Dave Barney '27
Loyal alumnus takes new position

Barney Leaves

L. D. Barney, '27, business manager of the Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation, has recently accepted an executive position with the Hoffman-LaRoche Co., a large pharmaceutical concern in Nutley, N. J.

Barney will be general manager of the company and according to unofficial reports will eventually be elected president to succeed Elmer H. Bobst.

The company manufactures vitamins and hormones under the "Roche" trade name, and is said to have affiliations with several chemical and drug firms in Switzerland.

Barney has been in active charge of the commercial activities of the Research Foundation here since July 1, 1939 when he was named business manager. Before that he served for a number of years as assistant to the director, Harry L. Russell, former dean of the College of Agriculture.

His wife is the former Dorrit Astrom, '27.

WPB's Krug

When Julius Krug, '29, received his commission in the navy this summer he expected to say goodbye to Washington, D. C. for the duration. Little did he realize that he would be back within several months and be given leadership of the War Production Board.

After graduating in '29, Krug came back for his M.A. in economics in '30. Then he took a job with the Wisconsin Telephone Co.

On the basis of this experience, Krug was called to Washington by the Federal Communications commission.

Then Gov. A. B. Chandler of Kentucky hired him to direct the Kentucky Public Service commission, and upon leaving there Krug went to the Tennessee Valley Authority where he became chief power engineer.

Before Pearl Harbor Krug was called to Washington to be with the SPAB (WPB's predecessor). He gradually worked himself into the position labeled by commentators the "No. 3" position. So, it was only fitting that in the split in WPB leadership and after Donald Nelson's resignation, Krug should be given leadership of the WPB.

University Buildings

- ★ Expansion
- ★ Replacement
- ★ Repairs

Foremost among the needs of the university at present is the need for buildings—new building to replace old ones, new buildings to take care of new needs, and old buildings renovated to fit the demands of the present.

A committee of the university's administration, including President Dykstra, deans of the various colleges, Comptroller A. W. Peterson, and Albert Gallistel, superintendent of buildings and grounds, has thoroughly studied the problem of building needs and submitted a report on the subject to the Board of Regents at their meeting on September 30.

A $6,000 appropriation was granted by the Regents for preparation of preliminary sketches and plans for a building program to be presented to the 1945 legislature.

The report to the Regents stated that "there is no single program of more importance to the future of the university than the meeting of the need for more space in which to take care of our growth in student population and the demand for research in the state service."

The growth of university population in the past from an enrollment of 7,957 students in the deepest depression year of 1933 up to an enrollment of 12,134 students in 1940, the year before selective service, illustrates the demand for more space. It is expected that after the war the enrollment will far exceed that of 1940, partly as a result of the government plan for providing university education for World War II veterans.

While this increase in enrollment has created a demand for more space, there has been no provision for building a major structure on the campus since 1929, with the exception of the Union wing and the dormitories provided in part by federal funds which were limited to those buildings which brought in their own revenue. No academic or class-room additions have been made since 1929.

The list of structures urgently needed by the university include both academic and class-room buildings and dormitories. It is expected that a request for priorities for materials for agricultural short course dormitories will be accepted so that such dormitories can be built immediately.

Home Economics needs more room.

Cost of Proposed Building Plan

Recommended by an interim committee of legislators:

Fireproofing Bascom Hall	$ 125,000
Library	1,791,400
Dairy (includes heating, tunnels)	580,800
Home economics wing	209,600
Engineering Building and equipment	1,424,400
Chemistry (rebuilding)	1,702,500
Total	$5,832,900

Suggested by the university committee to be added to the legislative committee's recommendations:

Biology Wing	$ 500,000
Bascom Enlargement	535,000
Bacteriology	250,000
Administrative and Extension	500,000
Heating, service, and revamping	1,000,000
Physical Education	1,000,000
Radio	300,000
Milwaukee Extension	470,000
Dormitory Stake	250,000
Temporary Housing	1,000,000
Total	$5,805,000

Highlights of the report to the Regents and specific items from the report are as follows:

The Central Library—Provision for this building was made 20 years ago but the appropriation was allowed to lapse because of reasons adequate then. Consequently students have had to use the Historical library "which forty years ago had ample space for both the Historical Society and a University with 2,000 students."

"There is practically universal agreement that a general library be built across State street from the Historical library on the site of the present Business Administration building," connected to the other library by underground passageway.

The Dairy Building—"Wisconsin is the premier dairy state in the Union. . . . It will be to the interest of the whole dairy industry . . . to build a modern dairy plant on the campus."

Home Economics Building—The present building was erected at a time when enrollment in that course was only 200, and as a temporary measure the Extension Division was housed in the same building. "Not only should the Home Economics school have the space now occupied by Extension, but the long planned-for wing should be built immediately if that school is to have the opportunity to serve the state properly."

Engineering Building—"The Engineering college today is housed in the two old structures more than fifty years old, in a part of the Engineering building across from the Law building, and in the two structures on University avenue known respectively as Mining and Metallurgy, and Mechanical Engineering." The campus is so separated by distances that students can't get from one building to another in the time allotted between classes. The plan "contemplates a new Engineering building on University avenue to the east of Mechanical Engineering, with at least a third more space than there is in the present Mechanical Engineering building. . . . This structure will need to be followed by another almost immediately."

Bascom Hall—Bascom should be fireproofed immediately and the building should be completed according to plans submitted years ago. Because of the very great need for classroom and office space in the Letters and Science College, "two more floors should be added on the southwest wing and a four story northwest wing should be completed. . . . These additions would provide something like 53,000 more square feet of floor space."

Chemistry—Two proposals have been made here. First, that the central portion of the chemistry building be torn out and rebuilt with steel and concrete so as to be fireproof, that it be some stories higher and that the old wing be carried some 40 feet to the north and enclosed.

The second proposal provides for an entirely new building on the south side of University avenue. This allows for the possibility that the old building could not be rebuilt during a summer, in which case the department would have no place to carry on its work during construction. If this were done the old chemistry building could be used for some other purpose.

Bacteriology—Originally the Dairy Industry building was to have housed bacteriology, but a difficulty has arisen since that building was planned for a site west of the Stock Pavilion and since students from all schools of the university take bacteriology. It would be impossible for students to go from that location to other buildings on the eastern end of the campus in the time allotted between classes. More suitable space for bacteriology must be provided.

General Extension in Madison—"Extension needs about a third more space than it now has available. . . . An office building could well house both Business Administration" (left homeless by the proposed library) "and Extension. We, therefore, propose an office structure, perhaps on the corner of Park and University, as a joint solution of these two essential needs."

Physical Education—"We have no gymnasium which is worthy of the name or a sports hall of any kind which gives exercise space, particularly during the winter, for a body of students as large as ours. . . . The plan calls for two buildings to be built on Randall Field and a Randall Field Extension . . . planned concurrently and next to each other so that all duplications of equipment and facilities be avoided. Attention too must be called to the need of our women for a Field House of some kind adjacent to outdoor play fields."

Medicine—Plans here include the building of a new wing on Wisconsin General Hospital, a residence hall for internes, expansion room to take care of physical and occupational therapy, adequate housing for the department of Anatomy, and room to ease the crowded situation now existing in the Service Memorial Institute building, the home of the Medical School.

Residence Halls—The needs here are urgent and the housing problem, though immediate now, is expected to increase in importance after the war. The short course dormitories must be built as soon as possible. The housing of graduate students, particularly married graduate students, should be considered, and a food service building will be needed.

Other Recommendations—Space will be needed by the School of Commerce and the School of Music. The social sciences should be brought together. Wisconsin High school and the School of Education might well be consolidated. "The campus is woefully short of office space . . . there are very few rooms that are equipped with the newer teaching aids, such as projectors, for instance, there are almost no study rooms in classroom buildings, certain types of rest room facilities are almost non-existent, and there are practically no locker or cloakroom facilities anywhere."

Heating Station and Utilities—As the university expands, so must its heating plant. "Provision must be made also for additional tunnels, for electrical distribution, for water mains, pumps, and sewers, for alterations and repairs that would be suggested by a safety survey, and also for some delayed maintenance."

The present Engineering campus is too scattered.

UNIVERSITY NEWS

Gifts and Grants

Gifts and grants totaling $34,767 for research in business, industry, and agriculture were accepted by the Board of Regents at a recent meeting.

Largest of the grants was for $15,000 from the A. C. Nielsen Co., Chicago, for use in a variety of business and science projects. Nielsen, head of the company, was a Wisconsin graduate in 1918.

Other gifts included $4,400 for a second research project on penicillin, $3,000 to continue antimalarial studies;

$1,000 for a study of certain greenhouse plants, $3,000 for a study of the influence of dietary fat, $1,200 for a study on the nutritive value of butterfat;

$2,500 for a fellowship to study poultry nutrition, $4,000 for an industrial fellowship in biochemistry, $567 for a study in genetic factors in dairy cattle, and $100 to start a library of books on arc welding.

Peter Young Fund

Caroline M. Young, retired schoolteacher who died August 30, left a substantial portion of her $50,000 estate to the university regents to be set up in a "fund" for students of the College of Agriculture who need financial aid. It will be established in the memory of her father, Peter Young.

Patent Suit

A new development in the litigation concerning three of the four Steenbock patents held by the Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation appeared in August when the U. S. Circuit court of appeals in San Francisco withdrew its previous opinion invalidating the patents.

This withdrawal leaves open three possibilities concerning the case: a possible rehearing, a possible reversal of the decision, or a possible modification of the decision with additional material augmenting the statement.

The court made no explanation regarding the withdrawing of its opinion and no prediction regarding future action. On Aug. 24, 1943 the Research Foundation had filed a petition for a rehearing of the case.

Courses For Servicemen

The university is now providing 143 of the total of 220 courses being offered to men of the armed services by the Armed Forces Institute.

This is an expansion from the original 62 courses offered in the curriculum. Now more than 100,000 service men and women throughout the world are using the facilities of the institute which was established by the federal government in connection with the university.

Uruguayan Students

If the Uruguayan government provides scholarships, six students from there may attend Wisconsin's College of Agriculture, Prof. Norman Neal explained recently.

Neal went to Uruguay last year to give advice on corn production. If the students came here they would carry back home new ways of farming and would further friendly relations between the two countries.

Centenarian Alumna

Wisconsin's oldest alumna, Mrs. Sophie Schmedeman Krueger, celebrated her 100th birthday last month.

Mrs. Krueger, a resident of Minneapolis, is both the oldest living former student and the only woman member of Wisconsin's first coeducational class to be living.

It was in 1860 that Mrs. Krueger left the family farm to move to Madison to attend high school. When the university opened up a normal department for women, she jumped at the opportunity of attending.

The Civil War had greatly curtailed male enrollment and mismanagement of funds had put the university in debt. Finally the regents admitted women.

There were about 20 women in that first class, and they suffered the disapproval of the men students. The men were sure that the women would cause scholarship standards to be lowered, so, as Mrs. Krueger explained in an interview, the women reciprocated by condemning the men for staying behind to attend school when there was a war going on.

The Civil War was a very immediate problem to the co-eds of that first class. With dormitories on the campus, women were only allowed to step off the campus when they had adequate supervision by the preceptress. Camp Randall's soldiers were entirely too near for the comfort of university authorities.

The routine of strict schooling became too much for Sophie Schmedeman. With full days of classes and concentrated out of school hours, her health gave in and university authorities advised her to drop out of school and rest. It has long been Mrs. Krueger's regret that she was unable to stay with her class and get her degree.

Little did the faculty members who insisted that she drop out of school realize that she would live to celebrate her 100th birthday.

Board of Visitors

All officers of the University Board of Visitors were re-elected at their recent meeting. Basil I. Peterson again serves as president.

The two new alumni representatives on the board are Mrs. O. E. Burns, Chicago, and Mr. Byron Stebbins, Madison.

War Courses

The Extension division is cooperating with the U. S. office of Education and the Federal Security agency in offering 16 evening classes entitled "Engineering, Science, and War Training" for 12 and 16 weeks each this fall. The courses will be taught at government expense and are planned to meet the needs and convenience of employed people who want wartime training.

Rooms For Women

Because of the housing shortage caused by the increased coed enrollment this year, the dean of women's office has been forced to approve living arrangements in private homes away from the campus. Emergency permits are granted and full responsibility is placed upon the parents of the coed.

Many new houses formerly housing men are now open to women. They include: Lake Lawn House, formerly Phi Kappa Sigma; Dover House, formerly Phi Epsilon Pi; Edgewater, formerly Kappa Sigma; 252 Langdon, formerly Kappa Delta sorority which now occupies the Chi Phi house; Beta house, formerly Beta Theta Pi; Victoria House, formerly Alpha Tau Omega; Phi Gamma Delta house; and Delta hall, formerly Delta Tau Delta.

Veterans on Campus

More than 200 veterans of world war II are currently enrolled in the university. They are making use of the facilities offered them under the so-called GI Bill of Rights which provides for educational opportunities for honorably discharged Servicemen and women.

The first veterans to come to Wisconsin were a small group arriving about 18 months ago. Now it is not uncommon to see their gold lapel insignia on the campus.

Sailors Graduate

Due to a changed set-up in courses, the Naval Training schools here now graduate from 60 to 75 men weekly. These men have been trained in code and communications after completing a 19 week course.

Previously graduations have come every five weeks and the classes were larger than at present. Monday marks the graduation day for one division and the first day of classes for the new division.

It is estimated that during the past two years the university has given special training to more than 10,000 men and women of the armed forces.

Wisconsin Praised

The University of Wisconsin received high praise recently from Dr. Paul Schrecker, one of the most eminent scholars yet rescued from Nazi Europe.

In an article on American universities in Harper's magazine Dr. Schrecker wrote: "The continental universities abroad, even the biggest ones, cannot in any respect match the facilities this university affords."

Faculty Changes

The university has opened with a full instructional staff in spite of the fact that a number of faculty members have taken leave to do work with various war agencies.

Ten new appointments have been made in seven departments, and 13 professors in 10 departments have returned.

New faculty members include Merrill M. Jensen and Fred Harrington, history; Lise A. Lindbaek, Scandinavian; Richard C. Church, music; Elizabeth T. Hayes, physical education; Walter L. Vandervest, agronomy; Flora M. Hanning, home economics; Richard U. Ratcliff, economics; and Noel T. Gist, sociology.

Those returning from leaves are Prof. Martin G. Glaesser, Prof. Harold M. Groves, and Prof. William B. Taylor, economics; Prof. Merle Curti and Prof. Robert L. Reynolds, history; Frederic A. Ogg, political science; Haviland S. Mekeel, and Arthur P. Miles, sociology and anthropology; Lowell E. Noland, zoology; Erwin A. Gaumnitz, commerce; Gordon N. Mackenzie, education; Perry W. Wilson, agricultural bacteriology; and Otto L. Kowalke, chemical engineering.

Mrs. Lindbaek is a Norwegian foreign correspondent who has covered the League of Nations, the Spanish Civil War, the rise of Italian fascism, and political events in Germany before coming to America.

Prof. Gist will be visiting lecturer in sociology for one year during the absence of Prof. Howard Becker. Gist is from the University of Missouri.

Prof. Reynolds has just completed 13 months in England with the Office of Strategic Services. He also spent a year and a half with that office in Washington.

Lester L. Hawkes will be an instructor in journalism in charge of the typographical laboratory and will also be manager of the Campus Publishing Co. Hawkes has been with the Madison Vocational School and has almost completed work on his master's degree here.

Prof. Isabel Knowles will be associated with the extension division of the history department. Miss Knowles formerly taught in Hastings College, Nebraska.

War Agencies Claim . . .

Prof. Myles Dillon, chairman of the department of comparative philology and professor of Irish has taken a leave of absence for next semester to take a post with the Office of War Information overseas.

Prof. Dillon came to the university from University College, Dublin, Ireland to head the Irish department. Since that department has been discontinued he has headed the department of comparative philology and has also taught German and English. A Sanskrit scholar, he will go to London after a short training period on the east coast.

Prof. Howard Becker of the department of sociology has taken a leave of absence for the coming semester in order to work as a civilian aide to the U. S. military authorities in Europe. The nature of his work, reported to have to do with the occupation of Germany, may keep him overseas until September 1945.

Prof. Becker came to the campus in 1937 when Prof. E. A. Ross retired. He knows

Coach John Walsh

Germany well having at one time been a mechanical engineer assigned to the International Harvester company plant at Dusseldorf. He also was an assistant in sociology at the University of Cologne for 16 months.

In 1923 Prof. Becker was sent to Germany to study the youth movement there and he studied there during the 1926-27 and 1934-35 seasons.

Dr. Alfred Galpin, instructor in French and Italian has also taken a leave to become a field representative with the European overseas branch of the Office of War Information.

Dr. Galpin has been an instructor here since he received his doctorate in 1940. He took his bachelor's degree here, then studied in Paris for two years, then returned to get a master's degree from the University from Chicago and another in music from Northwestern.

He too expects to work under Robert Sherwood who heads the OWI overseas, informing occupied and liberated cities of Allied aims.

Department Heads

Four faculty members have begun the fall semester in the new position of department head.

Dr. Conrad A. Elvehjem, noted nutrition and vitamin research expert, has been made head of the department of biochemistry of the College of Agriculture. Prof. Edwin B. Hart retired as head of the department this summer.

Prof. Harold M. Groves returns after a leave of absence to head the department of economics. He is succeeding Prof. D. D. Leschier.

Prof. Llewellyn Pfankuchen is now chairman of the department of political science, succeeding Prof. F. A. Ogg.

Prof. Leon L. Iltis has been elected head of the Music school by members of the Music school faculty. He succeeds Carl Bricken.

Joins Marines

John J. Walsh, LL.B. '38 and boxing coach since 1933, has reported for active duty with the marine air corps as a second lieutenant in the ground force of the air intelligence division. He is now at Quantico, Va.

Walsh has made an outstanding record for Wisconsin since he's been boxing coach, three of his teams having won national championships. He came to Wisconsin from St. Thomas College, St. Paul.

Lt. Walsh has an article in the September ESQUIRE entitled "Boxing Boom at Wisconsin" in which he describes the sport in Madison and also predicts a boom in boxing all over the country when the war is over.

Walsh himself made a great record as a boxer when he was in college. He served as coach here while he completed his law studies.

Mrs. Walsh, the former Audrey Beatty, '38, and their two children expect to remain in Madison.

Others Leave

Prof. Miles HANLEY, philologist of the English department, has been given a leave for the first semester to complete work on an authoritative reference work. He will divide his time between Madison and Cambridge, Mass.

Mabel M. BAUER, departmental secretary of the School of Journalism, has joined the Women's Army Corps and is now taking her basic training at Ft. Oglethorpe, Ga. She has requested service in the medical branch. Miss Bauer has been with the university for twenty-three years.

Prof. Ray A. BROWN of the Law School has accepted a position with the legal staff of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. in New York City. He has been on leave of absence for over a year during which he was a tax advisor for the U. S. Department of Justice.

Miller Retires

Last December citizens of the Madison area rejoiced when the censorship was lifted on the daily weather forecasts made by Eric Miller, veteran meteorologist at the weather bureau in North Hall.

Now these citizens learn that Eric Miller was back for only six months. Since July Miller has been on a vacation which just recently was revealed to be the beginning of his retirement.

Madison's most-quoted resident has left his post as director of the United States department of commerce weather bureau after serving there 36 years, predicting the weather during two wars, and after lecturing on meteorology to hundreds of students.

Miller started observing the weather 43 years ago, and although we generally think of meteorology as a rapidly developing science, he claims that except for a teletype printer which brings quick weather reports from elsewhere, the equipment used now is much the same as that used four decades ago.

Almost a quarter of a century ago he began a weathercast over WHA every day at 8:57 a. m. He became then the first weatherman in the United States to broadcast weather reports regularly. He also became one of the favorite personalities of Wisconsin radio. Carl Sandburg once wrote to WHA commending them for having such a refreshing personality on the air.

Miller was born at Mt. Pleasant, Mich., attended the University of Arizona, and received his M. S. degree from the University of Wisconsin in 1921.

Dr. Harold Stoke

Dr. Harold W. Stoke, acting dean of the Graduate school and professor of political science, is the newly elected president of the University of New Hampshire, it was announced recently by the president of the Board of Trustees there.

On leave from Wisconsin, Dr. Stoke has been chief of the war records section, division of administrative management, Bureau of the Budget, Washington, D. C. He started his New Hampshire position last month.

RESEARCH RE . . .

Mushrooms

In experimentation regarding the growing of mushrooms, B. B. Stoller of the botany department thinks he has found a way of growing them more cheaply than is done commercially now.

Working in an underground laboratory which is bricked in to maintain a moist cool atmosphere, Stoller is testing a fertilizer made by the Milwaukee Sewerage commission which he hopes will produce a crop yielding more than the usual yield. A yield of two or more pounds to a square foot of bed surface is considered good, as a rule.

Stoller has already patented a fertilizer in which mushrooms can be grown commercially.

In addition to his work with fertilizer, Stoller and John F. Stauffer, assistant professor of botany, are working to find a new variety of mushroom which will outyield known varieties and be equally good or better as far as flavor is concerned.

This experimentation is carried on by use of the ultra-violet ray. They subject the spores of the mushroom to the rays and certain weaker varieties are killed off with only the hardier specimens remaining. The ultra-violet rays bring chromosome changes within the spores themselves, so they not only obtain the hardier mushrooms from the spores, but also mushrooms of an entirely different appearance and behavior.

Stoller has been doing mushroom research for the past ten years and has been on leave from the L. F. Lambert Mushroom Co., Coatesville, Pa. for the past 16 months.

New Insecticide

Prof. Thomas C. Allen of the economic entomology department has recently developed an insecticide named "Sabadilla" which is expected to save hundreds of thousands of dollars in Wisconsin crops annually.

DR. HARRY M. KAY, PROF. MILES HANLEY, PROF. M. LESLIE HOLT and others were recently able to move into the University Club again after the soldiers in the army specialized training program were moved out. Some faculty members have lived at the University Club for almost ten years. * * *

L. K. Pollard, commanding officer of the Naval Training Schools at the university, has been appointed by the president to be captain.

Capt. Pollard has been senior navy officer here since Nov. 1942. He has seen 27 years of active duty in the navy, 12 of them spent in submarine duty.

Cheydleur Booklet

Leadership by the University of Wisconsin in the use of placement tests in foreign languages is explained in a booklet by Dr. Frederick Cheydleur published by the university.

The study summarizes the results of placement tests at Wisconsin from 1930 to 1943.

It states, "Whereas Wisconsin stood almost alone in a sound placement test plan 13 years ago, today there are 133 colleges and universities that have some form of testing program."

It is extremely effective in killing insects injurious to alfalfa, potatoes, beans, squash, and cranberries.

Sabadilla has been named after the tropical plant growing the seeds from which the insecticide is made.

Prof. Allen recently conferred with authorities in Washington over the possibility of increasing production of sabadilla to meet the demands caused by wartime shortages of insecticides. About 70 tons of sabadilla were made commercially this year.

Experimentation leading to the discovery began in 1938 with the Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation supporting it in part, and many university students aiding in the research. During the last three years work has been done jointly with the Texas agricultural experiment station concerning the two varieties of sabadilla plant which grow wild in Texas.

Prof. Allen is now working on a sabadilla spray to be used as a house fly exterminator.

Trees

Discovery by scientists at the university, the U. S. Department of Agriculture, and the Wisconsin Conservation department of a fungus disease which attacks oak trees was recently announced by A. J. Riker, university plant pathologist, at the National Shade Tree conference in Pittsburgh.

The isolation of the disease was accomplished by Riker, B. W. Henry, C. S. Moses, and C. Audrey Richards.

Chalara Quercina is the name of the fungus causing the disease. It appears to be the most important cause of disease attacking trees in the upper Mississippi Valley.

Red and black oaks are those most commonly attacked by the wilt disease, with white and burr oaks appearing relatively tolerant of it.

Only a few days lapse between the time the disease appears and the death of the tree. The leaves toward the top of the tree and toward the tips of the branches start to curl and then become brown and stiff. No control has yet been found for the disease.

BADGER BOOK SHELF

More Freshmen

An increase in the number of freshman at the university over the number attending the first semester of last year seemed apparent after freshman registration held late last month. Approximately 1800 students have begun their university courses as freshmen, as compared with approximately 1500 last year.

This class will graduate in 1948, the year of the university's centennial.

Among the freshman the ratio of women to men students is about four to one, whereas when the whole student body is included the ratio jumps to ten to one. Many freshman men are pre-draft age.

New M. D's.

Fifty-eight students were graduated from the university Medical school last month, 36 army students, 15 navy students, and 7 civilians.

Both army and navy men were sworn in as regular officers, but they will remain on inactive duty for a period of nine months during which they will complete their internships.

Comdr. L. K. Pollard presented the commissions to the navy students and administered the oath of allegiance to them. Lieut. Col. Franklin W. Clarke presented the commissions to the army graduates and Maj. Hugh W. Hudleson administered the oath to them.

More Engineers

Almost 700 students are enrolled in the current semester of the College of Engineering which continues until Nov. 1.

This number of students in engineering represents an increase of more than 15 per cent over the total enrolled in engineering during the last semester which ended late in June.

ASTR

More than 80 seventeen-year-old members of the Army Specialized Training Reserve are now attending the university for a twelve week course which they will complete before being called to active duty when they reach their 18th birthdays.

These students have been selected through the results of the nationwide Army-Navy examinations held earlier this year. They receive school work and several hours of military drill and physical training each week.

Approximately 40 pre-medical, 120 medical, and 20 WAC physical-therapy trainees now make up the remainder of the ASTP program which began here 15 months ago.

Aid to Veterans

September marked the second year of the university's Personnel Council, a central office established to meet the needs of veterans of World War II who are coming to the university.

The council consists of W. W. Blaesser, assistant dean of men, chairman, Dean Scott H. Goodnight, Prof. Lewis E. Drake, and Prof. E. E. Milligan.

Student Workers

The University Student Employment bureau which was originally set up to help find jobs for needy students seems to have suffered a change of purpose, thanks to the war.

This year the bureau has more occasion to find workers for jobs that need to be filled than jobs for workers.

Miss Marion Tormey, director of the bureau, explains that this year there are fewer students who want to work their way through college, while on the other hand, there are more requests for student workers from townspeople in need of help.

The urgent requests for women students to do housework in exchange for room and board persisted and has even increased this year, so university authorities found that such requests helped solve the housing problem created by the tremendous enrollment of women this year.

Women students from out of state had been urged not to come to Wisconsin because of the desperate shortage of women's rooms. However, those co-eds who chose to work for their rooms found rooms plentiful.

Fraternities

The recognized need for closer cooperation between fraternities and the university has brought about two recent proposals for post-war improvement in this university-fraternity relationship.

The first proposal came from the Student Life and Interests committee of the university and provided that fraternities be operated by the university's department of residence halls. It included the leasing of fraternity buildings, supplying janitor and maid service, appointing house fellows to regulate social life, and almost complete control of fraternity finances.

The second or counter-proposal was made by the interfraternity council and presented to the university committee as a compromise between the current system of practically free reign and the university's proposal for almost complete supervision. It provides for a joint faculty-fraternity committee as the executive agency and also for uniform accounting and social practices.

The university group participating in the discussion is headed by Llewellyn Pfanckuchen of the political science department. A five-man council representing the fraternities is headed by James McIntosh, Madison. A. W. Peterson, university comptroller, will have charge of reviewing fraternity finances. Dean Scott H. Goodnight is head of the Student Life and Interests committee which began the discussion.

Cooks' School

A new professional cooks' training school for present and prospective state employees has just been set-up on the campus in connection with the division of residence halls.

Each course will last six months and will consist of lectures and demonstrations combined with regular examinations. Mrs. Helen Giesell, formerly head dietician at the Wisconsin General Hospital, will be the chief instructor. She will be aided with the courses by D. I. Halverson. Chefs and dieticians in the various halls will assist, particularly with the supervised kitchen work.

Prof. Samuel Rogers

DON'T LOOK BEHIND YOU by Prof. Samuel Rogers, faculty.

In his first mystery novel, Rogers deals with a homicidal maniac at large in a college town. The hero is a young instructor, fiancé of Nurse's Aide Daphne Gray who thinks that she will be the next victim of the killer who has already murdered one young woman. The problem is to find the maniac, one of a small group of college people. Rogers has written several other novels before this, having won the Atlantic Monthly Prize with his DUSK AT THE GROVE. He is a member of the French faculty.

GREAT INTERVIEWS OF JESUS by Dr. Clarence E. Macartney, '01.

Based on the fact that the great lessons that Jesus taught grew out of conversations with individuals, many of them chance meetings, this book includes one chapter on each of 15 different interviews, written with a dramatic approach. Dr. Macartney is now pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Pittsburgh. He has written a number of books on historical and religious subjects.

FOOD ENOUGH, by John D. Black, '09

In this complete analysis of the food problem in this country and elsewhere in the world, now and after the war, Black has reassured us that the situation is not as difficult as many of us believe it is, and that no physical reason exists why the problem cannot be completely solved. Prof. Black teaches agricultural economics at Harvard and basis his book on his experience as a farmer, a food consultant, and an economist.

In Our Guest Book

Badgers who come to visit us on the third floor of the Memorial Union now are invited to sign our guest book. If you come to Madison we hope you'll stop in and add your autograph.

Recent visitors include Maj. Howard D. Henry, '42, Russell F. Jorgensen, '40, Lieut. Frederick E. Viken, USNR, '39, and Ens. Gerald A. Bartell, '37.

Maj. Henry returned after two years overseas having been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal with seven oak leaf clusters. He participated in bombing missions during the North African campaign and the Italian campaign, was returned to England, and served in India before coming to the states on leave.

Jorgensen is now attending the Pacific School of Religion in Berkeley, California to prepare for European relief work after the war.

Lieut. Viken has been serving on a cruiser in the Pacific Fleet, most recently with Task Force 58 in the Battle of the Eastern Philippines. He returned from Saipan after being at sea for over 26 months and after participating in 21 operations, including those at New Guinea, Marcus, Wake, Tarawa, Kwajalein, Guam, and Saipan. His original cruiser was torpedoed at Guadalcanal, and this leave is his first since a brief survivor's leave then.

Ensign Bartell has been in the Caribbean Theater for the past six months, having moved six times while there though his post office remained the same.

War Souvenirs

Fighting Badgers scattered all over the world have been sending souvenirs of their stations to John Berge, secretary of the Alumni Association. Mementoes decorating his office range from pieces of currency to a Japanese gas-mask; from enemy propaganda to enemy library books.

On his desk is a piece of Japanese parachute silk. On his wall hangs a south Pacific native's grass skirt. On his file rests a gas mask taken from the Japanese at New Guinea. And on the cabinet just outside his door are some forty German books, taken from a camp which the Germans had been forced to evacuate very quickly, in France.

ALUMNI . . .

Where are you now? Have you moved? Since the post office does not take care of forwarding magazines, if you want to get your magazine after you've moved, the only way to do it is to send us your new address. Will you do that? Thanks!

Perhaps the money is of most interest. From North Africa is a Moroccan piece and another from Algiers. Then from Italy is a bill of Allied invasion money, used when our forces first took over. One serviceman sent a Russian piece.

There are a number of Chinese bills, each labeled a rather high sum, but according to the sender, actually worth very little because of the soaring costs of present day Chinese inflation.

One bill is real Japanese money, but there are several pieces of money which the Japs made to use after they had successfully invaded American and British possessions. The first is an invasion bill for use in Dutch New Guinea; the second for use in Australia.

A most unique bill was sent from France. It looked like a regular American dollar, but on closer inspection it was revealed to be a piece of German propaganda. The dollar split in two and when opened up displayed an elaborate piece of racial propaganda printed in French, apparently to be read by loyal Frenchmen so they might be persuaded to stay with the Germans rather than assist the Allies.

The German books are thought to be part of a traveling library which circulated from camp to camp when the Nazi army was in France. Its subjects were varied: several novels, several joke-books (contents of ancient lineage), several books of German history (including the story of Nazism), and several out and out Nazi books written either of or by Hitler, Goering, and Goebbels.

On Wisconsin

It is not uncommon for a Wisconsin student to run onto the slogan "On Wisconsin" during the course of his normal days work, but it might seem a bit uncommon if that Wisconsin person were sent thousands of miles from home and he still happened to run onto "On Wisconsin."

Recently three Fighting Badgers wrote back of their experiences along these lines: Lt. (j.g.) Allen Walz, '34, from a Normandy beachhead; Lt. (j.g.) Ed Frazer, '37, from a Russian port; and Lt. August J. Richter, '42, from an Italian camp.

Walz, former crew coach, wrote of his experience on D-Day as he watched the progress of the invasion from the deck of his ship, saying "I spotted an American tank working its way up the beach with a great big 'On Wisconsin' painted on its side. I tried to follow its progress through the glasses, but became a bit preoccupied with the safety of my own ship and lost her in the smoke and confusion along the shore."

The WISCONSIN ALUMNUS is published monthly, October through July, by the Wisconsin Alumni Association and is entered as second class matter at the post office at Madison, Wis., under the act of March 3, 1879. Subscription to the ALUMNUS (included in the membership dues of the Wisconsin Alumni Association) is $2. a year; subscription to non-members is $4. a year.

When Lt. Frazer read this in his Cardinal Communique, he was reminded of his last trip to Murmansk, USSR, as a Liberty Ship Gunnery Officer. He wrote. "It was among the Russians that the same song 'On Wisconsin' received such a burst of popularity (after careful drilling), that it led the Murmansk Hit Parade for a time."

Just last month Lt. Richter was passing through a small Italian village when he noticed a small boy, about six years old, on the corner. He writes, "On the back of his tattered jacket he wore a University of Wisconsin banner—the same kind we used to wave on Homecoming day."

Speaking of banners, Lt. Gerry Bong wrote from France, "Haven't seen a brother Badger over here yet, but I did see a big Wisconsin pennant hanging over somebody's pup tent the other day."

Whether all this be coincidence, good advertising, or further display of an old loyalty, nevertheless it shows that "On Wisconsin" as a slogan is being lived up to.

CLUBS

Chicago

The University of Wisconsin Club of Chicago held its annual football luncheon Friday noon, September 29 at the Bismarck Hotel.

Guests of honor and speakers were Guy Sundt, John Berge, and "Roundy" Coughlin. Sundt gave an account of the football squad this year and its prospects for the fall season. Berge presented some of the letters which Fighting Badgers have sent him. "Roundy", the well known Wisconsin State Journal sports columnist, gave a talk characterized by his free-flowing style and his home-grown philosophy.

George Struck has recently been made chairman of the club's new Service men committee which is arranging for free membership privileges for any eligible service men in Chicago. The committee would appreciate receiving names of such service men. Names should be sent to Struck, % Blyth & Co., 135 S. LaSalle.

Milwaukee Alumnae

The women's group of the Wisconsin Alumni Club of Milwaukee held a luncheon meeting Sept. 9 which marked the beginning of its third year of organized activity.

Officers of the group are Helen A. Polcyn, president; Charlotte Griesmer, vice president; Mrs. James Voss, membership; Mary Catherine McGeever, publicity; and Mrs. Russell Boothroyd, reservations.

Plans for the year include an October bridge party and a November tea for new alumnae. The group has been invited to attend the Wednesday football luncheons which heretofore have been only for men. They will also attend some plays.

83 YEARS OF SERVICE

September first marked the beginning of the Association's 83rd fiscal year. Organized in the hectic Civil War days of 1861, the Wisconsin Alumni Association has weathered wars and depressions to carry out the objective expressed by its founders: To promote, by organized effort the best interests of the University of Wisconsin.

Big jobs are ahead as the Association starts its 83rd fiscal year; jobs that need the support of all full-time Badgers. Here are some of them:

1. Back Up Our Fighting Badgers

These Fighting Badgers are fighting our battles for us—and doing a grand job. Like all service men, they are hungry for mail and news from "back home". It's our job to supply this news, just as we have done ever since the dark days of Pearl Harbor. We can't quit now, even though final victory seems near. These Fighting Badgers are counting on us to stick with them as they go down the home stretch. The longer they are away from home, the more mail means to them.

2. Support the University's Building Program

Twelve of the important buildings on the Campus will never see their fiftieth birthday again. Another old landmark, the gymnasium, is fifty years old this year. Three campus buildings—North Hall, South Hall and center section of Bascom Hall—were built before the Civil War. The average age of these buildings is 67 years. All have outlived their usefulness; all are obsolete.

Facts like these emphasize the urgency of the University's building program. New buildings must be provided as rapidly as possible. Until this is done these obsolete buildings will continue to hamper Wisconsin's educational program. This building program deserves the support of every local Badger. The regents can't do this job alone. They need your help. For more details on these building needs, see pages 3 and 4 in this issue.

3. War Records

Wisconsin's contributions in World War II are many and significant. More than 10,000 students and alumni are in the armed forces. Faculty members are serving in Uncle Sam's armed forces and on the home front. A vast fund of facts regarding these war-time services has been compiled by the Alumni Records Office. More facts must be collected and compiled so that these War records will adequately reflect Wisconsin's contribution in winning the war. If you have information about any of these Fighting Badgers that should be included in these war records, send it to us.

4. University Centennial

On February 5, 1949, the University will be one hundred years old. Plans for adequately celebrating this birthday are being formulated by a Centennial Committee authorized by the Board of Regents. Two Association officials are members of this committee. Between now and February 5, 1949, we must make sure that our University is adequately financed and equipped to start its second century of service to the people of Wisconsin.

5. Stronger Class Organizations

Some classes at Wisconsin are effectively organized and do a good job in promoting the best interests of the University. Others, unfortunately, are so poorly organized that they are totally unable to put forth any organized effort on behalf of the University. As rapidly as possible, these weaker classes must be reorganized with adequate class machinery to do a good job for the University.

6. Alumni Club Assembly

Many alumni clubs have been disorganized by the war. Several clubs lost most of their officers to the armed forces or other war-time activities. Some of these clubs have been re-organized and are now carrying on their regular activities. To accelerate this rebuilding process and to increase the effectiveness of all alumni club activities, the Association has sponsored the Wisconsin Alumni Club Assembly. This new organization includes all alumni club presidents. It will formulate and develop policies for strengthening our alumni club machinery so that these alumni groups may work more effectively with the Wisconsin Alumni Association as the strong right arm of the University.

7. Association Services

Until the war is over, some Association services must remain in their present status. Some must still be curtailed, just as they have been since Pearl Harbor. As we approach the end of the war, some services must be expanded and new ones developed. Placement activities, for example, have been abandoned during the last three years; the manpower shortage made this service unnecessary. One of these days this service will be reestablished with new features and activities.

Although incomplete, this list of activities indicates clearly the magnitude of the Association's job for the current fiscal year. It's a real job—big enough to give every full-time Badger something to do in making 1944-45 another year of progress.—JOHN BERGE

JULIUS OLSON SCHOLARSHIP-LOAN FUND

*TO HONOR THE Prof. of Scandinavian
Benefactor of Students
Commencement Manager
Orientation Promoter
Friend to All*

JULIUS OLSON'S splendid work in helping needy Badgers during his 51 years of service as a member of the faculty will be continued in the scholarship-loan fund now being set up in his honor. Prof. Olson, a member of the Scandinavian department, died last March.

Long a favorite among students and faculty, "Uncle Julius" earned respect by his activities which ranged beyond the scope of his own department and helped all students and many all-university functions.

Perhaps paramount among these activities was his fostering of the scholarship-loan program on the campus. With the interest of each individual student at heart, Olson did everything to encourage the granting of scholarships and the collecting of loans available to students.

Living Memorial

Now he is to become the benefactor of even more generations of needy students through the living memorial being erected in his honor. It was felt that the best way to honor him was to continue his works by creating a scholarship-loan fund in his name.

The collection of funds will be handled by a special committee headed by Oscar Christianson, '21, Madison attorney, and consisting of representatives in those cities throughout the country where Wisconsin alumni are located.

A steering committee of Prof. Paul Knaplund, history department, Prof. Einar Hougen, Scandinavian department, and Christianson will handle the local arrangements. After the $10,000 goal has been reached the funds will be turned over to the university committee on undergraduate loans and scholarships.

Tax Deductible

Contributions to the fund may be sent to the Wisconsin Alumni Association. Checks should be made out to the Julius Olson Scholarship-Loan fund and may be included in income tax deductions.

Most alumni are familiar with the phrase "It never rains on Julius", for Prof. Olson developed a reputation for encountering clear weather back in the days when commencement was held out of doors and he was chairman of the arrangements. He organized the committee of public functions at the university. Olson was also an early advocate and promoter of the period of student orientation which now introduces all new students to the university life.

For many years students gathered at Olson's home on Syttende Mai, the Norwegian national day of independence, to sing Scandinavian songs he had taught them in the classroom. On his 80th birthday anniversary the university Norse club held a torchlight parade and the Grieg male chorus gave a special concert in his honor.

Olson was decorated with the order of St. Olaf by King Haakon of Norway and was a member of the State Historical society, the Madison Literary society, the Norwegian American Historical society, and the society for the Advancement of Scandinavian Studies.

A Fighting Badger Says . . .

"I am gratified to hear of the large bequests the university has received. I hope I shall be able to make even a small contribution, for I'll never forget the struggle I had, and how I relied on good old Julius Olson to pull me through at times."—Sgt. Jean F. Rose.
