BALLET-BOOTH WILL FEATURE NOVEL DANCES

Bertha Ochsner to Create
Special Number; Kempton Billed in Dance

Featuring Bertha Ochsner in original dance interpretations and Willet Kempton in "The Dance Tragique," the Ballet-Booth announces that its program for Saturday, May 1, has been completed. The dance will not be formal but the number of tickets has been limited to 200 and less than 50 of these are still available.

The Ballet-Booth was inaugurated this year as one of the events staged by the Edwin Booth dramatic society. Stanley McCandless is chairman of the dance.

Jean Juster, "Dick" Ede, Cecil Brodt, "Babe" Thompson, "Bob" Barrigan, Porter Brown, and "Babe" Naset will play. There will be no open dance at Thompson's hall that evening and the students who expect to attend the Ballet-Booth are urged to buy tickets before it is too late.

The specialty numbers which will be staged between the dances are short and novel. The complete list of acts has not been announced. Kempton will be assisted by Donald Marvin in his dance, and one or two other numbers will be given.

Only 50 tickets have been offered in the open sale and part of these are already sold. The others are on sale at Morgan's and the University pharmacy, corner of State and Lake streets.

SENATE TO TRY AND FIX SENTENCES FOR YEARLINGS TONIGHT

The judiciary committee of the student senate yesterday found the following freshmen guilty of the charges made against them: D. K. Newell of refusing to button; Howard Willet, E. V. Hill, Charles W. Skaife, and W. McCreery guilty of not wearing the green cap. H. M. Anding did not wear his green cap, smoked on the campus, and was disrespectful to upperclassmen. The sentences for these offences will be determined by the senate at its meeting Wednesday.

L. W. Ambour who has been in the service for more than a year, and has sophomore rating was acquitted. Walter Perkins, charged with not wearing his cap all of the time, and L. W. Clark were also acquitted. The case of A. A. Greenlaw who is not attending the university was dropped.

Wednesday night Leonard Larabee, Bruno Walczek, John W. Roberts, Engwald Bybutl, Clarence Donaldson, and Harry McMurray, will be tried for failure to wear the green cap.

'BIG TIME' MUSICIANS AT SOPHOMORE HOP

"Chuck" Carpenter, assisted by seven of Thompson's best men including "Sparks" Dodge at the drums, will play at the sophomore dance on Friday night at Lathrop gym.

"University out!" is the aim of the class of '22 for their dance. Beginning at 8:30 they hope to put on a party that will be memorable in the annals of the class. Everything possible is being done by them to make this dance a success, but the attendance of people from the other classes is urged to attain this end.

TICKET SALE FOR FACULTY PLAY TO OPEN THURSDAY

Proceeds Go to Fund for Bringing Better Plays to City

The public sale of tickets for the faculty play, "The Importance of Being Earnest," to be given by the Curtain club in the High school auditorium, May 4, will open Thursday with the tickets priced $1.50, $1, and 75 cents, available at Hook's Music store and in University hall. In the meantime tickets may still be secured by mail from C. L. Fernberg, 321 University club. The management advises people to get their tickets early as seats for the performance are going fast.

The play is a farce comedy filled to the brim with amusing situation that will keep an audience in an uproar.

"We think that this is one of the best of the contemporary comedies," said Prof. O. J. Campbell. "We want to show how a play can have both literary and dramatic qualities and be, at the same time, tremendously amusing. The club will put on nothing but comedies the first year—good amusing plays not ordinarily seen in Madison."

"Our more remote purpose is to awaken interest in the drama by raising a fund which will enable us to bring some of the better plays to Madison just as the Music school brings big musicians here. Eventually we hope that this fund will grow large enough for us to establish a permanent stock company here."

"Such a fund would also enable us to secure very fine costumes and scenery. We should like, later, to try out some of the latest ideas in scenery that are now being worked out in the east and in Europe. We also wish eventually to ally other departments of the university in this work and give those interested in music, applied art, costumes and scenery, an opportunity to express themselves in this way."

JORDAN TO TALK AT CONFERENCE

Edward S. Jordan, president of the Jordan Motor Car company, will speak at the Commerce vocational conference Thursday at 4:30 in the Physics auditorium on the subject "Production Problems."

Mr. Jordan's spectacular success in the automobile industry since his graduation from Wisconsin in 1905 should be enough to recommend everyone to hear him.

Those who attended his address before at the all-university Vocational conference last February will remember his strong appeal for the "good old Wisconsin spirit."

ASK FUNNY FOLKS TO RUSH IN COPY

At a meeting of the Board of Editors of The Octopus yesterday noon, it was decided that the next issue, "La Vie Wisconsinienne," should come out on May 12, making the deadline for all contributions tomorrow, April 29.

An urgent appeal is sent out by the editors for more copy. Although there is enough now to fill the Octopus, more choice and a wider range of contributions is desired. Material can be put in any of the boxes around the campus, or taken to the Octopus office in the Union building.

Almost any kind of humorous writing is wanted. Funny stories—not too long—terse sentences like The Literary Digest's "Topics in Brief," any amount of poetry, and original jokes by the thousands are some of the modest demands made by the board.

SAYS SINN FEIN IS LOST CAUSE

Dr. McCarthy Believes Ireland Must be Admitted as British Dominion

"The Irish question is the greatest bone of contention in the English-speaking world today, a worldwide question, and one that cannot be downed," said Dr. Charles McCarthy of the Wisconsin Legislative Reference library, addressing the Anglo-American club at the Y. M. C. A. last night.

"When Sir Augland Geddes or any other British ambassador comes to America and tells us we have no business to discuss Ireland, he's talking nonsense, and he's trying to delude the American people when he says that England is ready to give Ireland any rule she wants."

1,700 in Jails

"He might as well say that it was none of America's business to hear the cry of Belgium, or to go to the aid of Great Britain and France when they were fighting Germany with their backs to the wall, or for us to go to the defense of any down-trodden people."

"With 1,700 leading Sinn Fieners in jail and life not safe for any one, Ireland is absolutely in a state of anarchy and chaos at the present time. So long as the British oppression continues there can be no other condition than that."

'PI PI'S' AGENTS TO MAKE SWEEP ON ALL SCRIBES

A concerted attack by all members of the three teams selling tickets to the Press club entertainment and dance to be held Saturday night in the Woman's building will be made today. The canvassers will invade the Journalism classes and the offices of campus publications to give members an opportunity of sharing in the pleasures of entertaining delegates of Theta Sigma Phi, for whose benefit the program is being held.

A large proportion of the limited number of tickets have already been disposed of. The price of the pasteboards, 75 cents, admits to the comedy, "Pi Pi," held from 8 to 9, and to the dancing which will follow. Five of Boyd's best musicians will furnish the music for the evening.

Rehearsals for the skit have been going forward regularly, the cast and chorus taking the roles with ease now. The brief time for preparation has given rise to the slogan of the actors, "See What Press club can do in a week."

FRENCH CLUB PLAY PRESENTED TONIGHT

Tickets for the French play, "Ceinture Doree," which will be given tonight at 7:45 in Lathrop concert room, are selling rapidly, as all those who understand French are anxious to see this sparkling drama. The cast is an excellent one, and includes Luther Pfueger, R. Kimball, Hulcee Acton, Lee McCandless, Edwin Guyer, Albert Orshel, Louise Smith, Esther Guerini, Marion Doan, and Hazel Brash-ear. Tickets, which are 35 cents, may be obtained from any member of the French department.

JASTROW GIVES COLD SHOULDER TO SEANCE BID

Says Science is No Sport to Be Run in Challenge Style

A challenge to "sit in" at a spiritualistic seance is no challenge at all for Prof. Joseph Jastrow, of the philosophy department.

"The notion that science is a sort of sport to be conducted after the manner of a challenge, is a strange misunderstanding," said Professor Jastrow, in referring to an invitation to attend three seances conducted by the First Spiritual Temple society of Detroit. The invitation was sent him by H. G. Steele, representative of the society, as the result of a report in The Detroit Free Press of the lecture delivered by Professor Jastrow, April 16, before the Detroit University club.

The report quoted Professor Jastrow as saying that "spiritualism could be run down and explained by an ordinary freshman or an extraordinary senior in 15 minutes." The challenge demanded that if the invitation were not accepted the statement should be retracted. Professor Jastrow, in his reply addressed to The Detroit Free Press, refused either to attend the seances or to retract any statements made in his lecture.

Asks Authenticity

He called attention to the fact that the latest thing that a person who objected to the statement as published could do was first to verify the authenticity of the report. He pointed out that such an investigation would have brought to light the fact that such a condensed statement as appeared in the Detroit Press necessarily omitted to print all of the statement. The part omitted stated that physical phenomena of the type put forward could readily be explained provided that the examiner could determine completely the conditions of the experiment. This, according to Professor Jastrow, was the part that gave emphasis and point to the entire statement. Professor Jastrow's letter follows:

Professor Jastrow's Letter

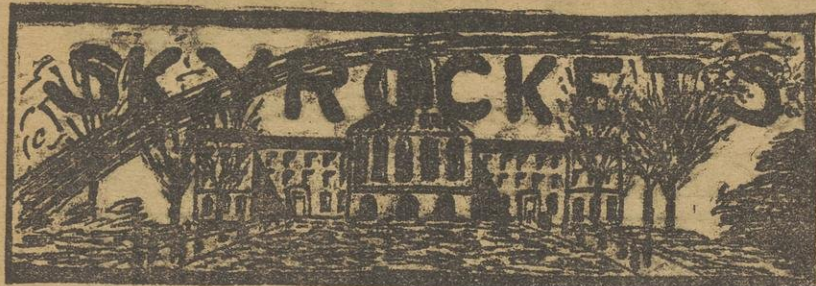

"Editor of The Detroit Free Press: The amazing letter of Mr. Steele, of which he has sent me a copy, would hardly merit a reply were it

FINAL ATTACK IN MEMORIAL DRIVE BEGINS TODAY

The final "big push" in the Memorial Union drive begins today. The complete list of the students who have not yet subscribed has been handed to the members of the canvassing committee and the work of completing the campaign will be begun tomorrow. Students who have not yet subscribed are urged to fill out the blanks that they have and have them on hand to give to the canvassers when they call.

The fund still remains at the $80,000 mark and the committee has not fallen off a particle in their enthusiasm to send the drive over the top. The faculty subscription has not been entirely turned in so far, but seven of the fifteen buildings have been heard from. Every effort to co-operate with the committee-members is expected. The board still feels that the situation is by no means safe, and that hard work will be necessary to send the drive over the top.

THE KILLER OF LOU

'Twas on the shore of Lake Mendota
Me and my gal named Lou,
Sat rather near on the Phi Delt pier
When a fire-arm bug went through

A big man he was, and he carried a gun
That was long and shiny and black.
And the shells that he had were loaded—and bad,
'Bout a hundred, I guess, to the pack.

And he walked down the road, 'till he'd come to a place Where a target was nailed to a tree.
And there the galoot started to shoot
And not very well, I could see.

Finally he tired of the target
And began to shoot at stars,
And I wished for a way I could lay him away
Safe behind some iron bars.

Then his eye began to wander Towards us, and he missed his aim.
He let out a cough and the darned thing went off,
And killed sweet Lou, my dame.

That was years ago, but a can still recall
How purty she looked when she died,
How I picked up an axe, stopped
him in his tracks,
And laid them out, side by side.

MASSMEETING FOR AMERICAN LEGION

To Discuss Organization and Adoption of Constitution

The Madison post of the American Legion will hold a massmeeting Thursday at 3:30 in Music hall, to stir up interest in the post and increase the membership. John Commons, Jr., temporary commander, will preside, and A. E. Fitzpatrick will speak.

The adoption of a constitution and other matters of organization will be considered. Suggestions as to the formation of the post will be welcome and should be made to Commons or Mr. Mailer. These men have application cards which they would like to have anyone interested in the post fill out. A charter has already been granted, and now only the details of organization remain to be accomplished.

It should be understood by all service men that those having membership in other posts can have them transferred to the Madison organization.

SINN FEIN CAUSE SAID TO BE LOST

England is trying to force on Ireland is not a satisfactory home rule system at all, but one that would lead to internal disunion, Dr. McCarthy asserted. He believes that the Sinn Fein movement for absolute home rule is a lost cause, and that the only hope for Ireland lies in being permitted to come into the British commonwealth as a dominion. He censured the Lloyd George ministry for ignoring Irish demands for a constitutional convention to result in Ireland being admitted to the commonwealth as Canada and Australia have been admitted, and painted a dark picture of repressive measures put in force during the war, such as suspending Irish national sports and the privileges of assembly.

Dr. McCarthy based his conclusions upon a study of conditions, made in Ireland during the war.

JASTROW REFUSES BID TO SEANCE

not that I might be suspected of a lack of appreciation of the courtesy extended me on many occasions by groups of citizens of Detroit. The least that one would expect of one who objected to a statement contained in a brief account in a daily paper, would be to inquire whether the condensed report accurately represented the opinion. Had he done so he would readily have learned that what I said was that the physical phenomena of the type put forward as evidence of supernormal forces could readily be explained by an intelligent person—represented for a University club audience in collegiate terms—provided that the examiner could determine completely the conditions of the experiment. It is to be regretted that the reporter did not report the underscored words, which gave point and emphasis to the statement. I went on to explain that the difficulty in the past was that the "mediums determined the conditions under which what they put forward was exhibited. Thus for table moving one would ask for observers perfectly free to examine under and around the table at all times with any form of illumination any aids to observation they chose to apply.

"This indication of the complete statement referred to will make unnecessary any further reply to Mr. Steele's proposals or inferences.

Science Misunderstood

"It may be well to add that the notion that science is a sort of sport to be conducted after the manner of a challenge is a strange misunderstanding. The technique of scientific investigation proceeds by well founded principles of logic and proof. The day has gone by when anyone with any sort of hypothesis which he chooses to put forward can assert a claim for men of science to disprove his claims or forever after hold their peace. In order to allay popular misunderstanding men of science have been willing in the past to make concessions and meet mediums and other similar claimants, on their ground. Having met such obligations amply, they may well decline to do so in the future except when such claimants are entirely ready to conform with the conditions of the man of science.

"The letter contains two other misunderstandings. It seems to assume an interest on my part in the doctrine of spiritualism and an objection on my part to those who may hold them; such is not the case. Any one is welcome to believe that performances which he may produce or witness are due to a personal devil or to agents of the fourth dimension or to visitors from Mars or to odic force or to psychic waves or to departed spirits, and may derive whatever comfort he can obtain from such beliefs. If he wishes to prove any such belief by the negative evidence that what is done could not be done by ordinary means, that is a wholly different matter. He must let those who are the best judges of such means determine that part of the inquiry. The question of fraud is also not the only one concerned. There may be perfectly innocent self-deception. The plain issue is whether this or that physical performance can be shown to be performed by well understood agencies when proper opportunity is given for competent persons to determine the conditions of examination.

"It is also a mistake to suppose that in making the statement in question I or anybody else would do so as a personal matter. If anyone is interested to know what the great body of men of science in general and psychologists in particular think of the evidence for spiritualistic beliefs so far as they are reducible to proof, let him consult the article in the May issue of The Review of Reviews which shows that with few exceptions—and these critical ones—such men almost unanimously endorse the position which I attempted to put forward.

"I send this message not in view of Mr. Steele's letter but in deference to the readers of the Detroit newspapers."

THE N. O. L. CONTEST

TIME was, in what has been termed "the good old days" of La Follette, Loeb, Pierce, and Ries, when the forensic prestige of Wisconsin was heralded throughout the country. Then followed a slump in our average columns from which we have never started to emerge.

During the war came a cessation of all intercollegiate forensic activities. During the S. A. T. C. the foundation was planted for a strong comeback by continuing all inter-class contests. For the first time in years students had to be turned away from a joint debate. Literary societies gained in membership when the men started to come back and plans were formulated for a re-entering into intercollegiate competition.

We started the real comeback by encouraging greater participation and entering more contests. This spring we broke better than even against four of the strongest schools in the conference. Invitations to compete in debate against such schools as Columbia, Princeton, and Southern California were received, but owing to the lateness of the season could not be entertained. Our position has been regained and it is now up to us to see that it is retained.

The climax of the season takes place May 7 in the form of the Northern Oratorical League contest. Our representative is a woman who has made her mark in the field of oratory with a splendid record of victories. In a contest of this kind, more than in any other, proper support is a vital factor in achieving victory. With proper support in the form of a maximum crowd our entry should win. Let us give it by our presence at the contest. Save Friday night, May 7, for the N. O. L. contest

OUTDOOR SPORTS

WHEN the chilly air, wet tennis courts, and waves that spell risk to the canoeist conspire to cut off enjoyment of the outdoors, the mind dwells more attentively than ever upon outdoor pleasures. It seems appropriate, therefore, to consider the part which outdoor exercise does play, and should play, in university life.

In order to be healthy and happy, human beings must have plenty of physical exercise. Everyone accepts this statement without reservation, but as with many other excellent rules, practice and theory do not coincide. If student life were not so crowded with pressing duties, students would act in accordance with it, for to relieve work with play and vigorous exercise is natural, even instinctive.

Though immersed in many intellectual pursuits, university men and women require physical exertion as truly as did the primitive man who never gave the problem a thought. The present practice is to think about exercise, but in many cases to have only a bleacher or ring-side acquaintance with it.

Many students are at present leading the strenuous life physically. The members of varsity and class athletic teams are spending time and effort in securing the highest physical development. Neither let us overlook the freshmen and sophomores who flock daily to their gym and drill classes.

But there are hundreds whose greatest physical adventure consists in climbing the hill to University hall. With some, dancing monopolizes all of their spare time, part of which it should share with vigorous outdoor sports. Others believe mistakenly that the best scholastic results will follow an unremitting grind of study. In neither case will the most vigorous body or energetic mind be developed. Daily exercise, consistently engaged in, is a prerequisite to the physical exhilaration and mental drive which accompany the pink of condition.

The idea behind the rule requiring only two years of gymnasium work was probably that new students need physical guidance while becoming adjusted to university life. There is a danger that in the difficult period of getting settled students will not voluntarily take a sufficient number of physical workouts. When they have become juniors and seniors, the assumption is that they have learned to manage their affairs so as to have time for exercise, and have come to realize its fundamental necessity.

Many upperclassmen have not come to this realization. The root cause is short-sightedness. In the long run, their ability to make good, in university or in later years, will depend upon their physical condition; and physical condition depends upon a sensible physical program.

The daily exercise which health and pep demand is even a less burdensome task in Madison than elsewhere. Lakes and hills offer every opportunity for canoeing and hiking. The tennis courts are open, while they last. Athletic leagues between various student groups, such as fraternity baseball, are now in full swing. Every student can find some outdoor sports which will double his or her fun, as well as store up muscle and nerve power. The outdoor habit is a good one to acquire and hang to.

TENNIS COURTS BECKEN FACULTY TO TOURNAMENT

Faculty tennis enthusiasts are bringing forth nets and rackets for a general assault on their own exclusive courts. In fact, the Faculty Tennis association has already been organized, with Prof. William Ellery Leonard as temporary secretary.

Professor Leonard has sent out the following invitation to faculty members:

"The Faculty Tennis association, with three exclusive courts at the corner of Breeze Terrace and University avenue, and a good surplus of cash in hand, in the treasury, wishes to extend its usefulness and its membership for the bright days which the weatherman says are coming sooner or later. The dues are $6 a year, including the summer months. There will be pleasure and exercise for all. Let no one hold back because he is rusty or his game as yet undeveloped; he will find sympathetic companions and plenty of 'Class Dub' opponents. Communications should be addressed to the temporary secretary at Main hall or 2015 Adams street."

FORM HOOVER CLUB AT MASS MEETING

The All-University Hoover club was formed at a mass meeting held last night in the Engineering building auditorium, and enrolled about eighty students. Everett L. Grubb, secretary-treasurer of the Mining club, was named chairman.

Magnus Swenson, former United States food administrator for Wisconsin, after discussing Hoover's candidacy for president in a short talk, started contributions for a fund to send a representative of the club to New York city Saturday, where a convention of Hoover clubs is to be held. About $85 was collected, and C. M. Chapman was named temporary treasurer. Grubb will make the trip to New York, as Wisconsin's representative.

The club has called a second meeting Thursday night of next week.

ILLINOIS HELLO WEEK KEEPS CO-EDS BUSY

URBANA, Ill.—"Hello—yes, ah—oh, Hello—let's see, where was—hello—oh, dear, how can I talk when I have to say 'hello' to everyone I meet?"

Such has been the experience of many Illinois co-eds since "Hello Week" began.

An inventory made quietly by the committee revealed that almost all women on the campus were responding to the scheme to promote a better feeling of friendliness, and were greeting everyone, regardless of whether or not they were acquainted. It is hoped by the leaders of both Woman's League and the Y. W. C. A. that "Hello Week" will some day be an everyday affair, and that the "hello" among the women will be as common as with the men.

STORKS AT ZOO PLAN ON STRIKE; TOO MUCH WORK

Zoo Babies Come Too Fast is Plea; Lion and Tiger Cubs Expected

IN the dusk yesterday evening storks at the Madison zoo put their heads together and plotted revolt.

"We are overworked," said one.

"It's bad enough," croaked another, "when we are kept busy with human babies in the city, but when our brother animals right here in our own home threaten to keep us rushing day and night, things have come to a pretty pass."

"We will strike for ten frogs a day," said the first stork. "If we walk out, the place will be depopulated in one generation. People will come to terms."

According to a guinea hen, who overheard the plotters, the storks appointed a stalking delegate to get out and organize a local union.

The keeper of the zoo, when appealed to, declared there was some justice in the complaint of the storks.

"We expect a busy time in May," he said Tuesday. "Not only will we get the usual increase in the families of our feathered friends, but Cleo, the lioness expects baby cubs next month, and there will also be several new members of the tiger family. But the storks have always been patient enough, and I think they really won't go on a strike, do you?"

WOODBURY'S TALK DRAWS BIG CROWD

Nature and Character of American Poet Longfellow Depicted

"A simple nature that understood and expressed the life of the humble people and poetized their simple tragedies and joys was Longfellow's," declared Prof. George E. Woodberry, formerly of the Wisconsin faculty who spoke before a large audience in 165 University hall at 4:30 p. m. yesterday.

"Longfellow was essentially a cosmopolitan and all the old world culture which he gathered from his travels and extensive reading of literature he brought to bear on poetizing the nature and legendry of America. This gift of sentiment and romance constitutes one of the chief factors in Longfellow's popularity both here and abroad.

"He was not a great thinker but rather a man of letters. The narrowness of Boston often irked him but he always found the world in his library where the literature of the world met in his mind. We are most fortunate to have such a golden memory to inscribe on the portals of our literature."

Professor Woodberry will lecture on Lowell on Thursday and Shelly on Friday.

N. O. L. CONTEST IS FIFTH MEET AT MUSIC HALL

Wisconsin will compete for premier oratorical honors when the Northern Oratorical league composed of Wisconsin, Minnesota, Illinois, Michigan, Northwestern, and Iowa, convenes for its thirteenth annual contest, at Music hall, Friday night, May 7.

This contest will mark the close of a most successful season in forensics. It comes to Madison for the fifth time since the organization of the league in 1890, having previously been held here in 1894, 1900, 1907, and 1914. Badger representatives have won first place four times since the contest was inaugurated. The first victory was achieved by Senator Robert M. La Follette and he was followed by victories on the part of Max Loeb, Charles Pierce, and Alvin Carl Ries.

Other Wisconsin notables who have represented the university are "Sunny" Pyre, "Mike" Olbrich, E. M. McMahon, H. B. Janisch, and Fred Merk. In addition to winning first place four times Wisconsin entries have placed second on eight different occasions. The ticket sale has already been started by the literary societies with the idea of getting the largest turnout that has ever attended a forensic contest on the campus.

Every speaker entered has run the gauntlet of undergraduate public speaking experience and is entering the contest determined to give the winner a hard race. Never since the league was organized in 1890 in response to an invitation sent out by the University of Michigan has the contest excited the interest of the present one.

'WHAT'S THE MATTER' MEET AT CORNELL

ITHACA, N. Y.—A novel method of dealing with university problems was inaugurated at Cornell by holding a "What's-the-matter-with-Cornell" massmeeting at which both students and faculty members spoke.

Faculty, administrative staff, coaches and undergraduates were listed as ten-minute speakers. Among the topics were "the professor's attitude toward competitions," "underclass co-operation," "the athletic association's point of view," "the non-fraternity point of view," "the spirit of other colleges." A general discussion followed the regular speakers.

The idea was to obtain as many points of view as possible on widely varied subjects of vital importance.

SORORITY TRAILS PORCH CLIMBERS

URBANA, Ill.—Detectives are hot on the trail of the male or female porch climbers, who scaled the western post of the Gamma Phi Beta porch at Illinois, and purloined from a southwestern room two pairs of gaily colored curtains and other articles useful to the occupants of the room.

Sunday afternoon, the whole chapter inspected the footprints of the intruders in the flower beds around the porch, and the muddy streaks left upon the post by the bold prowlers.

Complications in the solution of the mystery set in when a small boy returned a part of the purloined property with a note printed in gay red ink, "Compliments of Sigma Sigma." The outraged "cistern" declare that the trail of Sigma Sigma will be followed closely until the curtains also have been returned.

WANT TO ABOLISH OHIO HONOR PLAN

COLUMBUS, O.—Declaring the present honor tradition at Ohio State to be a joke and efforts to establish an honor system to be a failure, and stating that the faculty has been partly responsible, through laxity, for the present wide-spread conditions of cheating in examinations, Men's Student council threw a bombshell into the campus quiet by presenting a set of resolutions adopted by the council to the faculty committee, to investigate cheating conditions, advising a rigid system of surveillance in examinations and public prosecution of students who are caught.

'20 PLAY TRYOUTS HELD NEXT WEEK

"The Jesters," a comedy translated from the French of Miguel Zamacois, has been selected as the senior class play to be given during commencement week. The production is in charge of Helen M. Colby, chairman of the senior play committee. The play will be presented in the open-air theater.

Tryouts for the cast will be held Tuesday and Wednesday of next week at 4:30 p. m. in Lathrop hall. Copies of the play may be secured from the university desk in the library.

SOPH HIRES HEARSE TO ESCAPE FROSH

DALLAS, Tex.—The freshman class president of Southern Methodist university traveled several miles in a hearse to escape sophomores. They had captured him and taken him to a neighboring town to prevent his attendance at a class dance. He eluded his jailors, hired a hearse, and in it made his escape to the depot of another town, where he caught a train back to Dallas, arriving in time to attend his class dance.
