The critics have seen some of our men in knickers, sipping tea with fingers arched daintily; they have heard that our women swear, smoke cigarettes, drink, and laugh at restraint; and they have said that we live only to play wantonly.

Just as they said of every class since 1849.

In ten years the vaster and finer enterprises, the too arduous problems that Yesterday had not thought of and Today only talks about without saying anything, will be our enterprises and our problems; we shall not even remember what the critics have said.

Just as every class has not remembered since 1854.

VOLUME THIRTY~NINE

FOREWORD

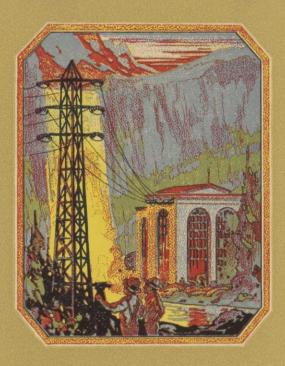

THIS BOOK is made out of YOU, and afternoons on Picnic Point, and Bill Kiekhofer's lofty moments in 1 b; of the thrills and conquests of last minutes at Camp Randall and Sterling Court; of Benny Snow's snowflakes and Mendota when the moon is high.

In places the book has looked a bit into the past, and seen Wisconsin men pushing the frontiers of life across blizzard swept glaciers; and a bit into the future, and seen You in the halls where laws are making and justice is sought; where grim and silent amid the staccato of riveting hammers you clinch steel into towering skeletons; where with word and color and stone you reveal new beauty that mankind else had missed; where your word in the charged quiet of a director's room makes myriad factory wheels to throb ceaselessly night and day; where children's faces glow in evening firelight and "On Wisconsin" kindles hearts of men and women.

This book is made of the stuff that Life is made of.

PERSONAL INDEX

THE GLORY of The University of Wisconsin is not in her "four limpid lakes, four Naiades;" not in her steadily expanding buildings nor her multiplying wealth; not even in the increasing thousands of men and women that go from her halls to the ends of the earth.

Her greatness is in her Ideal—"that continual and fearless sifting and winnowing by which alone the Truth can be found"—an Ideal pregnant with the power of virility always tempered with restraint; an Ideal written into her records at the end of the old century and read in the deeds of her disciples in the beginning of the new; now dominant in every classroom and graven on the facade of her central building, where, like to a city set on a hill, it cannot be hid.

Behind all Ideals are Ideas, and behind Ideas are Men. The subject of the old political economy was The Wealth of Nations; the subject of the New Economics is The Wants of Men. That Idea has come to influence and will come to dominate the life of the nation and the world as the Ideal has dominated the life of the University.

In endorsement of the Idea and in grateful appreciation of the Man behind it, we are happy—in the seventieth year of his life and of his services at Wisconsin the thirty-second—to dedicate this the Thirty-Ninth volume of The Badger to

RICHARD THEODORE ELY, PH. D.

ONE hundred years after Adam Smith had brought order and system into the views pertaining to economic life, the subject, particularly in America, was still distinctly academic. About that time, a small but distinguished group of economists turned the study from its limited setting into a broader field. Professor Ely as a member of that group made Johns Hopkins, the first real university of America, famous as a center of economic study and research. Coming to Wisconsin thirty-two years ago, Professor Ely at once attracted a group of graduate students. Until that time the university had been in reality a college, imparting information mainly such as had long been accepted. Since then Wisconsin has become a university in the larger sense. During these years many departments have attained distinction, but none greater than that of economics. This development centering around the genius of one man is in itself an attainment of distinction.

Professor Ely has been a tireless and fearless worker. Few Economists have received wider recognition; few indeed have had more disciples. His followers are in every university, in every legislature. Statesmen and jurists are his students. Through such men as Professor Ely university life maintains its virility; public life approaches its ideal.

B. H. HIBBARD, University of Wisconsin.

"You first introduced me to radicalism in economics and then made me sane in my radicalism."

Theodore Roosevelt.

"Forty years ago, when Ely began to teach, the main issue that exercised the political economists was free trade versus protection. When Ely said, 'Look and See,' he discovered hundreds of issues and set thousands of people at work making practical applications of political economy everywhere, from the home, the neighborhood, the state, the nation, to the whole world, and converted economics from a 'dismal science' into a constructive force."

JOHN R. COMMONS, University of Wisconsin.

"Professor Ely was a pioneer in humanizing the study of economics in the United States. He has been instrumental in developing more new lines of research than any other economist in the country."

B. H. MEYER, Chairman, Interstate Commerce Commission.

"Dr. Richard T. Ely is one of the greatest teachers of his time. He did his work by stimulating enquiry, by provoking both assent and dissent, but always inciting the student or reader to approach the subject from a new angle and to seek for facts regardless of prepossessions of class, period, or region. He kindled a productive interest in economic history and economic actuality, and he emphasized his subject as a preparation for a public career, rather than as a purely academic discipline."

Frederick J. Turner, Harvard University. "No other man has done as much as Dr. Ely to make economic study contribute to the welfare and progress of the American people."

ALBERT SHAW, Editor, Review of Reviews.

"Professor Ely is a student with an ever youthful and open mind and a teacher who gives inspiration which lasts."

HENRY C. TAYLOR.
United States Department of Agriculture

"In inspiring widespread study and promoting research in the field of political economy Dr. Ely is America's first economist."

T. S. Adams, Yale University.

"I regard Dr. Ely as the greatest inspiration in the study of economics that this country has had in a generation. His writings have probably been more widely read and exerted a wider influence than those of any other American economist."

DAVID KINLEY, President, University of Illinois.

"I made the acquaintance of Professor R. T. Ely, the first American, so far as I know, to treat economics as a human study; the first one to regard the industrial problem as one, not of labor and capital, but of laborers and capitalists; the first one to become personally acquainted with working men, to attend their meetings, to consider them not as machines supposedly governed solely by self-interest, but as men with wives and children, homes and inspirations, and like other men governed by a great variety of conflicting motives."

LYMAN ABBOTT, Late Editor, The Outlook.

Who knows, hath asked a poet seer How tall a tree should be? How high shall grow the grasses, or How deep shall reach the sea?

-MABEL MARY KNOLLIN

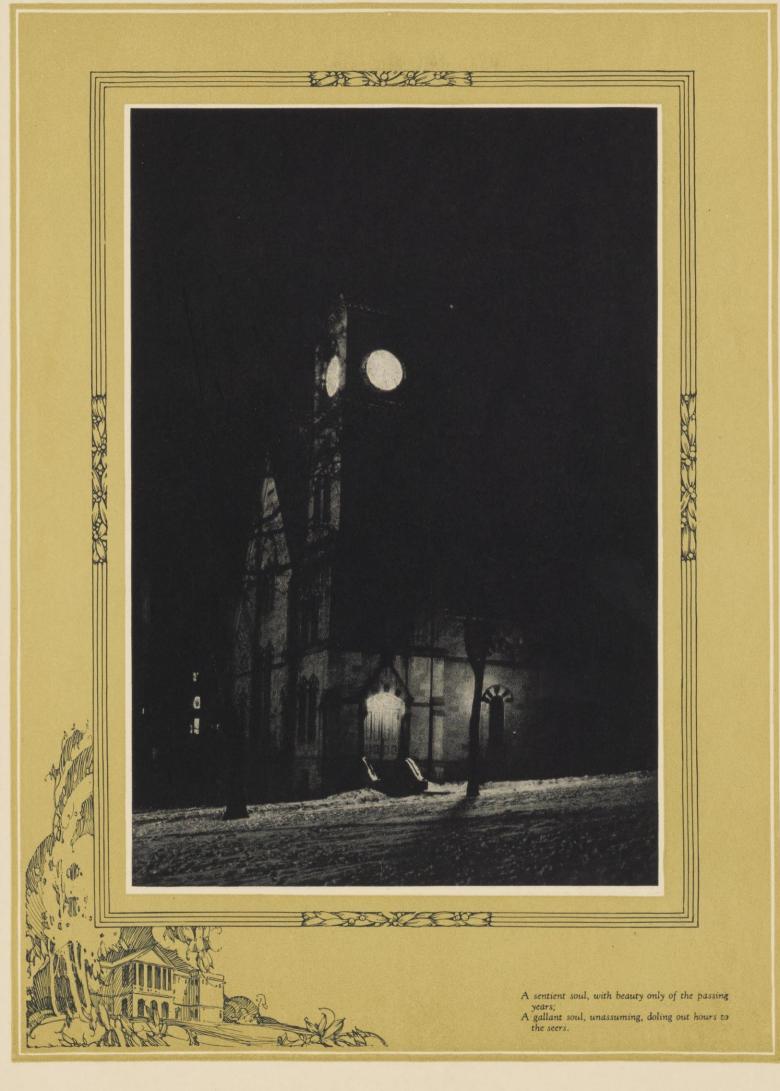

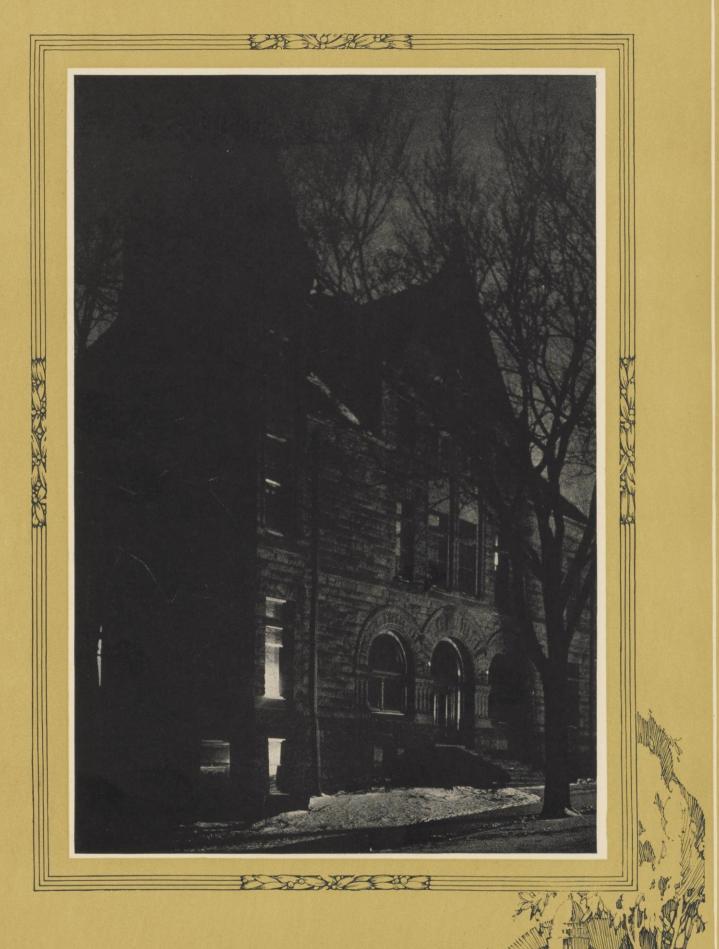

Night makes a lordly sweep up the hill, Looks down in rapt admiration. Night takes a musing way from the hill And looks up in deep contemplation.

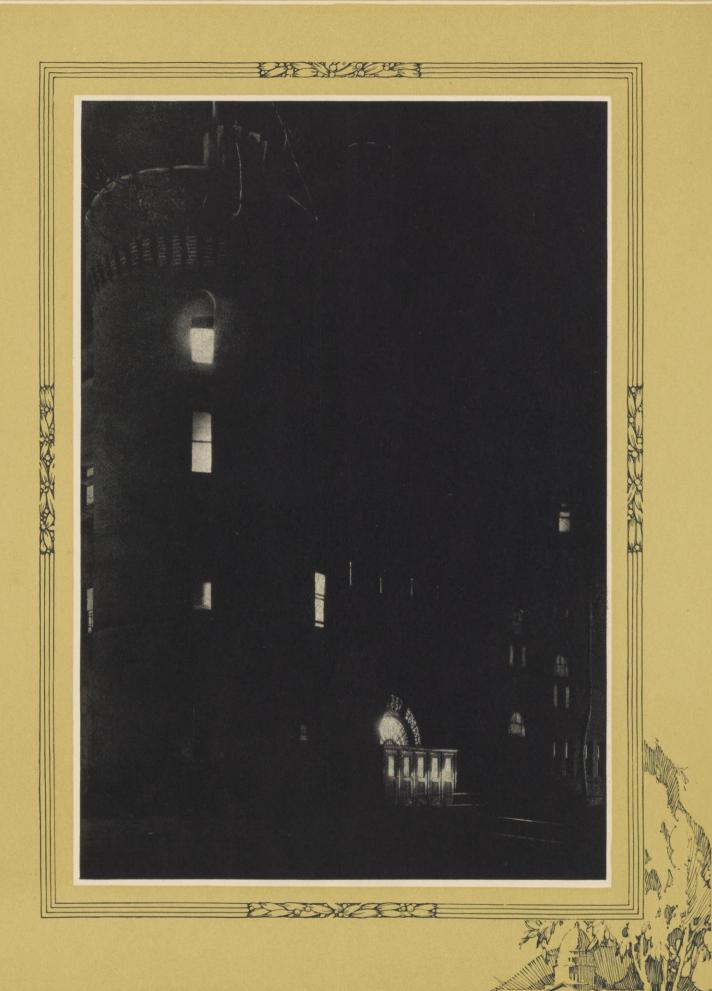

A great old captain of many storms and clippers, Hoary, grooved and cragged, with straight flung head, Weaving tales and romance for those who've learned to hear, Weaving strange old stories, now seemed strangely new.

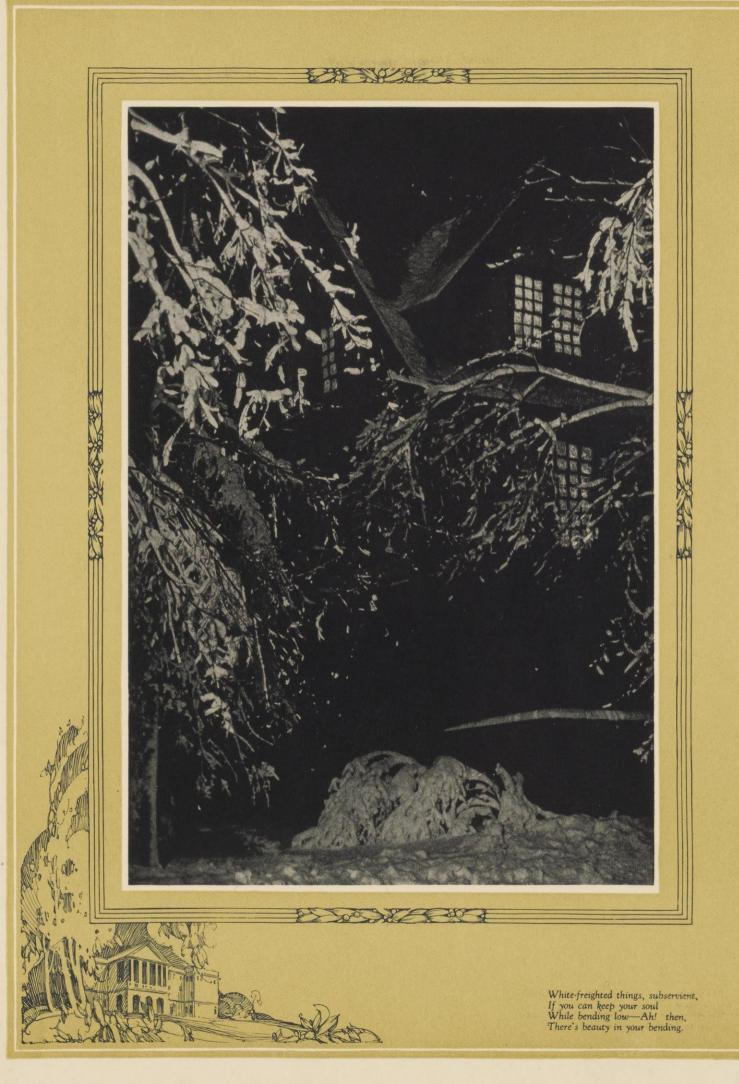

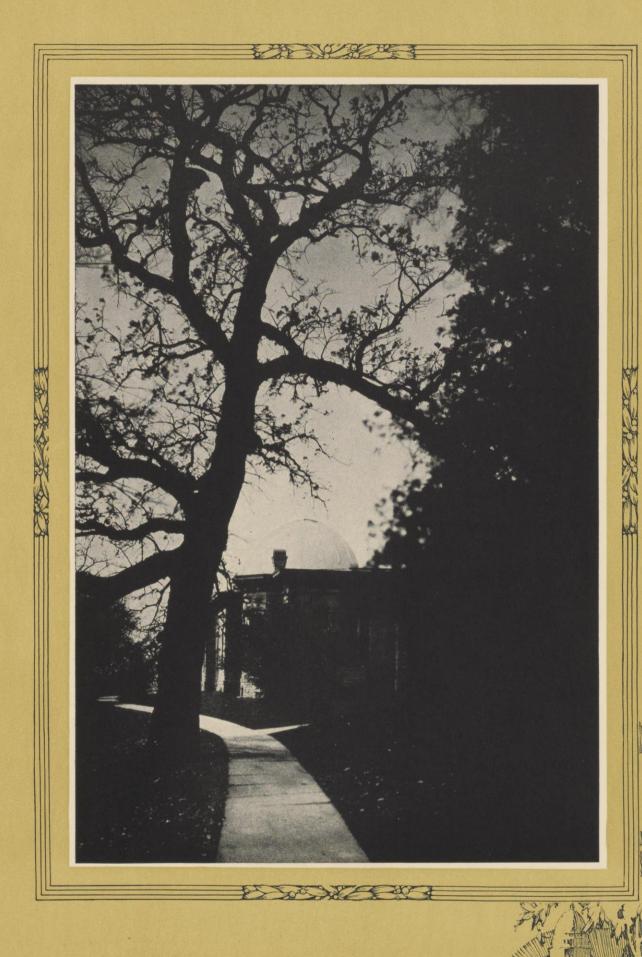

Some deep-ribbed courage is in your mien. Some stolid courtier striving late 'Mong records of man's life and fate, Known by his brave light, known unseen.

If you can rise to the farthest hills
And sink as deep into the lake's blue,
What then can measure the height and depth
Of your white beauty in a man's soul?

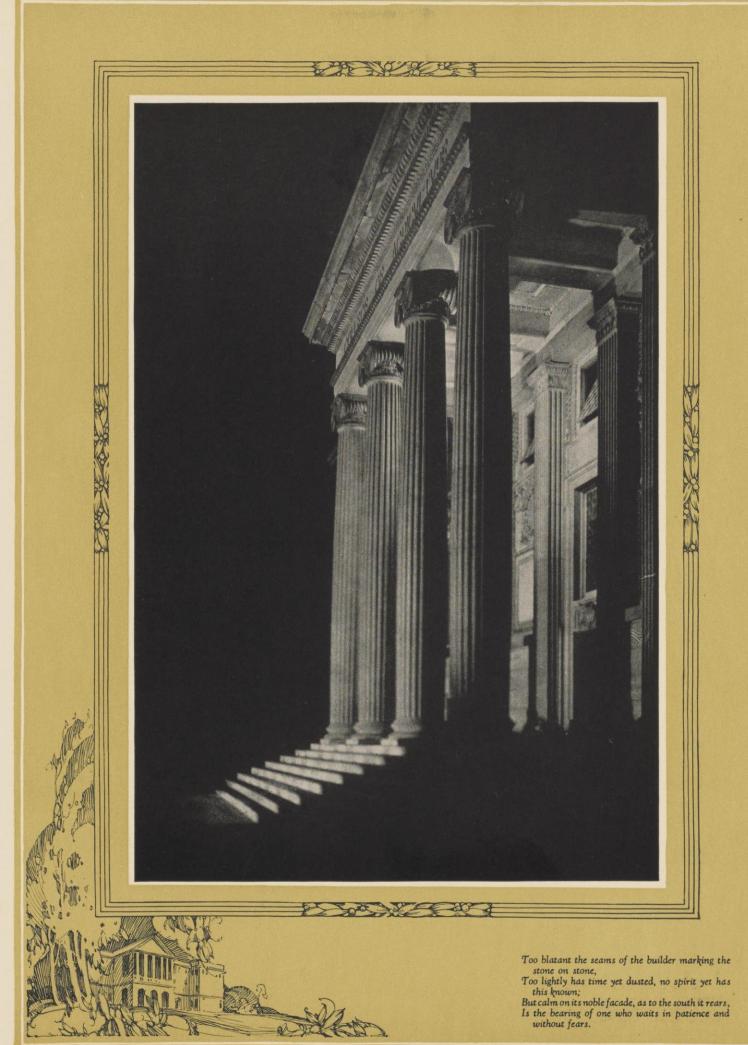

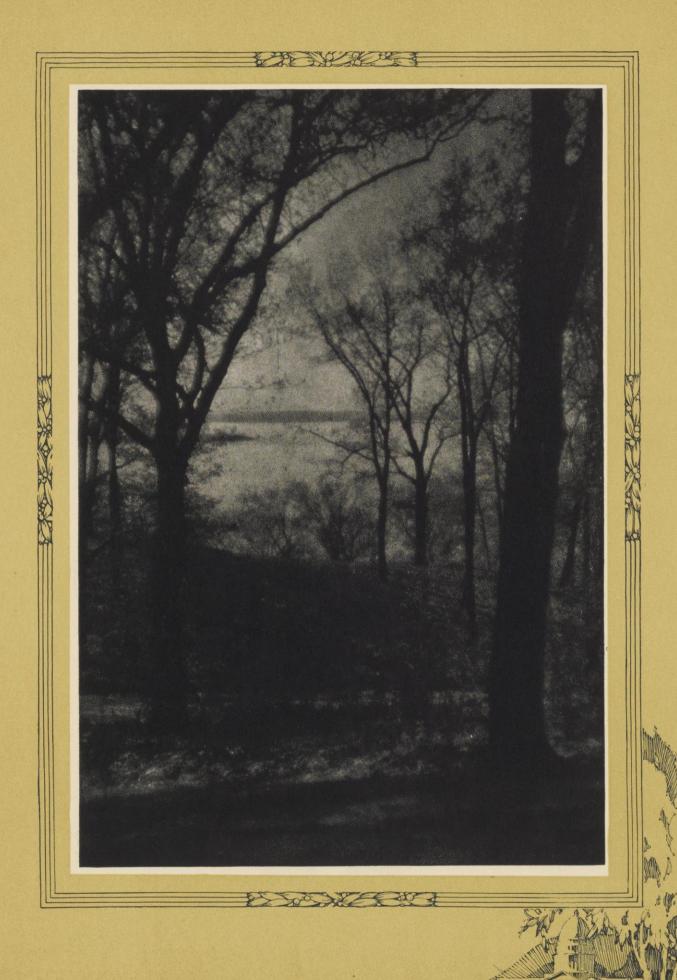

Some of your firm and dominant will And fearless, iron-cast courage You fix in them who dwell with you.

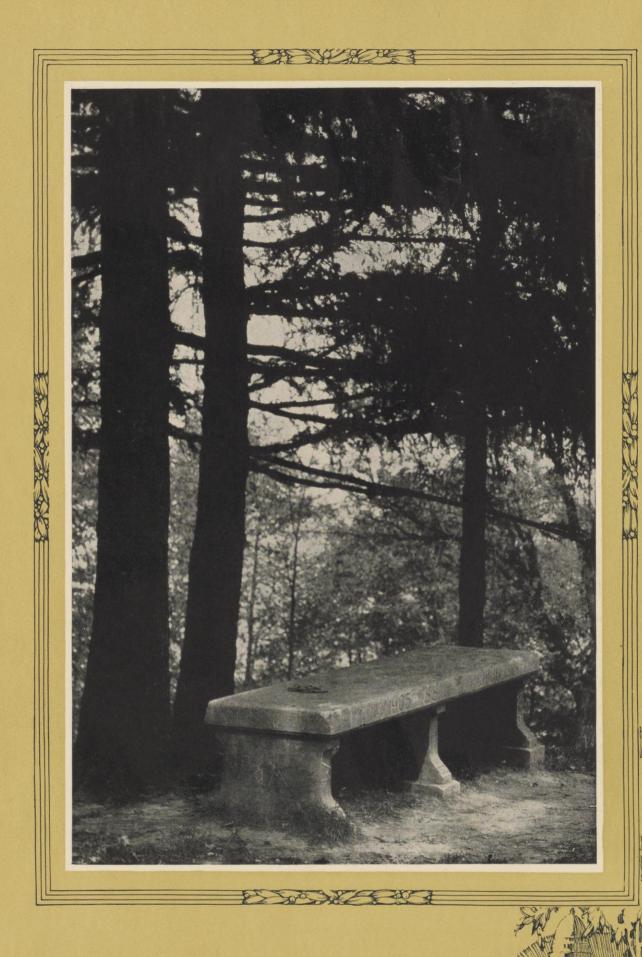

The murmurous lair of the winds that haunt the hill-ways and crests
Though moonstruck and sun-drenched, its lustreless eye is bared—in unrest.

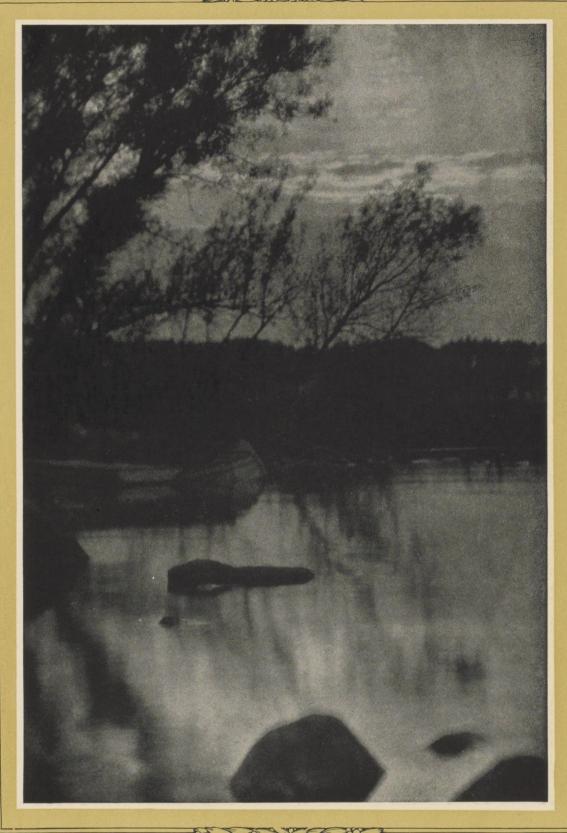

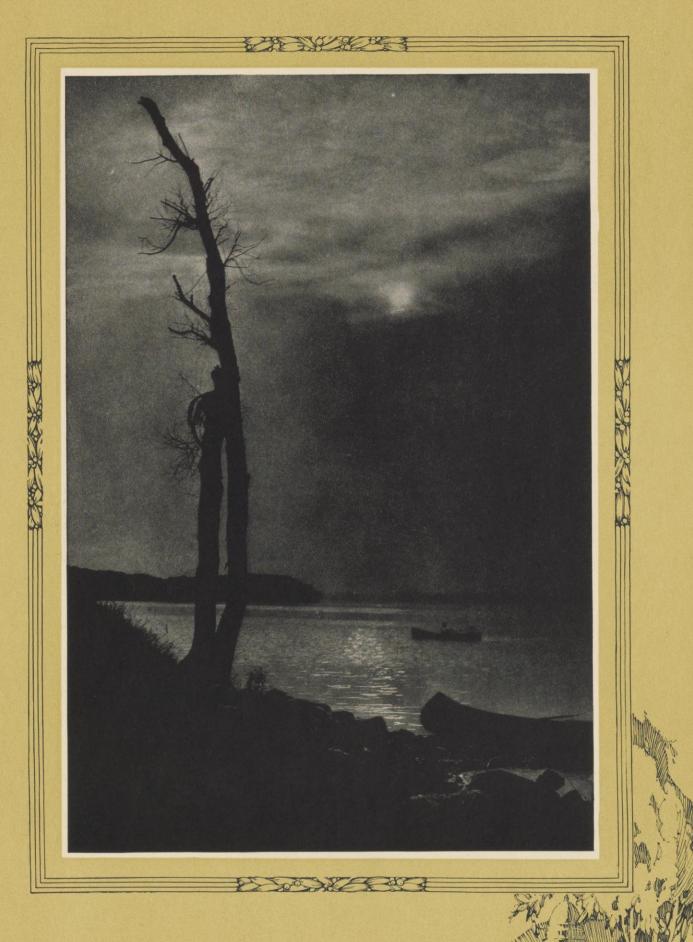

A frame so delicately wrought, A picture rarely caught, Like souls' revealing folds. Sunsets of the Gods' mixing, Cloud-heaped hattlements of the furies, Silver tinctured paths where fairies skip, And dawn, alone, when day slips coolly in.

Old fragranced winds of spring and sound of footsteps lisping,
Hang about this bench, with memories deftly soothing.

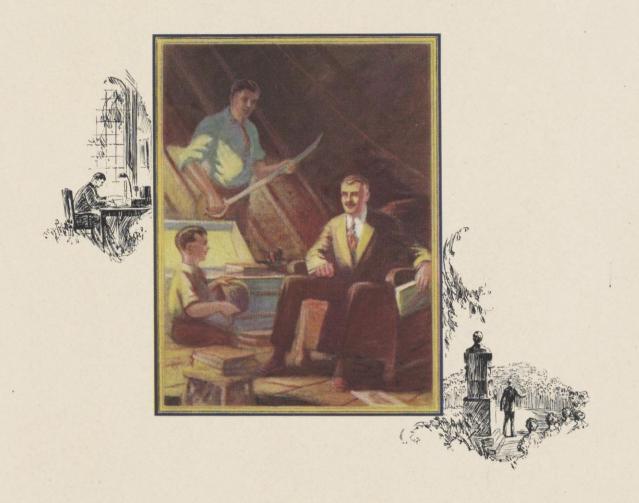

Your penchant heads dreaming, forgetful—in the pleasures of thy sight, all leafy,
Too bent
To see the weary, inevitable death-state of the once leafed shell; in your beauty Too content.

Too infinite, too sweet unto sadness
Are crowded the memories
Of youth and of dawn and starlight
To choose, of the memories.

[&]quot;Whatever may be the limitations which trammel inquiry elsewhere, we believe that the great State University of Wisconsin should ever encourage that continual and fearless sifting and winnowing by which alone the truth can be found." (Taken from a Report of the Board of Regents in 1894.)

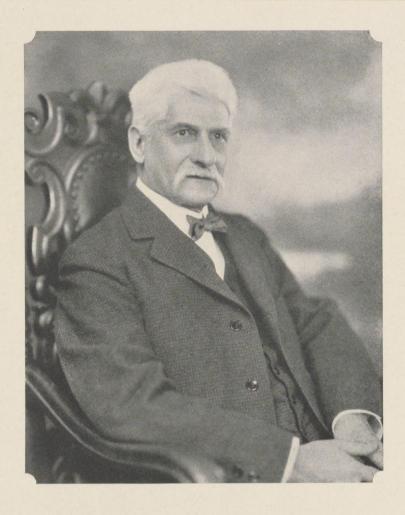

THE GOVERNOR OF WISCONSIN

THAT the university of their state might rise to its present high rank among the foremost institutions of learning in the world, the people of Wisconsin have contributed generously of men, and money, and ideas.

To the alumni of Wisconsin who have gone out from her to lives of usefulness, to the undergraduates who will follow them, to the faculty and administration officers who have trained them, I extend, on this, the seventy-fifth anniversary of the founding of the University of Wisconsin, congratulations for seventy-five years of work well done, and hopes for the future, in the name of the people of Wisconsin who have made possible the glorious past and will assist in the even more glorious future.

John J. Blains

The Governor's greetings on the Seventy-Fifth Birthday of the University.

THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNIVERSITY

E who have been long at Wisconsin like to think of the University as an institution whose life has united to an unusual degree the ideals of scholarship and service. Scholarship has given ungrudging aid in meeting practical needs of the public without losing its own more far-sighted aims. Service has been given eagerly and sympathetically without degenerating into routine and without losing the inspiration and the vigor that come from scholarship and research.

Many men and many influences have contributed to this result, and I wish that space permitted me to name some of them. Among them all the name of John Bascom stands preeminent as leader and inspirer in the development of a university which should give its state both "bread" and the "word of God." His name is one of those embossed on the cover of the 1925 Badger—the only name there which is not that of an alumnus. The inclusion of his name is peculiarly appropriate in a Badger whose special purpose is to present The University of Wisconsin as an institution devoted equally to higher scholarship and to public service.

It is also appropriate in the year which has been selected for presenting it. For Dr. Bascom came here just fifty years ago and the thirteen years of his presidency—the first quarter of the half century now closing—were formative years in our history. Their most powerful formative influence was the intellectual and spiritual personality of the president.

WALTER J. KOHLER

Among those who have given of themselves that this university might grow greater, the BADGER wishes to express the gratitude of Wisconsin men and women to Walter Kohler, member of the Board of Regents from 1918 to 1924, and its president from 1921 to 1924.

To Walter Kohler Wisconsin owes much.

To Walter Kohler Wisconsin owes much. Our Memorial Union, now so near realization, will forever be a monument to his unfailing efforts. His faith in the Union has kept it alive when others would have forsaken it; his enlightened leadership has made the project possible to Wisconsin.

Even in the beginning, among new surroundings, confronted with unfamiliar problems, Mr. Kohler displayed the fine sympathy and consideration for great and small, and the high intelligence, which set him apart from ordinary men.

He was not graduated from Wisconsin, but his labors for us and with us, in times of stress and trial, his sacrifices, his readiness to set aside his own great enterprises when the business of the University demanded his thought and attention, bring him close to our hearts and make him a part of us, as we have become a part of him.

JOHN B. PARKINSON, '60 Vice-President Emeritus University of Wisconsin

The University of Wisconsin is fortunate and happy in the privilege of extending, on his innetieth birthday, its congratulations to John B. Parkinson, '60, Vice-President Emeritus and oldest living alumnus of the University. Professor Parkinson's life has been for almost three-quarters of a century, more closely interwoven with the growth and development of Wisconsin than that of any other living man.

In presenting at the beginning of the section devoted to recognition of Wisconsin alumni the greeting of the faculty to Dr. Parkinson The 1925 Badger is sure it conveys the feeling of the student body as well:

"The members of the faculty to Dr. Parkinson The system of the faculty of the University of Wisconsin, in regular meeting as sembled,' send felicitations to their venerable colleague, Professor John B. Parkinson, on the celebration of his ninetieth birthday anniversary, April 11, 1924.

"They rejoice in his long life in Wisconsin, the state of his early adoption, and on the good fortune which nas permitted him, as participant and observer, to take part in the rush to the gold fields of California in 1852, in the Civil War, and in the marvelous developments of our country from a war-torn Union into a mighty commonwealth whose power for good will be for the healing of the nations. They recall with pleasure his graduation from our University, as Bachelor of Arts in 1860 and as Doctor of Laws in 1920: they remember with gratitude his varied service as tutor, professor, regent and vice-president and the unnumbered ways in which he has helped to shape the life of our beloved state.

"In sending this anniversary message of effectionate regard to Professor Parkinson, the oldest living son of Alma Mater, the members of the faculty wish him many happy returns of the day."

THE ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICERS

THE ideal university is an academic paradise where minds, unencumbered by the practical affairs of life, may meet and commune for mutual enrichment.

But to make such an academic paradise possible for 8,000 minds, in the Twentieth century requires much planning, thought, and effort; for the practical and worldly wants of 8,000 minds and bodies must be accomodated before the 8,000 minds can meet and stimulate one another.

It is W. D. Hiestand, "the Registrar," who ushers us into our academic paradise. He is the St. Peter who stands at the golden gate, picking only the choicest minds to enter, and closing the gates upon the rest; he, too, ushers us out at the end of our sojourn here, sending us on to conquer other worlds. He it is who preserves the record of our transgressions here, and many and one, having passed out, sadly has learned that, like to St. Peter, what Mr. Hiestand hath written, that can no man erase. While carrying on the many duties of his office Mr. Hiestand has found time to show a rare thoughtfulness, patience, and sympathy with student effort and student life—as illustrated in his cooperation with The 1925 Badger in registering and distributing summaries to the Seniors last fall.

Upon the shoulders of J. D. Phillips, the business manager of the University, falls the task of wisely utilizing the millions of dollars which are appropriated each year to keep the University functioning. His job is that of a general, marshalling legions of business officials, architects, engineers, accountants, plumbers, steamfitters, electricians, painters, cooks, janitors, and other trained workers, to feed, house, and keep the University supplied with the physical instruments, necessities, and comforts which make the community of minds possible.

Mr. Phillips has served as the point of contact between the student and official University interests promoting the Memorial Union enterprise with the same silent effectiveness that characterizes his administration of the great task of administering to the physical and financial needs of the university.

And to the Bursar, G. L. Gilbert, falls the heavy task of collecting the tithes which we must pay to remain in this academic paradise. Two and a half millions dollars pass through his hands each year. But his task is not only one of taking, but also of giving, for it is he that gives us our scholarships, our loan funds, and our "lab" remittances.

The work of each one of these men goes on at all times, unnoticed by the student, but each one performing thoughtfully and well the indespensible labors which attend the administration of a great university.

THEODORE KRONSHAGE, JR., B.A. '91; LL.B. '92

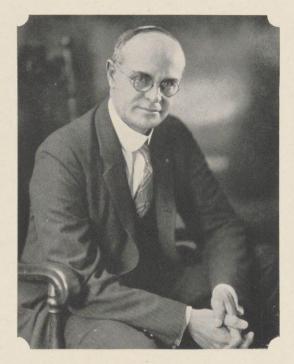

Member of the Board of Regents of the University of Wisconsin

After graduating from the Law Course in 1892, Mr. Kronshage immediately took up the practice of law in Milwaukee. By 1901 he was senior member of the firm of Kronshage, McGovern, and Hannan, and president of the Milwaukee Free Press Company of Wisconsin. He has been a member of the Representative State and County Central Commissions and president of the board of regents of State Normal Schools of Wisconsin.

Perhaps, when Theodore Kronshage was a mere student at the University of Wisconsin and helping to organize Haresfoot of which he is a charter member, he had visions of helping to mold the destinies of his Alma Mater at a future date. If he did, his dreams have been realized, for he is now a member of the Board of Regents of the University of Wisconsin.

DEANS OF MEN AND WOMEN

IT WAS a happy inspiration of the Editors of the 1925 Badger to feature prominently for the first time in Badger history the lives and work of Alumni of Wisconsin. This semester we have been celebrating the seventy-fifth anniversary of the calling together of "seventeen young men" by Professor John Sterling, the beginning of instruction in the University. Since that day, nearly a score of thousand of men and women have been graduated from the institution. They are carrying on the world's work in every land and in every clime. The sun never sets upon University of Wisconsin alumni. The University is justly proud of them and of their achievements.

They are, however, a loosely united society. Comparatively few can ever return to the campus at any one time. Some are at so great a distance they can never come. The love of Alma Mater is the one tie which binds their hearts to the old hill about which their memories fondly linger. They are doubtless often tempted to imagine themselves forgotten here, especially by the present day student.

This book will carry out to them the assurance that their lives and their work are chronicled and ever cherished here. A class which is soon to join their ranks salutes them. The Faculty and the Regents join in the greeting. On her Diamond Jubilee, Alma Mater affectionately calls to mind her absent sons and daughters and sends them her blessing through the medium of the 1925 Badger.

COMMENCEMENT will bring you into a large and rapidly growing fellowship of college women. With all the variety of their training and occupation, you will, I believe, find a considerable agreement in the way they practice the art of living. A friendly and openminded critic asked recently whether college was really good for what she called "the woman stuff," what she characterized as a generous, intelligent, and delicately helpful participation in other people's lives. She had a half-formed fear that college life—four plastic years outside the home, four years of possible individualism, four years of self-assertion in work and play—might make the college woman bright, hard, selfish.

As you return five years from now for your first reunion, you will, I believe, report that the critic's fears were not justified; that even when the college woman is living life eagerly and ambitiously, she is living it not ungenerously. In their homes, college women keep down the divorce statistics; they do not furnish their quota of the wrecked and weak who fail to make good on a brave partnership for richer or poorer, for better or worse. Outside the home they show a notable impulse toward organizing for generous purposes. They draw together in quasi home groups such as college clubs, Theta Sigma Phi houses, Pan Hellenic lodges, and modest apartments, where they live successfully, differing from each other withour rancor, and agreeing without subservience.

We congratulate you on the fellowship which you will find and we steadfastly believe that the Wisconsin women of 1924 will make it an even finer fellowship.

THE COLLEGE OF LETTERS AND SCIENCE

THE University celebrated its seventy-fifth birthday in February of this year (1924). That birthday belongs particularly to the College of Letters and Science, since the other colleges and schools developed later. The oldest branch of the University, which President Van Hise complimented by calling it the trunk of the university tree, is still young and vigorous, and we wish for it and all the other branches increasing usefulness and power.

We hope that zeal for scholarship, for the life of the spirit, for noble and beautiful things, will grow and increase. When you alumni of the class of 1924 are out twenty-five years, your old college will be a hundred years old, and you will have good perspective for judging it. I hope that it will come up to your highest expectations, and that what you have learned within its walls will be an inspiration and a solace to you in the years that lie before you.

May the hundredth anniversary of the college find you and the college both flourishing like a goodly tree, velut arbor aevo.

THE COLLEGE OF LETTERS AND SCIENCE

THE College of Letters and Science is the mother of the University. It was with Letters and Science that Sterling and Conover began their labors seventy-five years ago, and it was only as the infant university of the 60's and 70's sought to extend its scope to other fields of learning that the other colleges came into beings, as boughs that grow upon a central trunk.

It was this college that knew most intimately the travail and bitter struggle of the first quarter century. The state was poor, and had little money to spend upon education. The two unselfish professors received salaries of $500 annually. The score of boys who constituted "the student body" studied, ate, worked, slept and played under the roof of North Hall, which in those days was magnificently equipped with big, black stoves, brick chimneys, and a hitching post. Each student supplied his own "heat", and North Dormitory for many years was flanked with a formidable woodpile. While some studied Livy and Plato within, others chopped lustily without.

Men came to College with a stern purpose then. John Muir trudged 150 miles on foot to come to Madison, and subsisted on fifty cents a week, by helping farmers about town milk their cows and do their haying.

When the Civil War broke in '61, Lincoln's call was answered generously from "the Hill." Camp Randall, within sight of the campus, became the training camp for the state, and the University was exposed to all the military excitement of the period. Almost the entire junior and senior classes enlisted, and Professor Butler, at this time complained that "so many sons of Mars have left us that the largest and best Greek class I ever had has been sadly thinned out."

With half the students gone to war, the College was in a bad way. Classes were heroically maintained for one or two students. There was talk about suspending school. The financial "bogey" once more hovered over College Hill, and the Regents shaved a hundred dollars from the salaries of the professors, and paid their own train-fare to board meetings for a while, to help meet expenses.

The Upper Campus of the '90s

When North Hall Had a Hitching Rail-

At this trying time the idea of a "female college" won out. While the men were off to war, the "ladies" invaded the sacred precincts of the campus, ensconced themselves in "Ladies' Hall," and decided to stay indefinitely. In 1866, when the men came back from the fight, feeling ran high against those who "had brought females into the University." Many were the attacks directed against those "pusillanimous males who gave aid and comfort to the enemy." But time, the healer, brought reconciliation and the men, with a little teaching, soon learned to divide their allegiance between the debating societies and Ladies' Hall-

In the span of a human life vast changes have been wrought. The once-barren hill is now lined with great buildings, where, the work of teaching and research goes on. The saplings planted in Sterling's day have grown to great, age-old elms, which line the Hill in stately magnificence. Sixty-five years ago the University's staunchest and most hopeful friends whispered fondly of the day when it would have a "solid" income of $10,000 annually. Today millions are spent to support the state's greatest educational institution, and the fame of Wisconsin brings to her searchers for truth from the farthest ends of the earth.

The ideals of education have changed with the changing years. Ovid and Catullus have surrendered their places to Economics and Sociology. But the College of Letters and Science whose task it has ever been to teach the fine art of living, still forms the central trunk of the University tree.

Senator Walsh has recently come into the mation's limelight by being the one to lift the "Lid" from the Teapot Dome affair. The Public Land and Survey Committee, when going in the whole question of the issues of the navy oil reserves, realized that Walsh was the one to do the digging. The Navy and Interior Departments each sent to his office a wagonload. That was the time that the average man would have given up but Mr. Walsh did not. After weeks and weeks of working day and night he came through with the material for the investigation.

While Mr. Walsh was in law school he was pitcher on the law class baseball nine of 1884, the captain, first baseman, and substitute catcher being Christian Doerfler, now a sage and solemn justice of the Supreme Court. In

This is not Mr. Quirk's first appearance in a Badger. Back in 1902 he wrote a story of college life, which won first prize in the Badger contest of that year and which—because the prize was Five Dollars in cash—automatically made him a professional writer. The die was cast. Using that story as a nucleus, he expanded it to book length and inveigled the Century Company into publishing it under the title of "Baby Elton, Quarterback." The background was a thinly disguised University of Wisconsin, the characters, the fellows and coaches and professors he knew there, and the action a gamut of sports that raced from football in the fall to baseball and track in the spring. Again mark the Nemesis of Fate! Thenceforward and forever he was a writer of stories for boys. Now he has fifteen juvenile books charged against him and well over two hundred magazine stories. In at least four of the other books, known as the Wellworth College Series, Mr. Quirk is the sports Baron Munchausen of the University of Wisconsin.

Story writing is a hard habit to break. Mr. Quirk has been a newspaper reporter, a special interviewer for a magazine, a dramatic critic, and advertising copy writer, a publisher of a magazine in New York City; but always he has taken time out from his jobs to write stories for boys and—under other names—a few score yarns for more sophisticated grown-ups. In his own defense he claims he never chose writing as a profession; he was simply tossed into it willy-nilly by force of circumstances, as hereintofore set down.

When Mr. Allyn met the Badger editor on the street last summer he didn't show much change from the clean-cut, boy-ish face that looks out from the 1914 Badger; time has dealt lightly while he has grown from a Commerce senior to Comptroller of the National Cash Register Company. From the window of his top-floor office he looks out over tyy-covered buildings, mostly glass; green lawns and parks; for he is a part of the organization that has transformed Slidertown into South Park; that maintains as a schooly house one of its most attractive buildings; where many Wisconsini men go each year to join with several thousand others in producing cash-registers AND happy men and women. "Steve" Gilman sneaked through Dayton in his car last year without stopping off at N. C. R.; but Mr. Allyn says he'll get him down there for a week to bring a little Wisconsin spirit to the N. C. R. sales school if it takes the rest of his life.

A noted member of the noted law class of '94, which, according to the editor of the '95 Badger, "showed signs of genius in its early infancy and was scheduled to quite outshine all other classes," is Herman Errn. He was elected to the office of district attorney for Trempealeau county the same year he was graduated.

Since then he has specialized in insurance law in Madison and Chicago. In 1922 he was nominated and elected attorney general of Wisconsin as a Progressive Republican. Two of his daughters are also graduates of the University of Wisconsin.

MAURICE C. PIERCE, 12 American Consul at London

Mr. Pirrce, on detail as American Consul at London England, was known in his university days as "Big Pete." As his activities show, he was an unusual combination of athlete and vaudeville artist. The epitaph under his namein the 1913 Badger, "Big man, big heart, forget about the feet, Oh, you Pete," speaks for his popularity. He was on the track team, center and chief comedian on the varsity football team. As a hammer thrower and shot putter he ranked as the best in the conference. The other phase of his activities is shown by his membership in the Varsity quartet, Glee club, Haresfoot, and Union Vodvil.

Mr. Pierce entered the consular service as vicconsul in 1913 at Barnieu, Germany, and was transferred in 1914 to Zurich, Switzerland. In 1917 he was appointed a consul after examination and has since served in this capacity in Sweden, Russia, Norway, and England.

The picture was taken when he was consul.

The picture was taken when he was consul at Murmansk, Russia, in the heart of Lapland, the land of the midnight sun, which is north of the Arctic circle and east of Suez.

The lure of the Orient, a Wisconsin co-ed, a honeymoon in Japan, what would be more romantic or idealistic? But such is the interesting history of Caru. Neprup in his work for the Chinese government in its Maritime Customs. He has seen parts of China that usually are closed to foreign eyes, such as northern China, and western China near the Thibetan border. As he says, "It has been one continuous university course with the study of several languages, including Chinese both written and spoken, international politics, and economic, physical and commercial geography. It is also a means of becoming more closely acquainted with the people of many nationalities."

At present he is stationed in Harbin, northern Manchuria. He writes: "With 100,000 Russians living in the city, Harbin has the largest white population of any place in the East. There are several hundred other Europeans and Americans, in addition to about 5,000 Japanese and of course thousands of Chinese. We find it advisable to study Russian which is in general use through the town."

With Ishak, Stuart Jamieson Fuller might say,
"I am a pilgrim, master; I shall go
Always a little further; it may be Beyond that last blue mountain buried with snow
Across that angry or that glimmering sea."

He has served as consul in Italy, Sweden, Peru, Durban, Natal, and as consul-general-at-large for Canada, Mexico, Bermuda, Eastern Asia, Australia, and since 1719 has been con-sul-general at Tientsin, China. In his travels, among other things, he has always carried lots of Wisconsin spirit and a Phi Beta Kappa key.

After Mr. Wheeler's graduation in '16, he must have decided that in order to tell good stories one must see life. The first thing he did was to sign up for Y. M. C. A. work abroad. He served as relief secretary for the allied prisoners of war in the prison camps of southern Germany from the summer of 1916 until the United States broke diplomatic relations with Germany in 1917. Then he went to Russia where the American Commission had summoned a group of 'Y' men to undertake the forlorn task of rebuilding morale in the Russian army after the revolution.

With experiences better than any fishing trips for a story telling expert, he came back to

In 1922 he was promoted to the position of assistant editor after holding down most of the reportorial jobs. WILLIAM MORRIS LEISERSON, A.B. '08 Member of the President's Conference on Labor Matters

WILLIAM LEISERSON was prominent in forensics while at school, being President of the Northern Oratorical League. Since then, Mr. Leiserson has become one of the nation's leading economists and labor judges. He was a member of the staff of the famous Pittsburgh Social Survey in 1907 and an expert on unemployment for the government in 1909. He took his Ph.D. degree at Columbia in 1911. Later, appointed to the department of political economy of Toledo University, he became much in demand for special work. During the war he organized the state employment system for the middle west. Under the Wilson administration he was chief of the division of labor administration for the U. S. Department of Labor. His most notable appointment was his selection as impartial chairman of the clothing industry at Rochester, N. Y., five years ago. Since then, he has been made traveling judge for the cities of New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and Baltimore.

In the clothing industry he settles disputes for more than 200,000 employees and has a fine record for impartiality. He is a permanent member of the President's conference on labor matters and a consulting expert for the United States Coal Fact-finding Commission. In addition to being on the staff of Toledo University, he is conducting a special course in industrial relations at the Wharton School of Finance, University of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Leiserson, upon asking the mayor to co-operate with him in starting a state employment bureau in a certain city received the reply:

reply:
"It can't be done," from the mayor.
"Can—and must," replied Mr. Leiserson with a smile, and it was.

The squib in Miss Corscor's summary in the Badger, published the year of her graduation, reads, "I shall rest contentedly." Judging from her activities, both in school and after graduation, the Badger staff erred in making this statement. While in school Miss Corscot was president of the Woman's League, and vice-president and treasurer of the Laurean Literary Society. She has recently been elected president of the Madison Board of Health; she is the first woman to head a city board in Madison; was the first to hold a place as a member of the Board of Health.

Miss Corscot is past president of the Madison branch of The American Association of Collegiate Alumni; was a member of the Association of Collegiate Alumni; is now a state legislative chairman of the Madison branch of the same organization, and represents them on the women's legislative committee.

Mr. Curtis says that everybody in New Hampshire has a fur coat. It seems to be a badge of the state. Mr. Curtis was editor of the Badger of his class—a class of 80 students. He says that when he was a freshman, he personally knew every man except one senior. Mr. Curtis today is a versatile newspaper man—being a member of the staff of a Chicago paper and of a Boston paper both of high standing; his articles are signed for the most part, so that he has become well known in northern New England and is regarded as a great influence in politics. Although a Republican he has even been called into consultation by the national party organization of the Democrats. He also writes on the edi-

The class which published the first Wisconsin year book, "The Trochos," must be proud to say it had as a member, Professor Pammel. This man has evidently made good use of the hours the day has provided for him. He has had so many honors conveyed upon him and has been elected the head of so many organizations, associations, and boards, and is the author of so many books and publications that we cannot find space to list them all here; we can only give a few of them.

He graduated from Wisconsin in 1885, the first man to receive the degree of Bachelor of Agriculture. He took his M.S. here in 1889, and his Ph.D. at the University of Washington in 1880. Professor Pammel has been professor of Botany in the Iowa State college since 1880, and botanist at the Agricultural Experiment station since 1892. He has been president of the Iowa State Board of Conservation since its organization. He is vice-president, Section G of the American association for advertising of science, and president of the Iowa Park and Forestry association. He has written some 400 papers and has many more associations and honors. He has recently been elected president-general of Phi Kappa Phi and president of the National Cosmopolitan clubs. We wonder what he does with his extra time.

As an historian, and in the book for which he is famous, "The Rise of the West," Professor Turner has pointed out the part the frontier has played in American history and the development of American character, and he has presented this theme with a soundness of research and a charm of manner which carried immediate conviction to all American historians.

at Johns Hopkins in 1890, and he has too many honorary degrees and is affiliated with too many historical societies to be recorded here.

Mr. Turner is a lover of the great out-of-doors, and his favorite recreation is canoeing. We have one of his cherished possessions to bear this out; he left with us in our Historical library a birch bark canoe which he bought from the Indians when a small boy.

THE COURSE IN COMMERCE

RADUATES of the Course in Commerce leave the University with a peculiar responsibility, namely that of representing the results of specialized college training for men and women who expect to spend their lives in business. What is the value of such training? Is it worth while? Is it better than unspecialized college training? Do such specially trained people make better business men and women than those who have received all their training outside of college walls, in business establishments? These are the questions which their conduct and their careers will answer.

The class of 1024 must also meet the challenge of its predecessors. They have made a record of which we are proud. At least to equal, possibly to surpass, this is a worthy goal the pursuit of which should stimulate every man and woman to high endeavor. The University hopes that the class of 1924 will establish a new high record.

When the Department of Commerce needed When the Department of Commerce needed a man to carry on economic investigations of various industries, including lumber, cement, ports and terminals, water power, and trade associations, they decided that Erness Smrrh Bradford was the man who could best do the work. After that he assisted in the studies preceding the drafting of the Clayton Act, and the organization of the Federal Trade Commission.

After leaving the government service he carried on commercial research for the United States Rubber Company. He was later commandeered for war work, one of his duties being to pick out the 200,000 men needed for the shipbuilding commission. Later he had charge of government housing.

Wishing to do individual work he made a special study of the unemployed and was appointed a member of the economic advisory committee of the President's Conference on Unemployment. In the winter of 1922's he was appointed investigator for Governor Pinchot's committee to investigate the status of public utilities.

As we reviewed his career we were forced to agree that other adjectives than criminal were suggested to our minds—among them brilliant, useful, worthy. After a successful business career in Chicago he took his LL.B. degree at Wisconsin in 1809 and extablished himself in law. He helped to simplify the accounting system of the state of Wisconsin. Mr. McMillen writes, "The boyish looking chap in the front row in the center, with his hat coyly coiled under his right arm is yours truly. (By the way, it's a fifteen dollar Paris hat)." Mr. McMillen, since graduating from the university has been with the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company, his job being the securing and training of men. He is at the head of the home agency in Milwaukee. The other men shown in this picture are some of Mr. McMillen's associates.

During the war Mr. McMillen served as captain of the 335th Infantry, later as Brigade Adjutant to General Wilder of the 163rd Infantry Brigade.

Mr. McMillen has built up the Home Agency from an agency numbering 19 men and producing at the rate of $3,000-000 a year to a force of 45 men producing approximately $12,000,000 of new business a year. Mr. McMillen was last year general chairman of the Milwaukee Community Fund which raised something over $500,000 for the support of Milwaukee's leading charities.

Mr. McMillen adds "I am also a director of the American National Bank, but in such position, I am not empowered to loan unlimited sums of money to ex-Wisconsin students merely by virtue of our common interests."

the university, later serving in the departments of economics and political economy there.

During 1919-17 he was director of research for the U. S. Rubber Company of New York; since then he has been sales manager of the International Magazine company, in the same city. Mr. Nystrom is the author of numerous books on various phases of retail trade; his home is in Ridgefield Park, New Jersey.

THE COURSE IN JOURNALISM

NEXT year will be the twentieth during which instruction in journalism has been given at the University of Wisconsin. After one course in newspaper writing had proved successful in the two years, 1905–06 and 1906–07, a four-year program of studies in the College of Letters and Science was outlined under the name "Courses Preparatory to Journalism." In the following year, 1908–09, courses in journalism were offered, one in news writing and one in editorial writing. The present four-year Course in Journalism was established just fifteen years ago, on April 26, 1909.

When the Course in Journalism began fifteen years ago, 29 students were enrolled, and one room in the basement of Bascom Hall served as laboratory, reading room, and classroom. As this room was also used by the staff of the Daily Cardinal, the Wisconsin Cardinal Association supplied six second-hand typewriters—the only equipment that the journalism laboratory possessed. The newspapers on file in this room were those received gratis in exchange for the University Press Bulletin.

In fifteen years the number of students in the Course in Journalism has grown from 29 to 370. Instead of one course in newspaper writing, there are now fifteen courses covering every important phase of journalism. From one instruuctor who divided his time between English and journalism, there are now six members of the faculty of the Department of Journalism and three members of other departments who are giving courses primarily for journalism students. Ten years ago the Course in Journalism moved from Bascom Hall to its present quarters in South Hall, where a lecture room, a journalism laboratory, a reading room, and offices were provided. Since then several of the journalism classes have outgrown the lecture room, the reading room has been doubled in size, and a printing laboratory has been added.

The class of 1924 will add 50 young men and women to the hundreds of Wisconsin Journalism graduates engaged in newspaper, magazine, and advertising work, and in teaching journalism in colleges and universities, in all parts of the country.

THE COLLEGE OF ENGINEERING

THE class of 1924 will soon be counted among the alumni members. You are about to enter a larger and wider field of work, where your activities will be conducted under very different conditions from those to which you have been accustomed as students.

Perhaps the most striking difference will be the greater responsibility you will have to assume in the coice of work and the manner in which it is performed. You will almost inevitably be confronted with a larger degree of routine and monotony than has been the case with your duties in the varied college program; and changes and promotions will scarcely be forthcoming by semesters. Your daily tasks will hardly contain the variety presented by six or seven kinds of studies, interspersed with weekly parties and athletic

On the other hand, there will be a great stimulating effect in the thought that you have actually begun your career, especially if you are fortunate enough to find employment which best fits your taste and ability.

The engineering graduate who does his work well and who does not expect results too rapidly on transition from the school to the field of practice will not be disappointed. The opportunities for advancement which come to those who render good service in the engineering field have never been better than they are at present.

Your careers will be followed with great interest by the members of the faculty, and it is their hope that you will achieve the best success in your chosen profession.

TECHNICAL education at Wisconsin may be said to be a twin brother of military science. Both were begun after acceptance by the regents of a land grant from the government requiring instruction in military science and mechanic arts. The first instruction was given by an officer of the U. S. Army, Col. W. R. Pease, who held the title of "Professor of Military Science and Civil Engineering." Thus the first faculties of the College of Engineering and the Department of Military Science consisted of a single Instructor.

From this simple obligatory beginning courses in technical education have developed into a full college with an instructional staff of 90 and an enrollment for this year of 1,083.

The work of instruction in the various branches of engineering was carried on in University Hall for the first few years. The laboratories for physics, chemistry, and metallurgy were in the basement of the building. In 1877 quarters for the department were obtained in old Science Hall which was destroyed by fire in 1884. In the basement of this building there was room for a machine shop and drafting boards. After several years in which instruction in engineering branches were carried on without regular quarters, the present Science Hall was completed and the department moved into the new building.

The legislature of 1889 passed an amendment to the law establishing the university whereby the College of Mechanics and Engineering was established as a separate college with its own funds. With added means at its disposal and a further grant from the national government the college established three new professorships and increased its facilities.

The shops had been built in 1886, and the department took over the chemical engineering building in 1888. These additions were followed by the erection of Engineering Hall, (1900) the hydraulics laboratory, (1906) the mining laboratory, (1907) and Randall shops, (1921).

The progress made in the last twenty-five years is shown by an article in the Wisconsin Engineer for January, 1899. "The number of students at the end of the present year will probably be about 250, an increase of nearly 10 per cent from last year. It is the hope that the legislature at its coming session will provide for an engineering building—that the freshmen may have a draughting room where they will not be bothered contiouously by the shaking of the floor due to the line-shafting supported underneath."

"An outstanding figure in the electrical power and light industry and the new chairman of the National Electric Light Association Technical Section" is the beginning of an article about Mr. Schucharder in the August, 1922, Electrical World.

This article points out not alone Mr. Schuchardt's attainments, but his versatility, offering as proof his authorship of apaper on The Rotary Converter Substation which won the Chanute medal of the Western Society of Engineers; of a booklet entitled, Panama and the Isthmian Canal; and of a play which was successfully produced by that live-wire Wisconsin alumni club of Chicago, of which Mr. Schuchardt was president.

A mere list of his positions would fill this page, but perhaps his most important work has been with the Commonwealth Edison Company, where he began as a substation operator in 1898, and advanced to the position of chief electrical engineer in 1909. All Phases of this "big policy" company's business have felt his influence, and he is largely responsible for the solution of new station layout and protection problems of the company, and for the present operating system, its school for employees, and the Edison Round Table.

His breadth of mind, industry, and vision are reflected by his membership and activity in such organizations as the A. I. E. E., the N. E. L. A., the Illuminating Engineering society, the City Club and the University Club of Chicago, the Western Society of Electrical Engineers of Great Britain, and by no means least, the Wisconsin Club of Chicago.

CLARENCE EUGENE ABBOTT, B.S., 'OI, was a post graduate in the engineering school from 1901-1902, and took his degree as Civil Engineer in 1905. He stole the time from surveying on the Hill to undertake the position of business manager of the 1901 Badger. He says he still remembers well the effort he expended in compiling it. After graduation he held positions in Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Missouri, as a mining engineer In 1906 he became Chief Engineer, Iron Mines and Quarries, with the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company, located at Bessemer, Alabama. In 1910 he rose to General Superintendent Iron Mines and Quarries, the position he now holds. He is operating eleven red ore mines, two brown ore mines, and two quarries, producing 3,500,000 tons of raw materials a year. For recreation Mr. Abbott hunts and fishes. He won the Nipigon Silver trophy for largest brook trout (weighty1bs, 9 cu) caught in Nipigon waters, Canada, for the season of 1922.

CHARLES FREDERICK BURGESS, B.S., '95, E.E., '97 President, The C. F. Burgess Laboratories

A student at Wisconsin, then instructor and professor, then head of the department of electro-chemistry and chemical engineering, where he made experiments in producing a few dry batteries—then, more than twenty years later, as president of a great manufacturing organization, which had its inception in those same dry batteries, placing a full page advertisment in the Badger—this is a brief recital of the career of Mr. Burgess.

It is a striking example, too, of the relation between the university and the life of the state, for from that advertisement we learn that the original half-dozen dry batteries have now multiplied to over fifty million annually, and that in the Burgess factories, covering a quarter of a million feet of floor space, many other Wisconsin graduates are spreading the fame of Wisconsin products to every corner of the earth.

Mr. Burgess organized the department of chemical engineering at Wisconsin in 1900. He has invented and developed many electrolytic processes, and was retained in the investigation of iron and iron alloys for Carnegie Institute for several years after 1904.

He was a member of the International Jury of Awards at the St. Louis Exposition, 1904; is a member and ex-president of the American Electrochemical society and a member of other scientific societies; and a contributor to many engineering publications.

In 1912 he resigned to investigate water power projects in British Columbia for Pacific coast capitalists. In 1914, the breaking of the World War in Europe bringing reliable promotion on foreign soil to an end, Mr. Remp returned to his home at Port Angeles, Washington, was elected County Engineer and took up the work of supplanting the old wagon roads and foot trails of the Olympic Mountains with up-to-date highways.

During the past seven years he has been associated with the Dravo Contracting company of Pittsburgh, as engineer, superintendent of erection, and superintendent of construction.

This outline of service has involved the design and supervision of bridges, dams, docks, buildings, highways, mines, railroads, steel mills, tunnels, and other projects of varying size and hazard. Mr. Remp is now engaged in building the worlds' greatest ore dock at Conneaut, Ohio.

THE COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE

YOU who have chosen agriculture have selected a field of service which is today perhaps more than ever calling for intelligent and constructive leadership. Within the span of a generation there has been a great increase in the complexities of the relationships of this industry which is of such vital importance to the life of the nation. More than ever before, agriculture and the rest of society are becoming interdependent, and as specialization progresses the planless farmers who, from virgin soils, made a living by haphazard methods, must become constantly fewer.

If agriculture is to retain its place in the sphere of things, it must advance with other industries. An improved methodology and intelligent diversification have done much for the industry in Wisconsin. By doing well the things we were best fitted to do, we have developed a system of agriculture which has stood well the test of time and we have escaped most of the reverses common to many of the less diversified regions.

Mere success in the practical sense is, however, not enough in our agriculture. Our achievements avail us little unless they lead to happier homes, better citizenship, and more perfect living. To combine efficient production and proper distribution with a socially richer rural life should be the goal of our efforts, and most certainly this is within reach of men and women who are carried forward, upward, and onward by the Wisconsin spirit.

the University of Wisconsin since 1907.
Received his B.S. degree at the University of Wisconsin in 1888; M.S. 1890; Ph.D. Johns Hopkins University 1892; post graduate studies at Berlin University, Pasteur Institute, Paris; Zoological Institute, Naples.
Director of Wisconsin State Hygienic Laboratory, 1903-8. Appointed member of U. S. Food Administration, 1918.
Author of a number of Agriculture.

H. L. Russell

Laboratory of Agricultural Experiment Station, 37 South Hall, 1890

L IKE its sister colleges and divisions the College of Agriculture had modest beginnings as a branch of the liberal arts instruction of the earlier times. The first instruction in agriculture was given in South Hall where budding journalists now hammer away at typewriter keys entirely forgetful of the ghosts of husbandry terminology that flit about the room. Rooms in this building were the only ones available until the erection of the Dairy building in 1892 which immediately became the "over-the hill" headquarters of the department.

Following the removal to this end of the campus in the '90s the growth of the college may be traced by the erection of other buildings. The Soils building was completed in 1894; this was succeeded by Agricultural Hall in 1902; Agricultural Engineering building 1907; Agronomy building 1907; Stock Pavillion 1908; Horticulture building 1911; and the Agricultural Chemistry and Home Economics buildings in 1913.

The first graduate in agriculture received his degree in 1879 and the second one came four years later. For several years there were only one and two members in each graduating class but the later growth of the college has been much more rapid. The enrollment for this year is 969 and the instructional staff numbers 166.

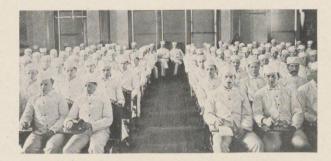

Unlike the majority of states Wisconsin's agricultural college is a part of the state university. The general practice is to have a separate institution but the facilities here and the location in the capital city make the present arrangement more desirable.

The college's part in the building of a greater Wisconsin is expressed in its three-fold aim: To give instruction to students at the university; to develop science through investigation and experiment; to disseminate information among farmers and farm women of the state.

The fulfillment of this aim measures the state's progress in the oldest art.

HARRY LUMEN RUSSELL, B.S., '88 Dean of the College of Agriculture

The College of Agriculture at Wisconsin has had just two deans since it was founded some four decades ago. Mr. Russell has been acting in this capacity for the past sixteen

After his graduation from Wisconsin Dean Russell studied bacteriology at Pasteur Institute, France, and in other foreign countries. He is among the American pioneers in agricultural bacteriology and was influential in introducing the tuberculin test among herds of this continent. He is also a pioneer in the pasteurization of milk and cream for he introduced this process into America. He also established the first course in general science of bacteriology given in America.

The canning industry of America owes to Dean Russell's discoveries the scope of the business today; Mr. Russell perfected the method of preserving by sterilization. He is the author of many scientific papers and books.

Since her graduation, Miss Taylor has spent a busy eight years, putting to a practical application her courses in home economics.

From 1917-1920 she acted as research assistant in the department of pathology and bacteriology at the University of Iowa, and as bacteriologist in the laboratories of the Iowa state board of health. In 1920 she

THE outlook for students of law about to enter upon their career at the bar is unusually promising. As a result of the rapidly increasing complexity of our economic system, and the extention of governmental control and regulation, many new avenues for a successful and useful life are open to persons with legal training which were unknown a decade ago. The bar as a whole is being aroused as never before to an appreciation of its duties to the public. The rapid growth of the American Bar Association; the increasing activities of state and local bar associations; the almost unanimous stand taken by the American Bar Association in favor of high standards both in legal and prelegal education; the wide and active interest of leading members of the bench and bar in the American Law Institute's task of restating and simplifying the law to make it more responsive to present day needs, all is earnest of a new ara and rededication of the bar to unselfish public service.

Young men and women who come to the bar at this time with character, training and ability have every reason to anticipate a successful career, and an opportunity to play an important part in making their profession meet the high demands of modern society.

THE LAW SCHOOL at Wisconsin began in 1886 with eleven students who met in the old state Capitol building. Accommodations varied with the condition of business in the capitol; during the sessions of legislature or at other times of congestion classes were relegated to temporary quarters in the basement or to rooms in various buildings around the square.

The professors were all practicing lawyers in Madison, who conducted classes as a kind of side-line to their regular practice. One professor gave lectures and held recitations on one phase of legal training for an hour or two each week; another professor took up another phase the following day, and so on. The first faculty included J. H. Carpenter, William F. Vilas, Judge Orton, and Phillip L. Spooner; three of these men afterwards served the Law School as deans.

The course was one year in length. In addition to their class room work, most of the students worked in law offices, thus gaining experience and defraying part of their college expenses.

In 1885 the course was lengthened to two years, and John M. Olin, Arthur L. Sanborn, Robert M. Bashford, and Burr W. Jones were added to the faculty. All were graduates of former law classes and each was destined to a brilliant legal career; Burr W. Jones, present Justice of the Wisconsin Supreme court, completed in 1915 his thirtieth year on the faculty of the Wisconsin law school.

The Law School continued to hold its classes in the state capitol until the completion, in 1893, of the present Law building. Even this building was not occupied exclusively by the lawyers in the early days; the state architect and other officials had quarters in it. Extensive alterations have been made from time, to time, particularly in the law library and lecture room during 1905-6.

The present instructional staff of the Law School includes 7 professors and 3 lecturers. The enrollment for the current year is 239. The present course requires three years of resident study and six months of approved office practice for completion; and two years of college training are required for admission.

THE MEDICAL SCHOOL

THE State of Wisconsin General Hospital is nearing completion and makes an imposing addition to the buildings on the university campus. It is a fitting monument to the Wisconsin spirit of public service. It represents, on the one hand, a tribute to those citizens of the state who served the nation in fighting for peace, and, on the other hand, an instrument for use in the warfare that must be constantly waged against disease.

It will offer opportunity to restore to health, or increased efficiency, many who now lack adequate resources. It will serve as a training school for physicians who, as private practitioners, carry the main burden in the fight against disease, and for nurses whose services in this fight are indispensable.

It should serve as a center to which we may look for additions to the knowledge of how to prevent and treat disease. We expect to see the hospital opened for the care of patients by the beginning of the next college year and sufficiently organized to be of value in training in the care of the sick the following year.

The third year of the medical course should be begun in 1925, the fourth year in 1926. The original charter of the university included a medical school among its provisions. Over three-fourths of a century will have elapsed before a complete medical course is established and full training is offered in one of the most useful and unselfish of human services.

The Wisconsin Memorial Hospital

THE WORK of the Medical School may be said to have begun in 1903, when the north half of the fifth floor of Science Hall was equipped for the study of human anatomy, and courses in histology and embryology were given by Drs. C. R. Bardeen and W. S. Miller in rooms on the fourth floor.

When organized in 1907, several departments of the Medical School were quartered in other buildings. For a time South Hall, the birthplace of many departments including the College of Agriculture, housed pathology and bacteriology courses, and physiology and physiological chemistry were taught in the attic of the Chemical Engineering building.

Upon the completion of the Biology building, 1910, and Sterling Hall, 1916, other departments moved out of Science Hall, leaving more room for the expansion of the newest branch of specialized education. At present the department of geology is the only other department having quarters in Science Hall.

Enrollment in the Medical School has varied from 7 in the first class to 156 for the current year; of these 91 are first year, and 65 second year students. Beginning in the fall of 1925 the full four-year course will be offered at Wisconsin.

Following an epidemic of typhoid fever in 1909 the new department assumed the responsibility for the supervision of student health, and the work carried on at the clinic and the university infirmary in giving medical aid, advice, and hospital care to the students is of equal importance with the work of instruction.

The efficient handling of the health of the university family is the result of a policy "embracing the study and care of the health of the community as a whole, including the hygiene of the environment and the study and care of the health of students as individuals both immediate and in relation to their future."

Upon the completion of the Wisconsin Memorial Hospital, to be ready for occupancy during the fall of 1924, the clinical and laboratory facilities necessary to a four-year medical course at Wisconsin will be at hand, and the staff is already making preparations to utilize to the full this long-desired opportunity for enhanced usefulness to the students of medicine, and to the state.

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL

THE Graduate School aims to serve the needs of men and women of college training or equivalent attainment who desire a larger and more thorough acquaintance with the scholarship and research of the world than can be obtained in the current undergraduate course. It seeks to awaken in the minds of capable men and women an appreciation for high scholarship, research, and the advancement of learning, to the end that they may effectively aid not only in the promulgation of academic instruction, but also in extending the boundaries of knowledge.

In the Graduate School special emphasis is laid on bringing the graduate student into contact with the research problems of his field of study. To this end able students share in the investigations of their instructors and are encouraged to acquire the spirit as well as the methods of productive work.

C. S. SLICHTER

Charles Sumner Slichter, Dean of the Graduate School, came to Wisconsin as an assistant professor of Mathematics thirty-eight years ago. He became professor of Applied Mathematics in 1892 and today is recognized nationally as an authority on the movements of underground waters. He has served as consulting engineer of the United States Recalmation Service, in charge of investigations of underground waters and is the author of many books on the same subject.

Whether the Truth lies hid beneath the microscope's lens,-

Or in the heaven-searching eye of the telescope,-

Or in the creative vats and beaker of the chemist's laboratory,-

GATHERING about itself the Youth of the age, the University transmits to the Present and the Future the treasures of past learning. This is its obvious function. But beneath the stream of curricular activity, runs a deeper and a subtler current; for—the University, besides imparting knowledge to undergraduates, is seeking constantly to extend boundaries of that knowledge. Silently, all about us, in laboratories and libraries, earnest minds are seeking to wrest from Nature new secrets, seeking to lead us nearer to the Great Mystery.

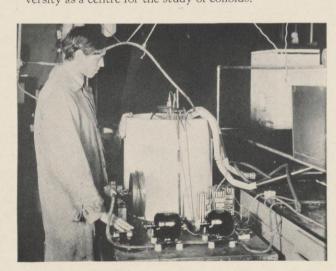

Professor Michael F. Guyer, whose research studies on the inheritance of induced changes in animals has attracted the attention of biologists and medical men all over the world, is head of the Biology Department of Wisconsin. By experiments with rabbits and rats Professor Guyer has demonstrated that animals will build antibodies against their own injured tissues. This discovery has opened vast possibilities in a field which touches human happine's very closely.

Professor Louis Kahlenberg's studies on solutions, electrolysis, osmosis, and more recently, on celluloses, and the keratins, have been most significant.

During the last year he has made advances in the separation of crystalloids from one another by dialysis. In the same period, with the assistance of Dr. Edward Ochsner, he has developed a colloidal gold solution which is superior to X-ray and radium in the therapy of cancer. Professor Kahlenberg's work has attracted students in chemistry to Wisconsin from many quarters of the globe, and has made Wisconsin a center for chemical research.

During the past year, Professor Stebbins announced to the American Astronomical Society his discovery of several new variable stars. The material improvements he has made in the mounting of the telescope, and the new photometer which he has acquired for the University have opened new avenues for astronomical research in Washburn observatory.

The Svedberg, of the ancient University of Upsala, Sweden, who spent the second semester of the year 1922/3 as resident professor at the University of Wisconsin, is the world's foremost authority on the formation and properties of colloids. Professor Svedberg brought to his department at Wisconsin a fresh scholarship and a new technique, and the results of his inspiring work are already to be seen in a growing disposition to look to this University as a centre for the study of colloids.

These men seek it-following the Gleam.

"I am teaching English in Bridgman Academy, Peking," writes Mrss Kelley, who is in Wisconsin at the present time; "a mission school of high school grade for girls. My work is not English literature, but English language, similar to beginning work in French or Spanish here. The number of high schools for girls in China is still very limited, and those that give a four year course preparing for college are very few indeed, so Bridgman academy helps to fill a very real need. We are just starting the Junior High School plan, and expect after another year to have the six years of the Junior and Senior high schools. There are one hundred and sixty pupils enrolled this year, about half of them living in Peking, and the others coming from places far and near. We are not only trying to give our Chinese girls a good high school education, but to help them to develop strong Christian characters and to inspire them with a real desire for service.

Miss Kelly expects to return to China in 1924 and she says that she will be ready and glad to feturn to her work and her Chinese girls when the time comes.

The Class of 1924

"Watch '24"

ITH the opening of the 1923–1924 academic year at Wisconsin, a new feeling of activity and desire for service was born into the senior class of 1924. Not only was this activity manifest in the expressions of many individual members but it was clearly demonstrated by the unceasing effort of the entire class body. Friends of the university who had observed student affairs through a span of many years have repeatedly remarked that the spirit of the class of 1924 has been one of the most gratifying changes toward the development of Wisconsin and group consciousness which has come out of the student body in years.

Specifically, many things can be attributed to the work of the class of 1924. The enthusiasm for Wisconsin athletic traditions which grew up during the football season and reached a climax in the return of the "red wagon days" when the entire student body escorted its teams to the stations before every game, was the achievement of senior leaders; leaders who did their work inconspicuously, but yet inspired the entire university. The same senior leaders and their followers were in a great measure responsible for the Founder's Day celebration, one of the most glorious things in the seventy-five years of Badger history. On March 26, the men of the senior class held a stag banquet, which proved again the belief that there was a decided class consciousness in the class of 1924. The idea met with such cooperation that several informal "senior sings" on the campus have been planned for spring evenings.

All this activity went unnamed and undescribed until late in the spring when the seniors took upon themselves the responsibility of having every senior a life member of the Memorial Union before he left Wisconsin. Out of the campaign of the seniors which has run and organized by themselves and was inspired "within" rather than superimposed by an official committee or body, arose the slogan "Watch '24." Finally a commencement program has been worked out, which while essentially the same as that of other years, has infinitely more class enthusiasm and cooperation about it, so that "Watch '24" undoubtedly will become a byword of the class and for the university for many years to come.

Walter A. Frautschi, President.

The Class of 1925

Out of the Junior Class of 1924 have emerged many leaders in all the fields of activity—of these leaders, the class is unusually proud because of their numerous and diversified achievements.

To stand stronger for a true spirit of Wisconsin, to carry on next year with augmented effort for a bigger and better university, to continue this spirit in after years: these are the aims of the class of 1025.

A committee of 14 members has been chosen by the class for the purpose of formulating class policies. The personnel of this committee is representative of all the departments and colleges in the university. It meets whenever there is need for unified class action on any matter pertinent to the Junior class.

The Class of 1926

THE CLASS of 1926 was the first class in the history of the University to voluntarily carry out the established traditions of the school. When it was no longer compulsory to do so more freshmen wore green caps last year than ever before.

This year we are not in a position to enforce actual observance of such traditions by the class of 1927, but it may be said that we have done and are doing all that is possible to foster a true Wisconsin spirit.

An appeal has been made to this year's freshmen class, which we hope will be passed on to future classes to observe all class traditions not because of any desire for hazing, but rather as an effectual way of showing that Wisconsin men are proud of being Wisconsin men, and are willing to show enthusiasm for the university through loyalty to their classes.

The Class of 1927

THE CLASS of 1927 plunged into the plans for the year with a vigor and co-operation of its members, chairmen, and officers befitting the finest kind of a freshmen class; and although its progress has been hindered by the loss of four of its officers, the activities have been carried forward by efficient chairmen and committees.

While it has done nothing miraculous, it has succeeded in its determination to be recognized as an organization. With such spirit as has been shown, this new class should do great things in another year.

UNIVERSITY EXTENSION DIVISION

The State Its Campus

It has become the duty of the University to reinterpret knowledge for the ends of practice and to convey learning so reinterpreted to the people in such a way as to make it immediately effective in life.

E. A. Biye

University Extension, that department of the university which gives educational opportunities and other assistance to those who are already engaged in some form of life work, or for any reason are unable to come to the institution, is frequently misunderstood by the student in residence. In common with many others he believes the field of its service to include little beyond vocational education for workers and credit courses for persons who plan to take some part of their academic studies at home. As a matter of fact it should be recognized, first, that the courses chosen by workers are increasingly cultural, non-vocational, and advocational in type, and second, that the student credit courses, though extremely important, consititute but one of many phases of the work.

Louis Erhard Reber, Dean of the ExtensionDivision since 1907, has brought into realization the dream of making "the boundaries of the state the campus fence," Through the instrumentality of University Extension service, he has brought within reach of every citizen in the state the resources of the state University. He is recognized as one of America's foremost educators, and served as director of the Army Educational Corps during the war.

Briefly stated, University Extension includes in addition to correspondence-study and day and evening Extension classes, the preparation and publication of lesson texts; aids in debating and public discussion aiming to stimulate interest in current problems and supplying material for study; assistance in community development by organizing for recreation, for creative expression through music and drama, for close relations between school and home, and many activities helpful to the social life of a neighborhood; provisions for lectures, concerts, and other entertainments, either singly or in courses; municipal information by interview or letter if to be applied locally, and by bulletins, if of general interest; visual instruction through slides and films for educational and entertainment use, carefully selected with a view to elevating standards, available by direct or routed service; postgraduate medical instruction within reach of the practicing physician; courses of lectures and bulletins of value to commercial and industrial firms; the interpretation and dissemination of technical knowledge, otherwise remote and not in assimilable form, to persons who need and can apply it in their daily occupations, and other similar services.

The Extension field staff links the state to the University through the service it carries to the farthest boundaries of Wisconsin.

Milwaukee District office has its own faculty and facilities enabling it to conduct both day and night classes.

Assistance to Public Discussion

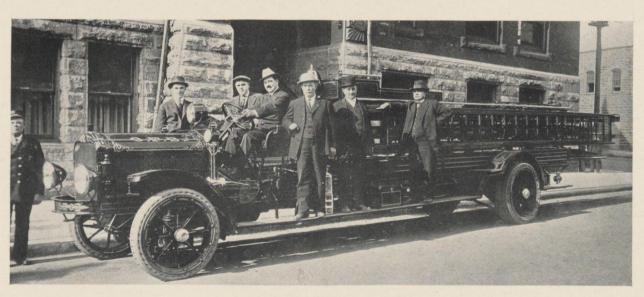

Community Music and Drama

The enumeration is necessarily incomplete, but is sufficiently inclusive to remove effectively from University Extension the stigma of the criticism so often heard that education fails to effect a vital connection between knowledge and the people's lives and deepest interests.

Education through University Extension presents a method by which the service is sought by the recipient rather than forced upon him by any outside compulsion, and therefore stands a strong chance, at least, of relating itself to the fundamental problems and interests of his life. Proof of the justification of such a claim may be seen in the growing demand for the enrichment of adult existence by the spread of such opportunities as the University is equipped to give, for pleasurable and profitable study in other than work hours. This demand voices a challenge both to the University and to the people. The resident student and alumnus of Wisconsin especially are in a position to meet this challenge by informing themselves regarding the needs and possibilities of this function of their Alma Mater and by spreading the knowledge gained to others.

Municipal Information Service

the symbol of a new bond of loyalty between all who go to make up the university family—faculty, student body, and alumni—comes a new opportunity to the University Extension Division.

This opportunity is nothing less than utilizing the University radio station to bring a vivid knowledge of the real life of the University to the thousands all over the continent who make up the invisible but none the less appreciative radio audience.

This phase of Extension Division work started with the broadcasting of occasional concerts and lectures; but its newest project is a definite cooperation with administrative and student interests so that every activity of the university which can possibly be presented by word or sound will be included in a well-rounded program.

This means that Haresfoot productions, the concerts of the University Glee Club and Bands, the productions of the dramatic organizations, the work of the debating societies, the publications, the progress and the cheering at the athletic games, and in fact every side of University life, will be "as close as your radio receiver."

The ambition at the inception of the Extension Division, to "make the boundaries of the state the campus fence," is now—with the radio reaching from Alaska to the Gulf and far out to the Hawaiian Islands—a prophecy more than fulfilled. The newest development will bring to those distant from the University not only those practical values it has to offer through the printed page, but also those intangible day-by-day happenings which give to University life a richness beyond that contained in books.

SCOTT HOLLAND GOODNIGHT

Scott Holland Goodnight left the chair of Professor of Modern Languages, Eureka College, Illinois, to take his Doctor's Degree at Wisconsin in 1907; and then he went abroad to study at the University of Leipzig. In 1917 he returned to Wisconsin as Assistant Professor of German, and in 1912 was advanced to the Associate Professorship. "Scotty," in addition to his duties as a teacher, has been Dean of Men since 1916, and has successfully directed the Summer Session since 1911, till it has become one of the greatest in America.

THE SUMMER SESSION

S ALMA MATER celebrates her Diamond Jubilee, her 1 daughter, Summer Session, has just rounded out a quarter of a century of existence. Like all Wisconsin girls, she has grown rapidly in grace and stature, and Mother begins to be beset by grave fears, lest Daughter should eventually outrival her in size, if not in prestige. In her first twenty-five years of growth, the child has reached proportions which the mother had hardly attained in sixty-five.

Daughter realizes fully, however, that it is her maternal heritage which has enabled her to do so well. Without Mother's magnificent home environment in which to develop, without her beneficent oversight and care, without her inheritance of academic prestige, Daughter would never have been able to make a place for herself in the world.

As it is, Daughter holds her head up right proudly. Of other academic daughters, only Columbia, Chicago and California, whose homes overlook seas or a great lake, out-rank her in size. She towers above the remaining state university daughters, as well as above Harvard, Pennsylvania and Cornell.

Nor is her pride solely in numbers. Her work is of precisely the same quality and the same academic value as that done by Mother, and it is inferior to none. She now graduates large classes every summer, confers all academic degrees, and covers the entire field of University work.

It is a gracious and greatly appreciated compliment which the 1925 Badger, striking out boldly from the beaten path of former books, pays to the Summer Session by giving it an illustrated section in its pages.

Summer Session

SUMMER Sessions are distinctly a modern development. A quarter of a century ago, all American schools, including colleges and Universities, were virtually deserted in the summer months from early June on. This was a tradition inherited from the distinctly agricultural period of our country's development. In those days son John and daughter Mary might be spared to go to college in fall, winter, and even spring, but in the busy summer season, their presence at home on the farm was an imperative necessity.

It was the high school teachers who first started the summer session ball rolling. They wanted to make use of the long summer vacations to improve themselves for their work. They began to drift back to the old college campus to work in the well-stocked library; they wanted to know whether they might not make use of some of the laboratory facilities, lying almost wholly idle; and finally they began to wonder whether they might not get some credit toward the degree they were seeking for work done on the college campus.

Twenty-five years ago this demand became so noticable at Wisconsin that steps were taken to meet it. Review and study courses were begun, and credit given for them. About a hundred teachers attended at first, but the attendance increased steadily. Then students who were not teachers began to ask for the privilege, and the summer session came into being.

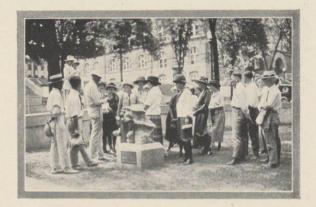

All the tents in the tentcolony are filled by families combining University work with a vacation in the open

"These Indian mounds around Madison" said Mr. Brown to the company, as they sat before him on the great thunder bird mound on Hospital grounds, "are the remains of a typical pre-historic Winnebago village from 500 to 1,000 years old. Wherever there is found a group of the very numerous mounds to be found in Southern Wisconsin and Northern Illinois, you may know that in that place the Indians built their teepees, and held their council fires.

"The earliest Wisconsin Indian tribes," continued Mr. Brown,

"The earliest Wisconsin Indian tribes," continued Mr. Brown, "were divided into clans or gens that went by the names of different animals. Each clan recognized its animal as its patron because it was in some intimate way connected with the clan ancestor. They held their animal totem as sacred, refusing to eat its flesh and worshipping it at all times. It was only natural, then, that they should come in the course of time to erect earthern effigies of their chosen animal, that it might be ever in their sight and protect their villages. There are bear, eagle, panther, deer, fish, serpents, turtle and other effigy mounds in this locality, and very near each other. The fact that so many different clans built their effigies so close together indicates that they must have been on friendly terms.

The Thunder-bird mound on the State Hospital grounds is the finest and largest of the bird type in Wisconsin. It is 120 feet long, 7 feet high and has a wing spread of 624 feet from tip to tip. It lies with its head toward the lake, and its wings outstretched as if in flight. There is a smaller bird on each side of the large one, and examples of each of the other effigy types on the lawn, besides many conical and liniear mounds.

Wisconsin attracts a great number of those who give preference to a more quiet and more picturesque environment, for this institution enjoys very unusual advantages in all respects except that of metropolitan equipment. Its reputation for sound scholastic work and its ability—thanks to its administration and its Regents—to retain the services of its ablest staff members during the session, and its ideal climate in the summer months make it a favorite place of study.

Over half the total number of students enrolled are teachers, superintendents, and principals, who come here for serious work, and the unfortunate flunker who comes back to make up his delinquencies in a liesurely manner, meets a competition in the classroom which either brings out the best that is in him or makes him give up the chase.

But the flunker is necessary as one of the elements in the most cosmopolitan student body that ever assembles on the campus. The Session brings the most extreme types together, and incidentally makes summer teaching the most arduous that the faculty has to do. The dignified teachers and superintendents are there, both those who have grown grey in the service, and those who have just entered; teachers of every age and condition are present, but all characterized by an insatiable thirst for work and unshakable determination to get out of their sojourn atthe University every bit of training possible.

There are graduate students who are straining every nerve to complete a dissertation or prepare for a final; undergraduates of Phi Beta calibre; there are gay little social butterflies who find the University social life more attractive than that of the more prosaic summer resort; smartly dressed young bloods from Eastern colleges who come to impress the provincial westerners with their charms and accomplishments, and incidentally to remove a couple of flunks which are causing them embarrassment at Harvard. It is altogether a varied assortment of individuals and of interests, and the atmosphere is generally recognized as intellectually highly stimulating to all.

274 students on three big excursion boats leave Park Street for an all day trip around Lake Mendota with Curator Charles R. Brown of the State Historical Library

As an offset to the rigors of study, the University provides entertainment and recreation of various kinds. Afternoon programs of lectures, recitals, readings, and round-table discussions, covering a wide range of interest are offered daily and the attendance is usually excellent. The playgrounds, baseball fields, tennis courts, and gymnasium floors of the University provide ample room for all forms of athletic recreation. The Tuesday evening play hour is exceedingly popular, not only among teachers who are learning to supervise recreation in the schools, but also among those who are seeking diversion for its own sake. Equally popular is the Monday evening chorus, in which from 500 to 700 volunteers receive choral training and method.

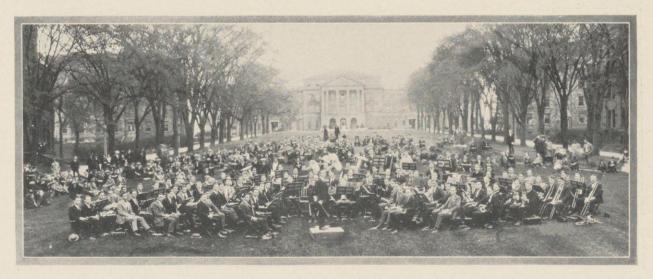

Saturday excursions are conducted to the Indian mounds and village sites on Mendota, to the Dells, and to Devil's Lake, thus affording visitors from a distance an opportunity to visit the most famous beauty spots of Wisconsin in connection with their work in the University. On Sundays the students and city pastors cooperate in a Union Vesper service in the open air theatre. As special features of the Session, a professional theatrical troupe of standing offers a series of performances of standard Idramas, and a musical artist is imported for a special recital.

Of a truth, the University campus is no longer deserted for three months during the summer. The actitivies are so many and varied that to keep them from conflicting with each other is now no small task. The Hill teems with life just as actively in July as in January, and the great work of education continues at the Varsity almost uninterruptedly.

One of the characteristics of the summer session student body is the enthusiastic support which it accords to music and plays—as though many teachers from smaller communities were eager to make up in the summer for the dearth of such opportunities during the teaching year.

This was shown not only in the audiences which attended all the plays and concerts which were given, but also in the presentation by summer session students of "The Great Adventure."

The success of this play, which was given two evenings in Lathrop concert room, was due in large measure to the directorship of Mr. Irving Pichel, who is director of the Greek Theatre and of the associated dramatic organizations of the University of California at Berkeley; and also to the work in the leading woman's part, Janet Cannot, of Miss Charline Wackman, Wisconsin, '18.

Both of these people returned to the University after successful dramatic careers, attracted by Wisconsin's high standing in the field of dramatics and particularly by the work in that field offered under Miss Gertrude Johnson.

THE WISCONSIN OF YESTERDAY

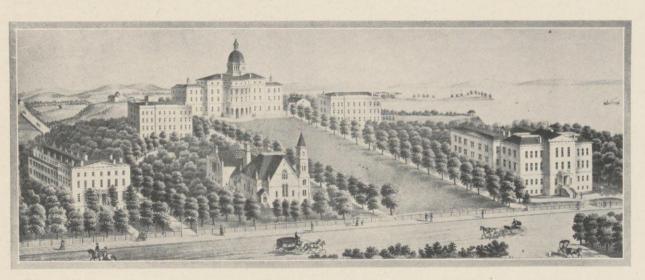

THIS University was begun upon a frontier, long ago, by sturdy men who came from far to the Wisconsin wilderness. This University was conceived in their hearts, in longing, in hope, and in courageous determination.

They began meagerly, as the straitness of their lives demanded. Their children left the plough and the virgin forests to seek here the meaning of life and the beginning of wisdom. Often, in the early days, the light of the State University flickered feebly and was in danger of being extinguished for lack of sustenance. But each time it rose again, above its trials, led by stern, determined men, armed with high ideals.

And as the forest was pushed Westward, and the harsh life of the frontier bacame softened by the amenities of civilazation, the University gained strength. The lone Hill became clothed with colleges, and the business of teaching Youth went on in greater measure as the years sped by.

Into the fabric of this institution have been woven the lives and the labors of Men who fought, dreamed, and lived only that the purpose of this school might be enlarged; that it might become a greater and ever greater influence in the lives of men and women of the state and nation.

The Wisconsin of Today, drawing its inspiration from the wells of Truth; steadfastly stands by the ideals of those early founders. Rich in achievement, confident in its strength, facing unawed those who seek to convert its greatness to their own purpose, it continues "that fearless sifting and winnowing by which alone the Truth can be found."

And the Wisconsin of Today, rising out of the Wisconsin of Yesterday, pays deep tribute to those men, whose vision, self-sacrifice, and steadfastness have made Alma Mater great

EDWARD HALL GARDNER

To Edward Hall Gardner this student generation and all generations at Wisconsin owe much. He has carried the message of the New Wisconsin to scores of cities and re-kindled the glow of loyalty in the hearts of thousands of the scattered legion of Wisconsin's sons and daughters.

To the Memorial Union campaign he has given a generous enthusiasm, a high crusading temper, a strong determination to meet Wisconsin's highest needs. His work marks a new era at Wisconsin.

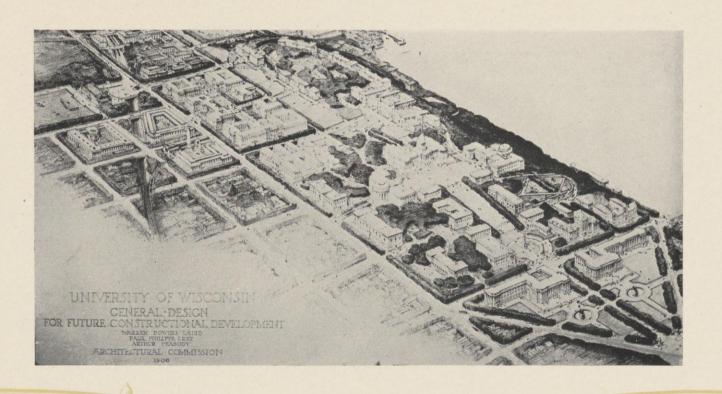

THE WISCONSIN OF TOMORROW

Out of the strength of a distinguished past, from our hopes for a glorious future, through our belief in the power for truth and service which is our university, will grow the Wisconsin of the future. And the university which will be Wisconsin tomorrow will grow around the Memorial Union.

Wisconsin with all her greatness has lacked one thing, and the need has been felt compellingly for the last ten years. When we began to count our numbers in terms of thousands rather than in hundreds, when the old boarding house gave way to the cafeteria, when our cluster of buildings on the Hill became a diversified group of colleges, the life of the student of Wisconsin underwent a change. A man no longer knew all the seniors in his graduating class, and our numbers came near to smothering much of what is precious in our college life.

The Memorial Union campaign is in a sense a crusade with the high object of again restoring to Wisconsin the old relationship between man and man. When it comes, men at Wisconsin will look at each other and know each other in a new way; our creative instincts will find a variety of new channels in the facilities provided by the Memorial Union; it will become possible for student leaders to lead a unified and homogeneous student body.

And best of all, the Memorial Union will serve as a temple of comradeship—a common ground—where a student may find and make his friends, and where an alumnus will find the Wisconsin which he remembers.

The Memorial Lounge is the true symbol of the Union building. It means hospitality, quiet and enduring, for every man who enters it. Here the student may find and meet his friends and enjoy long hours of intimate talk before a crackling fire; here the travel-weary alumnus will find the Wisconsin of his dreams and memories—the one place which is always the same, and in which he is always welcome. Here friendships will be made which will be the glory of afterlife. Here Badgers will be planned, and Proms, and deeds of high emprise.

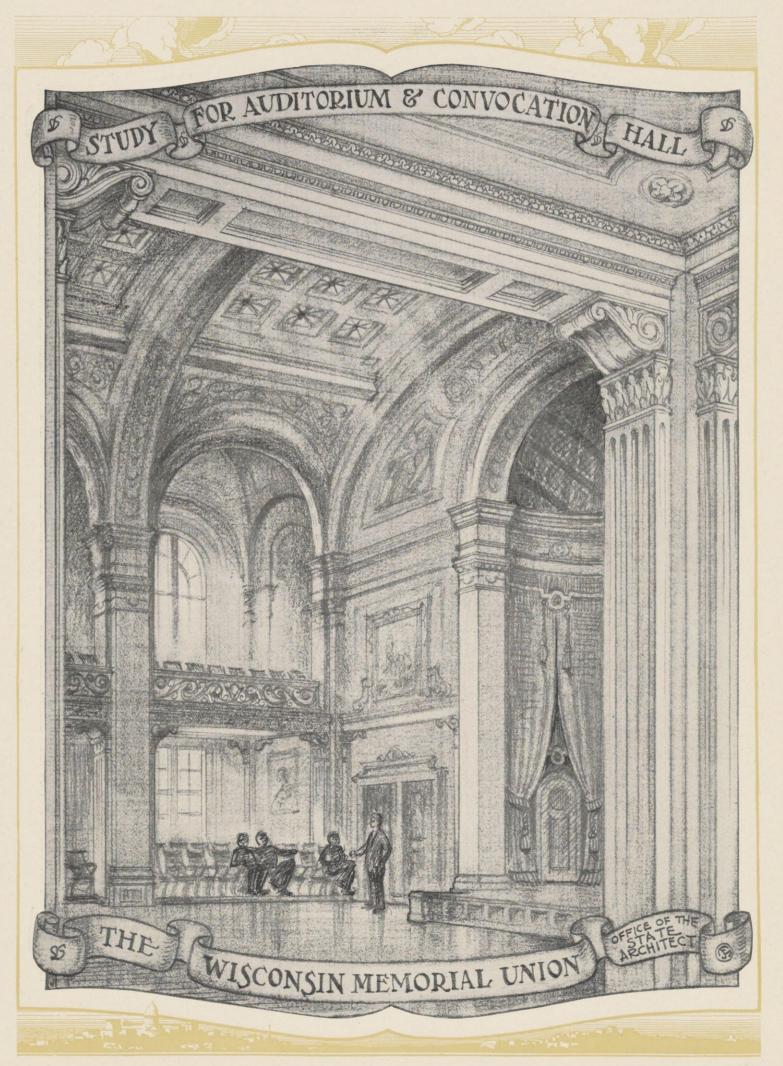

And on a table will rest the great Domesday Book which will record by classes those who have helped build the Memorial Union.

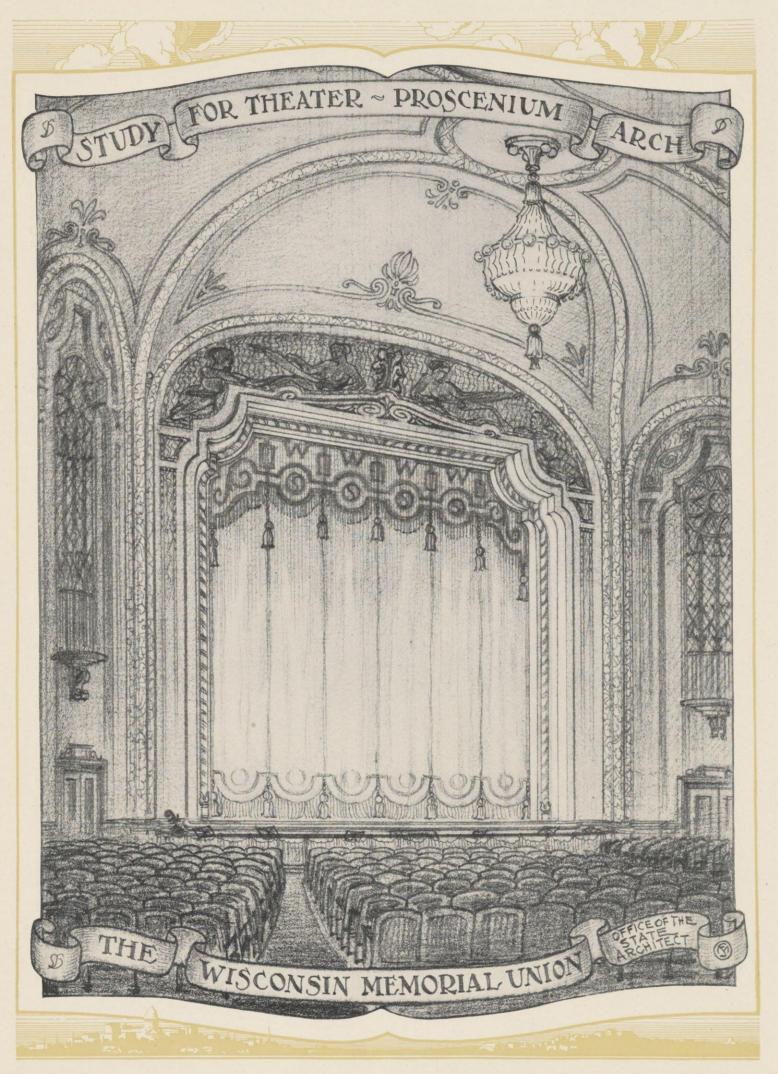

Around the tables of this great dining room, Wisconsin men will sit in merry comradeship. Here there will be good food—five hundred ringing voices in the songs—a strain of gay or thoughtful music—friends new-pledged to life-long fealty. On the raised dais famous men will eat with our good men, and tell us of their triumphs and their hopes.

And in the Auditorium we will see splendid things. Caught, perhaps, on the swelling surge of the music of a great symphony; sitting rapt before Kreisler; dancing at a brilliant Prom; or again, watching, tense and breathless, the strange gestures of a man in a red vest and bright socks—this auditorium will be a great step forward for Wisconsin.

Around this center will grow a new Wisconsin—the Wisconsin which we all hope for the future.

Professor Olson has been with Wisconsin as a member of the faculty ever since his graduation in 1884. He served in the capacity of instructor until 1887, as an assistant professor until 1892, and since then he has been professor of Scandinavian Languages and Literature. The beautiful tradition and ceremony of the Varsity Welcome is the result of Professor Olson's imagination and efforts. He originated the idea of Muir Knoll, in honor of a fellow student of Wisconsin, and acted as master of ceremonies when the knoll was dedicated. For thirty-six years, he has been in charge of Commencement Week, and so not one senior has received a sheepskin in that time who does not owe some share of gratitude to the thoughtfulness and unfailing energy of Professor Olson.

"Before me bowed as before an altar,
And I reached down and drew you to my bosom;
Proud of your reverence, and reverence returning,
But craving most your pleasure—not your awe."

A Thought on Athletics

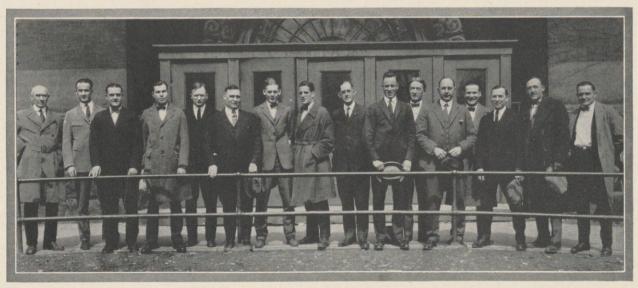

By J. F. A. Pyre

OLLEGE Athletics are play. This seems a simple enough proposition; but it is one frequently ignored. The neglect of so fundamental a theorem, by the friend or the foe of Athletics leads to very unphilosophical communing on the part of each. Thrilling, impressive, splendid as they are, College Athletics are simply the very brilliant and highly organized play of a favored group of men who, on the basis of certain mental superiorities, have been set apart by Society, reprieved for four years from the World's Work, and granted the privilege of prolonging the play time of life. Please remember this, Ye Unphilosophical. Not War, nor Religion; not even Big Business. Play!

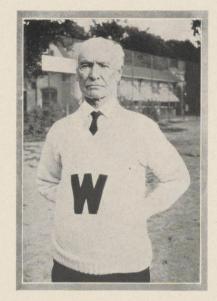

This fundamental idea may produce many reflections; here is one.

There is a relish of the boy in every healthy man; just as there is a set toward manhood in every healthy boy. The boy who is without manliness will come to nothing; and when the boy entirely dies out of a man, the man is partly defunct. The compelling spirit of boyhood is the love of play, and the commanding impulse of manhood to work. Play is activity for its own sake; work is activity directed to some ulterior end. The legitimate reward of play is sheer delight in exercise of the energy, skill, endurance, etc., involved in the activity itself. Work, in turn, has compensation proper to it. Something of the play spirit may—and should—enter into the doing of work; and, less wholesomely, the spirit and purposes of work sometimes tend to dominate play. An excess of either tendency is repugnant to our instincts. We condemn work too playfully done, calling it amateurish. We depreciate making a business of sport, and call it professionalism. True men feel something unmanly in either—something beneath the worth of manhood, and deleterious to it. Without doubt, this is a sound instinct. A man's disposition respecting work and play is an important aspect of his character. There is, then, the high cultural factor in College Athletics: the college boy being by selection a superior boy, is taught to be and is, ideally and by definition, an amateur in play. In short, this is one respect in which he learns to be, in the full sense of the word, a Man.

WALSTED, CRANE, SARLES

Wisconsin's cheer leaders under the direction of Ezra Crane, '24, have labored cheerfully to forward the ever-present and ever-increasing "On Wisconsin" spirit in its athletic competition.

Imbued with that spirit they have led thousands to believe in the "On Wisconsin" ideal

The "W" Club is an active organization of "W" men who are in the university at present. The club is similar to letter organizations in other Big Ten universities, cooperating with the nationwide "W" club composed of all letter winners.

Gustav K. Tebell

THE highest honor Wisconsin can bestow upon its athlete-scholar is the Intercollegiate Conference Medal. Last Spring this honor was awarded to Gustav K. Tebell, capta in ofthe 1923 basketball team, and winner of seven "W"s in major sports.

The medal is given each year in each of the Big Ten institutions to the student with the highest rating in scholarship and athletic activity. Tebell was selected for the medal by the faculty and Athletic Council out of nine athletes recommended.

Tebell's scholastic average was 82.55. This average includes marks acquired in the Course in Commerce.

While attending the university, Tebell won seven "W"s. He played end for three years on the varsity football team, and guard in basketball on two championship teams. He was captain of the 1923 championship team. He also played in the outfield on the baseball varsity nine.

Tebell was selected almost unanimously for all-conference end and all-conference basketball guard.

The awarding of the Conference Medal was begun in 1915, and since that time it has served as a means of inspiring athletes to better scholastic work.

Tebell is an example who indicates that athletes can be scholars as well. Although Wisconsin maintains rigid scholastic eligibility standards, few athletes are kept out of competition because of low grades. Wisconsin is one of the leaders in demanding excellent scholarship from her athletes.

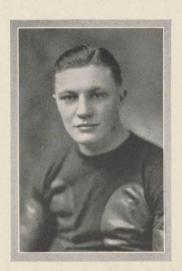

Comes now the band, the gals, the Fur-coats, the Blythe old grads and the trembling undergrads—banners and arm-bands—heigh-ho—oh yes—!—and the team—

When Coach "Jack" Ryan, former Dartmouth star and mentor, made his first call for varsity football candidates last fall Wisconsin's hopes ran high. The entire student body got behind Coach Ryan with the "On Wisconsin" spirit at its highest pitch—expressed in demonstrations by the student body on the campus, at pep meetings, on the practice field, in the stadium during games, and after games on foreign fields when the team came home—victor or vanquished alike.

The spirit of Wisconsin moves ahead—it is something which imbeds itself into the hearts of students and alumni as well—

For the first time in the history of Wisconsin athletics an organization is functioning to bind together all winners of "W"s—a movement which will spread the spirit and teachings of Wisconsin to all corners of the world.

Over fifty-five "W" men met in Madison recently for the furtherance of this aim. It is the hope and purpose of this organization to foster and promote the general welfare of the university and its athletics in particular, to serve as a medium for the dissemination of information concerning Wisconsin athletics among its members and others interested, to act as spokesman of Wisconsin "W" men, to serve as a point of contact for negotiation with the various governing bodies of the university, to promote a feeling of fellowship among the men who through past athletic service are staunch supporters of the university, and to promote and develop generally the athletic prestige of Wisconsin.

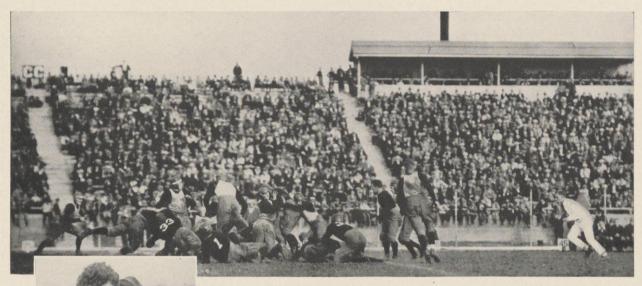

A new movement—a furtherence of "On Wisconsin."

Wisconsin's football season opened at Camp Randall when the Coe college eleven faced the newly-built Badger machine under Coach Ryan on October 6. Contrary to the dope, the little Iowa eleven had a real football team and held an early advantage of 3-0 over our team until the end of the half. In the second half the Cardinal wearers proved formidable, and succeeded in putting over a touchdown. Championship form was lacking, but Badger backers were confident.

Hopes for a winning team became brighter a week later when the Michigan Aggies were encountered on Camp Randall in the second preliminary game of the season. Starting slowly and seemingly hopeless during the first quarter, the Badger machine pounded its way to three touchdowns over the Aggie team. The team was greatly improved on its offensive and defensive play, and showed the effects of concentrated effort and coaching.

Bent upon victory in the first conference struggle of the season, Wisconsin's Badgers unleashed an attack upon Indiana that could not be stopped. Four minutes after the kickoff, the Badgers marched down the field for the first touchdown, only to repeat time and time again, until the score stood 52-0,—the highest score made during the entire 1923 season. All of Indiana's efforts to stem the flood of gains by the fast Badger backfield were unsuccessful. Wisconsin had established her reputation in conference circles under a new coach.

A shrill blast of the train whistle announced the homecoming of the squad the next morning. Over 3,000 students were there waiting to show their reaction and faith in the team's victory. Bands played, yells and skyrockets filled the air, while fifty numeral men towed the cardinal honor wagon, laden with the squad, to the lower campus a mile away. "The On Wisconsin" spirit prevailed —it triumphed.

Wisconsin-0 Minnesota-0 Homecoming

Homecoming, with its usual thrills for the thousands of Alumni and students, came to a climax at two o'clock, when the strong Minnesota team ran onto Camp

Randall bent upon dampening the Badger's title aspirations.

Thirty-six thousand people—a gay, colorful throng filled the stands; above the crowd ballons floated and banners waved. A multitude, already hoarse, rose to its feet when the band filled the air with strains of "Varsity," and bedlam broke loose when the referee's shrill whistle announced the kickoff.

Fresh from a win over Indiana the week previous, the Badgers started out with a crushing line attack, only to be stopped by the doughty Minnesota line. The ball changed hands—Minnesota could do no better—Wisconsin stopped everything. Several times a player got loose for a good run, but the field, made heavy by a drizzle the night before, hampered him. The first half ended, o-o.

At the second half the Badgers, realizing the strength of the Gophers, set out with an added vigor, only to be stopped when yardage seemed hopeful. Every inch of ground was desperately contested in this battle of history. All through the game neither goal was in danger. It was a tie game—neither team had the advantage over the other—the game ended a victory and yet a loss to both teams.

The Tale of a Hard Fought Battle

That "On Wisconsin, Fight" would not die

Wisconsin-0 Illinois-10

A rousing send-off by thousands of students and towns-people, a determination to stop Grange, sensational Illini halfback, the loss of Gerber through conference protest, and a mighty will to keep a clean slate, sent the Badgers off to the Illinois field.

A sunny day, wafted by cool breezes greeted the Badgers as they strode on the Illini field. The Illinois students displayed all their colorful antics and spirit—their band formed the "I" and the "W"—the game started.

The Badgers, sincerely respected, plowed through the strong Illinois team at will for 32 yards at the start. There they stopped—Illinois's ball. Through the excellent playing of Grange the Illinois team went down the field to a touchdown. The Badgers could not cope successfully with the strong Illini attack.

In the second half Grange was taken out of the game. Wisconsin started fast again, but was stopped by the superiority of the Illinois line. Britton booted a field goal that clinched the game for the Suckers, and darkened the Badger's hopes.

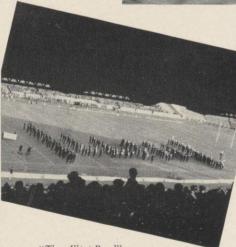

A game chock full of hard fighting against odds, and without the services of a star linesman—that spelled Wisconsin's lot.

Wisconsin-3 Michigan-6

"On Wisconsin" spirit rose to its highest the week before the Michigan game. Enthusiasm reigned everywhere—shop windows, automobiles, sidewalks were painted bearing the "Beat Michigan" slogan. The team was on edge to battle the strong Michigan team, conference contenders.

Fans had expected the highly touted Michigan stars to run their way to victory; but not so-the Badgers started out with a "do or die" spirit, and after a series of repeated gains placed the ball on the Michigan 8-yard line. There a fumble occurred. Michigan punted, and again Wisconsin started a phenomenal march through the opposing line. The Badgers were superior in every phase of the game-Michigan seemed helpless. A dropkick gave Wisconsin a 3-0 advantage at the end of the first quarter.

In the second quarter, after Michigan had failed to dent the Badger line, Rockwell, Michigan quarterback, started a freak run which gave Michigan a 6-3 advantage. The Badger team thought he was out of the play, and the ball was down, but the referee claimed the reverse-Wisconsin had been outlucked, after outplaying the Wolverines, outfighting them, outputting them, outrunning them, and outspiriting them-but she lost.

Wisconsin players had won by every standard of football in existence, but Dame Fortune had lost for them.

The disheartening effect of the Michigan game on the student body and the team was quickly overshadowed by the "On Wisconsin" spirit.

The Maroons were engaged in the last game of the season. Wisconsin entered this game with added determination.

As in almost all of the games during the season, Taft started the battering-ram attack of the team by skirting the tackles and ends at will. Chicago was bewildered by this fast attack and the score remained at 0-0 during the first half.

In the third quarter, Chicago's fast backfield succeeded in plunging and driving its way to a touchdown. Almost immediately following, the Badgers garnered one and tied the score. The game was marked by fierce fighting on both sides, but clean playing and sportsmanship prevailed at all times.

In the last quarter Captain Pyott of the Maroons ran through a broken field to a touchdown and dampened the Badger hopes for a victory. Chicago won before a Wisconsin audience of over 7,000 —they deserved it.

Wisconsin's season closed with one victory, three losses and a tie.

ROBERT ZUPKE, Ph. B., '05 Coach of Football at the University of Illinois

"Bon" Zuppke would be the last man in the world to assert that he was the best football coach in the conference but take a look at his record in the eleven years in which he has coached Illinois teams. He leads all rivals in number of championships won and tied. His percentage of victories is pionships won and tied. His percentage of victories is highest. He holds an edge of at least one victory over every rival university, except Michigan, which is tied with him. Zuppke's teams have won three conference championships and tied for two others. Zuppke hasn't piled up his victories by playing soft schedules. It is fairly easy for a coach to make an impressive record if he shows the proper sagacity in picking his opponents. "Fighting Bob" has matched his Illini against the strongest teams.

Although the past Varsity season was both a disappointment and a success in the eyes of Wisconsin followers, prospects for a championship eleven next fall, under the leadership of Captain Jack Harris, seem exceedingly bright.

Probably never before has Wisconsin had as heavy a freshman football team as it had last fall. Four linesmen weigh over 225 pounds, while the general average of the freshman team was considerably over 180 pounds.

Captain Clarence Barofsky, Marinette, is an able leader with the speed of a Rollie Williams and the elusiveness of a Grange. Coach Tom Jones, assisted by "Keg" Driver took charge of the 125 freshman candidates at the start of the season, and developed a team that should ably fill the places vacated by 1923 Varsity men.

The freshman team triumphed over the sophomore team in the annual class game by a score of 19-0. Three touchdowns in the final quarter by means of line bucks, end runs and passes netted the win.

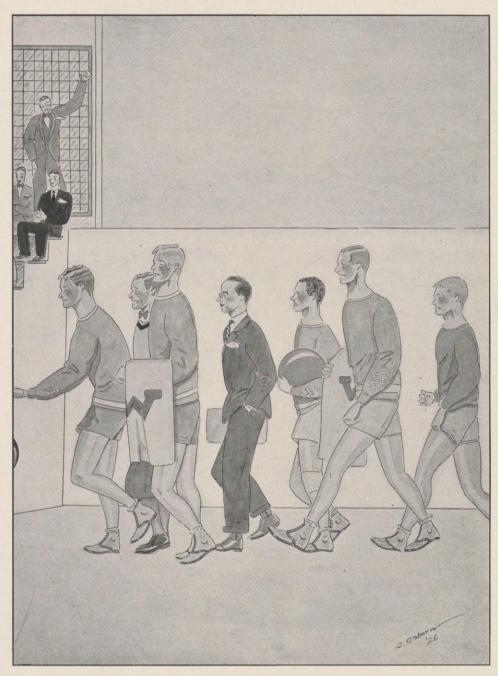

Coach Ryan is already assured, through the performances against the varsity last Fall, that these men will carry on the "On Wisconsin" spirit established by the men who have gone before.

> ALFRED L. BUSER, B. S. A., '12 Director of Athletics, St. Paul

While attending the University, Mr. Buser got a large share of his education in outside activities and athletics. He made the Frosh football squad and played on the Varsity team the following three years. In 1911 he was elected captain of the squad. He made the western team and all-conference team for three years, and in 1911 made the All-American team. Mr. Buser was one of the two tackles in the United States that was placed in the Hall of Fame in New York City. He was also a member of the crew and took part in the weight events on the track team. He was a "W" man in all three of these major sports.

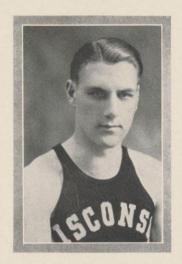

Mr. Buser is now established in business in Madison with his brothers in the Buser's Grocery. He says he is mighty proud to be back in the 'Old town,' but he is leaving again in the fall to become Director of Athletics and Coach of Football in St. Paul.

By winning when defeat looked plausible, by fighting until the final minutes of play, and through the strategic coaching of the redoubtable "Doc" Meanwell, the 1924 basketball team won its way to a championship of the Big Ten in a tie with Chicago and Illinois.

Although Wisconsin, together with Iowa, was conceded a good chance for titular honors at the beginning of the season by sport critics and coaches, material in the Badger camp was not plentiful and the "little doctor" realized he had a constructive year ahead—not one of champion-ship possibilities.

Gernon Coach Meanwell

Starting the 1924 season with four regulars from last year, and without the services of his three stars of last year, "Doc" hammered away with the men until he had a smooth-working team. In the middle of the season his best forward was seriously injured, and was practically lost for the rest of the season.

Overcoming this handicap, Coach Meanwell developed a substitute, and by switching his lineup, succeeded in climbing to the top rung of the Conference ladder.

The last three home games were all thrillers, as a loss would have meant the dwindling of championship hopes. The climax of the Big Ten basketball season came in our own gymnasium when Chicago was engaged. Wisconsin was superior at all times, and the team demonstrated what concentrated effort and team spirit, together with excellent coaching could do.

This team can justly be named "The On Wisconsin" team.

Starting the season on the first of October, almost two weeks before last year's start, Coach Meanwell and proteges worked daily to perfect the short-pass game that has carried Wisconsin to seven championships in the last eleven years.

The first opportunity for the students to witness the performance of the Varsity team in action was against the freshmen. Three times the Freshmen tried to overwhelm the fast Varsity attack, but were beaten by scores of 49–0, 52–6 and 39–13 respectively. Badger fans became confident that Coach Meanwell had developed another winning combination.

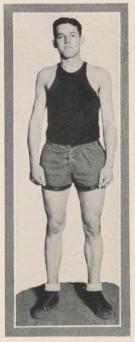

A day after the last Freshman open-practice tilt, Rollie Williams and his Milliken college team invaded the home gym. The Varsity opened up with the same attack Wisconsin fans have known for many years and snowed the willing Milliken team under by a score of 53-13.

De Pauw College, one of Indiana's high-rating basketball teams came to Madison a week later. This game proved to be one of the best of the home season. All through the game neither team had an advantage to speak of, and when the game ended, after three overtime periods, the score stood at 25–25.

During the holidays the team had two more practice games, and was granted a win and a loss. Marquette college was encountered in the Auditorium at Milwaukee before a crowd of 7,500 people. Wisconsin won through superior team play and ability to sink baskets. The defeat of a year ago was avenged, by a 27–7 score.

After a two-weeks' rest, the highly touted Franklin college team of Indiana—acclaimed by many as the best team in America—came to Madison. The game was a heartbreaker for our team Fighting valiantly for every point, the team succeeded in holding an advantage at half time. Presumably having won the game, the team slacked its pace and was slowly outdistanced by the fast travelling Indiana team. The final outcome was 23–18. Badger fans were disappointed, but were unanimous in acclaiming Franklin a wonderful team.

Smarting under their first defeat of the season, the Badgers encountered Indiana at Bloomington for the conference opener. The game was close, and the Badgers were held to a 10–6 advantage at the half. Inspired by Coach Mann, the Indiana team came back strong and tied the count at 19–19 with only three minutes before the end of the game. Two long shots by Diebold sank the Hoosier's hopes, and Wisconsin pulled out a 23–21 win.

Having emerged successfully from the first conference tilt, the team played Northwestern the following week, and although a 25-10 defeat was handed the Evanstonians, it was a costly victory, as it was during this game that Spooner was injured.

Indiana played the Badgers in their second meeting two days later, and although without the services of Spooner, the Cardinal pulled out a victory in the final minute of play, by a 28-27 score. Indiana had led during the entire game, but the team spirit of the Badgermen was not to be denied.

The absence of Coach Meanwell's star forward had a marked effect on the team play, and before he had a chance to develop a new combination, the Chicago team was engaged at Chicago. The Maroons walked over our boys by a score of 35–18, and incidentally put the first mark in the loss column for the Badgers.

Despite the Chicago setback, the team went into the Butler College game, a week later, with a determination to average the defeat the Hoosiers had handed Wisconsin for the past two years. A new combination was being developed. The Badgers displayed a whirlwind attack and finally pulled out a 25–23 win. The team thus far seemed to be an in-and-outer—no one could predict an outcome. Wisconsin was now situated in third place with three wins and one loss.

Illinois with her "fighting spirit" reputation invaded the Badger stronghold next. Illinois used the same pass system as Wisconsin, and neither team could sift through the other's for markers. With but three minutes to go, Illinois was leading by a score of 12–9, and started to stall. Captain Gibson garnered the ball, and sank two rapid-fire shots which put the Badgers into the lead that finally turned to victory. Through this win, Wisconsin again reached the top of the conference standings. A real thriller, and a doubly sweet win.

On February 23, the Badgers started their longest road trip, playing Ohio State and Illinois on foreign floors. Both games proved disastrous to the Badgers, as Ohio State with her two conference scoring leaders, piled up enough points to assure a win by a score of 27–13.

On the following evening the Illinois quintet sifted through the Badger defense for a 31-20 victory. Failure to make the necessary free throws was largely responsible for the loss, although the Illinois team was working together in top-notch form. Wisconsin slipped down to fourth place through the last two defeats, and championship hopes took a considerable slump.

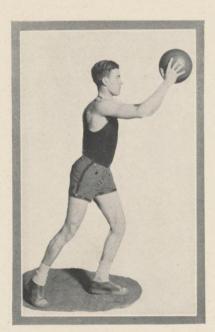

The home stretch of the conference basketball season for the Badgers started the following Monday when Northwestern came to Madison, and was defeated easily by a 23-14 score.

Ohio State, finishing a long road trip, was next encountered. Although the Badgers were conceded a defeat, the team showed marked improvement and snowed the Buckeyes under a 30–20 score. Farwell was beginning to fill Spooner's place in excellent style by this time, and it was largely due to his capabilities that the team regained second place at this time.

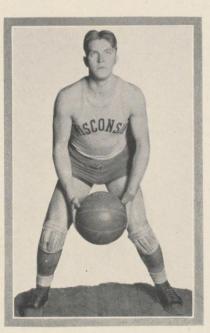

Wisconsin still had two games to play against Iowa, and one against the Maroons, who were leading the conference. Wisconsin had to win two out of three to stay in the running.

Iowa was engaged at Iowa City on March 8, and lost to the Hawkeyes by a 22–19 score. Unable to cope with the 10–3 lead at half time, the Badgers were returned the losers and title hopes again took a slump.

Three days later the Iowa team travelled to the home gym. As Wisconsin had not lost a conference game on her own floor for several seasons, the team was imbued with a spirit that was infallible. The team sank shots from all corners of the floor, and displayed an offense and defense the Hawks could not budge. The final score was 36-26 in the Badgers' favor.

A three-cornered tie now loomed. The climax and final game of the season was with Chicago on the following Saturday. A win over the Maroons would mean a tie for the championship. The Maroons came, they played, they lost, in one of the most hectic games ever played on the Badger floor. Wisconsin outplayed the luckless Maroons in every stage, and when the whistle blew, Wisconsin had tied for the championship through a 30-14 victory. Eight wins and four losses is the final record of a team that fought its way to victory over handicaps and odds during a season of numerous upsets.

Coach Meanwell has had all kinds of athletic experience as might easily be judged by the results of his skill here at Wisconsin. He held the amateur wrestling championship, both light and featherweight, in the Dominion of Canada for two years. He was captain of the hasketball and haseball teams at the Rochester, New York Athletic Club. In his coaching experience, Mr. Meanwell won nine first places in twelve seasons of Western Conference and Missouri Valley Conference basketball, never finishing below third place. He held the position of supervisor of recreation of the Public Athletic League at Baltimore, Maryland, and then became Director of Gymnasium and Associate Professor of Phy sical Education at the University of Wisconsin. From here he went to the University of Missouri where he was Director of Athletics and the Department of Physical Education, returning again to Wisconsin, where he has remained in his present capacity of Medical Supervisor of Athletics and Professor of Physical Education, as well as coach of basketball.

Freshman Basketball

Badger basketball fans admire the Varsity with its clock-like perfection, display of a smashing offense and tight defense, which is feared and respected by all Big Ten coaches.

Yet, this same perfection was only acquired after hours of coaching, training, and opposition. Most of the fans know who does the playing and coaching, but few get a chance to see the men who help the Varsity to acquire this endurance and perfection, the Frosh.

Under the coaching of George Levis, a former pupil of Coach Meanwell and All-conference guard in 1916 and 1917, the freshmen have worked night after night giving the Varsity some of their own medicine in the form of a short pass game.

Over 160 freshmen responded to Coach Levis' call at the beginning of the season. After two weeks the squad was cut down to a working squad of 25 men.

The 1927 squad has been termed "the best freshman team at Wisconsin for many years," and their showing against the Varsity and Sophomore teams augments this statement. Two all-state Wisconsin men, and three all-state selected men from other states make up the luminaries of the squad. With this excellent material to augment the list of men who will be back for the 1925 season, Wisconsin should again rank first in the conference basketball standings.

Mr. Wilce, otherwise known as "Jack," was very prominent both in athletics and social life. He was the type of all-around man which makes Wisconsin what it is today. Mr. Wilce was in football all his four years in the University, becoming captain in his last year. He was captain of Freshman basketball and was on the varsity team his sophomore year. Besides these two major sports, he was on Freshman crews and Varsity crew. Along with his athletics, "Jack" was an ardent worker on the Student Conference, Union Committee, Student Court, Chairman of the Prom Floor Committee, in addition to being in the Glec Club, Junior Play, Sextette and President of Y. M. C. A. This quotation from the Badger, "To top my list of college honors I wanted to be president of the S. G. A., but Y. M. C. A. is the best I could do," seems to express his sentiments.

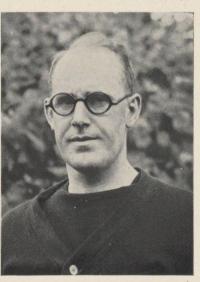

Since graduation Mr. Wilce has been well-known throughout the country as the successful coach which has made possible Ohio's important place in the Big Ten Conference. Mr. Wilce had an important influence in the starting of the Ohio State stadium in 1913.

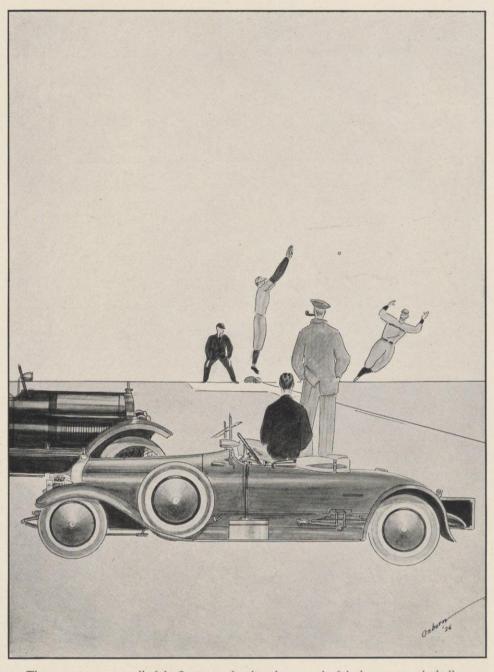

The Wisconsin sprint still runs in Mr. Wilce's veins, as shown by his wish of good luck for the Badger, signed, "Yours with a keen Wisconsin interest and enthusiasm."

Summary of Wisconsin Baseball Season 1923

At the beginning of the 1923 baseball season it was a case of building up from the ground, practically all the old men being lost to the team. There was no experienced battery, but one old man in the infield, and but two old outfielders from the team of the previous year.

It took time and hard work to develop the new men and mould the team to a definite system of teamplay. The team showed development throughout the season and was just coming into its own at the close of the season, as the result of the games indicate.

The team had a profitable southern trip from the standpoint of experience and opportunity for the coach to watch and place his men. The trip, however, was not a success from the standpoint of games being won.

In the opening game with Indiana at Madison on April 20 the team showed the experience gained on the southern trip and defeated Indiana in a one-sided contest. The team next met Northwestern College of Water-town in a practice game and won this game handily getting a much-needed practice.

On Saturday, April 27, the team defeated Chicago at Chicago in a well played contest, but on Monday April 28, at Ann Arbor, the new team showed its nervousness in meeting a team the caliber of Michigan—the pitching was not consistent—and this game was lost. The team also lost its game to Notre Dame on this trip, due to the fact that all pitchers had been used in the Chicago and Michigan games; the contest resulted in an easy win for Notre Dame.

easy win for Notre Dame.

Possibly the hardest fought contest was the Illinois game at Madison on May 5, Johnson of Wisconsin was in fine form and did not give Illinois a hit until the sixth inning. Wisconsin and Illinois each scored a run in the eighth inning, but Johnson's wildness in the ninth resulted in a 4-1 win for Illinois.

The Minnesota game at Madison on May 12 was played in a high wind, the temperature not being warm enough for baseball. Consequently neither pitcher had control, but the game finally resulted in a win for Wisconsin, Wisconsin displaying the old Wisconsin Spirit coming from behind and winning a contest.

Wisconsin displaying the old Wisconsin Spirit coming from behind and winning a contest.

Wisconsin lost an 11-inning game 5-4 at Northwestern University as the result of an overthrow by Pickford who pitched a nice game all the way through.

The bright point in the schedule was the fact that the team was now playing real baseball and came through and won the remaining three games on the schedule, showing Conference caliber in these games. It was regrettable that rain should keep Wisconsin from playing the final game with Michigan on June 2 for there was every confidence that Wisconsin would live up to her old reputation and take at least one game each year from Michigan gan.

To those who followed the team closely it was evident that at the close of the season the team ranked well up with the conference contenders and was well deserving of fourth place—Wisconsin's finish in the race.

1923 Freshman Baseball Squad

Freshman basketball took a decided leap this season, when eighty candidates reported to Coach George Reudiger. Some of the most promising men in years made known their presence.

Coach Lowman is at present using at least five of this freshman squad with the 1924 Varsity squad, and without exception the men have come through well.

George Reudiger, former Varsity captain, handled the yearlings, while "Bill" Williams, former "W" twirler tutored the pitchers. Captain Jacobson and Russell Coleman alternated on the mound, and gave the Varsity much-needed practice.

At the end of the baseball season the nine was a well balanced, hard hitting, fast fielding, smart, baseball club. The Sophomores were defeated in the annual battle on the Varsity field in a hard fought game.

Some of the best men of the yearling squad were, Tangen, third baseman, Cramer, catcher, Leo Harmon, Doyle Harmon, first sacker, and outfielder respectively, Harold Wieland, short stop, and J. McCarthy, second baseman. The following men were awarded sweaters and numerals: Irving R. Jacobson, captain, Harold Wieland, Leo Harmon, L. D. Harmon, E. J. Brunner, Einar Tangen, L. B. Hapgood, Fred L. Galle, R. B. Coleman, H. J. Cramer, G. C. Tiefatt, I. D. McCarthy, and manager John S. Hobbins.

Tjoflat, J. D. McCarthy, and manager John S. Hobbins.

Those awarded numerals only were: W. B. Tufts, Orin Wold, L. Schmidt, John Petaja, H. C. Siekman, S. M. Cohen, and L. T. Beggs.

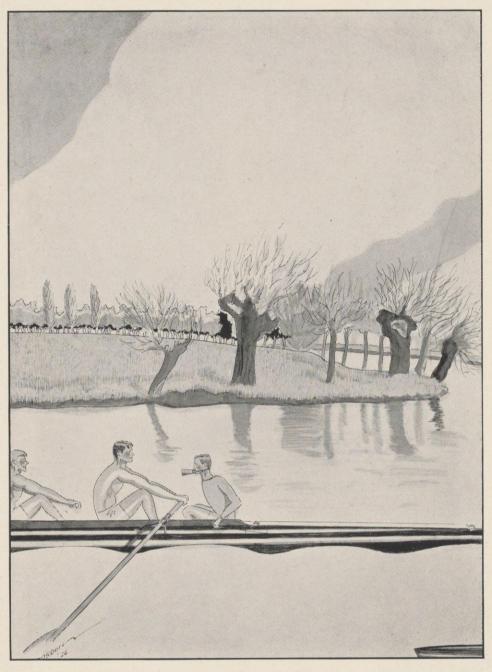

Coach George Ruediger

"Lamps" had the honor of playing on a Wisconsin championship baseball team, an honor which has not been attained by a large number of Wisconsin's athletes. During his Freshman year, he was captain of the track team, and played on the football and baseball teams. Due to an injury to his knee, sustained in an inter-class baseball game, he was unable to continue in football and track.

Mr. Lampert served as a lieutenant in the Sanitary Corps in France for two years. On his return, he took a position as chief chemist for the Samson Tractor Company, leaving there to become Chief Deputy Prohibition Commissioner and chemist for the Prohibition Department of Wisconsin. "Lamps" has won several medals as a bowler since he graduated.

Crew Season 1923

During 1923, the third crew season since the reinstatement of rowing as a major sport at the University of \overline{W} isconsin, two Varsity and three Junior Varsity races were held, none of which resulted in a victory for the Badgers. A late start in spring practice accounted partly for this fact, but other elements, such as a dearth of material, were responsible as well.

After many changes in the Varsity boat, Coach "Dad" Vail finally assembled an eight to meet the Duluth Boat Club on May 26. The Badgers remained even with the Duluth shell up to the mile-mark when the Northerners struck up a pace that the fast-tiring Varsity crew could not maintain. Duluth won by a length and a half. Before the Varsity match the Junior Varsity raced the St. Johns Academy eight. The Junior crew obtained a half-length lead soon after the start and held it for three-quarters of the course. They were defeated, however, in the last quarter-mile by a brilliant spurt of their opponents, losing by three-quarters the length of the shell.

1923 Varsity Crew

The next week-end the Junior Varsity rowed the Culver Academy crew at Culver, Indiana. The Culver men rowed the mile course in remarkably fast time and defeated the Juniors by a half-length.

Every effort was made to build a speedy crew for the Washington State race on June 16, and the boat was re-rigged for a starboard stroke. The Junior Varsity in the first race with the Washington freshmen over the two-mile course was easily defeated. In the second race the Varsity kept abreast of Washington for half of the two-and-one-half-mile course until the Washington coxswain called for an increased stroke. The Badgers could not respond. In the last quarter-mile spurt the Cardinal oars splashed vengeance and succeeded in regaining two lengths but lost by four lengths. Washington won the Poughkeepsie regatta two weeks later.

With the new equipment for which Coach Vail has made application, Wisconsin will undoubtedly participate in the Poughkeepsie races in 1924.

For the first time since 1913 the Badger colors will invade the valleys of the famous Hudson rowing course to compete against seven of the leading crews of the nation.

Through definite action taken by the Athletic Council, and through the efforts of Coach Harry "Dad" Vail, the Badger crew was permitted to take the trip to Poughkeepsie—a desire cherished by "the old man" for the past ten years.

Wisconsin will be represented at the nation's famous rowing regatta on the Hudson on June 17, by an eight worthy of carrying the Cardinal colors of Wisconsin.

Coach Vail started training for the great Eastern event early in April. A new shell was ordered from a Western concern which has made shells for Yale, Columbia and Washington universities; the men were worked twice daily during Spring vacation, and through long hours of the afternoon preceding the race; a training table was established in Lathrop parlors and the keen eye of Coach Vail was ever watchful over the men in the shell.

The "On Wisconsin" spirit shall be carried to the shores of the Hudson—may the thousands of Badger alumni who will see the regatta cheer the boys across the finish line A Winner!

History

It was in the spring of 1892 that the first Wisconsin Crew came to life as a suggestion and late summer before it was born into reality. In the spring of '92 the athletic department purchased two eight-oared gigs. A carnival and regatta was held with a race between two classes in the new barges as a feature.

During the same summer a crew was selected from the class crews to row against the Chicago Navy at Oconomowoc. In the spring of 1893 the athletic department purchased an eight-oared shell and the first Varsity crew had its first race against the Delaware Boat Club of Chicago. In the spring of 1894 the crew went to Lake Minetonka and staged a beautiful race against the Minnesota Boat Club.

Track

With the completion of the 1924 indoor season and the start of the outdoor season it seems as though there is ample reason for an optimistic outlook for the next two or three years in varsity track competition. Although the varsity material which will be back next year will not in itself be sufficient to expect a team of championship caliber the members composing this year's freshman team which will be eligible for varsity competition next fall are an outfit which ranks far above the average freshman aggregation. In Captain McGinnis, Schwarze, Sauger, Bonini, Schilke, Kubly, and Jirtle, Coaches Jones and Burke are already looking forward to a bumper crop of tracksters. There is no question but that an increasing interest is being shown in track at Wisconsin and with normal situations prevailing next fall the track squad should be well on the way to a championship by the end of the first semester.

Track Outdoor Season 1923

During the outdoor season of 1923, the track team took part in the Kansas and Drake Relay Games, met Beloit, Chicago, Minnesota, and Illinois in dual meets, and competed in the Conference and National Collegiate meets.

At Kansas, on April 21, the two-mile team composed of Johnson, Hilberts, Ramsay and Vallely, fiinshed second to Nebraska. At Drake, on April 28, the four mile team composed of Sherman, Bergstresser, Rossmiessel and Schneider, also finished second. Schneider ran a great relay in this race, beating Isbell of Michigan, conference champion, to gain second position.

On the same day the two-mile team was competing at Kansas, the remainder of the track team engaged Beloit in the first dual meet of the season at Camp Randall, and won by a score of 93 to 42. The day was cold and rainy, and the marks made were accordingly slow.

On May 5, the team met Chicago at Stagg Field and won $73\frac{1}{4}$ to $61\frac{1}{2}$ in a very closely contested meet. The feature of the meet was the work of the three Wisconsin milers, Rossmeissel, Schneider, and Bergstresser, all of whom beat Krogh, the favorite, Rossmeissel winning in the fast time of 4.29 2/5. Tschudy ran a fast two mile race, winning in 9.45 3/5.

On May 12, Minnesota came down to Camp Randall, and was defeated 81 to 54. Wisconsin scored a slam in the mile again, Rossmeissel winning in 4.28 1/5 followed by Schneider and Bergstresser, and in the two mile, Tschudy winning in 9.57 1/5 followed by Wade and Piper.

On May 19, the team journeyed to Champaign, and was beaten by Illinois 942/3 to 40 1/3. Rossmeissel again won the mile in the fine time of 4.25 2/5 and Vallely, Hilberts and Ramsay scored a slam in the half mile, Vallely winning in 1.56 4/5.

The Conference Meet was held June 2 at Ferry Field, Michigan. Michigan won from Illinois by a fraction of a point, and Wisconsin finished third, scoring points in 11 out of 15 events. Wade, Hilberts, Newell, Krieger, Tuhtar, Vallely, Spetz, Van Ells, Nichols, and Schneider were the Wisconsin athletes to place, and hence win their "W"s. Vallely won the half mile in 1.55 1/5. In this race, four of the eight men to qualify for the final were Wisconsin runners; Vallely, Ramsay, Hilberts and Carter.

The 2nd annual National Collegiate Meet was again held at Stagg Field on June 16. Wisconsin entered ten men, but failed to secure a place among the leaders. 58 universities were represented in this meet.

With very few exceptions the meet contained entries who were without question the very best amateur athletes in the country and the fact that Wisconsin secured only a few points is not only gratifying but shows that with only mediocre material from which to start, Coaches Jones and Burke may be counted on to turn out a team which will stack up with the best of them.

Vallely

The team met after the season in the annual squad banquet and chose William Hammann to lead the squad for the year 1924. "Bill" had been one of the steadiest men in the getting of points during the entire season and deserved the honor full well. He is without question one of the greatest all-around athletes that Wisconsin has ever turned out. His feat of placing second in the All-Around Championship at the Illinois Relays both in 1923 and again in 1924 shows that he is a real athlete of no mean ability. Much of the credit for his development must go to Coach Jones. He has groomed "Bill" for four steady years and has developed him from the bottom.

With the host of freshman material which is working out this year and with the knowledge of what Coaches Jones and Burke are able to do with green men the outlook for the next few years should be very gratifying. Herbert Schwarze, our biggest freshman athlete is already showing marked improvement in the weight events and it is hoped that he will be one of the men to represent Wisconsin in the Olympic games at Paris this next summer. He has been heaving the shot within a few feet of the record and with hard work he should be a champion.

The renewed interest which is being shown in all lines of sport at Wisconsin due to the new stadium nearing completion and the entry into the coaching ranks of two or three new men it may readily be seen that track is not to see any slack interest from the student body. Also the fact that a new meet has been added to the annual calendar for the stimulation of interest in prep athletes is bound to improve the class of men who are to call Wisconsin their home in the near future.

Indoor Season 1924

The indoor season of 1924 started with a victory for Wisconsin in the first quadrangular meet held at Evanston on February 16, between Chicago, Northwestern, Ohio State and Wisconsin. Wisconsin's points totaled 65; Ohio was second with 34; Northwestern third with 32; and Chicago last with 23. In the special events Wisconsin won 4 out of 6 first places—McAndrews, McGovern, Captain Hammann, and Limberg being the victors—and in the relays she won two, and finished second and third in the other two.

On February 23, Iowa was beaten 46 13/20 to 397/20 in one of the most exciting meets ever held in the old Annex. The meet came down to the relay for a decision, an event which was on paper awarded to Iowa without a struggle. Her relay team during the summer had set a new intercollegiate record for the distance. However, for three legs, the Wisconsin runners Flueck, Kennedy, Menke, hung on to the heels of the supposedly much faster, Iowa men and then in the last lap Hilberts passed Morrow of Iowa and gave the relay and meet to Wisconsin. The time of 3.36 2/5 has only been beaten once in the Annex.

After the tenseness attained for the important quadrangular meet and the Iowa meet, the team relaxed somewhat. In the Illinois Relays on March 1, Captain Hammann again won second place in the all around championship and McAndrews placed second in the 300 yards run. The four-mile and one-mile teams each finished third.

On March 8, the team was defeated by Notre Dame 47-38, the relay again deciding the winner. A number of Notre Dame track records were broken. The time would indicate that the meet was run outdoors instead of indoors on a 12 lap banked track. The quarter was won in 51 3/5, the half in 1.59, the mile in 4.21, and the relay in 3.29 4/5.

The Conference meet at Evanston March 15 was a disappointment, the team failing to perform anywhere near up to standard, and scoring only in the relay. A hard schedule with five meets on successive Saturdays and four of them away from home, had a tiring effect on the whole squad.

Mr. Brewer was at Wisconsin from '04 to '08 and won his 'W' in football, basketball and track. He was a freshman when Wisconsin's present gymnasium was finished and opened for work. He did his first work in that building under Dr. Elsom, who had just come to Wisconsin. At that time the Lower Campus was the Athletic Field and all the contests were played there. Camp Randall was purchased while he was a student. Mr. Brewer is at present Professor of Physical Education and Chairman of the Division of Physical Education at the University of Missouri. He came to Missouri from the University of California where he held a similar position to that which he is filling at 'Missouri. He has done considerable writing and is a member of all the national and international organizations governing Physical Education and Athletics.

Varsity Cross Country

The 1923 Varsity Cross Country team enjoyed one of the most successful seasons the sport has known. Under the watchful coaching of Mead Burke, the men were put through their paces early in Fall, and were kept in the best of shape throughout the season.

Wisconsin's first test came when Minnesota ran over the home course on Homecoming Day, October 27. The race was run over a course of 4.9 miles in length, and Wisconsin triumphed by a score of 23–32. Brown of Minnesota finished first, but the placing of the Wisconsin men overwhelmed the start of a good finish for the Gophers. The order of finish was as follows: Brown(M), Bergstresser(W), Piper(W), Jacobson(M), Read(W), Swingle(W), Finkle(W), Schneider(W), McLaughlin(M), Ponkin(M).

Schneider(W), McLaughlin(M), Popkin(M).

The Badgers next traveled to Chicago and won a close meet in the Maroons' camp. The Cardinal again pulled out a win by a score of 24–31. The finish was as follows: Bourke (C), Piper(W), Levine(C), Swingle(W), Finkle(W), Sherman (W), Read(W), Bergstresser(W), Schneider(W), Vallely(W).

Wisconsin's third dual meet with Michigan resulted in the Badger's first defeat of the year. The men finished as follows: Arndt(M), and Davis(M), tied for first, Rearick (M), Piper(W), Read(W), Vallely(W), Bowen(M), Griffin (M), Reinke(M), Swingle(W).

The conference meet at Columbus proved the mettle of the Badger Harriers. By placing 12, 13, 20, 23 and 25th, the team was able to place third among the ten schools entered, and incidentally against some of the best cross-country material in the world. Vallely, Piper, Read, Bergstresser and Finkle placed in order named for Wisconsin. Ohio State took first place in the final standings with a total of 55. Illinois second with 92, Wisconsin third with 93, Iowa fourth with 100, Ames and Michigan tied for fifth and sixth, Minnesota seventh with 162, Michigan Aggies eighth with 180, Chicago ninth with 182, and Indiana tenth with 185.

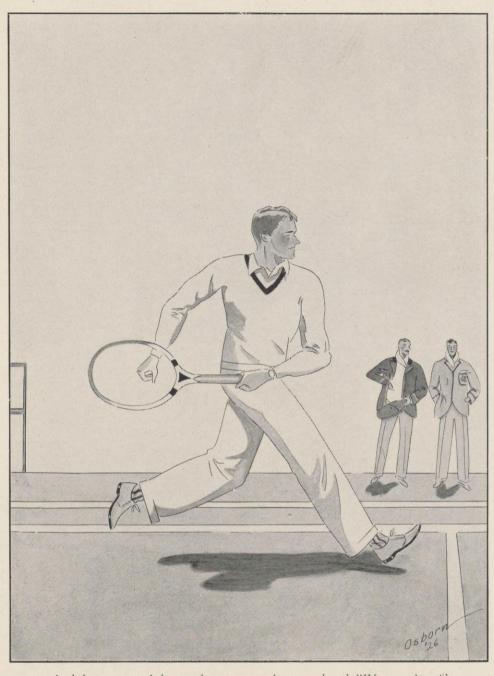

George Piper was elected to captain the 1924 Cross Country team, at the close of the season. John Petaja was elected to captain the Freshman Cross Country team.

Coach Steinauer

Swimming 1923-24

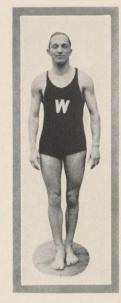

Prospects for a winning swimming team looked bright when Coach "Joe" Steinauer made his first call for Varsity paddlers, but when roll call was taken after the victory over the University of Iowa, the ranks were depleted considerably, because of a few scholastic arguments which had been settled unfavorably for the men on the team.

When February rolled around the school woke up to the fact that it had lost the best free style swimmer Wisconsin has ever had. Johnson Bennett, captain of the 1923 swimming team, had finished his curricular as well as his athletic career for our Alma Mater. Bennett had done a great deal to put swimming on the high level that had never before been reached and when the team started to enter meets without him it realized that it had lost one of the most valuable assets which it could boast of.

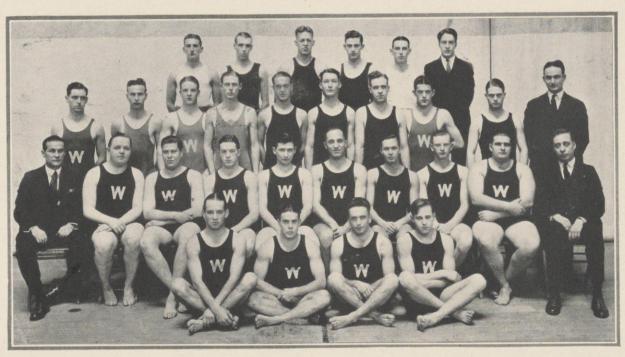

To climax the situation and to put Coach Steinauer in an optimistic mood concerning the outlook for the season, the athletic council declared Erwin Gerber, star diver and swimmer, ineligible for further competition. "Irv" was one of Wisconsin's bets for this year's Olympic team as well as the best distance swimmer and diver that the team possessed. His was not scholastic difficulty, however, but due to the innocent breaking of one of the conference rules previous to his entry at Wisconsin, the council found it necessary to eliminate him from all future athletic practice as an amateur. Although beaten in succession by Minnesota, Indiana, and Chicago in dual meets, the scores were all fairly close, and the season resulted more successfully than the squad had

The varsity men around whom next year's team will be built are Simpkins, Flueck, Fraser and Bell. The frosh material will be the biggest opportunity for the squad to turn out a winning team if they are eligible.

Frosh Swimming

Never in the history of Wisconsin has such a wealth of good material answered the call for candidates as those who reported for the freshman swimming squad this year. Over seventy men turned out for the first call and all were of the finest material that a coach could ask for. It was not an easy task for Coach "Joe" Steinauer to cut his squad to a workable one. Most of the men were kept until nearly two months of practice and development had gone by. After many time trials the squad was cut to forty men. These boys began to realize that they were up against a real set of opponents for places on the squad and the stimulus produced a very good effect upon the men in general. By the time that the first meets with the varsity were scheduled the frosh were in good shape. They won from the varsity in a handy manner in both meets and then turned around and won the interclass meet by a large margin.

The outstanding men on the squad were those who composed the relay team. The combination of Herschberger, Monihan, Ratcliffe, and Grigsby was perhaps the best that any frosh team has ever been able to boast of. They could beat the varsity consistently and would give any conference team a good fight. In the middle of the season Monihan had the misfortune to break his arm so the team's training was broken up for quite a while. Many of the men were lost to the squad at the end of the first semester including Grigsby but the hopes of a banner squad were not severely shattered before the new candidates began to report after the beginning of the second semester.

The men worked hard and if all remain eligible for competition for next year the swimming team will surely have a hand in the conference championship pie for next year.

Varsity Water Basketball 1924

The development and interest as regards water basketball at the University of Wisconsin has been remarkable. There are now twelve to sixteen organized teams competing for trophies and individual recognition as candidates for the varsity squad positions. The past season of 1924 has been especially productive of interesting and popular results. The varsity Water Basketball team played and defeated the M. A. C. in two games during the pre-season meets, defeated Iowa at Iowa, Minnesota at Madison, lost to Indiana at Bloomington, and to Chicago at Madison, having a season's record of four victories and two defeats. This, considering the first season that the sport has the Athletic Council and Board recognition, is very satisfactory; especially so since the squad, both in Swimming and Water Basketball, was hard hit by ineligibility.

Next year's squad will lose only three members through graduation, which will not materially interfere with the prospects of a winning combination.

his aggressive and capable stick handling proved to be a tower of defense in all of the contests. Without doubt the other outstanding man was W. E. Ritchie, '24, who played opposite Johnson in the right wing, and who was one of the most dependable men of the team.

Much greater interest has been shown in hockey this year, not only here at Wisconsin, but throughout the country, and it is hoped that other conference schools will soon recognize it as a sport. Possibilities for next year are made promising by the large number of freshman who formed a team, with F. M. Teich, '27, as captain, and who furnished excellent opposition for the varsity. A new innovation this year was the lighting of the rink, which made possible longer practices and the playing of several evening games. It is to be hoped that interest in it will continue to grow, and that hockey will soon come into its own, and take its deserved place as one of the leading Conference sports.

Under the leadership of Robert O. Blodgett, '23, a former hockey and track star, the hockey team has completed a season which, although not as successful as we might have wished, from the standpoint of games won, nevertheless saw a decided improvement over previous years, and a marked growth of the sport. Probably the two most outstanding men of the team were Captain E. E. Johnson, '24, who played a consistant game at left defense, and M. E. Moran, '24, who proved to be a brilliant left wing. Both of the men were veterans of last year's team. Captain C. A. Gross, '27, a member of last year's freshman squad, occupied the right wing, and

Gym Team

The Conference Championship won by the Gymnastic Team of last year was the result of three years of hard work by the competing men. Captain Dean Kitchen, Walter Porth, Frank Kubosch, Merrill Hansen, Norman Koch, Elmer Krieger and Frank Bummer had been trained by Coach Fred E. Schlatter and were in Varsity competition under his coaching. Frank Leitz, a Senior in Physical Education, was hired to coach last year's team during the absence of Coach Schlatter. Leitz was on the team the year before, when he won his letter, and he knew the abilities of the men assigned to him. The men knew a victory was possible. The team beat Chicago at Chicago, they beat Minnesota at Wisconsin, and took first place at the Conference meet at Columbus, Ohio. Five men placed at Conference, Captain Kitchen, Porth, Kubosch, Hansen and Schmidt. Out of this number all but one graduated. Captain-elect Stevens, and Schmidt were the two men left for this year's team.

The 1923–24 gym season started November 1. Coach Schlatter was back. Captain Stevens, Schmidt, Koch, Krieger and Kress were the regulars; and Hiemke, Hicks and Baker were new material. Norman Koch was injured in December in a meet with the Milwaukee Y. M. C. A. and had to drop out of competition. Elmer Krieger, a flying ring and horizontal bar performer became ineligible. The loss of these two men was greatly felt, but Coach Schlatter started at once to work his men in all the events they were qualified for work his men in all the events they were qualified for.

February 23, the Chicago team came to Wisconsin. Coach Schlatter found he had a strong two man team in Captain Stevens and "Huck" Schmidt. Stevens placed first on the side horse, and Schmidt won three firsts on the Horizontal Bar, Flying Rings, and Parallel Bars. Van Vactor and Elliott of Chicago won two seconds and a first place respectively. Chicago won the meet.

The week after, the team went to Minnesota, but hard luck crept in. Stevens placed second on the Side Horse and third in Tumbling, while Schmidt took a second in Tumbling and two thirds in Parallel Bars and Horizontal Bar. Perlt won two firsts for Minnesota.

At the Conference meet in Chicago on March 15, a handicapped team represented Wisconsin. Chicago, Minnesota, Purdue, Iowa, Northwestern, Ohio, Ohio Wesleyan and Indiana Universities were represented. Coach Schlatter said, "The gymnastic competition at the Conference this year was the hardest I have seen." He entered his team with little expectation of taking fourth place. "Huck" Schmidt was entered in all five events, and Captain Stevens in three. The other men were one and two event men. Schmidt won first place in the "All Around Championship" and placed second on the Flying Rings and on the Parallel Bars. Stevens won a second place on the Side Horse.

second on the Flying Rings and on the Parallel Bars. Stevens won a second place on the Side Horse.

"Huck" Schmidt is Captain-elect of next year's team. The other men to be back are George Kress, Hugo Heimke, Earl Hicks, and Kenneth Baker. A lot of material will be available from the freshman team trained by Coach Masely. Walter Huxley, the captain of this year's freshman team is the most promising man. The team should have at least four strong and men again be contenders for the championship.

Fencing

The Fencing Team, coached by Fred E. Schlatter trained consistently throughout the season. Captain John Reinhold and Albert Thompson were the two men entries in varsity competition, both having had four years of training.

The season opened with two meets against Milwaukee, in which the team won both the foils and saber events. In the dual meet with Chicago, Wisconsin lost the foils, tied the sabers, and won the dueling swords events.

At the conference meet at Chicago, Captain Reinhold won second place in the "Round Robin" matches, defeating four men from other schools in the conference.

The freshman team this year is the most promising in the history of fencing both from the standpoint of numbers and skill.

Wrestling

A championship in the 135 lb. class this year with a most promising looking bunch of new men for next year manifest that Badger wrestling will jump forward by leaps and bounds in 1925. "Bob" Holmes next year's captain, captured the title in the 135 lb. class, and will be fighting for Wisconsin again next year with no less success.

This year's squad was composed of Hansen, Holmes, Gregor, Pletner, Benbow, Bieberstein, and with a large number of freshmen becoming eligible next year, there will be a large influx of good material. In the words of "Bob" Holmes, "Wrestling prospects look better for next year" than any previous year he has been in school. Among these freshmen are Sauger, Saunders, Stair and Zodner, whose build and rapid learning qualities promise to put Badger wrestling foremost on the list in 1925.

The Wrestling Squad

Tennis

As in other similar sports, Wisconsin's prospects for a winning tennis team look unusually good for 1925. Few of the old men will be back but a large number of newcomers together with several dependable players who were ineligible this year give the Badgers grounds for counting on a better racquet standing for next season.

Aagensen, Bennett, Moulding and Tredwell formed our team last year losing to Chicago and Michigan but winning from Minnesota by a large count. We turned the tables on Michigan this year and defeated them with Moulding, Sah, Stebbins, and Manierre wielding the Badger racquets. Durant, a sophomore, and Wright, Riddle and Miller, freshmen are sure comers and by their rapid progress in the cat-gut game, promise to ease up the Badgers situation of losing most of their tennis veterans.

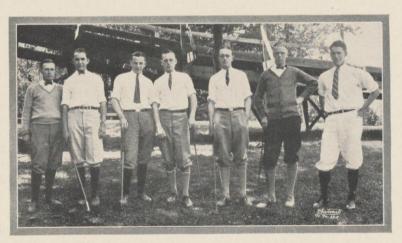

Wisconsin-Chicago Meet

Golf

Badger golfers won third place in the golf tournament last year which was the same record attained the year previous. This year our team, composed of Bock, Spear, Stegeman and Porter won from Minnesota by a score of 15-7 but lost its matches to Chicago, Illinois and Northwestern.

Undoubtedly, golf at Wisconsin is not supported as it should be. Although 35 turned out for the squad, only two, besides the regular team, were given places. The two, Shields and Guenther are showing good form on the links and will help boost the Badger golf standing in 1925. Carl Adsit, who won the frosh tournament is back in school and will be eligible next year to change Wisconsin's record.

Interfraternity Sports

The 1924 Inter-fraternity Basketball cup was won by the Kappa Sig's team composed of Harmon, Morrison, Meyers, Holtz, Polaski, Below, Nelson and Risteen. The Theta Xi's and Beta's were runners-up in the tournament but the two former teams couldn't stop the winners of the trophy for two successive years previous.

A large percentage of Wisconsin Greeks responded to the call for an inter-frat basketball tournament, and thus helped to make this branch of non-official athletics a big success. The games were strictly Greek being participated in and refereed by members of Greek letter fraternities.

But no less successful was the bowling tournament in which the Phi Sig's won first place which place they have maintained for the last two years. Three years ago, they started their bowling career by ending up in second place. The victorious quintet is composed of Stebbins, Weeman, Hoffman, Ruediger and Knutson.

Twenty-six fraternities entered the bowling tournament which amply proves that the alley sport has taken a firm hold on Badger frat men and bids fair to enlisting even more next year.

Triangle was the Phi Sig's closest contestant being only eliminated in the tournament finals. An individual bowling cup was won by Herb Lante of Triangle.

The Phi Sig quintet played the Alpha Gamma Phi's at Marquette and defeated them the first four games out of a five game tournament.

Water basketball did not claim as many participants as other inter-fraternity sports—nevertheless, the interest manifested in the aquatic cage game was intensely keen. Greek letter groups were agreeably surprised to find water cage stars in their midst of whom they were not aware when they entered the water basketball league.

The Sig Chi's finished in first place after defeating the Beta's and the Theta Xi's, their closest contestants. The Sigma Chi bunch, composed of Stipek, Monihan, Burris, Brooks, Wilkinson and Laitner, changed their record from third place last year to a first place this season.

Interfraternity athletics have undoubtedly filled a growing need at Wisconsin. In addition to keeping fraternity men in trim, they have stirred an interest in athletics which has led many to participate who would not otherwise have done so. Athletically inclined men have taken part in fraternity contests with a view to winning laurels for their fraternity. Later, this participation instigated by a desire to forward their fraternity has developed into a desire to aid their school. Thus fraternity contests have been a decided factor in improving the Badger athletic status.

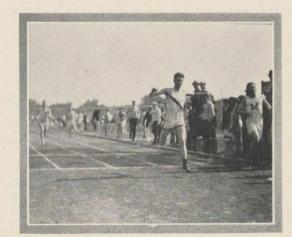

Wisconsin's State Interscholastic Track Meet

ISCONSIN'S state interscholastic track meet has grown to be one of the largest events of its kind in the Middle West during the last twenty-nine years. While this particular meet is limited to Wisconsin high schools, it draws approximately five hundred men each year to compete in the two classes.

This year, the twenty-ninth annual meet, drew close to six hundred athletes from forty-six high schools throughout the state. One record was broken and several endangered before the day was brought to a close. The record which fell by the wayside was in the javelin throw, Cinky of Milwaukee Washington heaving the javelin 157 feet.

A Cardinal "W" is the reward that the prep men hope to get through successful competition in the interscholastic and later trials on the university squads. Many of the athletes have won the coveted emblem by good work in high school events and keeping at it after matriculation. The purpose of the Interscholastic is to interest possible future Wisconsin athletes in the sport while still in high school.

State Basketball Tournament

Fond du Lac high school won the state championship this year in basketball by defeating Superior for the title after nearly a weeks' fast playing against other teams. Wonderful team play and undeniable fighting spirit won the final game for Fond du Lac and with it the honor of being the best basket team in the state. The Wauwatosa team won the consolation series through close guarding and a short pass attack which could not be stopped.

The Ninth annual tournament was a huge success and a wealth of good material is expected at Madison next fall.

Wisconsin Mid-West Relays

TISCONSIN stepped to the fore again this year when the idea of a Prep Relay meet was conceived. There have been state interscholastic track meets and indoor relay carnivals but never before has any school hatched out the idea of an outdoor relay meet for High Schools in general. For the first time high school track stars from other states were invited to compete at Camp Randall in a series of match races, relays, and individual events. The meet just launched this year is to be an annual event on the athletic calendar from now on. Owing to the extreme success of the meet this year athletic coaches and officials at Wisconsin are looking forward to the time when the Prep Relays at Wisconsin will be looked upon by prep schools in the same light that the Relays at Drake and Penn are looked upon by the Colleges and Universities throughout the country.

This year more than 250 athletes from 28 high schools from Wisconsin, Illinois, Michigan, and Iowa contested for the various trophies, cups, and medals awarded. Six relay races and seven individual events were held, Washington high school of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, winning five of the six relay races. One national interscholastic record was broken and another established in a new event, the Distance Medley relay. The mark lowered was in the Quarter mile relay made by Cedar Rapids. The new time was 44-8 1/10 seconds, which bettered the old mark made at the Drake relays by 4/5 seconds.

The showing of the Cedar Rapids team was beyond all expectations. They defeated runners of the best high schools in the middle west in 'their victories. Too much credit cannot be given to "Bab" Cuhel, the Cedar Rapids captain, for his share in the day's performance. It was largely due to his efforts along with his team mate, Leo Loftis, that the new record was established in the quarter mile relay. Both boys should be heard from in conference circles in the near future. Taking everything into consideration the new meet was highly successful and bids well to be one of the big events on the annual athletic calendar.

The notes of music seem to penetrate clouded brains, giving a little pleasure to those who have little. Every Sunday a group from the university goes to Mendota to bring harmony to that place of delusions.

Bradley Memorial Hospital

Each day is a long day for the children, with the little, distorted bodies. They watch, with eager eyes for the girls who come bring a touch of happiness from the outside world to brighten the small faces.

First be your sovereign, where divinity of Kings Rules not. Your will, to speak or silent be.
Your body lives to you! Can you learn
Its ways all intricately planned, its dominate oneness, Conceived through infinite numbers? A glory's
In it, a breathless exultation, a freedom
Publics So brown the ways of life. Pulsing. So know the way of life That the kingdom you have reared will resist The clamoring world and prove a quiet refuge For the calm hours that will come

SOUL

And when you touched it, the child urged.
The soul is never touched, my sweet,
Life sends you a-seeking it; you can but follow.
Scarce glimpsed, it is ever a memory,
Pent with desires. A depth, my sweet?
Only as the sky is high, as beauty
Measured. You journey alone, my sweet,
Forgetting the unutterable loneliness, in some height
Of joy. Forgetting all in one peaked
Moment, long in ecstacy. Feel it,
My sweet? When a like soul is met, when the sun Draws her veil, leaving the stars to the night.
—Catherine Davis.

Department of Physical Education

Since the Badger is giving prominent place to our alumni who are "Workers in the World," it seems fitting to use the space which has been allotted to me to say a few words about the course for the training of teachers of Physical Education which was approved in February, 1911, and from which our first class was graduated in June, 1913. In the short space of twelve years we have grown until from an original enrollment of four students we now have one hundred and sixty.

We have over one hundred graduates in the field holding responsible positions, and we are represented in every state in the Union as well as in several foreign countries. These graduates have been our best advertisement. Their loyalty to the university, the high quality of service which they have rendered, and the steadfastness with which they hold to the standard and ideals of the department have created a demand which far exceeds the number we can supply. There has never been a time when the athletic problem for women has been so vital and urgent as it is at the present, nor when it has needed such wise control and direction. Our alumnae are taking active participation in the new movements which are being launched here and abroad for state legislation and national organization for the control and standardization of women's athletics. The department sends its warmest greetings to all of them.

W. A. A.

As a member of the National Association of American College Women, the Women's Athletic Association of the University of Wisconsin strives to stimulate interest in women's athletics with the inevitable result of augmenting good sportmanship. The administrative work is carried on by a board composed of the officers and the heads of the various sports elected by the members of the club.

The awards based on the point system are: Membership in the association, W. A. A. pin, small "w", big "W."

Final Emblem

The final emblem is the highest honor that can be given a university woman. The award is based on womanliness, spirit, scholastic standing and athletics. It is a prerequisite that the wearer shall have a big "W." The award was made to seven women of the graduating class of 1923.

Physical Education Club

The Physical Education club is the central unit in the Department of Physical Education, composed of physical education majors and minors, and instructors in the department. Through monthly meetings matters of interest to the club and department are discussed and outside speakers are brought to give the girls new ideas and a broader vision in the field of Physical Education. A new activity of the club this year has been the publication of the "Physical Education Bulletin" which brings alumni news to the department and carries school news to the graduates. Two large banquets and a "Boy and Girl" party were held during the year in the way of social gatherings, which aim to bring the students into closer relationship.

Outing Club

Outing club is not for the trained athlete alone, but for the unskilled woman who likes such sports as canoeing and ice skating; however, a pin wearer is given fifty points towards W. A. A.

Membership may be obtained by doing ten hours work in any two or more such sports, attending two consecutive meetings and paying dues for a semester. After an additional fifteen hours is done the pin is awarded.

The business meetings are short and few. The spirit is one of friendliness and good times. The fall Hobo Hike and the spring trip to Devil's Lake are the two big events of the year, between which come many little good times.

Hockey 1923

For the first time in the history of hockey at the university class teams were chosen without announcing the squads first. This was done to give the second and third teams an immediate consciousness of being a team and not what was left from the first team.

The class of '25 won the first and second team championships and tied with the class of '26 for the third team championship.

Horseback Riding

With inviting drives and bridle paths threading, traversing the campus and University Farm, and radiating from the University district in every direction, it is not surprising that riding has become one of the most popular forms of athletics for women.

This year regular classes carrying credit toward the physical education requirements are offered through co-operation between the University and the Blackhawk Riding Academy. Beginning, intermediate, and advanced instruction is given, the advanced classes progressing to the point of learning to jump and to use spurs.

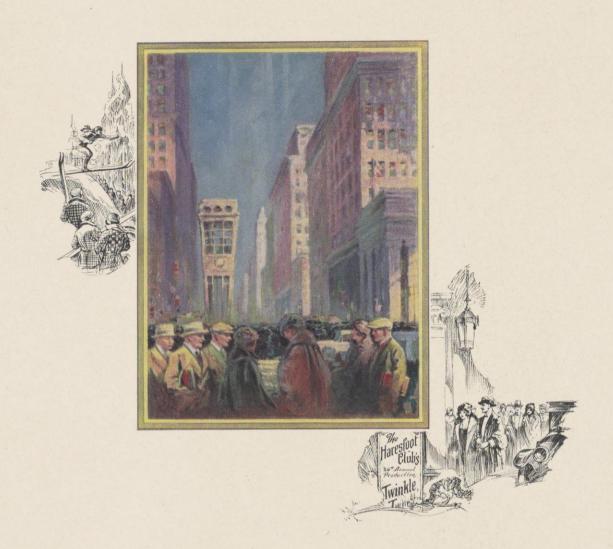

The inter-sorority riding competition, held in connection with the Wisconsin International stock show each winter, and the exhibitions of riding by the women are among the most interesting features of the show.

Women riders also take part, have come this spring to take an increasingly important part in the Military Horse Show to be held on May 24th. At the time of going to press eighty-six women were registered for five classes of events; the three-foot hurdles, open women's three-gaited class, three gaited pair class, five gaited pair class, and the beginner's class.

The Wisconsin Union

Composed of all men students of the University of Wisconsin

With the opening of the Memorial Union building, The Wisconsin Union will provide the opportunity for closer contact and more intimate relations among all men of the University, which will lead to concerted men's spirit. Until the completion of the building, Union board seeks through its program of educational and social activities and the all-university enterprises it promotes to afford just as many of those contacts among men as present conditions will permit. The following features are among the activities sponsored and conducted by Union Board:

Student dances at Lathrop parlors each week-end.

All-university dances two or three times a year.

Union Vodvil, all-university show presented annually.

An annual concert series bringing to Madison some of the world's best musicians.

A series of convocations bringing nationally known speakers.

The University Exposition presented every fourth year, showing every department of the university at work.

The promotion of the Memorial Union fund and the issuance of gold life membership and bronze recognition buttons to subscribers to the Union.

Self-Government Association

The Self-Government Association is an organization of all under-graduate women who are enrolled in the University of Wisconsin. Its purpose is to maintain a high standard of social life on the campus, not only through rules made and enforced by the women themselves, but by providing the finest of social opportunities.

It aims to foster and direct worthy activities and to give voice to the public opinion of all university women on campus problems and problems of wider scope.

It maintains a free typewriter, telephone and library in its office; a girls dancing party on Friday evenings; a discussional group on Saturday evenings; a Junior Advisory System for Freshmen, and a Vocational Conference. To better facilitate the handling of problems pertinent to university women, Self-Government Association has divided into seventeen districts all the women of the university.

The Judicial Committee consists of the president of the Association, three Seniors, three Juniors, and one Sophomore, who are selected from the university at large.

Student Senate

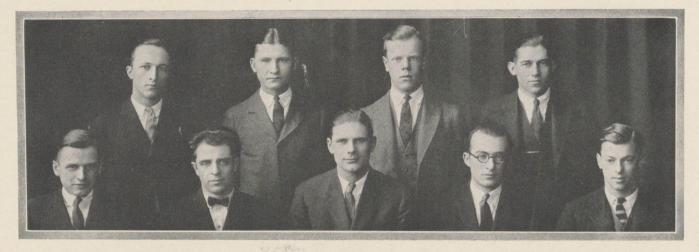

The Student Senate, the governing body of the male students of this University, received its power from a charter granted by the Board of Regents in 1916. The Charter was granted with the idea that the governing of the student body and the expression of student sentiment could better be taken care of by a student legislative body, to be composed of representatives from each class and from the different existing activities.

The Student Court

The authority of the Student Court is contained in a charter granted by the Faculty and Regents of the University in 1910.

The Student Court has original and exclusive jurisdiction in all cases of dicipline of male undergraduates except cases involving dishonesty in University work and flagrant cases of action or behavior so contrary to the welfare of the University as to require immediate consideration. In such flagrant case the Court may recommend to the Faculty Committee on Appeals temporary suspension pending regular trial.

The Student Court is composed of nine members who obtain their office through election from the male student body. The membership of the Court is apportioned as follows: two members each from the Courses of Commerce Engineering, and Letters and Science; and one member each from the College of Agriculture, Law, and Medicine.

THE WISCONSIN SUPREME COURT

Engineers beware! If you were among the uncouth lot who threw snowballs at these great men in the days when they were holding down the steps in front of the law school a few years ago, you cert'nly ought to keep away from the Wisconsin Supreme Court, because five of its sage and solemn judges were ordinary students in the law school here not long ago.

AAD JOHN VINJE, chief justice, graduated from L. and S. in 1884, and from the Law School in 1887.

JUSTICE WALTER C. OWEN graduated with the law class of 1891. JUSTICE BURR W. JONES took his A.B. here in 1870, and his LL.B. in 1871. JUSTICE CHRISTIAN DOEFFLER STUDIED from 1885 to 1885, and several of the legal alumni have recalled how he pitched the law school baseball team to victory over the engineers in the good old days. JUSTICE CHARLES H. CROWNHART left the law school with a sheep-skin in 1889.

It will always be a pleasure for us to give our utmost for these purposes. And we look forward to an era of more complete service when we own and control our own presses and printing plant in the Memorial Union Building.

The Daily Cardinal

On April 4, 1892, the first issue of The Daily Cardinal made its appearance on the campus as the official incorporated student publication, owned and controlled by the student body. Since that morning in 1892 The Daily Cardinal has maintained that policy of being the organ of the students, and has continued to grow until it is a five-column paper of eight to twelve pages with special editions of sixteen to twenty pages.

During the past year many changes have been made on the editorial and business staffs of The Daily Cardinal. A semimonthly Sunday pictorial section was started with four pages of views of persons, campus scenes, and action pictures of athletic games played on the afternoon before. Wisconsin is the first university whose daily paper started a regular pictorial section. A bi-weekly theater page gives the latest news on campus dramatics and Madison plays, and feature articles on the legitimate and motion picture attractions in the country. Each Sunday morning there was an "Arts and Letters" page which gave news of music, books, art news of the coming week, book reviews, fiction forecasts, interviews, travelogues, and original student literary efforts.

The split desk system was installed at the start of the college year whereby each department collects and edits its own news. Society was expanded into a three-column department with matrimonial news, church news, and personals besides the customary society items. Special wire service on Western Conference athletic games was started on the sporting page, and there were several columns" giving the facts from the gym and from Camp Randall. Besides the regular editorials, special articles on world and university problems were written by students for the editorial page. The type for the major headlines was changed from 30 to 24 point type, giving a more conservative appearance to the paper while attractively advertising the news of the day.

In the business office there was a marked increase in advertising and circulation. The total number of inches of advertising for the first semester exceeds that of the first semester of 1922-1923 by approximately 3,000 inches. Circulation increased by 300, and the total circulation was 3,300, including subscriptions from seven foreign countries and every state in the union.

The present goal of The Daily Cardinal is towards the printing establishment and presses which will be installed in the Memorial Union Building in its own plant. At present the mechanical work on the paper is done under a contract with the Capital Times Publishing Company.

Summer Session Edition

The Daily Cardinal

The Daily Cardinal is one of a few college newspapers to be published regularly during the summer session of its university. The Cardinal since 1911 has maintained a summer staff, publishing last year a four-column, eight-page paper every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday afternoon during the term. One thousand of the five thousand summer students here were subscribers to the paper.

Besides current news, the summer edition last year contained an itemized schedule of all summer events, diagrams and discriptions of walks and auto tours about Madison and the four-lake region, a section devoted to the Education department and the hundreds of teachers devoted to the Education department and the hundreds of teachers here for the summer, biographies and personality sketches of the nationally prominent persons attending the session, regular book reviews, and

A standard size issue of twenty-four pages was compiled in conjunction with Union board during the latter part of the session and sent to every freshman entering Wisconsin to give advance general information concerning his future university home

Wisconsin Annuals

The first annual of the University of Wisconsin was issued by the class of '85, and was called "The Trochos," which is an approximate Greek equivalent of the word "Badger." The next Trochos was issued by the class of '88.

The class of '89 issued the first Badger—a book 8x10½ inches, with 196 pages. Although The Badger was sold for fifty cents a copy, considerable opposition was expressed against it. In fact, the law class of '91 withdrew its support and published a rival annual which they called The Ground Hog, claiming that they did not receive enough recognition in the Badger.

The issuing board in '89 consisted of 16 members, and the book, of 196 pages, besides advertisements. By 1909, The Badger contained 600 pages, and the Badger board had increased to 37 members, selected as follows:

- 5 by the hill at large
- 3 by the Engineers
- 2 by each literary society
- 2 by Chadbourne
- 5 by the sororities

This board met and elected the editor and business manager.

"The First Sheet"

The University of Wisconsin Badger

Among the annuals produced in the United States last year the 1924 Badger was awarded third place; it has always since 1884 held high rank. With the opening of the year 1924-5 the way is open to a new high standard both of quality as a book, and of serviceability to Wis-

This new opportunity consists in the recent adoption by the student body of a plan for selecting the staff heads by a system of promotion based on merit and ability, in place of electing them in open election.

The Badger is more than a mere undergraduate diversion and another item to be added to a senior summary. In its lowest terms it is a large enterprise involving the raising and expenditure of several thousands of dollars, and requiring much knowledge of and skill in what has come to be one of the most complex of arts-"the art preservative." In its highest terms it is a setting forth, an appraisal, an interpretation, of all that is significant in a year at the University of Wisconsin-an effective presentation of the real life of the University which is the best refutation of the sensational and generally groundless unfavorable publicity to which the University is being increasingly subjected.

The new order makes possible in practice what has heretofore been true only in theory: a publication administered by trained and experienced people, seriously interested in their work, and conducting it in the light of all the experience of their predecessors; with each issue showing improvement in quality, efficiency of management, and economy.

When we telephoned Mr. Kuehl at the governor's office, several people interrupted our conversation to assure us that Mr. Kuehl is the best and most efficient man who has ever held the position of Executive secretary, Mr. Kuehl being too modest to mention his success.

FRANK KUEHL was the Business Manager of the 1921 Badger and any one who has held that position knows that he ought to be allowed to rest on his laurels for the remainder of his life. Frank has done most everything but rest since then. He has been a superintendent of schools at Iron River, Michigan; he has audited and installed county and municipal systems for the Tax Commissions; he was

WISCONSIN ENGINEER

Founded in 1896, Wisconsin's technical magazine is one of the oldest of campus publications. Entirely technical in its early years, the magazine has since expanded to include material of more general interest to students, without, however, losing its identity as an engineering periodical. The regular monthly publication of the magazine has been maintained continuously since its founding.

The COUNTRY MAGAZIN

Started in 1906 by students in the College of Agriculture, "The Student Farmer" soon became "The Wisconsin Country Magazine." Except for a short time during the World War, the magazine has carried news and articles concerning agriculture and home economics to its readers which include members of the student body, alumni, and farmers' families. At present the magazine serves as a house organ for the agricultural and home economics students in the College of Agriculture.

"The Commerce Magazine" is published monthly by the Commerce Club of the University of Wisconsin. It made its first appearance in February 1917, as a sixteen-page magazine, carrying articles by successful alumni and by student contributors. Today it is a forty-page magazine, well illustrated, and contains articles by leading men in the business world, by faculty members, and student contributors.

The purpose of the "Commerce Magazine" is to present to the students the opportunities in various lines of commercial endeavor and the advice and experience of business men.

"The Commerce Magazine" of Wisconsin is the oldest of the publications of collegiate schools of business.

Preceded by the Aegis which back in 1895 was considered one of the best college literary publications, the Wisconsin Literary Magazine first appeared in its present form in 1903 under the editorship of such men as M. B. Olbrich, Edward S. Jordan, Berton Braley, and Horatio Winslow. Periodic changes followed, but the original purpose of the magazine—to publish the literary efforts of the faculty and student body—has remained essentially unchanged. This past year the magazine's history was marked by many changes in the editorial and business personnel, and new methods in mechanical make-up were introduced, but the editorial policy has remained comparatively unchanged.

The Wisconsin Athletic Review was established three years ago to serve as the official organ of the University Athletic Department. It seeks to promote men's athletics at Wisconsin by influencing high school athletics to enroll here and by stirring up interest among the student body. Six issues are published each school year by the students, who have entire charge of editing the magazine.

Wisconsin-Alumni magazine

Realizing the importance of strengthening co-operative loyalty and increasing individual good-will, the General Alumni Association publishes an official monthly known as The Wisconsin Alumni Magazine. From a few hundred members in the late 90's the General Alumni Association now has reached a membership of nearly ten thousand. These members are included in all classes from 1860 to 1925, are found in every state and possession of the United States, in eight Canadian provinces, and in three dozen foreign countries. No other publication promoting University interests reaches so large a representative, diversified, cosmopolitan list of readers. The Alumni Association is self-sustaining. Its sources of support are annual memberships of $2.00, life memberships of $50.00, and voluntary contributions by members to a Living Endowment Fund and to a Permanent Endowment Fund. In keeping former students in closer touch with each other and with Alma Mater, the Alumni Association through this publication renders a distinct and unique service to the University. Nevertheless the alumni organization rightly feels that the publication is a means to an end rather than an end in itself. Expressed in a word that end is co-operation.

The Wisconsin Law Review, which since 1921 has been published quarterly by the faculty and students of the law school, is intended to subserve two distinct but closely related purposes. Although it is not intended primarily for that purpose it gives an opportunity to students to make special investigations of particular subjects under faculty supervision, the results of which, if adequate are published as notes to recent cases.

Furnishing an opportunity as it does for the discussion of problems of Wisconsin law and general law which are of special interest to the Wisconsin bench and bar it is further intended to aid the scientific development of Wisconsin law by a careful survey of its present condition and tendencies.

DR. ARNOLD GESSELL, '03 Director of Psycho-Clinic, Graduate School Yale University

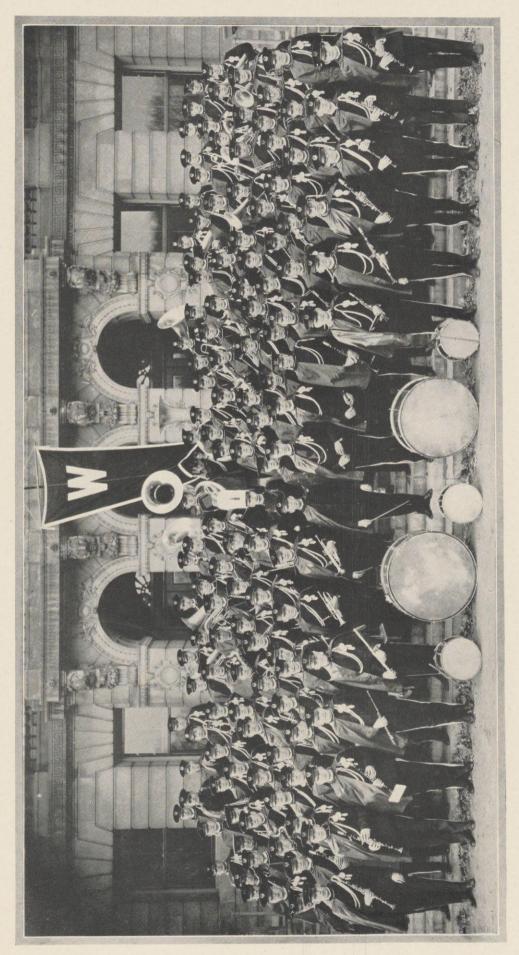

It is hard to believe from the array of activities in which Dr. Gessell participated as a student that he intended in those early days to be a doctor, instead of a lawyer, but possibly he hadn't decided then. He was a member of Athenae and of the Inter-collegiate Debating Team, as well as of Edwin Booth Dramatic Club. He was the Undergraduate editor of the Wisconsin Alumni Magazine, in which he is still interested.

Dr. Gessell, Ph.D. and M.D., is now director of the Psycho-Clinic of the Graduate School, Yale University. He is the author of The Pre-School Child, a text-book relied on by eminent authorities.

PLATFORM AND STAGE

The Combined University Bands

In a rounded out life there is a need for music and an education to be gained through it. It has long been a dream of Mr. E. W. Morphy that the University should meet this need and supply this educational opportunity through its Bands as well as through its books.

With this year this dream has come to pass. When the concerts of the First Regir mental Band were announced without admission charge "town and gown" testified to its appreciation of this opportunity by filling every seat in the Gymnasium. The enthusiastic hearing accorded the Band on its trip to Whitewater suggests that out in the state there is perhaps even greater dearth of and need for good music than in Madison. The next effort of the Band will be to supply this need in the highest degree, both through concert trips and radio broadcasting.

The University Bands consist of two organizations of about sixty men each: The First Regimental Concert Band and the Second Band. While the combined bands are indispensible in many University functions, the primary interest of the Concert Band is the study of the best in classical band literature. The Second Band serves as a training school for musicians, who, as they become more proficient, are advanced to the First Band.

E. EARLE SWINNEY

Assistant Professor of Voice in the School of Music since 1918

Professor Swinney received his B.A. degree in 1911 from Ellsworth College, Iowa Falls, from the conservatory of the same college the degree of M.U.S.B. for work in Piano and Voice. He taught in the San Marcus Baptist Academy, San Marcus, Texas; was for three years Director of Music in the State Normal School, Ellensburg, Washington; and was for two years on the faculty of the School of Music, University of Illinois.

He directs the University Glee Club, the First Baptist choir, and the Madison Women's Club chorus.

University of Wisconsin Men's Glee Club

With Professor E. Earl Swinney as director of the University Men's Glee Club it is recognized as one of the foremost in the Midwest.

In its first year of singing in contests with eleven other Glee Clubs of middle western universities in Orchestra Hall, Chicago, February 9, 1923, the Wisconsin Club was awarded first place by the Intercollegiate Glee Club Association. In the second contest of the Association on February 18, 1924, Wisconsin tied with Illinois for fourth place.

Last year as a result of having won first place, it sang in Carnegie Hall, New York, as a guest of the Intercollegiate Glee Club Corporation. Placing sixth in this competition with Eastern clubs, which have contested for ten years, is evidence of the worth and ability of the organization.!

He holds professional diplomas of various kinds; he is an associate of the Royal College of England, a Fellow of the American Guild of Organists.

Dr. Mills is at present working to establish a graduate school of Music which will in every way measure up to the standard of the other graduate departments of the University.

Women's Glee Club

As a sister organization to the Men's Glee Club, it is spreading the gospel of better music, and playing its part in Wisconsin's bid for musical distinction.

The two concerts given each year by the Club under the direction of Dr. C. H. Mills, are real musical achievements indicative of the aim which the group has to raise the standard of musical taste in the community and on the campus.

The effective leadership of Peter W. Dykema, national supreme president of Phi Mu Alpha and an active member of the local chapter, has been instrumental in putting the fraternity upon a firmly organized basis.

Sinfonia brings American artists to the concert stage of Madison every year, entertains annually in a concert by its members playing American Compositions, and in the spring of 1923 inaugurated an annual Interfraternity song contest to the winner of which a traveling cup is awarded.

Mu Phi Epsilon

Mu Phi Epsilon is the only national musical honorary fraternity for women. Her purpose as a national organization is to spread the appreciation of good music, to assist in the development of real American artists, and to foster harmony in relation to all phases of life. She carries out her aims by a system of scholarships, composition contests, and by furnishing definite support to all things worth while in music.

Mu Lambda, the local chapter, works for the same result in a smaller way. Among the musical appearances made by the chapter during the year, are the formal public garden recital, the reception-recital given for the faculty, the act in Union Vodvil, and monthly programs for members and friends.

Patrons who assist in the efforts of the sorority are: Dr. and Mrs. Mills, exofficio, Prof. and Mrs. Dykema, Prof. and Mrs. Gordon, and Dean and Mrs. James.

The Haresfoot Dramatic Club

SIDNEY R. THORSON, Manager

TWO typical American youths, the one the dreamer who finds his romance in the books he writes and the other the happy-go-lucky individual to whom all sorts of adventures are a daily occurence, are transported to a secluded planet "the other side of the sun" where Earth planet "the other side of the sun" where Earth and earthly ways are not known,—and as a result there is "Twinkle Twinkle," Haresfoot's twenty-sixth annual show, filled with humorous satire, intriguing plot, and complicated situation. Thousands of alumni in the middle west await the coming of the spring show as the crowning achievement of the undergraduate effort. In "Twinkle Twinkle" every preceding effort of the club was far surpassed.

More than one hundred and fifty students were required at various times throughout the school year to prepare the production for school year to prepare the production for presentation. Perhaps more than any other college dramatic organization in America, the Haresfoot club's productions are the results of student effort. Professional work has been reduced to the minimum. Even the scenery and lighting effects this year were conceived and executed entirely by students. For the first time in years no assistant dancing coach was employed, and E. Mortimer Shuter, Haresfoot's coach, was assisted by experienced Haresfoot members themselves.

Several distinct achievements were inaugurated by the Haresfoot club during 1924. The establishment of dancing classes for men at the university during the first semester enabled interested students to learn the rudiments of solo and stage dancing. At times during the year more than two hundred men attended these classes which were held during the year more than two hundred men attended these classes which were held twice a week. From the men attending it was possible to select a group of trained dancers. Another advance was the purely competitive basis upon which the choice of the book and the music was made. Synopses of the book were submitted during the 1922-23 university session and from the thirteen contestants, three were urged to finish a play for further competition. In the music contest, instead of basing the competition for music upon the entire score as in former years, the competition was on the basis of individual numbers. The music for "Twinkle Twinkle," therefore, is the resultant effort of five of the most talented undergraduate musicians the most talented undergraduate musicians.

Haresfoot is now looking to 1925. Progress and further perfection are the permanent ideals of the club.

Dramatic activity goes much deeper than the mere giving of a play. The stage is influencing the American public to such an extent that it should be offering only the best. The purpose of the dramatic organizations on our campus is to experiment so that they may offer to the professional stage the desirable results of their efforts; to educate the rising generations so that they may appreciate the true mission of the theatre; and to develop the character of plays so that the sordid influences which are creeping onto our stage may be combated.

Professor Gertrude Johnson is typical of this spirit. Fearless in her denunciation of undesirable features, and first to encourage a good influence, she is one of the most outstanding figures in the non-professional dramatic world today. Miss Johnson is Vice-President of the National Collegiate Players, and author of Choosing a play, Modern Readings For Oral Interpretation, and other authoritative works.

The contributions of students to the accomplishments of Wisconsin dramatic activity is worthy of mention. Since the time of Stanley McCandless, '19, the mechanical and artistic element of the stage has been enriched by a group of students who probably received much of their inspiration from the work of Professor Varnum of the Applied Arts Department. Sidney Thorson, '25, has done an outstanding piece of work in his settings for "Twinkle Twinkle" this year. The results of his work are as fitting an example of consistency in stage designing as could possibly be found. The broad vision of the whole production is carried out in every element of his work. Another example of the constructive work which students are doing is in the stage make-up classes under the supervision of Miss Johnson.

But it is in Wisconsin Alumni that the best results of dramatic training is evidenced. Speech and Dramatic departments are rapidly becoming a standard unit in High Schools. It is important that proper instruction in these fields be given, and here our Alumni are spreading the influence of the campus into every field, from the high school to Broadway. It is interesting to note that the leaders in dramatic activity on the campus of bygone days are still "Torchbearers" in their respective fields.

PROFESSOR JAMES FRANCIS AUGUSTINE PYRE, B. L., '92, Ph. D. '97 Professor of English University of Wisconsin

First as a student, later as an instructor, assistant professor, associate professor, and Professor of English, James Prancis Augustine Pyre has struck deep his impression on Wisconsin. They have given much to each other. The vitality and broadness of interest which characterized his undergraduate days have carried over into this professorial career. A man of many contacts, wide sympathies, and forward-looking views is our "Sunny". We couldn't get along with out him or his smile. As one of the most active members of the Curtain Club his energies and talents are given unsparingly to dramatics. The interest which made him a charter member of Haresfoot has continued throughout the years of success the club has known. A football hero in college, as well as a Phi Bete, he is now chairman of the Athletic Council, and Secretary of the Western Conference. Among a long list of literary productions we mention only his Wisconsin a brilliant and thorough-going history of the university, and collaboration of Students' Handbook of English Literature, and Century Readings in English Literature.

GLADYS BORCHERS, B. A., '21 Head of Speech Department Rockford Women's College

According to tradition, the woman must always have the last word. MISS BORCHERS is doing her part in upholding this tradition by filling the place of head of the Speech Department at Rockford Women's college, where she instructs the women of the coming generation in the use of fluent, graceful speech. We predict that the graduates of Rockford will be skilled in debate and oratory, ready to fill political positions of importance.

While she was in the university, Miss Borchers was prominent in dramatic and forensic work, and in 1921 she represented Wisconsin in the Northern Oratorical Contest. She was a member of Keystone, Pythia Literary Society, and of Red Domino, before that society affiliated with the Wisconsin Players. She has been at Rockford continuously since her graduation from the university.

The year of his graduation from Wisconsin, Mr. Reis won the N. O. L. for Wisconsin, and he was the editor-in-chief of the Daily Cardinal in the same year. While he was in school he was in the Joint Debate and in the Intercollegiate debate and served as President of Philomathia. Mr. Reis has the distinction of being the first president of Artus.

He writes to the Badger, "Unfortunately, glory has failed to characterize my career since graduation." But this is undoubtedly a bit too modest, for since his graduation has received an LL.B. from Harvard Law school, and is now Assistant Attorney General of Wisconsin.

Mr. Reis during the world war was a Major in the Air Service, United States Army, and participated with his squadron in the Airsne-Marne, Saint-Mihiel, and Meuse-Argonne offensives.

Mr. Davis in his student days was semipublic orator, Junior Orator at Commencement, second in the Final Oratorical contest, Commencement orator, Class Day orator, Intercollegiate debater, president of the Oratorical association, and secretary of the Northern Oratorical League.

For four years immediately following graduation he was Prosecuting Attorney for Jefferson county and for five years after that was a member of a law firm practicing in Madison. In the campaign of 1912, Mr. Davies was western manager for the Democratic party to elect Woodrow Wilson as president and was also secretary of the National Democratic committee. In 1913 he was appointed Commissioner of Corporations of the United States. Under his direction the Federal Trade Commission act was drafted and upon the enactment of the law, he was named by President Wilson as the first Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission.

During the war he was in charge of governmental agencies that secured basic costs in raw materials which the Government required, and he participated in the price-fixing activities of the War Trade board. In 1919 during the Versailles convention, he spent several weeks in Paris on special mission. Since that time he has been engaged in the practice of law with offices in Wisconsin and Washington, D. C. In the year 1920 to 1921 he was General Counsel for the Government of Mexico in the United States. In 1923 he was counsel for the Government of Peru in the arbitration proceedings before the President of the United States involving the Tacna and Arica controversy between Chile and Peru. JOHN BRINDLEY, '74 County Judge

Mr. Brindley was one of the pioneer presidents of Athenae. He took part in more strenuous activities as well, being a successful participant in wrestling, running, and broad jumping contests.

In 1878 he was elected to the state legislature and served two years. He became known as "father of compulsory education" in Wisconsin by introducing and having passed the first bill on that subject. In 1807 he was elected County Judge, a position which he still holds. By special act of the legislature his court was given jurisdiction over all juvenile matters, and all criminal cases to a certain point.

Judge Brindley then made a special study of juvenile court work and introduced many innovations in this field, particularly in the paroling of delinquent children. This has been his main line of endeavor and so in addition to his own court work he has been called upon to do a great deal of lecturing on this subject throughout Wisconsin. He has served on the Visiting Board of the University as state delegate to the Social Service society in Portland, Oregon. Judge Brindley has sent his four sons to the University and has always maintained a keen interest in the institution.

Mr. Barber, at Wisconsin, was active in Hesperia. Since graduation he has been, like "Benny" Snow, a searcher in the realms of pyhsics, though Mr. Barber combines with the professorship of physics the duties of Dean at Ripon college.

Ripon has been his home ever since he received his first degree from the university. He went there in 1901 as assistant principal of the high school, spent a year in Washington with the Bureau of Standards of the United States Department of Commerce and Labor, and came back to act as professor of physics at Ripon college in 1906.

The Bureau of Standards employs many menfrom Ripon, and for the past 17 years Professor Snow has employed several Ripon graduates as amember of the American Physics Society, of the Wisconsin Academy of Sciences, of Arts and Letters, of the American Association of University Professors, and of Sigma Xi. He has been a member of Ripon City Council since 1916.

The Agricultural Literary Society is the oldest student organization in the agricultural college. For nineteen years it has been holding meetings every Friday night for the purpose of discussing the important agricultural and economic topics of the day. Training in parliamentary practices, in de-bating, and in discussions is part of the purpose of the society.

E. L. LUTHER, B. S A., '12 Superintendent of Farmers' Institutes, Wisconsin

During his senior year at Wisconsin, Professor Luther was president of the Agricultural Literary society and was instrumental in putting it on the road to success. He is now Superintendent of Farmers' Institutes, Supervisor of County Agents, and Supervisor of Agricultural Extension courses and schools. In the picture he is shown as Wisconsin's first County Agent in his demonstration plots on the fair grounds at Rhinelander. Mr. Luther now organizes and directs about 400 farmers' meetings each year.

Miss Dillingham was active in Castalia Literary society at Wisconsin.

During the first ten years after leaving college Miss Dillingham taught in the Rhinelander, Grand Rapids, Berlin, and Sheboygan high schools. She then took a semester's graduate work at the University of California.

Then came the big move, a call to the Orient—and Miss Dillingham went to Korea, Japan, as a missionary for the Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the Meth odist Episcopal church. The first few years were spent in an isolated country station. She was then principal of a union high school in Pyeng Yang.

In 1918 Miss Dillingham came to America to take her M. A. degree at Columbia University. She returned to Korea where she experienced the joys and disappointments of founding a new institution, but at the end of four years a full four year high school for Methodist girls was established.

This picture indicates that Mrs. Good is probably as busy a young matron as she was a young college girl a few years ago.

While "Ruth Roberts" was at Wisconsin, she was a member of the Pythia Literary society, the Daily Cardinal staff, the Cardinal Board of Control, the Badger Board, class vice-president, and the Self-government Association Joint committee. In addition to her duties in connection with these activities Mrs. Good found time to acquire a B.A. degree.

Before her marriage, she was the curator of the museum of the Minnesota Historial society.

GAMBER F. TEGTMEYER

Being chosen as the student of 1924 whose name should be engraved on the world of the Kenneth Sterling Day memorial, Gamber F. Tegtmeyer brought to a climax the many outside activities in which he had taken part during his college career. He was editor-in-chief of the 1924 Badger during his junior year and president of the University Y. M. C. A. during his senior year. He was selected as the Rhodes scholar for Wisconsin early in the spring. He is a member of Alpha Chi Rho fraternity, Phi Beta Kappa, Phi Kappa Phi, and Iron Cross.

The Y. M. C. A. in a student community performs a unique function. It directly meets many immediate student needs; in the process life-philosophies are formed, experimented upon, and the results tested. To secure the first of these ends the program is planned; to secure the second it is largely carried out, not by paid secretaries, but by students themselves.

These phases of student life are emphasized in the "Y" program: assistance in personal problems; promotion of social contacts; and religious development. In the confused days of arrival new students are met at trains, their baggage checked, room lists provided and information concerning registration introduction given. The "Frosh Bible" distributed at this time gives a comprehensive view to the university and its activities and traditions.

The problems more serious than first-week confusion are met by two important "Y" services: student illness, and low funds.

The "Y" maintains a victrola and records several subscriptions to the Daily Cardinal, and a number of books at the University Infirmary for the use of men patients; and each day a "Y" man calls on each patient to render any service that may add to comfort or convenience. The employment office furnished 1,647 temporary and permanent jobs, checks were cashed to the amount of $67,482, and $4,800 was loaned to students during the current year from September to March.

Social activities began with two mixers and the Frosh Banquet during the first week of school. On the night before the Michigan football game, 150 "Y" men, fathers, and faculty men joined in a dinner in celebration of national Father's Week, at which Dr. Charles W. Gilkey of Chicago was the speaker and guest of honor. The annual Christmas party to Madison children maintained the tradition of one of joy unconfined—not of all of which was confined to the children.

Opportunity for mutual service and appreciation between foreign and American students was presented by a reception, at the home of President Birge, arranged for November, and the second annual "Trip Around the World" presented at Lathrop parlors in April.

Fellowship meetings on Tuesday evenings and discussional groups led by university professors and prominent Madison men culminated in the All-university Religious Conference led by Dr. G. Sherwood Eddy, on February 29 and March 1 and 2.

He writes that there is no great spirit for peace in Europe—only in the splendid attitude of the students of the new generation lies Europe's hope for peace and common understanding.

Dr. G. Sherwood Eddy

Dr. G. Sherwood Eddy, international secretary of the Y. M. C. A. in Asia, spoke at the annual all-university religious conference held on February 29, March 1, and 2. He was graduated from the Yale Engineering school, but he worked among the native students of India for fifteen years. During the World war he worked with the troops on the French front. Since then he has visited twenty-three countries interviewing political, industrial, commercial, and religious leaders in order to find out their opinions on world conditions.

The Place of the Religious Conference in the Life of the University

One of the outstanding purposes of the University is to train students to think and thus prepare them to grapple with the problems they are preparing to meet in after life. We are training men to attack the problems of agriculture, of commerce, of medicine, of law, of science and of all of the other fields of human knowledge. We are trying to prepare men for leadership in these various fields of human activity. However, under the wise provision of our constitution, which separates church and state, it is legally impossible in the university curriculum to train students to deal with religious problems. Yet religion is a vital force that must be faced by every man eager to confront the realities of life. The most ardent opponents to the recognition of religion, by the very intensity of their efforts, admit its fundamental reality.

At least once a year every student of the university ought frankly to face the problem of what attitude he will take towards the forces of religion. He should be brought to ponder deeply the relationship of spiritual reality to the development of his character and the formulation of his life plan. The purpose of the religious conference is to bring students face to face with these problems, to get them to realize the reality of spiritual experience, to get them more intelligently to interpret for themselves the real significance of religion, and finally to give a constructive expression to these spiritual forces in the development of character, and in the formulation of an adequate philosophy of life.

THE REGIMENT OF CADETS

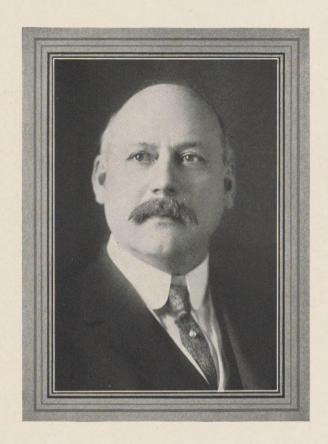

[&]quot;To do ALL that may be required to achieve and cherish a just and lasting peace among ourselves and with all nations."

—Lincoln's Second Inaugural Address

THE SECRETARY OF WAR

the Reserve Officers' Training Corps has become a valuable and necessary training project of the Army of the United States. This military training of young men was formerly a preparation for indefinite service and uncertain assignment. Now it is the preparation for definite assignment as officers of an organized Citizen Army. After they receive their commissions, they will be given an opportunity to join reserve units, organized in the neighborhood of their homes. They will know what is to be expected of them in case of mobilization. They will have a clear status in the general scheme of national defense, and a more precise understanding of the obligations they may be expected to fulfill.

"When he joins his unit, the graduate of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps will undoubtedly find that enrolled therein are older men of his acquaintance who have served in the World War. It will be a part of his duty to receive from them and to transmit to the future, the experience and the traditions of our great democratic army of 1918. He will join his unit as a junior officer; but continued service and experience may bring him promotion to positions of both great civic and military responsibility.

The training of R. O. T. C. units has been designed with a view to both the individual and national welfare. The nation benefits by the fact that its citizens have thus secured valuable fundamental preparation for the time of national emergency. The individuals profit by instruction which is calculated to improve the physique, add to their poise, provide practice in leadership and improve the ideals of citizenship.

"The University of Wisconsin has cause to be proud of the record of its R. O. T. C. For six years the War Department has rated the University as a distinguished college, and in its military activities it has long been one of the leading institutions. The students of the University have it within their power to continue the military prestige established by the older graduates or to permit that example to be lost.

"My best wishes are extended to all the students of the University. To those who have elected military training I add the further wish that they may be fully rewarded by that satisfaction which comes from realization of unselfish service."

John Kurs

THE CHIEF OF STAFF

THE National Defense Act of 1920 is in reality a national insurance policy. It provides for a permanent organization of citizens to protect the nation in times of disaster such as war, earthquake, fire or flood. When a great catastrophe occurs, like the World War or the appaling earthquake in Japan, resort is always had to military organization to meet the emergency, because military organization is the most effective method yet devised of coordinating the energies of many men in united action for the achievement of a common purpose.

In the maintenance of this organization for national insurance the Reserve Officers' Training Corps is a fundamental factor. The results of united action of large groups of men are largely determined by the quality of their leadership. Therefore the success of our new national insurance policy depends on the working of the machinery by which powers of real leadership are discovered and developed. While regular college curricula often reveal and strengthen powers of intellectual leadership, they do not as a rule supply the conditions which cause dynamic leaders of men in action to emerge and win recognition.

It is the purpose of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps to discover and train men who can lead in struggles against forces of ruin—self-disciplined men who see duty calmly and clearly and do it without hesitation in every emergency in life. Reserve Officers' Training Corps training adds to college train-· ing essential elements of discipline in managing men, in team play, in courage and in soldierly character. Until education has devised methods more effective than the military for developing these virtues, the Reserve Officers' Training Corps will continue to be a unique opportunity for every young man to develop himself for national service and to lay firm foundations for personal growth.

John Hershing

MAJOR O. L. BRUNZELL, F.A.

Major O. L. Brunzell, Field Artillery, relieved Major Wood as Commandant and Professor of Military Science and Tactics at the University of Wisconsin at the beginning of the academic year 1923-24.

Major Brunzell was graduated from the United States Military Academy at West Point June 15, 1904. He has been in the domestic and foreign service of the Army ever since, serving as Colonel of the 313th Field Artillery of the 80th Division in the World war.

The Reserve Officers' Training Corps

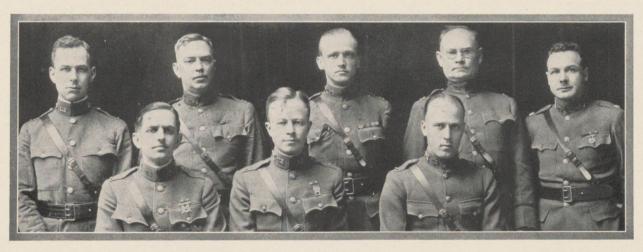

A S a result of the War Department General Staff inspection, held on May 20, 1923, the University of Wisconsin was, for the sixth time, rated as a "Distinguished College." This is an honor accorded but few universities and colleges throughout the United States.

The high standing of the Military Department has been due in great part to the general interest and willingness to co-operate of every man in the Corps of Cadets. It may be predicted with confidence that a continuation of this spirit will keep the university among the leaders in the important work of training men for the national defense.

The leaders of our people in peace or war come, to a large extent, from our college men. Until there is definite assurance of the impossibility of future wars, it would seem that a training which better prepares these men for such an emergency should be of extreme importance to the nation. The Reserve Officers' Training Corps is so considered by the War Department; and the University of Wisconsin, in this work as in other fields of endeavor, has long been foremost among the colleges of the country.

Optional Military Training

ON THE passage of the bill through the State Legislature to make Military Training optional at the University, the Corps faced one of the most critical years of its history. This year must necessarily show the government that the students still desire a R. O. T. C. unit at Wisconsin.

Through the efforts of the Commandant and his assistants a very good enrollment was obtained at the beginning of the school year. The men once in the Corps showed a spirit of co-operation and desire to work which helped the Corps to go through its work and activities with much success.

With slightly decreased numbers but unlimited spirit the men are out for the "Distinguished College" rating again this spring. This same winning spirit will undoubtedly prove that Wisconsin wants a Cadet Corps and that optional military training has been a great success.

CAL C. CHAMBERS Colonel Officers' Reserve Corps Executive Officer, Culver Military Academy

COLONEL CHAMBERS, after leaving the University, joined the Ohio National Guard and served on the Mexican border during the trouble there. At the outbreak of the World War he went abroad and served in the A. E. F. for the duration of the war.

He was wounded the day before the Armistice; receiving three silver citation stars for heroism in action, the Distinguished Service Cross of the United States, the Croix de Guerre of France, and the War Cross of Belgium.

He was appointed colonel in September, rising to this rank from the grade of private in six years. He took up his present duties as Executive Officer at Culver upon being relieved by the War Department. The picture shows Colonel Chambers receiving the Distinguished Service Cross from General Pershing.

President's Guard

The President's Guard was formed in 1920 by Cadet Major Russell, Cadet Major Caluwaert, and Cadet Captain Leuning. It was formed primarily for the purpose of fostering an increased interest in military drill among the underclassmen. During the four years of its extistence it has adhered to that purpose, scheduling competitions with other institutions. Membership in the guard is strictly competitive in all grades. Because of the increasing membership and proficiency of the Guard each year, its red and white fouragerre cord has become a coveted possession in the R. O. T.C.

Mr. Durry during his school days was president of the graduating class of 1910, was a member of the Intercollegiate and Joint Debate teams, and also a member of the university cross country team.

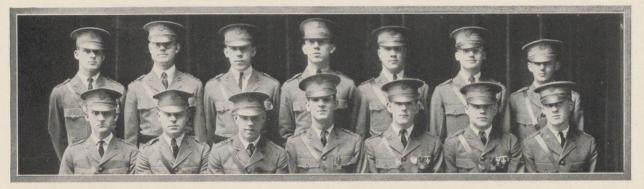

The Guard had not yet been organized—or Mr. Duffy would, we are sure, have been "all present or accounted for."

L. HEIDEN

W. BARDEEN

Quoting from Mr. Duffy's letter, "Except for having been State Commander of the American Legion this past year, I have done nothing extraordinary. I served in the Army for twenty-five months, being discharged with the rank of Major. I also had fifteen months service overseas." Fifteen months overseas—well, so that's his idea of doing nothing!

THE University of Wisconsin Rifle Club was organized in 1919 for the purpose of forming an organization from which the Varsity Rifle Team could be selected. Only members of the Rifle Club are eligible for the team. Elections to the club are based on the results of competitive try-outs in markmanship conducted at specified times. The President of the Rifle Club also holds the place as Captain of the Rifle Team. The Club is affiliated with the National Rifle Association of America and has held a charter for three years. Any male student of the university is eligible for membership in the club provided he can pass the markman-

Rifle Club and Team

At the conclusion of the gallery season, the Club awards gold emblems to members of the varsity team. Men who have served one year receive a gold bullet. Second year men are awarded gold keys. Shooting is done with 22 calibre Winchester rifles in the armory range. Each team member is issued a rifle for his own individual use throughout the year and ammunition is provided also. Outdoor shooting with the 30 calibre rifles is carried on at the outdoor tion is provided also. Outdoor shooting with the 30 cambre times a carbon range in the stone quarry.

The club has built up a strong reputation for turning out rifle teams ranking with the best in the United States. The team has won the Sixth Corps Area matches for three years in succession. Last year it also won the Intercollegiate R.O.T.C. Championship of the United States. This year it has fostered shoulder to-shoulder events with such schools as Northwestern University, Ripon College, and St. John's Military Academy, and won second place at the state meet held in Milwaukee, losing first place only by two points.

Rifle Instruction for Women

Rifle instruction for women was added to the curriculum of the university in November, 1923. Women became really interested—the enrollment reached about ninety, and approximately twenty per cent of the women enrolled became excellent shots, seventy per cent developed into good shots, and the remainder into fair shots. The regular army twenty-two caliber rifle was used.

A varsity team was chosen the first year which competed in three meets. The team won from Oklahoma Agricultural College and from the Branch College of the University of California, but lost to Nebraska.

Many veterans are expected back next year and, with an earlier start a much more extensive schedule is planned.

The Annual War Department Inspection

The annual inspection by the War Department Staff held in May, 1923, resulted again in the award to the University of Wisconsin of the "Distinguished College" rating, again entitling the members of the Corps to wear the gold star on the left sleeve of the uniform. The University of Wisconsin has been awarded this rating following the annual inspections for the years 1915, 1916,1920, 1921, 1922, and 1923.

The annual inspection is the culmination of the year's work in the Department of Military Science and Tactics. The crowds which line the lower campus and fill the Library steps on the afternoons the regimental reviews are held, consider these drills the principal feature of the department's work.

This impression, of course, is far from correct. Every phase of a soldier's duties are demonstrated by the various units of the regiment. For example, a complete set of defenses are constructed, including trenches, a machine gun emplacement, an observation post, shelters, and communication trenches.

Artillery units work out firing problems, taking actual terrain and probable situations and preparing all the computations necessary for firing on an enemy not visible from the gun position. The signal corps demonstrates the various types of visual signaling and transmits messages by telephone field stations and radio.

Not the least important are the measures for the safety and comfort of the men themselves, including first aid, proper erection, packing, and carrying of equipment, and all that a man in the field, largely dependent on himself for everything he needs, must know.

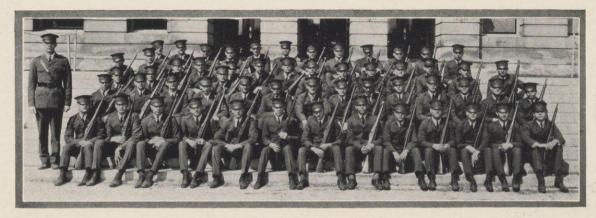

The training of the R. O. T. C. is of a nature which would not produce in any man a desire for war—but which would, in case he were called upon in a national emergency, as men have been called upon in the past, materially increase his chances of effective service and safe return.

The University of Wisconsin Pistol Team

The pistol team of the University of Wisconsin was first organized to take part in the National Intercollegiate Pistol Matches arranged by the War Department. Since the formation of the pistol team at Wisconsin, intercollegiate competition has expanded to such an extent that the Wisconsin team competes with practically all the leading colleges and universities in the United States that have pistol teams.

Although Wisconsin has never captured first honors, her team has always finished toward the head of the list of entries. In the summer of 1923 at Camp Knox, Kentucky, Bowman K. Breed, '24, of the University of Wisconsin Pistol Team, defeated all competitors entered from the universities of the middle West; the Wisconsin team finishing in second place.

> DR. BERTRAM SIPPY Physician

Doctor Stept apparently has an excellent secretary who signs herself Mabel L. Sippy, and it is to her that we owe the honor of this picture. It is fortunate for the 1925 Badger that there is a Mrs. Bettram Sippy.

Doctor Sippy attended the University of Wisconsin from 1884 to 1887, but it seems that his education had only begun when he left here. Since then, he has taken his M.D. at Rush Medical College, served as an interne in the Cooke County Hospital of Chicago, and studied in the Universities of Vienna and of Berlin. He is now practicing medicine in Chicago, is surgeon for the Northern Pacific Railroad, and is a professor of medicine at Rush Medical College.

Mr. Bleyer is a member of a pioneer family which has been connected with Milwaukee newspapers for nearly three-quarters of a century. His own newspaper work began in the circulation department of the Milwaukee Sentinal. He was Editor-in-chief of the Daily Cardinal in his sophomore year and of the Badger in his Junior year, and of the Aegis, the predecessor of the Wisconsin Literary Magazine, in his Senior year.

He has the distinction of being the Professor of Journalism in longest continuous service in any college or university in the country, having given the first course in Journalism at the University of Wisconsin in 1905-06.

Mr. Bleyer was twice president of the American Association of Teachers of Journalism, was one of the founders, and is now president, of the Association of American Schools and Departments of Journalism, and Honorary National President of Sigma Delta Chi. He is a member of the Committee on Distribution of International News, the Press Congress of the World, Phi Beta Kappa, Phi Kappa Phi, and is an honorary member—the only male member to be elected—of Theta Sigma Phi.

male member to be elected—of Theta Sigma Phi.

Mr. Bleyer is the author of four text-books on journalism; his Newspaper Writing and Editing, first edition in 1913, revised edition in 1923, the most widely used textbook in journalism in colleges and universities; his How to Write Special Feature Articles, the only book covering this field.

The Agricultural College Federation was founded in 1919, for the purpose of promoting and unifying the student activities in the College of Agriculture. The functioning body of the federation is the executive board, which is composed of one representative of each recognized organization in the college, delegates from the faculty, and representatives from the student body at large.

Dr. Frost originated the idea of the "Hygiene Committee" at the University, probably the first in the United States, and was a member of this committee until it gave way to the "Medical Adviser" whose appointment was the result of its recommendation.

degree of Doctor of Public Health from Harvard university.

He prepared, with the aid of Miss Hunt of the Home Economics department, one of the first "Tuberculosis Exhibits" in the country which was sent to many places in the state and to the International Congress on Tuberculosis in Washington, D. C., in 1908.

Dr. Frost was one of the incorporators of the State Anti-tuberculosis associations and of the Madison Anti-tuberculosis which has built and is maintaining the Morningside sanatorium near Lake Monona.

The slogan of this club is "To train leaders for rural community service." This is accomplished by sending the members out to rural community meetings to give agri-cultural talks and to render humorous selections and musical numbers. The members of the club served as play day leaders in the fall of the year in eastern Dane County, and directed the play-days in western Dane County in the Spring. Each year the club presents on the campus its annual "Punkin Holler Community Meetin," the proceeds of which pay all extension expenses.

Dean James came to Wisconsin ten years ago as Professor of Agricultural Education, and he has ever since retained his interest in that work. In 1918 he became, in addition, assistant dean of the college. Dean James' interest in education has naturally made him a large factor in the work of Country Life clubs, Ag Triangle, and all the other movements which seek to make country life more enjoyable as well as farm work more efficient.

Wisconsin Saddle and Sirloin Club

The Wisconsin Saddle and Sirloin Club, organized in 1920, came as the result of a desire among leading students in the College of Agriculture to learn as much as possible about live-stock production and livestock practices. The "Wisconsin International," an annual stock show, is held each spring. The proceeds from this exposition are used in financing the live-stock judging teams which represent the University of Wisconsin at the International Livestock Show at Chicago; the National Dairy Show; the Dairy Congress; and the American Royal Livestock Show at Kansas City, Missouri.

The Wisconsin Dairy Stock judging team competed at the Dairy Congress held at Waterloo, Iowa, September 24, 1923, and the National Dairy Show at Syracuse, New York, October 5, 1923. The team was composed of the following men:

Prof. R. S. Hulce, coach; Harvey Becker, '25; Verlyn Sears, '24; Byron Heal, '24; and Lester Caldwell, '24.

The Wisconsin International Livestock judging team competed at the American Royal Livestock Show at Kansas City, Missouri, November 17, 1923, and the International Livestock Exposition at Chicago, December 1, 1923. The team was composed of the following men:

S. D. Sims, coach; S. H. Sabin, '24; Harold Murphy, '24; I. M. Benson, '24; Lester Caldwell, '24; Byron Heal, '24; F. D. Crutcher, '25; alternate and Harry Wood, '25, alternate.

Those who say that university degrees stand for nothing but four years of thoughtless good times, haphazard study, and the formation of careless mental habits are speaking without adequate knowledge of what comes after graduation in the lives of the "coeds" they so glibly censure. Miss Schonnpeld, directly after graduation, went to the "Spa," at Waukesha, a diabetic and nephritic sanitarium, where she holds the position of laboratory technician—and likes it.

When she was in school Miss Schoenfeld was a member of the A. F. C. Board, of Euthenics club, and served on the Country Mag and on the Y. W. C. A. cabinet.

Ce cercle a été organisé pour offrir aux étudiants l'occasion d'entendre parler français, et de se perfectionner eux-memes dans la conversation. Ils ont aussi l'avantage d'entendre des con-férences, des causeries littéraires données par des professeurs. Les réunions ont lieu tous les quinze jours. Chaque année, le Cercle prépare deux pièces importantes.

Dónde están los españoles y las españolas de la universidad de Wisconsin? Escuchen Vds. y se lo diré a Vds. Se encuentran en las salas de Lathrop Hall cada quince dias, donde se divierten por una hora. A veces tienen música especial o algún con-ferencista, o aún una drama pequeño. Pero no deben Vds. creer que son verdaderos españoles poreue son los americanos que se interesán en la lengua española.

Antony and Cleopatra A La Mode

By ALICE W. PAZOUR

ACT I.

Scene: The college room of Mark Antony and Enabarbus. Mark Antony reclines on a couch languidly blowing little rings of smoke from his W pipe. If Valentino could only borrow that pose! Eno is at the table gloomily poring over a Physics book. With a muttered—sign (?) he throws the book at Mark's picture of Cleopatra. (The sight of such a face would cause a war between the Universals and Paramounts!) She doesn't even wince!

ENABARBUS:

Rest there, you book of Physics, rest! Until The Wintry Snow doth give to me a con! I care not! Since tonight I have such blues Compared to which e'en final bluebooks pale! For the fair Charmian has slipped her date For reasons which I hesitate to tell. That campus organization where women Do flout the rights of man and try to oust Us from all power; these A. S. G's. whom some Do rightly call Associated Siren Girls And 'tis because tonight they meet that I Am treated thus!

MARK ANTONY:

Ah, bunkie dear, please be not sore at me If I seem over frank! But here's the why She broke the date. Your line, old top, they found Was used among the subjects of King Tut!

Eno (sarcastically):

Mark: (His chest size increasing visibly.)

Of course, I'm far too modest to tell all!

I don't know why, old chap, but they just fall

When on me they do look! Take Cleopatra there—
The pick of Lipton's tea-hounds did their worst
To win from her a glance—but I—oh well—
I smiled—she came; and thus tonight she breaks
Three dates just to go out with this Heartbreaker!

ENO:

O say—Mark pray Silence that telephone!

MARK (at the telephone):

Cleo, yes how—what's that? I can't hear right Because—Why Cleo dear, it can't be true!

Because the A. S. G's. do meet? Oh—!

(Bang!)

ENO:

And what's the matter now, friend Mark? They fall so hard—for—A. S. G.!

MARK

Eno, lay low! For four long years
We've shared your wallet and my Tux,
But if, by jove, your lips let fall
Another crack in that same tone,
I'll silence them forever!

MARK:

By Jove, I've got it!

ENO

For love of Mike—Desist, I say! You Know I haven't said a thing. Lay off! But if You crave a little exercise—Let's go!

MARK

O, hush, poor Eno, hush! When great minds do With inspiration flame, let them who lack Such qualities, sit silent and admire!

ENO:

Calm down, old chap, and let me know What this is all about.

MARK:

Ask not, but call together all you find,
Of real-Wisconsin he-men of the W;
For I have mighty plans I will unfold
And woe be then unto all Co-eds fair
Who have thus crossed us with their A. S. G!

ACT II.

Scene: Mark addressing a great assembly from the Lincoln terrace. If Byron's speech is silver, Marks must be platinum, as even the engineers are listening to this Law!

MARK ANTONY:

Friends, he-men and engineers!
I ask not for your ears, but for your hearts,
Which you have lent to co-eds!
Let us unite against this common foe!
O, men, will you stand thus and be downtrod
By these fair co-eds? Ah, fie, for shame!

Real Wisconsin he-men of the W-

"Let us unite against this common foe"

Let us rise up and claim our rights on this Fair campus! It was not ever thus While he-men lived! Therefore let's show to them
Their weakness and our power by shunning them.
O! he-men of Wisconsin!
(Wild yells and acclamations, especially from the engineers. A few Laws look downhearted.)
A Law (timidly):

But Mark, I ask, what's to be done Now with our present women?

MARK:

What's that you ask? Why friend, hear me!
Be loyal to our clan and drop them cold
For did they not break all their dates,
To meet like noisy suffragettes to gain
Full sway in ruling in our place the "U"?
And when with pleading eyes they beg for our Scorned escortage, ah, then we will yield?
Oh, no! Mark Antony for one,
Will stake his life upon it!
(They disperse singing, "There'll be a dull time for the co-eds this Prom!")

ACT III.

Cleo in Harmony Hall addressing the co-eds. The ancient Serpent of the Nile would have dropped all plans on Antony after one look at Cleo, the Siren of the Packard! She's the answer to the question, "Why Men Pick Wisconsin!"

CLEOPATRA:

Hail, assembled Sirens, hail!
Since our strong government we've wisely planned,
We'll turn our thoughts to lighter veins; for hear
What strange event has happened in our camp!
We Deltas have almost a mind, to rent
Our telephone and front porch steps, toute de suite;
For man, hereto our slave obedient,
Has for once struck us dumb with great surprise,
In shunning us like Phi Betas!

A Co-ED:

The Pi Phi's cook has just revealed to us
And she the weighty secret did divulge Unto our worthy sisters. It is this—
Since one called Cleo fair did turn down Mark,
That spoiled and petted Sheik—so in revenge
He's had all men of Wisconsin unite
And set them all against us.
So now they've sworn to give up rushing us
While we do run the campus!

CLEO

Aha! So this, then, is their little scheme, I might have known—it's all so plain.

Of course, dear A. S. G's you will agree
That men are all a nuisance! And when we
In mighty council meet; they are entire Forgot! But yet, though men are naught to us,
Yet what's the Drive without 'em?
(Deep sighs from A. S. G's. Some of them haven't trod it for a week!)

CLEO:

And my allowance, girls, cracks 'neath the strain Three times this week I've had to C. (all) O. (n) D. (ad) Then, though I can't imagine why But there is something queer about the men Which grows on one almost as bad As Coca-cola habits! (Cheers, especially from the Thetas) So all ye Sirens, let's unite this once, And in a common cause defeat These aggravating he-men! (More cheers!) And so one of our Sirens we'll elect To win back to its proper place, the heart Of Antony the great! Howe'er she must Possess a line that rivals Alpha Phi's And then who can resist her? (Continued on page 583)

But as for me, Oh Co-eds fair Accept my slavery or death?

Professor Birge's First Geology Class

Doubtless boning for an exam. Although there are a few members of this jolly group still able to avenge the hallowed past, we make no bones about dragging the skeleton out of the closet.

THIS year, little boys and girls, our splendid university is just seventy-five years old—think of it! Do you suppose you will be as respectable when you are that age? I doubt it.

I hope that zeal for scholarships, for the life of spirits, for noble little boys and beautiful little girls, will grow and increase (the zeal, not the little boys and girls—naughty, naughty)! When you of the class of '25 are out of college 25 years, it will be 1950, or just ten times as much as half of what it was three times that half ago before you graduated. Do you follow all that, children? I don't. I hope that you will come up to your highest expectations—but I know you won't—and that what you have learned within these walls will be an inspiration and a solace in the years when you lie.

May the hundredth birthday of the college find you. Quo usque tandem abutere patientia nostra?

Where are the shows of yesteryear? Here is one of them! The Ag school always has stood for independence in the matter of dress; and it must have been this group which established the precedent.

Homecoming

FOUR years spent in the wearisome task of getting an education is well worth the exertion when one has Homecoming to come back to during a lifetime. Yearly, there is the onslaught of the old grads who return to breathe again in the cultured atmosphere of their beloved college.

A mere undergraduate can scarcely imagine the joy that must be theirs when they greet again their dear professors, who first showed them the road to culture and civilization. The returning grads leave behind the world of practicality to bask again in the radiance of intellectual sunshine. They come to seek a momentary relaxation from the cares of business, to play again in the fields of aesthetic appreciation. At Homecoming—think of the delightful conversations across fraternity tables on the theory of relativity, the newest emotional reactions of Edna St. Vincent Millay—in short, on the advance of arts, literature, and science.

Such is the Homecoming of the idealist, but alas! ours'is the Homecoming of the realist. The streets are crowded with cars, undergraduates, old grads who range in age from twenty to eighty; the fraternity houses are flaunting banners and decorations so unique that they defy Ben Hecht himself to guess what they represent. There is a charming Swiss chateau with a waterfall which looks far more like a break in the plumbing; only appreciated after being thoroughly explained and drawn out on a bit of paper by the originator of the idea. The band blares; fires flare; people are yelling and shouting everywhere; bedlam is loose. The old grads are returning to show their spirits; one not only sees the spirit, but the very atmosphere reeks of it. Spirit in the air, spirits in the old grads-this is Homecoming.

Give A Thought to Athletics

By J. FUNER "AL" PYRE

OLLEGE athletics are criminal. They are simple enough, and frequently ignorant. Graft-ridden, unfair, murderous as they are, they are in the organized pay of a favored group of men who should be set apart from society.

This fundamental idea may produce many reflections upon the athletes. Here is one; the picture below is another.

There is a potential criminal in every man. The criminal who is without manliness will come to nothing and when the criminal entirely dies out of a man, that man is partly defunct. Play is the love of crime for its own sake; work is crime directed to some ulterior end. An excess of either work or play is repugnant to our instincts; work may come and play may go, but crime goes on forever.

There is, then, this psychological factor in College Athletics; the college boy, being by selection a psychological freak, is taught to be and is, ideally and indefinitely, criminal. In short, this is one respect in which he learns to be, in the full sense of the word, a Man.

Hints to Ladies on the Enhancement of Their Charms

"Of fairest forms and sweetest shapes the store, Most graceful all, yet thought may grace them more."

THE STUDY of nature, in all her forms, is highly interesting and useful. But the heavenly bodies are far distant from us—and were they within our reach, are too mighty for us to grasp; our feeble minds are overwhelmed in the contemplation of their immensity. Animals, though affording the most striking marks of designing wisdom, cannot be dissected and examined without painful emotions. The vegetable world offers a boundless field of inquiry, which may be explored with the most pure and delightful emotions.

The study of Botany seems peculiarly adapted to females; the objects of its investigation are beautiful and delicate—its pursuits, leading to exercise in the open air, are conducive to health and cheerfulness. It is not a sedentary study which can be acquired in the library, but the objects of the science are scattered over the surface of the earth, along the banks of the winding brooks, on the borders of precipices, the sides of the mountains, and the depths of the forests.

A peculiar interest is given to conversation by an acquaintance with any of the natural sciences; and when females shall have more generally obtained access to these delightful sources of pure enjoyment, we may hope that scandal, which oftener proceeds from a want of better subjects, than from malevolence of disposition, shall cease to be regarded as a characteristic of the sex.

It is unfortunately too much the case, that female ingenuity (especially in the case of young ladies after leaving school) is in a great degree directed to trivial objects, which have no reference either to utility, or to moral and intellectual improvement. But a taste for scientific pursuits once acquired, a lady will feel that she has no time for engagements which neither tend to the good of others. nor to make herself wiser or better.

FRESHMAN LADIES' BASKETBALL TEAM, 1902

Man all-star aggregation of champ basket tossers, these cup contenders slung a dirty short-pass. If these Meaning-well basketeers didn't get the class cup, they should have gotten the cup for class.

Runner-up in the Ladies' Southern Accent Contest, and a versatile performer on back porch, dance floor, or stage, this beautiful belle is a typical co-ed—she's so hot, she's been seen smoking.

Presentation of Award for Sorority Fires

After the epidemic of sorority house conflagrations, members of the fire department are being installed as house mothers in the various Greek letter groups. The Chief is shown presenting the cardboard hose-nozzle to the Alpha Phi's whose members had the barest escape from their night fire. If this keeps up, our co-eds will be known as Hell's Belles.

CHI PSI LODGE, 1903
The original "high-hat" fraternity. This was the year they won their cup, in bowling—they had more "bowlers" than any other group on the campus.

The Night of Nights

(Will the meeting please come to order.)

Miss Smith: Oh she's darling, and my dear—she rates all the best fraternities. Did you notice that diamond watch—oh, she comes from a marvelous family—I heard she was being rushed by all the good sororities on the hill and she gave us two dates—you know her brother was Prom chairman at Chicago a couple years ago—

Miss Fry: Oh—never, did you see the way she blew in here? You'd think she owned the place—oh she's fierce dumb—her hair—and those slippers. I felt like donating a pair of mine—I know she has money, but absolutely no taste—well maybe we could make her over—I won't let her by though, unless someone will promise to cut her hair, or do something to it—funny, her brothers were bid about five things too.

Miss Rose Berry: She's the berries all right. Dumb? She beats any frosh I ever talked to. And innocent? It's funny they let her go on the train alone—did you hear the questions? And—my dear, she didn't wear gloves—let's go on I can't stand her. What if she can swim; we can find other girls that are active and not quite so dumb as to want to know if the university men camped at camp Randall—

The Day of Days-5 P. M.

Oh—I'm soglad—aren't you thrilled. Oh my dear, I was so afraid you might go something else. You looked so adorable at the dance last night; who were you with? Oh, I could hardly keep from talking to you-yes, isn't that silly, but like S. G. A. we must obey the rules—they did? Why—the idea, they could be reported for that, really? And you wouldn't go? Oh, I'm ticked silly—What adorable bracelets-can I? They'll look darling with my little blue number-have I anything you'd like to wear? You're an old peach—come on up in my room; I want to have a little private talk with you.

What Do Smart Women Talk About?

THEY can talk on any subject nowadays, these busy, vital, interested and interesting women who are looked up to as the heart of their social and community spheres.

Some are interested chiefly in society; others enjoy art, politics, athletics, clubs, philanthrophy, church work, charities, or other pursuits.

But all are interested in the subject of personal appearance.

And what is more natural? For beauty is woman's greatest power; clear, healthy, glowing complexion is the first essential toward gaining her end, whatever that may be. And Whenever Beauty Is Discussed, You Will Hear About Boncilla.

Thousands of women depend upon Boncilla Clasmic Beautifier for their fresh, youthful complexion. The busy woman demands it because its results are apparent so quickly, and because its effects are permanent.

that is put on the skin and left on only until it is dry. Then it is removed and a glowing, radiant, natural skin beauty is revealed.

A Message to Tomorrow's Doctors

Pharmaceutical and Biological Products

This is a friendly chat with medical men "in the making". As one of Tomorrow's doctors you soon will be "hanging out your shingle" and taking an active part in the great work of relieving human ills.

And like all practicing physicians, you will seek out some pharmaceutical house that you can depend upon—some strong institution in which you have every confidence. May we hope that you will give consideration to Swan-Myers, the House of Helpfulness?

We prize as a treasured possession the confidence of thousands of physicians friends who have grown up with us. We are old enough to possess the rich heritage of Experience; yet manned by young-minded executives who do not blind themselves to the progress of medical science.

Our staff of scientific workers do not trail every passing fad or fancy, but confine their efforts to a recognized line of biological, ampoule solutions, bacterial vaccines and glandular products. May we have the pleasure of sending you descriptive literature of those products in which you are particularly interested? Your inquiries will be warmly welcomed.

Unseen, unheard, resistless, is the power that speeds "The Olympian" on its transmountain flight. Feeding the giant electric locomotives of these thousand-ton steel trains is a torrential energy, sprung from the mountain waterfalls. More than 600 miles of smokeless, jarless, faultless travel, made possible by the marvel of "white coal," is yours when you ride on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul. Its route across the mountain ranges is the longest electrified railway on earth—spanning the most picturesque section of the Pacific Northwest.

"It's the cut of your Clothes that counts"

When you have noticed a man who is particularly well dressed, you don't recall details of style or the color of his clothes. But you do remember the impression they gave you, their effect of smartness. That was due entirely to their cut. That's the thing for which well dressed men choose their clothes. That's the reason they wear Society Brand; their cut is unsurpassed, and only equalled by the product of a very few famous custom tailors.

State Life Fund

No Commissions-No Salaries

The State Life Fund was created by the Legislature to offer sound and permanent life insurance at the lowest possible cost. It is managed by the Commissioner of Insurance. No commissions are paid to agents, no salaries to officers, and no office rent.

Who May Apply for Policies and Where

Men and women who are residents of Wisconsin or within the state and between the ages of 16 and 60, are eligible for a policy in the State Life Fund. Applications should be made to the office of the Insurance Department by mail or in person. Ordinary forms of policies are issued to suit your needs.

Assets-How Invested

The assets of the State Life Fund are invested in Wisconsin securities, giving preference to farm mortgages and municipal bonds. This makes for safety, helps in the development of our state, and aids our citizens. Thus, the people of our state are served rather than Wall-Street or foreign interests.

Endorsement by the Governor

"My endowment with the State Life Fund has caused no worry, and but very little attention. It has afforded me protection. The funds representing my equity in the State Life Fund are well invested. The policy is of very low net cost and absolutely sound. I recommend the State Life Fund to all the people of the state of Wisconsin."

JOHN J. BLAINE Governor.

"Put Your Trust in Wisconsin"

Place your application at once with W. Stanley Smith, Commissioner of Insurance, Madison, Wis.

For the All-Aluminum Kitchen

Consider the many exclusive advantages of good aluminum kitchen utensils. What other ware cooks everything so well, lasts so long, and costs so little by the year?

Then consider the extra durability which Mirro utensils derive from the hard, thick metal of which they are made. And consider the completeness of the Mirro line, with its 610 articles, providing the right utensil for every purpose.

Don't you think that an all-aluminum kitchen would be ideal for you—especially if it were an all-Mirro kitchen?

The superiority of Champion Spark Plugs was recognized at the International Exposition at Rio de Janerio in 1923 by the award of Merit and a Gold Medal. Compare Champions

CHAMPION

Step into any equipment store. Ask the man to let you look at a Champion Spark Plug side by side with any other plug.

Your own eyes will prove the exterior superiority of Champion. You will see at once how much better it is made. How finely it is finished.

But you must try Champions in your engine to know just how much better they are.

With Champions in every cylinder, you will note an immediate improvement in engine performance. Power and speed will be increased. Pick-up will be improved. All sluggishness disappears. You will actually save in oil and gas.

That Champion is the better spark plug has been proved thousands of times by car owners. That is why Champions are equipment on more than two-thirds of the makes of cars selling for $2,000 and upward—why seven out of every ten cars you see on the streets have Champions in their cylinders.

You will know genuine Champions by the Double-Ribbed Core. The Blue Box sells for 75 cents. Champion X is 60 cents. (Canadian prices 90 and 80 cents.) More than 90,000 dealers sell Champions.

Father William at College

I

"You are old, Father William," the young man said,

"And the old are impatient, they say; Yet the patience you show in the things that you do Surprises me more every day."

"I went to Wisconsin," his father replied.

His countenance calm and benign; And all I remember of all that I did Is standing in line after line.

II

"You are old, Father William," the young man said,

"And your manners are those of a bandit:

Yet you bathe every day in a tub full of ice—

Pray how do you manage to standit?"
"When I was a freshman," his father replied,

"Our ways were exceedingly rough; And the sophomore kept throwing us into the lake Until we were hardened and rough."

III

"You are old, Father William," the young man said,

"And you're frequently flat in the pockets;

The old man just shruddered, "Skyrockets."

IV

"You are old, Father William," the young man said,

"And entitled to vote, it is true; But why do you vote every time at least twice—

BERGER'S TAILOR SHOP, 816 University Avenue

"In seekers for office we juniors were rich,"

He replied, "but in votes we were poor;

There might not have been enough votes to go round,

So we all voted twice to make sure."

"You are old, Father William," the young man said.

"And your end must be near its beginning; Yet the ladies all praise your sweet womanly ways-

What made you so awfully winning?" "In my day," he replied, with a round manly oath,

"Haresfoot was the Chinaman's yen; And the graces I learned as the belle of the show

Have stayed with me ever since then."

VI

"You are old, Father William," the young man said,

"And your sapience' sun never sets; So just cast your eye on the steps of Main Hall-You'd think it had rained cigarettes." "That is up to the Seniors," his father replied;

"They determine their gift very

Let them brighten the views at each side of the steps

"You are old, Father William," the young man said,

"And I fear you are growing prophetic;

You've the air of a man who a tale could unfold-

I think, at your age, it's pathetic." "It's a feeling that comes with the Spring," he replied,

"Which would interest you not at all; For Freshmen see nothing but summer ahead.

While Seniors think only of Fall."

BURGESS FACTORY AND LABORATORIES, MADISON

VER twenty years ago, in the University Laboratories, Professor C. F Burgess, then head of the Chemical Engineering Department, made a few dry batteries. These were undoubtedly the first dry batteries made in this state and at that time Mr. Burgess had no realization of where this bit of experimental work was destined to lead.

But from that piece of research have developed many of the improvements in dry batteries and dry battery accessories. Still more important, from the standpoint of the State of Wisconsin, is the fact that from this has grown a manufacturing enterprise which is today no small factor in the industrial life of the state.

That experimental work was really the beginning of the Burgess Battery Company. Today this company's annual output of dry batteries is over fifty millions. Burgess batteries are in every day use for radio, flashlights, ignition work, telephones and for many other purposes. They have penetrated every corner of the globe and are recognized as a standard of quality wherever dry batteries are used. The Burgess plants at Madison occupy a quarter of a million feet of floor space. There are fourteen sales offices in this country and Canada, as well as two manufacturing branches in Canada.

We are glad to acknowledge, through the Badger, our debt to the University of Wisconsin, as the birthplace of the Burgess Organizations, and as contributing many of its graduates to our staff of workers.

Roundy Says:

Harry Sauthoff Could Handle An Old Maids' Convention and Make Them' Ask For Steins of Beer

I was the guest of the Phi Alpha Delta law fraternity last night for supper and the boys say they didn't add on no special eat program for me. But to the supper dished out I figure they went the route.

Nice cooked ham, fine potatoes with sweet peas and three kinds of bread, and for that old finish ice cream and cake and other dishes. I mean to tell the lawyers they know the cook book at least from the start to to finish.

No finer bunch of boys ever assembled at the Phi Alpha Delta house. I was made to feel right at home and I was shown a time that I will never forget. Gathered around the fireside and told them my tales of woe and so forth. Foot ball was the main subject and things running in that line.

Bieberstein sat on one side of me and George Ruediger on the other side and we started to shake them forks and knives in a wicked manner. Neither Bieberstein nor Ruediger need coaching on going into those nose bags if a lawyer is supposed to be a good eater, then these two birds are the smartest lawyers in America.

PFEIFFER'S RESTAURANT—"THE CAMPUS"—GOOD EATS

Dan O'Neill sure was there with bells on. He talked about basketball and Volstead all evening.

Ray Moore, a writer of note, was putting on his stuff. All you got to do to him is yell here is a pass and he gets a faster start at you than Paddock, the world's sprinter, does. He thinks Wisconsin is as liberal with passes as Harry Leonard is with free scrips.

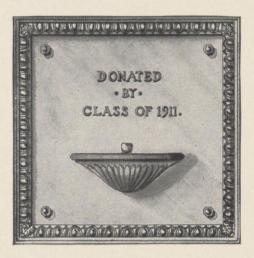

Fulton Collip was there and listening to football and other sports, he was going to sleep. Someone mentioned girls and you ought to see this bird throw his ears back.

The Phi Alpha Delta might be a gang of lawyers but they sure don't have to study up on being good fellows at that house. I wish to thank the boys of that house very much for the swell time they showed me. I don't believe I deserved to be entertained so highly by you but seeing I was I sure appreciate it and thank you very much for inviting me to your house.

Dutch Vetter is going around with a lantern and a shovel since they have been burying those Applejack treasures. Dutch sure is looking for the dough that is buried. He dug up half of Mifflin street the other night looking for that buried ten case note.

I went into the university library yesterday. A co-ed said, turn on the heat will you please. She must of thought I was the janitor. Next time I visit the library I will have to wear overalls. I thought I was all dressed up till she sprung that one.

It gets cold in the stands even though you are jumping all over the place when Wisconsin puts over that winning touchdown.

Since we elect to live in these parts and it gets cold no matter how we feel about it, there's but one thing to do and that's to keep warm in the smartest possible manner.

The best way to do that is to slip on a raccoon coat—there's nothing better looking to wear or more comfortable.

Here are raccoon ulsters perfectly matched, almost to the semblance of a single skin.

The modern bathroom is one of Youth's great teachers. Spotless tiling, shining mirrors, and softly gleaming, snowy fixtures are pages in a textbook which teaches the lifelong lesson of pride of cleanliness.

With old and young alike there is an almost instinctive appreciation of the moral importance of the bathroom. And there is a universal desire for finer bathrooms and for enough bathrooms for all the household. To satisfy that desire many people turn naturally to Kohler Enameled Plumbing Ware. They know, when they see the Kohler name peering out from beneath the snowy enamel of a Kohler "Viceroy" built-in bath or a Kohler lavatory, that they are looking at the best that can be made.

There are good plumbing dealers in every city who can tell you all about the good products of the half-century-old house of Kohler of Kohler. And they will tell you what you will not be displeased to learn—that Kohler Ware is not more expensive than any other ware that you would care to own. May we send you the Kohler booklet?

Ode to My Roommate

When in disgrace with Deans and Parent's eyes,

I all alone betweep my outcast state, And plague deaf roommates with my bootless cries

And look upon myself and curse my fate, Wishing me like to one more rich in marks.

Featured like him, like him with ex's posses'd

Desiring this girl's love and that man's

With what I most desire contented least,

When in these thoughts, myself almost despairing

Hap'ly I think of thee and then your state

You as a frosh, at break of day arising From you warm cot, to get to class by

And thy hard struggle, remember'd such disgust makes,

That I go on, and work, and love, and hate.

Education in Industry

The Schoolhouse of The National Cash Register Company is an outstanding example of the dominant position that education has taken in modern industry.

Thirty years ago this company realized that its growth and progress depended largely upon the attitude of its employees toward their work.

As a result, many forms of welfare work were begun. Better working conditions were provided. Employees were urged to take advantage of the company's free night schools.

This work proved so helpful to both employees and the company that it has become one of our fundamental policies.

Welfare work and the facilities for educating employees are only a part of the many things that make our factory unusually interesting. You are cordially invited to visit us.

A Gateway of Progress

THIS imposing entry to the new Journal Building is the Open Sesame to the realization of an ideal—and the conscientious execution of that ideal.

(Forty-two years ago The Milwaukee Journal was published in one room. In August 1924, it will move into this magnificent $2,000,000 newspaper plant—the largest in the northwest.

(This new Journal building will be equipped with the latest and most modern newspaper making machinery. There will be no more efficient newspaper plant in America!

(Through this entrance—each day—will pass the 500 trained men and women who take pride in producing the best newspaper for Wisconsin people—a newspaper that is recognized everywhere as one of the foremost in the United States.

(The news of the world will enter here! It will be rushed from far and near and swiftly prepared for presentation to the half million readers who eagerly await each issue of The Milwaukee Journal.

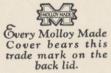

HERE is an achievement that is at once the fulfillment of a task well done, and the assurance of greater accomplishment to come! The Milwaukee Journal, owned and operated by Wisconsin people, has rendered almost a half century of helpful service to Wisconsin people. That service has been appreciated—for The Milwaukee Journal is read by more Milwaukee and Wisconsin people than any other publication in the world! This new Journal building will mark the beginning of a new era of progress—it will enable The Journal to render greater service than ever before—it will be a credit to the city and the state which is served by this great newspaper.

The cover for this annual was created by The DAVID J. MOLLOY CO.

Effects and Defects

Well, can you imagine who the Alpha Thetas took in? Pretty good—we got three of the girls they rushed so hard—You should see the looks I got in history quiz to day, the Alpha Zetas won't even speak to me. You know Dot's sister was one of their shining stars here two years ago—Helen Hammer—well they can have her she may have a German police dog but we got a Packard with one of our pledges so I guess we aren't so bad. Too bad she went that, she'll probably be sorry. You know she's new here, of course her brother used to go with one of them so that may have influenced her too—

Lament

Take, Oh take those books away
That so innocently were forsaken,
And those marks, the curse of day,
Bluebooks that do make me mourn;
But my pleasures bring again, bring again—

Dances, parties, soon the train; yes, the train.

When I consider how my days are spent Through all my days in this great school and wise.

And that one fault which vainly I try to hide

Lodged with me always, though my mind is bent

To study earnestly my lessons, and present

A good account, lest my marks get low and I

But doth the Dean require day-labor, sleep denied?

I always ask: And, concience to prevent

Hurt feelings, soon replies; The Dean doth not need

Either your work, or you yourself; But who best

Gets his work done, they please him best: his case

Is plausible; thousands at his bidding speed

Custom-built clothes for as low as $60.

Custom-built clothes are better clothes. They are made from an individual pattern designed to fit the peculiarities of each individual.

Through a system of buying materials in large quantities, and operating at the lowest possible overhead, the price of these clothes is kept as low as $60.

To be well dressed wear a custom-built suit
—one that is made to fit You.

Badger editors and printers examining the first of 97,000 sheets (each making 32 pages) which have gone through Cantwell presses since March 15.

Sixteen tons of Dill and Collins "Old Ivory" are used to build your Badger —what a fascinating life cycle it has!

This Badger Began Life In Sunny Argentina!

FROM scores of farms on the sun-wrapped plains of Argentina men brought milk to scores of factories—the curd of the milk was dried and ground and then loaded on South American freighters and shipped to the Mills of the Dill and Collins Paper Company at Philadelphia.

Combined in ingenious fashion with Tennessee clay, and Swedish woodpulp, the Argentinian curd came out between the broad rollers of calendering machines, a vital part of the paper that forms the background for the romance in the "On Wisconsin" Badger.

It is only natural that the editors of the 1925 Badger should select this, the finest product of of American mills, as the warp for the woof of their craftsmanship.
