbo" Stiehm's new system has not as yet shown itself to be productive, and the single victory was won from Purdue.

Williams Fails Again

For a second consecutive time, "Doc" Williams failed to turn out a team which resembled the Gophers old. Games were won from Indiana, and Northwestern, but severe beatings were taken from Wisconsin, Iowa, and Michigan. The team was well-coached and fairly heavy, but was simply outclassed by the majority of its opponents.

Although Illinois can only be given a rating of eighth place, the team at its best was but little weaker than the conference leaders. The real strength of the eleven was proven in the last game when Ohio's championship hopes was destroyed.

Purdue's season was somewhat successful in that the first victory in three years was won. On several occasions the Boilermakers looked good, but they failed to come through in the pinches.

The Purple failed to win a single conference game, but its extremely was hard schedule. The best form of the year was displayed Saturday when the champion Hawkeyes were held to a 14 to 0 score.

Thus it may be said that at least five of the conference teams were about on a par. This fact made the season a success.

Earl Thompson, Canadian who is attending Dartmouth, won the 110-meter high hurdles Olympic championship at Antwerp.

Country Men Finish Season With Success

After defeating both Minnesota and Chicago in dual meets this fall, the Wisconsin cross-country squad brought the 1921 season to a successful close Saturday by taking third place in the conference race at Bloomington.

"The inexperienced Wisconsin team did very well," said Coach Mead Burke. Out of 11 entering schools, the Badgers ran away from nine who are members of the Western conference, losing only to the veteran Illinois quintet of harriers. Running in a downpour of rain over a strange and difficult course, George Finkle '22, of Wisconsin, once more demonstrated his remarkable speed and untiring endurance by breaking the tape ahead of the field of seventy men.

Ristine of Iowa stepped out at first, and at one time was nearly half a mile ahead of the "galloping Badger," but the Wisconsin boy's steady stride cut him down before the finish. Over the whole five miles, Rathburn, of Ames, fought for the lead with Finkle and finished only a few paces in the rear of the winner.

Captain Mark Wall '22, dependable as always, ran a strong race and finished eighth, while Knutson, one of Coach Burke's new men, running his best race of the season, came in fourteenth, all of Wisconsin's first three men beating Funnas, the Olympic runner from Purdue.

Completing the Badger team, Rossmiessell and Daniels finished in good shape for forty-sixth and forty-ninth positions respectively.

Prospects are exceptionally bright for next year in the mill and dale sport. Of this year's team Finkle, Daniels, Rossmiessell, Ramsay, Schneider, and possibly Wall will be back, the first squad losing only Knutson and Moorhead. Of the 1920 team, Ross Noble will probably return to school, Jerry Wade will be eligible, and Wells Sherman, last year's freshman, will be back. In addition to these, many promising candidates have shown up this fall among the freshmen.

Frosh Beat Sophs

In the frosh-soph meet held here Friday, the freshmen won easily from the second year men. Thiesenhuisen came in first in 16:55 over the short course. Smithyman, frosh; Perry, frosh; Trier, frosh; Herrman, soph; Sommer, soph; and Suzuki, frosh, finished next in order. Hilberts and Dowling slipped on the muddy course and, injured, dropped out of the race.

Four Frosh Grid Men Out For Basketball

Four frosh football men have appeared for practice with the yearling basketball squad, so far," said Coach Clarence McIntosh yesterday. "I would like to have any others who have been out for the grid team and who have had some experience in basketball also, to report for practice this week."

The hours for practice have been changed from the afternoons of Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday to the evenings of same days. There are 45 men still out for the squad. Of these men, a few have shown themselves to be especially good. These men are Hertz of Stevens Point normal, Harris of Racine, and Leberman of Sheboygan. Harris was out for football, as were also Pollack, Leberman, and Turner.

Two men, D. Kimball of Deerfield Shields high school, Illinois, and O. Corey, Chaffey high school, Los Angeles, are the sole representatives of the West on the All-American scholastic track team.

Wefers, Craig, and Lippincott are tied for the world's record in the 220 yard dash. They all made the distance in 21 1-5 seconds.

Nohman Ross was America's chief scorer in the swimming events at the Olympic games.

DEFEAT PUTS WISCONSIN IN FOURTH PLACE

Great Badger Eleven Lacked Necessary Punch to Score at Crucial Points

Defeated in the game which dropped the curtain on Big Ten football Saturday, Wisconsin has been relegated to fourth place in conference standings.

What was called, after the Minnesota game, the best Wisconsin team since 1912 bowed in defeat before Chicago and was held to a tie by Michigan. The defeat was occasioned not by superior playing on the part of Chicago, but because Wisconsin lacked the necessary punch to cross the Maroons' goal line.

In the Michigan game, the same absence of snap when the ball neared their opponents' goal cost Wisconsin a victory over the Yostmen in their first battle since a historic game of 1905. Fourth place is no disgrace in such a season as 1921 which saw some of the best teams which have ever cavorted on a western gridiron. Chicago possessed players far superior to many of the older stars whose names have been inscribed in red letters in Maroon football history.

Iowa Gets Title

Iowa, champions for the first time since 1900, had a veteran team of stars, men who have been called the "greatest ever." Ohio State had the best balanced team that has ever represented that institution on the gridiron. Its excellent showing was due to perfect co-ordination and teamwork rather than to the individual brilliancy of Stinchcomb and Harley replicas.

Three chances to score against Chicago were literally thrown away by a fighting Badger eleven. The first came when "Rollie" Williams fumbled the ball on the Maroons' seven-yard mark. Wisconsin had marched down the field with rapidity and its irresistible attack had pushed the Stagmen far back into their own territory. With plenty of time and a variety of plays, Wisconsin should have counted. Sundt's failure to make a place-kick from the 30-yard line was a between the two lines and penultimate opportunity missed after Wisconsin had placed the sphere on their opponents' 20-yard mark.

Sundt Played Well

This same Captain Sundt played a whale of a game on Saturday. He was a marked man from the beginning of the game and Chicago players hit him with terrific force. The Badger leader was injured in the second quarter, but he refused ers, every member a sportsman. They played WISCONSIN had a great football team this year. It was a team of clean, hard fight-football as only "Big" John Richards can teach a team to play, as only a Wisconsin team can play; with fight, and punch, and brains. What if Wisconsin did not win the Conference title? The team put up a mighty good fight for it and certainly kept the other teams on their toes. Ohio did not get it anyhow, and as for Iowa, fate prevented a trial with her. The Wisconsin goal line was crossed but once in its five Conference games and that is no mean record.

Wisconsin owes the team a great deal. What it did for the school cannot be measured, for it welded together the students and made good the boast of "the Wisconsin spirit." Whatever cynics may say about the incompatibility of of football with an institution of higher learning, this is true: every man on the team was scholastically eligible. That type of parasite which gives nothing to the university and lowers its academic standards was not represented on the eleven.

The only reward for the members of the team is what feeble thanks we can give them, whatever joy there may be in the game itself, and the satisfaction of having won honor for Wisconsin. The joy of the game is small compared with the sacrifice made, and a true sportsman does not usually say with Cicero, "I have saved the Republic."

Thanks is the only reward the students can give. May they be generous with it.

COLLEGE MORALS AGAIN

THE moral side of college life seems to be the butt of considerable criticism this year. One cannot pick up a newspaper without reading where a speaker of prominence points to the moral decadence of the college student. The whole matter has reached the point where one begins to wonder just how bad things are, while the public gets the impression that colleges are places where not to send young people. The result is that people have a tendency to doubt the value of higher education, and to question the influence of college life.

Yesterday a well known Y. M. C. A. worker, Mr. A. I. Elliot, in a talk before the Madison Kiwanis club, stated that moral conditions in colleges were becoming deplorable. He declared that there was more drinking than there had been for 15 years, and that intercollegiate athletics were in danger of becoming extinct through the growth of betting at contests. He concluded with the sweeping charge that morality in schools has gone back four years.

The charge is a serious one and, if true, demands that the schools take stock of their moral liberties and begin a general house-cleaning. Perhaps conditions are worse than before the war, but has this decline in standards been confined to the schools? The increase in drinking in colleges has certainly not kept up with the increase in the world outside, and as for gambling, the impression has been that the last two years have been remarkably free from intercollegiate contest betting.

Wisconsin, at least, is endeavoring to block the growth of lack of religious conviction which Mr. Elliot claims is so menacing. The Campus Religious council is doing much in that direction, and with men like Prof. Charles Foster Kent speaking at convocations a great deal more will be done.

AN EASTERN GAME NEXT YEAR

NOW that the football season is over it is a good time to consider an eastern game for next year. The advantages of such a game are obvious and need not be touched upon. What is needed is the effort necessary to make the game possible. It is a project that will take the initiative of the student body rather than of the Athletic department alone, and now is the time for the students to take that initiative.

If the school shows enough enthusiasm it is not at all improbable that a game can be arranged. The question is, does the student body desire to turn the probability into a certainty? If so, it is better to get right at it before football ardor cools and before it is too late to arrange a contest.

CONTEMPORARIES

AMERICAN COLLEGE MEN

In many sections of the country the college men have been deemed fit subjects for jest and cartoonists have found a never ending source of inspiration for their pencils in the clothes, the habitats, the attitudes and the doings generally of these favored sons of fortune. Now fortunately all this has changed and the college men stand forth as leaders—men trained with the purpose of accomplishing large tasks.

The college men of today are taking an older and matured view of ethics and life. They are interested in the problems of government and the American people, because they feel that with them rests the ultimate solution of the great issues before the American nation. It is a noticeable fact that the university students in their fraternity and boarding houses are spending their leisure time debating with each other on these vital issues, rather than monopolizing the conversation with athletics, dances, and the passing things of today.

The seriousness of life has begun to present itself to the average student and he knows that in order to be a successful farmer, business man, engineer, or architect, he must have cognizance of the great fundamentals of social, political and economic sciences and be able to apply them to every-day life.—Daily Nebrakan.

STUDENT CRITICIZES "LIT"

Editor Daily Cardinal:

After reading the October issue of the Wisconsin Literary magazine the writer wishes to state clearly and emphatically that a magazine guilty of publishing such obscene trash has no place among university publications and certainly not in our university.

The phrase "so called Literary Magazine" which the editor so unwittingly makes use of on page 26 in describing his magazine would be a more appropriate title for the cover page than the one now in use.

From its title one would infer that its contents represented the best literary talent at Wisconsin. Is this the case? Are articles such as "Labor Day," "Anti-Climax," "Hard Boiled," "A Great Day," "Jijiboom Papers," and others of the same trend a credit to the university? Are you benefited by having read them? Are they fit to be read by any self-respecting person? From cover to cover with but few exceptions the articles published deal not with real life; but with that lower strata of human existence which is only to be found in the underworld and in the worst sections of our large cities.

Suppose a copy of the October issue of this "so called Literary Magazine" were sent to every home represented here at the university. I can only leave the results of such an action to your imaginations. Much has been said about the unjust criticism which has been launched against the university. Will publications such as the "Lit" which is advertised as a representative publication of the students and seemingly given the stamp of faculty approval, strengthen our position in refuting these attacks? Certainly this issue at least, can not have reached the attention of the faculty or others who are vitally interested in upholding Wisconsin standards and ideals.

The articles of this issue place the "Literary Magazine" in a class with "Snappy Stories," yellow journals and other cheap and offensive literature which caters to the depraved mind and offers immoral stimulations.

The fact that the numerous contributions received by the editors were not acceptable according to their standards which are clearly demonstrated by their own articles is proof positive that they in no way represent the literary tastes of the student body at large; but that they are out of touch with and entirely hostile to those higher ideals for which this university is striving.

It is now too late to recall this issue of the Literary magazine, but it should be the duty of the student body to suppress in the future all publications of this nature which are not truly representative of the University of Wisconsin.

GAIL PALMER '22.

GANGELIN ANSWERS

Editor Daily Cardinal:

I appreciate the opportunity you give me to comment on the communication appearing in this morning's Cardinal concerning the "Lit."

The communication itself is so grossly abusive and in such bad taste that it does not deserve a serious attempt at defense. However, since it is probably a fantastic distortion of a general opinion, I wish to make clear that the editors are quite as fully conscious as your correspondent that a degree of bad judgment was used in selecting material for the last number. The offense was not intended, and we regret it.

But it is impossible to subscribe to an indiscriminating indictment of everything that appeared in the October "Lit." There is no ethical or artistic justification for such a criticism. Furthermore, it strikes me as being rather ridiculous to declare in the same letter that the editors of the Lit are incompetent and that the writer is in possession of the knowledge of what "real" life is. The Lit is always subject to criticism, but it is not subject to unthinking abuse.

Chinese Students

Wants Arms Parley to Adjust Far East

That the Disarmament conference now meeting in Washington restore to China the rights and land that other nations have taken from her is advocated in a statement of the Chinese students' committee on the conference.

The students pledge themselves to use their influence with their delegates and people to the end that they will co-operate loyally with the delegates and peoples of other participating nations at the conference. They believe, however, that no appreciable limitation of armaments will be possible without a real and lasting settlement of the Far Eastern question.

Four principles which form the basis for such a settlement as they desire are presented by the committee. They ask, first, that treaties which were forced on China without provocation and which have not been ratified by the parliament of the republic be declared null and void.

Foreign financial assistance for the development of China should be on a co-operative and business basis, and commercial activities in China should be for mutual benefit, the committee believes.

Treaties and conventions whose provisions violate Chinese administrative and territorial integrity, such as the curtailment of Chinese tariff autonomy and leased territories, should be revised or abolished immediately, the statement continues.

Alliances or agreements concluded between two or more foreign countries for the purpose of creating a special interest in China should not be allowed to exist, says the committee, in conclusion.

Northwestern Y Secretary Talks to Kiwanians; Soldier to Blame

"Unless the people rise up, we are going to lose our intercollegiate football," said A. J. Elliott of Northwestern University, in an address to the Kiwanis club Monday noon.

"Gambling is breaking out in the colleges and universities that ought to be considered by our business men, for no business man wants to build on this foundations."

Mr. Elliott said that he believed the returned soldier had much to do with this spirit.

"We cannot help but to expect the returned soldier in his reactions to have little religious convictions. You can challenge the best element in Wisconsin to block that out. We're never going to solve this college problem unless we stop it in the High School."

Mr. Elliott then told how the High school copied the worst acts of the university only. The Kiwanis offered their support to help in cleaning this trouble up. F. G. Leiser, secretary of the city "Y" received a turkey in the drawing of the prize of the club offered each week.

Gilmore Writes Article in October Law Review

Howard Jones Puts Williams and Bunge On Mythical Eleven

Two members of the Wisconsin football team, Williams and Bunge, were given places on the mythical all-conference eleven picked by Coach Howard Jones of Iowa. He gives his own team four places, Ohio three, and Chicago two.

Hawkeyes Win Big Ten Championship

to leave the game. Torn ligaments in his shoulder pained him throughout, but not until the beginning of the last period did Sundt consent to be laid off the field. It was a game exhibition of football in the face of a severe injury. Sundt was also suffering from a "charley-horse" sustained in practice during the week of the Chicago game. Four times he kicked more than 50 yards to put Wisconsin out of danger. Accurately placed and sailing far down the field, his punts staved off defeat until the last quarter and put the highly-touted booter, Milton Romney, to shame.

Brader Off-Side

"Jimmy" Brader was the unlucky lad who went off-side on Crisler's unsuccessful place-kick from the 22-yard mark. Officials claimed that Brader had passed the neutral zone trated into the Chicago forward wall before the ball was snapped. A penalty of five yards for Wisconsin cancelled Crisler's missed boot, and Romney took things into his own hands to count the winning trio of points. If Crisler's play had not been called off, Wisconsin would have been given the oval on its 20-yard line with a chance to complete long forward passes in the last minutes of play.

As it was, the Badgers seriously threatened, and a long heave brought the ball to midfield just as the last whistle blew. Gibson threw some nice spirals, but "Rowdy" Elliott muffed the ball when he was delegated to do the throwing on two plays.

"T" Gains Ground

"T" Gould was the left-half of old in the Maroon contest. Time after time he was given the ball successively, and on each attempt, he rolled up yardage for Wisconsin. His defensive work was also of the highest calibre. That Gould is a versatile player is shown by his adeptness in playing defensive left end, offensive left half, and fullback after Captain Sundt was re-Pyott and Thomas of Chicago were effective ball-carriers, Captain "Chuck" McGuire closed his career in bang-up fashion, and "Fritz" Crisler at end had three men after him nearly all of the time on end-run plays.

No Union Dance Wednesday Night

As Union board was unable to get a suitable orchestra it will not hold a dance at Lathrop hall Wednesday evening. The Friday and Saturday night dances will be held as usual.

Offense is Defence Says Rev. Worcester

"Offense is the only satisfactory means of defense," said the Rev. E. S. Worcester in his Sunday morning sermon at the First Congregational church. Purely defensive armament is no longer possible according to the Rev. Worcester.

"What do we mean by defense?" he asked. "Nations build for defense, their defense becomes an offense to other nations, who in turn, create more weapons of offense in their effort to protect themselves, thus producing a continual see-saw between nations."

House Body Reports Deficiency Bill Slash

WASHINGTON — A deficiency appropriation bill carrying approximately $104,000,000 or $86,000,000 less than the $190,000,000 requested by various government departments was reported today by the house appropriations committee today.

The navy asked for $27,000,000 and was granted nothing while the veterans' bureau which requested $121,000,000 was allotted $65,000,000.

READ CARDINAL ADS

Reading Is Better Than Rummaging

When you go to buy a pair of boots, a malted milk, or a party dress, do you know what you want? Or do you just take "pot luck?"

You can save a dollar and many an hour's time if you know beforehand what your money is going to get you—and where to go to get it.

Merchants with established reputations are the best with whom to deal.

Merchandise with established reputations is always the best to buy.

If it is clothing, you know how well it should wear and what the style should be.

If its a musical instrument, you know what to expect in tone and workmanship.

If its a carpet sweeper, you know what kind of service it should give.

David Crackett said, "Be sure you're right, then go ahead."

The way to be sure of the goods you buy is to read Cardinal ads regularly. Buy advertised goods and you can't go wrong.

Reading advertisements is far better than rummaging around aimlessly.
