CADET HOP QUEEN HAS NOT YET CHOSEN SELF; LEAP YEAR TOO!

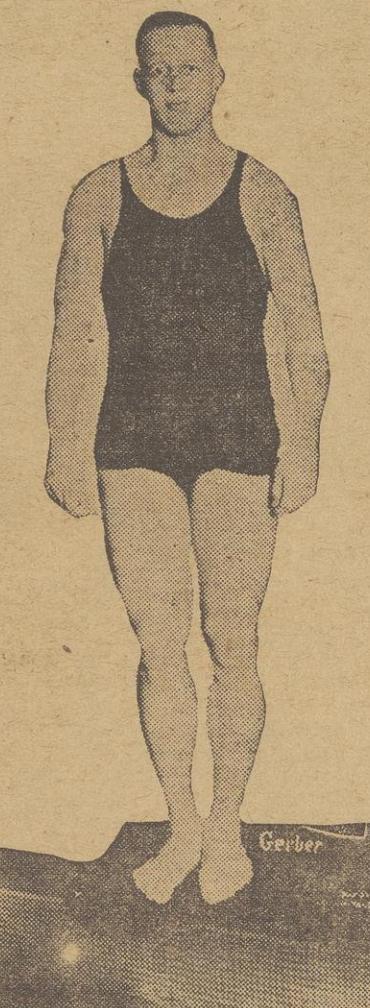

Cheer up, girls, the Military ball queen has not yet selected herself.

Howard B. Lyman '24, colonel of the cadet corps and leader of the annual ball, nightly paces the floor, haunted by the nightmare of finding a queen among the 2,500 women students. The joke is he thought he was going to get out of it.

And this is leap year too. Try B. 8, girls.

The entire corps was to elect the queen. A committee of student officers was preparing a list of eight popular co-eds from which the corps was to pick the lady of honor. Aft-

BADGERS COMPETE WITHOUT GERBER

Swim Team Enrains Minus Star Whose Eligibility is Questioned

E. C. "Irv" Gerber '25, football and swimming star, did not entrain with the swimming team for Indiana last night because his eligibility to compete in conference athletics again has been questioned.

While it is not authoritatively known whether the new charges made against Gerber are serious enough to disqualify him, he is being withheld from competition until a ruling by the conference is made and his record cleared.

A letter from Maj. John L. Griffith, Big Ten athletic commissioner, was received here Wednesday by T. E. Jones, director of physical education, stating that additional charges had been brought forward concerning Gerber since his reinstatement last fall following suspension from football activities because of his work as instructor in the La Crosse Y. M. C. A.

Prof. J. F. A. Pyre, chairman of the athletic council is investigating to learn if the new charges have weight. It is a question, he says, whether Gerber's reinstatement last fall by the conference will stand as taking into consideration whatever the recent charges prove to be.

Professor Pyre was hopeful last night concerning the outcome of the present inquiry he is conducting.

er the ballots were counted Howie was to be led to the conquering damsel and placed under her protecting wing.

Alas, cruel Fate must have her say.

University authorities frowned on the election on the ground that it would too closely resemble a beauty contest. The plan was dropped.

Will Lyman follow in the footsteps of Cliff Nolte '25, his Beta Theta Pi brother, and lead the grand march with an Alpha Phi? Campus wiseacres are busy ruminating on this riddle.

ROUGHHOUSE BY FRATERNITIES IS SCORED BY DEAN

Condemns Evils of Probation Week; Too Hard on Pledge Grades

Dean S. H. Goodnight has condemned "roughhousing" during initiation week in a circular letter sent to all fraternities asking them to abandon the probationary period before initiation.

He bases his appeal on the grounds that fraternity pledges suffer severely in their grades because of this week of purgatorial practices. Pointing out that the National Interfraternity conference repudiates this evil, he declares there is no defense for it that will stand the test of reason.

Faculty Is Hostile
The faculty is becoming increasingly hostile to probationary tests lasting from three to ten days.

The letter follows:

Fraternity presidents.

The season for initiation is approaching. There are still some fraternities at Wisconsin which maintain "probationary periods" of three to ten days in length. During these times, candidates are put through various "tests," which may mean being deprived of food, rest or sleep, being paddled, kept at manual labor, or frightened as the case may be.

Last year initiations came before midsemesters in the second semester. The College of Engineering compared the midsemester standing of its freshmen for the two semesters with the following results:

Dean Quotes Statistics
Of 165 non-fraternity freshmen, 85 (51 per cent) did as well in the second semester as in the first or better; 80 (48 per cent) did worse.

Of 53 fraternity pledges, 16 (30 per cent) did as well or better, while 37 (70 per cent) did worse. Some of them did very much worse. The majority of these cases are pledges of fraternities known to enforce vigorously a probationary period.

Raps Rough Initiation
This practice is breeding hostility to fraternities among faculty men. They let me know it frequently.

How foolish, after working hard with freshmen in the first semester to get them eligible, to turn around and deliberately

SEEK ACTION FOR MEN'S DORMITORY

Board of Regents Will Discuss Possibilities at Meeting Tuesday

The possibility of a men's dormitory on the campus will be discussed by the Board of Regents at their regular meeting next Tuesday, it was announced yesterday by M. E. McCaffrey, secretary of the board. The question has been before the board for some time, and it is now expected that some definite action will be taken.

Another question which will be settled by the regents when they meet is the purchase of land in Milwaukee for the use of the Extension division in that city. Negotiations have been under way between the board and owners of property which has been found suitable. The board contemplates erecting a building to house the Extension division activities.

Ben Fass, vice-president of the board will continue to act as chairman until the regular election in June, at which time a new president will be appointed. This situation was caused by Governor John J. Blaine's failure to re-appoint Walter J. Kohler to the board at the expiration of his term.

Showing that America was not 98 per cent all right in every respect and that there is a youth revolt against the old order in most of the countries of the world, Dr. G. Sherwood Eddy opened the annual all-university Religious conference at the student convocation at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon in Lathrop hall.

More than 2,500 students attended the afternoon meeting yesterday which was the first of the five talks to be given in Lathrop hall this week end. The other meetings are scheduled for last night, this evening, Sunday afternoon and Sunday night. A luncheon will be held this noon for the cabinets of the Y. W. C. A., the Y. M. C. A. and the various campus churches in the fellowship room of the Y. M. C. A. A dinner for foreign students will be held there at 6 o'clock tonight.

Hits Race Prejudice

Prof. A. B. Hall presided at the student convocation. The University Glee club sang "Morning Hymn" and "Hallelujah, Amen". Prof. E. B. Gordon of the extension division led the assemblage in singing.

"Of all the 22 countries I have been in during my recent world tour, no country has shown more color, more race prejudice and more mistreatment of the men of darker races than we have here in the United States," Dr. Eddy declared. "There is more lynching here than in all the rest of the world. For 40 years we have averaged twolynching a week. On this campus, students use terms of contempt as nigger, chink, jap, dago.

The real identity of "Recoil" was announced yesterday following an erroneous announcement in the Wisconsin State Journal.

PROFS HEAR EDDY IN LATHROP HALL

Will Be No Emotional Preaching in Conference This Year

"No hectic evangelization, no through ticket to Heaven preaching will exist during the religious conference this year," Dr. G. Sherwood Eddy, speaker of the five meetings, said before the faculty luncheon in Lathrop parlors yesterday noon.

At this luncheon, 125 professors were present to hear the first message of Dr. Eddy and to meet the traveler.

"The great issue in the world today is the struggle between the material and the spiritual," Dr. Eddy declared. "This conflict is reflected in the colleges and universities of the country. Some schools are indifferent, others furnish the leadership of the nation. In these latter schools, the professors look upon the students in terms of full, well-rounded development."

After the meeting had concluded, Dr. Eddy privately expressed his appreciation of the faculty support and said that the attendance was the largest for the circumstances that he had had.

PROF. LIGHTY AT EXTENSION MEETING

SEVEN 'IFS' ASKED HIGH SCHOOL GRADS

The seven ifs of high school seniors are answered by the Extension division in a bulletin sent to every high school graduate in the state at commencement time. Preparation of the 1924 bulletin is now in progress.

Information concerning these seven ifs was given in the 1923 bulletin. They are: if you are to enter the university or college this fall, if you expect to enter the university or college later, if you expect to enter a normal school this fall, if you intend to enter normal later than this fall, if you are to enter a teachers' training school, if you expect to begin a vocational or business pursuit, if you desire instruction in domestic art and science."

The bulletin gives the seniors an opportunity to make up their deficiencies during the summer after their graduation.

COMMERCE MAGAZINE EDITED BY WOMEN

The next issue of the Commerce magazine, which will be off the press about March 10, is being put out by a staff made up entirely of women. Last year the women in the Commerce course for the first time put out one number of the magazine, which, according to the critics, was one of the best issues of the entire year.

Bernice Rhode '24, is editor-in-chief of the woman's edition of the manager; Irene Hoffman '24, advertising manager; Laura Blix '24, business manager; Frieda Auchter '25, circulation manager; Irene Hoffman '24, advertising manager, and Bessie Berkely '24 publicity manager.

BLAKEMAN COMPLETES SIXTEENTH YEAR HERE

"Nothing could be more pleasing to me than to have my sixteenth year of service as a university pastor end at a time when the All-university Religious conference is being held," the Rev. E. W. Blakeman, D. D. of the Wesley Foundation said yesterday.

Dr. Blakeman starts today on his seventeenth year as pastor of the University Methodist church. He is the oldest student pastor on the campus in years of service, and during his pastorate has built one church and is now raising funds throughout the state to erect another.

Until the erection of the present building of the Wesley Foundation in 1917, services for Methodist students were held in the Y. M. C. A. The new church for which funds are now being solicited, will be erected on the site of the parsonage, opposite the Chemistry building.

Tribune to Finance Medill School For Seven More Years

The Medill School of Journalism of the Northwestern university will be financed for seven more years by the Chicago Tribune, it is announced. The school has completed its third year of work under the maintenance of the Tribune.

The school was founded in 1920, and is supported by the Tribune, which believed that the university needed a school of journalism. It opened its classes in February, 1921 with three courses, six teachers, and 75 students. All the students were part time students in the Chicago branch of the school, mostly working people who could attend only evening classes. There were no students in the campus branch at Evanston during the first year.

The school commemorates the name of Joseph Medill, prominent in American journalism.

Here are Engineers:

Q The gentleman on the right was so busy with his calculus that he didn't get to shave this morning. (If you look closely you can see he's blushing.)

Q But calculus is a very good excuse for not shaving—if we had to work the problems we'd grow a beard.

Q Underneath his flannel shirt we know there beats a heart fired by the conquering spirit of a Colonel Goethals, builder of the Panama Canal.

Q In his dreams this engineer rears mighty skyscrapers, harnesses rushing rivers and spans chasms with threads of steel.

Q He wants to keep close to his brother engineers. He wants to see, too, what those who have withstood the rigors of calculus are doing out in actual life.

And that's why his heart is set on an "On Wisconsin" Badger.

ATHLETICS IN THE COLLEGIATE WORLD

TONIGHT'S TILT WITH PURPLE TOPS LIST OF SPORTING ACTIVITIES

Basketball Team Has Chance to Come Up in Percentage Column

Six Badger teams, one at home and five away, engage conference foes today in games which will have a large bearing on their final standing in Big Ten circles.

The basketball team, with a fighting chance of finishing among the first three conference teams, meets Northwestern in a game which should fatten the Badger's percentage column. Coach Meanwell's team is crippled by the loss of Spooner and Wackman, but the boys should have little difficulty in putting the Purple away.

Purple May Surprise

Northwestern, as the under dog, is capable of springing a surprise, but another defeat would be fatal to Wisconsin's hopes, and the team will do its best to put the game on ice in the early part of the fray.

The track team, aspiring to a clear title to the conference championship, undergoes its ordeal of fire today when it meets the pick of the Midwest at the Illinois relay carnival. Hopes run high as victories over Iowa, Chicago, Northwestern, and Ohio show undisputed strength in several departments. Teams from Illinois, Michigan and Ames must be vanquished, however, before the Badgers can romp home with the trophy.

Swimming chances were pretty much knocked in the head when Irv Gerber, star dive and dash man, on whom Joe Steinauer has been pinning his hopes, was suspended under eligibility ruling until his case can be further considered.

Swimmers at Indiana

The paddlers splash with Indiana tonight, but prospects are gloomy for a win, as the squad has been hard hit by ineligibility.

Badger matmen grapple the strong Iowa aggregation, with slightly less than an even chance of victory. The team is composed of a number of good men, though, and may pull through to a conference championship.

Coach Schlatter's gymnasts vie with the Gopher squad Monday night and have the edge on their opponents. Although their strength lies largely in two men, Capt. Stevens and Schmidt, the coach has been perfecting his lesser lights, and is optimistic as to the outcome.

Wisconsin's ice golfers, with heads bloody but unbowed, face their toughest opponents in this year's conference champions, Minnesota. Bob Blodgett's men have been playing in hard luck throughout the season, but they may be counted on to put up a hard fight in their final game of the year.

GYM TRAINING A MATTER OF YEARS

Gymnasts Not Turned Out Over Night, According to Coach Schlatter

It takes years of consistent training to develop material for varsity gymnasium competition, Coach Schlatter said yesterday.

He turned to a man standing beside him. "How long have you been practicing turn-flying?" he asked. "Nearly nine years," was the answer. "You see," continued the coach, "this man has worked since he was about eight years old. It will take two more years of training here before he is ready to be called conference calibre."

The coach said that there were some men who, even after years of effort, could never excel in gymnasium work. They lack perfect control of all faculties, which is a necessary ingredient of the athlete who does tumbling, turn-flying or any other of the highly complicated exhibition stunts.

The tumbler must know just where every part of his body is, every moment that he is in the air," he said.

The questioning of the ineligibility of Irv Gerber, main cog in Coach Steinauer's swimming team, means that the Badger tankmen will have little chance against Indiana tonight. Gerber, with Czerwonky, were the two men Steinauer has been depending upon to give the Hoosiers a fight. The Swimming team lost Bennett by graduation and 13 men by ineligibility in studies the first of the semester.

"Be Good Sports," Advises Meanwell On Sign in Gym

Recent closely contested basketball games in the Big Ten have had a tendency to set spectators on a nervous edge near the end, with the result that referees in making unfavorable decisions have been razed by spectators.

In the interests of good sportsmanship and in an endeavor to cure this practice at Wisconsin Dr. Meanwell, basketball coach, has hung a sign at the back of the gym. The sign follows:

"BE GOOD SPORTS. Please accept the decisions of the officials without question; keep silent during free throws by either team and be courteous to our opponents. Officials will penalize your team for failure of spectators to observe the spirit of fair play."

Signed
WALTER E. MEANWELL."

RIFLE SHOOTING POPULAR AMONG WISCONSIN CO-EDS

Women May Compete Against Mens Teams Next Year, Says Lambert

Rifle practice, which has become a popular sport among the co-eds in various universities throughout the country, has been taken up by Wisconsin women as a favorite sports activity. The sport was instituted last fall as a means of gym credit, and since that time, has increased both in popularity and success at achieving marksmanship.

"By next year," Major Lambert, who instructs the women, said yesterday, "the girls' teams will be able to compete with the men's teams which have the intercollegiate championship of the United States. Even now the girls' teams could compete with many men's teams in other universities of the country."

Meets Are By Wire

The girls are confining their efforts to competition with other girls' teams, and in fact, have accepted the challenges of several in various parts of the country. The meets will be by telegraph because the University does not approve of intercollegiate meets for women where the teams have to travel.

"We have received challenges and will plan mets with the University of Nebraska and with Northwestern university," added Major Lambert. "and hope to be able to meet them next month. We have already arranged a meet with the University of California for the first week in April.

To Arrange Meets

"We intend to accept as many challenges as possible for this spring, and plan to do some challenging ourselves later. Possibly six or seven intercollegiate meets can be arranged."

The teams have elected Alice Winston as captain, and Marie Wells as manager.

WESTONS WIN IN FIRST GAME, 21-7

Knollins Slow to Start; Come Back Strong in Second Half

Defeat of the Al Knollin block by the Red Weston block to the decisive tune of 21 to 7 was the feature of the opening play in the Wisconsin Intramural Basketball League last night.

The Westons won by virtue of the fact that they rushed their opponents off their feet in the first half to a count of 17 to 4. Play tightened in the second half, neither team doing much scoring.

Peacock, forward for the Westons, played a consistent game sinking three baskets and two free throws. His team mates, Youngs and Dapin, also played well and were not far behind in point making.

The line up follows:
Weston Block 21 Knollin Block 7
Dapin C Haglin

THE CINDER MEN

While the basketball team is making an effort to get back into the running again tonight in the game with Northwestern another Wisconsin team will be putting forth its best toward bringing a Big Ten track championship here. Chances for a winner in track this year are better than they have been for several years.

The glamour of crowds of 25,000 and the frenzy of basketball spectators is lacking in the case of track and field meets, but for the athletes there is as much, if not more, work required. No sport demands better physical condition and rigorous training than track.

We were not permitted to celebrate a championship in football this year, and the basketball outlook is extremely dubious; perhaps we shall fare better in track. Not daunted by the defeats in other branches Wisconsin spirit carries on tonight.

No better example of that spirit was ever demonstrated than on the part of that same team last Saturday when it came from behind in the last event to win from Iowa. Such spirit cannot fail in the indoor relayes tonight at Urbana.

A FITTING MEMORIAL

Merit is worthy of reward. If a man or woman who has been connected with the university has brought unusual honor to the institution, it is fitting surely that his or her name should be materially preserved; for with the passing of academic generations, mere names, even though they be those of heroes, are bound to be forgotten as Time proceeds upon his Gypsy trail.

So it is that the Kenneth Sterling Day statue, placed in the lobby of the university Y. M. C. A. building, is a fitting memorial, for Kenneth Sterling Day brought honor to this institution of learning.

It is likewise altogether proper that the name of some outstanding member of the university be inscribed each year upon the memorial. Since success is as difficult a term to define in connection with college as every body's definition of the term. The five fold suit every body's definition of the term. The five fold basis upon which the man will be chosen, however, is an admirable one and should help solve the difficulty. Essential Christian worth as is evidenced by the excellence of individual moral character, capacity to execute with precision and thoroughness those practical details which are necessary to the operation of religious forces, power to conceive and bring to pass significant and beneficial changes in the life of the student body, scholastic attainment, concern for physical well being as shown by interest in bodily exercise; certainly these qualifications are of high order, as they should be.

Perhaps it will be thought that too much stress is laid on religion. Such thoughts may not be without foundation, but it must be remembered that the man for whom the memorial was erected was an active religious worker. In fact, the qualifications are founded, quite naturally, on Kenneth Day's own qualities. It is a splendid thing, this new memorial, and will serve as an added spur to high attainments.

Nominations are in order for the first man to have his name inscribed on the memorial.

AFTER COLLEGE WHAT?

People who are not acquainted with the university frequently say that the only reason the majority of co-eds have for coming to Wisconsin is to find a husband. What a gross mistake these unknowing ones make! Were this opinion true, however, the majority of co-eds would not have to be especially concerned about after college, what? For them, after college would simply mean sitting around the home town for a year and then getting married. Such, at least is the popular conception of the unknowing ones. A vocation for a university girl, they think, is an absurdity.

Little do they know. First of all, there are many girls who leave Wisconsin at the end of the four years as much unengaged as they entered. They must think seriously of earning their living. Secondly, most of the few girls who become engaged during school are unable to be married for several, perhaps many, years after graduation and they must think seriously of earning their living. Thirdly, of their campus life, a large per cent have to work anyway to help make ends meet. They too, then, must think of earning a living. And so it is that the same question which goes without asking of the men, is asked of the girls; after college, what?

It is the purpose of the all university women's vocational week, which commences Monday, to help solve this problem for Wisconsin co-eds. A first rate program, including addresses by some of America's outstanding women, is being given all this week in Lathrop parlors. Everything from journalism to natural science will be discussed. A purpose of the meetings is to present to university women their need for some practical training.

In this day and age, however, the need of practical training is so apt to eclipse the need of spiritual training that the latter is inclined to disappear out of sight. As people need to keep body together, so do they need to keep soul together. If in the rush for training in home economics and journalism the women of the country do not forget to consider training in the appreciation of art, as the men in their rush after earning capacity have forgotten all about art and other matters of the spirit which make life worth living, they shall be tremendously successful. May they keep this fact in mind during next week.

Other Editors Say—

SILENT HOMAGE

As the professor took out his watch to see how much longer he had to be tortured by a rather listless class, the Phi Beta Kappa key on his fob jingled, glittering in the morning sunshine.

The students, their scholarly lives rounded with a sleep, suddenly sat erect, and an unusual gleam of interest came into their drowsy eyes. The co-ed in the corner of the room stopped powdering her shapely nose for a second, wondering at craning of necks, while the lanky law student nearby ceased playing with his fraternity pin long enough to see the golden key.

The entire class had been surprised at this conclusive and ophthalmic evidence of the instructor's erudition. Though they had known him to be vague at times, they had never considered him recondite; he had pleasantly surprised them all, and would no doubt, have their profound respect for the remainder of the quarter.

There is no doubt about it. Intellectual excellence, power of mind, and mastery of learning still is regarded as an achievement in American universities. Students may root themselves hoarse at football games, but they pay silent homage before the softly-glowing Lamp of Knowledge!—The Minnesota Daily.

Is Twenty-four and Celebrates Sixth Birthday

Yesterday was a busy day for Miss Catherine Higgins grad, an assistant librarian in the university library. She had to crowd into one short day the birthday celebration of four years. Technically this was Miss Higgins' sixth birthday.

At that age to have been born a February 29 child seems to be an unfortunate circumstance, in view of the limitation placed on gifts and celebrations.

But in years to come it may be considered an advantage to have had few birthdays technically in so far as answering embarrassing questions about age is concerned.

WORLD ORGAN IS NECESSARY, ROOT

Believes United States Should Have Entered League of Nations

"Some sort of world organization is now indispensable, and the United States must take its place in that organization," W. T. Root, professor of history declared.

"Isolation, is no longer a question of policy, because the facts of the case are that we are no longer isolated. The American revolution was a first step in freeing ourselves from European domination; the Monroe Doctrine was an announcement of the fact that it was a natural and a normal thing to do.

"The whole question of geography, whereby we were once isolated, no longer exists. Economically, no nation is independent.

"We have changed from a country of isolation to a country of participation largely since the Civil war, but it was in 1898 that we broke the crust of isolation, became a colonial and a maritime power. The World war dealt the final blow to that feeling of isolation."

Although Professor Root firmly believed that the United States should have gone into the League of Nations, and thereby have been "more helpful in guiding the whole world situation," he did not think that partisanship are entirely to blame for our failure to enter the League, "for there were differences which represented fundamental points of view."

LEADERS ARE NEEDED FOR GIRL RESERVES

Several of the girl reserve leadership vacancies that occurred at the end of the first semester still remain, according to Marjorie Upton '26, girl reserve secretary.

LIGHTS IN PARKWAY CAUSE BANDIT SCARE

A burglar scare at the Parkway theatre shortly after 2 o'clock yesterday morning, caused a squad of police to rush to the show house in an attempt to round up the bandits. Lights appearing in the men's washroom on the second floor of the building, caused passersby to turn in an alarm. Lieut. Ole Sefland reported to police head-quarters that nothing of a suspicious nature could be found.

AMERICA NOT ALL RIGHT, SAYS EDDY

Claims Youth Revolt Against Old Order in Most Countries

and New York city. The Russians had no show places to exhibit to me. I was perfectly free to go as I pleased," he asserted.

"Students who swallow such false material on the Soviet as a booklet, 'Russia, the White Slave of the World' are accepting without question one of the most damnable lies in history," Dr. Eddy pointed out. on the subject of the reported nationalization of women in Russia.

In Europe as in the other countries of the world, Dr. Eddy said that the youth of the world was in revolt against the old order that had brought on militarism, war and hardships. In India, the speaker said that the people were afire against the injustices of the British just as the Americans had been enflamed in 1776.

Night Meeting Big

Discussing the problems of the industrial or class strife, racial prejudices, and national and international relations Dr. G. Sherwood-Eddy spoke on "Our Social Problems" at 7:30 o'clock last night in Lathrop gymnasium.

Gamber F. Tegtmeyer '24, president and Noel Stern, grad, sang a vocal solo. Before the program began, the main floor was filled, and persons had to be seated in the balcony.

"Half of humanity is working for 50 cents a day or less," the traveler said. "The only solution for this problem is absolute honesty, and public service instead of self-interest as the goal of the owners. We must have the democracy of cooperation in place of the autocracy of competition".

Remove Unemployment

Dr. Eddy declared that we should remove the fear of unemployment which he characterized as the sword of Damocles of industry. That natural resources should be used for the good of all and not the few was the contention of Dr. Eddy.

In his plea for the practice of the teachings of Jesus in racial life, he asked for a fair deal for the negro, the Jew, the foreigner and the Catholic. He disproved of the Klan because it would result in a class war in the United States.

"War is wrong because it leaves the world impoverished, because it brings wholesale destruction of human life, and because it results in the victimizing of both sides with propaganda," the speaker said. "You can't run modern war without lying. You can't tell the truth and have 26 millions of men kill themselves. Lloyd-George said recently that he had not found a single case of the Germans chopping off the hands of the children."

Droll Remarks of Perfect Fool Keeps Audience Shrieking

By TORMENTOR

A fool there was, and a perfect fool at that—Ed Wynn in his own show at the Parkway last night. With absolute nonchalance he wandered through the dancing chorus numbers, lisped in his usual capivating manner, and for two hours kept what he himself called a sophisticated "university audience" shrieking at his droll antics and remarks.

Once he grew serious. Declaring that he was a university graduate himself, he said he never lied. Nothing was said, however, about a university education qualifying one as "A Perfect Fool."

But his little scenes in one, sandwiched between typical chorus numbers, both good and bad, will long be remembered in humor's hall of fame. Assisted by Flo Newton and True Rice his adventures with the sharp shooting vaudeville team, his "Something in Green" which proved to be a rabbi in jade robes, and his innumerable instruments of safety, designed to make easy man's meal hour, not only produced an unrestrained hilarity, but demonstrated the remarkable facility of Wynn in the art of real comedy. It was silly, pure nonsense, but entirely enjoyable.

But there were other good things. The Japanese trio did some wonderful work and gave variety and tone. Perhaps an entirely unique but most interesting and charming bit for a musical revue was a woman's quartette singing old fashioned songs.

St. Bridget Wins Famous Leap Year Right For Women

Yesterday was the day, according to ancient custom on which women could propose matrimony, although in more recent times the right has been extended to cover the whole year.

This privilege is said to have been cajoled out of St. Patrick by St. Bridget.

A certain etiquette must be observed in proposing during leap year. If the man to whom she proposes declines her offer, a woman may claim from him a silk dress, but only if at the time of proposing she is wearing a scarlet petticoat and shows it to him, according to one old authority.

PROF. FISH URGES WARS BE ENDED

Says Duty of Generation is to Bring End to Conflicts

"The problem of war is the dominant problem before the people of today, and it is their duty to think about it and not to feel merely that the Lord will settle it," Prof. Carl Russell Fish said yesterday in his address to the leader's group of the Y. M. C. A. discussion sections.

"The problem of the present generation to abolish war as it was the problem of the preceding generation to abolish slavery, the obligation rests upon the people to find a substitute for this settling by destructive methods."

Professor Fish defined war as "the use of a collective force of one body to meet the collective force of another body in the settlement of differences. War is not an irreligious, immoral and illegal force of another body in the settlement of differences. War is not an irreligious, immoral and illegal force against which the righteous are struggling. It is not entirely wrong if it has decided human happiness, but, while it has served its useful purposes, these purposes must now be served by some other means."

The speaker said that he believed that education and religion would have a great influence in the abolition of war. "Education will destroy fear, which is one of the first causes of war, and religions should develop love and brotherhood, which is, essentially, sympathizing with another's point of view. Together, their function is to put the individual in the right temperament to meet this great problem."

First meeting of the second semester of the Jewish Students association at 7:30 o'clock Sunday in the Woman's building.

GREEK ROUGHHOUSE IS SCORED BY DEAN

ruin their standing in the second. The National Interfraternity conference repudiates roughhousing. It does not make a better fraternity man of the initiate, but a worse one.

Fraternities at Wisconsin have long since abandoned the highly objectionable practice of public stunts in connection with initiations. Are we not all willing now to go a step further and put an end to this "probationary" evil?
