POWYS DEVELOPS THEME OF SELF CULTURE IN TALK

Pleases Audience at Music Hall
With Interpretation of Present Psycho-Analysis

By E. M. H.

Developing the theme of self-culture and self in one's personal growth and in literature, John Cowper Powys spoke before an enthusiastic audience under the auspices of the Arden club last Monday night. Following his lecture he was entertained at an informal reception at Arden house.

Defines Self Culture

Mr. Powys presented to the audience his ideals of self-culture, the art of which he described as "the art of becoming more and more sensitively and imaginatively aware of what it is to be alive." Self culture, according to his conception of it, is the development of one's self, one's ego, to the exclusion of all other considerations such as service, pleasure, spectacular effects, fame, money.

Proceeding from his idea of such self-culture, Mr. Powys introduced the audience to psycho-analysis in literature as found in its true essence. "This existence of psycho-analysis in literature," he said, "is present in all the great works of literature, not under its Freudian titles, under its meaningless names, but in the true essence. The really great psycho-analyst is not one that uses the terms promiscuously, (Continued on page two)

BEGONIA, SUN PERCH, FORECASTS OF SPRING

Spring has pervaded even the Biology building. No doubt remains after seeing the exhibits placed there by the biology department this week. On one side of the door is a begonia with faint pink blooms and on the other a sun perch lazily swimming among the ferns. Some say the spring time craving for the sight of a cork bobbing in a stream must have found expression in the selection of the weekly exhibit. The begonia, a native plant of tropical America, looks as if some of Wisconsin's sunshine might improve its vigor.

GLEE CLUB OPENS SEASON IN BELOTT

"Bells of St. Mary's," Ever Popular, Included in Program Again

Then entire Men's Glee club will give its first concert at 8:15 o'clock tomorrow evening at the First Congregational church in Beloit in introduction to the most extensive concert season of its history.

With hardly more than two weeks separating the club from the annual home concerts to be given in Music hall March 11 and 12, the Midwest crampings have been drilling daily under the tutelage of Prof. Earl Swinney, conductor of the organization. Tuesday morning the concert club held a full concert rehearsal of the program to be sung at the spring concerts, and Prof. Swinney expressed satisfaction at the way the club sang the numbers.

The program this year will be very similar to that of the last year which won the acclaim of the thousands of people who listened to the Wisconsin singers. "The Bells of St. Mary's," seemingly the most popular glee club song ever written judging from the applause which greeted it in last year's concerts, has been included in this year's selections.

DESK MEN

All desk men, assistants, and proof readers will meet at 1 o'clock this afternoon in the editorial office. It is important that all staff members attend.

Day By Day With The News

By C. O. S.

Rumours of the establishment of a protectorate by the United States over the republic of Nicaragua continue to grow. Pres. Diaz and the banana growers, needless to say, are pleased with the prospect. Sen. Borah tells the Senate that an investigating commission should be sent to Nicaragua before the U. S. takes further action.

Cantonese troops continue their victorious march upon Shanghai while the warlords of Peking take in the sight of a once-sleeping but now awakened China.

Farm leaders propose to boycott on Eastern manufactured products should the McNary-Haugen veto be thrown in the President's wastepaper basket. After paying higher prices during all these years on the products of the East due to the protective tariff, the farmers believe it is time for them to pick a few plums out of the pie.

The Wisconsin senate yesterday defeated a proposed amendment to the state constitution which would limit the biennial session of legislature to 100 days.

The Air

Race Continues.

Fascist Italy rejoices over the feat of her aviator, Commander Francesco de Pinedo, in flying from the Cape Verde islands to the islands of Fernando Noronha near the Brazilian coast, a total distance of 1,342 miles. De Pinedo hopes to make stops at Jamaica, Cuba, New Orleans, St. Louis, Chicago and New York.

Meanwhile two favorite sons of Portugal are planning a round-the-world flight starting today from the aerodrome near Lisbon. Uruguay's aviator, Maj. Tadeo Larre-Borges, now at Malaga, Spain, plans to continue from Italy to Uruguay when weather conditions along the African coast are favorable.

America's premier aviator, Richard E. Byrd, who last May flew 1,500 miles from Spitzbergen to the North Pole will try a trans-Atlantic flight this spring. Rene Fonck, whose hopes were dashed to pieces on the start last autumn may also enter the trans-Atlantic race.

How Long Has He Been President?

With all the talk rampant concerning the chances of Coolidge serving a third term, the question—how long has Coolidge been president?—is unsolved.

When the Vermont man took over the presidency upon Harding's death was he president or merely acting president? The constitution in Article II, Section 5, reads—"In case of the removal of the president from office, or his death, resignation or inability to discharge the powers and duties of such office, the same shall evolve on the Vice President."

Theodore Roosevelt found himself in a like predicament after he had served the unexpired term of McKinley and one of his own. Adhering to precedent, Roosevelt did not run for election at the end of his term. In 1912, however, he was a candidate on a Progressive ticket for what might have been interpreted as a third term.

Machine Guns Guard Chicago Polls

Chicago politicians rest more easily now after a turbulent spring election. Machine guns aided by 2000 policemen guarded the polls on Washington's birthday. "Big Bill" Thompson won the Republican nomination running on a platform of "America First" or something similar, a platform broad enough to include almost anything. From the precinct, Chicago's election's, like those in most large cities are controlled by huge political machines with the precinct "boss" the nucleus in a complicated system of "bosses."

COSMOS CLUB DANCE WILL BE HELD TONIGHT

The Cosmos club, a local organization made up of members of the faculty and men living in Madison, will hold its annual dance tonight. Membership in the group is not limited to men in a single profession, nor to a certain number of men from each profession.

Badger Cannery to Eat Own Products at Dinner Tonight

Badger Cannery are going to get a taste of their own products when they meet tonight for a banquet at the Park Hotel, for they will be fed nothing but canned foods, most of which are put up in Wisconsin. Tin cans will be the prevailing form of decoration. Around the walls, piles of canned foods will remind the cannery of their importance.

China and silverware will be noticeable by the prevalence of tin. Plates will be tin, cups will be tin. About the only things that won't be tin will be the after dinner cigars, due to the inability of Mr. Walter Pocock, manager of the hotel, to secure such an article that would still be usable.

Mercury Rises; How Soon Will Canoe Replace Iceboat, Query?

If this first taste of spring keeps up, the ice will break up the middle of March, according to "Cap" Thomas Isabell.

"I don't ever look for the ice to break up before the end of March," he said, "but if this weather should keep up, it would go by the middle of March."

"Dad" Vail, curator of the 1927 crew, whose eyes are always watching the ice-bound Mendota and Monona, declared that this weather reminded him of a February in recent years, which was so balmy that the shells were skimming over the water by the middle of March.

Yesterday the upper campus presented the novel appearance of spring suits and top-coats versus winter suits and fur coats. Many students discarded overcoats and galoshes and relegated them to the confines of the clothes closet; they

Rev. Henry Coffin To Receive University Welcome Tomorrow

Acting of Glenn Hunter in "Young Woodley" Praised

By F. M. S.

Glenn Hunter came to Madison the other night and left a host of admirers. When, between acts, he came out to announce that nowhere had he received a better reception than in Madison, probably he did not realize just how extensive that reception was. For judging from the number of curtain calls he received and the fervent praise on the lips of the members of the audience Glenn Hunter in "Young Woodley" was a huge success.

Probably the most outstanding characteristic of the performance was naturalness of the acting, not only of Glenn Hunter but of the entire cast. There was none or little of the affection and strained attempts at dramatic quality which were so noticeable in "The Green Hat." The whole affair was entirely realistic. Gestures, tones, and actions were in most cases convincingly natural.

In Glenn Hunter this "natural" acting approaches perfection. As the "almost 18-year-old" school boy, shy, yet eager to know what life "is all about," he is so convincing that one scarcely realizes that he is acting. He accurately and vividly portrays the emotional reactions of the boy Woodley.

Mary Servoss, who impersonates Laura Simmons, is far better in the last part of the play. When she first appears, she is not very sure of herself. But in the last act when she renounces her love for Woodley and in the subsequent quarrel with her husband, she rises to her part.

Other members of the cast who did outstanding work were Grant Stewart, playing the part of Woodley's father, and A. E. Anson, playing the part of the master.

Women's Glee Club to Present Annual Concert March 3

The University Women's Glee club will present its formal concert at 8:15 o'clock Thursday evening, Mar. 3, in the Music hall auditorium. This concert is an annual event which is always of interest to those who enjoy music.

The club is composed of forty voices, selected from a large number of women. This year the club is fortunate to have as its director Mrs. Louis B. Caster, to whom much credit is due for the excellent work done by the organization.

The program will consist of many delightful numbers presented by the entire club, in addition to selections by Aagot Borge, soloist; Sylvia Meyer, harpist; and Alice Johns, pianist and accompanist of the club.

Tickets may be obtained from the club members and at the door on the evening of the affair. General admission is 50c.

Faculty to Greet Speaker for Twelfth Annual Religious Conference

The Rev. Henry Sloane Coffin, speaker at the twelfth annual religious conference to be held tomorrow, Saturday and Friday, will be officially welcomed tomorrow noon when a luncheon attended by 300 faculty members, will be held at the University club.

3:30 Classes Dismissed

Pres. Glenn Frank has dismissed all classes at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon for the all-university convocation at the university gymnasium. "How Shall We Know God?" will be the subject of Dr. Coffin's opening talk.

Dr. Coffin, who is a well-known author, teacher, and clergyman, has planned this first talk along the broadest theistic lines in order that this discussion should be of equal value to all those interested in religion, regardless of their sect.

To Broadcast Address

Arrangements have been made with WHA to broadcast the opening address as well as the mass meeting to be held in Music hall on Sunday afternoon.

Saturday noon there will be a luncheon for Christian leaders and members of the various religious organizations at which Dr. Coffin will speak. During that afternoon a tea for foreign students will be held at Lathrop hall from 3:30 to 5:30 o'clock.

The first mass-meeting for students will be held at 7:30 o'clock Saturday evening. Two mass-meetings will be held Sunday, one at 3 o'clock in Music hall, the other at 7:30 o'clock in the men's gymnasium. A complete program for each meeting will be published in tomorrow's Daily Cardinal.

Committee chairman for the religious conference are James M. Nelson '27, and Eulalie Beffel '27, co-general chairman; Josephine Barker '28, programs and music; Lowell Frautschi '27, discussion groups; Gordon Ruscha '27, finance; Margaret Girk '27, luncheons and teas; Edward Fronk '29, arrangements; and Alexander Gottlieb '28, publicity.

Second Semester Pythia Tryouts Are Near at Hand

Second semester tryouts for Pythia Literary society will be held on Thursday and Friday afternoons, Feb. 24 and 25, from 4 to 5:30 o'clock in Lathrop parlors.

Anyone interested in forensics, classical dancing, dramatics, and other fine arts are eligible to the society. A suitable performance of some phase of the art in which one is interested must be given before a committee.

Candidates for admission should sign up for tryouts in either Bascom or Lathrop hall. The membership to the society is limited to fifty.

CLEVER SCANDINAVIAN, NORENA, APPEARS HERE

Madam Eide Norena, who comes to Madison Feb. 28, to sing under the auspices of the Scandinavian department, is the daughter of a Navy official and her home is at Horten, Norway. Before her marriage to the celebrated Norwegian actor Eide, widely known as the great interpreter of Ibsen, Mme. Norena was Kaja Hansen.

Madame Norena is not only an accomplished vocalist, but is expert in many other fields, for she is an enthusiastic yachtswoman, a skillful ski jumper, and is distinctive in her dress.

She made her American debut at Carnegie hall, New York, on Nov. 1, last year. The New York press speaks of her as having a lovely voice, beautifully cultivated tone, and jeweled effects.

FRITZ KREISLER VERY VERSATILE

Famous Violinist Versed in Law, Medicine; Could be Great Pianist

Few musicians have the varied intellectual interests of Fritz Kreisler, that supreme violinist, who is to appear in Madison Mar. 4 under the auspices of the Wisconsin Union. He has studied medicine and law and is a painter of no mean ability. He is a most accomplished linguist, speaking accentless and idiomatic French, Italian, English and Russian, in addition to his native Austrian. He also writes in these languages with absolute surety.

Musically he is, of course, one of the greatest violinists of our time, but he is only less great as a pianist, and Harold Bauer has said that if Kreisler would devote a year to the piano, he would rank among the foremost pianists of the world. In composition Kreisler has established a unique reputation. His works appear on the programs of nearly every concert of music for the violin.

Altogether Kreisler is an artist of most unusual accomplishments, being one of those fortunate men to whom nature seems to have given everything.

MINIATURE PIONEER SCHOOL HOUSE CONSTRUCTED FOR MUSEUM DISPLAY

A two-foot pioneer school-house for a thesis—that's what Ruth Allcott ex '26, Madison, is constructing.

The school is to be an exact replica of the first institution of learning in Wisconsin. Information gathered from the descendants of the first settlers furnishes the details of the work.

The building is to be on the scale of an inch to a foot, and is to be constructed entirely of logs, the chinks stuffed with clay. It is to be mounted on a board base, surrounded by stumps of trees and grass.

A glass plate will be fitted in one side of the roof so that within may be seen a clay fireplace and a platform for the teacher's desk.

The furnishings are to be very rude; the desks merely boards stretched across pegs driven in the wall with benches resembling lower "desks." The seats for the children too young to write are to be hollowed out of logs.

"Pupils" and the "master" of the school are to be modelled out of wax by Miss Allcott. She is attempting to give her figures real expression; and is planning to have the schoolmaster, for instance, resemble the famous Ichabod of Washington Irving.

The clothes of the "pioneers" are to be roughly made of home-spun.

Miss Allcott's model, with that of the one constructed by Henry Berner, ex '26, is to be the first of a miniature pioneer colony to be set up in the library museum. The object of the display is that the public may see, exhibited in a corner of one of the buildings of the great University of Wisconsin, the homes of those who made the university possible.

POWYS DEFINES SELF CULTURE IN ADDRESS

but rather the one who expresses the reaction, and did express it even before the term psycho-analysis existed."

According to his interpretation, Powys detects real psycho-analysis in the works of Euripides, Goethe, Dante, Shakespeare, Proust, Henry James, in the Bible, in Dostoevsky, especially in the Roman, the Russian and the Austrian. These men, "by the vivisection of their emotions, by the greatest study of their unconsciousness have produced not only great literature but great studies of life in its truest, its most vital form."

Other men, like Conrad, and Nietzsche, the disciple of Dostoevsky, represent hand psycho-analysis as humanized and sensitized, not as mere parroted formulae. "They, with the great masters, build up life into a great 'continuum' of daily life, greater than mere continuity of incident from day to day, and they create the 'life illusion' which is that factor in Man which makes him say 'I am I' This continuum gives him a continuity of days as one great experience, it gives him a certain amount of passionate reverence and an illuminated skepticism which taken together, culminate in real ecstasy and happiness."

THE ANDREWS FIGHT

HERE, HERE, OHIO

And there you are, Mr. Hawkeye; some do and some don't.

It was apparent from the start of Tuesday night's game that Iowa was encountering several things she hadn't just expected to find in the vicinity of Madison. Such baffling pass-work as the whole Wisconsin team indulged in, such accurate shooting as that of Barnum and Andrews, such terrific guarding as that of Kowalczyk and Barnum, and such genuine fighting spirit as every man revealed, are things, we fear, that the Hawkeyes had not been duly informed of.

Though most fans hated to see Kowalczyk shifted from center to backguard, the splendid showing he has made in that position just about anchors him to the job. On several occasions in the Iowa game when Wisconsin was caught out of position, Hank accomplished the difficult defensive stunt of stopping two Hawkeyes single-handed. Both he and Barnum did remarkable work in guarding rush shots close to the basket. Usually, it is impossible to check a dribble-in without fouling, but the Wisconsin guards did it consistently.

Perhaps nothing about the whole game was more pleasing than the do-or-die spirit with which Charlie Andrews went into battle. We could almost see Charlie gritting his teeth. "These sport writers may say they're going to trim us, but let 'em try and do it." Aside from the mere fact that he can make baskets, Andrews is a fine personification of the spirit that is as great in defeat as it is in victory.

Though they came out on the little end, the Hawkeyes didn't exactly play bad basketball. The Iowa hardwood rangers had a disturbing knack of slipping up to the basket without being noticed, and there wasn't a moment, first or last, that they didn't have a chance to win. It's all right, Hogan, McConnell, Wilcox, Twogood, and VanDeusen, we're glad we met you.

Continuing the post mortem, we're for passing a vote of censure against the recent conduct of Ohio State's basketball team. The Buckeyes played blooey basketball so long that all their opponents had subconsciously marked down victories in advance. Then smack—Wisconsin down. More smack—and Indiana, riding a high horse to the championship, flops. Incidentally, the Buckeyes have only two more games, Indiana and Iowa.

Michigan kept abreast of Wisconsin in the race by smothering Chicago Tuesday night. It was the first game the Wolverines have won in their last four starts. Iowa, Chicago, Purdue and Illinois remain as obstacles between Michigan and the championship.

All the clouds haven't been put behind yet. The Wisconsin five will pay a sight-seeing tour this weekend to Bloomington and Urbana, neither of which villages is especially noted for its healthy basketball atmosphere. We need make no pessimistic remarks, the character of the opposition is self-evident. Indiana, however, is not so formidable since Winston has gone, and Illinois, Olson, Daugherty and all, is not unbeatable.

Hoosiers Enter Title Lists in 3 Ways Saturday

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — Three championships will be at stake for Indiana university athletic team Saturday. The track team participates in the Illinois relays, the wrestling team encounters Michigan at Ann Arbor for the championship of the eastern division, and the basketball quintet clashes with Wisconsin here at Bloomington.

Coaches Reynolds and Mumby will send their grapplers through their last workout this afternoon, and will select the squad following the last tryout. Wilson, 175 pounder, and Fisher, heavyweight, are the only pair of grapplers certain to make the trip. Schofield, Wampler, Weaver, Stohr and Aikon are probable selections for the other weights.

Indiana has not dropped a single meet this year and a victory over the strong Wolverine outfit would give Indiana university the right to contest for the Western Conference title next weekend.

Final preparations for the track team will also be made this afternoon. Coach E. C. Hayes succeeded in grabbing off second place in the medley relay last year. Several members of relay quartet are missing this time but the Indiana mentor has groomed four runners he hopes to win a place. Charles Benz, a former Bedford high school athlete and holder of the Indiana University hurdle record, is expected to make things rather uneasy for opposing hurdles. Pepper, a sprinter, and Stephenson, a quarter-miler are also expected to make a good showing.

Wisconsin is a feared quintet on Coach Doan's schedule. Although the Crimson succeeded in setting back Doc Meanwell's proteges at Wisconsin the affair here Saturday is regarded as one of the toughest on the Indiana chart. Behr and Andrews, Badger forwards, have been doing the bulk of scoring and will have to be held to few points if Indiana registers victory. Tenhopen, towering pivot man, will also bear watching, especially from the longer distances.

The loser of Saturday night's fracas may find it hard to get back in the hectic conference championship chase.

WISCONSIN AGAIN IN BIG TEN LEAD, PLAY INDIANA NEXT

Badgers, Cheered by Victory Over Iowa, Plan Big Weekend

BIG TEN STANDINGS

Wisconsin	6	2	.750
Michigan	6	2	.750
Purdue	5	2	.714
Illinois	6	3	.666
Indiana	6	3	.666
Iowa	5	3	.625
Ohio State	5	5	.500
Chicago	3	6	.333
Minnesota	1	9	.100
Northwestern	0	8	.000

By virtue of the victory over Iowa at the gymnasium Tuesday night, the Badgers not only relieved the Hawkeyes of any title hopes they might have had, but also placed themselves in a tie with Michigan for first place. Indiana's unlooked-for defeat at the hands of Ohio State the same night knocked the Hoosiers from first place and with both Michigan and Wisconsin winning, these two fives moved into the coveted leadership.

The Iowa game was easily the fastest exhibition of basketball seen on the local court this season. The Hawkeyes demonstrated early that they were going to play a fast game and the Badgers were quick to jump to the same style of play. The first half was a nip-and-tuck affair with the Badgers holding the edge over Coach Barry's quintet throughout the greater portion of this period.

Andrews Strong

"Charlie" Andrews was especially effective against Iowa and began dropping in field goals early in this half. Barnum made a couple of long shots and Kowalczyk and Behr each added to the team's total by field goals.

The score at the half was 13 to 9 in Wisconsin's favor and although at the start of the second half it looked like Iowa would attempt a desperate comeback that might turn the table, such plans failed to materialize and Wisconsin was able to keep the lead throughout this half. The Badger defense stood forth better in the second half than it did in the first. Barnum and Kowalczyk were playing air-tight defense basketball and only on rare occasions did a Hawkeye succeed in breaking away from them.

Barnum Plays Well

Barnum has seldom played better basketball than he did Tuesday night. He was the same cool guard he always is plus added drive which was missing in several games this season.

Kowalczyk was also in the best of form and it is clearly evident that

Matmen Put Away Victory, Prepare for Gopher Meet

With the victory over Chicago, fresh in their grips, the rejuvenated Badger wrestling team is hard at work, preparing for the strong Minnesota squad which will invade Madison, Saturday, February 26. The Cardinals who settled their year old account with the Maroons last week, have an equal serious matter to settle with the Gophers. Last year when Coach Hitchcock and his squad invaded the lair of the Northmen, they received one of the worst trouncings that they had ever received in a dual wrestling meeting, losing 14 to 3, after carrying four out of the seven bouts into extra periods.

The conquest over Chicago has given confidence to the comparatively green Badger matmen, who up until this meet did not know what the aftermath of a victory meant, and they are incorporating their confidence into their daily workouts, in order to be in the pink of condition when the bell calls them to give battle to the sturdy Gophers. The manner in which the men are hitting their sparring partners, shows that they will not stop at anything short of a decisive victory this Saturday.

Coach Meanwell made no mistake in placing this tall sophomore at guard. He plays the game along the same style as did Jack Winston of Indiana but it is predicted that if Kowalczyk will continue to improve as he has in the past few games, his work will eclipse that of the Indiana star.

Next Game Indiana

Miller, Behr and Andrews formed a sweet offense for the Badgers against Iowa and Miller in particular looked good in the Meanwell combination. Andrews and Behr were the same clever forwards and it was Andrews who crashed through with the greatest number of baskets with Behr passing to him faultlessly.

Saturday night the Badgers are scheduled to invade Bloomington for the return engagement with the Hoosiers. If the Cardinal has hopes for a conference championship, a victory over Indiana will almost be a necessity. Ohio State gave the Hoosiers quite a jolt Tuesday night by defeating them on their own floor right after Indiana had done what appeared to be an impossibility in defeating Michigan a few days previously.

TRACKMEN SEND STRONG SQUAD TO ILLINOIS RELAYS

McGinnis, Zola, Erickson Are Badger Bid for Place in Carnival

With the dual meet at Iowa City and the quadrangular meet at Evanston out of the way, Coach T. E. Jones is strenuously training the Badger track squad in preparation for the University of Illinois indoor relay carnival which will be held at Urbana on next Saturday.

While the Wisconsin team went down in defeat before Iowa and took second in the quadrangular meet, the hopes of the Badgers run high to place among the leaders at the carnival this week. The well-balanced team that Coach Jones will send to Urbana is now hard at work striving to round into the best possible form to avenge the defeats handed them by opponents of the past two weeks.

Workout Daily

Although Wisconsin was forced into second place for the first time in three years in the quadrangular meet, it is no indication of what will take place at Urbana this week. The men that will represent Wisconsin are going through heavy daily workouts in the gym annex in an effort to bring back to Wisconsin some of the records of the indoor relay events.

The mainstay of the Badger track team is Capt. Charles McGinnis, who has been the high point man in both the dual and the quadrangular meets. In the contest with Iowa he was able to obtain for Wisconsin a total of 13 points, taking first place in the high jump with 6 feet, 1-2 inches; and the pole vault with a new record of 12 feet, 9 5-8 inches. McGinnis also ran second in the high hurdles at Iowa City.

McGinnis Shows Well

In the quadrangular meet, the Badger captain placed first in 40 yard high hurdles, clipping the distance in 5 and 2-5 seconds, and in the 40 yard low hurdles, with a time of 5 and 1-5 seconds. Two seconds were also added to his credit in the pole vault which Drogemulder of Northwestern took with a vault of 13 feet for a new record. The height obtained by Capt. McGinnis was 12 feet 9 inches.

The Reformers Rise

Once more the reformer rises to tell an entire city what recreation it is to indulge in, and the reformer chooses a rather significant day on which to do it—the anniversary of a great statesman, one George Washington.

Through pressure exerted upon the city officials of Madison, the reformers were impelled to intercede in the good of the movie-goer and request the Madison theater to halt the run of a picture, "Night of Love," which was scheduled to continue through Saturday.

Just on what grounds the picture was condemned, everyone seemed quite vague when the question was asked. The picture in question was unique in that it had for a background a charming bit of historical Europe during the feudal times. The theme of the story was bound up with the gypsy life and customs of that era.

In all it was a picture far from the salacious, suggestive drama described by the protesting few. Objection was found to the title, yet can a play be condemned for its title? We are all exposed to elements far more immoral than was this photoplay everyday of our lives whether it be in current literature, at other photoplay houses, or in daily conversation. Good films in this city are scarce enough without a handful of reformers taking it upon themselves to drive them out of town to make room for the cheaper drivel.

Movie censorship as practised in Madison is incompetent and inefficient. The only intelligent censor is intelligent public opinion. If a picture is rotten the decent element of the movie going public is going to revolt, and it will refuse to patronize the show.

Censorship as practised by various Madison civic bodies is not intelligent. The glaring proof of that is in this case, where an artistically beautiful picture has been stopped for no valid reason whatsoever.

Enemies in Our Midst

Liberty Magazine, imitative infant of the Chicago Tribune and indefatigable echo of the Eagle's scream, published this week a tabulated record of American imperialism in the Caribbean under the title "Southward the Bird of Empire Wings His Way."

It lists 14 steps by which the United States has extended her territory to the south and tightened her grip upon theoretically sovereign nations. The expansion is graphically represented by an accompanying map.

It comments briefly:

"On this map is the record of American activity in and around the Caribbean Sea for more than a century. It is the record of spreading empire. Again and again the United States has asserted its right to regulate Caribbean affairs.

"We have set up or knocked down the governments of otherwise sovereign nations. Times without number our armed forces have landed to curb disorders and protect our interests. We have warned Europe with fighting words to keep hands off and have made our words respected.

"We have extended our possessions in this region—by peaceful means when possible; by force of arms when occasion required it. Here is the description of the Eagle's southward flight."

This article, published in almost every other periodical, would be a magnificent satire. But in view of the known policies of Liberty magazine and the Chicago Tribune, it is hardly open to any other interpretation save that of an attempt to stimulate in readers with good hearts and weak minds, a pride of national power and a thirst for more.

"The irrefutable logic of historical facts proves one thing: The Eagle's flight never narrows. He sweeps in an ever widening circle."

Somehow this hint is vaguely reminiscent of the much maligned German "Kultur" from which we so recently undertook to save civilization with our money and blood. This time it is American Kultur that is stretching out its tentacles of conquest, and it is justified with something savoring intimately of the well known doctrine of the Chosen Race, and the Fit-to-Rule, which made Germany a menace to world peace.

Super-patriotic organizations have been declaiming ever since the war that this fair nation is entertaining sinister enemies within it. Perhaps there are other enemies in our midst besides the Bolsheviks, radical Y. M. C. A. secretaries, and United States congressmen from Wisconsin, visions of whom make fitful the sleep of officers of Security leagues and Protective associations.

Publications like Liberty (what a persuasive name!) fingering with devilish cleverness the emotional chords of a public untrained to analyze the sources of its ideas, are becoming more daring and outspoken as they see the stage set for an American career of conquest that will embroil the world in wars ever more stupid and hideous than the last.

Intellectual Stagnation

Again it has happened. A great scholar, lecturer, and novelist has come and gone again. He talked to a paltry audience in Music hall; he inspired the few who heard him with unchallengeable words of wisdom. Those who heard John Cowper Powys were overpowered with his vital intensity of speech, his knowledge of his subject, his background, his personality. The pity is that every so-called student, seeking knowledge in this institution of learning, did not hear Mr. Powys night before last.

Perhaps the reason for this utter lack of interest in such intellectual treats is the fact that the student is continually in search of pleasure instead of a certain higher ecstasy, as Mr. Powys would have it. More likely, the word "intellectual" and the fact that Mr. Powys' lecture was truly an intellectual debauch kept the student away more than anything else. He cannot afford to be branded as a highbrow; he cannot afford the time or the money on transient intellectualism. He is surrounded by learning; it is enough that he attends classes fairly regularly, and takes in an occasional free lecture on the side.

Youth takes the old adage and turns it around, until he believes that "too much learning is a dangerous thing." Youth would rather hunt for ecstasy in a more tangible form; and consequently turns to various forms of petting. In the meantime he acquires a superficial learning from books; and from time to time he puts that cut and dried knowledge neatly into blue books for the moral satisfaction of weary instructors, and to satisfy the system-mad office of the registrar.

Those same instructors, wrapped up in intellectual complacency, do not deign to notice the invasion of an intellect superior to their own. Those few who understand the value of such things—of what Mr. Powys left with the handful of people who heard him lecture, constitute a group of people on the campus—faculty and students—which is representative of what a university is meant to be.

An institution of learning! At best, that is but a hoax, a superficial name to cover what does not exist. And it is simply because the spirit is not there. The spirit of learning, perhaps; of research; curiosity in all its forms. Obviously those are the things which do not exist. And those are some of the reasons that the university has won a reputation for being a magnificent country club with a world-wide membership.

As usual, a few people got more from the brilliant lecture which Mr. Powys gave than all the rest of the students might have, had they attended. And so it will always be—the difference between the few, and the great mass of average, normal individuals.

More than 300 school and college newspapers were entered in the sixth annual All-American newspaper contest of the Central Interscholastic Press Association at the University of Wisconsin.

Can't think up a Wilde epigram for the week. After all, we've just about decided that an epigram is the way in which an unsophisticated person twists a statement in order to make himself appear all the more sophisticated.

DISCOVERED!

The world's worst joke. Of all those submitted the past week, this one seems to be the best worst if you get what we mean.

He: Have you seen "A Night of Love"?

She: No, I haven't.

He: How did you like it?

Which all goes to prove that the W. C. T. U. can't censor every-

Now that we have intercollegiate debates, hockey matches, swimming matches, wrestling matches, why not intercollegiate necking matches?

Which reminds us that a guy named Lowell is called the "necking-chief."

Talk all you want about the coming of spring and seeing the first robin, and getting spring fever. What we venture to bet was the first FLY of the season was buzzing around the room this morning. . .

Heh! Heh! The other day when the prof glared at me and said, "Please refrain from whispering while I am talking!" I almost died it was so funny. I hadn't said a thing so the joke was on the prof.

Why do they say that everyman should have a sense of humor?

A man has to have credit for having some kind of sense, doesn't he?

She: Not if I caught you at it.

We understand that Jonah is to do a mind reading act at the Rocket's Prom. But don't feel too bad, dear reader, for we ought to be able to read everything that's in his mind in about a minute and a half. . .

THE ICE CARNIVAL

Editor, the Daily Cardinal:

I was very much surprised to read a comment made by one of your sport writers, Sunday, in this column, "The Training Table." In that column reference was made to the late Ice Carnival and to the sportsmanlike attitude taken by one of the participants in the ice boat regatta. I happen to know both the driver of "The Yellow Peril" and the writer of the article which I mention.

I believe that the sports writer would never had written such a biting statement had he known the circumstances of the case. The winning pilot had expected good competition, had he been given to understand that the larger rental boats would take part in the event. With the expectation of running in a close race, he rebuilt, overhauled and painted the "Yellow Peril," so as to insure maximum speed. The boat, contrary to the supposition of the "sports writer," is not new—in fact it is over three years old!

The winner is a true sportsman. It was only after considerable questioning that I was given to understand how badly he felt about the criticism launched against him. He happens to have been a well known high school athlete, who suffered injuries in a game, and who was incapacitated for further athletic contests. Ice boating is one of the few branches of sport in which he can take part, and it was with the sheer desire of helping to make the regatta a success that he took the pains to prepare both the boat and himself.

The "Yellow Peril" was skillfully handled and won the race. The driver's name was never printed, for by mistake, someone else's name appeared instead, and now, instead of receiving honor, the winner is severely and unjustly criticised, even ridiculed.

I said that the winner was a true sportsman, and I wish that the writer of the "Training Table" would meet him. I feel confident that the latter would change his mind about him, as well as his mistaken notion of a race having been unfairly won.

G. E. N., '29.

OUR ATHLETIC DEPARTMENT

The Editor, the Daily Cardinal:

One of the most glaring examples of the so-called "efficiency" of our athletic department was brought to light again at the Wisconsin-Iowa basketball game Tuesday night when spectators, arriving at the gym before 7:30 and over five minutes before the start of the game, were refused admittance to the game. This occurrence would not have been so glaring had it not been for the fact that doors were closed in order to make doubly sure that those who had paid to see the game should not get a glimpse of it until those in authority deigned to let them in.

The students realize that Wisconsin has the worst gym in the conference, and are supporting Wisconsin's basketball team nevertheless. However, when a student is fortunate enough to secure a ticket for three games out of nine, then to be prohibited from seeing half of the only game that was worth while seeing in that series, then it is indeed time to wonder just what good is our athletic department.

Perhaps it is not the athletic department which is directly at fault. Perhaps this is not the way they wish these affairs to be run, although this matter has been called to their attention before. Perhaps, as was given out at the door, it is the ushers, with special emphasis on the head usher, who are giving the students this "square" deal. However if it is the ushers, the athletic department is still indirectly at fault because they have been told of the insulting manner in which spectators at football games last fall were treated by ushers, and of the way in which spectators were locked out of the gym long before game time at other basketball games this year.

Basketball tickets have been printed on them, "No admittance during progress of game" which is a very fine ruling. Why not live up to that ruling in its implied as well as its actual meaning. If spectators are not to be admitted during the progress of the game, it is implied by the notice on the tickets that they will be admitted up to the time of the start of the game. Yet, with the game starting at 7:35, students arriving at the entrance before 7:30 were refused admittance. Is this a square deal?

Also, granting that the officials of the athletic department are allowed to refuse admission at any time they wish, why are people admitted after the doors have been closed? At the Iowa game, the doors had been closed and the game was in progress, when a man jostled his way up to the door-keeper, whispered a few words to him and was admitted. Some more of the square deal given to the students by our athletic department.

Can the athletic department expect the support and co-operation of the student under conditions like these? We see signs and hear speeches urging us to "Support your team and school." Does treatment like this tend to create a spirit of support and a willingness to back the team "Win or lose." I hope the athletic department, if they see this article will ask themselves this question fairly and squarely. I am for a bigger and better Wisconsin, and whatever means that can be used to attain that end, I am in favor of, but, the students are the basis of Wisconsin and to succeed, any man or department will have to play square with them. Is treatment, such as has been cited, PLAYING SQUARE?

Temporary Coolidge Home Decorated by Genevieve Hendricks

The Patterson-Schlesinger home, the stately white marble dwelling at 15 Depont circle, Washington, D. C., which Pres. and Mrs. Coolidge will occupy during the trying period of spring house cleaning and remodeling at the White house has been made ready for their coming by Genevieve Hendricks '15, interior decorator.

Miss Hendricks, whose home was formerly in Madison, was prominent in activities while in the university. She is a member of Pi Beta Phi and was elected to Mortor board. In 1913 she lead the junior promenade with a popular university football player, now Dr. Albert R. Tormey, Madison.

After graduation Miss Hendricks became special agent for administering the child labor law for the Wisconsin State Industrial commission in Milwaukee in 1919, when she became engaged in research and literary work for a short time in Washington. Following this she studied art and interior decoration in Europe and has been actively engaged in the latter profession for several years. She still is a regular writer for the Washington Star.

The home which is being redecorated for the Coolidges is one of the most beautiful in the capital city. It has an exterior of the Italian Renaissance mode. The interior will be decorated in a simple, but exquisite manner, mostly after the scheme used in the French homes of the 18th century.

Indulging her love for reclaiming old houses, Miss Hendricks selected as her studio a red brick house in Washington whose history dates from 1812. It was almost a ruin and about to be torn down when the artist procured it for her studio and began her extensive work of reconstruction.

In this setting Miss Hendricks '15 laid her plans as to how she could make the Calvin Coolidges happy and comfortable during their several months in a temporary home.

PURDUE TO PLAY THREE ROAD GAMES

Michigan, Minnesota, Northwestern Oppose Boilermakers in Important Series

LAFAYETTE, Ind. — Three games to be played away from home will largely determine whether or not Purdue will win or share in another Big Ten basketball championship. Of the three, the most formidable appearing, is the return contest with Michigan at Ann Arbor, on Feb. 28. March 5 the Boilermakers go to Minneapolis for a Minnesota game and on Mar. 7 they will be found at Northwestern.

Purdue's victory over Michigan here a short time ago seemed to set in motion a series of upsets which have placed the top teams in the Big Ten in rather a topsy-turvy state and the championship at the present time is in a rather free for all condition.

With upsets the order of the day, both Coach Lambert and his quintet are preparing seriously today for the game with the Purple here tomorrow evening. A defeat at this stage of the race will practically eliminate any of the teams which to date have lost only a pair of games.

The manner in which Purdue has asserted itself after being given little opportunity for a high finish by critics at the start of the year has been one of the features of the Big Ten basket season and reflects considerable credit upon Coach Ward Lambert and his team, which is about the shortest and lightest in the Big Ten.

Following three road games, Purdue will end its 1927 season in an encounter with Chicago in Memorial gymnasium here on March 12.

French "Postes D'Assistant" Open to Ten Americans

Through the Institute of International Education the French government is offering annually to American men ten positions known as "postes d'assistant."

Men elected to these positions have to give instructions in English for two hours each day. No salary is connected with the job but these student-teachers are given their board and room and allowed the privilege of attending classes at the school in which they are teaching or at the university, if one is located nearby.

Traveling and incidental expenses must be met by the assistants themselves. However, these costs may be alleviated, for a 30 per cent reduction is given on the steamship fare if the student travels on a French line.

Eligibility for these positions consists in being an American citizen, having a bachelor's degree or its equivalent, and possessing a good workable knowledge of the French language.

The first rural free delivery route in the United States, running out of Climax, Mich., is memorialized by a monument of stones.

ENGINEERS ELECT NEW ST. PATRICK

Election of O'Laughlin '27, Follows Address by Prof. C. M. Jansky

The regular meeting of the student branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers was held at 7:30 o'clock last night in room 214 Engineering building, with the presiding officer, B. Richard Teare '27, in the chair. Prof. C. M. Jansky, of the department of electrical engineering, was the speaker of the evening. He gave a very instructive and interesting talk on the subject "Mechanical and Electrical Analogies."

Citing back to the time of ancient Greece and Rome, he showed clearly the independent and analogous nature of all the physical sciences dealt with in the work of the average engineer. Following the various sciences through their different stages of development down through the centuries, he demonstrated, by illustrating his points with formulas, the dependent nature of the numerous sciences.

After the talk by Prof. Jansky, the organization brought up the nomination of the student to take the place of St. Patrick in the engineers' parade. Michael J. O'Laughlin '27 was elected to this station by a generous majority. The meeting adjourned at 9 o'clock.

Arneson, as Guest of Honor, to Speak at Banquet Here

Dr. Ben Arneson '13, professor of political science at Ohio Wesleyan university, will be the guest of honor and principal speaker at the banquet of Madison alumni of Ohio Wesleyan university at Wesleyan Foundation at 6 o'clock Friday night.

Dr. Arneson received his A. B. degree in 1913, M. A. in 1914 and Ph. D. in 1916. He is sailing next month for Europe in order to study political conditions in foreign countries.

Prof. Philo M. Buck of the comparative literature department, Howard B. Calderwood, grad, Esther E. Carpenter, grad, Henriette E. Dayton '27, and Rev. A. H. Krussell of Wesleyan Foundation are members of the committee in charge of arrangements.

Prof. Bronsted of U. of Copenhagen Talks to Chemists

Prof. J. N. Bronsted, in the chemistry department of the University of Copenhagen, Denmark, gave a lecture on "The Modern Theory of

Fritz Kreisler, Here March 4, DOUBTS PERMANENT VALUE OF JAZZ

The world's greatest violinists says that there is no future in jazz. Fritz Kreisler, premier musician coming to the University Stock Pavilion March 4, says that America is developing a music of her own but it is not jazz.

In Kansas City in his room at the Hotel Muehlebach Kreisler made the following assertion just the other day, "Nothing will come out of that hash of old ideas in music which is called jazz. It has its purpose and is an end in itself."

"But that clever composition, 'Rhapsody in Blues,' written by that original and brilliant man, Gershwin, which was predicted as the beginning of a new school in jazz, will never be repeated in my opinion. Jazz will remain jazz."

This country in its reproduction of music is striding ahead, although it lags a little in composition, Kreisler believes. The movement throughout America to form symphony concerts in community centers, such as the university band and orchestra here and the Madison Civic Symphony is evidence that the nation is preparing for something fine in the way of composition, he indicated.

"Audiences are alike all over the world," he said, "but, if anything, America is more of a music loving country than any other in the world excluding Germany and Austria."

"And soon the great energy and vision in this country which have been turning toward the building of railways, the reclaiming of deserts and the construction of skyscrapers, will find these channels of outlet closed, and the great imaginative minds of America will turn toward music, philosophy and art. America is reaching maturity rapidly."

Fritz Kreisler will be heard in concert here March 4. Tickets will be on sale at Hook Brothers Music store.

Salt Solutions" in the auditorium of the Chemistry building last night.

The lecture was an explanation of the research work that Prof. Bronsted has done in extending the theory of electrolytes that was formulated by Arrhenius, the Swedish chemist of the 19th century. Last night's lecture was one of a series on the same subject that Prof. Bronsted is giving in American universities.

Prof. Bronsted spent last semester as a guest professor at Yale university, lecturing in physical chemistry.
