FORMALLY OPENED

STATE HISTORICAL LIBRARY APPROPRIATELY CONSECRATED.

Valuable Address by Charles Francis Adams—Gov. Scofield and Others Present.

The formal dedication ceremonies of the Wisconsin State Historical Society's new library and museum building were held yesterday in a manner worthy of the occasion of the handsome building which is the most costly historical society building in America, and of the library itself, which for many lines of study and research is unsurpassed.

The meetings were held, one in the afternoon and one in the evening. A number of prominent speakers gave short addresses at the afternoon meeting, among whom were Dr. A. C. McLaughlin of University of Michigan, Governor Edward Scofield, Dr. James K. Hosmer, librarian of Minneapolis Public library, Charles Francis Adams, John Johnston, president of the society, Rev. Dr. J. D. Butler, James H. Stout, President Chas. K. Adams and Secretary Reuben G. Thwaites.

The exercises were held at 2 p. m. in the great white reading room with about 1000 people in attendance.

In the evening the dedicatory address was given by Charles Francis Adams to a large and appreciative audience.

The afternoon meeting was presided over by Hon. John Johnston, president of the Society, who introduced Dr. James D. Butler who asked the blessing of Almighty God upon the members of the Society who have done so much for the state.

President Johnston spoke concerning the future work of the society and the University. He spoke concerning the rapid transformation made in a single lifetime in the state of Wisconsin. He congratulated the people on their munificence in giving so much to the cause of education.

President Johnston then introduced James H. Stout, president of the board of Commissioners, who gave some interesting figures concerning the cost of the building.

"The building cost," he said, "29 cents per cubic foot as it stands today. In all there are 444,000 volumes in the library."

Gov. Scofield then spoke in behalf of the state, approving the work of the state in encouraging education and libraries. He also said that he earnestly hoped that the day was near when the common school appropriations would be increased. He said that he ventured the assertion that every dollar paid into the university had been paid ten-fold to the state in increasing its resources.

Secretary Reuben G. Thwaites gave a very pleasing address touching upon the history of the society since its organization up to the present time. He paid a beautiful tribute to the work of Dr. Draper, the first secretary of the society. He said that the society had done marvelous work in the years it has existed but that it is only on the threshold of its possibilities. He closed with a prophecy for great good and work by the society.

President Charles Kendall Adams gave an interesting address on behalf of the University. He reviewed the work and functions of a university. On behalf of the University, on behalf of the Board of Regents, and the thousands of students who in future years would use the library, he extended thanks.

Dr. Charles Francis Adams extended greeting from the Massachusetts Historical Society, the oldest society in existence. Dr. Adams was greeted with hearty cheers. He congratulated the society on its phenomenal growth, upon its great work and prophesied a great career for the society.

Dr. James K. Hosmer extended the greetings of the Minneapolis public library and the people of Minnesota.

Lloyd Garrison, Daniel Webster and John Quincy Adams, Garrison's moral result was to be secured not through the agencies Garrison advocated, but by force of that nationality which Webster proclaimed, and this was the solution that J. Q. Adams never wearied of enunciating. In this great struggle, Wisconsin, the youngest of the states, came at once to the front as the banner state of the West in support of the principles on which the Union was established, and those concerned in the Buffalo movement of 1848 were destined to earn in the fullness of time the rare distinction of carrying mankind forward one distinct stage in the long process of evolution.

Wisconsin, he said, became and remained the Vermont of the West. She never faltered. In the Civil war none then died more freely or in

The audience was composed chiefly of people connected with the University, the members of the society living here and in other cities of the state. Among the well-known people from other cities were Judge R. N. Austin, Judge Noyes, John Johnston and H. P. Myrick of Milwaukee. State Senator Baxter of Lancaster, Editor A. J. Turner of The Portage Register, Editor Ellis B. Usher of The La Crosse Chronicle and ex-Gov. W. H. Upham of Marshfield; Prof. H. E. Bousne, Western Reserve university, Cleveland, O.; Secretary Charles Evans of the Chicago Historical society, Judge Charles E. Flandreau of the Minnesota society, W. H. Brett of the Cleveland, Ohio, Public library; President F. H. Head of the Chicago society; Miss Olive Jones of the Ohio State Historical library; Dr. Otto L. Schmidt of the Chicago library.

Description of Building.

The beautiful building of the State Historical society is the most splendidly equipped historical library building in America. It is built of buff Bedford lime-stone in the modernized Ionic style of architecture, and cost, fully equipped, about $575,000. It faces the lower campus of the University of Wisconsin, upon a rising plat of ground 264 feet square. The adjoining streets are State, Langdon and Park.

Local and Personal.

—The final score of today's game was Varsity 64; Upper Iowa 0.

—Ferdinand Derge is a guest of his brother Herman Derge, '04.

—Sidney H. Ball, '01, has returned to the University.

—O. C. Atkinson, '03, has left for his home in Chicago for a short visit.

—Messrs. Vroman Mason and Irving A. Fish drove to Lake Geneva yesterday.

—Charles Slater, '03, left last night for a short visit to his home at Escanaba, Mich.

—Dr. Geo. Smieding, '96, and Rush Medical College, '00, is now practicing at Jefferson, Wis.

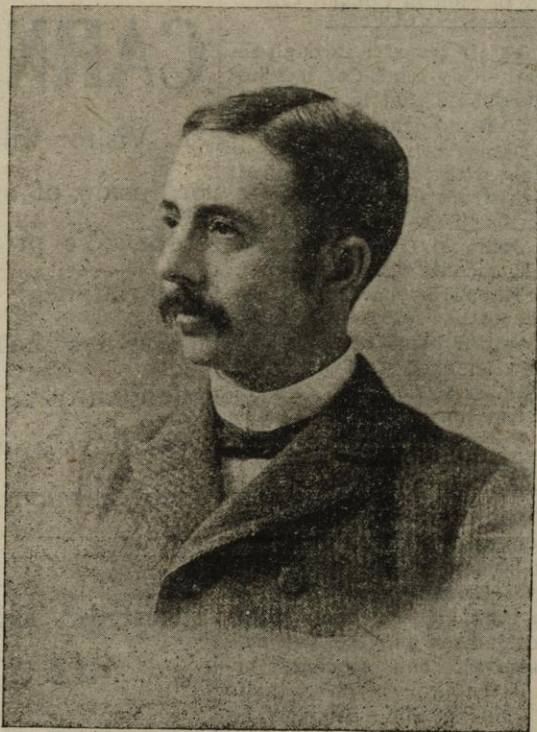

—Henry Lindsay, '04, of Fox Lake, has been forced to go home because of sickness. It is feared that Mr. Lindsay has appendicitis.

—A great many sparrows have daily found it convenient to fly through open windows into the beautiful reading room of the new library and have surprised many by their singing powers.

—President and Mrs. Charles Kendall Adams will leave next Wednesday for a Mediterranean trip, sailing from New York Saturday. They will be accompanied by Dr. and Mrs. Farnsworth of Battle Creek.

—The annual business meeting of the Oratorical Association was called to order at two o'clock this afternoon by Secretary E. A. Hook, about forty being present. Joe Koffend was elected chairman. A new constitution was read and other business of minor importance was transacted.

—Four of the various republican aspirants for congressional honors have children attending the University. Congressman Dahle has three, Otto, Isaac and Clara. The Otjen family is represented by Henry Otjen, a member of the sophomore class. John Barney, one of Athenae's representatives at last year's joint debate, and Sybil Barney are children of Congressman S. S. Barney. Webster E. Brown of Rhinelander, who will undoubtedly succeed Congressman Stewart, has a son, Ralph Dexter Brown, who is a member of the freshman class.

Reuben Gold Thwaites.

Prof. A. C. McLaughlin, of the University of Michigan, then gave an address on the teaching of history. He declared that the time was near when all students in history would not find their education complete until they had come to the University of Wisconsin for there was to be found a full collection of works upon history.

After this meeting the building was thrown open for public inspection and the library staff showed the strangers throughout the building.

Dr. Charles Francis Adams was the speaker at the evening meeting. He was accorded a very hearty greeting as the representative of one of America's most famous families.

Charles Francis Adams' Address.

Mr. Adams' address was a thoughtful and scholarly paper in which he contrasted the modern conception of history, as a unified whole—a vast scheme systematically developing to some result as yet not understood,—with its former conception as a mere succession of annals and details. It dealt with the middle period of the nineteenth century and the human evolution over the two problems of nationality and slavery and traced the struggle for meeting between centrifugal and centrifugal forces—on the one side, Massachusetts; on the other, first, Virginia and then South Carolina. The three men who came forward, voicing more clearly than all others what was in the mind of the community in the way of aspiration, whether moral or political, were William greater glory, though then many died and there won much glory. "The facts and figures are eloquent; comment weakens them." Wherever during those awful years the dead lay thickest, there the men from Wisconsin were freely laying down their lives. In one of the great evolutionary movements of men, the sacrifices of Wisconsin life and treasure were but the fulfillment of the promise given by Wisconsin in 1848. While its representatives did not number a Lincoln or a Sherman, it did supply in a marked degree the greatest and most necessary of all essentials in every revolutionary crisis—a well-developed and thoroughly distributed popular backbone. Referring to the racial characteristics of the state—the Anglo-Saxon of New England descent, the Teutonic and Scandinavian immigrants, tough of fibre and tenacious of principle, the mixed descendants of those races are still calculated to illustrate the operation of a natural law to leave this imprint on that particular phase of human evolution which then presented itself.

In the concluding portion of his address Mr. Adams pictured the ideal historian whose attributes should be learning, good judgement and literary form. For the future the careful and intelligent reading of the historical lessons of the past is all important, and such an institution as that here dedicated to-day should be the sheet anchor by which the ship of state would be anchored to a firm holding ground of tradition.

Student Action Commendable.

Many favorable comments have been heard upon the orderly conduct of the carnival last night. Much of this was due to the fact that students did not participate in the closing scenes of the carnival. They are to be congratulated upon their refusal to participate in what was expected to be a disorderly exhibition.

Completed at Last.

The significance of the dedication of the new library yesterday can scarcely be over-rated. It marked the fact that the greatest repository of historical literature in the United States was at last in running order and that the labor of years and the expenditure of hundreds of thousands of dollars has resulted in an ornament possessed by no other university in the land. The people of Wisconsin may well be proud of the completed structure as it stands and students of the University should be grateful for the vast opportunities thus presented to them. Although formally dedicated yesterday, still the truest dedication of the building was that given by the crowds of students who daily throng its reading-rooms. Those who have experienced the crowded quarters of the old library and have watched the process of construction of the new building through the course of several years can and do fully appreciate the great boon conferred upon them by the people of the state in erecting this truly palatial structure for their benefit.

Senior Girls Meet.

A meeting of the Senior girls was held this morning in Ladies Hall. Nearly every lady member of the class was present and every subject brought before the meeting was fully discussed. The question of caps and gowns was presented and after an enthusiastic review of the points pro and con it was decided unanimously to adopt the cap and gown. No further important business was transacted.

Athenae.

Athenae was the only hill society that held a meeting last evening. All others were postponed because of the closing exercises at the dedication of the State Historical Library. The question debated at Athenae was upon the advisability of allowing the speaker of the H. of Rep. to retain his present power. The affirmative was sustained by O'Brien, Jones, Jorstad and Gohlke; the negative by Luhman, Graham, Barney and Schockly. The debate was ably conducted throughout and resulted in victory for the affirmative. The second debate was indefinitely postponed. The following new members were sworn in: R. N. Trump, V. G. Marquise, Morton John, Allen John, Wm. Kelsey, Thiede and Menzies.

Prof. Banks J. Wildman Tomorrow.

Prof. Banks J. Wildman of Upper Iowa University will address the men of the University tomorrow afternoon at half past four in the Law building. Prof. Wildman is a graduate of Chicago University, class of '98. He was somewhat known as a runner and in all respects as an old round college man. Prof. Wildman comes with the Upper Iowa football team and is the guest of the Y. M. C. A.

The subject of the address will be "The Study of Men in College Life."

—A real estate transfer through the Agency of the Gay Land Co., has just been consummated that is of interest to some of the students. A tract of vacant land directly in front of Ladies Hall, with a frontage of 510 feet on Park street and a depth of 172 feet, has been purchased by Geo. Raymer and John M. Olin. This it is understood, means that the young women of Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority will in the no distant future have a beautiful home of their own, within a few hundred feet of Ladies Hall and almost as near the new Historical Society Library building and as near the University buildings as it would be possible to get.

Objectionable Features Condemned.

A petition was circulated yesterday among the students condemning the action of the carnival committee in permitting such objectionable shows to come to Madison as were here during the carnival. The students believe that such features only incite disorder. The petition was signed by eight hundred students.

Warner's "27" W. Main.

Drink Miniwaken Mineral Water.

A great many students are finding that a typewriter is almost a necessity. When we remember that one can get through with from three to ten times as much work on a typewriter as with a pen it does not seem strange that they are coming into almost universal use.

The Madison Cycle Co. at 113 State street rents all makes at very reasonable rates and also carries a full line of typewriter supplies.

The Carnival.

The Carnival is over. The end of the frolicking came last night with a gorgeous masque parade led by Nitschke's band followed by about three hundred incongruous individuals decked out in grotesque and fanciful garb. The squad of special police which had been promised by Chief Baker proved to be a huge joke, they being ordinary masqued citizens forming a part of the parade.

The admonition of the students by Acting-President Birge and the deans of the various colleges seems to have had the desired effect for no student disorder was reported. In fact there were few students at the Carnival last night.

The patronage of the Carnival was liberal and the committee announce that it was a financial success.

The demoralization of class work consequent upon the Carnival was much less this week than anticipated and this fact is a source of gratification to the University authorities.

and everything in trunks and bags at H. H. Brown's 118 E. Main st. Large assortment and lowest prices.

Met the "Boys."

Dear Father:—After bucking hard all the week I took a constitutional around the pack up town and met several of the boys at the One Minute Coffee House. One fellow ordered "Adam and Eve on a raft" and a cup of fierce coffee. We all followed suit. It proved to be poached eggs on toast and the best Mocha and Java. Send me that V which ma is saving—that "calf money."
