Elementary Harmony	4-6	Thursday.
Advanced Harmony	10:30	Thursday.

Note.—In case of conflict between two studies in Group II, one of the examinations should be transferred to Group I.

Although the announcement of the schedule for the examinations for next week has been made that changes may be made in the scheme on account of the great number of persons who may be obliged to miss their examinations on account of sickness. The plan which has been suggested is about as follows: To omit the examinations next week and start in with the regular spring term work and then to hold the winter term examinations during the first week of the spring term. As a great many would be compelled to take their examinations at this time it is thought that it would be best to adopt some such plan as this in order to escape the necessity for special examinations.

It was found impossible to obtain any very definite information on this subject but it is understood from some members of the faculty that the plan is being seriously entertained. The announcement of the examination schedule for next week would seem to indicate, however, that the examinations would go on as usual as there is very little time left for action on the part of the faculty relating the matter.

Another scheme which has been proposed is to have the regular spring vacation next week and to have the examinations during the next week. If any change is made, however, it will probably be the first one.

SHORT COURSE OVER.

The dairy school closed its session yesterday, and the agricultural department practically closes today. Most of the students have already left and by Friday, all will be gone. The work in both departments has been most successful and satisfactory. There have been 104 in the dairy course throughout the term and a large number have had to be refused on account of lack of accommodations. Among those in attendance three were graduate students of other schools, taking advance work. A large number of this year's students will return next year to complete their course.

A course in the pasteurization of milk and cream was instituted this year for the first time here. There were 18 students in this course. This line of work is entirely new in this country and indeed Wisconsin is the very first to institute it in this country. The U. S. gets her instructors in this new science from among the students of the Wisconsin dairy school. One of them has gone to Pennsylvania to teach the system there. The graduates from here command the very best positions, both as teachers in other schools and as supervisors in factories. Wisconsin takes second place with no other institution. The dairy department will continue throughout the spring and summer to experiment and to investigate further in the pasteurization of cream.

There have been 103 students in the agricultural school, most of whom expect to return next year to finish their course. The work this year has been the most satisfactory of any other. Special research has been pursued in plant germination. The number taking the course in agricultural physics under Prof. King has been especially large. The aim of the department is to make everything thoroughly practical. After each lecture, the students carry out either in the laboratories or in the garden greenhouse, what has been explained. In the garden nursery plants have been set out, and large trees trimmed and grafted.

The students have many of them secured positions in schools or on large fruit farms. Mr. Bisell will return to Alabama to take charge of the horticultural department.

Sixteen of the second-year students leave tomorrow on an extended trip visiting stock and dairy farms. They will test their proficiency in judging animals in competition for the $75 gold medal offered by Mr. Ogilvie of this city.

AT GRAND RAPIDS

ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE COLLEGE CONVENTION.

WISCONSIN WILL PRESENT HENNING FOR PRESIDENT.

Notes on the Meeting—Entertainments Provided for the Delegates.

An announcement of the convention of the College League of Republican clubs has been received. This convention, to be held in Grand Rapids, Friday, April 5th, is the fourth in the history of the league. The local arrangements are in the hands of the Young Men's Republican club and any information in regard to the convention can be obtained of the secretary, Ralph Stone, care Michigan Trust company, Grand Rapids, Mich.

All college Republican clubs are urged to send delegates to the convention. Greatly reduced rates have been secured on all railways and special rates can be obtained at the hotels of Grand Rapids.

An excellent theatrical entertainment has been especially secured for the evening of April 4, at Powers' opera house, and delegates can purchase tickets in advance of the general public, by forwarding credentials to John C. Boer, chairman of the committee on entertainment, 425 Michigan Trust Co. Building, Grand Rapids, Mich., with a request for the number of tickets desired. The sale of tickets will be opened to general public at 3 o'clock p. m., April 4. Tickets for delegates will be on sale at Powers' opera house box office, at 9 o'clock on the morning of April 4. Credentials of delegates must be presented at the box office.

The convention will meet at 10 o'clock a. m., in the auditorium of St. Cecilia club house. Addresses of welcome will be delivered by ex-Senator John Patton, Jr., and Congressman Wm. Alden Smith, of Grand Rapids. There will be addresses by a number of representative college speakers, including James F. Burke of Pittsburgh, and Delmer E. Hawkins of Syracuse, ex-presidents of the league, and by F. B. Deberville of University of Vermont, L. W. Barrett of Earlham college, W. H. Cox of Yale, L. M. Markham of Baker University, W. S. Brown of Union college, and others.

These will be followed by the usual opening business, appointment of committees, etc.

The second session will be called to order at 2 o'clock p. m., and will be devoted to the regular business of the convention, election of officers for the ensuing year, etc.

The Lincoln Republican club, an organization having enrolled nearly 1,200 prominent republicans of western Michigan, with headquarters at Grand Rapids, will "keep open house" during the day, and a citizens' committee of fifty will receive the members of the league and their friends, and invited guests, at the club rooms.

The day will be appropriately closed with a grand banquet, in which delegates to the convention and members of the Young Men's Republican club, and their friends generally, will participate.

Among those who have been invited to be present and respond to toasts are: Gov. McKinley, ex-Speaker Reed, ex-President Harrison, Hon. Chauncey M. Depew, Senators Burrows, Higgins, Wolcott, Thurston and Aldrich, ex-Senator Patton, Hon. Robert T. Lincoln, Gen. James S. Clarkson, Hon. J. Sloat Fassett, Gen. Russell A. Alger and President W. W. Tracy, of the National Republican League. From several of these positive acceptances have already been received.

The March number of the College Republican, of which R. A. Elward, law '95, is an associate editor, contains announcements of the convention and also mentions E. J. Henning for president. The number contains a good picture of Mr. Henning.

BATTALION MATTERS.

Next Thursday will be the last drill of this term, and those students who have for some time been decorating the rolls by indiscriminate "cutting" will soon have to face the music of their reports. This drill will be devoted to section drill in the extended order, closing with battalion parade, which is the first for this year.

Next term, movements in the extended order will be continued, and towards the end of the year a sham battle will be fought between two divisions of the battalion, the maneuvers taking place on the grounds about the university. Events of this kind are common at most of the institutions where military drill is required, but the attempt has so far never been made at Wisconsin. A great deal of interest has already sprung up about the undertaking, and officers and privates will endeavor to make the battle one of the most interesting and novel displays of the university year.

NO FOOTBALL AT HARVARD.

Cambridge, Mass., March 20.—Harvard faculty at its meeting again took a firm stand against intercollegiate football contests and it looks doubtful if the crimson will be represented by the eleven on the grid-iron next fall. The motion adopted is worded as follows:

"The faculty having received and considered the communication from the committee on the regulation of athletic sports, remain of the opinion that no student under their charge should be permitted to take part in intercollegiate football contests."

Another meeting of the faculty will be held April 2, when a final and decisive action on the question is anticipated.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

—Miss Dacey, '98, is ill with the grip.

—Miss Mabelle Bradley, '98, is sick with the grip.

—Miss Genevieve Smith, '98, is recovering from a severe cold.

—Miss Margaret Rogers, '98, is quite sick with the grip. She will not return to her work on the hill until next term.

Room 7, Democrat Building.

The resolutions proposed for adoption by the literary societies, asking that joint debaters may be allowed to substitute their debates for theses, should be endorsed. Definite action has not been taken by the faculty and a formal request from the societies in the form of resolutions will serve to make known the real attitude of the students regarding the matter. The reasonableness of the request is clearly set forth in the resolution already published.

The oratorical contest on Friday night for the choice of an inter-collegiate representative to compete in the contest at Iowa City, is the first under the new competitive arrangement. In some ways the new plan has not accomplished what its promoters hoped it would, but on the whole it has been demonstrated that it is a marked improvement over the old method. Never before have so many candidates presented themselves for the honor of representing the university in the inter-collegiate contest. Although the old system provided for the election of eight seniors never more than four would appear in the senior exhibition. In spite of the disadvantages always arising from the introduction of a new method and the unavoidable interference resulting from the grip there are two representatives each from the sophomore, junior and senior classes. The competition is no longer limited to the seniors and the number of contestants increased. No doubt, another year will bring about a plan for stirring up a more general interest in the competition.

The great amount of sickness in the university this term demands more than passing notice, coming as it does just at examination time. There are a great many students who are either sick at present or are just convalescing and will be unable to prepare for the examinations. This does not take into account either all who have left for their homes on account of sickness or who may be intending to be sick in the near future.

It has been suggested, and the suggestion has been ardently supported by a number of prominent members of the faculty that some new arrangement of the time for examinations be made in order that the invalids may be accommodated. Two plans have been proposed both of which are entirely feasible and it is hard to see why the faculty should not follow out one at least of the suggestions. By the first one of these plans next week instead of being given up to examinations, would be in fact the first week of next term. Then vacation would come in its regular time and the examinations be held the first week of next term proper. The other plan suggests that next week, which it is proposed to give up to examinations, be given us as our vacation and that following that the examinations be held the next week or the time now allotted for vacation, the spring term opening on the regular date. This last plan seems to be the simplest. We publish these suggestions on behalf of the great number of grip stricken individuals whom the present examination schedule will seriously inconvenience.

LECTURE ON CHARITY.

The last lecture in the series given before the class in American Charities was delivered yesterday afternoon by Pres. Finley of Knox college. Prof. Ely introduced the lecturer as one of his old pupils who began his successful career in John Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md. He had been prominent in the work of Reform, especially in New York state. The subject was "Charitable Work," and it proved a most beneficial one in a summary of the entire work as taken up by the class during the term. In brief the speaker said:

There remains yet a book to be written concerning the beggar, a complete history showing how society has treated him from early times until the present. How first he has been fed, clothed and sheltered, then cast out, persecuted and flogged from one parish to another; again to receive alms, nourished and encouraged by Monastic relief, until the roads were black with his members only to again undergo an extermination.

Pauperism is the state of dependence of one class upon another, almsgiving but ensures a repetition without proper discrimination and society suffers in the effect. Relief for the poor is by no means a modern institution: ancient Hindostan, China and Persia had charitable societies and various modes of helping the outcasts of society. Selfishness in giving finds its first victims in these ancient empires. History has repeated herself because its warnings have not been heeded. Public charities have always been detrimental to the public good because of the dependence encouraged their support by depriving charity of its virtue as charity, and by making more beggars than it cured. Many of the objections that are offered further are alike applicable to public and private charities.

The following ten commandments were read as a guide in giving to the poor. Thou shalt have no other motive in giving before the good of the poor; thou shalt not give to the beggar, for the iniquity of such a gift may be visited unto the third and fourth generations of him who receives it; thou shalt not take the name of charity in vain; thou shalt not tempt son or daughter; thrust father or mother or brother or sister upon the poor list; remember the spirit of charity to keep it holy; thou shalt not kill the soul of man by feeding his stomach; thou shalt not let mothers bury their shame in an orphan asylum nor fathers hide their greed; thou shalt not rob the poor to feed the pauper; thou shalt not covet the name of philanthropist for thine own glory; thou shalt not let thy giving bear false witness to its motive.

HIS GRACE DE GRAMMONT.

There will be a brilliant audience at the Fuller opera house tonight to see Otis Skinner in his new play by Clyde Fitch "His Grace de Grammont." From a scenic standpoint the production is said to be an admirable and beautiful one. Walter Burridge furnished the settings of the four acts, which combined, form a harmony of dignified, rich and delicate arrangement of color, such as might be distinctive of the home of royalty. The first act shows a Tudor gothic interior at the Palace of Whitehall. The windows are of the small diamond-pane variety in vogue at that time, and filled with heraldic devices and coats of arms. On the right is a huge hooded fireplace. The whole scene is a scheme of rich color in wainscoting and tapestry. It is topped with carved oak wood. On the left is an entrance to the ante chamber in white and light tones, affording an effective contrast to the main scene.

The scene in the second and third acts represent the garden of Hamilton House. It is a delightful reproduction of the old gardens of England, with their stiff appearance produced by the high thick hedges cut into geometrical and fantastic shapes. The hedges are intersected by a splendid gate-way with high posts mounted on each side by carved figures. On the side is a house of Elizabethan architecture, and the perspective gives a distant view of bright and blossoming gardens and meadows in the glorious light of an English summer sun.

The fourth act takes place in the audience chamber of the king at Whitehall. It is a plain dignified tapestry scene, conveying in its atmosphere something of the austerity and solemnity which hedges royalty. "The Merchant of Venice" will be presented tomorrow night.

CO-OP BOXES.

The University Co-operation association has recently taken possession of the Badger boxes, which were placed in various buildings at the beginning of the year, and will use them to receive orders from the students. Any one wishing to order books or other articles from the Co-op for next term, has but to drop a note, stating his wants and address, in one of the boxes, and the matter will be promptly attended to.

—Ed. Hanson, '97, is recovering from the grip at his home in Monroe.

—Miss Charlotte Ingersoll, '98, who has been sick with the grip for the past week, returned to her home in Beloit yesterday. She will return next term.

—Mr. Charles W. Lea, '97, left for his home in Waupaca yesterday after two weeks illness with an attack of pneumonia. He will return to the university next term.

DON'T STOP TOBACCO.

How to Cure Yourself While Using It.

The tobacco habit grows on a man until his nervous system is seriously affected, impairing health, comfort and happiness. To quit suddenly is too severe a shock to the system, as tobacco, to an inveterate user becomes a stimulant that his system continually craves. Baco-Curo is a scientific cure for the tobacco habit, in all its forms, carefully compounded after the formula of an eminent Berlin physician who has used it in his private practice since 1872, without a failure, purely vegetable and guaranteed perfectly harmless. You can use all the tobacco you want, while taking Baco-Curo, it will notify you when to stop. We give a written guarantee to permanently cure any case with three boxes, or refund the money with 10 per cent interest. Baco-Curo is not a substitute, but a scientific cure, that cures without the aid of will power and with no inconvenience. It leaves the system as pure and free from nicotine as the day you took your first chew or smoke. Sold by all druggists, with our ironclad guarantee, at $1.00 per box, three boxes (thirty days treatment), $2.50, or sent direct upon receipt of price.
