GREAT MIND IS NECESSARY FOR GREAT REALITIES

So Believes Margaret Banning,
Speaker at Second Annual Matrix Banquet

By IDABEL SINE
"I have found throughout my experience that I have nothing to say about the big events of my life, nothing to say about the tremendous things with which I have come in contact, for I believe that it takes a great mind to pull realities out of great things."

"My laboratory at the present time is a comparatively small city with which I am thoroughly acquainted. I can write in this atmosphere because I understand the things which I am writing," said Mrs. Margaret Caulkin Banning in her talk given at the second annual banquet of Theta Sigma Phi, held at the Loraine hotel last evening.

Present Age is Great

"This is a great age in which we are living," continued Mrs. Banning, "and we have not yet reached the zenith. There is little scathing criticism nowadays and little that is hypocritical."

"It is an age in which a book such as "Revelry" can be written, published, and cause no excitement, for the American public is willing to have the writers of the day say anything they choose. The amount of production, as well as the variety of subjects is also peculiar to our own day. Each one of us has his own interests and each one can find a book or a story which satisfies his requirements."

Curiosity Prevalent

"A great curiosity to find out the realities of things, is more prevalent now than ever before. The proof of this statement is to be found in the number of non-fiction books which are being written. Authors are beginning to write about the thing of which they know best, realizing that fiction is not the only 'Best seller.'

"My advice to young people who wish to write is that they write often, and write on subjects with which they are familiar. In the words of Rene de Gourmy 'write all of the time, and miss no human experience.'

Welcome Given

Welcome was given the guests of the evening by Winifred Wise '27, president of Theta Sigma Phi, Mrs. W. G. Bleyer acted as toastmistress. Other speakers were Miss Leila Bascom, Mrs. T. E. Baillie, Alice Brown '27, and Prof. Willard G. Bleyer.

MANY WILL HEAR FRITZ KREISLER

Union Board Members Advise
Students to Get Seats
Early

"Fritz Kreisler is being brought to Madison for only one reason—because he is the greatest living violinist," members of Union Board said in a statement issued yesterday.

"Because of the greatness of Kreisler," the statement continues, "We want to make it possible for every student to hear him in the course of his university career."

Everyone should obtain seats for the concert early, according to Lowell Frautschi '27, president of Union Board. "Because of the popularity of the artist," he said, "There will be a great demand for seats. Since the concerts are planned primarily for students, I hope they will act immediately and get the best possible seats."

Tickets are now on sale at Hook Brothers music store.

Day By Day With The News

By C. O. S.

President Coolidge has vetoed the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill in the face of political reprisals. He refused to affix his signature knowing that the farmers of the Middle West will now throw their support to Lowden for president. The president in his veto message stated that he believed the bill is unconstitutional (perhaps a sincere belief and perhaps a clever way to escape condemnation). Political observers have always maintained that a veto would crush Coolidge's aspirations politically and the view may, therefore, be logically taken that the president does not intend to run for another term.

The rumblings of war in China have grown into mighty thunder as the storm is about to break at Shanghai. Cantonese troops are ready to hurl their forces upon its defenses. American marines have arrived after a hurried trip across the Pacific.

By a 208 to 172 vote, the house of representatives has passed the bill providing for three new cruisers. Rejection of the president's proposal by France and Italy for a five-power conference on naval armaments had the expected effect. When reservations to entry in the World Court were rejected this country immediately crawled back in its shell of isolation and when the disarmament scheme is rejected we build more cruisers.

Senator Borah and President Coolidge look sideways at each other these days. The Idaho senator who is chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, doesn't like the goings-on in Nicaragua. He intends to take a sight-seeing tour down through Mexico and Nicaragua this summer in order to secure first-hand information of the situation.

La Follette Jr. Against Third Term

Wisconsin's junior senator has asked congress to go on record as opposing third terms for United States presidents. Without mentioning Coolidge specifically, the bill is certainly aimed directly at his possible third-term candidacy. The resolution declares that the precedent of two terms has become by "universal concurrence, part of our Republican system of government... any departure from the time-honored custom would be unwise, unpatriotic, and fraught with peril to our free institutions."

A Few Facts On Nicaragua

"Little Nicaragua, 600,000 people, trying to maintain its duly elected president," Senator Borah exclaimed when he heard of the Great Britain move to send a warship there.

Here are some facts taken from The World Almanac concerning "Little Nicaragua":

Area, 42,900 square miles; population, 638,119; size, slightly larger than New York state; railroads, one with 51 per cent of stock owned by New York bankers; resources, valuable forests, some gold, bananas, sugar cane, live stock, agricultural products; exports, coffee, sugar, bananas, timber, hides.

Cornell Crew On the Water

A month earlier than ever before in Cornell's rowing history, Coach Jim Wray has sent the crew skimming over the waters of Cayuga lake inlet, after the oarsmen had cleared the ice from the channel. We are sure that Wisconsin's honored Dad Vail cast longing glances over lake Mendota when balmy breezes began to blow last week; but in vain. Mendota's ice is thick.

Pottawatomies Get $6,839

The Committee on Indian Affairs has approved an appropriation of $6,839 for the Pottawatomie Indians of Wisconsin, the unexpected balance of the amount due them under the Treaty of 1833. All of which reminds us, that the Indian is still with us today, though we may take little interest in him.

MEN'S GLEE CLUB PLEASSES LARGE Beloit Audience

"Bells of St. Mary's" Receives Ovation; Solo Numbers Are Offered

BELOIT, Wis., (Special to the Daily Cardinal)—The strains of "On Wisconsin" echoed with accompanying applause through the First Congregational church of Beloit last evening where the Men's Glee club sang its first formal concert before a large and appreciative audience.

With the same control and vigor of the clubs of previous years, the 33 men sang through the varied program numbers, interpreting them in a manner which showed plainly why the Wisconsin singers have three times been acclaimed the champion university choral group of the Middle West.

"Bells of St. Mary's" Popular

"The Bells of St. Mary's," that most popular of choral club songs, received an ovation last evening very similar to that response the White House audience offered at the completion of that same number sung in the concert given before President and Mrs. Coolidge last spring.

Dan E. Vornholt grad, a tenor in the club for three years, sang three solo numbers as the second group on the program: "Sombre Woods," "The Nightingale Has a Lyre of Gold," and "Poor Man's Garden," with a clarity and tone excellence which held the audience.

Jones Gives Solo Number

One other solo number on the program was given by Paul Jones '27, accompanist, who played two select classical pieces on the piano; "Liebestraum," and "Waltz in E."

That unity of control and oneness of vocal effect so prominent in the glee clubs trained by Prof. E. Earl Swinney in the past was again the outstanding quality of the concert group in its ensemble numbers of last evening.

Home Concert in March

Immediately following the concert the club left by motorbus for Madison.

Practically the same program will be sung by the Glee club in its annual home concerts to be given in Music hall March 11 and 12. Seats can be reserved at Hook Brothers, Brown's Book Store, the University Pharmacy, or at the Glee club business office.

Dirgelike Procession on Campus Issues Grid Banquet Invitations

"What's it all about?"

"What's coming off here anyhow?" were remarks heard among the crowd of several hundred students who lined the walks of the hill as a cortege of funereal mien and aspect slowly marched down Lincoln Terrace at the close of classes at noon Friday.

Seven figures, all clothed somewhat as those severe characters who made up a first class inquisition must have been arrayed, constituted the group.

All wore long black robes and cowls, and black masks covered each face as the solemn procession slowly moved along keeping step to the notes of the "Song of the Vooga Boatman," played in slow dirge-like cadence, by a pair of mourning clarinets.

Even the great figures of the campus were as greatly mystified by the odd procession as the students who lined the walks and wondered what it was all about. Dean

Wisconsin Grad is Planner of Great Railroad Tunnel

Clifford A. Betts, who in 1913 graduated from the university with the degree of civil engineer, is the man whose calculations have made possible the Moffet tunnel, the longest railroad tunnel in America.

The intricate mathematical and engineering solutions which had to be completed before the drills could start piercing the Moffet tunnel through the heart of the Rocky mountains between Denver, Colo., and Salt Lake City, Utah, were all the work of Betts.

In his capacity as office engineer, Betts was faced with the task of triangulating the continental divide and of estimating the distance the bore would have to be driven through the granite of James peak. If Betts had erred in his calculating, the two heads of the tunnel which were being drilled from opposite faces of the peak would not have met.

The subsidiary water tunnel was holed through last week, and Betts' calculations were vindicated. The grade is equal, the distances vary only about a foot, and the line of the tunnel is equal almost to the inch.

In the preliminary field work which preceded the boring of the tunnel, Betts and his staff were hindered by unfavorable weather and atmospheric conditions peculiar

Dormitory Paper Renews Publication Under New Staff

"The Triad," established last semester as a weekly newspaper for the residents of the men's dormitories, made its appearance Thursday under the direction of a new staff. The paper, which was abandoned after three issues, will now be published regularly each week for the rest of the school year.

The dormitory senate, governing body of the halls, has selected a committee headed by Allan Colburn grad, to appoint a staff to carry on the work of the newspaper. Selection of workers for both business and editorial staffs will be made this weekend, and the new men will publish their first issue next Thursday.

The paper at present consists of four pages, three columns in width. It is the plan of the publications committee to increase the size of the periodical in the near future, making it a six page paper.

Practical Talk on Religion is Given Before 1,200
Students

BY LAURENCE C. EKLUND

A convincing picture of a realistic God—a God who is within the comprehension of all—was painted with vigorous strokes by Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin at the opening meeting of the All-University Religious convocation in the gymnasium yesterday.

That realistic God, Dr. Coffin told an attentive audience of 1250 students and townspeople, is love—an abiding love that has been developed by an appreciation based on long and intimate contact. The speaker pointed out in detail how that contact could be attained.

No Evangelistic Festival

This is no evangelistic festival that the student body of the university is putting on. There is no petty sectarianism, no whoop-it-up methods of saving souls for God, no shirt-sleeved oratory of the Billy Sunday type, and no lusty huzzas voiced for any denomination, for this convocation, as Co-chairman James M. Nelson said in his introductory speech, is not sponsored for the propagandizing of any particular sect.

Rather, here is practical talk on religion, given straight from the shoulder by the president of Union Theological Seminary of New York—a man of vigorous and forceful speech, dignity of bearing, and eyes which seem to peer into the future, ever searching for the truth.

Frank Introduces Speaker

President Glenn Frank, in introducing the speaker, reminded the conference that the most baffling problem of religion was to keep the state and church apart and at the same time bring science and religion together. On that problem Dr. Coffin devoted much of his talk.

Dr. Coffin's address was a strong argument for theism—not the mys-

PEOPLE OF GENIUS MAKE BEST MATES

Fails to Reach Possible
Heights

"Genius should marry genius in
"Genius should marry genius in said Dr. Jon Alfred Mjoen, famous Norwegian criminologist, who spoke last night at Bascom hall, on "Genius as a Biological Problem."

Instead, he said, the race is failing to reach the heights to which it might attain because gifted persons are mated with others of inferior ability.

Dr. Mjoen illustrated his address with numerous lantern slides showing how strains of genius were carried down through families of talents to crop up unexpectedly far distant from the original source.

Human beings, according to Dr. Mjoen, are far too careless in their mating. Strains of criminality and insanity, he warned, are an ever-present menace, threatening to crop out again after several generations of normal offspring.

"Never have I known of a talented musician who was born of parents both of whom were not musical," said Dr. Mjoen. "Where one parent is talented and the other is not, some of the children are likely to have the talent while the others

DIRECTOR TELLS OF HEALTH WORK

Miss Trilling Outlines Needs of Modern Woman in Dallas Talk

To make physical education for women beneficial, it must be developed with special attention to the needs and limitations of women, according to Mrs. Blanche M. Trilling, director of physical education for women, in a speech before the National Association of Deans of Women at Dallas, Texas, yesterday.

"The change in the position of women, their entrance into the economics field, and the added responsibilities which they have taken in addition to those they already carried in the home, make it particularly essential that we give every woman the opportunity to reach the best physical development of which she, as an individual, is capable," said Miss Trilling.

Miss Trilling advised those planning athletic programs for girls to remember that "all athletics should be developed from the point of view of the girl's special needs and conditions and should not be copies of standards and programs developed originally for men."

"The girl who is below normal physically must be considered as seriously as the one who is a star athlete. School programs should be enriched by offering a variety of sports that will be suited to individual tastes and physical needs. No girl should be allowed to indulge in games which tax her strength and which may cause permanent injury."

The need for medical examination in the women's physical education curriculum was emphasized by Miss Trilling, as well as the need for stressing the recreational side of all athletics, the undesirability of sensational publicity and the evils of commercialization of nervous strain to the adolescent girl who is permitted unlimited competition before large audiences.

SELECT EIGHT WOMEN AS SCHOOL DEBATERS

At the final tryouts for the Women's Intercollegiate debate teams held on Thursday afternoon in 165 Bascom hall, the following were selected as members and alternates: Cecil Cohen '28, Esther Johnson '28, Marcella Eierman '28, Norma Gaulke '28, Matilda Geil '28, Esther Lerner '28, Ruth Port '27, and Aline Ziebell '27. The question debated was, "Resolved that all military drill and instruction in the state universities of the United States should be discontinued." Judges were Prof. A. T. Weaver and Miss Margaret McCarthy of the Speech department.

GENIUS SHOULD MARRY GENIUS, SAYS DR. MJOEN

"It is not alone sufficient that the mother be talented. If she is not married to a talented man, her talents may be wasted or greatly disipated."

Dr. Mjoen, who speaks with a deep, rolling voice, and in an eloquently expressive manner, won the hearts of his audience when he apologized for his unfamiliarity with "your beautiful English tongue."

He praised American men of science and expressed the hope that for the sake of the country and humanity, their mariages would be the kind that would increase their talents in generations to come.

Dr. Mjoen is on his first tour of the United States, and is speaking chiefly before college and university students.

SWIM MEET
AT INDIANA

Wisconsin athletes are spread far and wide today, awaiting the call to action of a more or less strenuous nature.

The cream of the track team is already testing out Urbana at Bloomington fighting for championship honors, and the track team at Illinois trying for the same honor, Wisconsin's rejuvenated wrestling team will fight to avenge a sound trimming given them last year at Minneapolis, when they will lock grips with the chesty Minnesotans at 7:30 p. m. in the armory.

With the basketball team at Bloomington fighting for championship honors, and the track team at Illinois trying for the same honor, Wisconsin's rejuvenated wrestling team will fight to avenge a sound trimming given them last year at Minneapolis, when they will lock grips with the chesty Minnesotans at 7:30 p. m. in the armory.

Coach George Hitchcock has finally gotten together a combination of mat artists who will be in the pink of condition, if nothing else, but he is not too optimistic about tonight's encounter.

Veteran Team

The Northmen are coming here with the same team that sent the Cardinals reeling back to Madison last year, and are hopeful of duplicating the feat, because the men are more experienced and stronger than they were last year. Although the Gophers, white-washed Chicago in their dual meet some time ago at Minneapolis, winning 22 to 0, they are not over-confident and will go into the meet as cautiously as they did against Illinois and Iowa to whom they lost by almost the same scores as the Badgers did.

No matter what the outcome of the meet will be, nevertheless, the fans will be treated to one of the most exciting wrestling meets of the year, as both teams are not only

Coach George Hitchcock

And those gymnasts. Those gymnasts are right down at Chicago ready to show the Maroon muscle-control experts what real perfection on the rings and bars is. The Maroons are pretty good themselves, and whichever squad wins today will probably have the inside track on the conference championship.

Coming closer home, the swimming squad combines business with pleasure in the gymnasium tank this afternoon, engaging the Purdue paddlers in a friendly little dual meet. Leichtl, erstwhile Boilermaker football player, is one of the strongest members of the visiting squad.

And tonight, the rejuvenated Badger wrestling squad makes its first public bow since trimming Chicago, this time against a worthy set of grapplers from Minnesota. If Wisconsin wins this meet against the Northmen, it will mean almost a successful season in spite of the deluge of hard luck which has been general wrestling fare this year.

We'd like to close without mentioning Wisconsin at Indiana tonight, and perhaps it would be just as well so. But nein, ignorance is bliss. Indiana has not played two games of basketball alike this season, all of which simplifies very much the problem of doping out how Indiana will play—we're sure it'll be something different. Nevertheless and notwithstanding, the Hoosiers haven't been the same since their handsome Mr. Winston cracked his backguard job for a diploma. In only one game, that against Michigan, have they revealed the form that carried them to the top of the pile. Wherefore, one might say, "Indiana has gone to the puppies—she will be easily defeated."

The fact remains that the five men who out-passed, out-shot, and out-played Michigan will be just as near to the playing floor as the five who fizzled, fumbled and got beat by Ohio State. And on the Wisconsin side it will be the same team that hit bottom against Ohio State one night and scaled the heights three days later to defeat Iowa. There is the conglomerate chop-suey from which dope is made.

Badger Cagers, Trackmen in Hard Contests Today

Cinder Athletes Hold High Hopes of Taking Place in Illinois Relays

Wisconsin will be represented in the Illinois relays at Urbana today by one relay team and one candidate for the individual championships. The mile relay quartet composed of Dougan, Stowe, Smith, Erickson and Chamberlain, together with Capt. "Chuck" McGinnis, who will enter the all-around events, left yesterday to take part in the relays.

At the last minute, Coach T. E. Jones decided against taking the four-mile relay team and left the distance men at home. Of all the relay events, the mile is probably the only one in which Wisconsin has a chance to make a good showing, and it is expected that the Badgers will finish within the first three places.

Iowa Mile Team Strong
The great University of Iowa mile team will furnish the keenest sort of competition for the Badgers. Iowa won this relay event four years in succession starting in 1921, and is back this year with a team that promises to uphold her record.

The big interest is in the showing that McGinnis is expected to make in the all-around event, which attracts the cream of the college stars throughout the land. This consists of seven events, the 75-yard dash, 75-yard high hurdles, shot put, running high jump, pole vault, running broad jump, and half-mile run.

Has Good Chance
Points are scored on a basis of 100 for the man who equals or betters the Big Ten indoor records in these events, and a smaller margin according to the ability they show in approaching the marks established as perfect performances.

Among the competitors whom McGinnis will have to face in this event are Doherty, Detroit College; Sturridge and Christie, De Pauw; Shearer, Drake; Simon, Illinois; Lancaster, Missouri; Marow, Nebraska; Mulcahey, New Mexico; and Samuels, Westminster.

"Choppy" Rhodes, Nebraska, won this event last year with a total of 5,357 points and Doherty, Detroit College, was second with 5,278 markers. Conservative estimates give McGinnis 5,400 points or better in this event which should win.

Miller played a fighting game against Iowa and Coach Meanwell was very impressed with his work. His shooting against the Hawks about evenly matched, but they will also battle for the right to fight it out for third place. The winning team will wrestle a team from the eastern division they have never fought before in order to stay in the first division.

Hot Lightweight Match
Not unlike the furious struggle between the teams as a whole, will be the match in the lightweight class between Easter, Minnesota, conference champion, and Smith, the Cardinal entry. The Gopher man has yet to lose a match this year while the Badger has yet to lose a match to a conference opponent. Both of these men are similarly built, high chested, broad shouldered, and small waisted. Easter is favored to win this bout because of his experience and nothing else. However, the Cardinal man is in tip-top condition and will give the conference champ a battle.

Beside this bout there will be a thriller when Meyers meets Peterson in the 145-pound division and Capt. Fortney stacks up against Gibson, ePeterson, who defeated Capt. "Pinky" Zodtner last year after two overtime periods of wrestling, is one of the best men in the conference and ought to get the best of Meyers who is wrestling his first year for the Badgers and is green at the mat game as yet. However, Peterson will have to step some to gain the advantage, otherwise he might suffer the same fate that befell Gunlock of Illinois when the Badger caught him off his guard.

SPANISH LIFE IS SUBJECT OF TALK

Mrs. A. G. Solalinde Discusses Conditions in Spain at Woman's Club

"In Spain, when a woman becomes a wife and a mother, she becomes the head of the house in regard to the servants and the children," said Mrs. A. G. Solalinde, wife of Prof. A. G. Solalinde of the Spanish department, in a talk on "Spanish Home Life" yesterday afternoon at the Woman's club.

"However," she continued, "as soon as her first child is born, she stops going anywhere with her husband. Although he goes out not only with men, but also with women, she can do nothing to stop it, for in Spain a woman fears divorce more than death."

Mrs. Solalinde then told how the women in her native country, in spite of the fact that they can not vote themselves, are able to sway the vote through the influence which they have over their husbands. She also said that contrary to the general opinion, the women do not wear mantillas.

it is expected that they put forth their best efforts to defeat the Badgers tonight and thus regain some of their lost prestige.

VICTORY NECESSITY

With the realization that a victory is a necessity tonight, Wisconsin can be depended upon to do everything possible to attain a victory. The Badger coach will probably start the same five that opposed the Hawkeyes last Tuesday night with Miller at center in place of Tenhopen. Tenhopen is physically unfit to take part in the contest tonight and he was left at home. Miller will be inserted at the center position in his place after "Hank" Kowalczyk jumps on the tip-offs.

SWIMMERS BEAT ILLINOIS, MEET PURDUE TODAY

Tank Team, Home From 42-27
Victory at Urbana, Ready for Boilermakers

URBANA, Ill., Feb. 25 — The Wisconsin swimmers defeated Illinois in a dual meet here last night by the decisive score of 42-27.

The Badgers left immediately after the meet for Madison where they will engage Purdue in a second dual meet at 2:30 this afternoon.

ILLINI OUTCLASSED

Though the Illini were outclassed they pushed the winners in every event and several tank records were smashed. The Wisconsin relay team came within 3-10 of a second of tying the conference record for the event.

Capt. Dick Ratcliffe met his master in the dives when Groh, Illinois placed first. Ratcliffe, however, took second, and also won a first in the 150 yard back stroke.

Winston Kratz and Clarence Herschberger, breast stroker and sprinter respectively, won their events with ease, while Vinson and Clark founded out the Badger performance.

SUMMARY:

Relay—Wisconsin first, time 1.43 1-5.

200-yard breast—first, Kratz of Wisconsin; second, Blankley (I); third, Honer (I); time 2.49 2-5.

To Hold 1928 Ice Regatta At Oshkosh

MENOMINEE, Mich. — (P) — It was decided at a business meeting of the members of the Northwestern Ice Yachting association here last night that the 1928 regatta would be held at Oshkosh, Wis. Ralph Wells of Menominee, was elected president of the association, and "Cully" Rahr, of Oshkosh, was elected vice-president, and the office of secretary-treasurer was given to Chris Meyer of Pewaukee.

STRONG OFFENSE

With Miller on the offense will be the two Badger star forwards—Behr and Andrews. These two have played satisfactory basketball in every game they have participated in this season with the possible exception of the Ohio game and Badger fans are depending on them to give their best efforts in this crucial game tonight.

At the guard posts will be trusty "Rollie" Barnum and Kowalczyk, the sophomore sensation. It will rest upon these two to stop the Indiana sharpshooters—Beckner, Sibily and Kreuger. Wisconsin is plainly afraid of these three whirwind offensive stars and it is known that a defense has been built to stop them if possible.

All in all, the game tonight ought to be one of the hardest fought games on the Badger schedule this season. With the loss of first place at stake, the Cardinal cagers are expected to give one of the greatest fights in their history while Indiana with hopes of redeeming themselves for the Ohio upset are expected to play one of their best games.

Today's Prayer

O Lord, since first the blood of Abel cried to Thee from the ground that drank it, this earth of Thine has been defiled with the blood of man shed by his brother's hand, and the centuries sob with the ceaseless horror of war. Ever the pride of kings and the covetousness of the strong have driven peaceful nations to slaughter. Ever the songs of the past and the pomp of armies have been used to inflame the passions of the people. Our spirit cries out to Thee in revolt against it, and we know that our righteous anger is answered by Thy holy wrath.

Break Thou the spell of the enchantments that make the nations drunk with the lust of battle and draw them on as willing tools of death. Grant us a quiet and steadfast mind when our own nation clamors for vengeance or aggression. Strengthen our sense of justice and our regard for the equal worth of other peoples and races. Grant to the rulers of nations faith in the possibility of peace through justice, and grant to the common people a new and stern enthusiasm for the cause of peace. Bless our soldiers and sailors for their swift obedience and their willingness to answer to the call of duty, but inspire them none the less with a hatred of war, and may they never for love of private glory or advancement provoke its coming. May our young men still rejoice to die for their country with the valor of their fathers, but teach our age nobler methods of matching their strength and more effective ways of giving our life for the flag.

O Thou strong Father of all nations, draw all Thy great family together with an increasing sense of our common blood and destiny, that peace may come on earth at last, and Thy sun may shed its light rejoicing on a holy brotherhood of people.

—Walter Rauschenbusch.

Tolerance

Yesterday afternoon the all-university religious conference swung into action with a talk by Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin, president of Union Theological Seminary. Those who heard the talk appreciate the liberal attitude of this man who was at one time tried for heresy.

Dr. Coffin stepped on no one's toes yet gave a forceful presentation of the argument for theism. Holding an old testament in his hand he argued for a God of love; on the same platform with Rabbi Landman he spoke of Jesus in a way in which no one could have been offended.

The spirit of undergraduate religion has been largely one of tolerance. These conferences, by taking a tolerant attitude without being shallow, catch the spirit of student thought and further the cause of the "brotherhood of man." It is to be hoped that more men like Dr. Coffin will be brought to the university to the end that we will appreciate the fact that we of the different sects agree on so much and find ourselves disagreeing over such inconsequential details that we will appreciate the greater social importance of religion.

Rules, Rules, Rules

Early this fall we had the great privilege of assisting a freshman in trying to get in the university. The young gentleman in particular had graduated from high school, and received his diploma and had done a summer session work at a Middle Western university to get an idea of what type of work was to be expected of him at Wisconsin. He went through the usual process of registering and was finally called before the "powers that be" to be informed that he lacked one half a credit of French.

All the moaning and wailing and gnashing of teeth was to no avail, however, and the boy left for home to make up that small language credit which was required of him. We felt rather disgusted at the time and thought many rather unpleasant things about a university which had become mechanical to the degree that rules had no exceptions.

The case seems to be one at point in the difficulties of these large universities. From the time we came here as freshman we have been bounded by rules. And while they are not all senseless, many of them at least have been administered in a manner which has been devoid of a certain "milk of human kindness." The college student boasts of his freedom—actually brags that he is living his own life in the way he sees fit, but a casual observer will note the limitations that the undergraduate himself does not see.

We at Wisconsin have much to be proud of in the freedom in certain respects that is granted us. And we feel that we are very much more fortunate than our brothers in other Big Ten universities. What we complain of is the lack of curricular freedom so evident in every university and high school throughout the country. We heard someone remark yesterday that graduate students at Chicago were complaining of the fact that we were being treated more and more as undergraduates, bound by rules and classes and lectures. We who are undergraduates object to being treated as high schoolies.

The "old school" professors will throw up their hands in horror at any suggestion for greater freedom for the undergraduate and we could name several of our faculty members who loudly advocate freedom for themselves but who treat their students as though they had to be given candy in order to make them study. This type of professor is usually the one who feels that advancement in his department should be gauged by the number of books written, or pamphlets published rather than the actual work with students and improvement through research work.

Many would probably wonder what the world was coming to if the students really expressed their attitude toward final examinations. We have heard some of the liberal professors give their own opinions of this yearly bug-bear and it is surprisingly parallel to the students reaction. He who feels that a final examination is unnecessary for his class must obey the rules and keep students writing two hours in the task of filling a blue-book.

He who happens to need a particular course for his future work must go through the boredom of required subjects even though he may understand that subject without the course or even though the requisite has little or nothing to do with the advanced work.

We suppose that the 10:30 o'clock rule is necessary, but it smacks rather much of a girls' seminary regulation. Thank the Lord the men in the university are not restricted by any such rule. Students at the University of Illinois have to bow down to Dean Clark's rule against automobiles. Here at Wisconsin there has been no such regulation. It is to be hoped that students will continue to be respected as having sense enough when to use and when not to use their runabouts.

Liberty for youth is not always mistaken for license in spite of all the reformers who would bind us with regulations. Fathers and mothers may sometimes feel that their children are not yet old enough to take care of themselves having just seen them through the adolescent days of high school, but a university which calls students men and women and then treats them as children can never be forgiven.

PIGEONS BASIS OF EXPERIMENTS HERE

University Genetics Department Now Studying Habits of 300 Birds

Pigeons! All types, sizes and colors! At least this is the impression that one gets from looking over those belonging to the Genetics department of the university. These birds are at home in the rear of the Stock pavilion on the grounds of the College of Agriculture.

A sound like the crying of many babies characterizes the dove cote. For one not familiar with mourning doves this was quite a mystery. The beautiful little birds are about the size of a robin, with a white throat and a black ring on the back of the neck. They are characterized by this peculiar crying sound.

But far more curious are three featherless pigeons, imported from South America. These have no feathers, but rather quills, which give them the appearance of never having dried off from a most severe gushing. They are unable to fly, but they have their good points; the females are very prolific egg-layers.

A very beautiful type of pigeon has a red breast, surrounded by splotches of yellow on a white background. Another one, an Australian variety, has a crown of feathers, several inches long, on top of his head.

These pigeons are much larger than the common American variety if one is to believe that all of them are like the two which the Genetics department owns. They are a very beautiful greyish color, and they are once again as large as the pigeons with which everyone is familiar.

At present, the Genetics department has around 300 of these birds. They are received from all parts of this country, and from many foreign countries as well.

The Genetics department is concerned with a study of reproduction. Their methods are to experiment with animals, and to formulate conclusions from the results of their experiments. Experiments in cross breeding are made, and the results are carefully noted.

Experiments with guinea pigs and rabbits will begin in a short time.

FIRST SERENADE NOT GIVEN BY TEKE BAND

The statement in the Daily Cardinal of some days ago declaring that another Tau Kappa Epsilon orchestra was serenading in the Latin quarter, has since proved to be incorrect. The orchestra was composed of eight musicians from eight different fraternities. The serenaders have requested that the mistake be corrected.

Dean Declares

"A leader like Mussolini is necessary to drag China out of chaos," declared Dean H. L. Russel of the College of Agriculture in a speech before the third annual banquet of the Wisconsin Canners' association, held yesterday at the Park hotel.

Dean Russel continued by expressing his views of the Chinese situation. "The deplorable condition into which the country has worked itself is due entirely to the fact that the clashing forces are led by men who fight not for patriotism, but for greed and graft."

An interesting innovation introduced at the banquet consisted of the glorification of "tin," every item on the bill of fare being serv-

Dr. Coffin Makes Stirring Appeal on "God is Love"

Impersonal Approach

Science and religion can and must be linked together, in the opinion of Dr. Coffin. The impersonal approach to knowledge is not enough. "The impersonal approach is objective. It deals with scientific exploration. Scientific problems can be analyzed and explained by general law."

But the personal approach, in which love is manifested, can not be analyzed so easily, thinks Dr. Coffin. "The more distinctive personal worth a thing has the less we are able to get at it impersonally. There is an irreducible something about love that we can't analyze. Take the case of a man and his wife. They cannot analyze their love for each other, or explain it, yet two people who have been married for 40 years like each other better than newlyweds, because all the deeper experiences of life take time to ripen and develop into real love. Exploring each other's personalities develops appreciation. Religion is that way."

Picture of God

By fine drawn analogy and apt quotations from literary classics, Dr. Coffin explained how it was inevitable that God should come into every life. The picture he painted of God was intensely realistic.

"We can't get away from God. God's mind is ever coming to us, claiming our enthusiasm. His influence comes to us in various forms. We see it in the beauty of the hills and lakes, in the love from friendships, and in the truth from books. But why do we crave truth, aspire for something beyond, and why are we humble? It is because He first loved us."

Experience is Answer

"The miracle is that God should have any personal concern in us ephemeral beings, when you consider our inflated egotism. Religious experience is the answer on man's part of a personal approach made to Him."

Dr. Coffin quoted Martin Luther, who said, in speaking of God, "He knows me right well and I know him not better."

The development of friendships at college through images and impressions which were the criteria of the reality of the individual was compared by Dr. Coffin to man's relationship to unseen realities.

Struggle for Existence

"There is a struggle for existence and a survival of the fittest among the conceptions of deity in every man's inner self. What comes to each man through these conceptions or images will be the criteria of reality."

In typical Emersonian style, the speaker told how appreciation resulted from developing intimate contacts and storing up images and impressions. He warned that it is necessary to be unselfish because if God is love, then we shall appreciate him and interpret him only to the extent that we ourselves are loving. Every one that loves knows God, for God is love."

Importance of Contact

He emphasized the importance of contact with fellow students because "we can appreciate some things better through other people's eyes and ears than through our own." He gave the example of two people walking along the drive. If one person appreciates nature's beauties keenly, then his companion will appreciate them more. "To enter into the fellowship of the appreciative is to confirm and strengthen you individually. Reading the Bible increases your appreciation of religion."

Dr. Coffin will talk at 7:30 tonight in Music hall on "What is First Hand Religion?". He is worth hearing, because he is a practical idealist. In comparison to the Bishop of London, he is startling. The Bishop of London didn't have much to say, but this man has something to say. He is progressive and, in a way, radical. In 1904 he was tried for heresy by the Presbyterian church. He looks into the future. He has the eyes of a practical dreamer. When he looks at one from the stage one gets the impression that here is a man who is not mincing his words.

Not Like Brown

Yet Dr. Coffin is not like Bishop Brown, the communist. This man Coffin keeps his feet on the ground. He is not too far ahead of the crowd. He is of the present order enough to give young people advice which is applicable to the present.

The convocation so far is all inclusive. It is not sponsored by any particular group. It is an "all-university" convocation in every sense of the word, and the audiences yesterday, made up of Protestants, Catholics, Jews, Gentiles, Buddhists, and atheists, realized this fact.

Doubtless the influence of this conference is going to be widespread. It is the only affair of its kind to be put on in the collegiate world. The large attendance yesterday speaks much for its success. As the conference goes into its second day, the student body, long torn by religious unrest, stirs with anxious anticipation, for here is a real religious manifestation which is causing more than choppy waves on the sea of university life.

Average Citizen Paid $11.50 to Drive His Motor Car Over Good Roads in 1925

Every man, woman and child in the United States averaged an outlay of $11.50 for highway expenditures in 1925, according to Prof. H. R. Trumbower, of the department of economics, who recently compiled some statistics of highway expenditures. His work revealed the progress made in the highway building enterprises undertaken by the United States in the past two decades.

"In 1904," the report states, "the total amount of money spent for the country as a whole was approximately $80,000,000; in 1914 it amounted to $240,000,000 and by 1925, is had risen to $300,000,000."

If 5 feet is assumed as average width of the highway-right-of-way, the 3,000,000 miles of highway over which expenditures were distributed represent an area which is equivalent to about half the area of the state of Wisconsin.

At the end of 1925 the total surfaced rural highway mileage amounted to 17.4 per cent of the total mileage; in 1924 the surfaced mileage constituted about 10 per cent of the total.

Prof. Trumbower says, "This rate of increase in surfaced mileage from 10 per cent to 17.4 per cent does not reflect the full extent of the improvements made."

He also states that the annual expenditures have increased at a much faster rate than the amount of surfaced mileage, because higher types of improvements have been made, and, at the same time, there has come to pass a general rise in the price level which has had its appropriate effect upon highway construction and maintenance costs.

ANTIOCH TRIES LATEST SYSTEM

Upperclassmen Allowed to Pursue Studies Under Supervision of "Adviser"

A new method of instruction which is hailed as revolutionary in educational circles, is being introduced in Antioch College, at Antioch, Ohio. Under the new system the student himself is made responsible for the organization of the material in each course which he elects to study, having for his guide a carefully prepared syllabus. In the place of the usual lecture and quiz are small discussion sections.

meeting with instructors, who become "advisors."

Educators who are responsible for the plan declare that it develops in the student initiative and resourcefulness. At the same time they maintain that a better understanding of the subject results, since the student pursues his own studies and consults his "advisors" when he deems it necessary.

The "day of reckoning" comes with the final examination, much as it does in the widely discussed Oxford system. At present only upper classmen are permitted to study under the new system. Freshmen, however, are given the benefit of some of its features now, and within a short time it is expected that they will be able to participate in the whole scheme.

ST. PAT DISTURBED BY ERROR IN CARDINAL; DELAYS PARADE DATE

Angry at the Daily Cardinal for stating that his representative in the Saint Patrick's day celebration of the engineering school has already been selected, the venerable old St. Patrick himself yesterday got into communication with the officials of the annual parade. The 1030's were:

1. That St. Pat's official representative will not be selected until March 17, but that Michael J. O'Laughlin '27, electrical candidate "selected" on Wednesday evening will still remain in the race. The other divisions of the college, civils, electricals, miners, and mechanics, will also have candidates, chiefly concerned with the committee which will handle the parade and the lawyers.

When questioned as to his reasons for delaying the parade, old Pat said, "I felt that before the engineers celebrated their long parade, the shamrocks ought to be in bloom. In the country where I come from, that will be on March 17th, but here, since the ground-hog saw his shadow, I felt it safer to advise that the event be held after the spring vacation.

PROF. FISH DENOUNCES DISTORTION IN HISTORY

Prof. Carl Russell Fish, in a recent speech before the Milwaukee Bar association, said that historians who deliberately distort the truth will some day be indicted just as quack doctors and dishonest lawyers are now.

These Suits Embody
Every Style Detail That University Men Want

$45 and

"VARSITY-approved." Which means that for style they cannot be compared. Smart, there's no denying. Good looking, the fact that so many are being worn on the campus attests to this. Reasonable in price, the very fact that so many men living on small allowances are wearing them, proves this. Correct, the fact that they were designed by the leading retail college clothiers guarantees this. See the University Co-op selection. You will like the variety of patterns.

The New Topcoats are Here

The new topcoats must be long and full. Then the pockets must be right. And then the material must have that element of "dash." And you'll find all of this in these topcoats priced at $40 and $50.
