Keystone Candidates Defeat Unrecommended Entries in Record Vote

Few offices were contested in the elections of W. S. G. A., W. A. A., and Y. W. C. A., which were held Tuesday. The candidates recommended by Keystone, organization of the presidents of all women's campus groups, were elected in all but three cases.

Rachel Phenicie '31 defeated her opponent, Helen Marie Elliott '32, for presidency of the Women's Athletic association; Alice Bolton '31 was elected president of the Y. W. C. A. by default, and Margaret Modie '31 had no opponents for the presidency of the Student Government association.

Over 300 Votes Cast

More than 300 votes were cast in the election, a considerable increase over the usual ballot, in spite of the fact that the contest was not hard fought.

Competition was chiefly noticeable for the position of sophomore class representative on W. S. G. A. council, where Margaret Pennington '32 won over Anne Jackson '32, Keystone candidate, and Betty Brown '32.

W. A. A. Fight Close

All W. A. A. offices were doubtful until the final returns, but Keystone nominees triumphed in every position except that of vice-president, where Dorothy Lambeck '31 was successful over Vera Shaw '32, Keystone candidate, and Alice Stuart '32.

Rachel Phenicie '31, W. A. A. president, has been active in various organizations, including class hockey, Mothers' Week-end committee, Dolphin, Intramural board, Women's Commerce club, Y. W. C. A. sophomore council, W. A. A. style show, and Crucible.

Senators Fight Radio Merger

Kohler's Attempt to Release Funds Meets With Opposition

Release of $10,000 by Gov. Walter J. Kohler for the merger of station WHA and station WLBL, Stevens Point, into a new 5,000 watt station met with opposition from several legislators Tuesday.

Legislators from the district surrounding Stevens Point have been joined by others in the more remote sections of the state in a protest against the removal of the station which broadcasts daily from Stevens Point.

Officials Back Merger

University and agricultural department officials are backing the consolidation and removal to Madison with the thought that the federal radio commission will authorize 5,000 watts power for the new station. WLBL has 100 watts, and WHA 750 watts.

Opposition to the proposed consolidation is based on a dearth of information concerning plans for the future. Prof. E. W. Ewbank, chairman of the committee for the university station, declared.

WLBL Better Situated

Objectors are of the opinion that WLBL, situated in the approximate center of the state, can serve central northern Wisconsin better than Madison. The department of markets and agriculture is of the opinion that closer touch with the university departments and the capital would be beneficial.

Among those protesting are Senators L. J. Fellenz, Fond du Lac; Herman J. Severson, Iola; and Conrad Shearer, Kenosha; and Assemblymen John W. Eber, Milwaukee; M. J. Mersch, Stevens Point; George O'Connor, Hancock; D. F. Burnham, Wau-paca; John Fronek, Antigo, according to announcements of leaders endeavoring to retain the agricultural department in Stevens Point.

City's Great Gives Cyrano Opening Color

A gala premiere performance for the Wisconsin Players presentation of "Cyrano de Bergerac" on Monday night, March 24, was promised by J. Russell Lane, business manager of Bascom theater, Tuesday.

"The production alone will not be the main attraction of the evening," he indicated. "Madison's great, prominent university personages, and state officers will be present in all the splendor and sumptuousness of a Broadway premiere."

"More than half the theater" has already been reserved. Several theater parties are also being announced," he concluded.

Meanwhile Prof. William Troutman and a cast of more than 100 persons

'Representative' Move Accelerates as Faculty Members Lend Support

Klein Flays Union Executives for Failure to Carry Out Promises

Added forces to the tide of the protest against the present situation of political control in student government came to the fore Tuesday afternoon when a petition circulated by the Representative Student group, asking support in the interests of fair representation, received the signatures of almost a score of university faculty members.

The petition, which was kept under cover, was said to include several changes in the original covenant as published in Sunday's Cardinal. Emphasis was directed against monopolistic control in student organizations.

At the same time, Milton Klein '31 issued a bitter denunciation of the political faction now in control, and declared them "inadequate to a situation and a trust which they themselves had previously set up."

"The narrow fraternity clique, now firmly entrenched in control of the Union and other boards, has failed in its purpose, despite the protestation made by Theodore Otjen '29, president

Badger Features Rocking Chairs, Snowball Fights

Latest reports about the rocking chair industry in Madison, full coverage of all campus snowball fights, and baby pictures of winners in the campus personality contest, are only a few of the moldy skeletons that are destined to roll out of the closet when the "Bad Jeer," satire section of the 1931 Badger is revealed.

A report of Pres. Glenn Frank's speech on "Why Real Eggs Are More Edible Than China Eggs" is promised. Confessions of a housemother by one who has never been a housemother promises sidelights on organized houses.

"Best Ways to Enter a Sorority House After 10:30 p. m." and a report of the business transacted at the annual convention of the Peeping Toms' association are two subjects that will be of general interest.

Hitherto unpublished reports of an ancient stomach ache quarantine at the Alpha Delta house will find their way into the satire section. Samuel Steinman '32 and Frederick Jochem '31 are co-editors.

Three-Cornered Battle Disclosed in Liberal Club

Communists, Pacifists, 'Conservatives' Duel for Control

The story of how Communists, pacifists, and "rational liberals" fought desperately for the supremacy of the Liberal club last January, and how it was narrowly saved from becoming a non-entity, was revealed for the first time, Tuesday, by a prominent member of the organization in an interview given to The Daily Cardinal.

The information came close on the heels of the expose of Communistic enterprise as related in the seized records taken in Milwaukee recently.

"Stalwarts" Check Spitzer

The battle between the various factions came to a climax in January after a year of battle, when an attempted coup d'etat by Harold Spitzer ex-'31 ended in disaster before the pressure exerted by the Liberal "standpatters."

Communist members elected Sidney Slotznick '31, president, in the spring of 1929 only to capitulate in the fall of the year to the dissatisfied Liberals who were intent upon calling a new election, it was revealed.

Spitzer Seeks Press Control

Malcolm Morrow '31, successor to Slotznick, and member of the "rational Liberal" bloc, was immediately faced by Spitzer, on coming into office, who proposed that the club be used as a point of departure for all propaganda regarding the adoption of the percentage peace plan. The Student Independent was to be the official organ.

When Morrow refused to sanction the plan, Spitzer attempted to take over the control of the club with the aid of a group of university women who were hurriedly mobilized for the occasion.

Spitzer Defeated

In January, Spitzer withdrew with his opposition, unable to meet the combined "conservatives." It was later

Debaters Face Heavy Schedule

Meet Purdue Tonight, Ohio State Thursday on Prohibition Question

Interest in Wisconsin's 1929-30 forensic calendar reaches its peak this week in the two Western Conference men's varsity debates scheduled against Purdue and Ohio State Wednesday and Thursday nights on the question of prohibition and state liquor control.

Wisconsin's negative team, which will defend prohibition in its present state against the repeal of the 18th amendment and the establishment of a system of state control of liquor sale modeled after the plan now in use in Ontario, Canada, will oppose Purdue university's affirmative team tonight at LaFayette, Ind.

Loyola Debate Cancelled

The negative team is composed of Irving Gordon '31, Jacob Muchin '31, and T. Parry Jones '32. The contest which was previously scheduled for this team tonight against Loyola university has been cancelled.

Wisconsin's affirmative team, the members of which are David Rabinovitz L3, Theophil Kammholz L1, and J. Gunnar Back '31, will meet Ohio State university's negatives here Thursday in Bascom theater at 8:15 p. m.

Williams Is Judge

Aubrey Williams, secretary of the Wisconsin Conference of Social Workers, will preside over the debate here Thursday, while Prof. Alan H. Monroe of Purdue university will be the critic judge. The contest is being sponsored by the Forensic board in cooperation with the department of speech.

The subject for both debates, officially stated, is "Resolved: That the several states should adopt the Ontario system of liquor control."

An inter-team contest held between the two Wisconsin debating squads last Sunday night in the Methodist Episcopal church at Oregon resulted in a judge's decision for the negatives.

1930 Venetian Night Assured as Mothers' Week-End Feature

Traditional Festivities Arranged for May 24; Conflicts in Plans Removed

Venetian night, revived last year after a lapse of three years, will again be repeated May 24, during Mother's week-end, which will be observed from May 21 to 25, Dean S. H. Goodnight definitely announced Monday. The spectacle of brilliant lights, fireworks, music, and floats make Venetian night one of the most colorful affairs of the university year.

While detailed plans for the week-end have not been definitely organized, a general program attempting to solve the conflict between the dance drama and Venetian night has been worked out by the Student Life and Interest committee, according to Marjorie Carr '31, general chairman.

The first performance of the dance drama staged by members of Orchestis, dance organization, will be given in Bascom theater Thursday, May 21, at 8 p. m. Friday will usher in the Senior Swingout and a second performance of the dance drama. Saturday will be a full day including Women's field day, interscholastic track meet, reception for mothers, climaxed by a dinner in honor of the mothers. Venetian night will be held in the evening.

Escaped Simian Captured by Valorous Arden Quintet

Macusus Rhesus
Roamed about freely;
Enjoying the spring,
Taking life easy.

Over the buildings
He raced to and fro;
Smiled at the sunshine,
Laughed at the snow.

Two girls with a sheet,
And golf sticks in hand,
Chased Mr. Monkey
All over the land.

But Rhesus was careless of feminine brain
And is back in his cage, with the old ball and chain.

—Buckbeer's Sonnets.

By TARZANETTE

Five girls caught a monkey — an actual monkey!

Staid and dignified members of the Arden club turned public benefactors Tuesday noon and captured Macusus

Rhesus, wandering monkey of the Zoology department, who escaped Sunday.

After a wild chase over South hall, Law building, and the Engineer's hangout, the monkey braved the wrath of the defeated female, and entered the Arden club. Having only the brains of a monkey, he was captured, although it took five to do the work.

Monkey Objects!

The monkey, when caught, protested vigorously to incarceration in a lowly wastebasket, chattering volubly that he didn't have a chance, and that he was only playing.

When Vera Shaw '32 and Anne Hodges '30 heard of the monkey's escape Sunday, they organized a posse, annexing two husky crewmen, and started for South hall. Armed with a sheet and two golf clubs, they shinned up the tree, swung after the monkey in approved simian fashion, and chased the recreant around the roof in their stocking feet.

But Rhesus politely thumbed his nose, and vaulted back to his post on the tree. The girls chased, and the monkey leaped to the roof of the Law building.

In hot pursuit, while the "will of the wisp" monkey sauntered down campus, tiring of the amusement his pursuers offered.

Night found him in a snow-be-seiged and arboreal citadel on upper campus, with only his rattling teeth to keep him warm.

Monday afternoon Vera Shaw made another attempt to inveigle the enemy into a trap. Said enemy was too blase, and refused to fall for a metal wastebasket. Finally she gave up in disgust, and hung a box, containing a sweater and food—showing the best of intentions towards the simian.

Campus Gapes

Mr. Rhesus' gyrations round campus were a one ring circus. But he tired quickly of the green of spring and the beauties of upper campus, and wandered idiotically into the lair of the enemy.

Tuesday noon, one of the girls entered her room and perceived the monkey majestically surveying the surroundings from his perch on the windowsill.

"Eeeeeeeeee," screamed the girl. The monkey was genuinely perturbed, and made haste to apologize. He sought to leave hurriedly, but found someone had adroitly closed the window.

Quintet Join Chase

With a single leap, he dove under the bed, while five girls, Vera Shaw, Ruth Morgan, Lucille James '32, Lillian Gale '32, Janet Tietjens '30, and Clair Trowbridge '32, surrounded and imprisoned him with sheets. An expertly swung broomstick aided his exit and the monkey dove for a patch of light between the sheets. He hit it.

It was the wastebasket. Upon being interviewed late Tuesday evening, Mr. Rhesus issued a single statement, repeating it over and over again. He shrieked, "Oooley, un glrwn tuogty kjred etaoin shrdlu."

It means, "You can never trust a woman."

 of the Union last October," he stated.

Otjen's Declaration
 "In the Daily Cardinal of Wednesday, Oct. 2, 1929, Otjen declared:

"... student positions secured through elections should be won by capable persons instead of those who are with a clique. Such positions should be distributed among the many, instead of a few."

"This was declared to be the new policy, yet it is not in keeping with the present situation, which they insisted they were going to remedy. Whether their statements were insincere, or whether their spirit was weak is a question for debate."

Election Board Attacked

Several of the persons connected with the formation of the new political group which is seeking to awake the "apathy of a student body towards its government," also were inclined to attack the position and the work of the Elections board and its subsidiary committee.

The argument was centered about the point that the Elections committee has done nothing, either collectively or individually, to mark its responsibility, according to objectors.

Hoot Factionalism Claim

The refusal of the board to consider the men's dormitories as an added poll also came in for condemnation. The report that a member of the committee had said there was "too much factionalism at the dormitories" was hooted.

Indication was made, that a revised declaration of intention and dissatisfaction was to be made public soon, in keeping with suggestions submitted by interested students.

Daniel Kurth, of the First National bank, will speak at a dinner meeting of Alpha Kappa Psi, professional commerce fraternity, Thursday at 6:15 p. m. in the Memorial Union.

Ticket Sales Break Records

Evidence of Madison's willingness to support worthwhile theatrical productions was also indicated with the announcement that the advance ticket sale had already surpassed all previous records, and had exceeded in some cases even those of previous performances.

"Entire blocks of seats have been sold for the opening night. What is perhaps most gratifying is the fact that more than half of the theater for Friday, March 28, has already been reserved. This is significant in view of the fact that "Street Scene" is scheduled for its premiere on that night."

Performances Start at 7 p. m.

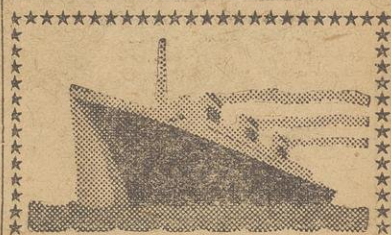

Each performance during the week is to begin at 7 p. m., so as to permit university women to attend on a 10:30 night. The week-day schedule was secured through the special permission of the university authorities.

A telegram received from the Western Costume company, with headquarters in Los Angeles, Calif., indicated that the costumes ordered for "Cyrano" are on their way to Madison.

The costumes are the same ones used by Douglas Fairbanks in his motion picture, "The Three Musketeers." The apparel, brought at a great expense, is one of the features insuring the Players' production to be one of the most elaborate ever presented by a university company.

Canners Hold Short Course

Fourth Annual Meeting Convenes March 18 to 20

To gain a better understanding of their manufacturing and marketing problems and to find new solutions for them, the Wisconsin Canners are holding their fourth annual short course at the college of agriculture, Tuesday through Thursday.

The course is designed for the canners of the state and their field men to give an opportunity of securing the aid of the staff of the University and the cooperation of the state department of agriculture and markets.

150 Canneries in State

This course is being offered for the first time since 1927 when 175 registrants were in attendance, states R. E. Vaughan, of the plant pathology department, who is in charge this year.

There are about 150 canneries throughout the state all of which are requested to send representatives here for the short course. The meetings will open, Tuesday, March 18, with registration in Agricultural hall. Most of the meetings with the exception of the luncheon and dinner discussions will be held in Agricultural hall or at the Horticultural building.

Edward Heth '31 Publishes Second Story in 'Mercury'

The work of Edward Heth '31 will appear in the American Mercury for the second time soon when his short story "Hesper Garland," is printed. The story was sold to the magazine last week.

The story is centered about a town named Wausau, and although the Wisconsin city of that name is not the one referred to, the story is said to somewhat describe the town. A very sensitive woman from a large city carries into the very conservative community. Her adventures furnish the material for the story.

The March issue of the American Mercury contained Heth's first story, "The Earlier Life."

Chicago Soloist to Sing Friday

Edward Otis, Baritone, Is Guest of Women's Glee Club

Edward Otis, a young Chicago baritone, will be guest soloist of the University Girls' Glee club, which is to give its concert at 8:15 p. m., Friday, March 21, in Music hall, it was announced by Eleanor Cross, president.

Mrs. Doris B. Caster will direct the club.

Mrs. Otis has received lofty praise as a concert artist. Within the past year he has been guest soloist with the Bush Symphony orchestra, and the Chicago Women's Musical Club. He was a member of the solo ensemble in the Apollo club presentation of "Elijah," and sang a joint recital with Grant Otis in Madison. The following excerpt from a review of one of his recitals appeared in the Musical Leader, a Chicago magazine:

"Mr. Otis has a voice reminding of Arthur Middleton in the early days of his career. (The Middleton voice today is acknowledged to be unrivaled.) Given a few years, Mr. Otis should be a second Middleton for he has temperament, declamatory style, knows the value of light and shade, enunciates to perfection, and finishes with that accuracy expected of a Middleton pupil. One was amazed at so much poise. Mr. Otis can be encouraged to continue his study, though even now he is ready for the concert stage."

Mr. Otis has studied under Graham Reed, Walter Allen Stults, the late Arthur Middleton, and is at the present time with Emma Racuds. His program will include an aria from "Un Ballo in Maschera" by Verdi, "Invictus" by Huhn, "Tally-ho" by Leoni, and others.

The Glee club which will be accompanied by Katherine Rhodes, pianist, and Paul Jones, organist, will sing a widely varied program which includes selections by Bach, Brahms, German, Debussy, Tschaikowsky, Deems Taylor, Copeland, Stevens, and Gilbert-Sullivan.

"An Immortality" by Copeland, a semi-jazz classic which is notable for its lack of conventional rhythm, and its original intervals, will be given a modern interpretation by the club. Four love songs by Brahms, "Beau Soir," by Debussy, the French impressionist, and the finale from "The Gondoliers" by Gilbert-Sullivan will round out the concert. The complete program follows:

The Madison Civic chorus will present its second concert of the season at the Christ Presbyterian church Wednesday evening at 8:15 p. m.

The chorus which now numbers 100 voices will present "Eve," a dramatic cantata in three parts by Jules Massenet. The solo parts in this number are to be sung by Frances Silva, soprano; Lauretta Inam, soprano; and Dr. Carl Baumann, tenor. The other number to be sung by the chorus is the third part of Handel's powerful oratorio, "Judas Maccabaeus." The solo parts of this oratorio are to be taken by Frances Silva, soprano; Martha Engel, soprano; Helen Supernaw, contralto; Frances Goodwin, contralto; Dr. Carl Baumann, tenor; and George Miller, bass. The boys' choir of Grace Cathedral will be an added feature for this number.

A very interesting number on the program will be the Tschaikowsky trio for the violin, cello, and piano, to be played by George Szpinalski, Ethel Murray, and Dr. Sigfrid Prager.

For Yvonne's feeble strength was spent after an hour's flight across the ice-pack.

Our Disappointment In Margaret Sanger

MRS. MARGARET SANGER'S lecture on the need for birth-control Monday night was something of a disappointment. To those who already subscribed to the principle which she preaches, there was nothing new in her talk at Music hall; those of us who have known for some time that birth-control is necessary have long known the economic and hygienic arguments which she advanced. To those who may have come to be convinced, there was a great lack in her argument.

The rebuttal of the older moralists, the decriers of the birth-control idea, is that the free dissemination of contraceptive information can result only in a great increase of vice. The argument of this group is that the fear of pregnancy is the greatest deterrent of sexual immorality, and that the removal of that fear would lead to unrestrained promiscuity. Mrs. Sanger in her speech Monday night did not reply to this argument, and to that extent at least her speech was incomplete.

The reply is of course obvious to most of us: first, that the physical condition of chastity is of no special value, that the mental temperance of the individual is the only true index of morality; second, that a chastity which results from fear is only physical, that fear as the only deterrent is completely unethical and probably dangerous as well; and finally, that the facts of contraception are known at present to organized vice in any event. Most of us also concede that the facts of contraception are so desirable economically and hygienically that no amount of propaganda can prevent their dissemination—a fact whose truth is attested by Mrs. Sanger's statement that one-third of her 13,000 patients in the last four years have been Roman Catholics, whose faith will not permit the control of birth;—and that the present problem in ethics is not whether or not contraception is desirable, but how contraception shall be fitted into the ethical scheme.

Although Mrs. Sanger neglected this whole function of the problem, her rather brief talk was excellent. That those who came to criticize found no refutation of their argument; and that those who came to learn heard nothing new was perhaps natural to the situation. It is difficult to speak upon controversial matters in communities in which most of the population has read widely in the field of controversy, and the rest, as witness Father Hengell, are completely closed to argument.

Fact and Fancy

By E. F. A.

THE THREE MEN stared at the table. None had spoken for some time. The old concierge, a hulk whose form was lost in the gloom back of the narrow counter, stirred slightly, but continued to watch his customers. His small, unwavering eyes were the only highlights in the shadows of the rear of the room. Their task was easy. But one of the two tables in the place was occupied. From the street beyond the door came no suggestion of new business. A dull evening. The eyes remained fixed on the three men.

"So, you've got it all doped out, huh, Bosun?"

It was the one in the khaki suit. He was fair, with cheeks ruddy from long exposure to the Levantine sun and wind. As he spoke his hand stopped twirling the glass and his eyes shifted their attention from the table top to the chunky man seated across from him.

"Listen, John, we've been good shipmates so far this trip . . . and it's only half done."

The Bosun paused, his lips drawing back in a pathetic attempt at a smile, showing two yellow rows of gold teeth. He went on in an uncertain stumbling fashion.

"There ain't no use in fightin' about the slut. We're shovin' off from here in less than a week, ain't we? Hell, we'll be in Barcelona in no time—where there's plenty of wenches."

The third man raised his glass and drained it. Putting it down he drew the back of his hand across his large mouth. His face was round and coarse, the heavy, black eyebrows gave the impression of a single dark line. The concierge had judged him to be the younger of the three.

"Sure, John," he said, "the Bosun's right. For God's sake don't let a bad hangover get you down. C'mon, let's have another and get back to the ship. This is a helluva dump anyway."

"You stay out of this, Frank. You're a pretty fair sailor bein' such a youngster, but this ain't none o' your party. Me and the Bosun'll sort of ride this out without any o' your help . . ."

John filled his own glass and passed the bottle over to Frank. The Bosun was again staring at the table, twirling his glass nervously before him. Suddenly he stood up, kicking his low chair out of the way. Without turning back he strode toward the door.

"I'll be back," he said.

FRANK looked at John.

"Let him go," he said.

"By God, he'd better stay away from her tonight . . . If he don't—I'll . . ."

"Take it easy, Mister," Frank advised. "She ain't worth it, and you know it. Ain't we made a home out of that floatin' mad-house? Ain't we hittin' the Spanish coast in a couple of weeks? I don't care if you want to get snotty and call me a kid, 'cause I know you don't mean nothing by it. But I hate to see you bust it all up because of a little boozin'. What's a damned old Syrian wench worth anyway? You want to get your papers don't you? You want to stick in the Line for another trip, and you know it. Two weeks in Alex next time, probably, and the buttons when you get back. It ought'a be worth somethin'. You don't want to stay in the fo'c'stle all your life, do you?"

John didn't reply. The other filled the two glasses again. The concierge, seeing that the bottle was empty, shuffled out of his gloom and replaced it with a full one. He did this mechanically, with no eagerness. His customers spoke in a strange tongue, yet he knew they quarreled. He wished they would go. But business was business. He returned to his post and removed all objects from the top of the counter. If there was going to be trouble he didn't want too much breakage.

John was the first to break the taught silence.

"It ain't no hang-over, Mister. And don't get the idea that that mate's ticket means so much, either. Or stickin' with this lousy Line. It's a break-your-back, starvation outfit, and you're just as wise to it as I am. The trouble with you is that you ain't been around enough to find out what a good ship is like. Bosun's all right—about as good as the breed runs. And we've had a swell time in Alex. But he's got to learn sometime that he ain't no woman-killer, or that he can't do me out of somethin' I've fixed all up for myself. He don't draw enough water for that, Mister."

Talking seemed to offer no release, it was rather an aggravation. Frank saw this and said no more. He lit a cigarette, and his whole manner indicated that he was through arguing. The door swung open. The Bosun entered and returned to his place at the table. John looked at him, half raising in his chair.

"Did you see her?"

"Yes."

"Where's she now?"

The Bosun pulled out a heavy watch.

"Well, John, she's just about clearin' the breakwater, in the fo'c'stle of that Dutchman that was tied up across from us today. She'll be in Jaffa in a couple of days, I guess. If she lasts that long."

John settled back in his chair.

"Garcon!" he called. "Shampain, savee, shampain!"

Loyalty and interest in the university's reputation will not allow him to overlook this opportunity further.

Harvard Debating Council Plan

PURPOSES:

- To propose a plan which might constitute a common ground for all those who sincerely desire improvement in the prohibition laws, to the end that temperance in fact shall replace prohibition in theory.
- To promote discussion of ways and means of obtaining such a common ground for all interested parties, if this particular plan is unsatisfactory.
- To foster university debating of a practical plan for the solution of the prohibition problem.

PLANS:

- All present federal legislation for the enforcement of the eighteenth amendment shall be repealed.
- Congress shall make unlawful the operation of all saloons and alehouses.
- Federal aid shall be provided for all states enacting legislation to enforce the eighteenth amendment.
- There shall be federal education to foster and encourage temperance and abstinence.
- A federal tax shall be placed on some beverages to provide funds to effect items 3 and 4.

ITEM 1. Allows us to start with a clean slate in our effort to solve the liquor problem.

ITEM 2. Makes possible the return of the saloon, or any other legal institution which sells intoxicants by the single drink.

ITEM 3. Will enable us to prevent inter-state traffic in liquors; it will provide men and money to suppress the manufacture, transportation and sale of intoxicants in all states where the public opinion is solidly opposed to the traffic in liquor.

ITEM 4. Allows us to build up a great fund of public sentiment in favor of the eighteenth amendment in all those communities where there is now at least a very large minority opposed to prohibition. Once we create a public sentiment in favor of national enforcement of the eighteenth amendment it will not be difficult to enforce it.

ITEM 5. Makes the consumers of those beverages which are calculated to be alcoholic pay the cost of providing genuine prohibition for all communities actually wanting it. In addition, it effects a saving for the national government.

BOOKS AND MEN

It has been said a long time ago that books have their fate. They have, and it is very much like the destiny of man. They share with us the great incertitude of ignominy or glory—of severe justice and senseless persecution—of calumny and misunderstanding—the shame of undeserved success.—Joseph Conrad.

Summer School Bulletin Lists New Short Courses

General Session Lasts From June 30 to
Aug. 8

The general summer school session for graduates and undergraduates will be held from June 30 to Aug. 8; the special nine weeks' session for graduates only from June 30 to Aug. 29; and the law school from June 23 to Aug. 29, according to the summer session bulletin, which will be out in 10 days. Dean Scott H. Goodnight is director.

The summer school courses are quite extensive with some special features, indicates the bulletin. The Wisconsin Rural Leadership conference, held between July 1 and 12 under the auspices of the college of agriculture, is one of the special institutes which is collateral with the summer school, but is not a part of it. The other one is the American Dramatic and Speech institute held under the auspices of University Extension and Department of Speech, over the same period of time.

Two short courses will be given as a part of the school. T. B. Sharp, national assistant director of the American Junior Red Cross, will give a course for teacher, which will last during the last three weeks of the summer school session. A conference for band masters will be held for one week, the date to be announced later.

Geography Courses Offered

A summer field course in geography at Devil's lake will be revived after having been abolished for a number of years. This trip will follow the regular summer session, being held from Aug. 11 to 30.

Mr. Lobeck, former professor at the university, but now at Columbia, is conducting a course in Rocky Mountain physiography, to which he will take Wisconsin students, as well as those from other colleges, on the trip lasting from June 14 to July 5.

Miss H'Doubler to Teach

Miss Margaret H'Doubler, associate professor of physical education, will be in residence for dancing work. Concerning Miss H'Doubler's work, Miss M. A. Ellingson, assistant to dean of men, said, "She is very much sought after throughout the country. Her dancing work is well known and she has a method of teaching which is all her own." The Phi Mu sorority house, 222 Langdon street, will be reserved for students studying "Philosophy of the Dance," as well as other phases of the work.

All civil and railway engineers are required to attend the Summer Survey camp at Devil's lake, beginning June 16.

Prof. M. C. Wilson of the U. S. Department of Agriculture is being brought here by the agricultural college, to conduct a special course for county agents.

Agard Gives Course

Prof. W. R. Agard, adviser in the Experimental college, will teach in summer school for the first time. Among other courses in Greek, he will conduct one on Greek life and thought in Athens in the 5th century.

Aeronautical meteorology, explaining atmospheric phenomena that effect flying, will be taught for the first time in several years.

Two interesting courses in the sociology department are being offered by Mr. Herskovitz, of Northwestern, in an "Introduction to Social Anthropology," and "Negro in Africa and America."

Miss Dalzell of Hunter college, New York city, will be at the university teaching "Creative Dramatics for Children."

School Principal Teaches

"Case Study of Scholarship Difficulties in Secondary School," and "Junior High School" are two courses which will be taught by Mr. Ryan, principal of the Wisconsin high school.

Mr. Pelikan, director of the Milwaukee Art institute and supervisor of art, will give instruction in "Appreciation of Art in Everyday Life," and "Art Curriculum Construction."

The Madison Library school is giving a course for teacher librarians, in which they will teach one in six weeks sufficient knowledge to conduct a high school library.

Other Courses Offered

Other departments offer courses, but these seemed to be the outstanding ones, according to Miss Ellingson.

Instructors are being brought from all over the country. Some of the colleges and universities from where they are picked are: Vassar college, Wittenberg, Washington, D. C., Northwestern, Michigan, Racine, Lawrence, Cornell, Wellesley, Southern California, and Oregon.

Announce Various Fees

Thirty dollars and fifty cents is the fee for undergraduates in the L. & S. school, and $33.50 for graduates. The law school charges $38.50, and the nine weeks' graduate course is $43.50. Six credits is the maximum number of summer school credits which counts toward graduation, although some additional ones are given to complete the language requirements.

About 5,222 people attended the last summer school session.

Hibbard Advises Farmers to Limit Potato Acreage

Potato growers will be making a wise move if they do not plant a large acreage of potatoes than was planted last year was the warning issued by B. H. Hibbard, agricultural economist in the college of agriculture, Monday.

"Until recently one of the best plans of predicting potato prices for the following fall was to plant a large crop when the price of seed stock was low and a small acreage when the price was high," states Hibbard.

"At the present time the best growers are making use of the statistics of former years on acreages and yields to help smooth out the peaks and valleys of production which are caused by unusually favorable weather conditions."

"It is quite definitely known that a bumper crop may be produced with a small acreage and a small crop may be produced with a large acreage. By studying the data published by the crop reporting service and the United States department of agriculture a fairly safe prediction can be made," said Mr. Hibbard.

Last year's production was 354 million bushels as compared with a crop of 464 million bushels the year before. The people of the United States are able to eat and use otherwise about 360 million bushels of potatoes each year. Any amount over this figure will cause a surplus which will force the price downward. This was the reason for the low prices paid the farmers in the fall of 1928.

The 1929 crop being six million bushels short of the normal figure brought the high prices last fall and winter.

Hopkins Publishes Bulletins on Cherry and Apple Diseases

Two bulletins, "Some Insect pests of the Cherry and Apple Orchards of Door County," by Prof. A. A. Granovsky and "Spray Material for Apple and Cherry Diseases" by Prof. G. W. Keitt were published last week by Prof. Andrew W. Hopkins of the college of agriculture.

In "Some Insect Pests of the Cherry and Apple Orchards of Door County," Prof. Granovsky gives the life history of the case bearer, a recently encountered insect pest, which has been steadily increasing until it has become a pest of major importance. Indications are that it will be necessary to take energetic methods of control. Prof. Granovsky gives methods for controlling this pest. He also gives methods for controlling the leaf rollers on apple trees.

In "Spray Materials For Apple and Cherry Diseases" Prof. Keitt tells of a new method for studying the relative value of spray materials for the control of apple scab.

Wickhem Revered St. Patrick — But Law Cured Him

"I grew up with a great deal of reverence for Saint Patrick but then I entered the law school at Wisconsin."

So remarked Prof. John B. Wickhem of the law school at the Newman club banquet held at Newman hall Sunday night in celebration of Saint Patrick's day. "Why the world loves the Irish," was the subject of his talk. Miss Helen C. White, professor of English, refuted his arguments.

The Rev. Dr. H. C. Hengell, pastor of St. Paul's university chapel, was toastmaster.

A musical program was provided by Arleen Frusher '32, John R. Cashman L3, George Patmythes '32, Kenneth Healy L2, and Daniel Hildebrand '31.

Prof. H. R. Trumbower, head of the employment bureau of the school of commerce, will address members of the Women's Commerce club at an open meeting at the Memorial Union at 7:30 tonight. Opportunities of employment for women in commerce will be the subject of his talk.

By THE RINGSIDER

Close to 5,000 fight-hungry fans jammed the Stock pavilion last night to watch the 36 boxers go through their paces in the semi-finals of the third annual all-university boxing tournament.

The spectators craved action and before the first match of the evening was over some of the more-frenzied in the audience were foaming at the mouth.

Only One Knockout

Although there was only one knockout in the 18 matches, every bout was full of action. In the first match between Frank and Piazza, they mixed from bell to bell, and Frank earned the right to meet the champion by scoring the cleaner blows. Piazza was game to the core and stuck to his guns to the final bell.

The featherweight between Maluey and Murray was fairly even, with Murray winning the decision on the strength of his left jabs. Bensman and LeBoy put up a great scrap in the 126-pound division, with LeBoy receiving the decision by punching cleaner and harder. Dyerson and Kuhlman, another pair of welterweights, were fairly evenly matched, with the latter clinching the match in the second round when he staggered Dyerson with a solid right to the head. Hauser and Gordon fought the last match in this class, and the good-natured Hauser won every round by his aggressive tactics, although Gordon had him slightly worried in the second frame.

Five Middleweight Bouts

There were five matches in the middleweight division, and each one proved interesting. In the first bout between Lund and Hanson, Lund made a strong start in the first round, but the cool-headed Hanson proved his superiority before the round was over. Hanson had things pretty much his own way after that, and although he did not stow away his opponent, he gave him a terrific beating. Marsh supplied the thrill of a knockout when he administered a sleeping potion to Axel in the next bout. The match ended in the second spasm, after both boys had been slugging away on even terms.

The elongated Bauman used his longer reach to advantage in the next middleweight match to defeat Wos. Wos repeatedly ran into Bauman's left in trying to land a haymaker, and when the final bell sounded was all but out on his feet. Vinson and Voss supplied the comic relief in their bout, and Vinson had the crowd roaring with his comical antics. Voss had a difficult time winning after three close rounds. Peck and Scully, also bantamweights, repeated with fine performance in the next match, the agile Peck winning, due to his effective body punches.

Fleury Wins Bout

The lightweight tussle between Fleury and Lizza was marred by frequent clinching, but both lads were anxious to mix and the result was pleasing, with Fleury winning the judges' decision. The first of the four matches in the 140-pound class was a corker between Heidt and Whitney, the latter gaining the decision on the strength of his jolting right-hand blows.

Ochsner House Declared Victor After Recount

Charges launched by Ochsner that Babington of Botkin house was ineligible for intramural sports, and that Richardson house had entered men in more than the limit of three events to garner entry points, were sustained by the intramural department who issued revised standings Tuesday, as follow: Ochsner, 87; Richardson, 85; Vilas, 49.

The changes also made Carl Lemm of Ochsner house high point man of the meet.

Ochsner scored 51 points in the track meet which, added to their 36 point gratuity on the basis of one point per entry per event, gave them a slim two-point margin over Richardson, who scored 45 points in the track meet proper and received 40 points for entries.

Badgers Leave Thursday to Match Strokes With Two Michigan Squads

The conference meet out of the way and with but one meet left on the schedule, the Badger swimming squad will entrain Thursday at 5:10 for Ann Arbor where they will meet the Wolverines Friday night.

After this match, the squad will continue their journey to Detroit where they will match strokes with the strong Detroit Yacht club team on Saturday.

Michigan Strong

Somewhat dismayed at the final results of the conference meet last Saturday at Evanston, where the Wildcats took the Big Ten honors, Coach Joe Steinauer is grooming his men for the Michigan match. Reports from the Michigan camp find that team considering the Badger battle but a preliminary to the National meet which they hope to take a few weeks hence.

The Ann Arbor squad, adorned with some of the best swimmers in the country should have little trouble in setting back the Badgers, while the Detroit Yacht club team, a group composed of former Michigan stars should also give the Cardinals plenty of opposition.

The Wisconsin alumni residing in Detroit will fet the Badger squad immediately after their match Saturday afternoon.

Fencers, Gymnasts Conclude Big Ten Season Satisfied

With the completion of the conference gymnast and fencing meet last Saturday, Coach Masley's proteges concluded their season, the gymnast team winning two matches and placing fifth in the Big Ten competition, while the fencing squad lost all of its scheduled meets.

Considering the green and inexperienced material with which Coach Masley had to build his teams, the showing is not as bad as the results indicate. On the gymnast squad there were only two men who had previous experience, Hayward and Kraut.

Hayward, Kraut Shine

These two men gave good accounts of themselves in competition although they received little support from their teammates. Hayward placed third in the conference meet in which about 20 men competed.

In the dual meets he received three firsts, one second, and three thirds for a total of 21 points. The only other man to receive 10 or more points is Kraut, who won one first, one second, and two thirds. Or the remaining gymnasts Probasco and Vick were the outstanding. Both made eight points in the dual competitions.

A Bad Season

In the past few years the Wisconsin gymnasts gave better accounts in the conference meet. Last year they were awarded third place and the year before a second.

At the beginning of the season the outlook for the fencing team was exceedingly bright but the loss of all the veterans reduced the team to a squad of rookies. With all of this year's green material returning next year the prospects for the fencing team in the future are excellent.

Pairings Made for Academy Cage Tourney

Eastern Entry Boosts National Academy Title Seekers to Eleven

An eleventh-hour entry boosted the total number of participants in the National Academy basketball championships to be held here starting Thursday to 11, when Vermont Academy, of Saxton's Falls, Vt., notified Manager Fred M. Evans of its intention to join the fray for the national title.

Pairings were announced by Evans Tuesday. Eliminations will start Thursday afternoon, at 2 p. m. Three games will be played in the afternoon and two more in the evening.

Texas Battles Illinois

Terrill Academy, of Dallas, Tex., the tournament favorite will probably have an easy time in its first game, when it encounters the Chicago Central Y. M. C. A. Bay five at 8 p. m.

In the opening game of the tournament, Morgan Park of Chicago, plays the Northwestern Naval and Military Academy of Lake Geneva, Wis. Both teams are yearly entrants in the tourney, and the ensuing fray is expected to be a live one.

St. Mels Meets Harvard

"Paddy" Driscoll, football star and fight promoter, will parade his St. Mels five, of Chicago, against the Harvard Academy team, also of Chicago in the second game of the day. Bethel Institute of St. Paul, Minn., meets St. John's Military Academy of Delafield, Wis., in the final afternoon contest.

Culver Faces Racine

Culver Military Academy, of Culver, Ind., should have little trouble in trouncing Racine college, of Racine, Wis., although the Racine preps have several times brushed aside favorites in the tournament and can be relied upon to furnish plenty of thrills.

The Terrill-Chicago Y. M. C. A. contest will complete the first day's eliminations. Vermont Academy drew a bye in the first bracket. The semi-final bracket and consolation round will start Friday, and the championship game will be staged Saturday night.

Nine Wrestling Matches Today

Masor, in 135-Pound Class, on Way to Third Title

Semi-Final Pairings

125-pound—Scott vs. Brodsky; Marcus vs. Ebbot.

135-pound—Scheffe vs. Masters; Earl vs. Masor.

145-pound—Eves vs. Carlson; Egert vs. Heimann.

155-pound—Steinbach vs. Creutz; Wood vs. Wyss.

165-pound—Sindberg vs. Holstein.

The finalists in five divisions of the All-University wrestling tournament will be decided this afternoon when nine matches will be run off in the gym at 4:30. The finals will take place Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. There will be an admission charge of 25 cents.

Those who have already won their way to the finals are: 115-pound—Weller and Garens, 175-pound—Kolka and Estreen; heavyweight—Louis and Avery.

This afternoon's bouts all promise to be very close. The Brodsky-Scott clash in the 125 pound class should be a thriller, both men having shown rare form in their first round matches. Masor, the winner of the 135-pound title for two consecutive years, will have a tough man to face in Earl but should come through with a win due to his greater experience. If he wins his way to the finals and is a victor, Masor will be the only one to win the same title three years in a row.

Yesterday's results:

145-pound—Eves threw Barker in four minutes.

155-pound—Creutz threw Jockla, 7:40; Darlington threw Raymond, 4:32; Steinbach won decision from Snively, 9:40.

Langdon and Chad Bowlers Winners of Semi-Finals

Chadbourne and Langdon halls were the winners in the semifinals of the women's intramural bowling tournament, held Tuesday evening at Lathrop hall.

Langdon hall team got away to a good start and won their first game by a large margin, but in their second game they went below the 400 mark to lose to the Phi O Pi's. However they managed to pull through in the last game to win with a comfortable margin. The scores of the games were: 420-349, 397-449, and 376-341 in favor of the Langdon hall team. Beals, for Phi O. Pi's was the highest individual scorer with 152 to her credit, while Meyers from Langdon hall was second with 132.

Teams: Langdon hall: Meyers, Cox, McKellar, and Hard. Phi O. Pi: Beals, Schott, Spence, and Curtiss.

Hillel, Calvary Win in First Round; Two Games Postponed

The Hillel and Calvary Lutheran basketball fives swung into action in the play-off series for the intramural championship last night by annexing their first round battles from Sigma Phi Epsilon and Phi Pi Phi respectively. Two other games scheduled to have been played between Tarrant and Sigma Chi and Ochsner and Dekes were called off, although it has not been decided whether they will be played or forfeited.

Playing on the varsity court, Hillel had little trouble in conquering the Sig Phi Ep quintet by the score of 21-7, in a game that was listless and slow after the first half. Sauk, Hillel guard, was the mainspring in the winner's attack, and he also was important in holding the Sig Phi Eps total so low while S. Feld and C. Feld of the same team looked good in their first appearances of the tourney. Unable to break through the tight Hillel defense, the Sig Phi Eps seemed to be lost, and their own defense was affected with the result that the game turned out to be a one-sided affair with the outcome certain early in the second half.

Calvary Lutheran, Church league champs, piled up a 12-4 lead at half time and coasted through to a 19-12 victory in the other game of the evening. Exhibiting a fast passing game, they outplayed the Phi Pi Phi's who were minus the services of their star guard. Graebner and Oman led the winners in scoring, but the whole team was involved in the success of the passing. A defense was laid which held the fraternity winners away from the basket, and when they did break through they missed their short shots badly. Garrity was the main cog in the losers attack, but he missed many shots. Hedrick played a fair game, but committed four personals. However, the Calvary five allowed him to remain in the game.

Graebner did the most work for the winners, and despite his lack of height was a prominent factor under the basket. Oman outscored him, but did not play as great a part in the team work. Sneller was inefficient under the basket, but contributed important pass work. In one instance he was on the tossing end of the best play of the night. Graebner was closely guarded, but broke loose under the hoop just in time to receive a beautiful bounce pass from Sneller. Without looking at the goal, Graebner counted two points on a perfect shot. Gridders Eye Spring Practice

Coach Anxious as Grind Opens; Wants 200 Men

Early Training Is Forecast of Autumn Playing, Thistlethwaite States

"In all my football coaching experience, I have found that as my spring practice goes, so goes my fall season," is the way Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite explains his anxiety to secure a large turnout of candidates for the Badgers' spring training session which will start March 24.

Coach Thistlethwaite has been working for some time on plans for the spring session, which will be in two periods. Work will start March 24 and be carried on daily until April 8, when the annual spring vacation will halt the practice for nine days. Training will be resumed April 17 and will then continue for three weeks.

Hit Few Point

"Most of the emphasis of our spring training this year will be place on two points," Coach Thistlethwaite continued. "The first is the trying out of the material; the second, the stressing of offense." The Badger coach then went on to explain that owing to the fact that Wisconsin will meet Chicago Oct. 11 and Pennsylvania a week later, it will be necessary to start work immediately in September as special preparation for these games. It will be impracticable, he explained, to spend any time next fall in experimenting with the personnel. Team work will demand all the coaches' attention from the opening day. The chief value of the spring training session is for assaying the material.

To this end, Coach Thistlethwaite would like very much to play a number of practice games in the last fortnight. Just how many games can be played will depend upon the regularity with which the men can come out. One of the chief difficulties in previous springs has been that the coaches have not been able to count on the same men on successive days.

Climax With Game

In any event, the spring work will conclude with one regulation game between two picked teams, which will be made as nearly equal in strength as possible.

Coach Thistlethwaite stressed the fact that every man with football ambitions will be welcomed this spring, regardless of his previous experience or lack of it. All eligible freshman numeral men and all varsity football men who are not actively engaged in other sports as members of varsity teams will be expected to report.

Thistlethwaite is hoping for an initial enrollment of 200 candidates and will consider the situation serious if less than 150 men turn out. He blames no one for the fact that the 1929 spring session was disappointing but insists that Wisconsin must have a serious, efficient spring practice this year if the autumn campaign is to be a success. Last year only about 60 men reported with fair regularity.

Use Entire Staff

The entire varsity football coaching staff will work with the candidates this spring. This includes head coach Thistlethwaite, "Stub" Allison, line coach, Campbell Dickson, end tutor, "Bo" Cuisinier, backfield coach, and Rube Wagner, assistant line coach. Irv Uteritz and Guy Sundt of the football staff will be busy with the freshman baseball and track squads, respectively.

Several big gaps in the Badger battle front must be filled before next fall and it must be done this spring. Every guard on last year's squad will be gone next fall. Captain Johnny Parks will graduate in June, while Hardt, Tobias, and Lietman are all ineligible. Whitey Ketelaar and Larry Shoemaker, varsity tackles, will also graduate, as will Ebert Warren and Lew Smith, ends.

The biggest problem, however, will be to find a man to fill the shoes of Harold Rebbholz, Wisconsin's great defensive ace in 1929. No capable substitute fullbacks were developed last fall and there is little material in sight, apparently, for this all-important position.

The whole situation is rendered still more disquieting by the fact that last fall's freshman squad was distinctly below standard.

Fresh Wrestling Meets

Carded for Next Week

The freshman wrestling tournament will be run off next week. The deadline for entries and weighing in will be 4:30 p. m., Monday, March 24. The

Versatile Hawkeye Shelves Javelin for Catching Post

Iowa City—Whether to hurl the javelin more than 190 feet down the field or to whip the ball across to second base was the athletic quandary which bothered Oscar Elmo Nelson at the beginning of his first season of competition at the University of Iowa.

But the javelin event on the track team was in the champion hands of L. D. Weldon, National A. A. U. record-holder; while the catcher's position had been vacated by the graduation of Captain Clayton Thompson.

So the 21-year-old Clearfield youth, equally proficient in both sports and good enough in football to win a minor

"I" last fall, donated his talents to the baseball team and probably will play regularly throughout the 22-game season.

Nelson, a stocky 170-pounder, is the finest javelin thrower ever developed in an Iowa high school, for two years ago he created the state record of over 181 feet and at the university's interscholastic meet unloosed a 192-foot effort.

On the diamond, the sophomore has the demeanor of a veteran, has trained right arm pegs the ball down to second base in a devastating manner, and he holds up his pitchers steadily. A fair hitter, Nelson also is fast on the bases.

Dean Must Fill Infield Vacancies to Be in Running

Bloomington, Ind.—With the diamond in fairly good condition daily practices are being held by the Indiana University baseball team in preparation for the annual trip south which will be made to Oxford, Miss., April 3-8 where the Crimson will meet the University of Mississippi nine in a five game series.

With outdoor practices held last Thursday and Monday, Coach Everett Dean has taken a general survey of the material and believes it is very promising for a successful year. Included in the list of candidates are eight lettermen from the squad last season. The group includes Magnabosco at the receiving end, Balay at the initial sack, Jaros at second base, Burrows at short stop, Crowe and Brubaker in the outfield and Veller and Mankowski from the pitching staff.

Infield Position Vacant

The only position in the infield not filled is the hot corner which was occupied by Capt. "Pooch" Harrell, who is now assisting the coaching staff. Harrell was one of the outstanding hitters of the conference last year and had a batting average in the neighborhood of 500 per cent.

His post is being hotly contested for by Thomas, Banka, Costello and May. The latter three were members of the freshman squad last season while Thomas was a recruit on the varsity.

New Men Good

New men that are showing up well in their fight for positions on the team are: Gatti, Young, Waitkus and Hughes for the pitching staff; Ray Rascher and Lay for the catching post; Unger and Vrocan at first base, and Fleischer at second base.

The practice during the past two sessions has consisted mainly of hitting and fielding long fly balls. The team as a whole is expected to show a better batting average than that of last year. The home season will be opened with a two game series to be played April 11 and 12 with Wabash.

ers have fared on an average with previous seasons' performances, winning two dual meets and dropping the same amount. Chicago and Minnesota proved easy for the Steinauer men, but Northwestern, a ranking squad nationally completely set down the Badgers. Illinois eked out a victory two weeks ago in the gymnasium tank by one point.

Following the return of the Wisconsin tankers this week-end many of the contestants will journey to Milwaukee March 26 to take part in the annual Wisconsin A. A. U. tournament. The Cardinal men will swim in this meet unattached.

The Badger entrants in the Michigan meets follow:

Relay—Davis, Shaffter, Chizek, Lange.
Breast stroke—Meyer, Perry.
40-yard free style—Shaffter, Davis.
440-yard free style—Winsey.
100-yard free style—Chizek, Lange.
Back stroke—Thomsen, Von Maltitz.
Dives—Powell, Hayward.
Medley relay—Ermanace, Hall, Perry.
Water polo—Kruger, Tanaka, Putnam, Steinauer.

preliminaries will be from Monday to Friday with the finals on Saturday, March 29.

Illinois Plays Host to Finalists in Cage Tourney

Champaign, Ill.—Host to the state basketball tournament, the University of Illinois is ready to welcome the eight teams which will battle for supremacy in the finals which will open on the floor of the new gymnasium Thursday afternoon. On Saturday night the Illini at their own expense will tender a buffet supper to the high school teams, coaches, principals and superintendents, where the trophies will be presented. All profits of the tournament after the actual expenses are deducted are turned over to the state association.

last season, gave a good account of himself in his match with Cavalliere, taking every round although his opponent battled toe to toe with him. Cavalliere lost through inability to connect when punches were needed. Lambert and Goldfus in the same class went an extra round before the winner could be determined, the former gaining the verdict.

Westen, Beck Fight

The last match of this division was between Westen and Beck, the latter swinging from the portside. Beck was a trifle too fast for his opponent, and managed to land the most punches to win the match. Sickenger and Erickson met in a welterweight bout that proved uninteresting because of Erickson's peculiar style of fighting. Sickenger, however, took the offensive from the start and won the bout.

Jacobson and Haggerty fought a sizzling match that had the crowd on edge and Jacobson won every round.

Hammer, Wrestler, Wins

Schliefer and Hammer, the latter a Big Ten wrestling champion, met in the last of the middleweight matches and put up a good fight. There was plenty of mixing in this fight, and both boxers scored effectively, so that an extra round was necessary to decide the winner. Hammer won in the last round with jolting right hooks to the head.

"Billy" Goodsitt and Tony Curreri brought the evening to a successful close with a fast exhibition match in which both boxers displayed sparkling footwork. Goodsitt is defending bantamweight champion, and Curreri is lightweight titleholder. The finals will be staged next Tuesday at the stock pavilion.

Wildcats Sponsor Huge Prep Meet Friday, Saturday

Evanston, Ill.—More than 600 high school stars in track, swimming and wrestling will test their skill at Northwestern university's eighteenth annual interscholastic meet here Friday and Saturday. Eight states are represented among the 50 schools that have sent in entry blanks.

The battle for supremacy in all three sports is expected to be unusually keen. Chicago schools which usually cut in heavily in the point column will find considerable competition from Milwaukee schools together with numerous other middlewestern schools including Danville, Ill., Green Bay, Wis., South Bend, Ind., Waukegan, Fort Dodge, Iowa, Tulsa, Okla., Iowa City, Iowa, and Virginia, Minn.

Tulsa, Okla., which is sending up practically the same team that won the wrestling championship last year, is a favorite to win that title again. However, the competition will be tough with Fort Dodge, Iowa, and Cherokee, Iowa, and the following Chicago schools all entering strong teams, Lindblom, Senn, Roosevelt and Crane Tech.

Purple Seeks National Title

Northwestern Tankers Hope to Retain Intercollegiate Crown

Evanston, Ill.—Northwestern university's swimming team which won the Big Ten championship last week is looking forward to further laurels in the form of the National Intercollegiate championships to be held at Harvard March 28 and 29. The Purple tankers won the nationals last year and with practically the same team intact they entertain hopes of making it two in a row.

Coach Tom Robinson has not decided definitely what men he will take east but will probably pick a squad of seven or eight. Among those certain to go are Capt. Al Schwartz and Bill Wilson, free style; Don Petersen and Bob Howlett, breast stroke and Dick Hinch, back stroke.

Use Same Men

This is the quintet that will endeavor to win the national title for the second time in succession. Capt. Al Schwartz, winner of the 40, 100 and 220 yard swims in the conference meet, is the principal hope of the Purple. Last year he won the century and placed second in the 40 yard swim besides swimming anchor man on the winning medley relay team.

Bob Howlett and Don Petersen who finished first and second in the 200 yard breast stroke in the recent Big Ten meet will endeavor to repeat in that order in the national meet. Howlett just nosed Petersen out to win the conference with the new national intercollegiate time of 2:35.6.

Hinch A Sure Winner

Another sure place winner for Northwestern is Dick Hinch who won the conference meet for the third consecutive time. His time of 1:39.8 broke his own national record of 1:40.6.

The Purple will engage in one more meet before the nationals and that will be with the strong Stanford team Monday night, March 24. The Stanford squad will stop off here on its way to the nationals. Included among the Cardinal aquatic stars is Pete DesJardins, Olympic fancy diving champion.

Northwestern defeated Stanford by a one point margin in a meet at Palo Alto a year ago.

Union Board Candidates to Meet in Union Today

A meeting of all Union board candidates for offices in the spring elections will be held in the Writing room of the Memorial Union at 4 p. m. today. The purpose of the meeting will be to discuss political combinations and campaign coalitions among the candidates, according to Theo Otjen, president of the board.

The scheduled meeting of the Aeronautical society Wednesday, has been postponed on account of the proximity of the six weeks' exams. Notice of the next meeting will appear in The Daily Cardinal.

Badger Cinder Diggers Aim for Missouri

Drop Kansas Relays From Schedule as Collegiate Track Crown Looms

Conquest for collegiate outdoor track crowns is the next big problem facing Coach Tom Jones' Badger track and field men. And their next battle field will be at Missouri where the Cards will tangle in a meet at the Valley school April 12.

The meet with the "Show-me" school, if negotiations are completed, will open the outdoor season for the Wisconsin team, with the Kansas Relays, which had been scheduled for the following week, being dropped off the list. April 12 comes during vacation and the squad would be given a fine chance of training for the long outdoor season in the temperate Missouri climate.

A four mile relay team, a high hurdles shuttle relay quartet, and the third-place mile relay team will represent the Badgers in the Illinois meet. In addition to the three teams, Ted Shaw and Sam Behr will demonstrate their conference title-winning ability in the high jump and shot put.

Both of the Badger individual stars will be up against the strongest competition they have yet met, and for the first time neither will rate as the favorites. Behr will meet Meier of Kansas who recently did 48 feet 7 inches, a mark which Behr has not bettered in competition this year. Shaw's chief opponent will be Nelson of Butler, whose mark of 6 feet 6 inches in the high jump is better than Shaw's best by over three inches.

Milt Diehl has also been entered in the broad jump, but it is doubtful whether he will make the trip. Similarly, Shaw and Behr have been listed in the all-around events, but it is doubtful whether they will actually attempt to contest Berlinger's title.

The exact condition of Bill Follows is Coach Jones' chief worry at present. Follows was released from the infirmary Tuesday, but was still limping from the effects of his shoeless two mile run Saturday. Should Follows be in condition, he would be a mainstay in the four mile relay team, with Goldworthy and Thompson the other chief components. The remaining members will be chosen from Schulze, Kirk, and Steenis. Kirk, formerly a half miler, has recently turned to the mile and is making excellent progress in that event.

In all probability, the mile relay quartet will be composed of Levy, Exum, Henke, and Davidson, the same four who ran at Minneapolis. Should anyone break into the list, Gaffke seems to have the preference, although Wetsal is another possibility.

Ziese and Brandt are sure of being on the shuttle hurdles team, but the other two places are in doubt. Jensen, Lee, and Ogara are the three men from whom two must be chosen to complete the team.

The remaining members of the team are already turning their attention to outdoor work, with the distance runners among the first to leave the annex. Simmons, sophomore discus thrower, and Frisch, junior hammer tosser, are among the first weight men to take their workouts in the open, with others expecting to join the squad shortly.

Foul Odors Gone; Fowl Mummies Used in 'Cyrano'

Four decapitated bodies, embalmed in the latest mode by the Frautschi funeral parlors, will add a note of realism to the second act of Wisconsin Players' production of "Cyrano de Bergerac," solving a dramatic problem that taxed the resourcefulness of Prof. William Troutman and other stage experts.

The problem which the producers faced was that of having a turkey, goose, duck, and chicken turning slowly on a spit over a fire. The genuine article would have probably offended the olfactory senses of the audience during the length of a week's production, and paper maiche drops were impractical for use on a spit.

Prof. Troutman cut the Gordian knot by having the five fowls purchased, decapitated, and taken to the funeral parlors for embalming, that they might be used for a week without becoming odoriferous—we almost said fowl.

Fox Defends Religious Faith

Pragmatic Purpose of Religion Accomplished When It Is Used—Fox

"Religion is after all a philosophy of life," was the conception given by Rabbi G. G. Fox in his talk on "Judaism and the Rights of Christianity," at the Hillel Foundation Thursday night. "Man can't live without some faith or belief. Many people do not use religion except when they need it, but what is the difference," continued Rabbi Fox. "Use it when you need it, it has then accomplished its pragmatic purpose."

Relating religion, as a philosophy, to modern life Rabbi Fox quoted Du Bois as saying, "Men and women who study and teach must not forget to have a stated philosophy that fits modern life and is rooted in one's past life." Rabbi Fox disagreed with Israel Zangwill's "The Melting Pot," which contains the thought that all religious prejudice can be disregarded in this country. "The church plays a larger part than any other institution outside of the government in the United States," was Rabbi Fox's belief.

"The supreme idea of Judaism is that every man shall assume a totality of peace and well wishing toward every other man. Call the idea of the Supreme Being cosmic urge, experience, energy, or what you will, the creative will is there." In speaking of Jesus' being accepted as the Messiah and his work Rabbi Fox said, "Jesus did a wonderful work among the poor and originated social work. After all life is a varicolored checkerboard in which each group has a different color value."

After the meeting Rabbi Fox led a discussion and endeavored to answer any questions that were asked. Rabbi Fox is from the South Shore congregation in Chicago and is the author of the book, "Judaism, Christianity, and Modern Social Ideals."

Kolbe to Speak on Rural Life

Convention of Farm Clubs
Meet Here March
28-29

J. H. Kolbe, of the university rural sociology department, has been announced as the main speaker at the banquet Saturday evening, March 29, in the Memorial Union, that climaxes the first annual preliminary convention of American rural clubs. His subject will be "Rural Life Opportunities on the Campus."

The Blue Shield Country Life club is in charge of entertaining student delegates, numbering over 50, during their stay here. Adult full-time workers in rural life work will also attend the conference, according to Frank E. Clements '31, in charge of entertainment. Clements, who will be toastmaster at the Saturday night banquet, expects delegates from eastern and southern colleges as well as mid-west.

Sessions at Wesley
Sessions of the convention will be held in Wesley foundation, except for the banquet. Delegates will register and be assigned rooms Friday afternoon, March 28, and will meet at a dinner that evening. Helen Melton, chairman of the student section of the American Country Life association, will preside in a discussion of conference objectives. Blue Shield will present a demonstration program for rural communities.

W. H. Stacy, field secretary of the association, will present plans of the 1930 conference, to be held in Madison in October, in the Saturday morning sessions. The theme of the later conference will be "Standards of Living." A. Z. Mann, of the Garrett Biblical institute, will summarize the participation of students in previous conferences.

National Officials Here

Harley Burton, secretary of the student section of the association, will preside at a fellowship luncheon and discussion Saturday noon. Student interests in the association will be considered in afternoon sessions, with Nat T. Frame, field secretary, presenting a statement as to the former policy. Committees will be appointed, and demonstrations of rural club leadership will be given.

Final sessions of the conference for considering reports of committees and concluding unfinished business will be held Sunday morning.

William C. Hahn to Address

Local Electrical Engineers

William C. Hahn, engineering department of the General Electric company, Chicago, will speak on "Taking the Guess Out of System Protection," following the dinner meeting of Madison section of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, held Wednesday at 6 p. m. in Memorial Union.

"Complete
Campus
Coverage"

Eleven slips in our box, 16 phone calls, and more than 200 visitors on Monday announced to us in one way or the other that there was a monkey in a tree near the Law building. Here are some of the reports . . . The lawyers said that an engineer was loose . . . The engineers could not see why the lawyers had to climb trees . . . Miss Margaret Ellingson unintentionally committed the first pun or "monkey business" . . . The monk had scampered up the tree because it did not want to spend five cents for a feather . . . One of the law pros thought it was an odd place for an engineer to start a bridge . . . Why did we not issue a humane call for someone to rescue the poor thing? . . . The monkey had been submerged in the lake all winter but had been released by the opening of the ice sheet . . . "You ought to do something about it because it is a female monkey and may be somebody's mother" . . . and then there were other engineer and lawyer stories about it and even a birth control story, but there will be no further monkey mention herein.

The central desk of the Memorial Union was selling tickets for Mrs. Sanger's birth control lecture on Monday and distributing a telegraph company's announcement, done in a vivid yellow, proffering the advice that a telegraph gift order was the thing with which to answer a birth announcement.

About the lake opening . . . Ada Ruth Meyer '33 and Ruth Abrams '33 went swimming. Sunday somewhere near the place where Langdon street ends or begins . . . The official opening will not occur until Prof. Eric Miller, campus weather prophet, makes a canoe round trip across Lake Mendota.

Great commotion in the women's swimming tank at Lathrop hall last week. A wee bit of a mouse was seen swimming across the pool, bringing a scream from one young lady, causing every girl to scamper from the pool. Aided and abetted by a long pole, an unidentified instructress removed the rodent.

This came through the mail: "TIME AND TIDR ARE WORTH TWO IN THE BUSH."

"This is a chain letter. 'It is sent to you to bring you good luck; copy it and send it on to 19 friends whom you wish good luck. Nine days after sending see what happens. This must go round the world 10 times and finally stop at the South Pole; do not break the chain."

"Ezra Blokes, Toolittle, Iowa, ignored this warning and did not send this letter on; on the ninth day he had developed the seven-year itch. Maria Honeybug, Littletoo, Idaho, sent the message on and in nine days her tabby cat had 19 kittens. Take heed!

"This chain was started by a chain gang in Waupun. In sending it on to your friends, copy the letter, enclose $1 with each letter (not stamps) and good luck will come to you."

Below the whole shooting match the chain is traced as follows: Greta Garbo to Dean Goodnight to Glenn Frank to Alexander Meiklejohn to Clarence Weinstock to Betty Cass to Roundy to Dean Nardin to Bill Purnell to Flo Ziegfeld to Marilyn Miller to Jack Pickford to Railroad Jack to Clara Bow to Lydia E. Pinkham to The Rambler to (and that's all.)

But even staid football coaches and dormitory fellows fall for the collegiate announcement form. Campbell Dickson, grad, is the author of the following on the Richardson (Adams) house bulletin:

REVIVAL MEETING

for members of
RICHARDSON HOUSE
WEDNESDAY AT 12:45 P. M.
"Billy" Sunday Dickson
will preach and lead discussion.

- (1.) John (not St.)

- (3.) People that live in glass houses.
- (4.) Night life in Richardson house; lurid, ghastly details.
- (5.) Syncopated sin; wild jazz orgies at midnight.
- (6.) Souls for Sale; Cheap!
- (7.) Shall we be tyrannized by Dickson?

Brother McClure will play the big bassoon. Sister Scott will blow the trumpet. COME AND BE SAVED.

*Presumably John Scott '32, president.

The young lady who is "coming from Chicago for the express purpose of performing at the Veiled Prophets Ball" is listed in the student directory as Ethel Zabel '32, a student at the university.

Rev. Hart Believes Personal, Practical Religion Desirable

"Religion should be personal, practical, reasonable, and humane," Rev. James H. Hart affirmed in his sermon, "What Kind of Religion We Need," delivered Sunday to his congregation at the Unitarian church. These four desirable characteristics are needed to form a working religion, he observed.

"No matter how heavy a smoke screen is raised by President Hoover," declared Rev. Hart in speaking of the necessity of religion's being humane, "we know that millions are suffering dire distress from unemployment in our country, and millions are living under the constant fear of it. Here is this unclean, hideous, business of unemployment in our nation, which of all nations, should know nothing of unemployment."

Summing up his sermon, Rev. Hart concluded that after all, "Each man has to work out a religion for himself . . . A religious man has to come to terms with nature as it manifests itself to him."

by nancy schutter

SIDELIGHTS: We will put the daily fact in the top of the column today and it is that there is more noise per square foot in the City office than in any other dive we have seen or heard of. And kindly don't blame us if we seem to stutter in this col. . . It's all because when a col isn't used one day we slyly use parts of it the next and then someone decides to mix them and the result is not all that it might be.

There's not going to be a score book for Haresfoot this year, instead they're having separate copies of each number with purty pictures of Vern Hamel on the cover. . . And some of the songs that are scheduled to go over in a big way in this year's show are "Oh, That Burns Me Up," "Can't Help Loving You," "Roaming Alone," and "We're Smart." Did you ever see anything funnier than a man trying to find the pocket in a girl's coat? They practically take the thing apart. The opening night of "Sherlock Holmes," a man sitting in the first row of the balcony dropped his bonnet. . . result—a general giggle. Then some brite gent down below threw the top piece back and it went neatly into the outstretched mitt of the owner. . . result—applause. Just by way of diversion while waiting. Another item which failed to escape our eagle eye (the left) was the fact that all the others put top coats over their red uniforms and enjoyed the show from one of the boxes, giving the appearance of a bunch of gents in evening clothes who couldn't make up their minds to take off their wraps.

Ruth Chatterton clicks again in her newest, "Sarah and Son," now at the Capitol. The story deals with the life of Miss Chatterton, who plays a Swedish immigrant in New York just before the world war.

She teams up with a worthless hoof-er who gyms her by peddling their baby boy to a rich but childless family. After this disaster she leaves for Europe where she finally gains fame as an opera singer. While she is singing for the wounded soldiers during the war she meets her husband and just before he kicks off he tells her where their child is.

She comes back to this country where she meets Frederic March, who is the lawyer for the family who has the child, and who is also the brother of the foster mother.

March hasn't much of a part but is very capable, and is certainly a handsome gent. Phillip de Lacy is the youngster and adds a great deal to the show. He's a clever child actor and is also blessed with exceeding good looks.

It's Chatterton's picture through and through and she does a beautiful bit of work. This is the sort of show that it's a pleasure to recommend.
