"If democracy is to be more than a mere window-dressing for disguised despotisms of purpose and procedure, the policies of a free university, like the University of Wisconsin, must come out of a sincere and sustained collaboration of the president, the members of the governing board, the scholars of the several faculties, the students, alumni whose minds have been kept flexible and informed regarding their alma mater and in a very real sense, all the people of the state and those who represent them."

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGES :: NEWS AND COMMENT :: TREASURER'S REPORTS

PRESIDENT HAIGHT'S COLUMN

ON the 5th day of August, 1925, the Board of Regents passed the following resolution:

"RESOLVED, That no gifts, donations, or subsidies shall in the future be accepted by or on behalf of the University of Wisconsin from any incorporated Educational endowments or organizations of like character."

The vote of the regents was 9 in favor and 6 against its adoption. This resolution has created a wide interest. Under the direction of the Alumni Board a committee was appointed to make an investigation and to present the essential facts of the situation to the alumni with any recommendations for action that it might see fit to make. This committee is composed of alumni residing in Wisconsin and elsewhere, representing various professions and occupations. The members are:

- Oscar Hallam, '87, St. Paul, Minn., Chairman;
- Senator Harry Sauthoff, '09, Madison;
- Richard Runke, '00, Merrill;
- Dr. John Dodson, '80, Chicago, Ill.;
- A. R. Janecky, '07, Racine;
- Dr. Spencer Beebe, ex '93, Sparta;
- Karl Mann, '11, New York City;
- Harry W. Adams, '00, Beloit;
- Robert B. Dickie, '97, North Freedom;
- Edna Phillips Chynoweth, ex '70, Madison.

This committee was in session at Madison on October 3rd, 4th and 5th, gathering facts. Many witnesses appeared before it. On October 17th it met again. Its sessions have created a very widespread interest, not only with the alumni but with the people of the State of Wisconsin; and educators throughout the country are awaiting its report. The alumni should be kept in touch with this matter and the effort will be made to keep the whole alumni body well advised.—GEORGE I. HAIGHT, '99.

ACTION ON THE UNION!

THE final work is now being done by the architect on the Memorial Union plans, and bids are being secured on the foundations which will put them in the ground by Christmas. Work on the superstructure of the Central and East units will begin in April of 1926. To facilitate the work on these units, every alumni pledge still unpaid should be paid at once as there is now exactly enough money in pledges to build and furnish these two units. While these two units are being erected, the alumni must proceed in the securing of the necessary funds for the erection of the West wing. By reasonable diligence we should be able to have these all in hand as soon as the Central unit and East wing are completed. This building means much to the University. It means much to us alumni. Before the end of the year we should again organize to make the final effort for the completion of the fund.—GEORGE I. HAIGHT, '99, President.

MASON, "PREX"

MAX MASON, '98, formerly professor of mathematical physics at the University of Wisconsin, is now President of the University of Chicago. His election by the trustees to succeed President Ernest DeWitt Burton, deceased, was unanimous. President Mason is one of "Wisconsin's own." He was born at Madison on October 26, 1877. At twenty-one he was graduated from the University with the degree of bachelor of arts, having attained all that a young man could desire in college, — academic, social and athletic honors. He is a member of Psi Upsilon fraternity and honorary Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Xi. After obtaining his doctor of philosophy degree at the University of Goettingen in 1903, he spent a year as instructor in mathematics at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and from 1904 to 1908 was assistant professor in Yale university. Since 1908 he has been professor of mathematical physics at Wisconsin. In 1916, in addition to his other duties, he was made secretary to the faculty, and held this position until 1917, when the United States government had a big problem to solve and found Max Mason was the man to do it. His research powers, inventive genius and administrative ability now came to the fore, when as member of the national research council he not only invented the well-known Mason hydrophone for detecting and locating submarines, which proved so effective a weapon in the hands of the Allies, but successfully handled the direction of a large number of men and the expenditure of large sums of money. Whatever he did,—were it golf or mathematics, he did exceedingly well. No matter how difficult the problem, Mason saw it through to the finish, and the finish saw Mason on top—winner! It was so in college, it was true in the classroom and laboratory, it proved true in the War. The government was well pleased with his performance and he gained recognition and honor. It should have brought him more, but being of a modest disposition, not inclined toward self-advertisement, he stepped back from before the eyes of the world and resumed his duties at the University. Faithfully he discharged these duties,—instructing and continuing his research. He could walk with dignitaries or play with college students. Friendly, forceful, kindly, efficient, scholarly and human, it is not surprising that the faculty-trustee committee of the University of Chicago found in him that rare combination of qualities which it deemed necessary in the man whom they wanted to head one of the greatest universities in this country.

Wisconsin is deeply conscious of her loss, but like a proud mother she hides her tears and regrets at his leave taking and sends him away with a smiling "Godspeed," happy in the knowledge that he has entered a larger field of endeavor where his strength and powers are to be tried and where new achievements will be won.

HOTCHKISS, "PREX"

PROF. W. O. HOTCHKISS, '03, state geologist and member of the state highway commission, has accepted the presidency of the Michigan School of Mines, Houghton, Mich. Prof. Hotchkiss received the degree of B.S. 1903, civil engineer in 1908 and his doctor's degree in 1916. He has been a member of the instructional staff of the University since 1904. In 1909 he became director of the Wisconsin Geological and

W. O. HOTCHKISS

Natural History survey, succeeding president-emeritus E. A. Birge at that post. Professor Hotchkiss is known as "The Father of Good Roads" in Wisconsin, having done much to promote good road building and the marking of roads in the state. Under his administration as state geologist, reports were issued dealing with the mineral resources, water supplies and road materials of Wisconsin, a series of books was prepared for educational use in the schools dealing with the state's geography and physiography, and reports were issued on the soils of the various counties. During the World War he helped organize the war minerals committee.

Just before Prof. Hotchkiss' departure, co-workers in the highway department presented him with a watch, chain and charm, the latter designed somewhat after the familiar triangular Wisconsin Highway marker, as a token of their esteem and appreciation of his services. The good wishes of their many Madison friends accompany the family to their new home in Michigan.

Wisconsin loses a great public servant. But Michigan offered inducements and opportunities which could not be refused. Members of the Alumni Association congratulate their efficient fellow life member.

THE REGENTS AND "ACADEMIC FREEDOM"

THE all important question which alumni, faculty, students, and all friends of the university are now discussing is the recent action of the Board of Regents in passing a resolution which prohibits the acceptance by the university of any donations or subsidies from incorporated endowments or similar foundations. No single action of the regents in the past has created more discussion and aroused more active interest than the passing of this resolution.

The history of the action is briefly this. Two of Wisconsin's foremost men of research, Doctors Loevenhart and Lorenz, have for the past few years been engaged in valuable and extensive work in establishing a cure for paresis, and in this work have attracted national and international attention. Previous to this year, financial help for the carrying on of this research was obtained from the Public Health Institute of Chicago, but this organization found itself unable to continue the appropriations for the coming year. Help was then sought from the Rockefeller Foundation and the General Education Board, and $12,500 was secured for one year. This sum was given with no provisions or restrictions other than that undue publicity as to the source should not be made because it was felt that the credit for the work should remain at Wisconsin.

By a vote of six to five of the regents in which President Birge cast the deciding ballot, this money was accepted on behalf of the University.

At the next meeting of the Board, however, the following resolution was introduced by Daniel G. Grady which after some argument was passed by a vote of nine to six: "Resolved that no gifts, donations, or subsidies shall in the future be accepted by or on behalf of the University of Wisconsin from incorporated endowments or organizations of like character." By this action the Board declared that it would refuse even to consider gifts of these kinds for any purpose within the University.

Immediately a storm of protest and opposition arose from many alumni and from men of science, in particular, all over the country. It was charged that the university would soon degenerate into a third rate university or glorified high school. It was pointed out, particularly by Dean Bardeen of the Medical School, that the medical school was just about to receive $600,000 from the same source for further development, with promise of more in the future. Comparisons were made with other institutions such as Iowa which by its own effort and with the aid of a great contribution from the Rockefeller Foundation and the General Education Board has been able to obtain four and a half millions of dollars for a medical school. (Two and one-quarter millions were donated by these bodies with the provision that the state raise an equal amount.) Former President Birge at the regent's meeting declared "This is a national subject and if we refuse we are cutting ourselves off from higher education. We are also not giving President Frank a square deal by committing him to a policy he knows nothing about and that is likely to last for years to come."

As a result of the discussion which arose, President Haight of the Alumni Association appointed an investigating committee to come to Madison and after an exhaustive inquiry to publish a report. The committee named was Judge Oscar Hallam, '87, St. Paul; Harry Adams, '00, Beloit; Harry Sauthoff, '02, Madison; Richard Runke, '00, Merrill; Dr. John Dodson, '80, Chicago; Dr. Spencer Beebe, '93, Sparta; A. R. Janecky, '07, Racine; Karl Mann, '11, New York; Robert Dickey, '97, North Freedom; Edna Phillips Chynoweth, '70, Madison.

This committee was in session at Madison, October 3, 4 and 5 and testimony was obtained from faculty men and others. The members of the Board of Regents either refused or were not able to appear. The committee set October 17 as the date for reconvening when the investigation was continued. Harry Adams is interim chairman. As soon as the report of this committee is finished, a complete account will be sent to all local clubs for their information.—WALTER FRAUTSCHI, '24.

OFFICIAL REPORT

REGENT GRADY recommended the passage of the following resolution, seconded by Regent Casperson:

RESOLVED, That no gifts, donations, or subsidies shall in the future be accepted by or on behalf of the University of Wisconsin from any incorporated Educational endowments or organizations of like character.

Regent Callahan moved to amend by making this a special order of business at the next meeting of the Board at such time as the President of the Regents and the Secretary may announce previous to the meeting.

Called vote was taken on Regent Callahan's amendment. Regents voting "Aye": Callahan, Faast, Gunderson, Hirschman, Kronshage, Olbrich, Waters,—7. Regents voting "No": Bachman, Cashman, Casperson, Gale, Grady, Nace, Richardson, Schmidtman,—8.

Motion declared lost.

Called vote was then taken upon Regent Grady's resolution as presented.

Regents voting "Aye": Bachman, Cashman, Casperson, Gale, Grady, Hirschman, Nace, Richardson, Schmidtman,—9. Regents voting "No": Callahan, Faast, Gunderson, Kronshage, Olbrich, Waters,—6. Regents absent—Mahoney.

The resolution was declared adopted.—From minutes of meeting of Board of Regents, 8-5-25.

A NEW PREXY

FROM all signs it seems like school is started again. We got a new prexy that looks like a world beater.

His great intelligence is proven by his quoting from the Nynteenten tablet on the front door of Bascom, every chance he gets. He's going to see that we get all the "winnowing and sifting" we want.—W. J. M., '10.

A NEW COACH

GEORGE LITTLE just oozes energy all over and if he don't make success come in football then success just ain't. Wisconsin's got a corking good team—win or lose—and it's Little, Brader, Sundt, Bieberstein, Uteritz and Carney that's to blame. You just ought to see one of those practice scrimmages!—W. J. Meuer, '10.

A SHIRT TEARING FARCE

THE class rush is over and hence let us hesitate and lift our heads in thanks. This time worn fracas has degenerated into a meaningless shirt tearing farce. Just a friendly tussle of "You pull my shirt off and I'll pull yours off." But let the boys have their little fun—they don't know what a real he-man class rush is, or rather was. When the "fight?" was over last week most of 'em didn't have no more clothes on than the modern flapper.—W. J. Meuer, '10.

SCIENTIFIC REASON FOR "RAH"

DR. IRVING B. CRANDALL, '09, of the Bell Telephone Laboratories, New York, has been making a study of sounds in collaboration with C. F. Sacia of the same company. We now have a scientific reason for the occurrence of "rah" in "U-rah-rah, Wisconsin," and another plausible one for never getting tired of giving the Varsity Locomotive. We quote from the news item released by the company. "If the value of 50 be assigned to the amount of energy delivered by a man's voice to the air for this particular sound ("a" as in rah), then its nearest rival, the sound of "a" as in "tap" comes next at 44, and as in "talk" at 37. Women's voices present quite a contrast to men's in that there are four vowel sounds of practically the same loudness. These are the vowels in "tone," "talk," and "rah." "Ah" is the easiest sound to produce because fewer throat and mouth muscles are tensed; hence it is the basic vowel sound in most languages."

"HEAR THE PRESIDENT"

THE morning of the Varsity Welcome—one of those bright blue and gold October days. Outwardly, we had come to "Hear the President," as the Cardinal had reminded us in bold face type for several days previous; inwardly, we craved to experience again that exhilaration of mind and spirit that every true alumnus feels when participating in or observing a real Wisconsin affair. The effect was magical. From the first notes of the band playing "Light for All," through the Pageant of the Classes, the speeches of Dean Sellery, the Governor, Carl Russell and the upper classmen, to the inspiring Varsity Toast and thundering Skyrocket for Prexy, we felt that indescribable something called "Wisconsin spirit" pervading the atmosphere, continually gaining volume and power. Did the president feel it? Would he interpret it? For a moment we waited in suspense—hoping for that mental handclasp that would bespeak him one of us and yet above all, our leader. Ah, there was no doubt about it, he was speaking, he had the "Wisconsin idea." "Hear the President!"

MORE SERVICE RENDERED

YOUR alumni association paid the daily student newspaper to mail five Sunday editions during October and November to all life members and to all annual members whose dues are paid until 1926.

DUES

THE collection of annual dues is one of the largest single items of expense that your alumni association now pays. How can this be reduced? In two ways: Life membership is one final solution; prompt and regular payment of annual dues in advance is another. A real alumni organization must be financially strong as well as numerically large.

NEW CONSTITUTION

THIRTY-NINE votes were cast for the constitution printed on pages 378, 379, and 380 of the August issue; while but twenty-nine votes were cast for the constitution which had been in force since 1916. "Write your own ticket."

ALUMNI LOYALTY FUND

MORE than six hundred members of the Alumni Association contributed to the Alumni Loyalty Fund last year. What your organization accomplished for the University in that critical time is pointed to with pride by all who love Wisconsin. From the report of the treasurer you will see that victory was not without sacrifice and that a deficit was incurred. This deficit is probably the best investment your association ever made—"a blessing of adversity." Better an alumni association in debt than a university in despair. But pride will not pay bills. Debts must be wiped out. What are you going to do about it? If you overlooked contributing to such a good cause, your contribution will still be welcome. If you care to increase your contribution, such increase will be acceptable. If you are willing to make an annual pledge, such action will be encouraging. The largest single gift sent directly to this office was $100.00—perhaps you may want to raise the ante. Certainly no loyal member will intentionally let past due annual dues go longer unpaid when money is so needed.

THE MORALE OF THE STATE UNIVERSITIES

By JOSEPH JASTROW

THE interest in the propriety of acceptance by State Universities of gifts from "incorporated educational institutions" is a wholesome indication that the public conscience is alive, if not always wisely or disinterestedly active. It requires some measure of critical analysis to make the issue clear in its whys and wherefores, being too commonly reflected darkly in the warped glass of bias. But, why assume or imply that the source of the funds of "incorporated educational institutions" is a polluted underground spring? Should not the charge be specific and the discrimination likewise? Also to carry out such a policy would require a Board of Moral Censorship possessed of such rare wisdom as one would despair of finding even in the personnel of a University Faculty. And again, what better taint-remover have we at our disposal than the purifying service of education and philanthropy? Here, if anywhere, the social alchemist of the twentieth century may seek the formula for transmuting the baser metals into gold. Moreover, is there really any taint in money, or only in the manner and motive of its acquisition and employment? So uncertain is the orbit of this argument that those who give it hospitality do not obtrude it; it is placed not in the centre of the stage, but is given storage in the wings.

The central argument is that of the covert or overt influence upon educational policies,—a menace of contamination or embarrassment, no less real for being subtle and indirect,—of the aims and ideals, of the free spirit of the educational mission. The appeal is to a moral judgment: Is it right to accept such funds? This is the approved criterion of those who answer "Yes," and of those who answer "No." The effect of the consequences of secession as affecting the fortunes of a University thus withdrawing from the generally accepted benefits, is not irrelevant, but for clarity of issue may be given a secondary place on the calendar. Both parties are thus committed to the vital position that Universities should be free to direct their policies and activities, untrammelled by alien pressure from whatever source; and the issue resolves itself into the appraisal of the relative hazard of such undesirable "influence" from one or another of the actual dangers affecting the academic situation.

To discuss this aspect profitably one must have in mind a definite view of the relations properly involved or likely to evolve between the manner of support of an institution and the direction of its service and career. To suppose that the decisive distinction between Universities lies in the manner of their support is to overlook the far more significant considerations that determine the character and worth of their service. It implies a conception of a State University that is not conclusive to the best development of this important agency in intellectual welfare. The right conception of a State University makes it simply the State's contribution to the higher education. Once the institution is established and the intention loyally to maintain it has found expression, it takes its place among the several agencies directed to the same noble purpose. Every right-minded State University should be ready and eager to play its part in the educational life of the nation. It should be willing to compare its standards of aim and achievement with those of the foremost institutions of the land; it should form a cooperative part of the national educational assets. From that point forward, the crucial point is not where the funds come from, but the wisdom and spirit of their expenditure. A University that is not completely free to direct this phase of its functioning is unfortunately handicapped. There are times when it is fitting to remember and times when it is essential to forget that a University is dependent upon its funds. This is not an exceptional situation. If the drama is to play its part in the ensemble of cultural agencies, it must be free to develop its own standards of value and purpose; the fate of the drama under the box-receipt view of its mission is too familiar and dismal a story. Whether its support is best left to private venture or is to be given the benefit of public subsidy—as in many European countries—is again a complex question of policy and experience, ever in close sympathy with the spirit of the dramatic enterprise. Neither dramatic, nor educational, nor journalistic enterprises are to be judged by the manner of their support; the desirable ideal in each case is to render them capable of their best service according to standards formulated by competent and vision-gifted but not visionary judges of their several purposes and possibilities.

We are thus driven to consider—and with a frankness that may run the risk of offending—the relative menace of political influence which seems inseparable from publicly supported institutions, and that subtly exercised by private or corporate benefactors. We have long ago discarded the proverbial advice that you must not look a gift-horse in the mouth; nowadays we examine the entire anatomy, gross and minute, and insist upon a clean bill of health. Benefactions with strings attached have come to be looked upon with distrust; without questioning the motives of the benefactors, the incongruity or embarrassment of their administration has impressed the lesson of their undesirable and often unforeseen liabilities. To their credit be it said that the more responsible of the corporations administering vast funds for public benefit have been keenly mindful of this danger and have avoided it, making foresight consistent with generosity. But it is not coarse strings, we are told, but invisible tiny threads that make the web that entangles. Back of this foreign-entanglement-avoiding policy is the social-political view that accepts the conflict of interests between mass and class, between labor and capital in the popular phrasing, as inevitable and irreconcilable. It does not tire of recounting the discreditable story of vested interests and the tyranny of capital; it is keenly alive to the grasping dictation of Wall Street, but not so mindful of the deadening insensibility of Main Street. But in neither of these arterial highways may the apostle of the educational mission seek the means of salvation.

The capitalistic encroachment upon the educational field is real and a sinister tribute to the far-reaching powers of education. It is made the melodramatic theme of Upton Sinclair's "The Goose-Step," where the evils of benevolent penetration may be read page upon page, reel upon reel, in high-colored denunciation. I am not among those who discredit his entire performance. The documentation is too ample, the cases cited too many, to believe that it is all smoke and no fire, though the author's intentions to raise a smudge are poorly concealed. But by persistent exaggeration and even malicious distortion, he has made a grotesque caricature of what might have been an impressive picture, thus inviting the snubbing which that type of performance richly deserves. What is needed is a calm but frank exposition of the many-sided evils of political encroachment upon the same field. In view of the wily methods employed by politicians who are not statesmen, and by some who profess to be such," and their favorite technique of covering their tracks and throwing the public off the scent, the companion volume might bear the title of "The Fox-Trot." But the nefarious methods of political intrigue are too well known to need recital. Let us instead employ the retort courteous, and suppose that Harvard University and—to show no prejudice, Yale—instead of having merely formal corporate relations with one State, were so intimately affiliated with the whole of New England that they would have half a dozen legislatures offering them aid with a furtive intent to secure control, and the resolution before them read:

"That no gifts, donations, or subsidies be accepted from political bodies or organizations of like character," would the State Universities accept the implication resignedly? Nor are we left with hypothetical cases only. It is possible to cite an instance in which this objection was raised but set aside when an endowed institution sought State aid; and another in which a State-supported educational "plant" works harmoniously as part of an endowed institution of learning. A liberal view of educational policy will minimize and harmonize these relations, and avoid factional disunion by cultivating the fraternal bonds of a common guild.

Next we are told that a dependence upon corporate (and why not also private?) benefaction is undemocratic. This is indeed an effective charge under all circumstances, but too commonly an unreflective one. The story is current that an inquiring or inquisitive student of education asked twenty college presidents to indicate the distinctive trait of their respective institutions. Nineteen replied: "Its democratic character." The twentieth divergent reply read: "Its extreme democratic character." There are as many views of the essence of democracy as there are qualified democrats to formulate them. The test of democracy lies not in any form of institution or of its support, but in the spirit of its administration, of which the keynote is self-determination with a liberal proviso of an established or presumptive fitness to exercise the privilege with a reasonable measure of wisdom. The democrat does not impose but advises and consults, and shares responsibility and benefit alike with those immediately affected by the decisions in which he has a part. Accordingly, when I survey with a fairly long perspective of educational experience the administrative temper of endowed and State Universities, I cannot but conclude that in my prejudiced sense there is far more democracy, far less distrust of self-determination, among those freely seeking aid from all properly disposed sources than among those with inevitably close political affiliations. Certainly the indiscriminate rejection of aid from corporations that have made the most comprehensive and—with the most prejudiced allowance for exceptions—generally disinterested surveys of educational needs raises the query whether we are not once more confronted with the type of situation in which moats and beams, or camels and gnats, play the leading parts.

Certainly the democratic criterion is momentous, but not as a verbal shibboleth. It is not as a copy-book maxim nor as an oratorical political gesture, but as embodied in practice under the inspiration of a guiding principle, that the democratic conviction affects the morale of an individual or an institution. I have long but vainly been expecting that some prospective regent or trustee would decline the honor on the ground that the prevailing mode of governing a University is not sufficiently democratic for his convictions; or, if not that, would accept the post with the declaration that it would be his endeavor to modify the form of control so as to give a larger and more responsible participation to the Faculty; or, if not that, would see to it that no decisions affecting educational policy would be reached without Faculty consultation and approval,—all in the interests of a true democratic government, all in the spirit of avoiding any imposition of measures upon those affected by them. Admittedly that is another problem, but pertinent in that it indicates the essential criterion of democracy in the educational realm.

Lastly we are told that the acceptance of corporate aid is not American,—always an effective and proper appeal. But I fear we stand too much in the picture to sense its perspective and outstanding features. If I may trust to the comments of foreign observers expert in educational concerns, one of the conspicuous characteristics of American culture is the presence of large private fortunes and their devotion to educational and philanthropic service. We have built up a tradition in this expression of public spirit—represented in the college tradition by the loyalty of alumni—that though not without its parallel in other lands, is yet distinctive and an invaluable asset of all the higher interests of which civilization consists. It seems the wise policy to accept it, to direct it to still better conceived purposes, and Americanize it,—if we can come to an agreement as to what that much advertised but not deeply analyzed process entails—certainly not to estrange it by unwarranted or prejudiced distrust of its intentions.

While this discussion has been prompted by a recent action at the University of Wisconsin, it will not serve its purpose if limited to that incident. That decision may be, seems likely to be reversed, when it is realized that with few exceptions the members of the Faculty, editors, alumni, citizens interested in the intellectual welfare of the State, in Wisconsin as elsewhere, are wholly out of sympathy with it, and regard that action as based upon a sincere but mistaken view of the situation. It seems reasonable to suppose that members of a governing board, who by the form of control that happens to obtain, find themselves in authority to impose upon an institution a far-reaching policy which is out of sympathy with the views of those intimately concerned with the conduct of its manifold operations, will hesitate to insist upon an action which however truly representative of their convictions, would invite an unfortunate state of disharmony. Such is not the democratic temper.

It is interesting to survey the history of one of the "incorporated educational endowments" that stands closest to the interests of the academic profession—The Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching—which has assumed the comprehensive function of providing a system of retirement. The unfortunate manner in which it has discharged or failed in its obligations is not pertinent. The founder of the corporation excluded from the benefits institutions of a denominational limitation (some of which have removed that restriction in order to conform with the requirements), but in regard to State Universities stated that he did not venture to include them. He was aware of the possible distrust, and wisely awaited action on their part. It was not long in coming. Through the presentations of the Association of State Universities additional funds were secured and such State Universities were included in the benefits as met the established standards. In an article which I published (North American Review: October, 1907) when this issue was pending, the argument was set forth that an institution aiming to exert a nation-wide benefit could not accomplish its purpose without the representation of so integral a part of the educational constituency as the State Universities. The Carnegie Foundation did not invite or ensnare the State Universities to accept the benefaction; the State Universities by official action urged the Foundation to

THE PRESIDENT DIGS

These are digging days in Madison.

Already dirt is flying out along the lake drive to make way for the new men's residence halls, the foundations of the Bascom hall addition will be laid this winter, the new athletic field house is not far distant, and on November 11 President Frank turns the first spade on the site of the new Memorial Union.

It is in the Memorial Union that alumni have had the greatest and the longest interest; to the Union they have given their thought and money; with the Union they will have most to do when in the future they come back to Madison. And so it is for the Union that the announcement of "digging days" carries a genuinely electric sensation.

As far back as 1903, when President Van Hise in his first message to the legislature asked for "facilities for communal life," the spark was touched which has fired the imagination of alumni faculty, and students to expression in the actual digging and building which begins this fall.

Interest in Van Hise's first idea, rather vague, but nevertheless the germ, has never been relaxed. In 1908 the Union Board, representing the students, began a serious agitation for some sort of a student social center. There was talk, work, and a diversity of plans suggested in the next decade. And then after 1918, when students in unprecedented numbers swarmed onto the campus, came the crystallization of plans and ideas in a Memorial Union, a student work and play center which should stand as a memorial to the type of service and sacrifice displayed by the Wisconsin men who gave their lives in the War.

A regent-faculty-alumni-student committee was appointed to give the new project direction and force. In those early days the names of Kohler, Goodnight, Gilman, and Gardner stand out as the names of the leaders. Plans were pointed to a general student campaign in 1921. A goal of $100,000 was set and achieved. At the same time Madison and the faculty pledged another $100,000. After 1921 and on until the end of 1923, Professor Gardner, heading up campaign operations, made a circuit of the entire country, enlisting everywhere the interest and support of alumni.

In 1922 the building fund was swelled $200,000 by the Tripp gift. In the spring of 1924 the seniors, directed by the present Union secretary, John Dollard, added $25,000, and last spring the seniors competing with the freshmen together pledged $43,000, bringing the total fund pledged to $970,000.

With enough money in hand to start building operations the Union committee determined to postpone further campaigning until the final plans for the building were drawn and accepted and the digging of the foundations started. A special building program committee has labored steadily and carefully for eighteen months studying the Union problem at Universities all over the country and Wisconsin's particular needs; the state architect has prepared thirteen separate sets of plans, each in turn rejected in favor of a better design; then finally in April a plan was approved by the Union executive committee, a plan which has met with the favor of the Board of Regents.

With building assured, the student body, with President Frank as general chairman, has begun to organize what it calls a "clean-up campaign," a drive to secure the $300,000 which is necessary to bring the present pledges to a total of $1,275,000, the cost of the building. Challenging signs, "$300,000—Let's Dig!" are everywhere on the campus. The resolution to finish the job is in every student's mind. On November 11 when President Frank turns the first spadeful of dirt, their "dig drive" will start, lasting for three days, and on November 14 they expect to have in the Union office the $300,000 in pledges and money.

The official program of Union activity runs as follows:

Oct. 12—Demolition of old Union and Old Clinic. (This work has already begun. The old Union is razed.)

Nov. 11—President Frank turns the first spadeful of dirt on the new excavation. Memorial services.

Nov. 11-14—Student clean-up campaign to raise $300,000.

Nov. 25—All contracts for excavations and foundations let. (The regents have requested the state architect to finish the excavations and foundations by Christmas.)

April—The building of the superstructure starts.

In April, then, the first walls of the building shown above will begin to rise on Langdon street. It has been heralded as "the most beautiful Union in America," and University officials say that beyond question it will be the University's most artistic and carefully executed building.

THE INSTALLATION of the coupon ticketbook system whereby a student or faculty member is able to buy tickets to all home athletic contests during the year for $7.50 is proving popular this fall. Virtual completion of the stadium has made possible the ticketbook system which has already been generally adopted in the Western Conference.

A GROUP of Wisconsin students are engaged in raising in their home towns $150,000 for the construction of a new church building near the campus. The students are members of a congregation unlike any other church body in the United States. They belong to the University Presbyterian church, of Madison, in which no university teachers or townspeople are members. They elect their own elders, trustees and pastor. The present membership exceeds 130. Already the church has raised $50,000 for the construction of a church building. Church services at present are held in the Presbyterian Student Headquarters building at Murray and State streets.

PROF. GEORGE WAGNER has placed on exhibit in the Biology building restored skulls of the Neanderthal man and the Cro-Magnon man, copies of the well-known restorations displayed at the American Museum of Natural History, New York City. The restorations were made by Prof. J. H. McGregor, of Columbia university, who constructed the models by reproducing the facial parts in a special clay and mounting them on the parts of the skulls which have been discovered by scientists.

STUDENTS IN THE COURSE IN JOURNALISM have analyzed 24 newspapers in twenty-two American cities as a part of their baccalaureate thesis work. They measured the news, non-news, and other contents of the papers with foot-rules and drew conclusions from their tables of data.

WHAT IS THOUGHT to be the first Pan-Professional council of university sororities has been organized at the University of Wisconsin. An effort to promote the organization of such councils in other universities, looking toward the formation of a national council, is being made by Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general of the United States. The Wisconsin council is organized along the lines of the well-known Pan-Hellenic council of Greek-letter fraternities. Organizations represented in the Badger council are: Phi Chi Theta, commerce; Coranto, journalism; the Pharmaceutical club; Sigma Alpha Iota, music; Phi Upsilon Omicron, home economics; and Sigma Lambda, art.

FACULTY NEWS

EXACTLY 66 FRATERNITIES AND 30 SORORITIES are now on the Wisconsin campus. Two new fraternities and four new sororities were added last year. Phi Phi Phi, a local, has become Eta chapter in Phi Epsilon Pi. The other new fraternity is the Adelante club, local. New sororities are: Iota Chi Theta, a Catholic local; Sigma, a Jewish local; Sigma Omega Sigma, local; and Epsilon Alpha Phi, local. Several Greek-letter organizations have changed their places of residence since last June.

THE PURCHASE of the Dudley Montgomery residence, 115 Langdon street, by the Chi Omega sorority marks the passing of one of Madison's interesting old landmarks. The little white house with green shutters was erected in 1859 by William Watson, one of the early editors of the Milwaukee Sentinel, when he came to Madison to be private secretary to Gov. L. P. Harvey. Then it passed into the possession of Prof. J. D. Butler, then to E. W. Gilman, and finally to Dudley Montgomery. The Chi Omegas will replace the old house with a new building.

FATHERS OF ALL WISCONSIN STUDENTS will be the guests of the university on Nov. 14 at the second Father's Day. One thousand fathers came to Madison last year when the occasion was inaugurated. The visiting fathers will have an opportunity to meet President Glenn Frank and members of the faculty, will witness the Michigan State College-Wisconsin football game, and will be entertained in the evening with a banquet in the gymnasium. Mother's Day was inaugurated last spring very successfully.

WORK IS ABOUT TO BEGIN on the first two quadrangles of the new men's dormitories to be erected on the shore of Lake Mendota behind the New Soils building. A refectory will also be built at the same time.

A series of four quadrangles to house 2,000 men is planned. The first two quadrangles and the refectory will cost $900,000. Tentative plans provide for the construction of separate units to be divided by fireproof walls to house 32 students each. Each "unit" will have a separate "social" room. A large tract of land southwest of the site has been allocated for an intra-mural sports field. It will include more than a score of tennis courts.

LIBRARIANS ARE ENGAGED in cataloging the 725 theses written during 1924-25 by students who received the baccalaureate and master degrees in June. Twenty-two of the baccalaureate theses were awarded special honors.

PROF. C. K. LEITH, '97, was in charge of the round-table discussion which dealt with "Mineral Resources in World Affairs" at the Institute of Politics at Williamstown, Mass., this summer. He delivered two addresses in which he declared that Japan cannot successfully fight the United States because of her lack of steel and that America has reached the peak of her oil production.

PROF. M. V. O'SHEA, of the School of Education, has been granted a leave of absence for the month of January in order to organize a survey of the Mississippi state school system at the request of Gov. H. L. Whitfield, of the Dixie state, who wishes to see Badger school ideals applied in his own state.

During the summer Professor O'Shea and Dr. Wilson Farrand, headmaster of Newark academy, investigated the all-year schools of Newark, N. J., at the request of the mayor and the board of education, and recommended that the board temporarily rescind its order for a discontinuance of the all-year school system.

Professor O'Shea has recently published two books on education. One is entitled "How Much Grammar?" and was prepared jointly with Professor Stormzand, of the University of Southern California. The other book is "The Child: His Nature and his Need."

PROF. L. R. INGERSOLL, Ph.D. '05, of the physics department, has perfected the "glarimeter," a device for testing the gloss of paper. It has been adopted by the federal government as a legal standard. Professor Ingersoll also supervised recently the construction of a large brass eye, modeled in the proportions of the human eye, for laboratory study of optics.

PROF. F. L. PAXSON, of the history department, has returned after a semester spent in Europe. During his absence his book, "History of the Western Frontier," was awarded the Pulitzer historical prize.

PROF. MARGARET H'DOUBLER, '10, of the physical education department, has just published "The Dance and Its Place in Education," for the use of dancing and physical education teachers.

PROF. E. M. JOHNSON, of the department of journalism, has just announced the results of the Fifth All-American Yearbook contest conducted by the Central Interscholastic Press association, of which he is director. More than 400 books from all parts of the country were entered in the contest. The annual convention of the association at Madison, Nov. 27-28, is again expected to attract 1,000 school and college editors.

U. W. CLUBS

"Sit together, listen together, sing together, eat together, and you'll work together."

LOCAL U. W. CLUBS

The organized alumni body of our University is rapidly growing in numbers and effectiveness. The Alumni Council, to which the various alumni clubs send representatives, and which is the central directing organization, is ambitious to bring about a closer fellowship among the alumni, former students, and friends of the University. It believes that one of the most effective means to this end is the formation throughout the country of University of Wisconsin clubs. There are numerous communities in which the number of available members is such as to make the formation of these clubs entirely feasible and desirable. Clubs have already been established in a number of cities, in several counties, and in a few states.

The reports from local clubs are always important. We ask each club secretary to see to it that all members of the local club are members of the General Alumni Association.

ESTHER ENGLISH, '15

At the last meeting of the Langlade County U. W. Club Irvin White, '14, was elected president, and Esther English, '15, secretary-treasurer.—9-14-25.

CHICAGO

ANNUAL FOOTBALL DINNER

UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN CLUB OF CHICAGO

Hotel LaSalle, Chicago, Illinois,
November 20, 1925, 6:30 P. M.

All alumni, the regents, faculty, students and their friends are welcome. George Little, Ikey Karel and other speakers.

The Varsity band will be there.

OFFICERS of the University of Wisconsin Club of Chicago are Edgar Nethercut, '89, president; A. W. Torbet, '12, vice president; Samuel Hickox, '14, secretary-treasurer; Walter Bemis, '15, F. J. Carney, '00, H. C. Marks, '13, Louis Horner, '17, Paul Meyers, '16, Livingston Ross, '15, directors.—10-9-25.

CLEVELAND

HOWARD SHARP, '22

THE Cleveland Alumni held their summer outing on August 29 at the shore home of R. P. Sanborn, '08. The main attraction was a clam bake, in which the clams played but a minor role. M. D. Cooper, '08, as chef, at other times the president of the club, was responsible for the feeding of the forty or so Badgers. An afternoon of swimming and beach stunts put all in a receptive mood for victuals, and none were disappointed. Clam broth, clams, chicken, sweet corn, sweet potatoes, watermelon, rolls and coffee filled the aching voids until all were content to lounge in somnambulant ease around the huge beach fire. Singing and reminiscences occupied their proper share of time, but the main feature of the evening was a lot of first hand information about the University gathered by W. C. Westphal, '12, during a week's visit at Madison. To close the evening, various items of food that still remained were auctioned to loyal but not hungry alumni—the proceeds reverting to the echoing treasury.

Needless to say the outing was a real Wisconsin picnic marked by good fun and fellowship. The truck that hauled the supplies got stalled for lack of "gas" and ye scribe lost sleep and disposition—but that's another story.—10-9-25.

DOOR COUNTY

MARION BARBER REYNOLDS, '23

ON Saturday evening the eleventh of September, nearly seventy-five persons attended the annual "Green Cap" banquet given at the Door County Country Club in honor of the new students who entered the University from our county.

During the course of the banquet, the toastmistress, Alice Reynolds, had ex-Wisconsin students stand according to the period of five years to which they belonged. Starting with the period of 1895 to 1900, two of that interval were present; namely, Dr. A. F. Higgins, '97, of Tampa, Fla., and Mrs. H. E. Stedman, '99, of Sturgeon Bay. Dr. Higgins and the late Henry Cochems were the first two to attend the University from Door County. The speakers of the evening were Dr. Higgins, '97, Agnes Davis Goff, '12, Mary Learned, '27, Gerhard Miller, '27, and N. G. Preston, '17.

An enjoyable program followed the banquet and toast. Marie Jorsch directed a stunt portraying, in comic, the annual Freshman welcome; duets were sung by Mrs. W. E. Wagener and Mrs. A. W. Zander; and selections by a quartet consisting of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Zander, Mrs. W. E. Wagener, and Mr. E. G. Bailey, '12.

There were five Freshman to send off to college: Gladys Simpson, Janet Magistad, Benjamin Birdsall, Murray Bingham, and Hollis Wilson. We hope they knew what to expect at college, for we all did our best to enlighten them and to give them a real send-off to our Alma Mater.

Officers of the club are as follows: R. E. Balliette, '19, president; Arno Wittich, '15, vice president; Marion Barber Reynolds, '23, secretary; John Purvis, '24, treasurer.—10-7-25.

FOND DU LAC COUNTY

DOROTHY AHREN, '22

FOND DU LAC County alumni are considering plans for a meeting about the middle of November. Our chapter includes the alumni from the nearby towns, and with paved roads, this year, we expect to have a large meeting. We will make special efforts through the various vice presidents to get in touch with these neighboring alumni and will hold a dinner at the Hotel Retlaw and have some speaker from the University as a part of the program.

The officers of the Fond du Lac County Alumni Association are Clayton Van Pelt, '22, president; P. H. Martin, '15, Fond du Lac, George Hill, '17, Rosendale, C. D. Schuart, '96, Waupun, Flint Jones, Byron, Kenneth Higby, '02, Ripon, vice presidents; Dorothy Ahren, '22, secretary.

We have this sort of an organization with officers in various towns because we feel that it keeps a closer union among the members with some local representative at hand.

Details of the next meeting will appear in the December issue of the Magazine.—10-7-25.

GEORGIA

E. GREVERUS, '00

A HAPPY gathering enjoyed our first luncheon of the 1925-26 season today (October 2), at the Piedmont Hotel, Atlanta.

President F. E. Radensleben, '99, announced plans for a state-wide meeting sometime in November, the exact date to be announced later. We need a complete mailing list of all alumni in the state. Please send your name to the secretary, E. Greverus, 72 Rosedale Drive, Atlanta, Ga.

Personal items concerning the following members of the Georgia unit of the U. W. Alumni Association may be found under their respective classes: E. R. Adlington, '15; W. A. Sutherland, '19; E. L. Ashenbrenner, '24; C. O. Bickelhaupt, '11; H. M. Powell, ex'17; Walter Powell, '14.—10-2-25.

INDIANAPOLIS

FLORENCE SEDER, '19

A HOMECOMING dinner dance October 17 at the Indianapolis Athletic Club will usher in the new season for Indianapolis alumni. Plans at this writing include a talk by a former Badger football star and the distribution of copies of the Homecoming Cardinal as features of the evening. William Florea, '21, local president, Martha Wertz Scheuring, '08, vice president, and Robert Miller, '23, are making arrangements for a big celebration.

The hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Trent was opened for a Wisconsin picnic in June, at which a number of undergraduates here for their vacations, were welcome guests together with alumni.

Alumnae have resumed their weekly luncheons every Wednesday at the L. S. Ayers Company tea room, where Wisconsin women are always welcome.

A directory compiled last spring and distributed among all Wisconsinites in the city lists 81 men and 67 women who are former students. Any newcomers to Indianapolis who may not have been reached through other messages but may be reading this, are urged to notify the secretary, Florence Seder, Community Fund office, 301 Chamber of Commerce.—10-9-25.

JANESVILLE

ROBERT CUNNINGHAM, '16

OFFICERS of the U. W. Club of Janesville are: Joanne Hayes Sutherland, '18, president, and Robert Cunningham, '16, secretary-treasurer. The office of vice president has been left vacant by the removal of G. L. Gardiner, '18, to Flint, Mich. No one has as yet been elected to fill the vacancy.—10-2-25.

KNOXVILLE

NEENA MYHRE WOLLRICH, '14

NINE members of the Wisconsin Alumni Club of Knoxville meet jointly with the Knoxville Technical Society in the Civic building on Monday evening, Oct. 5, for a 6:30 dinner, followed by an illustrated lecture on "The Making of Paper and Paper Pulp" by Mr. V. P. Edwards of the Forest Products Laboratories of Madison. Mr. Edwards showed and explained step by step every detail in the production of paper. The instructive lecture was appreciated by every one present.—10-16-25.

LA CROSSE

MELVIN PIERCE, '22

THE Wisconsin Club of La Crosse hopes actually to do something. How much can be done this winter we do not know, but if indications mean anything, La Crosse should be heard from.

The Inter-State Fair Association brought President Glenn Frank here to speak on Dedication Day at the fair. Those present at a luncheon arranged in honor of Mr. Frank were Mr. Gordon, president of the fair association, Mr. Burgess, business manager of the La Crosse Tribune, A. M. Brayton, '96, of the State Journal, Dr. A. Gunderson, '17, University regent, B. E. McCormick, '04, superintendent of schools, G. M. Wiley, principal of the high school.

Following the luncheon Mr. Frank and his party came to the fair grounds. The speakers' stand had been roped off with cardinal and white. Immediately in front of the speaker was a section of 150 seats reserved for University alumni. This section was filled long before the arrival of President Frank. Mr. Frank was introduced by Mr. Gordon. As soon as the President stood up to acknowledge the introduction, the band struck up "On Wisconsin." The entire assemblage in the grand stand, alumni and all, stood up and sang with the band. Then with a real locomotive from the alumni, Mr. Frank began his address.

Out-of-door speaking is difficult enough at any time, but speaking in opposition to the combined noises of a fair was hard work. So interested were the people in what Mr. Frank had to say that one could have heard a pin drop in that grand stand and all paid the closest attention to every word spoken.

President Frank was entertained privately at dinner that evening by Dr. Gunderson at the Gunderson summer home on the Mississippi, across from the city. In the evening Dr. and Mrs. Gunderson held open house to enable all alumni to meet President Frank. This provided a most satisfactory arrangement because about seventy-five called to meet him.

We were all very pleased with his address, his appearance, and his extremely pleasant manner. La Crosse is behind the new president and only hopes that it can get better acquainted with him.

The names of the officers of our local club are Dr. S. B. Gunderson, '17, president; Helen Dyson, '22, vice president; Melvin Pierce, '22, secretary-treasurer; Josephine Hintgen, '20, and Joseph Liscovec, '21, executive board.—10-5-25.

LOS ANGELES ALUMNI

EVERETT GRUBB, ex'21

ALUNCHEON, the first meeting of the fall season, was held at the University Club, Monday, October 5. Officers for the coming year were elected as follows: Dana Hogan, '12, president, to succeed John R. Richards; Everett Grubb, ex'21, secretary-treasurer, re-elected.

There are two divisions of the Alumni Association in Los Angeles, one for women and another for men. Male alumni in this district number approximately two hundred.

It was decided at this men's division luncheon to hold our luncheons regularly on the first Monday of each month at the University Club, Los Angeles.

Considerable interest is being shown by members now that the football season is on. We expect to turn out in full force to attend the Big Ten Conference luncheon on the day of the big games at the end of the season.—10-6-25.

MARINETTE

W. C. ISENBERG, ex'15

WE have had no meeting of our local club during the summer months.

The officers of our club are A. J. Goedjen, '07, president; Betty Fitch Carter, '20, vice president; W. C. Isenberg, ex'15, secretary and treasurer.—9-14-25.

MARSHFIELD

ELIZABETH MARKHAM, '21

THE University has at all times the loyal support of her alumni.

This is shown by the faithfulness with which the members of the U. W. Club of Marshfield turn out to the regular monthly meetings. Each gathering has offered a different bit of interest and a large number of members usually answers to roll call. Besides being interesting social gatherings with entertainment and refreshments furnished by an appointed committee, the meetings also give rise to discussion and action concerning the vital needs of the University.

Last June the club ended its meetings for the summer with an old time University picnic. It also invited local alumni of other colleges to join in the fun. A baseball game tested the athletic ability of the fair sex and added zest to the picnic by recalling the "old days" at Camp Randall.

This September the club reopened its meetings with a round table discussion about the plans for the coming year. The members are looking forward to several social meetings in the different homes, to interesting talks from two members, F. L. Musbach, '09, and Dr. W. G. Sexton, '08, both of whom have spent some time in Europe, and to an alumni banquet at which the club hopes to have President Glenn Frank as a guest. After the banquet, the committee is planning to have the President talk to the local citizens. The club feels that by bringing the University to the people in this way, it is giving beneficial support.

A business meeting for the election of officers occurs during October. The results of this election will appear in the next issue of the Magazine.—10-7-25.

MINNEAPOLIS ALUMNI

HARRY KEDNEY, '14

THE first meeting of the year of the Minneapolis Alumni was held at the Minneapolis Athletic Club on October 9. This meeting was unusually well attended, which bespeaks an active interest in Wisconsin affairs for the coming year.

After luncheon, election of officers for the fiscal year 1925-26 was held, and the following were elected:

T. T. Jones, '00, president; James Lindsay, '02, vice president; Harry Kedney, '14, secretary-treasurer.

A resolution of congratulations to Prof. Max Mason upon his election to the Presidency of the University of Chicago was presented and unanimously passed.

Reports of the retiring officers were given and the retiring president, R. W. T. Purchas, '14, set a precedent, which the members of the Alumni are unanimously in favor of making an established tradition, by passing the cigars.

Announcement was made of a dinner dance to be held jointly by the Minneapolis Alumni and Alumnae Associations in honor of George Little and the football team. This dinner dance will be held on the evening of the Minnesota-Wisconsin game at the Leamington Hotel, Minneapolis. All present and former Wisconsin students and alumni are invited to attend. Judging from the successful dinner dances which were held last year, all will be assured of a most entertaining evening, full of the old time Wisconsin spirit.—10-9-25.

NEW YORK

JAMES S. THOMPSON, '10

THE decision of regents in August by a vote of 9 to 6, to refuse gifts in future from educational endowments, was interpreted among New York Alumni as a discouragement to research and a serious blow to university morale. Alumni who know of the numerous research programs which, though financed by the foundations, are conducted by committees from different educational institutions felt that the Wisconsin faculty which has taken a leading part in many important research programs, would be isolated hereafter. Evidence was supplied immediately that such a development would be unfortunate for research in the United States, and undoubtedly discouraging to the Wisconsin staff.

To let friends of the University know how the decision was received away from Madison, and among leaders in scientific work, a report was sent August 16 to alumni officials, to all Wisconsin alumni secretaries, and to representative newspapers in Wisconsin. It contained interviews with prominent scientists and educators and pointed out that the new resolution appears to be directly opposed to the traditional policy of encouraging research as quoted from the Regents' report of 1894 and preserved on the 1910 memorial tablet. The interviews were in part, as follows:

H. C. Parmelee, chairman of education committee, Am. Inst. of Chemical Engineers: "Comparatively little is left by the state university today for special research and investigations which frequently can be carried on only through cooperation with endowed foundations. To raise a barrier is to decline an effective modern means of educational progress."

A. D. Flinn, Director of the Engineering Foundation, affiliated with the great national engineering societies: "General refusal of gifts from endowed foundations would paralyze great agencies for human advancement."

Maurice Holland, Engineering Division, National Research Council: "The decision * * * threatens a vital organ in the complex anatomical structure * * * science, education and industry. The refusal is applying a tourniquet to an artery supplying life blood to an industrial nation."

Wilford I. King, '13, sec. Nat. Bur. of Economic Research: "After having had considerable experience with the foundations, I have seen no evidence of their attempting in any way to influence the results of research."

tion of Engineering Education: "The flow of funds from private and corporate sources to great universities, may well be healthy corrective to dominance by political influence."—8-20-25.

President Glenn Frank was the guest of honor at a luncheon of the U. W. Alumni Association of New York, August 20, at the City Club, over sixty attending. Karl Mann, '11, presiding.

President Frank spoke informally of his conception of the ideals of U. W. in the past, which he hopes to preserve and further—sound scholarship and inspired teaching, freedom to seek the truth through research and publish what is found of service not only in Madison but through all the State.—9-1-25.

Our executive committee and officers met on September 28 and announced that opening plans for the year would include bridge for women in October and golf tournament for men at the Bonnie Briar Club during the same month. The committee also voted to send our president, Karl Mann, to Madison and approved the report which he would take with him in the matter of refusal by the Regents to accept educational endowments. The committee also approved release of our 4-page quarterly bulletin. It is hoped that the income from dues will make it possible to issue after a lapse of three years a new directory of the New York Alumni who now number nearly 600.—10-1-25.

Arrangements are approaching completion for a football smoker the afternoon of the Chicago game, November 21, to be held jointly with Chicago and other conference colleges which play that day, at the Fraternity Clubs Building, Madison Avenue and 38th Street.

Tickets for the Illinois-Pennsylvania game at Philadelphia, October 31, were obtainable through John M. Bessey, 149 Broadway, Telephone Hanover 3220.—10-7-25.

PHARMACY

B. V. CHRISTENSEN, '17

AS a result of the celebration of the 40th anniversary of the first graduating class from the Department of Pharmacy on April 17th, sentiment for the formation of a Pharmaceutical Branch of the Wisconsin Alumni Association was crystallized, and a meeting for this purpose was held at Madison, June 5th. At this meeting a temporary organization was formed and an invitation was sent to all pharmacy Alumni to attend a second meeting on June 22nd in order to form a permanent organization. A second meeting was accordingly held on June 22nd at which time a constitution was adopted and officers were elected as follows: B. V.

Christensen, '17, president; A. H. Uhl, '21, vice president; G. L. Jenkins, '21, treasurer.

Some 500 students have graduated from the pharmacy department since the establishment of the course in 1883. About 125 students now major in this course each year and many more are enrolled in some of the classes.—6-22-25.

OSHKOSH

H. J. HANCOCK, '17

AT a meeting of the Winnebago Alumni Association held at Oshkosh during the first week of October, it was decided to invite Prof. Carl Russell Fish to deliver a series of lectures there during the winter months. An assessment of annual dues of $1.00 was also decided upon.

It might be of interest to know that there are about 230 former students at the University in Winnebago County. President Frank gave a fine address to the club on October 7.—10-7-25.

ST. LOUIS

PAUL EBBS, ex'19

THE St. Louis Wisconsin Alumni Club is just beginning to get under way for the winter season as this copy of the Magazine goes to press. "Real Doings" will appear in the December issue.—9-14-25.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA ALUMNAE

MILDRED FORSYTHE, '86, Publicity Chairman

ON Saturday, September 19, the U. W. Alumnae Association of Southern California met at the home of the president, Emma Rosenstengel Ward, 241 S. Hollister Ave., Pasadena.

After a short business meeting, Helen Steensland Nielson, '89, who had spent the summer in Madison, reported Commencement and Alumni doings. Of especial interest was the recent appointment of Dr. Max Mason to the presidency of the University of Chicago. As the real program of the afternoon, Jessie Goddard McKinley, '89, of Los Angeles, presented a very interesting and able review of Ladislav Reymont's novel "The Peasants."

Those present were Bertha Fisher Buchanan, '08, Bernice Dow Brush, Illa Dow, ex'15, Susan Dow, ex'74, Abby Brayton Ruediger, ex'01, Helen Nielson, '89, Elizabeth Clark Fisher, '76, Mary Hewson, Minnie Lueders Sweet, '00, Jessie Goddard McKinley, '89, Emma Rosenstengel Ward, '91, Mabel Bradley Brewer, '04, Clara Dietrich Bradley, ex'80, Mildred Forsythe, '86, Frances Slatter, '00, Mrs. Blanche Nelson, '02, Sara McKay, '06, Ida Isabella Jones, '05, Genevieve Smith, ex'98.

Officers of the club are Emma Rosenstengel Ward, '91, president; Helen Steensland Nielsen, '89, vice president; Clara Maud Berryman, secretary-treasurer.—9-19-25.

TEACHERS' CLUB

PEARL LICHTFELD SORENSON, '22

N. B. WISCONSIN TEACHERS

All University of Wisconsin alumni teachers are invited to attend the annual luncheon meeting of this group on Friday noon, November 6. President Glenn Frank will deliver the address. A more detailed announcement will appear in the program of the W. T. A. Convention.

THE names and addresses of the officers of the U. W. Teachers' Club are: Supt. Wm. T. Darling, president, Wauwatosa; Pearl Lichtfeld Sorenson, '22, secretary, 535 Fifth Ave., Wauwatosa.—9-28-25.

TOLEDO

MARY HUTCHISON, '20

THE Toledo U. W. Club held a dinner on October 28. Details of this meeting will be reported next month.—9-23-25.

ATHLETICS

BY H. M. GOLDEN

WISCONSIN began her new football regime under the fiery George Little when he defeated Ames College at Camp Randall by the decisive score of 30-0 on Saturday, October 3rd. Off on its right foot the new Director and his "All-American" staff are confident of putting the Badgers in their rightful position among the serious contenders in the annual mighty Big Ten chase. No one can doubt the caliber of the new coaching staff, which is well termed "All-American." Little's seven assistants include some of the greatest gridiron luminaries that the Middle West has ever boasted. Working

WASHINGTON STATE COLLEGE

F. J. SIEVERS, '10

THE local club has had some considerable difficulty in maintaining an active membership because of the large turnover in staff that all institutions and this one in particular suffered as a result of the war and post-war conditions. However, Dr. Heald and I are still president and secretary respectively, and we aim to give our organization new life just as soon as conditions justify.

Following are some of the club members, indicating also what their interests are here or what positions they hold on the faculty: Harold Culber, '10, head department of geology; Ruth Radford, '19, instructor in speech; Delma Donald Woodburn, '21, graduate student; F. H. Zentner, '09, county agricultural agent; Eleanor Anderson Burkey, '23, graduate student; F. D. Heald, '94, plant pathologist; F. J. Sievers, '10, head, department of soils.—9-16-25.

CHARLESTON BIG TEN CLUB

A DINNER and meeting of the Charleston Big Ten Club was held Thursday, September 17. The officers elected for the ensuing season were: Lorin H. Talbot, president, Ohio State, '24; Mrs. Dorothy Melrose, vice president, Illinois, '22; R. H. K. Foster, secretary and treasurer, Illinois; Samuel Shinbach, social secretary, Ohio State, '23.

Plans for the coming year are under way and great enthusiasm in the club is being displayed by Big Ten Alumni. A dinner and bridge party is scheduled to be given under the auspices of the club Thursday, Oct. 29. Any Big Ten members who happen to be in Charleston at that time will be welcome to attend.

The Charleston Big Ten Club was organized last year and has one successful season to its credit. Any one desiring further information concerning the club should communicate with the club secretary, R. H. K. Foster, 303 Jefferson Ave., Charleston, W. Va.—9-17-25.

in the line are "Jim" Brader, Wisconsin's All-Conference and All-Western guard and tackle under "Big Jaw" Richards; Adolph Bieberstein, an All-Conference guard in 1923; Edliff "Butch" Slaughter, Walter Camp's All-American tackle last fall for Michigan; and "Chuck" Carney, Illinois' immorta end in 1920. Carney has taken up the job of developing Badger ends and to date has done wonders. Wisconsin has been noted for her great wingmen, with the exception of the past two years, and Carney is faced with the task of putting them back on the old basis.

Handling the backs are "Irv" Uteritz, Michigan's All-American quarter-back and one of the greatest strategists in the Middlewest; Guy Sundt, Wisconsin's premier full-back during the years '18, '19, and '20; and Ward "Doc" Connell, a member of the famous 1925 National Collegiate Football Champions at Notre Dame. Supervising, as can well be expected, the entire job, is Little, himself. The new Athletic Director has been forced to take up the job with Wisconsin at the lowest possible ebb in both spirit and numerical standing in Big Ten Football. Within a period of six months Little has fanned the smouldering embers of the old Badger spirit into a raging holocaust. Faculty, students, alumni and friends are ready to back the new Director to the limit.

The opening game with Ames College demonstrated that Little has already done wonders with his material. Handicapped by the loss of the entire center of his line, namely, Teckmeyer, center; Miller and Bieberstein, guards; and the smashing leader of last fall, Jack Harris, the Badgers triumphed decisively over the powerful Missouri Valley contenders, Ames.

The Badgers played a strictly open game, running most their plays off tackle and throwing passes with snap and precision that gives the impression of a successful and mighty aerial attack ere the season is over. The work of Crofoot, a sophomore, at quarterback, was one of the redeeming features of the new Badger eleven. The youngster, playing his first year on the Cardinal, proved himself a capable field general and a bundle of energy. His play in the season's opener demonstrated clearly that the problem of a high class pilot is solved for Little. Barring injury, Crofoot should be one of the stars of the Middlewest this fall. Some of the real strength of the Badger line lies in her two powerful and rangey tackles, Nelson and Straubel. With the modern style of football centering its attack on that part of the line, Wisconsin is well fortified.

Saturday, October 10th, marked the close of the preliminary games for 1925, the Little machine romping through Franklin College for an easy 35-0 win. Thus with a patched front and the use of less than half a dozen plays, the Badgers had little trouble and were never in serious danger. Doyle Harmon, Fred Radke, Rollie Barnum and Harry McAndrews accounted for all the Badger scores. Harmon and McAndrews flashed several beautiful open field runs, showing clever ability to side-step, pivot and twist through the opposition. In the line von Bremer, shifted to one of the guard positions, was a tower of strength. This Chicago lad is only a sophomore, but bids well to become one of the greatest line-men in Badger gridiron history.

Saturday, October 17th, marked the crucial test for Coach Little and his Cardinals. On this date they faced the maize and blue of Michigan, tutored by the grand old man, Fielding H. Yost. The date also marks one of the most colorful clashes in the Middlewest and as far as Michigan and Wisconsin are concerned, it can well be termed the battle of the ages. It was not so long ago that Little and Yost were together producing champions for Michigan. Now it is the clash between master and pupil that was witnessed by forty thousand rabid enthusiasts within the concrete structure of the Badger playing field, Camp Randall.

Score: Michigan 21, Wisconsin 0;

Details will appear in the next issue.

THE WISCONSIN SUMMER SESSION was the third largest in the United States, according to Dean Scott H. Goodnight, director of the summer session. Enrollment totaled 5,017, an increase of 262 over the previous year. Columbia university, with 12,700, had the largest summer session, and Chicago, with 5,800, was second. Minnesota, with 3,600, was fourth. If the enrollment of the University of California intersession, held at Berkeley prior to the regular summer session, and the enrollment in the southern branch at Los Angeles is counted, the Pacific coast university ranks second, with more than 6,000 students.

CONSTRUCTION IS BEING PUSHED on the new $130,000 Nurses' Dormitory, which is to be used for the nurses' training school of the Wisconsin General hospital, on University Avenue between Warren and Lorch streets. The building will house 94 nurses, the superintendent, and the matron. It is planned as the first unit of a future group of nurses' dormitories. The exterior is of pressed brick and terra cotta to harmonize with the neighboring hospital.

ENROLLMENT AT THE UNIVERSITY this fall showed an increase of about 50 over last year. The total is about 7,500 for the first semester. The enrollment at the end of the second semester last year was 8,142. The enrollment of freshmen this year is almost 200 less than last year, but the increase in the number of returning upperclassmen more than made up the loss.

The enrollment of women increased 34, and the enrollment of men increased 23. The variations of enrollment in the different schools and colleges in the university are slight. The largest increase is in the Medical school where the addition of 85 students is attributed chiefly to the installation of the third-year course. Enrollment in the Law school increased by 25.

Class enrollment in the Course in Journalism totals 556 students of whom 280 are pursuing journalism as a major study. This year marks the beginning of the twenty-first year of instruction in journalism at the university. Prof. Willard G. Bleyer, '96, the present director, organized the first course in journalism in the United States.

THE FALL MEETING of the National Academy of Sciences will be held at the University of Wisconsin in Nov. 9-11. Some of the most distinguished scientists in the country will attend. Members of the academy from the Badger university are: C. E. Allen, botany; L. R. Jones, plant pathology; G. C. Comstock, astronomy (emeritus); C. K. Leith, geology; Joel Stebbins, astronomy; C. E. Mendenhall, physics; E. B. Van Vleck, mathematics.

WISCONSIN HAS ORGANIZED the first Spanish house in the United States. It was opened this fall at 224 North Murray street. Only Spanish is spoken. The new institution has been named "Casa Cervantes" to symbolize all the Spanish-speaking countries in the name of the greatest Spanish author. The home accommodates 15 young women and dining room service is maintained for 35 men and women who are students in Spanish.

Several American and Spanish friends of the institution have contributed books, objects of art, and money. They include Juan C. Cebrian, a San Francisco engineer; Mrs. Susan Huntington Vernon, former president of the University of Porto Rico; Archer Milton Huntington, president of the Hispanic Society of America; the Spanish ministries of state and public instruction; and the heirs of the late Lucius Fairchild, Madison, a former ambassador to the court of Spain.

CONTRACTS HAVE BEEN AWARDED for the construction of a west wing on Bascom hall. The new wing will be the third since the construction of the building in 1857. In 1900 a south wing was added to old University hall—renamed Bascom hall in 1921,—and in 1906 a north wing was built. The new south-west wing will cost $470,000.

DEATHS

FRANK WATERMAN, '63, Omaha, Neb. died in an Omaha Hospital on August 9, after an illness of several months. He was buried at Avoca, Ia., on August 12. Mrs. Waterman, 1726 S. 28th St., Omaha, survives.

Mrs. PARMELIA M. MILLS, ex'69, passed away at a Milwaukee hospital on August 20. Mrs. Mills was one of the first women students who entered the University and her reminiscences of early student days have delighted and amused succeeding generations of students who have come to know her. Mrs. Mills is survived by three sons and one daughter. Burial was at Madison, where Mrs. Mills made her home for many years.

Judge WILLIAM THOMAS KELSEY, '72, long a stately and dignified figure on the streets of Baraboo, who died there on September 19, had been in failing health for some time from heart disease. He was born at Prairie du Sac and would have been eighty years old next February. Following his early education at Prairie du Sac, he was graduated from the law school. Later he took a degree from the University of Michigan. After practicing law for a number of years he was elected county judge for Sauk county and held the office twenty-eight years. Then he was divorce counsel for some time. Besides Mrs. Kelsey, he leaves one son, W. T. Kelsey, B. A. '04, L. L. B '06 Madison atty., and one daughter, Miss Rachel Kelsey, Ph. B. '01, M. L. '02, a member of the faculty of the University. Funeral service was held in the Masonic temple, Baraboo, September 22, and burial was at Prairie du Sac.—O. D. B.—ex'85.

Dr. ALBERT J. OCHSNER, '84, Chicago, Ill., died at his home on July 25 from angina pectoris. He was a surgeon of international reputation and a pioneer in the treatment of cancer by radium.

Dr. Ochsner was born in Baraboo, April 3, 1858. Following his graduation he attended Rush Medical College, Chicago, receiving the

M. D. degree in 1886, after which he studied in the universities of Vienna and Berlin. On April 31, 1888, he was married to Miss Marion Mitchell, Chicago, whereupon he settled in Chicago, where he practiced his profession until the time of his death. He was chief surgeon of Augustana and St. Mary's Hospitals since 1896, and professor of Clinical Surgery in the Medical Department of the University of Illinois, Chicago, since 1900. During the World War he was given the rank of major in the Medical Reserve Corps.

Dr. Ochsner was a loyal, active and generous life member of the Alumni Association. He served as president of our organization from 1908-1910.

He was a fellow in the American Surgeons Association, a member of the American College of Surgeons, the Royal College of Surgeons (Ireland), Royal Microscopical Society (London), Southern Surgical & Gynecological Society, and the Chicago Medical Society, Chicago Pathological Society and the Chicago Surgical Society. He was the author of a number of books: Handbook on Appendicitis, Clinical Surgery for the Instruction of Practitioners and Students, Organization, Management, and Construction of Hospitals, Surgery of Thyroid and Parathyroid Glands, Yearbook of Surgery, Treatise on Surgical Diagnosis and Treatment. He contributed frequently to the medical press. Dr. Ochsner is survived by his widow, one daughter, Bertha, and one son, Albert.

Dr. PATRICK H. MCGOVERN, '88, Milwaukee, died at Columbia hospital on September 28, after a lingering illness. Dr. McGovern was prominent in medical circles in Milwaukee, having been associated in practice with his brother, Dr. J. J. McGovern, since 1901. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity, of the City Club, and of alumni associations of various universities which he attended. He served as professor of anatomy and allied medical subjects at the old Milwaukee Medical college for a number of years. He is survived by his wife and two brothers.

HARRY W. REILLY, '97, Oklahoma City, passed away on July 23 at the home of his sister, Mrs. Frank P. Burke, 2109 Grand Ave., Milwaukee, after a month's illness. After graduation from the course in electrical engineering, he was connected with the J. G. White Company and then entered the service of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, later returning to the White Company, where he remained until 1910. His profession took him to many points in the United States, Mexico, Porto Rico and Cuba. He became identified with the Bylesby Engineering & Management Corporation in 1910 and with the Oklahoma Gas & Electric Company in 1917. It was in 1920 that Mr. Reilly was named assistant to the general manager in charge of operation of the latter company. He was chairman of aeronautic development in Oklahoma City, and a member of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers. He is survived by his widow, his mother, and two sisters.

C. A. SIDLER, '99, former Milwaukee attorney and state assemblyman, died at his home at Grant's Pass, Ore., September 18.

WILLIAM A. WALKER JR., '01, Milwaukee, ended his life by hanging in the Henrotin

Hospital, Chicago, on July 25. He had been suffering for some years from a malignant brain tumor and had been a patient in the hospital for six months. His condition was such that it was impossible to operate to remove the growth.

Mr. Walker had practiced law in Milwaukee since his graduation from the University. He had been active in various organizations in the city of Wauwatosa, where he lived with his sister, and was vice-president of the Stickney Field Club and a member of the school board of Wauwatosa until about a year ago when he was obliged to resign, because of ill health. Mr. Walker is survived by his mother, four sisters, and two brothers.

HARRY GUIPE, '04, Chicago, passed away on August 15.

DAVID ROWLAND, '22, Racine, passed away at Oconomowoc on July 31. Death was caused by heart failure. Mr. Rowland had been engaged in real estate with the firm of Carpenter & Rowland, Racine. He is survived by his parents, one sister, and a brother.

HAROLD S. OYEN, ex'23, La Crosse, was killed instantly in an automobile accident on June 28, near Onalaska. The accident occurred when the driver of the car became blinded by the glaring headlights of an approaching machine and turned too far over the edge of the road. The automobile crashed sidewise into a tree. Mr. Oyen was catapulted out, striking his head against the tree.

For the past four years Mr. Oyen had been associated with his father and at the time of his death was sales manager of the O. J. Oyen Company. He is survived by his parents and one brother.

NORMA SCHOEN, '24, Milwaukee, died suddenly in Paris, France, of cerebral hemorrhage, early in August. She had completed a year of study in New York City and had just arrived in Paris on a pleasure trip. During her four years in Madison she studied under Ludwig Wrangell of the Wheeler School of Music, and according to Fletcher Wheeler was one of the most talented violinists who ever studied in Madison. Miss Schoen is survived by her parents, a sister, and a brother.

MARION CROSBY, '26, Lockport, N. Y., was killed in an accident on a vacation trip in New Bedford, Conn., early in July. Miss Crosby had had two years of college work at Mount Holyoke College and was a junior at the University last year. She was a member of Delta Zeta sorority.

Prof. George R. Bascom died at Burlington, Ia., on June 27. He was instructor in mechanics and materials in the extension division of the University from 1913-1914. In 1915 he was made assistant professor and served in that capacity until February 1, 1918, when he was granted leave of absence and entered the Army. Prof. Bascom did not return to the University after the expiration of his leave. He was a graduate of the University of Illinois. His sister, Miss Lelia Bascom, '02, is assistant professor in English at the extension division.

Reune in June!

June, 1926

Dear Friends: How do you all look, feel and act after forty-five years of prosperity and happiness? We know how ten of you looked in June, 1916. We want to see at least thirty of you this wonderful anniversary day. Moroney, Howard Smith, Steensland, Dan McArthur, Goodall, Emma Gattiker, Julia Hallam, myself and several others are already pledged. Can't you write me soon, so I can print your pledges? Fine idea—act quickly. All copy must be in by the 10th of month. I have personally attended reunions of various classes of our time and my observation is the members of our class excel them all, age for age, in looks, preservation, prosperity and conviviality. Let's prove it!

You would have been interested in seeing the honors paid last Sunday to the ashes of our most worthy and honorable alumnus, Bishop Fallows. He died two years ago and his ashes were placed in a vault pending a selection of his burial place. The campus at Madison, Arlington Cemetery (the resting place of military heroes), his old home town in Massachusetts, and Forest Home Cemetery, Chicago, all vied for the honor. His old parishoners prevailed and his urn and one containing the ashes of his wife, who died nine years ago, were interred at the same time. Mr. Will Haight and myself represented U. W. A military salute was fired by regular army men deputized for the special occasion. A eulogy was pronounced by his successor as Bishop. His family was represented by Miss Fallows, whom you all know. His life was surely a beacon light for all of us to follow. His name sheds lustre on his and our Alma Mater. Sincerely, F. S. W.

Fellow Classmates: Saturated with sea salt from Atlantic City, permeated with pep at New York, further invigorated by the Icelandic rigor of the Adirondacks, your secretary is again at the wheel and is in a receptive mood, ready to hear from any or all of you who may have something interesting to communicate.

Already I am promised articles by our esteemed friend and classmate, W. H. Goodall, as follows: "Incorrigibles of '79," "Sweethearts of '76" (Illustrated).

Mr. Goodall's new address is Principal, Bond Consolidated High School, Philadelphia, Miss.

Surely Lyon, Brady or Porter could give us a word from the Pacific Coast that would interest us all. Try it, please.—F. S. W.

416 Wisconsin Ave.

Judge David F. SIMPSON, one of the oldest and ablest members of the Minneapolis bar, fractured a rib and injured a vertebra of the neck when his car overturned in passing another near Mille Lacs, Minn., while duck hunting. He is lying in a Minneapolis hospital for two months, rigidly splinted, then will be fully recovered, according to promise of the surgeons. Judge Simpson received his LL. B. degree in '84. For many years he was a district and supreme court judge in Minnesota, but voluntarily resigned for private practice while yet on the supreme court bench.

Probably one of Dr. A. J. OSCHNER's last communications relating to the University was to O. D. Brandenburg. It was dated June 20 and was written from his home, 2106 Sedgwick St., Chicago, and ran thus:

"I had hoped until the last moment that I would be present at commencement, but things shaped themselves so that I could not get away, much to my regret. I have been away so much lately that your letter requesting a letter from me must have been lost while I was in Mexico or somewhere. I am sorry, as I should have been very glad to do this and I have enjoyed those in the booklet very much."

Dr. Oschner was graduated with the class of '84, but his autograph appears in the '85 class "Secretary's book" for 1881, and his name figures in the early proceedings of '85. In the spring of 1882 he was one of a committee to consider the problem of "class hat and class colors;" and he regularly attended '85 reunions where he was warmly welcomed.

Lieutenant-Colonel James M. HUTCHINSON, U. S. A., writing to O. D. Brandenburg respecting the post-graduate history which the class of '85 issues quin-quennially incidentally imparts the following interesting information about himself:

"1052 South Mariposa Avenue,
Los Angeles.

Three or four days ago, on my return from a six weeks' stay in San Francisco, I found the class letters and your two letters. The reminders and inquiries about a class letter have not yet caught up with me. They are probably somewhere in China or Japan, to which countries I went after leaving the Philippines last fall. I entirely overlooked the fact that this was anniversary year, and had I received your last letter in time, I should have written a letter, even if it were late. But when one is so far from home and homeland reminders and associations, time does not seem divided into the ordinary periods.

"I shall probably be stationed in Los Angeles for a year or two. I am making a survey of the industries of southern California, and that is somewhat of a job. When I started in on it I had the idea that it produced nothing but climate and oranges and real estate; but there are many other things, in addition to the staple products of Tijuana!

"I am starting on a drive tomorrow (July 3), after finishing the 'defense test', to San Francisco. There I expect to take a transport for New York via the Panama canal. I shall return to California by rail and expect to visit Madison in the course of a month and will look you up."

A later communication states that the business address of HUTCHINSON is Chamber of Commerce Bldg., Los Angeles.—George BALDWIN is a retired lumberman; with wife and three children he resides at Crete, Neb. He was graduated as a civil engineer. He was one of the very few members of the class who failed to have a personal letter in the last post-graduate history of '85.

Minnie Gray TRUESDALE Case, one of the fairest daughters of '85, lives in Colo., but while a student made her home with the Professor J. B. Parkinson family where the University Club is located on State Street. "Thank you," she writes, "for sending me the Post-Graduate history of '85. I have read it with pleasure and satisfaction and regret now that I did not send you a short letter anyway, though I feel my life has been so uneventful there would be little to interest others. Since my husband's death in 1892 I have leased the ranch (at Jefferson, Colorado) where we lived until three years ago. Since then my daughter, her husband and I have taken charge and live there from April until November. At present we are having great success raising head lettuce. On account of the cool nights, lettuce becomes very solid and white. This is a fine place to spend the summer in the mountains, and we have guests over every week-end." Mrs. Case's address most of the year is 3023 Wyandotte Street, Denver, Colo.

Reune in June!

Dr. G. F. Thompson, who ordinarily would handle the '96 reunion, is to be away from Chicago both at the beginning of the year and also toward the end, the two most important times for the organization and culmination of reunion plans. However, he has solicited the aid of two live wires of '96, W. G. Bleyer and A. O. Barton, to get things started at this end. Prof. Bleyer is planning to get the Madison members of the class together in the very near future and A. O. Barton, the semi-official class historian, promises a real live contribution on reunion plans next month. It will be something '96 reunioners will want to watch for. Any members brimming over with ideas are invited to send them on to either of the two men mentioned. Prof.

Bleyer may be addressed in care of the University of Wisconsin and A. O. Barton, who is editor of the Wisconsin Farmer and Iowa Homestead, may be reached at his home address, 1914 Madison St., Madison.

Reune in June!

The swiftly moving years seem to have dimmed the memories of some of us, and it took the due and timely notice from Alumni Secretary Crawford to remind us that our turn to "reune in June" is near at hand. Yes, we are next, and to all loyal members of that crop that was harvested nigh onto twenty years ago the call issues, "Come Back!"

In proportion to original numbers, the gathering of 1921 in Madison compared well with the rest. The program furnished something entertaining every hour of the day and then some. The universal sentiment was that the Twenty-Year Anniversary should be the best yet. Let's make it so! Begin to think about it now. Your Madison representatives promise the best there is in them to make your time here count heavily in your interest. Our president, Otto KOWALKE, will have something to say about this in a future issue. In the meantime, get out the desk pad and mark it down instanter: "Madison, June 1926."—L. W. B.

Take a look at my face above. If you think I look funny—how do you think the regents look?

T'other day I saw a guy give a kid a nickle and I said to the kid, "That must be a bad man or he wouldn't never give you no money. You better throw the nickle away." He didn't pay no 'tention to me at all but hiked into a candy store and spent the money. Guess he wasn't no regent or he wouldn't a taken no chance on that nickle.

But this here university aint had no notorious publicity since last spring, so we just had to get on the front page. Desperate situations require desperate means. If a movie actress had publicity agts. like our university's got she'd be worsor off than Fatty A; but somehow we seem to putter along—so cheer up.

The regents were sincere and probably will find a way to correct the mistake. My good eye on the east side of my face has a knowing squint that says that them there regents at our plush seat of learning are big enough folks to admit they're wrong when they are and then they'll come clean like they should. What more could be fairer?

Jimmy THOMPSON is secretary of the Wisconsin Alumni Club of New York City. He and Karl MANN started the ball arrolling on the backfire anent the regents' now famous tainted gifts resolution. Almost before we know it the beginning of another school year is before us, and the Alumni Magazine, after its summer vacation, is again coming off the press.

We wish all of 1914 could drop in on Madison for a few days to feel almost physically the "Forward Spirit" instilled by our new President, to see the pep and snap of our football team under the tutelage of Coach Little, and incidentally to cast a shy glance at some of the ravishing co-eds, the real reason why men can't get through college.

And together with all this comes the annual question—what is the best way to best use the column in our Magazine allotted to 1914? Your secretary claims this year to devote this column to class news by geographical groups, to reports from officers, and to the 1929 reunion.

Suggestions and contributions are always welcome. Emphatically, let's have them!—R. C.

THE INQUIRING CLASS SECRETARY

Asked 1915ers picked at random the following question:

THE QUESTION

How Can this Column be made more Interesting to Class Members?

THE ANSWERS

Mary McMahon, 129 East 10th, New York City—Keeping fresh my college memories is the best remedy I know for this curse of cynicism we all bump into. Why not an occasional bulletin of gossip, more news in the mag—individual contributions, etc.?

Joe and Ann Larson Machotka, 44 Metropoleos, Athens, Greece—Why not a little more detail from proud papas and mamas about "the latest arrival" so that we can graduate from the General Announcements of the mag to the class page. Joanne Katherine joined us on the 9th of August—a chubby cheeked, blue eyed (like her mother), pensive (not like her dad), 7¾ pounds baby.

Nat. P. Biart, 652 Knickerbocker St., Madison—If the others, in their press of business, might be late in telling us about it, you tell us through the mag. For instance, on the square the other day I barely averted a serious collision with W. K. Adams and his accountant look. He said he was so swamped with business he could not reunite with us last June. He exhibited his credentials in the form of a card which read: "W. K. Adams with Wm. W. Thompson & Co., Certified Public Accountants, 818-826 Tribune Building, Chicago."

Arthur Gabler, 314 State Street, West Lafayette, Ind.—More individual contributions.

H. J. Rahmlow, Phillips, Wisconsin—In your travels before next reunion, you will surely meet here and there some 1915er. Tell us all about it.

Note: Send all suggestions or answers to the Class Secretary.

From Hugo Hering, 1432 First Wisconsin National Bank Bldg., Milwaukee, comes a most attractive souvenir of the 1925 Reunion of the 1915 Coast Band—a soft blue-grey covered pamphlet containing high lights of that memorable reunion, sidelights on various members who attended, regrets from those who couldn't attend, and "personals" concerning both present and absent members that just have to be read in the original to be appreciated. Wish we could quote the whole thing, it's well worth it.

The following "lost" members are especially urged to get in touch with C. H. Sanderson, 407 Gay Bldg., Madison, as to their present whereabouts and musical or other pursuits: W. J. McCoy, George Jacobi, Peter Strelow, '16, Donald Bohn, Leonard Gates, Lyle Howard, C. F. Baxter, Verle Williams, Wendell Dunn.

Reune in June!

Dear Classmates: You have often heard the cry "Reune in June" and all it has meant was, "Those poor souls, five years out of school, heavens but they are getting old." This time "Reune in June" means you, are not old and you are not an unlucky soul.

Plan your vacations, honeymoons, trips, business or pleasure so that they will all land you in Madison for your reunion.

If you haven't been back to school since your graduation day, it is about time you went back and looked the old place over. You have changed and the school has changed, so let's all get acquainted again. Get all your friends "pepped" up to come back to reunion so that it really will be a big "get together." Start making your plans now.—E. P. R.

Some of us do not write home very often, but we love her ever more deeply as the years roll on. Her miracle is her eternal youth. Think of her looking up now with a new Prexy only thirty-eight years old! It puts new dignity and a new challenge into everyone of her sons who is round about that beginning of a good, long prime of life. More power to him and to her!" Concerning Turkey he writes, "I believe in the new Turkish nation because it is republican in form and democratic in ideal, is led by men for the most part unusually devoted, capable and hard-working, and is building its chief hopes on the liberal education of its youth—a youth in general just about as keen, decent and attractive as that of America or anywhere else. This nation deserves a sporting chance." Concerning his family he says: "The Stevens' children are Janice Mardie, Leslie Elizabeth, both born in Constantinople, and John Hay, born in Chicago. They and their mother, grandmother and father all enjoy the best of health and find Constantinople a good and fascinating place to live. On the side, though, the old folks miss the soda fountains and the A. & P. stores, and John and I long successively for baseball, real football and winter sports, none of which we seem to be able to have here. What you can do for us this fall is to see to it that Wisconsin puts an undeniable win in the place of each of the ties we saw last fall, particularly with Minnesota and Chicago."—Robert BREHMER, who took advantage of the government's offer to educate young men who had served in the World War, is back at the University, having won a scholarship which will now enable him to work for his master's degree.—Chester PERRODIN has entered Rush Medical college for his senior year in medicine.—Chen Ping CHANG, who received his master's degree at the University, has gone back to China. THE MORALE OF THE STATE UNIVERSITIES include them, and thus expressed their policies as to the acceptance of gifts from "incorporated educational institutions." One of the leading advocates of the policy, and I believe, the first officer of a State University to be elected to its Board of Trustees, was the President of the University of Wisconsin. To suggest that such an affiliation opens the way to an undesirable "influence" upon Wisconsin educational freedom, seems as remote as to imply that the generous foundation of libraries by the bounty of Mr. Carnegie was a disguised attempt to control public opinion by influencing the selection of books which the public would read.

In a world in which many of the vital issues are not clear, in which one must take chances and estimate them judiciously, wisdom and morale alike depend upon the refined cultivation of the critical but balanced and sympathetic temper. While temperamentally disposed to radicalism, if by that one means the conviction that it is important to go to the root of things, and not be content with superficial alleviation, I am grievously disappointed in radicals, whose enthusiasm outruns their wisdom and whose capacities are so completely overshadowed by their limitations. In despondent moments I have a similar but slighter feeling for liberalism and seem to find a more sympathetic approach in the ways of my friendly enemies, the conservatives; yet I retain my conviction that the most important factor in any enterprise is the direction of its movement. And this change or backsliding of attitude I venture to interpret not as an index of the hardening of the arteries or the sensibilities, but as sober realization that progress is a function of wisdom as well as of purpose.

The Greatest of All Joys

Is Creating the Possibility of Having Things

LEARNING how to save dollars is the foundation of a possibility.

WHEN you save as much as you can;

WHEN you educate yourself for greater things;

WHEN you keep track of the small things and have a bank account to do it with, you will accomplish whatever you set out to do.

USE our bank for that purpose.
