Laborers Stage Fight in Union Dispute

Neither Lawyers Nor Rainfall Will Stop Pat's Parade Today

150 Armed Men, Police to Escort Parade From Lower Campus at 1 O'Clock

Developments yesterday afternoon in the annual lawyer-engineer fight over the St. Pat's parade brought out the fact that the lawyers will not be able to carry out their plan to hire an airplane to drop bombs of an odor nature on the procession.

According to official reports, during the past week the lawyers had organized to break up the engineer's affair. In the course of their work, they had raised a fund to hire the airplane. Reports further state that through unknown channels, the committee learned of the plan and forced its abandonment.

The parade will be orderly. R. E.

Day By Day With The News

By C. O. S.

The flood situation gradually grows worse. Various estimates yesterday declared that between 60,000 to 100,000 people have been made homeless, at least for the duration of the flood. At Greenville, Miss., the residents had built the levee wall to the height of 10 feet when the waters overflowed the town to a depth of six feet, according to dispatches.

President Coolidge called for relief yesterday saying, "It becomes my duty as President of the United States and president of the American National Red Cross to direct the sympathy of our people to the sad plight of thousands of their fellow citizens, and to urge that generous contributions be promptly forthcoming to alleviate their suffering."

The Chinese Nationalist forces are now concentrated in the vicinity of Hankow. Thirty-nine warships of foreigners weigh their anchors outside. The 1,500 United States marines from San Diego Cal., will undoubtedly go there.

Superior citizens interviewed Governor Zimmerman yesterday seeking to find some means for settling the high school strike. He declares that the Wisconsin statutes give him no power to interfere.

A financial crisis has caused the Japanese government to call a special session of the diet for May 3.

Nevada Kas
Old Glory

"... Days of old, the days of gold
The days of Forty-nine..."

If Bret Harte and Mark Twain could return, what glamorous new stories they could write of the gold rush at Weepah, Nevada!—stories that would rival "Roughing It" and "The Outcasts of Poker Flat."

Writers of today, including flappers, nationalists, find new material at Weepah with its gambling dens of faro, roulette and poker, its adventurers, and excitement seekers. They say water sells at $2.00 per barrel and bad whiskey at $1 per drink. Even the legislature of Nevada caters to the spirit of the times by legalizing games of chance such as flourish in the gambling dens at Weepah. Last fall the state voted wet and despite the Volstead edict, Weepah is not a dry town.

It all started when the two boys digging a badger out of his hole found several glittering nuggets. Sutters Creek, Klondike, Tonopah, and Weepah—landmarks of old rush history.

Sweden and Belgium Sign Pact

Sweden and Belgium have signed a pact in which they agree that the two countries will never go to war even over those interests usually considered to effect "vital interests" and "national honor." Similar treaties have been signed by Sweden and Denmark, Sweden and Finland, and a third is pending between Sweden and Norway.

Are We Out Of The League

The United States has co-operated in four of the eight meetings of the League of Nations held since March 1. Representatives from this country sat around the council table and with the special committee for the Supervising of Private Manufacture of Arms with Hugh Gibson, Minister to Switzerland, as representatives. They participated in the Health Committee meetings, the Preparatory Commission for Disarmament and on the committee for Progressive Codification of International Law.

UNIVERSITY ASKS BUDGET INCREASE IN NEXT BIENNIAL

Amount Desired Exceeds Previous Total by $1,801,000;
To Build More

Hearings on the financial demands of the University of Wisconsin for the next two years will be held by the legislative joint finance committee April 27 and 28. The university asks $11,213,026, an increase of $1,801,020 over the amount received the last two years. It is expected that President Glenn Frank will appear personally before the committee to present the needs of the university.

More For Extension

Extension of activities is responsible for the demand for increased operation expenses. The university extension bureau now requests $285,000 a year. It has been receiving $235,000 a year. An increase of $65,000 over $17,000 is being asked this year in behalf of county agricultural representatives by the university. For the following year the university requests $71,700.

A second large increase is asked in research. The university has received $30,000 a year. A sum of $115,000 is now being asked for the first year of the next biennium and $140,000 for the following year, an increase of $195,000.

Plan Construction

An increase of $129,875 is asked for the next two years for books and apparatus.

For the first year of the new biennium the university is asking $570,000 for construction, not including $550,000 for new construction authorized by the 1925 legislature, and available July 1 of this year. For the following year $800,000 is requested for this purpose, with a request for new construction in 1929-1930 of $790,000, and increased demand for the next two years of $330,350 not including money already available.

The more than half million increase in demand of the university includes a new item of $25,000 for hospital capital.

One Head Broken; Several Men Hurt, Taken to Hospital

Attempts to Capture Non-Union Men Results in Riot Call

Peaceful striking methods were abandoned by union men who had walked out on the Memorial Union construction job as a protest against hiring non-union men, and attempts to capture the 10 strike breakers who were huddled together in the construction shack resulted in a near riot and a general free for all fist fight.

Actual casualties resulted when an overzealous union carpenter, Charles Denson, attempted to prevent the passage of the non-union men from the construction shack to the patrol wagon at the curb. His head was promptly broken open by the club of Officer Burmeister. The injured man was removed to the General hospital with others who had been hurt in the tussle.

Students Watch
Hundreds of students swarmed upon the library steps, the Union building roof and other points of vantage and urged the combatants on to battle in approved collegiate fashion.

The disturbance resolved itself into a milling about the construction shack where police officers were making attempts to free imprisoned non-union men and to take them away by means of taxi cabs that had drawn to the curb. Union forces drove the cabs away, in one case crashing in the window of a machine. Numerous fist fights and private struggles took place outside the shack.

Strikers Break Lines
A group of 12 policemen formed a wall from the shack to the curb. After several non-union men had safely gained admittance to the patrol wagon, the unionists gathered (Continued on Page Eight)

"Best of the College Shows" Comment on Haresfoot Play

By PROF. W. C. TROUTMAN

The Haresfoot Club presented the first performance of its 29th annual production "Meet The Prince" at the Parkway theater last night and scored an unqualified success. The performance was of such a high calibre that it completely settled the question of the relatives merits of the Michigan Mimes, Princeton Triangle and Haresfoot, for it was unquestionably the best of the college shows.

The production was gay and colorful and moved with a speed and snap which showed the results of intensive rehearsals and frequent performances. The fine ensemble displayed in the uniformly high quality of the acting and the originality of the dancing showed direction of an unusually professional character on the part of Bill Purnell, grad, and Archie Scott. These men I think should be given the lion's share for staging one of the best of the Haresfoot shows. Their workmanship, originality, and knowledge of the theater was apparent every moment of the time.

The work of Mr. Scott in the work of the members of the ensemble was especially noteworthy.

for the dancing and costuming were the outstanding features of the performance. All of his numbers were metropolitan in finish, and some of them, especially "Gerry Be Good," "Chicken Flutter," and "The Gibson Girl," would be "riots" in a Broadway attraction. The latter was the cyclonic number of the performance and "stopped the show cold," for it was "put over" by the professional acting of John Moran, whose pantomime and balladry caught the spirit of the "mauve Decade." Furthermore, he was given adequate support by a chorus which satirized the "Gay Nineties" in "Down By The Old Mill Stream" with gestures and a travesty of the galloping minuet which was concluded with a parade of deserted and homesick bustles.

Among the specialty numbers, Abert, Hodges, White, Rahr did especially good work. Bill Ogilvie and Irving Glendenen appeared frequently as a sister team and were exceptionally good, Bill being unquestionably the best looking "girl" in the show. But the surprise specialty of the performance was the falsetto solo work by Myron Reid, who as soon as he recovers from the adolescent quavers of an opening in Madison will be able to give a more than interesting impersonation of the vaudeville singer. He really creates the illusion, in his singing, of the feminine voice. He was supported by an excellent college orchestra, headed by Herb Allen, John Stewart, with John Mason at the accordian.

In criticizing the acting, it is difficult to pass around the honors equally. The outstanding star was John Moran with his inane giggle, his fluttering handkerchief, and bromo-seltzer effervescence, who gave a sincerely professional performance. He was closely seconded by Wilfred Roberts, who carried the male, comedy lead with gay antics which were especially amusing in the second act when he achieved a real triumph with his interpretation of Freudian love and his version of the radio story, which are exceptionally clever. Russ Winnie and Bryant Gale were splendidly attractive as the juveniles, and Nathan Hindin, as the gutteral Teuton, Louis and Francis O'Connor as the scale tipping Mr. Batz did good character work. Harold Himes and Paul Faust, while having little acting to do, did some amazing acrobatic dancing.

Among the girls Jimmy Nelson was so charming in personality and so attractive in his various costumes that he could be easily rushed by the most particular daters on the campus. He smiled intriguingly he acted easily; he sang more than well, and he danced gracefully. Kerbert Earle, struggling with an unbeknown blonde wig was especially effective in the second act in his number "I'm a Girl Who Plays With Love." Johnnie Mackin with a bit as Kathie, made a very saucy subrette.

The book while being amusing, was relatively unimportant. It was a slender framework for the patter of gags, some of which were none too pertinent, and many of which were greeted with pleasure because they were old time friends. The lyrics, especially in "Gibson Girl" and "Freudian Love Song" were far above the average of the college musical show. The score, was adequately tuneful, "Rose of Dawn" being by far the most melodious of the numbers. Its early spotting and casual treatment kept it from being a hit number. The costumes by Lester were in excellent taste. The costumes for the choruses of "Gerry Be Good" of pink and silver, the Dutch costumes of the second act and the men's white serge outfits, as well as the afternoon gowns of Jimmy Nelson and Kerbie Earle were Ziegfeldian in richness.

It's a great college show and one which will be enjoyed not only by the students of the university, but by the citizens of Madison as well. Infact I enjoyed it so much that I'm going again when I don't have to write a review.

Wisconsin Baseball, Track Teams in Action Today

Iowa Nine Meets Badgers; Trackmen at Relay Meets

Hawkeyes Bring Veteran Line-up for First Conference Game

Iowa, year 'round athletic rival of Wisconsin, brings an untested baseball team to Randall field today for the first conference game of the season. The game will be called at 3 o'clock.

The Hawkeyes, according to all advance information, will send a strong pitcher, backed by a fair fielding and hitting aggregation, into the field against the Badgers today. Either Corbin or Twogood, one of whom will probably start for Iowa, is capable of tying the average conference batter into boy scout knots trying to locate the ball, and Twogood, especially has proven himself an effective moundsman under all circumstances.

Dangerous Team

Although the performance of the Iowa squad on its southern trip was somewhat disappointing, the Hawkeyes have shown themselves rather a dangerous outfit to meddle with. The team hitting, which was extremely weak last year, has been improved a great deal, while the general fielding strength is apparent from the fact that most of the members of the team are veterans.

By way of preparation for today's game, the Wisconsin nine has put in a hard week opening and closing umbrellas. Bad weather, which left the diamond in soggy condition, prevented a work-out even yesterday, but the playing field will be in good condition today if no further rain interferes.

Pitcher Uncertain

The pitching choice for Wisconsin this afternoon is still more or less a matter of speculation. More fans expect Capt. George Stoll, veteran twirler, to get first chance. It is possible, however, that Coach Guy S. Lowman will pick Theodore "Ted" Thelander or Stanley Clausen for the job.

Stoll, who has had two years of experience in the conference and who carried the heavy end of Badger pitching last season, is the logical man, since Wisconsin will not see action again until next Saturday. Clausen, a left-hander with several varieties of speed, or Thelander, whose right-handed style bothered numerous southern batters, could probably take over the job successfully.

The rest of the Wisconsin lineup remains unchanged exactly as it faced Bradley Tech on Monday.

Mike Murphy, Am Massey, Johnnie Decker and Gene Rose in the infield and Earl Burbridge, "Squeaks" Larson, and Eddie Donegan in the outfield appear to form a defensive armor that is fairly impenetrable. Unless the Hawkeyes take to homerunning and other batting vices, they will have to hunt long and hard before they find a satisfactory method of progressing from base to base.

Fielding and hitting strength considered, Wisconsin should win the game today. Other factors, however, may decide the outcome, for the Badgers have yet to prove that they can play errorless, smart baseball in a tight pinch. To that is added the fact that a green pitcher may be in the box though this, of course, will not be true if Stoll, Jacobsen, or Clausen starts.

Fans who saw the clean-cut playing in the Bradley game, expect another well-managed contest today. Save for a slight rustiness about the bat, due to weather lay-offs, the Badgers are in excellent condition.

Cinder Stars Compete for Honors at Kansas and Ohio

Two Cardinal-jerseyed athletes one slender and lithe, the other red-headed and broad of shoulder, today carry Wisconsin's most dangerous threats in the special events at the Kansas relays, initial outdoor meet of the midwestern track season.

The slender one is Capt. Charles W. McGinnis, winner of three championships in the indoor conference meet. The broad-shouldered one is Robert L. Kreuz, javelin star, who is looked upon as one of the strongest entries in that event.

Send Mile Team

Beside these two stars, the Wisconsin mile relay team, composed of "Pat" Dougan, Harwood Stowe, Gil Smith and Jack Karatz, will run against some of the fastest 440 yard dash men in the country, notably the powerful Iowa quartet which has won three of the last four relays at Kansas.

At Chio, Wisconsin men are competing in a somewhat less brilliant though still powerful field, made up largely of Big Ten athletes.

Here the Badger team, four men whose combined average in the mile race will decide their place as a team and various single entries in the high and low hurdles, the high jump, and the hop, skip, and jump are competing.

Single Events at Ohio

Numbered among the runners and the mile team are Charles Bullimore, Johnnie Zola, Bob Schwanger and John Petaja. Wisconsin won this event at Ohio last year, and the team entered today appears capable of putting up a great struggle to retain the championship.

Men entered in single events are Art Stehr and Ralph Pahmeyer in the hurdles, Willard Monsen in the high jump and the hop skip and jump, and John Mayer in the javelin throw.

Both of the former entries are considered strong, while Mayer and Monsen should at least place unless the competition is above the usual Ohio relay standard.

SEND IN 3 CHEERS, GET 3 COUPON BOOKS

All students possessing an aptitude at composing cheers are urged to enter the varsity cheer contest announced last week. Although some activity has been shown, there is still plenty of time remaining for any student to win one of the three coupon books, which will be awarded for the winning cheers. Cheers should be mailed to Wesley Bliffert, varsity cheer leader.

MODERN MOLIERE

BUTCH GETS A JOB

There they are boys—now let's see what you can do.

Hold your hats tomorrow morning people, there'll be big news in from the little Kansas clearing where all the athletes are shaking their shoes today. Anyway that's what we think.

In case you are a gentleman and wish to take the femme choisie to that baseball game this afternoon without losing her friendship, hearken to the following formula which has never been tried even by its inventor, and therefore must be good:

(Enter and guide the lady to a seat, preferably a vacant one).

"Oh, there's Mike Murphy. Hasn't he pretty hair." (She'll probably say)

"Yeah, but hair don't mean nothing to a baseball player." (You shouldn't say this, think of something else.)

"Why do those two men in the center keep throwing the ball back and forth. Why don't they give it to some of the others." (Beautiful but—)

"Well, you see the pitcher is a Scotchman, and he hates to give anything away." (That'll hold her.)

This sort of rot goes on for something like three years, or about one inning, after which you rise registering boredom and ask the lady if she wouldn't like to go for a ride. Try it.

Edliff "Butch" Slaughter, former center and guard coach here, has had a job thrust upon him as assistant to Gus Tebelle at the University of North Carolina. Butch was one of the best-liked and capable of the assistants at Camp Randall last year, and he should be a big help to Gus in putting North Carolina on the gridiron map.

Tennis Men Work for Coming Season; Prospects Excellent

With probable tennis weather ahead, Coach William Winterble is finding himself confronted with the problem of building up a university tennis team of a somewhat unknown quantity. Only a scant two weeks remain in which he must build up the team for the meet May 7 with Minnesota on the varsity courts here.

A fine showing of candidates for the squad are out for practice, but with the exception of the two veterans, Captain Leo Boldenweck and Oscar Kaner, the members of the squad are without tournament experience and the Badger team is sure to find hard going in their conference matches.

The well rounded driving game of Boldenweck, who was a semi-finalist in conference competition in 1926 is rapidly approaching mid-season form, and it is expected that the Badger captain will bring his share of wins to Wisconsin this year.

Oscar Kaner, the other regular from last year's team is also rounding into shape and will serve as a good running partner for Boldenweck. Both men have kept in constant practice during the winter months, and are physically in good condition for the season grind.

Other members of last year's squad who are out are, William Reiss, Dave Freeborn, Enoch Judkins, Eugene Kinkead, and Winston Kratz. Members of last year's Freshman squads who are out for the varsity are John Burnham, Charles Foster, and Walter J. Fitzgerald. Of the aspirants above those who have shown up well in practice competition are Freeborn, Judkins, and Kratz.

At the present time Coach Winterble is grooming his squad for the Minnesota matches. Minnesota with several veterans left from last year's strong team, and all her remarkable squad of last year back is expected to furnish the Badgers with the stiffest of competition.

The season's schedule is:

May 7—Minnesota, here.
May 13—Illinois, here.
May 14—Northwestern, there.
May 20—Michigan, there.
May 23—Iowa, here.
May 26-27-28—Conference meet at Chicago.

L. AND S. SWIM TEAM TAKES MEET

Von Maltitz and Landow High Point Men; Law School Second

Dope ran true to form in yesterday's inter-college swimming meet, held at the Armory, and the L. and S. school won by a large margin. Second place went to the Law school, which, though it were represented by a one man team, Von Maltitz, was able to win second place over the engineering school.

Practically all the men in the meet had been entered in the inter-class meet two days before, and competition between them was keener than ever. Von Maltitz and Landow were high point men of the day. The former with one first, one second, and two thirds, and the latter with two firsts.

The closest race of the day came in the 440 yard dash when Von Maltitz, with an apparently safe margin of victory, was overtaken by the fast going Crowley, and both men finished in a dead heat. The decision was upheld for sometime because the judges felt that Von Maltitz had been afflicted with a touch of laziness while swimming and did not exactly deserve the tie decision.

Von Maltitz again furnished amusement for a large crowd of spectators in the fancy diving, when he originated and displayed some highly entertaining diving stunts.

The next event of the university swimming program is the all-university championships to be held in two weeks. All men are eligible to compete with the exception of varsity men, and numerals, sweaters and medals will be given out, in addition to recognition as university swimming champion in the various events.

Student Owned Cars

Last week an editorial in the Daily Cardinal received attention in the columns of several metropolitan papers with such headlines as "Student Daily opposes ownership of cars by students." Several undergraduates have requested that we make our position clear in view of the distorted stories which have circulated concerning this paper's position on the question.

It was a little over a year ago that our support was solicited in a war which was then being contemplated on student ownership of automobiles. We flatly refused the request on several grounds and have since stuck by that decision. The Daily Cardinal has no cause to advocate against the possession of cars by undergraduates except in such cases where they are misused or lead to indiscretions.

In view of the great amount of speeding which has been so evident along Langdon street, this paper recently made a plea for sanity in the use of cars. We have seen countless cases of careless driving around that turn at Park and Langdon and practically every intersection street along Langdon. The situation has been growing daily more acute and we must take greater precautions if we are to prevent a fatal catastrophe in the near future.

We do not feel that there is any need of taking cars from students but feel rather that Illinois and other institutions which have taken that action have made the mistake of "too much government." Students are old enough to take care of themselves and he who is able to have the good times that a car affords and still maintains his scholastic average deserves credit rather than censure. President Frank has insisted that the parents should be the judge of whether the son or daughter is to have a car while at school. We agree in this program and wish it understood that we are not waging a war against student owned automobiles.

Al Smith and His Chances

Gov. Al Smith of New York has been carrying on a verbal war with another gentleman from New York, an Episcopalian lawyer well versed in canon law, anent the duties of an American Catholic to the Papacy and whether those duties would interfere with a man's duties as president of the United States.

We have been watching the discussion with great interest in view of the fact that it is probably the first time in history that a possible candidate for the White House has been challenged regarding his religious tenets. It has been generally understood in this country that a Catholic could never secure the highest office in the nation and it is with no little surprise that many have noted the reception being given Al Smith's alleged candidacy.

On the face of things it would seem that there was coming to be a little more enlightenment in this great "land of the free," that tolerance, the long-voiced character of the American people, was for the first time making an appearance. But we are not quite so sure that the millennium has even been approached. We feel rather confidently that the religious bugaboo will be called into play in the Democratic convention as well as in the national election next year.

We have no cause to advocate in the national parties, being a non-partisan paper. But we said in a recent editorial summarizing the political situation, that Smith would not be elected because of his religion. The solid south, the stronghold of Democracy, has always been rabidly anti-Catholic. By a queer stroke of fate their strongest candidate, or at least any so think, is one who is cursed with Catholicism. We doubt whether the South will cast aside their intolerance over night and select as their standard bearer Gov. Smith, even though in so many other ways he may satisfy their desires.

It will be a long time yet until this enlightened country can put aside its credal differences at election time to choose the best man. Education is undermining bigotry and intolerance but the job is a long and hard one. Our wager, though perhaps not our vote, is with Coolidge.

Mencken, Lewis and the "Hinterland"

We have just finished reading that latest offering from the gods of the East, "Elmer Gantry" by Sinclair Lewis, the same gentleman who has given us "Main Street," "Arrowsmith," and "Babbitt." If it has not already come into your hands and you have nothing better to do we would suggest that you read it. It is an illuminating treatise of what the intelligentsia with an eastern complex think of these great open spaces of the Middle West.

Somehow or other we are beginning to get frightenedly sick of being told that we in the great hinterland have no original ideas, that we are all Babbitts, that we are steeped in hypocrisy, that we are ignorant, dumb, and that material prosperity symbolized by Rotary clubs, Kiwanians, and so forth are the barometers of our culture.

We think specifically of H. L. Mencken and certain Harvard and Princeton professors who periodically open their mouths or click the typewriters to tell the world in general and the press in particular that it is too bad that we who live west of Boston and New York do not live our lives as they do, that our standards are not quite as European as theirs.

The more we hear of the way things are done in New York, the more praise we hear of London methods and French ideas the more do we begin to feel that there is something more than "jazz music," canned foodstuffs and radio to the American life. We are just as good internationalists as anyone else, have longings for a United States seat in the League of Nations, but too much of a good thing is a little more than too much.

We recognize that America has many faults, that we have a long way to go yet until we reach perfection, but we fail to see just wherein the East or the Continent has so much over us.

We of the Middle West have inherited enough of that Yankee practicality to give us a little different slant on things from that of the conservative, present day East. We are willing to venture a little more from the trodden paths, we are a little less worshipful of the golden eagle, and we are at least willing to give the other fellow the benefit of the doubt, (said, perhaps, without any particular reference to the Sacco-Vanzetti case).

The snobbery of the Eastern intelligentsia is no more tolerable than the snobbery of the rich man's son. Education should teach anything but snobbishness, and among academic men there should be a tolerance and sympathy arising out of knowledge which we have failed to find in most of that which emanates from Eastern cultural sources.

In spite of Indiana, Chicago's gunmen, Len Small, and the Chicago Tribune we are proud of Wisconsin's "Forward," Chicago's "I Will," and the general spirit of the Middle West. Here's a toast, then, to the "Valley!"

A cigarette tax in Wisconsin, to our notion, would be an extremely wise measure. Such a law will not decrease the use of tobacco, but it will certainly provide a legitimate source of revenue for the state. The amount of money that such a tax would bring in, to be used for educational purposes, would be a blessing for a state which must annually endow a great state university.

The burden of the tax would rest upon the consumer of a luxury and would therefore be a just tax according to the maxims for sound taxation laid down by the economist Adam Smith years ago. Besides it would be a convenient tax and relatively simple in levying and collecting.

EXTRA! FROSH

CAUGHT WITH CAP
MADISON, Wis.—The rumor which has been current among the student body for the past week that a Frosh was seen wearing his green hat was confirmed late last night.

Appeal was immediately made to Mr. Owen of the Discipline committee, and it is expected that he and his committee members will make all haste in upholding the state tradition of rapid justice in their meeting to be held today just prior to the Engineer's parade.

"The parade cannot continue until we have gotten to the bottom of this sinister bit of evidence which is a mockery of our dead-for-all-time traditions here at Wisconsin," Mr. Owen said in a statement to the press last night. It is feared in official university circles that this unwarranted display of the green is a forerunner of a general wave of Student anarchy which will sweep over the country on May 1.

Print 3 Editions of Chick Bulletin at Agric School

A bulletin so popular that it has had three large editions during the last two and one-half years is that called "New Chick Feeding Facts" put out by the College of Agriculture.

"Outdoor Flowers for the Home" is another new and greatly demanded bulletin. Other bulletins are put out on home economics subjects. Among these, the asked for most are "What to Feed the Children," "Vegetable Cookery," "Peas in the Diet," "Sewing for Girls," and "Good Fitting Shoes for Every Member of the Family."

Material on agriculture and home economics is sent to a mailing list built up on individual application and classified according to subjects upon which bulletins are issued. Individual publications are sent upon request from farmers, schools, business houses, and others interested. More than 41,000 requests are received throughout the year. These requests range from one bulletin to over 100 for bulletin file. During the last ten years the mailing list of the College of Agriculture has more than doubled.

Twenty-five members of the International club, representing 16 countries, left yesterday for Janesville where they have been invited to spend the week end.

A very definite program has been planned for the week-end. Last night different members of the International club entertained their audience by musical numbers and speeches.

Some of those participating in the program were Augustine Rodolpho, of the Philippine Islands, K. S. Shelvankar, India, and George Sakamaki, Hawaii. Tonight the club will be entertained by the young

MISS SARA NORRIS, CHADBOURNE, IMPROVES CHILE CO-ED LIFE

Miss Sara Norris, hostess of Chadbourne hall, has been very influential in improving the living conditions of women in Chilean universities. This work she did as "Primera directora" of the "Hogar Anglo - Chileno" (English - Chilean House) at the University of Chile, Santiago. The Hogar, being the first of its kind in that city, is a home for women students. It corresponds to our halls of residence for women.

Previous to the founding of this house, there were arrangements for housing of the women. In 1912 the Methodist church at the request of Dr. Galvez, head of the English department at the University of Chile, opened the Hogar as a residence for university women. Its purpose was then to give students in English a chance for daily use of the English language in order to acquire correct accent.

Its scope has since been enlarged, so that now more than 50 women of all departments—law, medicine, pharmacy, dentistry, engineering, pedagogy, music, and business—reside there. It has brought the true college spirit to its occupants.

After the founding of the Hogar, Mrs. Hyslop, a Canadian lady, was "Primera directora" for four years.

She was succeeded by Miss Norris, who has been teaching music in Santiago college for one year. She remained in this position for four years, after which she returned to the U. S.

Much was done at the Hogar to give it the same atmosphere as our college residences. "Conferencias" or lectures were given at the house by any noted Americans and foreigners who came to Santiago. Parties were given, and the girls went on moonlight picnics into the mountains. Students of the English department were guests at many teas. Contrary to the customs of Chile, men were allowed to visit the house, and took part in the parties and picnics of the girls. The Hogar supplied wholesome food and pleasant occasions for its women.

Miss Norris says that Chilean women are fully as advanced as we are, contrary to the supposition of most people. "We of this country are generally led to suppose that South American women are backward, but the fallacy of this thought is evident by the fact that women are engaged in studying many professions. They are allowed a broader choice of subjects than even the women of our universities.

"Their styles are also more advanced than ours since they get them direct from Paris a year before we do. The reason for this is that their seasons are exactly opposite to ours."

Miss Norris still keeps in close communication with the Hogar. One of the women who lived there during Miss Norris's stay, Blanca Bahamondes, is now teaching in Southwestern college, Winfield, Kansas. One of the men students, who was a frequent guest at that house, Francisco Aguilera, has been an instructor at Yale for four years.

While she was in Santiago, Miss Norris was also president of the Women's Auxiliary to the American society of Chile. It was founded during her stay there, she being secretary at that time.

MISS ROSENTIEL
TALKS APRIL 29

"Necessity of Preparing for Occupations," is Subject of W. S. G. A. Lecture

"The Necessity of Preparing for an Occupation" is the subject chosen by Miss Mildred Rosenstiel for her lecture at Lathrop hall Friday afternoon, April 29, to be given under the auspices of W. S. G. A. Miss Rosenstiel, as manager of the Woman's Occupational bureau at Minneapolis, Minnesota, is particularly well qualified to speak on the subject of the proper preparation for future work, and will bring to her audience a conception, based on experience, of the value of the right kind of preparation.

That the university women are unusually interested in the great variety of vocations from which they may choose is illustrated by an estimate that Dean F. Louise Nardin drew up this winter. Dean Nardin said, "When undergraduate women registered for the second semester at the University of Wisconsin Feb. 1927, each was asked to set down the field of work which she expected to enter after college. About 1700 stated their plans. More than 80 different occupations were named as the future choice of young women. If they carry out their plans Wisconsin women will be found in widely differing pursuits.

Miss Rosenstiel will be at the university both Friday and Saturday of next week, and will be available for individual conferences on both days. Upperclassmen, and particularly seniors are urged to arrange for these 15 minute conferences with her. Schedules on which to sign will be posted on the W. S. G. A. bulletin board in Lathrop hall the early part of next week.

Students Make Trip to Baraboo; Examine Geology

In an effort to ascertain the general geological aspects of the region surrounding Devil's Lake, 80 students taking geology 1 are today, exploring the lower narrows of Baraboo river.

The party which left Madison Friday morning was accompanied by Prof. W. H. Twenhofel, Prof. H. S. Bostock, and Prof. M. D. Harbaugh, all of the geology department. Miriam Wolleger '27 is acting as chaperone.

The geology students yesterday roamed over the bluffs on the north side of Devil's lake examining the rocks and features of that section. In the afternoon they walked into Baraboo where they remained at night. Sunday morning they will take a train to Aibilemans and there they will study the geology of the upper narrows of the Baraboo river. The party will return to Madison at 5:20 o'clock Sunday afternoon on the Northwestern line.

Of the 80 members of the geology party, 22 are women students.

PAXSON DESTROYS "WEST" ILLUSIONS

Stage Coach Passengers Were Miserable, Says Professor in Lecture

Professor Fredrick Paxon in a lecture yesterday in History of the West destroyed all the romance and illusions which we mid-westerners and Easterners have built about the western stage coaches and pony express of the nineteenth century. Describing the stage coach trip from St. Louis to Sacramento he said that from eight to 12 passengers were crowded into a space six inches narrower and a foot shorter than the seats in Bascom Hall.

The horses were well cared for and looked after at the station houses which were located every 30 or 40 miles along the route, but the passengers had to exist as best they could for they were given a minimum amount of food.

The horses were necessary but the human freight was undesirable and inconvenient. Prof. Paxon said that any person taking the trip once had enough experiences and information on travel to last him the remainder of his life and he never took another. Prof. Paxon expressed sympathy for the persons who took their allotted 25 pounds of freight in a jug. He said that in many trips two and three of the passengers had to be tied into their seats to avoid injuring themselves because of the contents of said jug.

This picture is surely different from the scenes presented by the movies in which the heroine is inevitably hanging out of the window, there are only two very small holes in the stage which was actually used. Also the real thing didn't go careening over roads at 20 miles an hour instead they traveled over ground which had no roadbeds and averaged about five miles an hour.

Hence in addition to our having our ideas about our national heroes, Lincoln and Washington corrupted the fiction romanticism connected with the West is being torn down to show the actual hardships and crudity of that section.
