The libraries provide public access to a wide range of material, including online exhibits, digitized collections, archival finding aids, our catalog, online articles, and a growing range of materials in many media.

When possible, we provide rights information in catalog records, finding aids, and other metadata that accompanies collections or items. However, it is always the user's obligation to evaluate copyright and rights issues in light of their own use.

Handwritten text in Arabic script, likely a fragment of a larger document. The text is written on a piece of aged, yellowed paper with visible fibers and some staining. The script is cursive and appears to be from a historical manuscript.
