Hoover Praised by Ambassador in Union Speech

Small Group Hears Miles
Poindexter in Republican Campaign Talk

Miles Poindexter, American ambassador to Peru and former member of the U. S. senate, defended and lauded the policies of Herbert Hoover and the Republican party in an address delivered last night to a sparse gathering in the Great hall of the Memorial Union.

His address was one of a series sponsored by the Liberal club in its endeavor to bring before the student body representatives of the various political parties.

Terms Hoover Progressive

"They say that Hoover is not a progressive," Mr. Poindexter challenged, "there are various kinds of progressives. Theodore Roosevelt was a progressive, so is Senator Norris."

"Mr. Hoover says that it would be his idea to help abolish poverty so far as the government can do it. Is that progressive?"

"He pledges himself to the betterment of the American home. Is that progressive?"

Says Smith Is Evasive

In discussing the waterpower issue, the speaker stated that "Al Smith is evasive" on the topic more than his opponent because "his Wall Street alliances, headed by Raskob, require him to be so."

He went on to cite Hoover's enthusiasm for the Columbia river basin and Boulder dam projects, at the same time hitting the New York governor for his "narrowmindedness on the St. Lawrence Canal," stating that he opposed the project because the plans for the canal had failed to include New York state.

Attacks New York

Launching into a vigorous attack on New York principals and policies, the ambassador said to his audience: "New York is more of a foreign city than an American city. In all the times Smith has been elected governor, he never carried more than one or two counties outside of New York city. New York spirit is not the American spirit. I contend that it is the west that smacks of the American spirit."

Praises Immigration Policy

The Hoover policy on immigration came in for praise when he pointed out that "it has always been a Re-

Meek Addresses Freshman Medics at Y. M. Smoker

Sigma Sigma, honorary medical organization, entertained the first year medical class at a smoker held at the University Y. M. C. A. Wednesday evening.

The honor system of the local medical school was explained to the entering class, and class officers were elected, including members of the honor committee. Dr. W. J. Meek, assistant dean of the Medicine school, gave a brief address, encouraging those interested in research. The officers elected were:

President, William Olson '29; vice president, William Engels '30; secretary and treasurer, Arthur Hansen '29; honor committee, Walter Rogers '29.

He-Men, Tea-Hounds, and Co-Eds Get Varsity Off To Michigan

By H. J. S.

A chill wind blew across the lower campus . . . the sky was filled with scudding clouds, as darkness began to descend on Langdon street. At the doors of the gym a group of cheerleaders awaited the coming of the band. Presently the distant sound of drums was heard, and almost immediately a dozen or so of musicians appeared on the ground in front of the library, followed by a straggling crowd of students. Thus was begun last night the send off of the varsity to Michigan.

The well known fog horn was much in evidence, calling the scholars from their books, the bridge players from the security of their leather chairs, and the imbibers of lemon cokes from the warmth of the drug stores.

Freshman Girls Masquerade for Athletic Party

Nine twenty-five in the evening on State street and all's well. The streets near the campus are deserted except for some students hurrying from the library.

Giggling . . . two ladies saunter by State street near the library. Strange dresses . . . one, a pretty little blonde, wears a sort of ruffled dress with panty way down to the ankles—crinoline dresses of the Civil war period. The other, fair and auburn-haired, wears the Puritan garb of a famous anti-liquor society.

What's the idea of the costumes . . . a masquerade on a week night? No, merely the party given by the women physical education majors . . . Virginia and Hilda . . . just freshmen.

Nine thirty on State street and all's well.

Lobeck Speaks to Geographers

Explains Thrills and Sights of Airplane Ride in Germany

"Roaring over the countryside in an airplane at 100 miles an hour can't compare with a train as the best traveling way of studying physiography, but it certainly is a thrilling experience and not without certain unusual compensations because of the 'bird's eye view' of the landscape."

This was the comment made yesterday afternoon by Prof. A. K. Lobeck of the geography department when he spoke at the first meeting of the Geographers club of his 1,000 mile airplane tour taken this past summer from Berlin to Venice.

The speaker stressed the significance of geography in the life and modes of people. "In certain villages all the houses appear glistening white because they are made from the limestone which is abundant in that particular locality; whereas in passing over other sections the buildings present a more somber aspect, being made of local sandstone, which is darker."

"The concentration of families in villages which are surrounded by the villagers' tiny farms is plainly visible from the air. It shows the striking contrast to American farmlands on which each farmer lives alone with his family instead of being grouped together with others of his kind."

"If one is flying in a plane less than 1,000 feet above the ground the upward air currents make traveling bumpy—like hitting waves while rowing in a small boat. All the pilot seemed to do was to watch the controls and pick out emergency landing places. Sometimes they flew so close to the mountain walls and crags that they nearly knocked the feathers off the wings," remarked Prof. Lobeck.

Graduates Will Hold Dinner in Union Monday

The graduate club will hold an informal dinner for all graduate students next Monday at 6 p. m. in the Old Madison room of the Memorial Union. W. N. Banskfield is in charge of the banquet. An election of officers is planned at the dinner.

Hesperia Tries Vainly to Solve Election Riddle

Society Has Heated Debate
But Makes No
Decision

"We believe that the past of a man is as important as all his promises for the future. Herbert Hoover has proven himself by past experiences," stated Otto Zerwick '29 in a debate on the presidential candidates at the meeting of the Hesperia society last night.

Smith as "a man of the people" and one of great legislative ability was pictured in glowing terms by Zerwick's opponents. They spent much of their time in criticizing Hoover as an engineer, and attempting to prove that he is not a statesman.

Zerwick and Lester Whitney '30 spoke for Hoover, while Edgar Schoepp '29 and Milton Meienborg '30 favored Smith.

Hoover Ridiculed

In bellowing tones with much emphatic gesturing, Meienborg ridiculed the Republican candidate as "Hoover, the engineer," and "Hoover, the helper of the Swiss and starving Europeans."

"There's one way in which Hoover, if elected, will be different from any other president," he said. "He will be the first one who ever sailed under the British flag when old enough to vote."

Zerwick Retaliates

"All through his campaign Smith has essentially been a New Yorker and a Tammany haller," answered Zerwick. "Everywhere he is seen favoring industrialized New York. Even his position against the St. Lawrence waterway question has been that of New York."

In rebuttal, Meienborg pointed out

Harems Taboo in Turkish Republic

Foreign Student to Tell International Club of New Regime

"Prohibition of polygamy in Turkey is but one of many new laws passed since the founding of the Turkish republic by Mustapha Kemal," states Azmi Djemil, who will speak on the present conditions of his country before the International club at 7:45 p. m. today in the Assembly room of the Memorial Union.

"Europe," said Mr. Azmi, "has always taken a wrong attitude towards Turkey, considering it as 'the sick man of Europe.' This was true in the centuries after 1683 up to 1921, but at the present does not hold good. A republic has been adopted."

Sultan Deposed

"In 1921 the sultan was deposed. Two years later the republican form of government was adopted; many constructive new laws were passed, such as the adoption of the Swiss and Italian civil and criminal codes, instead of the old ones."

"A president is elected every four years by the lower house, which in turn, is elected directly by the people. Mustapha Kemal was the first president and has been reelected recently."

Is Engineering Student

Mr. Azmi is from Kiretch Bournou, Bosphorus, Constantinople, and has been in this country for six weeks. He is at present taking the graduate course in structural engineering of this university.

Besides this speech the club will hear the different tunes from all nations of the world sung extemporaneously. To give a touch of Americanism, Halloween spirit will be introduced in forms of surprise events.

Elections for the posts of vice-president and secretary will also be held. New foreigners to Wisconsin are especially welcome at the meeting, according to Agustin Rodolfo, Philipines, president of the club.

DESK STAFF

The regular Friday meeting of the Daily Cardinal desk staff has been postponed until 4:30 p. m. next Monday.

Hold Conference of Farm Faculty

Extension Group Meets to Discuss Innovations in Agriculture

A group of Wisconsin College of Agriculture faculty members, about 100 in number, will come to Madison on Nov. 7 to participate in a three-day conference in which administrative problems pertaining to extension work among Badger farmers will be discussed.

Many of these men hold degrees obtained at the University of Wisconsin and all of them are members of the college faculty, although their work extends throughout the state. They come to the university at least once a year to keep in touch with new developments in the agricultural field and to discuss common problems. The meetings are usually arranged to coincide with the schedule of a Wisconsin football game. This year they will have an opportunity to see the Homecoming game.

Members of the committee in charge of the program for this year's conference are E. L. Luther, superintendent of farmers' institutes, chairman; J. F. Wotja, state leader of agricultural representatives; and W. W. Clark, assistant state leader of county agricultural representatives.

Free Notary Service for Absent Voters Continues

Reporter Thinks "R. U. R." Would Have Gone Over Big With Plato

By Gen Florez

The inquiring reporter being much in vogue on the campus, we wonder what some of our historical figures would have said about "R. U. R." which is being presented by Wisconsin Players tonight and tomorrow night at 8:15 p. m. in Bascom theater.

H. T. Plato, ex-'78 B. C., Kappa Sigma Awful, if asked what he thought of Prof. Troutman's latest, might have said, "In my revised edition of the new Republic, which can be bought at the Athenian co-op for a negligible sum, you will find that I endorse the clairvoyance of playwrights who suggest possible futuristic trends. 'R. U. R.' combines romance and a mechanistic philosophy of life in pleasantly logical elements."

Helen Jealous

High Awards Go to 35; Per- centage Higher Than Last Year

By Carlos Quirino

Donald Waldron Meiklejohn, a "W" winner in hockey, the son of Prof. Alexander Meiklejohn, and Bonnie Blanche Small, course in humanities, top the list of Letters and Science sophomore honor students with an average of excellent in all their courses. The list was released Thursday exclusively to the Cardinal by Dean Harry Glickman.

Maurice Joseph Ansfield, taking the pre-medic course, was second with an average of 2.969 grade points per credit. Meiklejohn had 81 credits and 183 grade points, while Miss Small obtained 64 credits and 192 grade points.

35 Get High Honors

Thirty-five received high honors this year as compared with 17 last term, and 84 were awarded sophomore honors as compared with 66 last year, making a total of 119 for 1928 and 83 for 1927. But the corresponding sophomore enrollment this year was greater than that of 1927, the figures being 1704 in 1918 to that of 1400 in 1927. The number of sophomore honors this year is approximately seven per cent of the total class enrollment, an increase of one per cent more than last year.

The complete list of those who received sophomore honors follow:

Directory Nearly Ready for Press

The student directory is at present in the hands of the printers, but it is not known exactly when it will be finished, according to Miss G. M. Martin, assistant registrar.

Proof is continually being sent to her for her approval, corrections made, and the proof returned to the printers.

There are many improvements being made in the directory this year. The pages will be of a larger size, the home street addresses will be given along with the Madison addresses, and the cover, instead of being the pale blue of former years, will be a bright red, and will be of stiff paper.

Dean Lauds Winners

"Any student who earns a place on the sophomore honors list," stated Dean Glicksman, Thursday, "has proved that he possesses the two qualities essential to scholastic success; one of them being intellectual curiosity, and the other the willingness and the ability to subordinate external interests to scholastic achievement."

"These qualities, moreover, he has demonstrated during the first half of his college course, the period in which many young men and women are diverted from the curriculum by one or more of a score of outside distractions."

"Brains, resourcefulness, persistence, industry, and character are all present in the background of this attainment. It requires a good mind, to begin with, to make sophomore honors; it necessitates also that discipline of the will which is always a helpful aid to native capacity."

Seniors Initiate Soph Engineers on Lake Shore

By BERT WEISS

A red hot initiation was held for the sophomore mechanical engineers by the senior members of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers last night on the lake shore back of the Hydraulics building. The fact that the initiation was red hot did not depend upon the weather nor the temperature of the lake.

The manly crew of sophomore candidates had explicit instructions preceding the event and came prepared with stout paddles of three-quarter inch oak shaped to given measurements and deviating less than one-tenth of an inch from the specified size.

Over 30 men came out despite the forementioned encumbrances. In fact they were so eager that they were willing to pay $2 and furnish shock-absorbers for the chance to become one of this mighty organization.

Despite the repeated warnings of the Humane society that dumb animals should not be beaten, the committee on arrangements managed to complete their entire program without interruption.

that in the last eight years, while the Republicans have been in office, there has been little or nothing done about the waterway. He also described the corruptness of the Republican administration during the last term as contrasted to the influence of Tammany upon Smith.

Backs War Accomplishments

"Hoover has never played politics, and he's not doing it now," was Whitney's argument. He pointed out the accomplishments of Hoover during the war in Belgium and Switzerland. He said this makes Hoover a man of international prominence.

"Hoover has continually evaded the main issues of the campaign," said Schoepp. "Smith is progressive and straightforward and does not evade issues. He thinks government is for the people. For president we do not need an engineer, but a man of legislation, on who can put ideas across to the senate."

Discuss Tariff

During the debate many of the old ideas of the differences of the two parties on the tariff question and its relationship to the prosperity of the country were discussed.

At the beginning of the meeting there was a short debate on the question of the Hesperia society's supporting Kohler for governor. After a vote had been taken, the society's stand was still found to be neutral.

Varsity Cage-men Busy Preparing for Hard Season

Basketball Squad Practicing for Heavy Duty Schedule This Year

By William Ahlrich

A striking characteristic about the varsity basketball team this year is that it will undoubtedly be composed of five tall men who stretch up into the atmosphere about 6 feet, and who tip the scales at about 165.

Doc, "Walt" Meanwell is getting his squad physically fit for one of the most difficult schedules that the Cardinal has had to contend with for many a season.

From atop of his "crows nest" on the basketball court in the "Little Old Red Armory" Doc is watching his varsity candidates go through their paces every Monday, Wednesday and Friday. The little coach shouts through his megaphone instructions as to how the ball should be dribbled. Occasionally he lets a favorable comment drop, and now and then he hurls some good advice.

Squad Appears Fast

It appears as though the Cardinal will be represented by a much faster, and by far a stronger combination this year than the team that took the floor under Captain Behr last year. The pass work of the men will be snappier than ever before.

The important cogs in Doc Meanwell's team this year are "Hank" Kowalczyk, Elmer Tenhopen, John Doyle, Harold Foster, and Rey Ellerman. Besides these first string men there is a great wealth of material that Meanwell is working with, which will be an important asset to the team in view of the strenuous schedule which the Badgers have to face.

Strong List of Reserves

Lycan Miller, Carl Matthusen, Edmund Chmielewski, Joseph Murphy, Maurice McClanathan, John Schroeder, Stanley Burdon, Delbert Hutchins, Morris Farber, D. Peterson, David Goodnough, Roy Nuernburg, Richard Kreig, John Poser, William Powell, and Milton Diehl are some of the candidates that will in all likelihood turn into important cogs of the Meanwell machine before the current season opens.

The potential strength of the team can be seen both on the defensive and the offensive. The playing ability of Doyle, Tenhopen, and Foster was put through the acid test last year. Ellerman was in and out of the line up last season, but while he was in he proved to the fans that he was all there as a basketball man. Kowalczyk was out of school last year, but those who remember his clever passing, and dribbling of the season before know that the big lanky boy from Indiana is just the man for the center position on "Doc's" team.

Schedule Altered

The rotating schedule in effect for Western conference basketball, eliminates two old rivals from the Wisconsin game schedule this year. The slate of games drawn up by the Big Ten coaches at their annual meeting in Chicago drops Illinois and Iowa, traditional enemies of the Badgers, from the list, and with them Ohio state.

In place of these three Wisconsin will mix with Indiana, Northwestern, and Chicago. The arrangement will bring every first division team of last season against Doc Meanwell's boys in a pair of games.

The conference season will open Jan. 5th at Minneapolis when the Badgers take on the Gophers. Michigan will open our home season on Jan. 7th.

The Basketball Schedule to date is as follows:

- Dec. 15 Pittsburg at Milwaukee.
- Jan. 5 Minnesota at Minneapolis.
- Jan. 7 Michigan at Madison.
- Jan. 12 Chicago at Chicago.
- Jan. 14 Indiana at Madison.
- Jan. 19 Minnesota at Madison.
- Jan. 21 Purdue at La Fayette.
- Feb. 16 Indiana at Bloomington.
- Feb. 18 Northwestern at Madison.
- Feb. 23 Northwestern at Evanston.
- Feb. 25 Purdue at Madison.
- Mar. 4 Michigan at Ann Arbor.
- Mar. 9 Chicago at Madison.

Several preliminaries may be arranged before long, it is thought.

There is no plant life in the sea below the point where sunlight can penetrate.

Iowans, Gophers to Match Attacks

Giants of Unbeaten Elevens Are to Collide on Saturday

Two matured football teams, each with a similar type of driving offense and each with a human battering ram at fullback, meet on Iowa field Saturday afternoon in a battle of giants.

They are representatives of the University of Iowa and the University of Minnesota, their meeting is the 23rd in history, and the result of the game practically will throw the loser from the Western conference championship race.

It is Iowa's homecoming, and a record crowd of some 28,000 persons will tax the stands' capacity. Cynosure of all eyes will be Mayes McLain, Iowa fullback, whose veins carry the blood of Cherokee Indian tribesmen, and Bronko Nagurski, the Minnesota lumberjack.

Indian vs. Bohemian

They are the principals of a fullback battle expected to surpass any of recent years on Big Ten gridirons. A five yard average each time their signal is called is in possession of the Indian from Oklahoma, and the Bohemian from the Canadian boundary line.

Special defenses constructed by each coach may cancel many of the stars' efforts, however, especially with two lines of great strength opposing each other. In that case, aerial attacks may be launched, or Glasgow and Pape of Iowa may vie with Brockmeyer and Hovde of Minnesota in totaling yardage on cut-back sprints, eclipsing the efforts of the colorful fullbacks.

Hawks Outweigh Gophers

Lines are about of equal weight, but Iowa will have an edge of seven pounds in the backfield, and two pounds to the man in team average. The Gopher line from tackle matches the Iowa forward wall in experience, while the Minnesota ends are more tried veterans than the Old Gold starters.

Minnesota has won 16 of the past 22 games, but Iowa's opponents at homecomings have been beaten four of six contests, including 1920, 1922, and 1924.

KEEP SPARK PLUGS DRY

If an automobile has been standing out in a heavy rain or a cloud-burst or has just been washed, examine the spark plugs and blow away any water which may have accumulated around them.

"B" TEAM GAME ADMISSION REDUCED

Student admission to the Michigan Reserves-Badger Second game will be 50 cents, providing the tickets are purchased at the ticket office before 11 a. m. Saturday. Fee cards will be required for the purchase, and after 11 o'clock, the regular public sale price of $1.00 will be charged.

Baseball Squad Continues Work in Spite of Cold

Successful Fall Season of Practice Games Nears Finish

Despite weather more suitable to overcoats and good football, the baseball proteges of Coach Lowman and Assistant Coach Donagan continue to cavort daily on the confines of the lower campus. The shouts of the players and the clear ringing crack of the bat meeting the ball can be heard every day as one passes the playing field.

Coach Lowman, however, intimated that baseball for this year would soon be over. Practice will be continued for the remainder of this week and possibly for a few days of next week, but after that, it will be dispensed with until next spring. The cold weather together with other interests which now claim the squad have forced the coach to call a halt.

Practice Games Successful

Practice games have been the rule of the team ever since the first few days of the fall season. These games have been hotly contested and have given Mr. Lowman an opportunity to test the ability of the men at different positions.

Besides these games, much work has been accomplished in the perfection of the play of the infield. The men have been drilled in double-play combinations and on strategic positions to use with men on bases and a bunt in the offing. The teamwork of the infielders has also been stressed in order that greater speed may result in the execution of double-plays, etc.

The outfielders have also come in for their share of the work and all of the men have had an opportunity to show what they can do at the plate. Batting practice has also played an important part in the work this fall. The men have been instructed in the correct methods of bunting, and the different ways of meeting the ball have been explained to them.

Expect Strong Team

The pitchers and catchers have all been given an opportunity to show what they can do. The work of some of the men in practice indicates that they are of varsity caliber and Coach Lowman expects to be materially strengthened in the battery department at the start of next season.

Motion pictures were taken of the men in practice Thursday afternoon. The infielders were sent through their paces and all of the men were instructed to hit while the camera recorded their actions. These pictures will be used to point out the faults and the good points of the players during the discussions to be held throughout the winter.

Indiana to Meet Ohio State in Homecoming Battle

One of the biggest pep demonstrations staged here this fall showed the undergraduate body of Indiana university ready for the nineteenth annual Homecoming celebration here Saturday.

Pat Page and his Scrappin' Hoosiers continued to work out on the new Jordan practice field in preparation for the game with Ohio State here Saturday afternoon. The Buckeye eleven, with one of the heaviest and speediest organizations in the conference, are the third Conference opponents to face the Hoosiers, whose record now reads one won and one lost.

Fear Ohio State Line

Coach E. C. Hayes, who scouted the Ohio State team in their game with Michigan stated that the Scarlet line-men charged fast and hard, and that their weight did not hamper their speed. During the past week Page has spent most of his time developing a defense to check the running and passing attack used by Ohio State. He also has been polishing up his punters who will find it difficult to equal the performances of the Buckeye kickers.

When the Scarlet and Gray eleven

Meet Capt. Wagner

Capt. Rube Wagner took his team to Ann Arbor yesterday afternoon, with the one and only purpose of coming out on the long end of the score in a Badger-Wolverine battle for the first time since 1899. His leadership thus far this season has had a great deal to do with the excellent showing made.

Illinois Looks to Wildcat Battle

Oldtime Rivals to Meet at Urbana Homecoming Saturday

Illinois is all dressed up to welcome the homecoming throng of 60,000 or more which will cheer the embattled Northwestern and Illini elevens Saturday.

Bedecked in the colors of the old time rivals and bright with elaborate decorations which make effective use of lighting effects, fraternity and other houses tell the world that the Illini are just about to celebrate their nineteenth annual reunion.

From far and near, the sons and daughters of Illinois are hurrying home. Belated fans are bombarding the ticket office with special deliveries and telephone calls but there are still many seats left and it is assured that tickets will be available Saturday, and probably at the last minute.

Wildcats Confident

Northwestern will invade the campus, horse, foot and dragoons, testifying by the presence of 10,000 pilgrims confidence that it has an excellent opportunity to defeat the Illini for the first time in 16 years.

Paxton, Ill., will swell with pride when its hometown boy Glenn Bainum, an Illinois grad will direct the Purple band of 125 pieces. Austin Harding, director of the Illini musicians, has a rival worthy of his steel for his pupil knows his signals and the battle of the band will be no mean engagement.

Out at the Champaign county club Bob Zupke will give his boys the last onceover, while Dick Hanley will quarter the Wildcats at the Urbana country club.

Zupke To Use Vets

Zup will put none but veterans on guard at the outset. Ken Fields will relieve Stuessy later on. "Gags" Mills was forced to rest because of a bump received in the Indiana game but it is thought he will be there at the start. If he isn't, Frank Walker will be Jud Timm's running mate.

Bill McClure, guard, and Lloyd Burdick, tackle, are the only 1927 letter men not included in the first lineup. McClure will relieve Crane, and Burdick if his recent injury permits, will sub for Capt. Nowack.

Other prospective reserves are Roush, center; Langhorst, guard; Hills, tackle; Lewis, Tarwain and Hinton, ends; Hickman, Peters, Nickol, Bergeson, Robinson, Bodman, Hall, and Gill, backs.

takes the field, it will constitute more than one ton of football talent. Practically every combination used by Wilce this fall has averaged around the ton mark. The line-up started last Saturday against Michigan weighed 2,035 pounds, and the average varied little during the game.

Buckeyes Outweigh Hoosiers

The Ohio line including Barratt, 235-pound center, averages 193, as compared with the 178 pound Hoosier average. In the backfield, the Hoosiers average is 169 pounds, while the Ohio average is 171 pounds. The team averages are Indiana 172 pounds, Ohio 184, the Hoosiers giving per man.

Should Wilce start Griffith, a re-approximately 13 pounds of weight

Cardinals Await Traditional Tilt with Wolverines

Thistlethwaite Takes 30 Men on Trip to Ann Arbor

The historian who has been writing athletic history at Michigan during the twentieth century may have to record tomorrow's chapter "in the red", for the Badger eleven invades Ann Arbor with a determination built up over a period of twenty-nine years.

Three losses by the Michigan team have not caused the reaction in the Wisconsin camp that one might expect. Coach Thistlethwaite has convinced his boys that there is too much tradition in a Badger-Wolverine battle to make the encounter an easy victory for either team. The Cardinal squad expects to meet a desperate Maize and Blue eleven, fighting to atone for their poor start.

Hope For Victory

The Wisconsin team sees a chance to upset their rivals of long standing and there is not a single Wisconsin fan, student, or alumnus who would not accept a verdict over the Wolverines in preference to any other conference team. This condition is only natural, as it was way back in 1899 when the Cardinal ruled supreme over the Wolves on the gridiron.

Although ten or a dozen backfield men have been used in nearly every game the Badgers have played this fall, a careful inventory of this group at present brings to the fore several men who stand out above the others.

Bill Lusby, Flashy Chicago sophomore, has proven a valuable addition to Thistlethwaite's offense. Right now he appears to have the qualities of a great triple-threat performer, although only weighing 160 pounds, for he can kick and pass with the best of them, and his drives off tackle and his return of punts are pleasing to witness.

Backfield Strong

The other two backfield men who have come through in fine form are Cuisinier and Harold Smith. "Bo", because of his stature and build, is undoubtedly one of the hardest men to tackle in the Big Ten once loose on a broken field. Smith has done some powerful line bucking from the full-back position. Harry Rebholz, the other Badger fullback, has continued to show the polished defensive tactics that he displayed last season, while his offensive work is also commendable.

Coach Thistlethwaite has been forced during the past week by circumstances, to shift his lineup considerably and Michigan will find themselves facing a new starting eleven, primed for the battle, with a bevy of new plays to work upon their opponents.

The Badger line-up will be selected from the following men, who are making the trip:

Bartholomew, Behr, Cuisinier, Davidson, Hayes, Lusby, Price, H. Smith, K. Smith, Rebholz, Oberndorfer, Backus, Biniush, Casey, Corny, Cooksey, Davies, Gantenbein, Ketelaar, Linden, Lubratovich, McKaskle, Miller.

Church Football Games Near End; Hillel Leads Race

With Hillel Foundation looming as probable winner, the touch-football race in the Church league is nearing its close on October 30. There are but three rounds to be played.

Standings of the league are now as follows:

Team	Won	Lost
Hillel	6	0
St. Frances	3	0
Wesley	4	1
Calvary	1	1
Congregational	0	3
Luther Memorial	0	3
Baptist	0	3
St. Paul's	0	3

cruit, at guard, his center trio will average 215 pounds, including Barratt and Ugheljn. Using Young instead of Griffith, the average of the guards and the center is 205 pounds. Flanking this trio at the tackles are Ras-kowski, all-American in 1927, weighing 208 pounds and Larkins, weighing 188 pounds.

Reconsidering Cribbing

The Daily Cardinal's Chance Lies in Ability to Obtain Reactions

ASKED by Dean Scott H. Goodnight about 10 days ago to take up as a theme for its 1928-29 policy a campaign against cheating in the university, The Daily Cardinal explained that it could do little itself to help remedy conditions. While agreeing with the ideal that would mean strict honesty among students, the editors were reluctant to start waging a comprehensive campaign. It was their opinion that such a policy could accomplish nothing without a rebirth of moral consciousness and duty on behalf of students who are tempted to cheat. This sentiment still remains.

The editors have been asked by numerous people since then, however, to reconsider their stand. Certain students and members of the faculty have pointed out that the support of the paper for honesty among students could do much to help in the long run, even though distinct advantages might not be forthcoming immediately. For this reason, we are opening the matter again.

A mere series of editorials urging that students be fair and that they do not resort to cribbing would only beat time. We could bombard and become bombastic about dishonesty day after day without effect. For, if the small minority of students who do cheat are not faced with the scorn and shame of others no amount of campaigning will help one whit.

In considering the matter, then, The Daily Cardinal bases its hopes for success upon ability to arouse student sentiment and opinion in favor of honest dealing and thinking. Now, trying to arouse an ordinarily quiet student body to action, so that the fairminded men and women might ostracize the cheaters, is bound to be a slow process. But probably it can be done, and probably an upheaval of student feeling on the matter can be brought about.

We are printing below an essay on student dishonesty, which was submitted to us recently, as a preliminary step. If it helps to stir opinion, the editors will be encouraged. For, in a matter so comprehensive and intangible as student honesty, the only really effective weapon The Daily Cardinal has at its disposal lies in its power to obtain student reactions and student support against dishonesty through its contributor's column.

Are You Honest?

WE OFTEN hear students speaking of the Honor System—they argue for and against it without really knowing what it means. They seem to think that the Honor System is being practiced if an instructor goes out of the room during an examination and leaves them on their honor. It may be, and it may not be. You and I write our examinations from the knowledge we have acquired from patient study. Sam looks over the questions, pulls a book out of his pocket, consults it whenever he finds it necessary or looks at the answers of his neighbors, and soon finishes his paper without mental effort, and without protest from anybody. Have the students who know that Sam is doing no responsibility here? Can this be an Honor System?

Evidently Sam is well satisfied with it—it suits his code of honor admirably. From childhood, Sam has heard his father tell with pride of how he, as a boy, "hooked" apples from the grocer, "cooned" watermelons from the hard-working farmer, and "cribbed" from Johnnie Jones in school. In later years, he has been entertained with stories of how his father "put it over" certain honest competitors, and how by "clever methods" he won a place on the city council. His mother, socially ambitious, has wasted no time in teaching ethics to her children. In a home, the simple virtues are practiced only when necessity makes them expedient, and with such warped ideals, Sam comes to the University.

Here, because he dresses well, talks easily, and spends his father's money generously, he is considered a good fellow and neither by word nor action is he led to believe that his code of honor, or dishonor, rather, is not the accepted one. So he goes blithely on handing in themes that another student has written for him, stealing his roommate's problems, and, when nothing else offers, borrowing his classmate's notebook and coolly copying the sentences which she has carefully translated into French. He boasts of his cleverness, in "putting it over" his instructor, and excuses himself by saying that everybody does it.

And you who say there is nothing wrong in what Sam does, are either dishonest yourself, or a weakling who has not the courage of his own convictions. Why should not every honest student "blush with indignant shame if the community which owns him is vile in any way whatsoever"? Why should we let the high ideals of our University be lowered by such a fellow as Sam? Can we not create such a flood of public opinion against such acts that the dishonest student will find himself drowned in it unless his better instincts bring him to the surface?

If Sam, instead of having his dishonest practices accepted with indifference on the part of the students, and with sly winks of approval by others who are playing the same game that he is, had met the united scorn of the student body, he would either have quit his underhanded ways or been forced to leave the University, unable to bear the heat of indignation aroused against him.

He would find out then that he had come up against an ideal code of honor—an honor system for which every student holds himself responsible, and where the collectivity of pride in the honor of the University brooks nothing dishonorable in any of its members. And when Sam finds that he is popular only insofar as he lives up to the high ideals of the student body, he will begin to get his own ideals straightened out, and the Honor of the University will become an inspiration to him, "for what the whole community comes to believe in grasps the individual as in a vise".

The Concert Series

Have Students Tried to Take Advantage of the Coming Events?

HOW MANY students have purchased season tickets to the Union board concert series which opens Nov. 6 with the appearance of Tito Schipa, world famous tenor, at the Stock pavilion? Or how many have planned to attend this first concert, if not all?

One cannot estimate the extent of student support for these annual concerts; that depends entirely upon the ability of each person to appreciate good music, or upon his interest in the finer arts. But one can say that the Union concert series deserves the attention of each student enrolled in the university. For, the Union has always gone out of its way to provide worthy musical entertainments at extremely reasonable rates, and those who miss an opportunity to hear singers like Tito Schipa and Sigrid Onegin, or violinists like Paul Kochanski, are losing a chance to add something worthwhile to their cultural background.

Each one of the Union concerts this year brings before the public people of world reputation. And for season rates of $4, $5, and $6, there is no one in the university who is unable to give his support to them and so enrich himself. Will the students take advantage of their opportunity?

By XANTIPPE

Just to start off biblically, we must say that we hear that for the Michigan game there will be a general exodus of students in great numbers.

Don't you feel sorry just now for the football men and the presidential candidates, who have been getting all muddled up?

We know the reason for all this cribbing that is arousing so much interest at present. It's done by people who haven't outgrown the influence of their crib days at home.

Well, well! When these engineering students get down to actual work it is considered unusual enough to deserve a headline in the Deet.

This is beautiful, if unintentional, satire. Under the picture of Mr. Ralph Smith in Wednesday's paper appears the statement: "He has been on one HARESFOOT trip and survived it. He is also a PHI PI."

The irony of importances in life: the number of people who cram the vaudeville houses compared to those who go to University Theatre productions; the number that flock to the road-houses compared to those who dance at the Union; and likewise the fact that everybody turns first to the Skyrocket page of this paper.

An old fellow told us that when he heard students complaining about not being allowed to drive cars on the campus, it reminded him of Apicius, the old Roman, who dined habitually on the tongues of nightingales and then committed suicide when his wealth got down to its last million. The old fellow said that modern youth had "million dollar ideas." Oh, well, if somebody didn't have million dollar ideas, and carry them out, how would the world progress?

Opinion has been expressed that the no-student-driving rule was perpetrated by the taxi companies so they would get more trade from the sorority sisters on rainy days.

What's the use of keeping up this insipid pretense about six-weeks examinations? (We are deadly and earnestly serious now—we have six of them coming in two days). But even to the professors they are for the most part a great bore. Four out of our six candidly admitted that they were giving them only because it was required by the deans, and that they did not intend to mark, or at least count, the papers.

The Madison Fire Department ought to hold their annual Fireman's Ball in the old Phi Gam house—they sure ought to know their way around.

By UNCLE WALT

A fella told me the other day that Al's cleaning was being done by a Hoover. All right, Herb, here's for a clean sweep.

Why do we think that women change their minds oftener than men do? I'll tell you. It's like this: A man changes his mind, but doesn't shoot off his mouth until he's arrived at a decision. A woman does her thinking out loud; so there's more evidence of her mind changing.

Tell me if you've heard this before: This is the year that we are going to beat Michigan.

Shyster's poppa: I don't see why my boy is getting such poor grades. I'm sure he's trying.

Dean Richards: Yes indeed, he's very trying.

One of the Rocketeers was complaining the other day because there were four or five shots of Clara Bow undressing in "Wings." I ask him, what more does a fellow expect for fifty cents.

All kidding aside, I wish to take issue with the sports writer who criticizes Vic Chapman or anyone else for not being active in athletics. I don't know why Chapman isn't "training" or taking any steps toward conditioning himself. Perhaps it's because he doesn't want to.

I suggest that some of these critics, who think a man is a yellow slacker because he is a capable athlete and doesn't "go out," try college athletics for a while. I know from experience that athletics in college is a grind. Many brilliant high school stars come here and don't participate in "athletics" because it is a commercial business, hard labor, and retains little of the characteristics of a game.

NON-CONTESTANT CHARGES DRAG IN DEBATING

Editor, The Daily Cardinal:

Tuesday the final tryouts for the men's debating teams were held. The results, which have since been announced, lead me to the conclusion that there is something very much the matter with the existing situation.

Before analyzing the difficulty, let us get the general facts of the case. In the tryouts were some twelve contestants, more than half of whom have not previously been Varsity debaters. Their speeches showed preparation, and, certainly, these men are eager to obtain the advantages of inter-collegiate debating. On the other hand, entered in the tryouts was at least one member of last year's Varsity squad (perhaps the outstanding university orator of the year), who came to the tryouts almost utterly unprepared.

Now, what has happened is this: Pull, or some such force, has obtained for the old debater a position on this year's team, despite the fact that his rating in the tryouts could only have been very low.

I grant very readily that the debater of last year would in the end be a greater asset to the university team and would probably do more to bring home the much sought after bacon than would a new man. Yet my question stands: Is it fair to the new men who have worked hard and have had no previous experience, to find that the places are filled through drag or pull, or whatever it may be?

If the faculty of the speech department takes the stand that all that is desired, in the end, is victory for the university and that development of individual ability and consideration of personal effort are inconsequential, I withdraw my criticism. If however, the aim of the speech department is to give all university men, on an equal footing, an opportunity to benefit by Varsity debating, then I should appreciate an explanation of the results of Tuesday's tryouts.

One word more: if the first premise is correct and the second all wrong, why enact at all the farce of having tryouts?

—A NON-CONTESTANT

Specialization-Stability

THE "broad education" or "cultural background" involves a smattering of this, a term of that; six months of this course and a year of that. A few facts here, and a few facts there. Enough for us to go out in to the world and hold our own at a dinner party or during a golf match or with the man we expect to sell bonds to. Enough to allow us to enter almost any unspecialized business and still seem fairly intelligent in a casual conversation.

It is easy for a man to be cultured nowadays—our magazines are full of offers of canned culture at rock-bottom prices. Education implies a certain specialization, something more than general superficialities.

There are two trends today in educational fields; one towards the broad education, the cultural background, quickly acquired and superficial. The other is towards an education more specialized and therefore more solid. Princeton has chosen to ally herself with the second trend.—Daily Princetonian.

Latin Book Has 445th Birthday

Ancient Treatise on Astronomy Found in Indiana Library

Bloomington, Ind. — Worm-eaten and musty, its pages browned with age, a book in the university library here is celebrating its 445th birthday, many miles from where it was born.

This venerable tome, an astronomical work published in Venice, is considered by library attaches as one of the most valuable books in the university collection. It has a solid wooden back and is printed in pure Latin. Innumerable passages are underscored in a now faded ink and copious notes in long hand line its margins.

Cost $126

The price of the book, nominal enough perhaps when it was printed, was $126 when the university library acquired it from a German book dealer a short time ago.

The experiences of this ancient book are no doubt legion for it has probably graced alike the dwellings of scholars and kings. It has a past, a very great past, for it has been consulted and criticized, questioned and quoted down through the centuries.

Alphonsine Tables

It contains the Alphonsine tables of planetary motions, which were the first astronomical works of importance to follow those of Ptolemy.

For many years the genealogy of this venerable book was unknown. This only was known—that it was written under the direction of Alfonso X (1223-1284) supposedly by a group of Mohammedan astronomers, and passed more than 200 years of its life in manuscript form before it was printed in Venice in 1483.

Preface Is Mystery

There has been much discussion about this printed edition for its preface seems to have been written by someone other than the author of the book proper.

Finally, an English scientist of note became interested in the work and traced its genealogy. He found that its authors were two Jewish astronomers, Jehuda ben Mose and Isaac ibn Sid. Besides the copy in the university library, only four are known to be extant in the United States.

WORLD of SOCIETY

Mae F. Johnson and Robert C. Greele Are Married on Saturday

The marriage of Miss Mae F. Johnson, La Crosse, to Robert C. Greele, of Madison, took place at 8:30 o'clock last Saturday morning at the Church of Ascension in Minneapolis. The Reverend Thomas Maegher performed the ceremony.

The bride was gowned in a dress of navy blue crepe and transparent velvet and a hat to match. Miss Irene Kinney, who was her attendant wore a dress of brown transparent velvet with a hat of matching color. Howard Buhse, a cousin of the bridegroom, was the best man. After the ceremony breakfast was served to fifteen guests at the Hotel Madison.

Mr. Greele was graduated from Champion College in 1918 and in 1925 he received his degree from the law school of the university. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Greele of Prairie du Chien. Since his graduation he has been a practicing attorney in Madison.

Rob Fraternity Men at Wabash

Warning was given to the fraternity public of Crawfordsville, Ind., recently by members of the chapter of Lambda Chi Alpha, Wabash college, who awoke to find that robbers had helped themselves from the closets on the second floor of their house.

Three suits, a sweater, a watch and fraternity pin were the articles missed by members of the chapter when inspection was made Monday. The police were notified of the theft at once.

Although no clues were discovered it is believed that the robbers or robber entered the dwelling after the hour of 2 in the morning. Prof. Myron G. Phillips who was occupying the guest room on the first floor stated that he thought he heard a door close late in the night, and it is generally believed that it was about this time that the theft was made.

The engagement of Helen Withaan, Chicago, to Bernard J. Kastein '30, Waupun, was announced Thursday evening at the Phi Kappa Tau house.

Build Annex to Pumping Station

Install Chemical and Filtration Improvements to Purify Water

Ramblers along University drive have been for the past month either languidly or curiously interested in the construction of a certain building, the importance of which to themselves they probably do not understand.

"Oh just another new building," they yawn. "Always something to spoil the scenery."

New Pumping Station

The "just another building" is the new University Pumping station being built as an annex to the old station.

Purity rather than increase in water supply is its purpose. Vastly improving the present system, which pumps water almost directly from Lake Mendota into the pipes to be used on the campus for all but drinking purposes, the new annex will have as its distinctive feature reservoirs for the filtration and purification of the lake water.

Chemically Treated

Chemical treatment will insure against minute foreign matter. To pump water from the lake into the reservoirs, two pumps, one electric, the other steam, are to be installed. The intake will be at present at 500 feet.

The old station's two upper air tanks, each with a pressure of 145 pounds, and two lower tanks with a pressure of 85 pounds, will force the purified water into the pipes.

31,000,000 Gallons

No change will be made in the size or route of the conveyance pipes. Over the two divisions of the campus, the "hill" and "out", the four large pumps will continue to pump 1,000,000 gallons of water daily which is the amount now consumed.

It is probable that in the future the water from the university's own station will be used for drinking also. However not for five months, the expected time for the completion of the annex, could that be possible.

cial connections of the university.

There are usually about 29 committees, with approximately six members of the faculty serving on each.

Former Students at Texas Unite

New Association Reports on Aims; Outlines Program

Austin, Texas.—Activities of the Ex-students association of the University of Texas since June 2, the beginning of the association's new year, are itemized in a recent report made by William L. McGill, president, and John A. McCurdy, secretary.

Heading the list of accomplishments is the work of the association officers in compiling a complete statement of the organization's aims and a program for its future activities. This program has been adopted by the executive council and distributed generally to ex-students.

Loans $63,000

Since June 2, student loans were made to 67 students to the amount of $10,190. The total amount of loans now outstanding is $63,000.

Close contact has been maintained with campus activities, the report shows. Membership fees totaling $1,220.50 have been received and payments made on "blue book" subscriptions to the amount of $6,490.50.

Constitution Revised

Revision of the constitution and by-laws of the association has been ordered and work on this matter undertaken. A complete audit of the association's books was made and approved.

J. H. Hart and Dr. G. M. Graham of Austin were named members of the Athletic council. Dr. Graham was unable to accept the appointment, however, and another selection will be made shortly.

The association budget for 1928-29 was studied and adopted and plans made for the financial support of the association.

Fifty Students Inspect Yerkes

More than 50 members of the astronomy classes drove to Williams Bay last Saturday for an inspection tour of the Yerkes observatory there.

The class spent the day inspecting the observatory and the telescope, which is the largest Franklin observ-er in the world.

Prof. Joel Stebbins supervised the trip.

Northwestern University Enrollment Increases

An enrollment of 10,750, an increase of 1242 over last year, has been reported at Northwestern university. Of this increase 1,153 are on the Chicago campus, while 310 of this last named total are in the new night liberal arts course. These figures will tend to remain approximately unchanged, although there may be some shrinkage from withdrawals.

WITH AUTUMN COME IDEAS FOR THE HALLOWE'EN PARTY

Halloween—spooky time, happy time!

Witches' cauldrons, black cats, Jack-o'-lanterns, evil-eyes and their spells—and Halloween parties.

All sorts of possibilities in enter-taining are offered by Halloween parties. There are the age old games, there are the "fortunes," there are black cat and witch placecards, good luck charms, decorations!

But the high point of the party is the Halloween supper or luncheon, and there are many dishes for carry-ing out the Halloween idea. Of course, there's the ever present pumpkin pie, but there are many new dishes to add to the occasion. For instance, there are delightful Hal-loween canapes—cunning little open faced sandwiches.

Halloween Canapes

Slice wheat bread very thin, and toast in butter in a frying pan on one side only. Then, cut a mold represent-ing a little cat from cardboard, and trace around this on the toast with the point of a paring knife. Make a spread of chopped truffles mixed with French dressing, to which has been added a drop of garlic juice. Spread this evenly all over the toast. Then place tiny, white onions for the cat's eyes.

Another attractive Halloween can-ape may be made by cutting out a pumpkin shape from the toast. Over this spread a pungent, yellow cheese which has been grated and softened with mayonnaise, seasoned with soy sauce. Make the pumpkin's ridges with anchovy paste, and add a long, slender green pepper for the stem.

Spiced Ham

A spiced baked ham is a feature of any Halloween luncheon. Place a ten pound ham into boiling water deep enough to cover it. Prepare the water first by adding three table-spoons of sugar, a half teaspoon of cinnamon, one bay leaf, one teaspoon of grated onion juice, and the grated rind of one lemon.

Allow the ham to boil in this mix-ture for ten minutes, and then grad-ually reduce the heat and allow it to simmer for three hours or until the ham is tender. Let it cool in the liquor, and when cool remove the ham skin.

Rub the surface of the ham with a mixture of brown sugar, cinnamon and allspice, allowing a half teaspoon of cinnamon and a half teaspoon of allspice to each cup of brown sugar used. Stick cloves all over the fatty surface of the ham and place in a baking pan. Place in a hot oven and allow it to bake for an hour, basting it frequently with a syrup made of two cups of sugar, a quarter cup of vinegar, a quarter cup of water and one teaspoon of mustard, which has been allowed to come to a boil.

Fried Apple Rings

Fried apple rings are delicious serv-ed with the ham, and are easily pre-pared. Wash and core as many apples as you will need, and cut these slices about a quarter of an inch in thickness. Dip these slices into sugar, and fry in hot grease until tender.

Then remove and sprinkle with salt.

Tomato Jelly Salad

Press a pint can of tomatoes through a sieve, and place over a flame, allowing it to come to a boil. Then add a half teaspoon of salt, one tablespoon of sugar and a half tea-spoon of Worcestershire sauce, and allow to boil.

Soak a tablespoon of gelatine in two tablespoons of cold water. Then pour this into the boiling tomato mix-ture and allow to cook for a few min-utes. Strain the whole and pour into molds which have been wetted with cold water. Allow to cool and serve with mayonnaise.

Pumpkin Tarts

Pumpkin tarts are a delicious addi-tion to the Halloween menu. Mix to-gether the contents of two cans of pumpkin with one and an eighth cups of sugar, one and a half teaspoons of ginger, one teaspoon of cinnamon and one teaspoon of salt. To this add the yolks of three eggs, well beaten, two cups of milk and a half cup of canned moist cocoanut.

Beat the whites of the three eggs stiff and fold in with the pumpkin mixture.

Line tart tins with pastry dough and then fill with the pumpkin "bat-ter." Put these tart tins into a hot oven and allow them to bake, gradu-ally reducing the heat. They are done when a knife, inserted, comes out clean.

Serve these tarts cold and cover with whipped cream.

It's a Good One
It'll Win a Prize

"Button, button, who's got the but-

Or rather, who's got the winning design and slogan for this year's homecoming button? For this year, unlike other years, the buttons will bear a slogan besides the regular in-scription of "Homecoming," and as usual there will be a design, according to Margaret Carns '29, one of the judges of the poster contest.

The design must be typically Wis-consin, and must be in about three colors—black and white and one or two others. The contest closes Nov. 1.

Sue Madison on Union Labor War

Milwaukee Firm Demands $3,000 Because of Riots; Summons Issued

As an outgrowth of rioting which took place during the strike at Memorial Union in April, 1927, a suit has been started by the Milwaukee Mechanics' Insurance company, Milwaukee, against the city of Madison for alleged damage to property.

Summons and complaint were served Wednesday afternoon on City Clerk William R. Winckler. City Attorney Frank Jenks will prepare an answer to the complaint within 20 days.

The company demands damages of $3,038.75.

Says Notice Given

It is claimed in the complaint that Jacob Pfeffer, contractor for the building, and his agents, gave notice to Mayor A. G. Schmedeman of threats and injuries made prior to the damaging of property. The bunkhouse which had been erected in front of the building under construction for non-union help was destroyed. Ink was also thrown at the walls of the building but the stains were removed without replacing the damaged stone. According to the complaint, the Milwaukee Mechanics Insurance company insured Mr. Pfeffer in the sum of $250,000. It is further alleged that the company paid to Mr. Pfeffer $3,038.75 damages and that Mr. Pfeffer assigned to the company the right of starting action against the city. The company sets forth in its complaint that Sept. 7, 1927, a claim for damages was filed with the city clerk but that it has never been advised as to the disposition of the matter and that no notice of disallowance has ever been received by the company as is required by law.

Name "Mob" Members

The company further alleges that the property covered by insurance was damaged by a "riotous mob" consisting of John Peterson, W. S. Comstock, J. J. Hildebrandt, R. L. Curtin, George Morrell, Everett C. Morhauf, Martin Swerby and others known to the plaintiff.

Red-Heads Plan First Initiation on Sunday, Nov. 4

The first initiation of pledges into Rho Epsilon Delta will take place Sunday, Nov. 4; it was decided at a meeting of the active members of the red-head organization Tuesday night.

A design for a pin was also chosen, symbolic of the torch-bearers the members consider themselves to be. The date for the first dance has not been definitely fixed, due to the numerous affairs which are being crowded into the next few weeks, but the plans which were drawn up were, according to rumor, appropriately original and interesting.

The club is still anxious for new rushees whose hair is brilliant enough to make them eligible, Bob Hurd, '29, president, announced.

Sailors Beg Master Mariner for Favorite Pipe Tobacco

Larus & Bro. Co. Malden, Mass.
Richmond, Va. March 10, 1928

Dear Sirs:
I have been a Master Mariner for many years, and as a general rule all seafaring men smoke a pipe. I have tried about all the different brands of tobacco on the market, and in my estimation, there is not one make of tobacco that will compare with Edgeworth Slice for a good, cool, long smoke. Sailors would come to me and say "Capt., be sure to put in a good supply of Edgeworth when you fill up the canteen." That speaks for what the average sailor thinks of Edgeworth.

I retired from the sea six years ago, and the largest grocery dealers in Boston keep me supplied with this wonderful smoke. I take great pleasure in boosting it to my friends.

Very truly yours,

Greater Purdue Project Matures

Extensive Building Program Will Complete and Beautify Campus

Plans for the "Greater Purdue" are rapidly being carried out in such a manner that within the next few years the Lafayette, Ind., campus will have aspects of a greater and finer university.

Besides the several new additions this year, three new main buildings are being planned for the near future. The first of these is the new Chemistry building, which, when completed, is to occupy the position now taken by the Engineering Administration building.

Five Sections

The structure will be erected in five sections, the first of which will be between the girl's gym and the Mechanical Engineering building, probably necessitating the removal of the gas, heating and ventilating, and steam laboratories. Only a part of the latter will be removed, however. These laboratories are now installed in the old "bustin' lab".

The completed building will be in the shape of a huge "E" and will be designed to harmonize with the architecture of the campus.

Two New Buildings

Two new buildings are also being planned for the future north campus, which is being laid out at present. A new and smaller oval has been made east of the women's athletic field. Roads from the present campus have been laid and a diagonal road is to be made from this new oval to Seventh and University streets.

It is along this road, and on property now used as the women's athletic field, that the new Pharmacy building will be erected according to the finest and most up-to-date construction designs, and will be an extreme contrast to the old structure that is now being used.

Largest Structure

The third new building, and the one that will probably be the largest on the campus when completed, is the new Mechanical Engineering building. Definite plans for the building have not been finished, but its location on the campus has been established according to the layout of the future campus.

It will be erected back of the Electrical Engineering building and will include within its structure the present American Railroad association building and the Chemical Engineering laboratory, unit number one. The present Mechanical building may be turned into Chemical Engineering labs or utilized in some such manner. This is merely a part of the future campus being planned, but it is the main source of interest to the university at present.

State Normals Show Increase

Teachers' College Enrollments Higher by 229; Oshkosh List Lower

An increase of 229 students over the enrollment last year was registered this fall in the nine state teachers' colleges which annually turn out graduates who are to help guide the educational destinies of the boys and girls of Wisconsin.

E. G. Doudna, secretary of the board of normal regents, reports a total of 5,008 students enrolled in the colleges in Wisconsin against a registration of 4,771 in 1927.

Every school with the exception of Oshkosh college showed an increase. The decrease at this school was laid to the fact that about 10 per cent of those who applied there were rejected because of inferior qualifications for teaching.

Milwaukee normal showed the largest increase, 1,027 enrolling this year against 951 students registered the previous term. The enrollments at the school are:

Enrollments Listed

Eau Claire, 377; La Crosse, 636; Milwaukee, 1,027; Oshkosh, 609; Platteville, 345; River Falls, 451; Stevens Point, 380; Superior, 768; and Whitewater, 415.

Mr. Doudna declared that the field in the teaching profession is not overcrowded, although it appears to be so.

'SLOW AUTOS A NUISANCE'

The American Automobile association notes a tendency on the part of the states to increase speed limits in the interest of safety; that speed and recklessness are being divorced, and that vehicles moving slowly are proving the worst nuisance on the road.

Oxford Student Says Strict Rule Requiring Chaperons Grows Lax

Freedom such as one has never before enjoyed is now being experienced by the undergraduate at Oxford.

Strictly according to the rules, no girl student should converse with the male sex unchaperoned. But the rules are winked at—not only by the undergraduates themselves, who have always done so, but by those in authority.

It seems that the ridiculousness of the chaperon in many cases has been realized.

But now almost complete license is accorded to the students. An undergraduate who has "come down" this term said that in the time he had been there, there had been a marked loosening of the law.

"Three years ago," he said, "the proctors used to peep into every nook and cranny to catch an undergraduate and an undergraduate having a harmless cup of coffee together."

"Now that rule is relaxed, though it still exists nominally. So much so that it is possible for two students of opposite sexes to spend a whole day together in their rooms! And they think nothing of midnight excursions on the river, getting leave to go to the theatre."

Election Will Be No Problem for Indianans

Imagine their embarrassment! A brand new set of election rules drafted to prevent illegal voting, and no occasion to use them!

This is the delicate situation at Indiana, where to the consternation of local bosses, perfect political harmony reigns. Campus politicians, primed with campaign patter and glowing prospects, find themselves without a platform to stand on. Each class has filed an unopposed ticket for class offices.

Indiana does not know whether to point with pride or view with alarm the situation. No reason is known for this unprecedented apathy in class elections. But it is suspected that the very efficient set of election rules, drafted last spring, has removed much of the opportunity for subtle finesse, and hence much of the allure, from the machinations of the big bosses.

Reserves Play Here

While the varsity is away, home fans will find their football appetites satisfied through the game of the Wisconsin and Michigan seconds. Both teams have been undefeated this season and the clash should be quite exciting. Several of the "A" squad men have again been left over by Coach Thistlethwaite to help out the reserves.

Reserve Team Strong

"Dynie" Mansfield, who burned up the ten yard marks against Oshkosh last week, will again hold down the fullback position against Michigan, and Charles Horgitz, will probably see service in the line. McKaskle, while not going with the team to Ann Arbor, drove down to see the event, and so his services will not be available to the "B" team.

One big asset to the reserves backfield will be Tury Oman, halfback. Oman turned in some sensational work upon the varsity in the early part of the season, but sustained a bad leg injury, and since that time has been unable to regain his old form.

Similar to last Saturday, a grid-graph will give a play by play account of the varsity game at Ann Arbor, as instantaneous wire service has been obtained direct from Ferry Field. The rival "B" teams will get into action promptly at 2 o'clock, while the grid-graph will begin at 1:30.

Fish Praises Lee as Army General

Robert E. Lee, confederate general in the Civil war, was one of few generals in the world's history who held the confidence of his army and continued to keep that confidence over a period of years, according to Carl Russell Fish, professor of history at the University of Wisconsin, who addressed the College Endowment association in Milwaukee, Wednesday.

Pop Arts Scribe All for Roundy

Patter Artist Get Paid for It—Rockets Writers Don't—Who Wins?

By BOB GODLEY

IN spite of the opinion of the Rockets staff we think that Mr. Joe "Roundy" Coughlin knows his orchards. If this bird didn't he couldn't hold his job and as for getting most of his dope from another writer . . . well who gets the most dough? The official finish in the $ & c handicap shows Roundy leading by ten lengths with his teammate taking place money by a mile.

A man's success in the "gentle art of getting away with it" is directly proportional to the weight of his pay envelope. So there.

"R. U. R." goes on again this week-end . . . Albert Edward Wiggam, famed Phylar and orator, comes to Music hall next Wednesday . . . Kedroff quartet on Union Sunday . . . Only few more days to buy season tickets to Union concerts.

New Shows

New shows starting are:

Strand—(Silent) "Doomsday" with Florence Vidor and Gary Cooper (Saturday).

Capitol—(Silent) "Four Sons" (Fox Superspecial).

Parkway—(Sound) "Uncle Tom's Cabin" (Laemmle Super).

Chance

Bill Troutman is still looking for actors to try out for parts in "The Devil's Deciple," the next Players production.

Broadway

"Broadway," which comes to Garrick next Sunday, is story of a small time hooper and his gal.

They work in a night club. He thinks he is the best song and dance man in the world.

The bootlegger who supplies the night club gets reckless and starts high jacking.

He is also in love with the hooper's gal.

Things get complicated. The audience sees murders, gunmen, reporters and other specimens of New York night life.

It is a good play . . . a very good play . . . nine tenth's of our under-world movies stole their plots from it and will probably continue.

Al Jackson and company will present it. Don't miss it.

Tom

"Uncle Tom's Cabin," which makes "Abie's Irish Rose" look like a flop, comes to Parkway as a super movie.

In spite of all the bucks spent in production, all the sticks of grease paint used and all the gallons of water squirted into the reservoir for the ice scene, it is still the old Uncle Tom . . . the greatest meller of them all.

Sons

"Four Sons" is packing them in all over the country. The story is sobby, but the acting is grand . . . don't miss this . . . but take a hankie.

Al

Al Jolson has made records of "Sonny Boy" and "Rainbow Round My Shoulder" for Brunswick.

If you can shut your eyes and visualize Jolson, these songs are good . . . but otherwise his personality doesn't register on records.

Wet Days Mean No Soap From Ad Prospects

By R. CUBED

Advertisers don't place many ads on rainy days! It sounds like another one of those stories about the rather inclement weather that we've been having, but it's the truth. Reference is made to O. D. Bast '29, advertising manager of the Cardinal, he knows.

Why? One explanation given by "Odee" was that the advertisers want to be sure that their ads are effective. Just why they are not so effective on bad days is a psychological twist that can not be explained.

The advertisers all have whims about the positions that their ads should occupy in the paper, said Bast. Some prefer the back page to any other, some think that the sports page is the only place in which their ads will "take."

As it marched to the depot was nice and loud.

Galli

Amelita Galli-Curci comes to Capitol Nov. 13 at $4 top. She is probably the world's greatest soprano.

Smith

Illini to Grow Beards; Might Do Same Here

"A bearded campus by Homecoming," is the battle cry of Illinois, according to The Daily Illini. This may be the answer that Wisconsin will give to the announced increase in the tonsorial rates in Madison.

The barbers in the shop in the Union basement did not seem to be greatly concerned when they were questioned concerning the matter, and even seemed enthusiastic about letting the beards grow.

"Give a loving cup for the best beard," said Louis Top, "and we will do the judging for you."
