What Can Americans Do For Russia?

BY
SELIG PERLMAN

The University Graduate

Insures his life liberally, and selects his insurance company and policy with judgment. The trained intelligence that is the product of his college course enables him to understand the great benefits of Life Insurance. Moreover, the power to analyze facts teaches him the importance of selection and correct valuation.

Such a man grasps with ease the merits of the proposal of the NEW ENGLAND MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, of Boston. This Company—the oldest chartered in America, 1835—has stood consistently for the highest ideals of insurance service. Its administration has been progressive, absolutely fair, and in the fullest degree has safeguarded the interests of all policyholders. The Policy Contract of the NEW ENGLAND MUTUAL is the most liberal written. It embodies in a perfect form the principle of strictly Mutual Life Insurance.

You will appreciate the truth of these statements if you will send for the booklet "Four Facts."

"We need one accord more than we need culture."

Volume XIX

Madison, Wis., April, 1918

Number 6

Wisconsin has joined the American University Union in Europe. With one accord students, faculty, employees, and alumni have endorsed the project with material financial assistance. The generous donations have been democratic, free-will offerings from hundreds of individuals. The good spirit of generosity has, of course, helped the givers as well as the receivers. It is gratifying that the powerful spirit of cooperation is growing, increasing, and waxing strong. We who always compare our University to a kindly Mother should not fail to realize that in us rests the ability to make our Alma Mater an ever increasing source of beneficent power. As students, as employees, as graduates, as faculty members, we all receive much from our powerful Mother so we take much pride and great pleasure when we do our share toward renewing and increasing her power and her strength.

To be enrolled as a member of the University Union in Europe is a big thing. To act with one accord—faculty, alumni, students, employees—is a bigger thing. Have we ever done a greater thing? Have we ever done a better thing? If the spirit of unanimity, which enables us all with one accord to cooperate so successfully in behalf of the American University Union in Europe, will now continue with us so that we can forever cast aside the fallacies that because a man is a faculty man he is not a loyal alumnus, or because a woman is an undergraduate she is a mere frivolous child, or because a graduate is not a faculty member he has no sympathy with academic problems, or because a graduate is a faculty member he has no sympathy with problems other than those academic, there can be but one answer to the queries as to whether we have ever done bigger, greater, or better things as children of Wisconsin.

When the idea of cooperating in raising funds was suggested, the voices of agreement were many, and the voices of disagreement were so few that they soon ceased. As children of the same mother we have demonstrated our ability to cooperate, to act with one accord. By continuing to work together we shall learn to assume rather than to shift burdens. When work is to be done we shall forget the easy-conscience-easer sure cure, "Let George Do It." We shall get over the tendency to shift responsibility from regents to faculty, to alumni, to students, and back to faculty, to alumni, to regents in a sort of a "waltz-me-around-again-Willie-around-and-around-and-around" manner. Let's continue cooperation. It's great fun and it helps us all. Any good cause which the University undertakes will be all the better for having the support of all the University's children. By working together we shall learn to act with one accord. While we need culture, we also need cooperation, unanimity, one accord. "We need one accord more than we need culture."

WHAT CAN AMERICANS DO FOR RUSSIA?

By SELIG PERLMAN, '10

Americans can do nothing better for Russia than take their cue from their great President. What Russia needs at the present juncture is sympathy and aid. I place sympathy before aid advisedly. Russia is not "down and out," as some may imagine. Russia is simply like a giant recently awakened from his sleep, who is rubbing his eyes and trying to understand what sort of a game it is which his crafty opponent is playing on him. If at this critical time in her history Russia will get the proper sort of advice and, what is even of greater importance than this, if the advice will be given to her in a spirit of sympathetic understanding and of broad minded forbearance for all the mistakes she may have committed in the past or may commit in the future, she will then easily recover her mental balance and will reoccupy her rightful place in the family of nations to her own benefit and to the benefit of the rest of the world.

The Russians have been going to school to foreigners ever since the time of Peter the Great. In recent years Russia has become Germany's special ward, largely through the fault of her autocratic government. The Germans have proved anything but disinterested mentors. Russia sees it now and is therefore stretching out her hand towards a new teacher. America has a chance to become Russia's new teacher, provided she is able to emulate the wonderful patience of the greatest pedagogue who ever ruled over a great nation.

Russia cannot be weaned from Bolshevism by mere expressions of horror at the rash experiments of Lenine and Trotzky. Withold your condemnation for a while even if you are certain that the experiment will end in disaster—let the child learn to keep away from fire by burning its finger once! Then and then only will the child learn.

What further can individual Americans do for Russia? They can help Russia to regain an economic equilibrium by lending her the benefit of their own experience. That need not even be done in an entirely disinterested spirit. All that is wanted is that American business men should take a far sighted point of view. They should try to develop markets rather than coin immediate profits. They should try to develop commercial good will rather than merely opportunities for reaping immediate advantages. Let them view the Russian market in the light of an orchard which is planted today in order that we may have fruit-bearing trees in twenty or thirty years.

The Russians are psychically prepared for an American mentorship. Aside from transient ill-feeling against America, largely due to fanatical propagandists, Russia is Americanophile at heart. Let Americans seize Russia's outstretched hand and help along the cause of the progress of Russia and of the human race in general!

In 1890 T. C. Chamberlain (in the center) first conceived the idea of a fat test for milk. He came to Dean W. A. Henry (on the left) of the Wisconsin Experiment Station, for help in perfecting the idea. Both turned to Dr. Babcock, the scientist, to work out the details in a practical way. Last summer when these three eminent scientists met again in Madison this picture was taken.

ATHLETICS

By W. D. RICHARDSON, Alumni Member of the Athletic Council

Five western intercollegiate conference championships in seven years. That is the record that the Badgers have established in basketball—a record that is unsurpassed by any institution in the country. Four of these were won under the guidance of Dr. Meanwell, who left Wisconsin last year to go to Missouri in the capacity of director of athletics, and the final was won by this year's basketball coach, G. S. Lowman, who came here last fall from Indiana to take the place of Dr. Meanwell.

This year's victory came as a complete surprise to Wisconsin followers and it came in spite of conditions that looked hopeless when the season opened. When Meanwell left, the cry went up that Wisconsin was due for a great slump. To make conditions all the worse, five of the regulars who were counted on to make up the 1917-18 team left school to enter the war service and, when the season opened, the poorest prospects and the hardest schedule faced the new coach. He started in to work, however, but in the preliminary season the Badgers looked hopelessly out of the running. In the game with Marquette the Badgers barely nosed out a victory.

When the conference season opened, there were only two regulars from the preceding year available—Captain Chandler and Eber Simpson, the former with two years' experience and the latter a substitute from the season before. There were also two men from the freshman team—Zulfer and Maisel. Coach Lowman developed a man, who had never played varsity basketball before, into a guard and with this line-up the Badgers faced Northwestern in the opening game of the season. As was expected the Badgers went down in a humiliating defeat. But they captured the next game and the one following and they finished the first semester with a record of five games won and one lost.

Then came the news that Captain Chandler had enlisted in the navy and that Swenson, who had developed into one of the best guards that the Badgers have had, was ineligible. To offset this, however, Knapp, star on the freshman team a year ago, returned to college.

In the first game of the semester, the Badgers, handicapped by reason of a long vacation while the gymnasium was closed down as a part of the coal conservation plan, and by the reorganization which was caused by Swenson's ineligibility, lost to Chicago. It was a bitter blow to Badger prospects for by this time Wisconsin was conceded as having a good chance of winning the title. The crucial point came, however, when the Badgers met Minnesota at Minneapolis. A victory meant a chance for the title and a defeat meant almost certain elimination from the race. In the closing minutes of that game, the Badgers came through and nosed out the Gophers by a single point. This gave them the lead in the race but in order to win the title the Badgers were forced to defeat Chicago, Northwestern, and Purdue. They vanquished the Maroons and Purple and then went down to LaFayette for the all-important battle with the Boilermakers. Once more they snatched victory out of the air, winning in the closing minutes and clinching the championship.

The winning of the title has established Coach Lowman here as a worthy successor to Coach Meanwell. He had the greenest kind of material to work with and toward the end of the season he had developed them into a team that compares favorably with the teams that have gone before—teams that will go down into history as the greatest that the conference has ever produced. Although the large share of the credit must go to Coach Lowman, Captain Chandler comes in for a portion, for it was his playing and his leadership that assisted materially in winning many of the games. He and Simpson, the only two veterans on the team, inspired the other men by their own efforts and turned many defeats into victories. Coach Lowman's coaching ability was more than demonstrated by the fact that he took two men—Swenson, the first semester, and Brock, the second—and made them into stars. Neither had had any previous experience but they developed into the best guards that Wisconsin ever had.

Alumni all over the country will be interested in knowing that the regents have reappointed "Big John" Richards as head football coach for a period of three years. He has been given an assistant professorship in the department of Physical Education. This means a fixed policy with regard to football, something that the Badgers have never before had. Last fall with only fair material Richards turned out a great team and one that barely missed winning the western title.

WISCONSIN ALUMNI CLUBS

"Sit together, listen together, sing together, eat together, and talk together and you'll work together."

LA CROSSE

By CATHARINE E. HAYES, '08

We held our annual dinner at the Chamber of Commerce, Saturday, February 9. Judge Hallam, '87, of the Minnesota Supreme Court, was guest of honor and spoke on "Wisconsin's Opportunity." B. E. McCormick, '04, in his toast, "U. W. in War Time" proved that Wisconsin is no "quitter" and that she is playing the game with a will. Helen Dorset, ex '99, read an original poem, "The Modern Quest of the Grail." Judge Brindley, '74, and former Regent Evans, responded, when called on by President Schweizer, '87. The executive board was directed to assist the General Alumni Association in procuring the names of former students who are now in the service of the U. S.

The following officers were elected: A. H. Sanford, '91, president; Helen Dorset, vice president; Catharine Hayes, secretary-treasurer; C. H. Schweizer and Anna Mashek, '99, members of the executive board.

MINNEAPOLIS

By R. F. DUNCAN, EX '13

We had an annual dinner of the Minneapolis Association last night, at which President Van Hise was present. We voted to raise $75.00 annually toward the support of the Wisconsin share of the University Club at Paris.

We raised most of this at the time, and if you will let me know when you need the money I will send you a check.

SHORT COURSE ROOKIES

By A. W. HOPKINS, '03

To be able to give an earlier and better answer to the call, if asked to turn from the nation's agricultural to its military service, every one of

by the government, and the men have been organized into a battalion of four companies. Their training is being rushed as much as is wise in order to the short course students at the College of Agriculture is voluntarily taking a course in military drill. The time over which the course extends is not great enough to make it wise or even possible for the men to obtain uniforms, but rifles have been furnished give them the greatest possible benefit before they leave in March. Major A. R. Kerwin, U. S. A., Retired, commandant, is in charge of the work. He is assisted by two retired army sergeants and four officers from the R. O. T. C. who are the captains.

THE HONOR ROLL

By S. S. HICKOX, '14

Wisconsin wants the name, rank or title, and definite mailing address—company, regiment, branch of service, etc.—of every alumnus, faculty member, or former student in military, naval, governmental, state, industrial, Y. M. C. A., or other similar war service. It wants that anyway. Then, if documents and a narrative of his work, ups and downs of experience, point of view, etc., can be enticed from each man, or if clippings, photographs, letters and the like, can be coaxed from his relatives or friends, Wisconsin wants them too. They will be most valuable in the future.

Wisconsin faculty war records are substantially complete. That is, the names, and so far as obtainable, the addresses of faculty members who have entered service are on file in the office of the Secretary of the Faculty. Letters describing their work—letters always too brief and businesslike—are carefully preserved for some future historian. Original papers and documents, valuable source material for that historian have been sought; and those received in response have been docketed. About 125 faculty members are now listed.

Wisconsin student war records are not complete in spite of more attention given them than the faculty records. Eight hundred names more or less is the best boast.

Two thousand two hundred fifty return post cards have gone to men who were here last year but not here this year. The returns are now being recorded. Similar cards will be sent to those leaving from time to time where addresses are available—usually to homes.

By these means recent Wisconsin men are reached. Cost prohibits addressing each one of those who have gone before. Help us reach these older Wisconsinites, you alumni and friends! If you are in service yourself, fill in a blank (see next page), and then add the names of Wisconsin comrades in service. Don't take it for granted that we have their names. We hope we have, but the chances are we haven't. If you are not in service, you are hereby constituted a "war record agent" to round up new names for Wisconsin's Honor Roll. If necessary, your commission will be forwarded in the form of a bundle of return post cards. Send your acceptance to the office of the Secretary of the Faculty, 821 State Street, Madison. However, no "commission" is needed. Just mail the names in any sort of a list.

Women's names are not to be overlooked either. No campaign has been waged for their side of the story yet, but it has been due to lack of time and means, not to want of inclination. The proportion of women in real war service is too small to warrant addressing them individually. However, their names are vital to a complete record. Work at home on Red Cross and food saving is taken for granted, but direct war service in hospitals, camp Y. M. C. A.'s, journalism, governmental or state service, etc., deserves a place in the records. You alumni and friends are the only source for this information.

Wisconsin's faculty, student and employee honor roll of those in uniform for their country and its allies is to be posted in the hall of the Library within a few weeks. On it will go the name and the mailing address of every person reported. From it will be made Wisconsin's permanent honor roll.

Help lengthen that honor roll! You need not be in service to do it—send in the names of those who are.

BOOK NOTES

Brief reviews of writings by Wisconsin students, alumni, and faculty.

Economic History of Wisconsin during the Civil War Decade, by Frederick Merk, '11, (Wis St. His. Society). The book deals with the development of agriculture, lumbering, mining, manufacturing, labor, banking, and trade in its first eight chapters. Then follow five chapters the general theme of which is the railroad, the disastrous railroad farm mortgage, railroad construction, regulation, and kindred problems. The last two chapters deal with commerce on the Great Lakes and the Mississippi.

Minnesota History Bulletin, edited by Solon J. Buck, '04. (Minn. His. Society), contains an interesting translation of Ole Rynning's, "True Account of America, 1838," a number of excellent book reviews, notes of the Society, and news and comment which should be of interest to students of history.

WAR RECORDS

The General Alumni Association desires to collect and preserve a record of the service performed by every University of Wisconsin man in the present war. Information concerning every person who has been enrolled in any department of the University, or who has been or is a member of its teaching staff, and who is engaged in any form of service connected with the prosecution of the war—whether in military or civil lines—is desired. It is urged that every person to whom this notice comes report for themselves and for their friends so that no one may be missed. This is most important and we hope that the alumni may respond promptly. If you cannot give full information about the person engaged in such work kindly send name and tell us where further information may be obtained. The colleges of the country have reason to be proud of the way in which the students and alumni have responded to the call for service. We know that Wisconsin is not behind other colleges in this respect but we want the facts to show it and we also want to give the men and women who have taken an active part in this war their due meed of credit for their patriotic devotion.

AMERICAN UNIVERSITY UNION

PARIS, Feb. 1, 1918

It would be of interest to us if you could send us a complete list of the Wisconsin men whom you know to be in France, or who come in the next year or so. This would enable us to keep in closer touch with them,-- to make sure that they register as they arrive, etc. We would be glad also for any other information you care to send, for we wish of course to be of the largest possible service to the American University men in France.

Sincerely yours,

ALUMNI REUNIONS

"There is, I believe, a new obligation of friendship upon us all; a necessity for social gatherings. Friends are parting; circles are being broken Wisconsin men should endeavor to get together even more than ever before if only for the reason that it may soon be impossible to meet. These gatherings, in keeping with the habits of the times, should be simpler and less expensive. In some cases there will be informal dinners. In others, luncheons or smokers—the excuse matters little. Certainly inexpensive affairs can easily be arranged. We hope that you are planning to meet regularly. Let us make the most of Wisconsin associations and friendships before it is too late."

FROM SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE

By A. R. Albert, '15

I have been in Canada, saw Niagara, passed down the Hudson from Albany, spent a week in New York, another in _____, and then spent sixteen days crossing the Atlantic. We weathered one of the worst storms they've had, passed safely thru the "sub" zone and landed at _____. I have been in England but not London, and have seen a goodly share of France. I don't think I'm permitted to tell the points I've been at but I succeeded in being in Paris at the time of the last raid. A bomb bursting within two blocks did not succeed in shaking me out of bed so I saw nothing but the effects in the morning. The force of splinters is astounding, indeed. I have visited a few of the Chateaux of the Loire and have seen the vineyards there.

As for the war itself: You know more about its progress than I do. Although I do get, first hand, the sentiments of French and second hand the English and German to some extent. Everyone is hoping the war will end soon. Aside from that, discussion is "Verboten."

Some of the soil here resembles the Colby; it is mottled and just as sticky. On the whole the soils are light colored. There are many grass plots, but not many legumes in the grain section of the Loire. The land is all utilized and conserved by means of retaining walls in railroad cuts, curbed ditches, etc. But there is always room for trees, shrubs, and hedges. I have seen no snow since leaving England and ice only once and frosts about half of the mornings. It is quite damp, however, and at present I have a cold. There is no frost in the ground. Trees here are not like ours. If ours were here they'd start growing "tout de suite."

Paris is quite a burg, but I never did see such a confusion of streets. There must be a few thousand of them and each has a name,—no numbers. You really need a directory, a map, and an intelligent taxi driver who "Comprenez" your French and gestures before you can navigate. The subway system is very good here. It is more all inclusive than that of New York or the "L" in Chicago. The women are up to their reputation, indeed. The famous buildings I intend to see next Sunday or the one after.

I haven't had a speck of mail since leaving New York and I am becoming impatient. I suppose I'll have a basketful when it does find me. At odd times I study French, but we are pretty busy. I have learned enough to get around and buy what I need. We have a good place to stay, and excellent food. We even have sugar which is more than some improvident Americans can say. These French are cool-blooded and for that reason and others it is never very warm indoors and I shall welcome summer. By that time I may be in action and unable to enjoy it, but perhaps the poppies on my grave will if I shall have become inactive. In truth though, I feel confident of seeing the statue of Liberty again. I last saw it at the beginning of Xmas eve. I enjoyed my Xmas dinner all right but the day after was not as good. I only missed one meal though.

Gosh, I'd like to spend a day in Wisconsin but I'm glad I'm here. I haven't been as contented with myself for a long time. When I return I shall probably have seen enough of the world.

If you answer remember that U. S. A. is home now. Anything is welcome. We get European editions of the N. Y. Herald and Chicago Tribune, but clippings will be appreciated and take less time than a letter. Address Tractor Artillery School, U. S. A. P. O. 702, Am. E. F. France.

FROM SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE

By Lt. M. W. Sergeant, '18

At last I am about to start on its long trip a message to you from picturesque France,—from the land we associate with "The Tale of Two Cities," the Bastille, the works of Hugo, Dumas, and others; and more recently and vividly with the Great War, which reminds us of Napoleon's power—well, that isn't exactly what I started to say. How are you all, individually and collectively, and how is dear old WISCONSIN?

Yes, I am very well, thank you, and I have enjoyed every day in France and did enjoy my voyage across the Atlantic. Not even a touch of sea-sickness developed to mar my happiness, although we did encounter rough seas for a couple of days. Our ship was a palace, and my stateroom all that could be desired, even to a private bath.

Of course I dare not tell you of all I have seen, even if I had the time and eloquence at my command; but I may say, I believe, that I have already visited some places that, through the medium of Dumas' tales European histories, and modern newspapers, are not unknown in America. I am even now quartered in barracks built by Napoleon, and in a city first built some 150 years B. C. by the Romans (I guess). The old Roman walls, gates, moats, and drawbridges are still in some measure intact, though probably less formidable barriers than they were at the time Marcus Aurelius visited the city.

France lacks much, even in the larger cities, that we in America consider indispensable, but in spite of these shortcomings I can see the true worth and spirit of the country, and, whatever my sacrifice may be, France is welcome. Although sewers, waterworks, bath and sanitary appliances are crude or entirely lacking here, the French people can point to our waste lands; our ubiquitous piles of tin cans, waste paper, broken bottles, etc.; our dirty fence corners; our tumbledown shacks; our crooked streams; and our unpruned, neglected orchards and forests, and tell us that such things are unknown in their country. Indeed, every tree and shrub is pruned and cared for, even in the forests here, as tenderly as a child. Every inch of productive soil is carefully tilled. All buildings are of brick, stone, or concrete with roofs of red tile or beautiful reddish-mottled slate. Fences are out of the question, but beautiful hedges, or walls of stone are common, and even the railroad right-of-way is bounded by a hedge-row. Miles of land in some localities may be passed through without seeing any crop but grapes, which are used for the national drink. Neat apple orchards are quite frequent, but no more so than tracts of planted forest trees, which also stand sentinel on either side of every roadway and stream to give mute evidence of the care and thoughtfulness of these people who know when and how to conserve. Even the streams run where the landowner tells them to go. No impulsive young brook is allowed to wander all over a beautiful piece of valley land. It must go in a straight line.

When one approaches a French town by railway, . . . instead of the places growing progressively dingy and dirty through all stages of shacks and ruins until the station is reached, the places grow neater as they grow smaller. Every little cot is set apart from its neighbor by a stone wall or beautiful hedge, vines and a few trees are in the larger enclosures, and even in the back yards of the business lots every foot of soil is in garden, and not so much as a scrap of waste paper mars the neatness of the scene. . . . Truly, dear people, I am sorely smitten with the blessed tidiness of France! . . .

Many of my old friends and school-mates are in France, several at this post as well as at every other post in the country. Wisconsin can surely be proud of the number of men the old school has put into the fight. Address: M. W. Sergeant, 1st Lt. Inf. R. C., A. E. F. Unassigned. 1—29—18.

A MONTHLY INCOME FOR YOU

Money intrusted to us for this purpose is made secure by every possible means. It is invested in first mortgages on property worth at least double the amount of the loan, approved by our executive committee and by our attorneys. Only such mortgages are assigned to you and become your own property. We collect the interest; see that the taxes are paid, and that the insurance is kept in force. We then pay you a regular income on the first of each month.

There are several important advantages to this plan besides that of receiving a regular amount on the first of each month. Your income begins from the day you leave your funds with the Trust Company and continues to come in in regular monthly installments so long as you continue the arrangement. There are no periods when you have no income or where the income is reduced by reason of having only a part of your money invested.

You have the safest of all securities,—namely, first mortgages on real estate.

In the selection of your mortgages you have the benefit of the judgment of men who have been lending money for the greater part of their lives,—men whose judgment is well recognized in the community. No loan will be made if there is objection made on the part of any one of our Loan Committee. You will have absolutely no trouble in connection with your investments.

Your income will be as large as it is now and probably larger. An interview will quickly determine this.
