The first big log house in what later became Marshfield was built on a site just north of the present address of 120 N. Central Avenue. The Community formed, and logging and sawmills flourished. Soon the old Wisconsin Central R. R. followed the lumberjack's ax, and Marshfield had its first railroad. After the rich soil had been logged of its heavy stand of white pine, naturally, agriculture and dairying followed. Marshfield prospered because of its position with regard to trade centers along the connecting railroads built at that time.

Marshfield has continued to prosper throughout the years. The retail and wholesale trade of the area make this one of the leading retail shopping centers of Wisconsin.

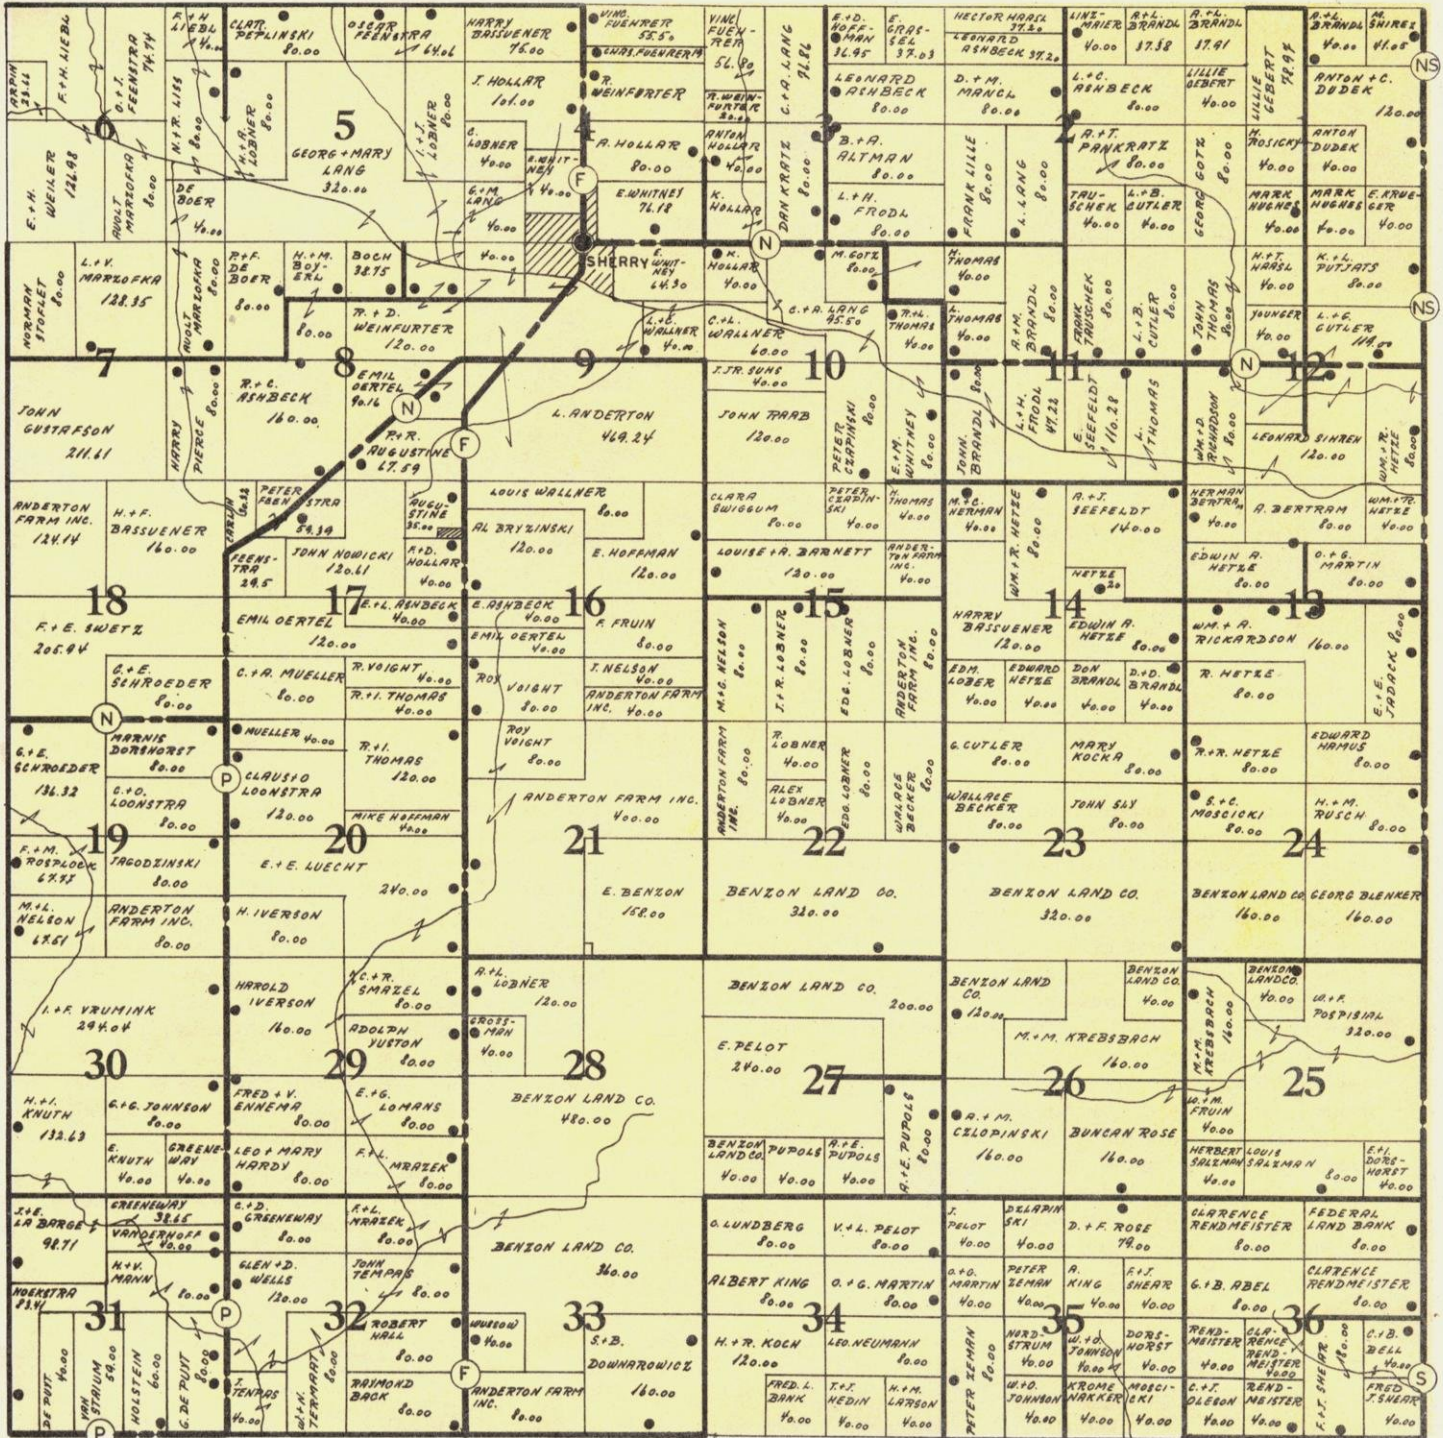

The city owns its electric power and water plant, a $4,500,000 asset. A modern $700,000 sewage-disposal plant, will take care of the sanitary needs of the ever-growing city for the next 40 years. Good Schools and well-paid teachers insure the future for educational environment.

The city measures up well to its slogan, "Better Yourself in Marshfield." The Marshfield Chamber of Commerce will furnish any information desired about the city, its citizens, its exceptional hospital facilities, its diversified wholesale and retail activities.

WISCONSIN RAPIDS

By Bernard T. Ziegler, Manager Wisconsin Rapids Chamber of Commerce

Wisconsin Rapids, the county seat of Wood County, is situated in the geographical center of the state. The city is a consolidation of the two early towns of Grand Rapids and Centralia, the former lying on the east side of the river and the latter on the west. The consolidation was effective in the spring of 1900 and the city subsequently bore the name of Grand Rapids until 1920, when its name was changed on account of freight and mail intended for it being frequently sent by mistake to Grand Rapids, Michigan. The river is here interspersed with a number of small islands, and in passing the city has a descent of about 45 feet over an irregular and rocky bed. It furnishes a splendid water power which is utilized to good advantage by the large paper mills located here. Both above and below the city it presents many picturesque scenes. The Indians gave to this place the name of Ah-dah-wah-gam, meaning the "Two-sided Rapids," as the rapids here were divided into two by a great boulder.

Wisconsin Rapids is situated on four railways: The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, the Chicago & Northwestern, the Green Bay & Western, and the Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie, commonly called the "Soo." It is also on Highways Nos. 13, 34, 54 and 73, which connect with other highways to every part of the state.

The city lies in the heart of the paper manufacturing industry, having large paper mills within the city and the surrounding territory, besides which a number of other factories of various kinds (stoves, clothing, toys, plastics, paints) give evidence of a strong industrial life. Situated moreover, in a dairy, livestock raising and diversified farming community, and also near to extensive cranberry raising tracts, its commercial trade is drawn from a wide and rich area.

The first settlers to make improvements of a permanent and progressive nature arrived in 1838 and from then to the present time the community has experienced a steady growth to the point where it now is one of the fastest growing and most modern cities of its size in the state.

WOOD COUNTY AGRICULTURE

By: Leo M. Schaefer
County Agricultural Agent
Wisconsin Rapids,
Wisconsin

Wood County, Wisconsin is located in the heart of America's Dairyland. Its 2536 farms average 133.7 acres each. Soil types range from the Heavy Silt Loam soils, in the northern portion, to the sandy soils of the southern portion of the County. Nine per cent of the total land area is marshes. The Cranberry Industry has developed to the point where Wood County ranks first in cranberry production for the entire State.

Milk is the principal source of farm income, accounting for 59.6% of the total. Livestock products other than milk rank second.

Because of its prominence in dairying, a number of farm organizations are active in the County to provide marketing and educational services.

Wood County is organized as a Soil Conservation District. The members of the Agricultural Committee of the County Board of Supervisors are the governing body for the District. The Soil Conservation District provides free technical assistance, on the land, to all farmers carrying on soil conserving practices.

The County Agricultural Extension office serves as an information center and a clearing house for County agricultural activities. This office works with the University of Wisconsin College of Agriculture in disseminating factual information about, research approved, methods and practices which help with the job of farming. A formal rural youth program and an adult educational program is conducted. Information on any phase of Wood County agriculture, or on County agricultural organizations can be obtained from the Extension Office.

The Wood County Extension Office is located in the Court House, Wisconsin Rapids, Wis. Phone 3000.
