Summer 1989 will be "hotter than ever" when "Hot Summer Nights," the Saturday night series of Terrace music, is broadcast by WORT FM and promoted to many public broadcast and campus radio stations across the country. The Saturday night series will be celebrating three years of Terrace entertainment.

Favorites such as Randy Sabien, a unique jazz violinist will perform July 1, and The Rousers, one of the Midwest's hottest rock 'n roll bands, will heat up the Terrace July 22.

Free Hot Lunch, a national leader in Wa-

Ha music, will headline the Terrace Friday, June 30. The band has recently celebrated its ninth anniversary and cut a fourth LP -live at Orphan's in Chicago. Free Hot Lunch is a Madison-based group and famous for its clever lyrics that lure fans into energetic singalongs.

Warm weather and the magnetic atmosphere of the Union Terrace is famous for attracting music lovers to the shores of Lake Mendota for a variety of sounds from local, regional, and national musicians.

"It is the best venue to see live music for free in the midwest," said WUD Program Advisor Ralph Russo.

Watch for other Madison favorites such as JAVA, Honor Among Thieves, Jimmy Johnson Blues Band, and the Blue Hippos.

Mini Courses: More Than a Summer Investment

There are times we are reminded just how much difference a Mini Course can make. Just ask lifetime Union Member and Madison-area ceramic artist Marty Bleyer...

In the summer of 1980 Marty joined the Wisconsin Union so he could enroll in an introductory pottery course offered by the Mini Course program. That course changed Marty's life.

Marty discovered he really enjoyed working with clay. Using the Craftshop facility he continued to explore pottery, got the basics down and started to develop his own style. He continued to renew his annual membership and use the Craftshop for the next few years while he drove a taxi to support himself.

By 1983 Marty was accepted as the Artist In Residence at the Craftshop. He also began teaching the very Mini Course that first got him started in ceramics. For the next three years Marty taught Mini Courses and turned a lot of people onto the pleasures of working with clay.

His artistry continued to grow. He enrolled as a special student at the UW and took ceramic classes with Professors Don Reitz and Richard Burkett. He eventually started selling his works at a few local art fairs.

Late in 1986 Marty was ready to make the next big step. He quit taxi driving and became a full-time potter.

Today Marty Bleyer is an award-winning ceramic artist and works out of a studio/farm outside of Oregon, Wis. His art is sold in galleries in Door County, Chicago, various cities in Wisconsin, Illinois and Florida.

Of course Marty heartily recommends the Wisconsin Union and the Mini Course experience. His success all started with that first enrollment in a Mini Course.

This is not to say that you will become a nationally recognized potter or that your life will take a whole new direction just by enrolling in Mini Courses. But remember Marty Bleyer the next time you ask yourself, "Do I really have time to take this course?" A whole summer of opportunities awaits you in the Mini Course program. And who knows where it might lead...

Wabakimi: A Quiet Adventure Tenth Anniversary Year

The annual Wabakimi canoe trip, sponsored by the Wisconsin Union Travel Center, is celebrating 10 years of adventure in the wilderness of Northern Ontario, Canada.

For many people this will not be a first-time experience. Barb McCarthy, for instance, will be celebrating her fourth — and maybe even fifth trip, if she can squeeze two get-aways into the summer.

Barb said, "I know I need to go at least once a year." Most participants describe the Wabakimi trip as "challenging" and "a real escape." Barb couldn't agree more. She says it is a relief from the environmental concerns "down here."

In the northern wilds, "there is no pollution, waste, or noise, just the sounds of life — the birds and the water, and once in a while our voices," Barb said.

It is not only the water, rocks and trees that persuade "Wabakimiers" into the Canadian wilderness. For many, the diverse backgrounds of the other group members make friendships along the way an exciting bonus.

The Travel Center is proud to celebrate a decade of Wabakimi traditions:

- introducing the ultimate tranquility to the beginner and expert canoeer
- exploring unspoiled wilderness
- fishing and whitewater canoeing
- forming new friendships.

ESCAPE TO WABAKIMI!

This summer, join one of the exciting trips leaving Madison:

Make a SPLASH with Summer Sailing

A sailboat on Lake Mendota is undeniably one of the most peaceful images of a Madison summer.

Every year, more than 1,700 Wisconsin Union members become a part of that image by joining the Hoofers sailing club. With so many interested sailors, Hoofers has developed into the largest inland sailing club in the nation and offers attractive opportunities for people at all skill levels.

"We make it easy to learn and progress," said Stephen Beringer, head sailing instructor.

Beginners make up at least 75% of the new members every year and "within six hours of their first lesson, they can feel comfortable taking a boat out on their own."

At the same time, programs are designed for those interested in competitive sailing and even Olympic sailing. Hoofers has been known to produce Olympic contenders as well. Joe Bersch and other Olympic sailors are former members of the Hoofers sailing club.

Although sailing is a sporting event for people of all ages, the Hoofers work at making their club a social event as well. Moonlight sails, sunset cruises, breakfast cruises and informal gatherings are popular activities for club members.

Join the Hoofers Sailing Club and become a part of the ideal summer scene.

THE WISCONSIN UNION THEATER 1939 - 1989

Union Theater To Celebrate a Half Century of Excellence In the Arts

The Wisconsin Union Theater celebrates its Golden Anniversary during 1989-90 with a season of exciting events that extends the Theater's tradition of quality and variety since 1939.

The annual Concert Series, marking its seventieth consecutive season with standards originally set by the likes of Fritz Kreisler and Sergei Rachmaninoff, offers an array of modern musical titans including: violinist Pinchas Zukerman returning to launch the recital season; the superb baritone, Hakan Hagegard; pianist Janina Fialkowska; and I Solisti Italiani, the sterling Italian baroque ensemble. The University's own Pro Arte String Quartet will celebrate its fiftieth year in residence with a bonus concert series performance featuring a collaborating guest artist.

The 1989-90 Performance Series, a multi-faceted feast of dance, jazz, drama, song and symphonic delights, offers a wealth of experiences for all audiences. A frolicsome evening of song in commemoration of the Theater's fiftieth birthday will be enjoyed during the weekend of October 6-8. For the celebration, Pulitzer prize-winning composer/pianist William Bolcom and mezzo-soprano Joan Morris will dip into America's musical past. Later in the season, The Art Ensemble of Chicago will explore the past and the future of Great Black Music with some of the best jazz to be heard; the Pan Asian Repertory Theatre, will present the warm-hearted comedy, Rosie's Cafe; and Isaac Stern, one of the giants in the world of the arts, will grace the Union stage for the ninth time since 1945, joining the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra for a night of symphonic splendor.

The 1989-90 Season also celebrates 30 years of world-wide exploration with the Travel Adventure Film Series. A highlight of the series will be Thayer Soule, the dean of travel film speakers, presenting a 50-year retrospective of his own excursions to every corner of the globe. Additional destinations on the Series include Germany, Hawaii, the Mississippi during its "Golden Age," London and many other great cities of Europe.

Union Members continue to receive priority Box Office treatment over non-members, with orders filled on a first-come, first-serve basis. If you would like more information, please phone the Theater office at 262-2202 during regular business hours.

The view from the Wisconsin Union Terrace has been described by many as spectacular and peaceful, but for Madisonian Roy and Dorothy Berg, the view is "unparalleled."

Roy and Dorothy, moved to Madison in 1980 and "automatically" became lifetime members of the Wisconsin Union. That was almost a decade ago, and little did they realize the valuable investment they made.

A lifetime membership has not only given the Bergs endless pleasure absorbing the view from the Union Terrace, but has also given them access to one of Madison's most unique and diverse social, educational and recreational facilities.

Roy and Dorothy have enjoyed numerous Mini Courses; sometimes they even take the same course more than once. Dancing was one such course. According to Roy, he just couldn't reach the level of expertise the first time around. Wine tasting was another course that Roy took a couple of times. "The best part was the homework," he admitted. Dorothy especially enjoys the nature trips such as the Walk with August Derleth class. Dorothy feels comfortable taking Mini Courses as "there just isn't any age discrimination."

Hoofers sailing club is another of Roy's favorite benefits from his Union membership, along with Saturday afternoon chess games in the Rathskeller. "I love the movies," said Dorothy and, of course, "the single dip ice cream cones."

If you have friends who would enjoy the benefits of a Wisconsin Union membership, tell them to call or write for a new membership brochure: Membership Office, 800 Langdon St., Madison, WI 53706, (262-2263) during regular business hours, or look for the bright yellow membership sign at the Farmer's Market on Saturday mornings.

If you have ideas for future Member Profiles, please contact Linda Bishop at 262-2687.

Life in The Alley

Editor's note: The Alley, on the lower level of Memorial Union, offers pool tables, pizza and beverage sales, eating booths, and video games. The following is an example of a typical Alley encounter.

Taking the final drag from a dying Marlboro, he squinted his eyes to avoid the rising smoke and held his concentration on the table in front of him. Carelessly he dropped the butt to the floor and crushed it with the heel of his boot. It was obvious this was his territory.

The "challenger" slid the cue stick back and forth between his fingers for what might have been an eternity. Finally, the stick came forward, made contact, and sent the stripes and solids exploding across the table.

His stomach reminded him of the lunch he forgot to consume earlier in the day, as the aroma of pizza drifted to his nostrils.

The challenger snickered as three stripes rolled into the pockets. His attempt on the next shot, however, did not end in success.

Calculating his revenge, he approached the table and made a gesture with his stick to indicate "five-ball in the far right corner." He glided the weapon through his fingers and then watched the gentle contact between the cue and the orange ball, sinking it into the designated hole.

The opponent was resting against the wall, unconsciously biting the excess skin around his fingernails.

A favorite Lou Reed tune pounded from the juke box, while he pondered over the next shot. He stared at the three-ball as if he could talk it into dropping into the corner pocket, but luck wasn't on his side.

The enemy took charge of the table again, sinking the rest of the stripes.

Without looking up, the two men carelessly exchanged a peaceful handshake. Friends once again, they took the stairs, two at a time, to the Rathskeller.
