GLEE CLUB GETS FOUR DAY TRIP IN FEBRUARY

Close Arrangements For Concerts in Milwaukee and Sheboygan

Negotiations for a four day concert tour to be taken February 13, 14, 15 and 16 by the men's glee club have been closed, it was announced yesterday by J. F. Murphy, L2, manager of the club.

The most important concert will be given at Milwaukee the night of February 13, to be followed by an appearance at Sheboygan February 14 and at either Manitowoc or Fond du Lac February 15. On the return trip the club will stop at South Milwaukee for a concert February 16. By special permission of the student life and interest committee, the Friday afternoon of the weekend and the Monday following will be allowed the club for the trip.

Hold Rehearsals

The glee club has been holding extra rehearsals for several weeks in anticipation of the early trip this year, and as a result is already fairly well prepared for the series of concerts.

In order to obtain new and distinctive posters to advertise the club in the towns where it will appear, a contest is being held in the art classes under the direction of A. N. Colt of the applied arts department. A prize of $5 for the best poster presented and a pair of passes to the club's Madison performance for the next week are the incentives offered.

Live Posters Needed

"Because of the increased extent of the trips we have scheduled for this year, it is necessary that we have some live posters," said George Bunker '27 in charge of the contest. "Wisconsin spirit is what we want to get across."

A second booking tour will be taken by Murphy during the Christmas vacation, at which time the bookings for the spring tour of the club will be made. Tentative plans call for appearances in five cities in Iowa, including Cedar Rapids, Iowa Falls, and Davenport, a concert at Winona, Minnesota, and half a dozen concerts in towns in Wisconsin.

ETA KAPPA NU ELECTS NINE TO MEMBERSHIP

Eta Kappa Nu, honorary electrical engineering fraternity, announces the election of Donald H. Corey '25, Harold F. Hoebel '25, George E. Megow '25, LeRoy F. Laube '25, Harry C. Thayer '25, Vincent A. Thiemann '25, Robert R. Yehle '25, Lynn H. Matthias '26, and Harry C. Wolfe '26.

DEBATING TRYOUTS TO BE HELD JANUARY 8

The final trials for the intercollegiate debating teams have been postponed from today to Thursday, January 8, it was announced yesterday by Prof. J. M. O'Neill of the speech department.

Engineers to Hold Annual Song Fete Tomorrow Night

The fourth annual Christmas song fete of the College of Engineering will be held tomorrow night in the Lathrop concert room. President Birge will deliver a Christmas message.

For the first time since the annual fete was started, decorations will be used. Money for the trees and ornaments that will be used was obtained through a collection that the freshmen of the class voluntarily took up.

The freshmen are taking the initiative in planning the program this year. Prof. E. B. Gordon of the extension division is training an orchestra and a chorus that will be used tomorrow night. Both students and members of the families of the engineering faculty will take part in the chorus and orchestra.

Ring Lardner Presents New Grid Song in Lit, Out Today

Ring Lardner introduces a new Wisconsin football song into the six-act playlet, "Taxidea Americana," which is featured in the December number of the Wisconsin Literary magazine on sale today. In six acts, unequalled for brevity and wit, Ring Lardner intimately covers every phase of Wisconsin life from the "Ag" school to football, from state politics and La Follette to medics. The play is a genuine Lardner product and makes its initial bow in the "Lit."

Second in point of interest is "Intimacies"—a sketch with an ambiguous turn to it. The prudish might question its propriety or lack of propriety. Nevertheless, from an artistic point of view, the subject is ably handled. Marguerite Andersen '26, is the author.

"Love Money," by Willett Main Kempton '26, is true story of a young American soldier in France who paid three million dollars for love and lost. The villain in the tale is an "innocent gold-digger." Kempton's story is based on a trial scene which he witnessed in Coblenz during a visit to Europe last year.

It's an old, old story—one only too familiar to student ears—that Argon the Lazy recounts in his "Discourses on the Beauties of an Allowance." How the illusive allowance "flits, leaves, goes, hies hence, departs, and steals away" is traced with experienced skill by the author.

He who would aspire to contribute to a detective story magazine, would do well to heed the authoritative instructions which Wilson A. Moran '25, gives in "How to Write a Detective Story."

Four short poems by Edna Romig, Paula Otten '25, Jessie Corrigan '27, and Daisy Grenzow '27, a series of "Elegies for John Reed, Buried in the Kremlin, 1921," by Marya Zaturenska, and "Five Translations from the Chinese of Li Po," constitute the poetry in this issue.

CAPART LECTURES ON EGYPTIAN ART

University of Liege Professor
Tells of Times of Ancient Pharaohs

Illustrating his remarks on "The Problems of Egyptian Aesthetics," by slides depicting the various stages in the development of Egyptian art, Prof. Jean Capart of the University of Liege traced the progress of art in Egypt at the time of the ancient pharaohs, yesterday afternoon in Bascom hall.

Professor Capart is an authority on the subject of Egyptian art and has made five expeditions to that country. He is commander of the Order of the Nile and at present is curator of one of the large museums of Brussels.

Speaking of the earliest art, Professor Capart said that no record of what belongs to the earliest period of formative art after the invasions and the restoration exists. The artists after the restoration did not create a new art, but merely revived the old, he said. It is the hope of all Egyptologists that soon documents will be found to throw light on the subject of the earlier epoch.

The tombs of the kings provided material for Professor Capart's discussion. "In every tomb there were miniatures, carved in wood or in stone, which portrayed men working for their masters. These little figures were placed in the tombs to guide the deceased to their other life.

He further claimed that in each tomb there was at least one, and more often two or more statues of the deceased. These statues were placed there in order that the souls of the deceased might have new bodies with which to continue their journey.

Use of Models is Explained By Corp in Engineers' Mag

Featuring an illustrated article on the use of experimental models in engineering design, written by Prof. Charles L. Corp of the department of hydraulics and sanitary engineering, the December number of the Wisconsin Engineer was placed on sale this morning.

The stories of the recent inspection trips taken by the seniors are told by Robert R. Yehle '25, who writes of the western trip, and Vernon W. Palen '25, who covers the eastern expedition.

The alumni notes contain numerous extracts from alumni letters. E. E. Ellicott, a staff artist, contributes one of his sketches to this department. A review of engineering progress during the month by J. P. Smith, and comment on athletics by G. H. Abendroth are other features of this issue.

FRENCH COMEDIES OFFERED TONIGHT

Dr. Russo Directs One Act
Plays at Lathrop Concert
Room

"L'Ete de la Saint-Martins" and "La Gamme," two one act comedies, are to be given by French students at 8 o'clock tonight at Lathrop concert room. They are being directed by Dr. J. S. Russo, Italian department, and managed by Beatrice B. Wadleigh '25.

The "Rendezvous," a dance during the interlude, will be presented by Lucille Salentine '25, Harriet Smith '27, Julia Harrington '24, and Marion Schallert, accompanist.

The store of "L'Ete de la Saint-Martins" is that of a young man, who, marrying against his uncle's will, presents her to his uncle as his niece. The uncle falls in love with the niece, and at the critical moment her identity is revealed. The cast includes Ingeborg Severson '26, as Adrienne; Gladys Harloff, grad, as Madame Lebreton; Harold Griffin '25 as Noel; and George Hocking '25 as Briqueville.

"La Grammaire" is also a one act farce. Caboussat, played by Maurice Leven, has political aspirations but being hindered by his difficulty with grammar, especially with participles, he has Blanche, played by Louise Barbee '27, serve as his grammar, hence the title. Poitrinas, acted by Graydon De Land, is the comic character who has a mania for collecting antiquities demonstrated by recovering from the garbage heap all the possible antiques which Jeanne, the maid, played by Marian Spater '27, discards. The other character in the play is Macheut, played by Oral Marse.

Admission is 35 cents.

LIBRARY ANNOUNCES HOLIDAY REGULATIONS

Books may be drawn out of the library for the Christmas recess, according to regulations issued by the university librarian yesterday. Reserve books, of which the library has two or more copies, may be taken out, however, at least one copy of each book must be left in the library. Any book in regular circulation, from shelves one to twelve, may be taken out for the entire recess. All books drawn out for the entire period must be returned by 8:15 o'clock Tuesday morning, January 6.

GOODNIGHT HITS MADISON PAPERS ON SPORTS STAND

Charges "Mud Slinging" By Publications is Hindering
Athletic Revival

Charging the sports writers of both Madison city newspapers with "mud slinging," Dean Scott H. Goodnight, member of the athletic council, at a meeting of the sophomore lunch club, yesterday noon vigorously asserted that it is the attitude of both city papers which, to no small degree, is obstructing an athletic revival at Wisconsin.

"I think," said Dean Goodnight, "that the constant anvil chorus against our athletic department directed by the city papers, is a very bad thing. I believe Jack Ryan should have another year to demonstrate whether or not he can coach a team. He was brought here after careful consideration of his past record. If Jack Ryan doesn't coach his team any better next year than he has in the past, he will not be retained. That is no secret, and nobody knows this better than Ryan himself. Let's give him a fair chance."

Keeps Athletes Away

Dean Goodnight was of the opinion that constant slurs on the conduct of athletes by the two city papers would definitely deter good athletes from coming to Wisconsin. "I don't know of anything that will prevent our athletic come-back as much as these newspaper knocks we are getting," he said.

These remarks preluded a talk on "Traditions and the Sophomore Class," in which Dean Goodnight analyzed traditions and explained the changes that had been brought about, particularly with regard to the tradition of hazing.

Too Much "Fussing."

Pointing with alarm to the reputation of Wisconsin as a place for "fussing parties," "stacomb artists" and "lounge lizards," Dean Goodnight cautioned that grounds for such belief were, to some extent, founded.

"Aren't we dancing too much?" he asked. "There are 30 public dances per month, and 80 fraternities and sororities which are holding at least one party a month. This means 900 dancing parties a year, and an approximate expenditure of $100,000 a year for dancing."

PAPERS IN RIGHT, BRAYTON SAYS

Replying immediately to Dean S. H. Goodnight's charges made yesterday at the sophomore lunch club, that Madison city papers, through constant criticism of the university athletic policies, were deterring capable athletic material from coming to Wisconsin, A. M. Brayton, publisher of the Wisconsin State Journal, characterized as ridiculous the allegations that Madison's newspapers were in any de-

Hip Flask Sales to Students Will Be Investigated

An investigation of the sale of hip flasks in stores of the student district will be forthcoming immediately as a result of the action of the sophomore lunch club yesterday in condemning known cases of the sale of this article and demanding further information concerning such sale.

One store, patronized to a great extent by students, is exhibiting these flasks in a conspicuously placed show case, it was charged, during the meeting.

Orville Schwoerke '27, president of the club, suggested that the club take under consideration certain campus situations which need remedying. A motion was thereupon passed unanimously that a committee of one be appointed to investigate this sale, and report to the officers of the club, in order that future action be taken. Bernard Goodkind '27, was appointed to investigate.

CINDERPATH ADDITION UNDER CONSTRUCTION FOR SPRING SEASON

Western Conference Outdoor Track Meet May Be Held Here

A new 220 yard straightaway is being constructed at Camp Randall and will be completed in time to be used for the Minnesota dual track meet this spring, May 23.

The addition consists of an extension of the track on the east side of the stadium to the junction of Monroe and Regent streets. This will enable the runners to start the 220 yard dash at the street corner end of the track and finish in front of the stands. It will also mean that the quarter mile can be run with only one turn.

Will Be Olympic Size

Olympic dimensions will be no greater than those of the Wisconsin track when this extension is completed. The University of Pennsylvania has a track of Olympic size and Chicago is planning one. Iowa and Ohio State are the only Big Ten institutions now having 220 yard straightaways, though Minnesota is planning to install one.

The western conference meet will probably be held here next year, in which case the new track will be in fine shape, having had time to settle and pack. Once before, in 1913, the western conference meet was held here, and now the athletic council and Coach Jones are making every effort to get it again for Wisconsin.

Durable Construction

The extension, built like the rest of the track, will be 26 feet wide and the material used will be two feet deep. There will be five separate layers, and each layer will be soaked and rolled with a 20 ton roller. First come about four inches of limestone slabs, then clinkers and coarse cinders, followed by finer cinders from the boilers, with a quarter inch layer of sifted cinders on top of that, and surmounting it all, a layer of top dressing of soft coal ashes, cinders, and clay.

With the idea of making an additional field, the entire space which lies between the south side of the stadium and Regent street is being filled. The track extension will run through one side of this field, but the rest may be used for varsity football practice, a varsity baseball diamond, and a soccer field. It will be enclosed with an iron and concrete fence which will complete the enclosure of the intercollegiate unit.

AFTER HOLIDAYS, THEN THE JUMP

George Martin Will Direct Skiing Classes For Men and Women

Skiing classes for both men and women will begin immediately after the holidays, according to George W. Martin, director of winter sports. The classes will be conducted by the Badger Ski club, under direction of Mr. Martin.

"We want to encourage skiing among the women as well as the men," Mr. Martin said. "They are welcome in all our skiing classes." Classes will be held every Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock for beginners, and every Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock for those more advanced.

Two groups will be formed, one for beginners in cross-country skiing, under the instruction of Mr. Martin; and the other, under supervision of the members of the Badger Ski club, will go out to College Hills to practice jumping.

SUPREMACY CUP PLANS PROMULGATED TONIGHT

Fraternity representatives will meet tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock in the intramural office to draw up full plans for the intramural "supremacy cup." This will be the last chance for fraternities to enter the lists for the cup. Director George Berg urges that all fraternities have their representatives at the meeting.

Results of the interfraternity basketball games of the last few days are:

December 11, Theta Xi defeated Chi Psi 34-4.

December 13, Theta Xi defeated Chi Phi 18-8. Theta Delta Chi defeated Alpha Kappa Alpha 14-8.

December 15, Pi Kappa Alpha defeated Farmhouse 12-10. Tau Kappa Epsilon defeated Delta Upsilon 11-10.

So It Seems

Hard workouts are in line this week on the basketball floor. Spooner may not be in shape for the Butler game Friday night, and this will mean that the combination that worked against Wabash will be used again, with the possibility that Martell will be used instead of Merkle.

Basketball followers will see a real team in action when Butler comes here Friday night. Pat Page has nearly the same team this year that trimmed Franklin last season and everyone knows what Franklin was last year.

Followers of the Badger team may have another chance to see the varsity in practice this week, but Meanwell is not yet certain whether one will be held.

A banquet, given by the Association of Commerce for the varsity football team, all-Americans, freshmen football players, and cross country runners, will be given tonight. A number of students have purchased tickets for the Orpheum party following the banquet.

All the football men and runners who are to go to the banquet can get their tickets from Coach Jones' secretary in the gymnasium.

FOUR GRIDIRON MEN GRADUATE

Jack Harris Will Neither Play Professional Ball Nor Coach

Four Wisconsin football stars played their last intercollegiate game against Chicago, November 22. Now these four men, Captain Harris, Miller, Teckemeyer, and Bieberstein, will graduate from the University of Wisconsin into the University of Hard-Knocks.

Jack Harris, Racine, captain of the 1924 team, has not definitely decided what he is going to do. He has made up his mind neither to play professional football nor to coach. Jack has received several attractive business offers, but has, as yet, not made up his mind which he will accept.

Carl Miller, Fennimore, veteran lineman, also has received several business offers, but, like Harris, he has not decided which to accept. Oscar Teckemeyer, Madison, will probably go in business with his father; however, he does not yet definitely know what he will do. Adolph Bieberstein, Phillips, will be in school next fall. "Bieb" has one more year in the law school. However, he has played football for three years and will not be eligible for football next fall.

LIKE Tom Brown, when he went down from Oxford, the university man today goes home for the holidays and is envied by the town boys who may not go away to school. Before going he touches up his wardrobe so that when he arrives he will appear at his best, the traditional smartly dressed college man.

Whether he needs a three button lounge suit, a forty-eight inch slip-on overcoat or a black fur coat, he goes for it to the shop where he knows he will be suited. If he is looking for dinner clothes for holiday affairs he goes to the same place. At Wisconsin that store is Karsten's.

BADGER CAGEMEN
FACE HARD GAME
AGAINST BUTLER*Men Who Tasted Wabash Tilt
Are All in Good Shape

With the entire squad in condition the team faces one of the hardest weeks of practice that it will have during the whole season. All of the men who played in the Wabash game are in the best of condition, and eager for the fray against Butler. "Doc" Spooner is still on the side lines with an injured knee. Meanwell is not taking the chance of playing him now and having him put out of the conference games with further injury.

Badger Stumbling Block

The game that confronts the team this week is much harder than the Wabash game. The Page men are the stumbling block of the Badgers, and the Cardinal men will have to work hard to defeat this strong quintet. Butler has most of their old men back—the team that gave the Meanwell men a bad scare last year, and they will be one of the hardest teams that the Badgers will face. The date for the game has not been definitely set, but it looks as though it will be held Friday, December 19.

The game against the "little giants" showed many defects in the Badger team which must be drilled out before they appear on the floor again. If Spooner is able to be in the lineup for the Butler game, Wackman will probably go to his old guard position and Barwig will go on the bench ready to replace him.

Martell Will Play

Martell showed up so well in the last part of the game that he will be given a chance to play in the next game. The other forward with Spooner will be the subject for a great deal of dispute, for the three men that are fighting for the berth are all good, and it will be a hard matter to decide among them.

The next open practice is not definite, but it is likely that one may be held as part of this week's practice schedule. It is certain that much of the week will be taken up with improving the shooting and free throwing, for the varsity men were weak in this department of the game.

Cage Jottings

The basketball season is in full swing now; football is forgotten, and the doings of the eagles is the main thing in the sport world now.

Four Western conference teams saw action Saturday night. Three of them won, and Iowa, the fourth team in action, lost to Wabash.

The Wabash Little Giants conquered the Hawkeyes by a 28 to 24 score.

Ohio still continued to show strong. This time it was Western Reserve of Cleveland who crumpled under the Buckeye attack. When the whistle blew, and the second Ohio team had played a half, the score was 45 to 15.

Illinois opened her basketball season by defeating De Pauw, 27 to 23. The Badgers play De Pauw after Christmas vacation, and at that time we will have an opportunity to use comparative scores. Karnes, Mauer, and Hollopeter played the best game for the Orange and Blue.

Led by the flashy Haggerty, Michigan opened her season by smothering the Michigan Aggies, 26 to 10. Coach Mather used two whole teams against the Aggies, in order to get a good line on his material.

It is significant to notice that Milliken University massacred the famous "Golden Avalanche" of Marquette, 22 to 12, Saturday night. I guess nothing dislodged

Coach Jones Speeds Up Baton PassingFROSH TUMBLERS
LOSE TO VARSITY*Captain Schmidt Takes Individual Honors With 264 Points

In what was undoubtedly the closest Frosh-Varsity meet that has ever been held, Coach Schlatter's gym team won by a score of 753 to 713, a bare 40 point lead. Fortunately, however, this score does not show a weakness on the part of the regular men, but indicates that this year's frosh will develop into some of the best varsity material that has been seen in years.

Captain Schmidt, last year's conference champion, was the outstanding star of the meet. In each department his work was stellar, the figures showing that he alone scored 264 of the varsity's points. Both Hicks and Huxley fell below expectations, yet Coach Schlatter is confident that their work can be improved by the time of the opening conference meeting.

Heavy 1925 Schedule.

According to Coach Schlatter, the Saturday following the holidays, will start the strongest schedule that any Wisconsin gym team has ever had.

On this day the inter-college meet will be held, and the winners will receive their letters. The following week the interclass meet will come off, with numerals going to the winners. On January 24, a silver loving cup will be awarded to the winner of the all-university competition. Following this the team will enter the regular conference schedule, which consists of dual meets with Minnesota, Chicago, and Purdue. At the end of this schedule, Wisconsin will send the team to the conference meet at Minnesota, on March 21.

The Navy, with whom Chicago opens its season, continued showing strength by defeating Columbia, 40 to 19. With Alyea gone, it seems as though Chicago will have its hands too full to subdue the sailors when they come to Bartlett gymnasium.

Butler is here Friday night, and they will offer real competition. They are national amateur champions, having won the title at Kansas City last spring. Last year the Meanwell men sneaked off with a 25 to 23 win. Butler is out to uphold its title this year, and counts on taking Wisconsin into camp.

Dash and Middle Distance Men Put Through Hard Session

"Too slow, too slow" was the favorite saying of Coach Jones last night as he sent all his dash and middle distance men through a stiff drill in passing the baton. This is one of the most important elements in the running of a relay race. A team that has the art of baton passing well mastered has a great advantage over its competitors.

Many a fast relay team has lost a race that could otherwise have been won because one of the men dropped the baton or made a poor pass. Coach Jones demonstrated the proper method of passing the stick, and then divided the men into pairs and sent them around the track mastering his method of relay stick passing.

Fast Turns Hard

Another great difficulty with relay running, especially on an indoor track, is that the men do not know the proper way of taking the short turns of the indoor cinderpath. Oftentimes a speedy runner is thrown off his balance in taking a sharp turn at a high rate of speed and the race is lost. "Swing wide and toe in" is Coach Jones' method of remedying this fault.

A squad of pole vaulters was kept busy by Mead Burke, Wisconsin lost a good pole vaulter when Captain Hammond graduated last June and it will take plenty of hard work to develop a man that can place as consistently as the ex-Badger captain.

Weight Men Needed

Weight men is the crying need of the track squad at present. Of course some of the football men will report after the holidays but there should be more than these and there should be some men working on the shot put now if Wisconsin is to score in this event in the coming indoor meets.

Work has been started on repairing track in the annex. A load of dirt has been spread over the old floor of the annex and by the time the men return from the Christmas vacation the track and floor of the annex will be in first class condition.

Hylan Declares He'll Not Retire as Mayor

NEW YORK — John F. Hylan, today told the board of estimate that he would be mayor of New York for another term.

"If anybody has got any thought in their mind that I intend to retire, let them get rid of it," he said. "I will be on this job until I am 60 years old."

WRESTLERS WORK FOR MAROON TILTSquad Greatly Handicapped By Injuries to Several Men

The varsity wrestlers are doing some intensive training this week in preparation for the Chicago meet January 9, and if men now injured recover by that date, the team will be in fair condition to meet the Maroons.

Injuries have been the greatest handicap during the past week. Ivan Branham '26 broke his ankle last week, putting him out of competition in the 158-pound division; and David Minkow '27 tore a ligament in his chest, but it is expected that he will be in shape for the meet. Charles Chada '26 will probably compete in the Chicago meet, as his broken nose is healing faster than was expected.

Workouts During Vacation

Wrestling Coach George Hitchcock expects to have the squad come back for work on December 28, but most of the men will have an opportunity to workout during the entire holiday recess.

"Bob" Wheeler '27, William Splees '27, Lyle Zodtner '26, and Max Brackett '26 will remain in Madison during their vacation and will continue wrestling. David Minkow will train with his brother, who is a noted wrestler at South Bend, Indiana. The Green Bay Athletic club will afford facilities for Chada to keep in condition and Randal Elmer '26 has the same opportunity at his home Y. M. C. A.

Hog Receipts Set New Record; Prices Slump

CHICAGO—By far the greatest number of hogs ever received in Chicago on a single day arrived here this morning, 122,000 head. This, was 8,000 hogs left over from Saturday unsold, made the total on the market equal to a normal three days' supply for the packing houses here.

Space to yard the army of hogs that were being unloaded was lacking and the alleys as well as the pens were crowded almost to the point of suffocation. An immediate drop of 25 cents a hundred weight resulted.

PLAN TO FLOOD LOWER CAMPUS DURING VACATIONCentral Spot Will Afford More Space Than Lake Clearing

Students returning after the holidays on January 6, should bring their skates with them, as the entire lower campus will be flooded and ready for skating by that time, according to an announcement made by Arthur E. Timm, president of the Winter Sports club. Plans are being made by the club to flood the lower campus from Langdon street to State street, and from the library to the wire fence near the Campus restaurant during the Christmas vacation.

Eliminates Roughness

It was decided by the Winter Sports club that the lower campus will be much more advantageous for skating than the lake was last year because the space available skating will be much larger than the spot cleared on the lake last year. Besides this, declares Timm, the new rink will be more centrally located for the student body, the snow will not be allowed to accumulate, and cracks and rough ice will be entirely eliminated.

A shack will be put up for the skaters where they can put on their skates and warm up. The hockey rink to be used by the varsity squad will be in the center of the larger rink, surrounded by embankments, but the space left around this will be large enough to accommodate all who care to skate.

Expert skating instructors, both men and women, will be furnished by the Winter Sports club to teach those who wish instructions. In addition, regular skating classes will be conducted by George Martin, director of winter sports.

Those students interested in winter sports may join at the meeting of the Winter Sports club to be held at 7:15 o'clock this evening in Dr. Elsom's office of the men's gymnasium. A board of control will be appointed and the work on the program for the year will be definitely started.

OUR SUPERIORITY

How many of us do not really inwardly think ourselves superior to our grandfathers, or at least the products of a superior age? Do we all not pity those men and women who were unable to have the perfect glories of the histrionic art brought to them by the moving picture, who were forced to make for themselves so many of the articles which machine slaves produce for their fortunate descendants, who were not able to talk with their neighbors through the simple means of detaching a telephone receiver from its hook, who could not go to sleep in Pittsburgh and awake in New York City? And, as for our more distant progenitors of the Middle Age, are we not absolutely contemptuous of their ignorance, of their superstition, of their blind faith, of their regard for form and symbol?

Upon how firm a basis stands this fancied superiority? It is true beyond the shadow of a doubt that the lives of this generation are replete with things unknown to our grandfathers, and undreamed of by our more distant ancestors. But real superiority cannot be measured in "things", it must be considered in terms of happiness and spiritual progress. Happiness cannot be measured in absolute terms—and we have no accurate means of comparing our happiness with that of those who have gone before us. And yet are there legitimate reasons for supposing that we, who are enabled to spend our evenings stifling with hundreds of others, watching unreal people flit across a screen in dreams in which the only reality portrayed is the material part, the setting; are we any happier than grandfather and grandmother who were forced to spend their evenings in reading (probably the Bible or Pilgrim's Progress would be the only books at hand) in sleep, or in the simple pleasures which the time afforded, and, in the latter case, if they were so fortunate as to see a drama, it would stand greater likelihood of being "Hamlet" than of being "Puritan Passion". Even the so-called educational side of moving pictures is purely materialistic—we are shown how the most beautiful flowers are produced—very interesting, but would it have harmed us greatly to believe that "they just grew"?

Are we happier because we can buy the things we use and wear? Certainly we do not always use and wear better things. And the telephone—no one will deny that it enables us to talk more, but do we talk more wisely or more truly? As for the railroad another means of rapid locomotion, they have perhaps contributed to man's happiness, and yet a Ruskin said—"You enterprise a railroad through the valley—you blasted its rocks away, heaped thousands of tons of shale into its lovely stream. The valley is gone, and the Gods with it; and now, every fool in Buxton can be at Bakewell in half-an-hour and every fool in Bakewell at Buxton; which you think is a lucrative process of exchange—you Fool everywhere."

The Middle Ages—are we not prone to include in our contempt for their ignorance their virtues of fidelity, loyalty, and chivalry. Our system of universal education may conceivably be the salvation of mankind, but at present we may not consider it a mixed good and must watch for its dangers, for knowledge which is becoming to be universal is possessed is a very little knowledge, and it has been truly remarked that a little knowledge is dangerous indeed. Again with our Science of which we are justly proud, Ruskin said—and John Ruskin was indeed a superior man—"All true science is 'savoir faire'. But all your modern science is the contrary of that. It is 'savoir mourir'."

In judging the Past, we are apt to glance at externals and jump to a conclusion. An example, although a minute and not totally satisfactory one, of his tendency in the thought of the present day average man is this—Wise men tell us that life in Classical Greece was very beautiful; that perhaps they were happier than we; at all events, that we can learn much from their civilization. We think a moment, remember that the Greeks had slaves and then say, "Ah, no, the Greeks held men in slavery, surely their civilization is far inferior to ours." We disregard the fact that even a gross fundamental fault in civilization does not obviate the possibility of learning from its other phases, and, even in the case of slavery, we are far too ready to assume that slaves are not happy. Granted that their persons were not free, their minds were, and they were likewise free from the mental strain which comes to our modern industrial slave. Who dares to say that the Greek slave, of even an indifferently good master, entirely free from the worry of making a living was less happy than the modern wage-earner, whose capacity for beauty is stifled by the material demands of supporting a family?

To preach the idealization of the Past is foolish and dangerous, but equally so is the idealization of the Present, and today there are many who sincerely believe that this is The Greatest Age, that we have absorbed all that was good and left behind all that was bad in the Past, and that the most the Future can hold is further development along present lines. To preach even idealization of the Past to these would hardly be harmful, for they are so thoroughly absorbed in idealization of the Present, that stern measures are needed to awaken them to the fact that past ages and civilizations have much to teach the men of today that our superiority is as much fancied as real.

SAMUEL GOMPERS

Perhaps not more than half a dozen students in the university are at present active members in the American Federation of Labor; probably there are many times that number who do not know what the federation is; nevertheless the passing of the organization's leader will have a direct influence upon us, either in the near future or at least within a year.

Samuel Gompers came to America without anything but a trade. At the time of his death Saturday he had reached the highest post that any man may reach in the ranks of labor. Gompers has been criticized by his enemies for being too conciliatory; certainly he was far from a direct actionist. He believed in the policy of educating classes to understand each other. This is education in its broadest sense.

While not directly interested in the educational field Gompers was a true friend of education and was interested in anything that would be for the betterment of mankind, particularly America. The story of his loyalty to his adopted country would be a worthy addition to the pages of our history texts. As an example of unflagging zeal for a cause Samuel Gompers stands in the fore rank.

One of the best things that has appeared on the latest fad, the crossword puzzle craze, was a headline in a Chicago paper the other morning which ran like this: "Cross word puzzle taken up by insane patients." Perfectly correct. And if those who take it up aren't already insane, they soon will be.

COMMITTEE GETS ROOMS FOR PROM

Men Must Make Reservations
For Friends' Rooms After Christmas

Rooms for out of town women coming to Prom will be made available through the efforts of the committee on women's arrangements headed by Dorothy Strauss.

"Every man who is bringing an out of town woman to Prom is urged to find out during Christmas vacation whether or not she has some place to stay. This will enable Strauss our committee to know how many rooms to secure for these guests," said Miss Strauss.

"Women who do not happen to have friends in Madison with whom they may stay will all be provided for by our committee, but we must know immediately after Christmas vacation how many there will be," Miss Strauss added. "For that reason, we are asking the men to let us know as soon as possible what accommodations will be needed."

Sororities, dormitories, and women's houses will be canvassed by the committee to secure rooms for Prom weekend. Members of Miss Strauss' committee are Dorothy Kern, Ruth Moody, Velma Shaffer, Shirley Meek, and Angela Grebel.

300 Cards Issued Daily By Madison Weather Bureau

"The chief work of the Weather bureau in this part of the country is furnishing the daily weather cards," says Eric R. Miller, head of the Weather bureau for the district of Madison and most of the counties of southwestern Wisconsin.

These cards are issued daily, giving the weather for Madison, the state, and for the country in general. The cards are mailed to over 300 people in this section of the state, and the university wireless station sends out reports three times a week. There are five stations in Wisconsin and three others in other states bordering Wisconsin that do this work. Besides this, there are independent workers, numbering about 80 people, who make observations and report them to the bureaus. Others also give reports on the height of the rivers, and so the department can watch for floods.

The work of the Weather bureaus all over the United States varies in details. They are all under the central Weather bureau at Washington. They broadcast in many parts of the country by radiophones; to date there are 120 broadcasting stations in the country.

College Man, Home for Holidays, Has Variety of Colors in Clothes

A Scottish Tartan of Campbell plaid scarf, a regimental striped tie in any number of combinations of bright vivid shades of blue, green, and red, hose of all hues in checks, plaids and stripes,—anything and everything that will give color to his outfit on dreary cold winter days—the college man seeks to add to his wardrobe this season.

He jumps off the train, swinging his brown cow-hide bag plastered with college pennants and seals; if he comes to the old home town or to the city, and comes down the platform, the onlookers will nod in approbation. "He's a college man home for the holidays."

Young and old recognize in him at once the characteristic collegiate individualism. They suspect a love of the different, the unique and unusual. He has discarded the snap-brim hat, still so popular in town, for a new model, styled after the English hat with bound brim, manufactured by Nelson. The hat has a smart tilt on the back of his head. His big-plaid neck scarf is almost too flashy for a man around town.

In the box back overcoat, the conservative interpret the looseness as freedom of responsibility, characteristic of college students in the eyes of the home folks.

"Aren't those socks shamefully bright?" gasps the town gossip as she catches a glimpse of them as the college man climbs into his chum's automobile. "And those trousers—look, how wide they are, even worse than last year."

The overcoats that are worn by the greater majority of male students are the long, box-back, double-breasted models in all shades of greys, the so-called ulster coats. The more conservative college man perhaps will pick out the single breasted fly front and button through, in navy blue and mixed materials.

The three-button, box-back suits are predominately grey, often with bluish and greenish tints. They are in fine stripes and small invisible checks. The trousers are longer and more bell-shaped, usually about 20 inches in width with a 2-inch cuff.

PROGRESSIVES.

The Young Men's Progressive association will meet at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the office of the state treasurer. Election methods in Wisconsin will be discussed by George Brown of the department of state. University men interested in the progressive movement may attend this meeting. Plans will be made for an intensive campaign for new chapters during the Christmas vacation.

19 WORKERS LAID
OFF BY RAILROADSRoundhouse Employees Lose
Jobs as Result of Retrenchment Program

Nineteen men employed at the Northwestern roundhouse here were laid off Saturday. It was reported that this move is simply a part of the company's retrenchment program started last June 1 when the roundhouse at Baraboo was entirely shut down.

Two or three men have been put to work again at Baraboo, but whether these jobs are permanent has not been announced.

A number of the nineteen laid off here Saturday are Baraboo residents, men who were given work here when the Baraboo roundhouse closed.

Included in the number laid off are machinists, helpers and boilermakers.

The Milwaukee road is planning to take some slight retrenchment steps by cutting down Sunday expenses, it was said, but does not intend to lay off any men.

EXPERT DISCUSSES CHILD PROBLEMS

Special Emphasis Placed on Child Discipline By Mrs. Gruenberg

Child study problems and work were discussed by Mrs. Sidonie M. Gruenberg, director of the Child Study association of America, in an address delivered Friday morning before 200 juniors and seniors in Prof. M. V. O'Shea's class in mental development at Bascom hall.

Mrs. Gruenberg devoted some time to the question of child discipline, touched on habit formation and concluded with a description of the theoretical and practical work being carried on by the Child Study association of America.

"Only recently has the educator discovered the pre-school child," said Mrs. Gruenberg. "The importance of emotional reactions in the child becomes increasingly apparent as we note that he is a social, educational, and moral entity long before he enters the halls of learning."

"Discipline is one of our most important problems. If I have to punish a child, my discipline has failed. Punishment, if it must come, should have some relation to the child's thought processes. What we are aiming at in our child study work is the training of people who really shall understand the child's motives," she said on the question of discipline.

President and Cabinet Attend Program in Memory of War President

WASHINGTON—Congress paused in its round of activity yesterday to render honor to the memory of Woodrow Wilson.

The chamber of the house of representatives was the setting for memorial services, with Dr. Edwin Anderson Alderman, president of his alma mater, the University of Virginia, pronouncing from the rostrum where the late president delivered in person his message to congress, the eulogy of his life and achievements.

Woodrow Wilson sought to give the twentieth century a faith to inspire it and to justify the sacrifice of millions of lives in the great war and if there was a failure, it was humanity's failure, Dr. Alderman declared.

"To make him the one undaunted advocate of those hopes, the scapegoat of a world collapse," Dr. Alderman said, "is to visit upon him injustice so cruel that it must perish of its own reason."

Dignitaries of state, political personages of past and present, close friends of the late chief executive and invited guests made up the gathering. A vast unseen audience, too, had been remembered in arrangements for radio.

President Coolidge and his cabinet, supreme court justices, the representatives of foreign governments, governors of states, members of the Wilson cabinet and high officers of the army and navy were present.

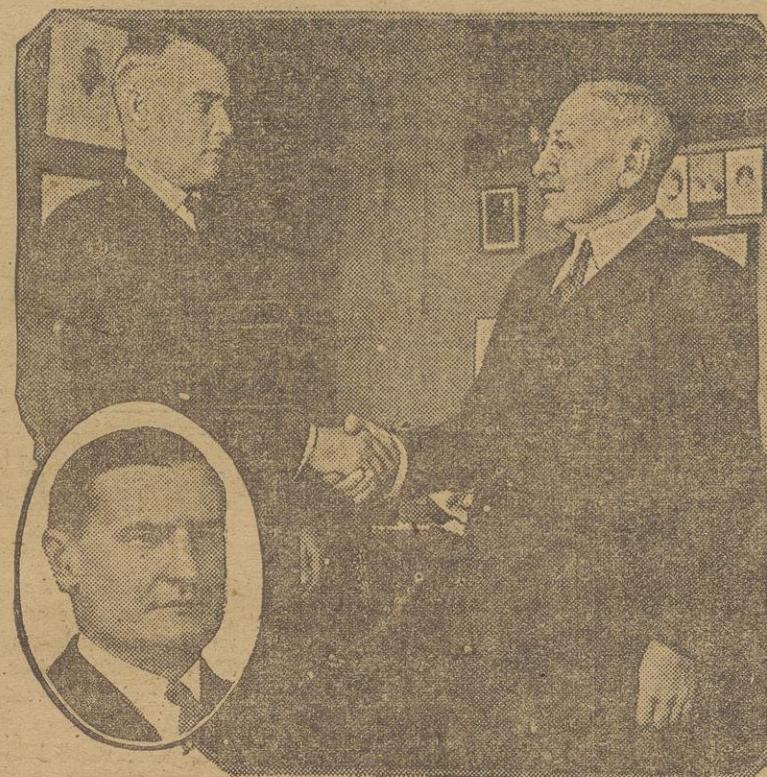

The program was a simple one. Both the senate and house were called to convene a little before the noon hour, the time of the ceremony, members of the senate, after prayer, recessing to go to the house chamber. The marine band furnished music.

With Sen. Cummins as president pro-tempore of the senate occupying the speaker's chair, the ceremonial program opened with prayer offered by the Rev. James S. Montgomery, chaplain of the house. Introduction of Dr. Alderman by the presiding officer and his address in eulogy of the late president followed with the benediction by the Rev.

"Young Blood" in World's Biggest Store

That young men are being selected to head big corporations was again evidenced in the successor chosen for president of Sears-Roebuck & Company, to succeed Julius Rosenwald. It is Charles M. Kittle, former vice president of the Illinois Central Railroad, who is only 41 years old, and who started life as a water boy for a section gang when 14 years old and rapidly rose to the senior vice presidency. Mr. Rosenwald becomes chairman of the board of directors, after serving 14 years as president. Another young man to enter the organization of the world's largest mail order concern is General R. E. Wood, former vice president of Montgomery Ward & Company, where he was in charge of merchandising.

J. J. Muir, chaplain of the senate closing the program.

Three of the late president's immediate family, Mrs. Wilson, his daughter, Miss Margaret Wilson, and his brother, Joseph R. Wilson, of Baltimore, were present. His other two daughters, Mrs. William G. McAdoo and Mrs. Francis B. Sayre, who is abroad, were unable to attend. John Randolph Bolling, brother of Mrs. Wilson, and secretary to his brother-in-law when he retired to private life from the White House also joined Mrs. Wilson in attendance.

Cleaning of Drain Ditch Is Directed by Council

Cleaning of the drainage ditch through Madison Square plat, formerly used by the Oscar Mayer Packing Co. to carry waste water to the Yahara river, was recommended by the street committee and approved by the common council Friday night.

The ditch contains a great deal of sludge which will cause odors in warm weather. The company is no longer using the channel due to additional equipment having been added to the plant which permits it to dispose of its waste in another manner. The ditch must be kept open for drainage purposes.

STETSON

SOME young men today know the importance of looking fit. Good appearance counts much in the game of life. The young man who dresses with taste has a decided advantage.

But—it is surprising how little thought the average man gives to his hat. It is his crown, yet he seems to stop dressing at the neck.

Be careful in your selection of your headwear. When you buy a hat, select a Stetson. Its style is right, its quality means long wear.

LOCAL TAX RATE SHOWS INCREASE

Commission Tells Taxpayers to Inquire Into Cause of Heavier Burden

Madison's tax burden has increased three-fold in the past six years, it was disclosed yesterday in a table of tax levies covering the period of 1914-1924 prepared by the state tax commission. In its statement the commission asks these questions:

"Has the assessment been pushed up in Madison to equalize the tax burden or to get more money to spend on a lower rate?

"May not taxpayers well require why it is necessary to treble the tax levy of the war year of 1918?"

The statement was prepared by Charles D. Rosa, member of the commission. He says:

"One of the duties of the tax commission is to supervise assessments. In our endeavor to have assessments made at 100 percent of true value, as the law requires, we are constantly met with the assertion that increased assessments means increased taxation. We try to tell the people that this isn't so; that it is levies, not the amount of the assessment, which increases taxes.

"However, we are wondering what we tell them is actually true in practice. Madison property has been pushed up this year to a 100 per cent valuation. The rate has been dropped, but not in proportion to the increase in valuation. Hence the increased levy.

"It is interesting to compare the City of Madison with the City of Kenosha. In 1920 the population of Kenosha was 40,472; that of Madison 38,378. 1923 government estimates placed the population of the two cities at 46,662 for Kenosha, and 42,519 for Madison. Kenosha has large manufacturing plants—two of them alone worth over $160,000,000.

"The chief industries of Madison, the state capitol and the university, are state owned and exempt from taxation. The total assessment of all taxable property in the City of Kenosha for the year 1924 is $58,156,660. We are told the assessment of property in Madison will probably reach $125,000,000. Is there this difference in the actual valuations of the cities or does a tax rate of 22 mills in Madison mean the same as a tax rate of 44 mills on a Kenosha assessment?"

Room Looted

Suspicious when unable to find a traveling bag for which they were looking, two university students, Harry C. Kroening and Carl A. Kasper, thoroughly checked over the contents of their room at 425 W. Johnson st. today and report losses in clothing and jewelry to the value of about $150.

"I was going to use Kasper's traveling bag Thursday evening but I could not find it. When he came in late that evening I told him that the bag was not in the room and he also looked but did not find it. We made a check-up of the room and then realized that the place had been burglarized," Mr. Kroening declared.

A gray suit and some sporting goods of considerable value, belonging to Mr. Kroening, and a cameo pin of Mr. Kasper's were stolen. Kasper and Kroening are working their way through school. They live at Lancaster.

"Bab" Tells "Jane" How She Sold Bricks To The Family

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Dearest Jane—

I have at last sold some bricks to the family, but I had a hard time at first. It's true. Maybe I am too sensitive, but when my father said was it a gold brick, I could but look at him in amazement. You know, a ten dollar bill is as nothing to him in a restaurant, but when it comes to good works one would think it was the national debt!

I then showed him the girl Scout Law and he said "There is nothing in them about spelling." And went on to complain about the income tax & alimony. When I told him he could take it off his old income tax he cheered up a little and said few bricks and ten of us could see there wasn't another way because he couldn't afford another war at the price.

But it was mother who really brought the bricks after all. She said it was worth one hundred dollars to have me thinking of something else than the movies and the other sed, and picking up my clothes in the morning, and saving my money instead of buying so many slippers that a centipede could not wear them.

So father said, "If she can spell centipede correctly I'll give her a whole chinny." And I spelled it and he said "Right! Where's my check book?" Mother looked rather queer, but she got the check book and the fate deed was done.

Lovingly yours,
Bab.

MARY Roberts Rinehart is heading the Girl Scouts of this country in their $501,028 building and budget appeal which is being carried on all over the country by the sale of building bricks at ten dollars each. After the first big meeting held recently at her home, 2419 Massachusetts Avenue, Washington, D. C., in the interest of the drive, "Bab," that well-known character of hers sat down and wrote the above letter to her chum "Jane."

Fashionably smooth hair

This has caused the great change in the appearance of men's hair

YOU cannot go into a classroom, or a club, or a fraternity house, without noticing it—

Somehow, college men have found a way to make the hair, the most conspicuous part of the appearance, look just as they want it to look at all times.

It was not always so.

Before Stacomb was introduced, they tried countless methods to make their hair lie smoothly and stay that way—from old-fashioned pomades, which only matted the hair and made it greasy, to plain water, which kept it in place an hour at the most and then left it drier and more brittle than ever. Small wonder that they greeted Stacomb with such instant enthusiasm!

Here at last was something that would make the hair stay in place without harming it or making it sticky and unnatural-looking

Today the great change which Stacomb has brought about is noticed everywhere. Men whose hair used to be out of place an hour after being brushed, men whose otherwise correct appearance used to be spoiled by hair that was hopelessly unkempt—today they keep their hair constantly in perfect order.

Use Stacomb tomorrow morning—and look your best all day. A delicate, invisible cream. Non-staining and non-greasy. In jars and tubes, at all drug and department stores.

1925 BOOM FOR WISCONSIN SEEN

Industrial Commission Predicts Prosperity; Conditions Improving

Wisconsin's industrial outlook for 1925 is bright, with prospects for renewed activities in many lines and better employment conditions, the state industrial commission reported today in a forecast of 1925 conditions.

Reports to the commission from banks, industrial establishments and labor agencies indicate optimistic attitude toward industrial conditions for the coming year. The decline in employment which prevailed from May to September this year has ceased, and since September conditions have been on the up grade. Employment at this time is reported as 4 to 5 per cent below that of December last year. The statement says in part:

"There is no lack of optimism regarding industrial prospects for 1925. From all quarters reports agree that industrial prospects for 1925 are good. Many look for considerable advances in total volume of manufactures, private and public building programs, etc. Manufacturing, commercial and banking interests are about equally confident as to better business in 1925."

"If improvement in metal working, woodworking and many other lines materialize in accordance with forecasts, we feel that skilled labor other than building tradesmen would be in greater demand than during 1924. The building program for both private and public projects for the state as a whole seems to be quite a little greater for 1925."

"Wisconsin is already an outstanding state in the production of canning peas and sugar beets. In both of these items, the farming acreages are expected to increase next year. The progress in intensive dairying methods continues and generally the condition of farmers may be expected to be as good next year, especially if farm prices are good. In certain sections of the state the tobacco and potato acreage may be reduced in view of quite unprofitable production in these lines."

Forecast of conditions in leading cities follows:

La Crosse—Optimism regarding prospects is running high. If proposed bond issues by the city and county are passed there will be more construction work in 1925 than in years past. Local manufacturers look for favorable selling markets.

Milwaukee—The city's diversified manufacturers are expecting greater prosperity in 1925. City building inspector has estimated that the construction program for 1925 will probably exceed the records of 1924. Public works may also be greater. The proposed budget is $15,000,000.

Madison—Business men, bankers, and manufacturers are optimistic as to the industrial prospects. The neighboring agricultural sections are said to be doing better than for years. Survey of prospective building activity indicates that 1924 records will be passed.

Yale Students Fined for Fire Alarm Pranks

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—An investigation in the case of three Yale men who were fined Saturday on charges of tampering with city fire alarms will probably be made. Thomas C. Haydock and Charles B. Will Stock Vast Game Preserve With Lions and Tigers

TYPE SCENE IN PRESERVE

BISON

CHICAGO — American sportsmen in the future need not voyage to Africa and India to shoot lions and tigers. They will be able to kill these royal beasts in California between a game of tennis and a round of golf.

The Pacific Coast Sportsmen's Club, 924 Loew's State Building, Los Angeles, incorporated in Sacramento, plans, according to an announcement here by Frederick L. Sims, a director, to establish a 50,000 acre hunting preserve in California which will be stocked with the following animals and birds:

One hundred African lions, forty Bengal tigers, twenty leopards, 100 pumas or mountain lions, 150 black bears, 1,000 buffalo, 500 elk, 500 deer, 400 wild boars, 400 peccaries, 40,000 ring-neck pheasants, 10,000 Hungarian partridges, 5,000 bob-white quail, 400 wild turkeys, 400 wild peafowl and 400 wild guinea fowl.

The entire tract will be fenced. Twenty thousand acres will be set aside for carnivorous beasts and will be enclosed by an iron-wire fence twelve feet high with a three foot overhang. Annual buffalo hunts will be staged. Provision has been made for expending $250,000 a year for restocking. There will be a $250,000 club house, 200 cottages, golf courses, tennis courts, polo fields, aviation fields, rifle and archery ranges, race track and swimming pools. The club will have 4,000 members from over the United States. It will be opened, according to plans, next September.

Officers of the association are: Ray Meacham, Long Beach Calif., president; John Rawley, Alhambra, Calif., vice-president; Roland Hill, Bakersfield, Calif., secretary; C. G. West, San Gabriel, Calif., treasurer.

Women's Hearts in
"The Sainted Devil"

By J. E. L.

The magnetic power of Rudolph Valentino again makes hearts beat a little faster, creates an irresistible feminine longing, and arouses the enmity of the village sheiks,—all with the assistance of the charming Helen D'Algy, the glamorous Nita Naldi, and the sphinx like pulchritude of Dagmar Godowsky.

a romantic South American setting, a young grande has just taken as his wife, a beautiful senorita of illustrious descent. The wedding is celebrated with all the pomp and tradition deemed applicable for tying the marriage knot of the last of two proud Spanish lines. Wine flows freely and the graceful rhythmic steps of the tango are performed with the fire and abandonment characteristic of the passion of this race. And how disastrously the first wedding night ends. The young bride is stolen by a wild pampas bandit whose desires for the beautiful girl were fanned to flame by the jealousy of a former sweetheart of the lover husband. The latter, believing his wife unfaithful, is crushed to cynicism and turns bitter in his belief of women. Finally his revenge on the outlaw is realized and he discovers his misjudgment of his wife. The grande finds his lost bride in time to prevent her from entering a convent and the happy ending precipitates.

The theme gives Mr. Valentino the opportunity to show his kaleidoscopic knowledge of love, both native and sophisticated. One would very insensible to beauty and the joy of life if these amorous scenes were not appreciated, but it is rather obvious that the producer is very bent on commercializing Valentino's ability as "the perfect lover". Helen D'Algy seems very capable in her role. She is undoubtedly a young actress who will bear watching. Dagmar Godowsky has a very unusual personality, too. And Nita is as striking as ever. The brilliant costumes, setting and the cameo clearness of the photography all blend to make a delightful depiction. The fastidious public will surely be pleased by this delightfully well-rounded production. "It's Naldi, but it's nice."

Mystery Thriller at Majestic is Not Bad
Play, Says Critic

"Spooks,"
Presented at the Majestic,
By TED.

Last week we said the play at the Majestic was poor, and they did the biggest business of the season. Perhaps if we jump on them real hard, they'll do good business this week too. But we can't conscientiously do that, because it's not really a bad show. We wish some one would tell us what we can say about a mystery play to tell you folks what it is all about and still not spoil the mystery. But then, the mystery in "Spooks" is not altogether unsolvable for the spectator (we almost said insoluble) or at least part of it is not. On the whole, though, the play accomplishes its purpose—to give the audience a few pleasant nervous chills and a few laughs.

Frank Gallagher takes the lead this week as the stuttering hero, and does a good job. (Melvyn Hesselberg is taking a week's rest for a change.) True Powers does the best character this week that we have seen her do. We are glad to say that as Aunt Judy she does fine work. Miss Dow is the somewhat hysterical heroine, with Miss McKinney as a jealous cousin. Mr. O'Shea, Mr. Gunniss, and Mr. Ford also put in an appearance, and all in creditable manner. Mr. O'Shea this week is the black faced Sam, the first negro part he has done here.

The play is somewhat shorter than usual, and is over by 10 o'clock so it gives students a chance to see it on week nights and get back by 10:30.

Holiday Visitors to New York
Should See "What Price Glory"

By E. B. S.

We would urge those students who may be in New York during the holidays not to fail to see "What Price Glory." It is without doubt an outstanding dramatic achievement, and is deserving of its popular success. In realism and simplicity, in pregnant atmosphere, it is suggestive of the plays of Eugene O'Neil, but it possesses the sanity and the quality of directly "getting across" that his efforts lack.

The play was written by Lawrence Stalling and Maxwell Anderson. They have been fortunate in having been given an excellent and fitting cast of actors, and the correct, unassuming stage production that their story requires. The plot of the play is slight, the theme large and important. Such a combination is too often fatal, but the authors have shown real skill in presenting the theme without an apparent emphasis of didacticism, and in maintaining a sustained interest in the slender story. Salient, arresting characterizations have aided to that end.

The entire action is laid during the war, and concerns a company of marines in rest billet and in the trenches. The story hinges upon an ancient and enduring rivalry between the captain and his top sergeant, brought to a crisis over a French peasant girl. The captain is played by Louis Wolheim, the sergeant by William Boyd and we cannot conceive of a better interpretation than they give.

The most striking quality of the play is its maleness. There is something more than manliness and something different than virility. The situations are often indecent and ghastly. The language is coarse to an extreme, though to ears once familiar with an army vocabulary, obviously somewhat ex-purgated.

This play, far better than oceans of propaganda of platform and pamphlet type, destroys the idealistic notions of the great game of war. It reflects to an amazing degree of fidelity the actual reactions of the men of the army while actively engaged in the war. It illustrates—and with no feeble touch and with no consideration for cherisher illusions—the fundamental fact that war coarsens and degrades any man participant in it. The large mass action, the lack of remoteness of specific and personal motives, the inflamed mol-lust, all are touched upon, fortunately, though none the less effectively, with keen and satiric humor.

"What Price Glory" is an artistic accomplishment, one of the finest things that the American stage has produced. In genre it is characteristically American, while in theme and appeal it is universal for all nations and for all times.

"The Eleventh Hour,"
Showing at Madison,
Has Exciting Plot

A great munitions factory where furnaces never sleep and where human life is but a factor in production. . . . A quiet building where the inventor works upon a secret explosive formula that will change the modes of modern warfare. . . . An ambitious prince after the formula. . . . A human octopus. . . . Sliding doors. . . . Hidden rooms. . . . Lions' dens. . . . A submarine at fight. . . . Lights that flash out in the night. . . . Thrills in an airplane. . . . The heroine is saved. . . . The hero turns out, as usual, to be a secret service man.

A movie full of good acting and thrilling exploits, but inconsistent at times, in which everything happens just at the right time and place to make the plot move on unimpeded.

Charles Ray is the Feature of Strand
Picture Now Showing

In his latest picture Charles Ray again plays the part of the hopeless, spineless misfit. The plot tangles him up loosely with a saloon keeper's wife and family, then sends him through Alaskan blizzards and many other difficulties to a final moment when he proves himself courageous by dynamiting his chief tormentor. He then falls into the waiting arms of a coy lunch room cashier, who marries him, adopted child and all. There is one scene which is almost a burlesque, in which the tired and frozen hero collapses upon the doorstep of a forbidding house, with the "cheerful" clasped in his nerveless arms. If you care for old-fashioned "mellendramer" you will be thrilled by this picture. The only good acting, aside from the principal, is done by Wallace Beery, who is always delightfully villainous.

Mask and Wig
By CHATTY

Sorry to have missed you Friday, but it really was done purposely. A little "absence makes the heart grow fonder" stuff, don't you know. Or we might even go so far as to say that "Variety is the spice of life" had a little to do with it. To be frank, however, we were working on a toje for Sunny Pyre's Elizabethan drama which was overdue some weeks. Take either explanation you wish.

Well, "The Mollusc" finished so far as this campus is concerned and the only bit of local excitement that remains is Haresfoot, which of course no one ever gives much of a thought to.

However, the lyric and music writers are now at it grinding at the organ. Tom Morony hasn't provided a monkey as yet, but despite this over-sight on the proxy's part, it is expected that some real music is going to be hummed by students along in the spring.

We read the book the other night and are tempted to use some of Roundy's high epithets in referring to it. But we'll restrain ourselves and simply say that Haresfoot hasn't had a book like it these last four years, the reach of our ken.

Sorry, Pauline, that you didn't like the review of Union Vodvil that appeared in the Daily Cardinal. We've talked your note over with the reviewer and he says that it is impossible to say much about vaudeville because it is all so disconnected that all one can do is to give a sort of general survey of the show.

Haven't been able to get anything out of Mr. Hesselberg on his plans for more serious drama as yet. But we still have hopes.

Syncopation Treat
For Orpheum Goers
Offered This Week

A syncopation treat is in store for the Orpheum goers this week. Six snappy acts bristle with jazz-mania. A rollicking company of enthusiastic song and dance specialists keep the audience in a perpetual state of expectancy—and considerable applause. The various settings are unusually tasty. Bill par excellance.

Orpheum Steppers

These smart young women dance and sing and change their costumes many times during the evening. Like several more of their colleagues, they keep coming and going during and in-between most of the acts.

Jack Hanley.

He first appears as a pantomime juggler and exhibit of eccentricity. Later he juggles his feet about in a clever dance number. He wears the funniest clothes—and nervous folks feel risky about those suspenders!

Bobby Adams.

Bobby divulges a ritzy collection of ritzy song numbers. "My Insufficient Sweetie" was her best, we thought.

Roscoe Ails

"Ambrose" is the attraction in this conglomeration of steps and steppers of keen repertoire, and of more surprises.

Three Weber Girls.

They sing. They dance. Then they act—nimble Jills who display astonishing grace in feminine acrobatics.

Jazzmania.

A final revue of everybody on the bill. A clever arrangement of inter-acting, where everyone does something different but the variety adds spice, rather than confusion. Neat settings. And the Orpheum stepers, of course!

PART OF BADGER GOES TO PRESS

"Senior Section" in Hands of Engravers Before Christmas; Sets New Record

The 1926 Badger has established a record by sending its largest section, the "Senior Section," to the engravers before Christmas. This section is usually sent out around March 1, although last year's Badger had it out January 1. This means that one-sixth of the engraving is going before Christmas.

Besides the "Senior Section," Helen Taylor '26 is in charge; the sections of "Organizations," "Activities," and "Faculty and Administrative Officers" are almost completed. Satire is being taken care of by the Octopus staff, an innovation this year.

Another innovation is a change in the size of the book which is the size of typewriting paper, $8\frac{1}{2} \times 11$. This is slightly smaller than the 1925 Badger, but not as small as the one of 1924. The pictures are in perfect panels and are grouped according to colleges. Two more pictures are on a page, and they are just as large as last year's pictures. There are 110 pages.

The section on "Special Occasions" has gone to the engravers and is now in the hands of the printers. Pictures and write-ups are finished. Under this section are such events as Varsity Welcome, Homecoming, Prom, and the Military Ball. Russell Coleman '26 has charge of the work.

The section on "Organizations" will go to the printers before Christmas. Sororities, fraternities, and all organized groups are included in this section. The work on "Activities" is finished except for copy. Arnold Wiese '25 has charge of the section.

NEXT OCTY WILL HAVE HUMOR OF 4 MAGAZINES

The January Octopus will be a four-in-one edition, according to Gordon Lewis, editor. It will combine features of four other college magazines, the Ohio Sun Dial, the Illinois Siren, the Northwestern Purple Parrot and the Wisconsin Octopus. The best jokes, stories, and cartoons from all four of the publications will be put together to form the Octopus. It will be out January 14. All contributions must be handed in before Christmas vacation.

gree responsible for the athletic situation as it exists.

"In my opinion," said Mr. Brayton, "the cause of the failure of Wisconsin university athletics can be found in the history of the athletic council. I do not believe that the criticism of two newspapers in a state as large as this can be held responsible for the athletic situation, as against the achievements of those actually in control of athletics."

Mr. Brayton, at the same time, condemned the Daily Cardinal's policy on the athletic situation by saying, "It might have been a good thing if the freedom of discussion permitted to sport writers in other Madison papers, were extended to the Daily Cardinal."

Post-Prom Dance Orchestra Hired; Set Limit at 100

An orchestra from Rockford, Ill., has been engaged for the post-prom dinner-dance to be given the Saturday night after prom at the Hotel Loraine, according to Rice Miller, chairman of men's arrangements committee for prom. William Campbell and Harold Beeman are in charge of the dance.

"We are limiting the dance to 50 couples," said Rice Miller. "Any individual or groups of individuals who wish to join this party should come to the meeting in the Union building this evening at 7 o'clock."

At this meeting Tuesday night arrangements will likewise be made for groups who wish to attend prom only. George Schutt and Martin Bliese have charge of these arrangements.

MEAD GIVES ADDRESS TO CHINESE STUDENTS

When Chinese students go back to their native land they should fight the difficulties found there, especially political influences, and they should live with that spirit in mind, Prof. D. W. Mead, of the School of Engineering, declared at a dinner held under the auspices of the Chinese Student's Christian association in the author's room of the Y. M. C. A., Sunday. The talk was based on the general subject of "Success and Character."

FACULTY OPPOSES VOCATIONAL WORK

—GOODNIGHT

Dean Says Most Students Choose Life Careers Too Early

"Vocational guidance for men students outside of that given in regular departments, is unpopular among the faculty," Dean S. H. Goodnight said in discussing the possibilities and accomplishments of the university in the direction of vocational education.

"There has been a feeling on the faculty," said Dean Goodnight, "that a good deal of harm may be done, especially to freshmen, by exhorting students to select a life work before they are ready, and by making them feel that they are slackers if they do not."

"It is not a mistake," he continued, "for a student to go through his junior year without knowing what his major will be. Although we fully favor the vocational school, and we have a number of excellent ones here, our belief is that there is no need for a central vocational office for men."

"Our vocational departments," concluded Dean Goodnight, "are doing fine work not only in advising their students how to go about their particular jobs, but they are getting their graduates jobs, in many cases."

When asked whether he thought many students passed through the College of Letters and Science without forming some general idea of their life work before graduation,

Human Body and Yacht Are Likened By Speaker Here

"The human body may be likened to a yacht with three storage lockers, two large ones for protein and fats, and one small one for carbohydrates or glycogen," Dr. Eugene Du Bois, of Cornell Medical school, said in his lecture on "The Metabolism of Carbohydrates and Fats in Disease" at Science hall last night.

Just as a boat, if one store, the carbohydrates, for example, is used up it must be replenished or the steward has to draw from the other two, the proteins and fats, he said.

"In tuberculosis," said Dr. Du Bois, "the destruction of proteins is not as great as in typhoid fever, although it is necessary, in order to come to any definite conclusion in regard to the matter to study the various results which take place in the patient's body."

"HARD TIMES" PARTY TO BE GIVEN JAN. 9

A "hard times" party will be given by the Presbyterian student's alliance, Friday, January 9, in Lathrop hall gymnasium. Plans for the party have been completed and invitations will be sent out to all the Presbyterians of the university. Prizes will be given for the best costumes. Square, circle, and other old fashioned dances will be on the program.

Dean Goodnight said that he felt the majority knew fairly well what they were steering for.

DATE CHANGED ON PROM FOX TROT

Many Specialty Numbers Are Being Arranged For Pre-Prom Dance

Prom fox-trots must be in by January 7 instead of January 9 as previously announced, Carl Klath '26, chairman of the pre-prom dance committee, announced yesterday. The reason for this change is that all numbers will have to be in far enough ahead of the dance on Saturday evening, January 10 so that the winning number can be selected and featured at the party that night.

Several specialty numbers are being planned to make the pre-function a gala affair, the committee announced. Among the features will be some of the Union Vodvil acts, worked up in a novel and interesting fashion. "Topsy and Eva," played by Dorothy Crocker '27 and Ruth Oberndorfer '26, will be repeated. The banjo trio, Gordy Roberts '25, Nate Grabin '25, and Hal Rieger '27, will likewise give some new numbers, and Katherine Reid '26 and Billy Ross '26 will present a musical song skit.

Tickets for the dance will go on sale Tuesday, January 6. They will be $1.50 at open sale and $2.00 at the door the night of the dance.
