FORFEIT WINS BAG RUSH FOR FROSH CLASS

Sophs Jump Gun and Up- perclassmen Award De- cision to Yearlings

Sophomore plans to win the class rush regardless of the superior numbers of the first year men were spoiled yesterday afternoon when the upperclassmen in charge awarded the decision to the freshmen because the sophomores had jumped the gun.

At 12:55 the two classes were lined up on opposite sides of the campus awaiting the starter's gun when several over-hasty sophomores started a stampede for the sacks before the signal was given. Almost before the frosh knew what was happening, the second year men were down on the bags and had them all in their side of the field.

The freshmen arrived in time to get some competition on sacks 7, 8, and 9; but the rest were either over the sophomore goal line or very near it. The fight had not continued long when a gun was fired as a signal to stop the contest, and an attempt was made to give it a fair start. The freshmen lined up again, but since the sophomores began a parade around the square and refused to line up and since several of the bags were already in shreds, it was decided to forfeit to the frosh.

It was expected by many spectators that the decision would result in a free-for-all fight between the classes. Nothing serious broke out, however; and both classes paraded to the square and back, neither admitting the loss of the classic event.

No casualties were reported from the rush; but even in the few minutes of fighting, many limp underclassmen were carried from the field by student "cops."

Three moving picture machines under the direction of Dr. M. E. Deimer of the university photographic laboratory recorded the fight. They will be shown at local picture houses next week.

MISS MARLATT TO SPEAK AT VESPERS

Vesper services will be held today at 4:30 in Lathrop hall. Prof. Abbie Marlatt, head of the home economics department, and president of the advisory board, will address the meeting. The subject of her talk will be "Playing the Game."

Helen Cheetham, vice-president of the Y. W. C. A., will preside, and the girls of the Sophomore commission will act as ushers. The musical program is in charge of Ruth Chandler.

Last Sunday the largest crowd which ever attended Vespers filled Lathrop parlors.

BOWLING LEAGUE MEMBERS TO MEET

Captains of fraternity bowling teams will meet Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the Phi Delta Theta house to elect officers and make plans for the season.

After the annual election of officers, the meeting will decide the date for the opening of the schedule, which will be planned later.

CO-EDS TO STORM CAMPUS AFTER BADGER MONEY

Subscription Drive Opens Tues- day—Organizations to Fight For Silver Cups

Promptly at noon Tuesday an army of determined co-eds, armed with subscription blanks and buttons for the 1922 Badger, will set out from the Union building on a 10 day subscription raid of the student body. Practically all women's organizations, rooming houses and sororities have signified their intention of making a hard run for one of the five silver cups being displayed at Sumner and Crampton's drug store on State street.

The price of the Badger this year will be $1 down and $4 on delivery next spring. For those who pay in full during the campaign, which will last until October 15, the price will be $4.50.

There will be a meeting tomorrow at 12:45 in Music hall for all girls taking part in the subscription contest. "Every girl expecting to take part in the contest should make plans to be present at this meeting," said Everett Carpenter, circulation manager of the Badger, yesterday. Prof. Al Haake will give a short talk and the rules of the contest will be explained at that time.

The contest will end at midnight, October 15, and the winners of the cups will be announced the following Sunday.

HUNDREDS TAKE PART IN DRIVE FOR "LIT" SUBSCRIPTIONS

The Wisconsin Literary Magazine subscription drive which will begin tomorrow morning has enlisted the aid of several hundred workers. Every sorority has pledged a team of girls, with a captain at the head of each, and many rooming houses are aiding the campaign.

A large number of subscriptions have already been turned in. The workers are allowed a commission of 25 cents on each subscription, and anyone wishing to help with the drive may call Horace Powell, Badger 7675, for assignments. Workers desiring more receipt books should apply at the Wisconsin Literary Magazine office at the Union building, between 12 and 1:00 or at 5 o'clock any day during the drive.

It will be to the advantage of students to subscribe now at the price of $1.50, since by so doing, they will save 50 cents on the eight copies to be put out during the year, and will receive them at the same time they are sold on the hill.

The first edition of the "Lit", which will be a big anniversary number, will appear October 20.

HOLD MEETING FOR REPORTERS MONDAY

All students who have been working or who wish to work during a tryout period in preparation for positions as reporters on the staff of The Daily Cardinal will report to the editorial offices, second floor, Union building, at 4:30 Monday. An explanation of requirements and of methods employed in the editorial staff will be given at that time, and conferences may be held with the editors.

A system of beats covering all the regular news sources of the university has been worked out, and to put it in operation will require the services of additional workers. Under a plan that provides for the presence of copy readers, desk workers and reporters in the office during each hour of the day, practical experience and training for higher positions will be offered.

Al Haake and Senator Bev- eridge Exchange Warm Words After Gym Speech

"..... and America still will be the land of the brave and the home of the brave!" was the dramatic finale of Senator Albert J. Beveridge's speech last night in the gymnasium in favor of Harding and Coolidge.

A ripple of applause, and the audience prepared to leave, when a high familiar voice rang out: "Just a moment; sit down; I want to ask a question!" Startled students turned to see Al P. Haake, professor of economics directing his voice to the recent speaker, and saying, "Throughout your lecture, much to the confusion of myself and others, you deliberately attempted

"Just a moment," interrupted Senator Beveridge, "If you've a question, kindly state it. We've no time to listen to a speech."

Prof Haake asked the senator to produce documentary evidence for some of his statements, whereupon the senator retorted, "Do you think for a moment, sir, that I have deliberately lied?" and departed from the platform.

RICHARDS ASKS FOR MORE MEN

Appeals to Students Weigh- ing Over 170 Pounds to Go Out for Team

Dissatisfied with the comparative smallness of the football squad with which he has had to work this year, Coach John R. Richards has addressed an appeal to men students who weigh over 170 pounds, to go out for the team. If enough men respond the coach will form a special squad to get them in shape and teach them some of the fundamentals of football which they do not already know.

The fact that only four members of last year's freshman team have come out for the varsity presents, in the mind of Coach Richards a serious situation in regard to scholastic eligibility. He also feels that some of the excess energy expended in hounding the freshmen could be used to better advantage on the football field.

The statement follows:

"Wisconsin men fitted for inter-collegiate teams must come out to help uphold our standards. The football squad has fewer men on it capable of eventually playing a game of conference class than I have seen since coaching here. In 1917—the war year—we eventually got a squad of 33 men; this year we have 27 to date. Of course other men, physically unable to make the team, have volunteered to come out and their spirit is appreciated.

"Wisconsin men who are eligible and who weigh over 170 should be the subject of propaganda, and after they come out, we may get them to stay and play for the love of the game and their college.

"Very little material came to the Varsity squad from last year's freshman teams. In fact but four survived—Holmes, Nelson, Tebell and Eggebrecht. This is a condi-

Fast Backs Plow Through Line for Nine Touch- downs

Wisconsin won overwhelmingly from the Lawrence college eleven in a one-sided football contest yesterday afternoon at Camp Randall, scored 60 points and held the Appleton team so far from the Badger goal line that they had not the slightest chance to score.

An unusual crowd for a preliminary game, about 6,000, watched Coach Richards backs plow through their opponents line for nine touchdowns. The spectators filled all but about two and one half sections of the concrete bleachers and a large part of the covered stand on the east side of the field.

Green covered representatives of the class of 1924 turned out in full force. Close to 750 of them met on the lower campus and marched to Camp Randall in a body. They put on a spirited snake dance between halves.

Elliott Wins Shoes

The first touch down was made by "Rowdy" Elliott within six minutes after the referee's whistle blew for the kick off. Elliott was evidently out after the pair of shoes awarded by Olson and Veerhusen to the first man to put the pig skin over the line, for he broke through the Lawrence line and carried the ball 65 yards to the goal.

The play opened with Lawrence kicking off. Tebell received the ball and returned it five yards. Elliott gained four yards. Sundt made two through center. Elliott made first down in an end run. Holmes failed to advance. Elliott gained six through left tackle. Sundt fumbled on the third down and the ball went to Lawrence on their 34 yard line.

Pond carried the oval for a gain of three yards and was followed by Captain Kubitz for one. With the third down and four yards to go Lawrnce tried a forward pass which was incompletely. Lawrence punted to Davey who returned to the Wisconsin 31 yard line. Holmes made four yards. Elliott received the ball and sprinted down the field for a touchdown. Davey missed the goal.

Make First Downs Often

From then on the Badgers continued to take the offensive, holding the ball most of the time. First downs were made in unusual frequency and but very few times were the Wisconsin backs thrown for losses.

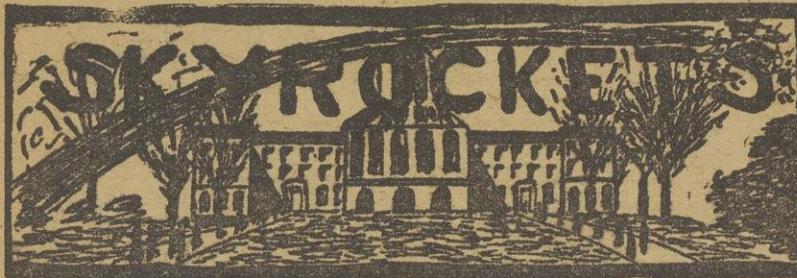

After the first score in the first quarter, touchdowns were made in frequency and but very few times were the second period the oval was carried across the line, twice in the third and again three times in the fourth. Four of the nine touchdowns were made by Rowdy Elliott, three by Rollie Williams, and one by both Sundt and Anderson.

The Lawrence team did not have many chances at the ball and it was not until the second half that the Methodists managed to make a first down. Pond, fullback, and Basing and Captain Kubitz, halfbacks, made good gains but there advances were not consistent and consequently were of no avail most of the time. Pond's punting was exceptional and more than once he used his toe to good advantage.

Practically the entire squad of varsity regulars saw action in yesterday's contest. Changes were numerous and at times the team on the field was of entirely different personnel from the one which started

WELL, who won the darn rush anyway? Times have changed. We suggest that next year it be held in Lathrop hall and tea and wafers be served.

REMARKABLE, the amount of brains and humor the compositors proofreaders give us credit for. We certainly appreciate the fatherly attitude of supervision with which they carefully ruin all our jokes. Fregzample we offer a round trip ticket from Menodta through the Pep building and back, to anyone who was supurred to riots of uncontrollable laughter at the statement that "R. Lawson Wise was appointed instructor and field organizer in the Eau Claire district." The thing as we quoted read, "R. Lawson Wise was appointed instructor and field organizer in the Eau Claire district."

A CO-ED

She was a co-ed.
She sat behind me in my Psych class;
Sometimes I turned, simply that I might see her.
Her features were so pretty and so delicate,
And she was always dressed in such good taste;
Her air was one of such refinement,
That I was sure I'd like her if I knew her.
Also she recited well and had a pleasant voice.
One night I met her in the cafeteria.
We ate together and I tried to talk,
And found her silly, very silly, very vapid,
But I walked home with her, just for form's sake,
And when we got before her door we stopped.
I had been saying that before I came to school
I never knew a girl named Lucy.
She said, "You didn't? Why, that's queer;
Our town's just lousy with them."
She was a co-ed.

THE angry mob rushed through the iron barricades and surmounted the pickets. Blood was in their eyes and each man thirsted for human flesh, ravenous, predatory, starving for the sound of rending bones and ripping flesh. They rushed the door, a grim smile playing on the visage of each and every one. The innocent being locked in the flimsy room prayed and begged for their lives. About to be shorn of the very thing for which they lived, their lives, they faced the Grim Exterminator, not with fortitude and high moral courage, but with fear, morbid fear, rotting the very vessels of their hearts. A panel crashed in, the door gave way. A weak voice piped up in the ante-room, "Hold it, George." And 20 little frosh buttoned.

"M'dear," gurgled one female soph to another, "we have only a bare 1200 men for the rush." Exaggeration is of course all right in its place but we must admit that after the hostilities we tried our best and saw no more than ten or a dozen in that condition, the old musician sank back exhausted, he had sung his last refarin.

APROPOS of almost nothing at all, we would like to say, quite personally, that we admire nothing so much in our presumably intellectual superiors as a calmness and dignity of demeanor, especially in public. That would, very naturally, prohibit heckling with the speaker in a political meeting.

LIBRARY MUSEUM HAS EXHIBITION OF CHARMING ITALIAN LANDSCAPES

Delicate water-color landscapes of a very different country than what we know are the Garaldi paintings now on exhibition at the library museum. These are all Italian landscapes and they are charming.

There is a marked difference from the impressionistic paintings of last spring. These pictures have a very conservative technique, but are beautifully done, with attention to detail, and with a confidence and sureness of handling. There is nothing labored. They seem joyous.

The coloring is lovely. There is a warm, comfortable atmosphere. The subjects are varied. There are houses basking in the sun, old ruins, rivers, flowering trees, and fields of flowers. Particularly interesting is the striking difference of treatment in two sunsets. These are happy looking paintings, yet they have considerable character.

In the corridor on the way to the art museum are some wonderful English posters. These are to advertise the underground railway. They are very different from American advertising—they have less advertising and more art than most of ours possess. There are two landscape painters of note. Realism in poster style is admirably employed in "London Characters," a group of posters by E. A. Cox. There are also two very lovely flower posters.

The Question
"What was the matter with the Rush?"

Editor's Note—In an attempt to give students from time to time the opinions of their classmates in regard to questions of campus interest, The Cardinal will run a weekly or perhaps semi-weekly column similar to that of the "Inquisitive Reporter" in the Chicago Tribune.

Dean Goodnight—The sophomores certainly took advantage of the situation. After being given a 10 yard handicap they jumped the gun. Also, the crowd not being roped off, the sophomores filtered in among them and when the rush started they dashed out and grabbed the end bags. But the cops certainly did their part and the conditions before the rush were all that could be expected.

Allan Davey, Chief of Police—The rush was certainly an example of poor sportsmanship on the part of the sophs. They went to the cops and received a promise to get a 10 yard handicap. This being granted them they jumped the gun several more yards. The freshmen were ignorant but the sophs knew what they were doing. With these facts in mind the rush was rightfully awarded to the frosh. I certainly hope the frosh won't retaliate with such tactics next year.

Milton Borman, President of the Student Senate—Due to the premature precipitation of the rush I was not on the field when it began. Previously when it started, it was practically impossible to stop. One would find it hard indeed to blame the whole sophomore class because of the actions of a few. I am personally convinced that the sophomore class, as well as the student body, doesn't approve of the method in evidence on the lower campus Saturday afternoon. Another rush at this time would not be the logical plan to follow.

Clyde Emery, Member of Student Senate—The rush in my mind was a total failure. While a few of the members of the sophomore class disobeyed the rules, the class as a whole should not be condemned. The participants were disappointed, the students were dissatisfied and the crowd as a whole was disgusted. I think another rush of the real old time nature should be held next Saturday, although I stand behind the senate in their action of refusing to allow any deportation of frosh.

THE FARCIAN RUSH

SOME unscrupulous person, to all outward appearance a sophomore, has succeeded in being the guiding motive behind one of the most unsportsmanlike stunts known in campus annals. Fully five minutes before the rush was scheduled to start a gun was fired on the sophomore side of the field. Added to the 10-yard handicap of the second year men it put them in possession of practically every bag before the yearlings realized what was happening.

The cops succeeded in stopping the melee preparatory to a new start, and as both sides were lined up apparently ready to commence anew the sophomores started their unwarranted parade around Capitol square. On the basis of the facts at hand it is doubtful if a decision can be judiciously rendered in selecting a winner. As far as the affair carried the sophomores won; and yet, the fact of a false start brings the whole matter back to a pre-rush status.

To the university proper no good can come from a rush conducted in this fashion. The wild stampede of both classes down State street, each trying to gain the leading position, their working havoc with the Capitol lawns, and their many near and actual hand to hand encounters served only to place their Alma Mater in the wrong light before the public.

In a word, it was a splendid example of mob psychology working at its best. Hesitant at first, the whole sophomore class followed blindly after a few leaders who started the parade without a fair victory in their grasp. If any were doubtful about who won they should have known that two shots from the chief's gun indicated victory for 1923. Only one shot was fired to indicate a wrong start.

If the freshmen are finally declared the winners it will mean dissatisfaction in their ranks and dissension in the ranks of the sophomores. An amicable solution could be very easily and effectively inaugurated by putting on another rush next Saturday. Another attempt can be made the medium for considerable good. It will prove that fair play must predominate; it will show the wisdom of not holding the entire class responsible for the misstep of a few leaders; it will show the way to conduct the time honored and class battle in a manner entirely devoid of the old tactics of plowing and flooding the freshman field.

Provided that the matter comes to a head neither class should show the least hesitancy about getting behind the move in a whole-hearted, sincere manner. For that alone typifies true Wisconsin spirit.

FIRST IMPRESSIONS

THE first impressions a student makes on his professors remain with a tenacity that can only be explained by the law of habit. Professors are human. They are not machines that register mechanically and indefinitely the exact valuation of a student's work. It is only natural that after a week or so of recitation he should come to form an opinion of the student and the kind of work that may be expected from him in the future, and to judge his work influenced either consciously or unconsciously by that opinion.

Starting the year in an indifferent manner with the intention of tightening up later on when things are going better is expensive. It means the conveying of an impression to an instructor which perhaps is not correct, but which is all he has to judge you by and which will remain with him. He has you lined up. Starting the year carelessly means the forming of a foundation that is weak, but which cannot later be easily strengthened.

So whether it be for the purpose of good grades or your future security make first impressions good ones. Give your instructor the idea that you are an Ex student during your first few weeks of recitations, and he may give you the benefit of his doubts the remainder of the year.

BANK DEPOSIT IDEA RESULTS IN NO CHANGE

"Real Test to Come After Second Checks Arrive," Says Cashier

BY CLARE C. SAUNDERS

The $5 deposit system maintained by every bank in town except the Commonwealth has not yet appreciably altered the position of student accounts. This is probably due to the expense of cashing out-of-city checks and the inconvenience of bank drafts, according to B. R. L'Hommedieu, cashier of the Branch Bank of Wisconsin.

"There has been no appreciable decrease in student deposits this year," said L'Hommedieu. "The students can see the fairness in our demands and do not complain."

After a week of school, the accounts had totalled something over 800. Last year, the number of deposits made the first week was about 900. A decrease of 62 accounts out of 900 was the net result of the $5 deposit system at the Branch Bank of Wisconsin. L'Hommedieu concludes that the accounts lost are those which the deposit system purposed to discharge.

First Check Pays Fees

"The real test will come after the students get their second checks from home. With the average student, the first check goes for fees and it is only upon receipt of the second check from home that the student makes his deposit," said L'Hommedieu. Last year the maximum of student accounts deposited in the Branch Bank of Wisconsin was about 2,300.

"The approximate size of the average deposit is now $125," L'Hommedieu estimated. "I advise students to make a deposit of $50 and then forget it. Then they will get their refund and we will have the use of the money, and everybody will be happy."

The original clearing house plan for taking care of student accounts was based on the Milwaukee and Chicago systems for the management of transient accounts. This system involved a $100 minimum and a 50 cent fee each month in which the account falls below the minimum.

One Bank Refuses

The information went out accidentally that the minimum would be $50 with a $5 deposit to be refunded if the account did not fall below the minimum. The Bank of the Commonwealth alone refused to use this system.

"We prefer the service fee because we feel that it is fairer," stated C. R. Aclay, cashier of the Bank of the Commonwealth. "Under the $5 deposit system the student who deposits $1,000 must make the additional $5 deposit and give the bank the use of the money with but small chance of overcrowding."

Moreover, the student who deposits $5 forfeits his deposit when his account falls below minimum one month if he does not later make a large enough deposit to neutralize the default, while under the service fee system, he merely pays a fee of 50 cents.

Although the Commercial National bank agreed to the $5 deposit plan, B. M. Backus, cashier, says, "What ought to have been done was to make the minimum account $100. We are really losing money on student accounts."

L'Hommedieu of the Branch Bank stated that the merchants were well satisfied with this system. "It makes it safer for them to accept student checks," he said.

Few Students Commit Forgery

The presentation of signed fee cards this year will make it easy for the students. The merchants take it for granted that he has a checking account sufficiently large to cover his checks. This also prevents forgeries.

"The students themselves are rarely responsible for forgeries. The major part of last year's forgeries were not committed by students but by a maid working in the Latin quarter," said L'Hommedieu.

More than 50 per cent of all student checks are for $1 or less. "Last year a Chinaman deposited $18 in this bank. Every day the bank received three 50 cent checks presumably drawn for meals and once a 17 cent check for a malted milk at Morgan's. When you get a case like that on your hands you can smile when you get rid of it," observed L'Hommedieu.

"When we came here we did not plan to make profit from student accounts. We are here for student convenience, but we do not care to lose money and I don't think the students want us to lose money."

The deposit and fee systems are being avoided by a few students by cashing their out-of-town checks, at Morgan's. Bank drafts can also be used to avoid the service fee by the student who likes to carry a large roll.

tion that will spell disaster, if repeated this year. The varsity squad must be fed by the freshman squads.

"I can't help feeling that the men students of Wisconsin will be better students and better men, if they substitute athletics for clamorous group clacking at freshmen; their wild adventurous spirits can be better tested in a game where they have to excel rather than browbeat.

"Fraternities should chase their big men to the field and make them keep up in their university work.

"I am convinced that the scholastic mortality of athletes, last year was a phase of the general conditions here, but a sharp reaction must come this year or we will have to give up our ambitions in football."

"I will accept all the big men I can get even at this late date, and make a special squad to get them in shape if there is a response."

LUNNEY FREED OF BARBER POLE THEFT

Student Whose Arrest Caused Shooting is Acquitted

Julien Lunney, university student who was charged with having stolen the barber pole which led to the tragic shooting and killing of Carl E. Jandorf, university sophomore by Patrolman Matthew B. Lyraugh, was acquitted of the charge this morning in superior court, when the case against him was dismissed upon the motion of Dist. Atty. Heilman.

The acquittal followed the sworn testimony of several of Lunney's companions that Lunney had had nothing to do with the incident whatsoever. It was shown in the testimony at the inquest that Lunney had not been uptown at all during the time in which the theft was committed.

The world's three greatest dancers, say our dancers today, are better than ever.

After a wonderful trip of seven weeks to New York, Atlantic City, and Chicago, where I visited every Musical Comedy in town, and danced at the Century Roof, the Biltmore Roof, the Pennsylvania Roof, the Astor Roof, the McAlpin Roof, the Strand Roof, Roseland, and the Commodore Ball Room. At Atlantic City I danced at the Garden Pier, Stell Pier, Million Dollar Pier, and attended the Movie Ball, August 23, at the Garden Pier. Also, I danced at the Blackstone, Sophie Tucker's Cafe de Paris, and in Chi, as usual, every place where dancing is popular.

I have decided to feature

The Dancing Fool

It's great if you can do it. Koslof's Cat Step is fine for good dancers—all others will be wasting time. Wesleyan is equally fine for beginners, and couples over forty.

As usual I picked only the best bets—and the most popular. My Coy Boy Fox Trot is a wonder. Winton Walse is divine; Airplane is delightful; Duryea's Dardanelle Fox Trot is a scream.

I have the largest registration I have had since I first came to Madison. My welcome home was so spontaneous that I am proud to be an instructor in Madison. We have three teachers. I thank you.

KREISLER TO BE ON MUSIC CARD

Moisewitsch and May Peterson Also Coming During Fall and Winter

Although Fritz Kreisler is one of the most famous and financially successful of virtuosi, there was a time when his friends had to loan him his pocket money.

This period of his life is portrayed by himself as follows: "In those days my friends were divided into two classes, those from whom I could and those from whom I could not borrow money."

Kreisler was born without the advantages of wealthy parentage, but was gifted with those things which could not have been bought with money. He was given a powerful physique, a vigorous keen mind, a sensitive faculty of observance, and the ability to make and keep friends.

In the days when Vienna was a hot-bed of culture, the resort of all the leading artists of Europe, and perhaps the gayest city in the world Kreisler was there. In referring to those days Richard Epstein says, "We didn't work. We just had talent."

Hugo Wolf, composer, of immortal songs, then an embittered and unrecognized genius; Otto Weininger who wrote "Sex and Character," and shot himself at the age of 24; Moritz Rosenthal then a young pianist of little account; and Fritz Kreisler, were seated together one night at a cafe table. Of this group Fritz Kreisler says, "I was the least talented of all."

May Peterson, Moisewitsch, and Fritz Kreisler are being brought to Madison this year by the students of the university. Season cards are on sale at Hook Brothers and at the bursar's office.

noon. In the cast are Pat O'Malley, Wesley Barry, Noah Beery, Agnes Ayres, Barney Sherry and other well known screen players. O'Malley, as the hero, a newspaper man, who dares all for a story takes a very strenuous role in which he performs, or seems to, many dangerous feats. The story details the adventures of a newspaper reporter who is determined to bring his crooked publisher to account. While gathering evidence in this direction, his "nose for news" involves him in the task of running several murderers to earth. He is accompanied in his assignment by a feminine interviewer who is sent out to get a story about an eminent surgeon's amazing discovery. They solve the mysteries after undue complications.

AT THE FULLER

Pauline Frederick wears an expensive French wig in her new Goldwyn Picture, "The Paliser Case." The Parisian wig maker admonished Miss Frederick's maid to take great care of the fine wig, a bobbed affair, which nobody has been able to distinguish from the star's own hair. When the headpiece was brought to the star, she at once noticed that the tresses were a bit too oily and suggested that it be wiped or cleaned. Her maid applied a towel but the glossy, unnatural tone remained. Then Miss Frederick called her chauffeur and told him to bring some gasoline from her gray roadster. The maid nearly fainted when the actress boldly dipped the precious wig in the gasoline, but it came forth so fresh and fluffy that Pauline Frederick is telling all her friends how to doctor glossy hair.
