The libraries provide public access to a wide range of material, including online exhibits, digitized collections, archival finding aids, our catalog, online articles, and a growing range of materials in many media.

When possible, we provide rights information in catalog records, finding aids, and other metadata that accompanies collections or items. However, it is always the user's obligation to evaluate copyright and rights issues in light of their own use.

Three Oneida Brothers

One time three brothers went hunting. They packed their provisions and travelled all night and all day as well, but they hadn't seen any game living there so they got tired and built an evergreen shelter. They had only a small amount of their provisions left. It got dark and they went to bed by the fire. They agreed that whoever had the most awesome dream would eat the rest of their provisions. So they went to bed. Two of them were asleep, but one couldn't sleep. He was thinking over what he should do and he got up and ate up all the provisions they had left.

When the other two got up, they told what they had dreamt. The young one was still sleeping. The two said, "Get up right away and tell us what you dreamt."

He didn't get up but started to tell what he dreamt. He said, "I dreamt that you two sprouted wings and to my amazement you flew right up into the heavens and disappeared. So then I ate our provisions."
